Dogberry sat on the bench, properly gowned, looking severe. The lawyer in front of him is trying his best for his client when, Dogberry, irritated and peevish, thunders at him: "Don't you dare to allow contempt for this court!" Quick as a flash came the answer: "Indeed, I am trying very hard to conceal it."

That story, current among lawyers, illustrates the proceedings against the members of the structural iron workers whose trial ended in conviction and long prison sentences. Their appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States having failed, their lawyer now tries to secure pardons for some of them.

In the petition for that pardon facts are alleged which, if true, or even partly true, fully justify the feeling of contempt now so widely held for the courts as run under capitalism.

It is asserted that the trial judge allowed only such exceptions to his rulings as suited his fancy; that he made long speeches to the jury commenting upon the facts in a way calculated to show that defendants were guilty; that a special train to convey the defendants to the Leavenworth Penitentiary was ordered forty days before the verdict by the jury; that the judge, during the trial, frequently consulted with the attorney for the Erectors' Association and heard suggestions from him privately in the absence of the defendants and their counsel, and so forth.

These things are now published on inside pages of capitalistic dailies. In the Times, for instance, in the same issue that publishes a divorce case among the Four Hundred at length on the front page as important and "fit to print."

They are printed now, when the case is closed judicially. They were hushed up at the time it was pending.

The judges of the Supreme Court in Washington gravely inspected the records before them. They considered nothing else. They are very consistent, those high and mighty judges of our most august tribunal. By the way, it is the same tribunal that found in the Moyer-Haywood case that it had no business to interfere with the outrageous kidnapping of the defendants.

Yet we are constantly told that we must respect the "majesty of the law" and the judges that administer it. Contempt of court in this country is as awful an offense as belittling the mustachios of His Imperial Majesty of Germany.

Oh, no; we must not show any contempt for courts. We must be law abiding citizens even under the most trying conditions. At least, as long as the majority is on the other side.

ANXIOUS

The following from the columns of The Citizen is a shining example of working class conditions under capitalism.

"Editor Citizen—

"I would be glad to have some reader of your paper point out what a man can do—bookkeeper for instance—who has been doing that kind of work all his life and is let out at 55 because he is regarded as too old.

"ANXIOUS."

This man has undoubtedly been a good slave, always meek and humble and always taking good care to vote his master's ticket.

He started out in life with great hopes and aspirations. To speed him up, and keep him contented, the masters led him on to believe that if he would work diligently and faithfully, he would some day be rewarded by being made a member of the firm.

Verily he has his reward. Turned out like an old worn out horse to die, he in fact is not nearly as well off as the horse, because the quadruped can still graze along the wayside and fill his stomach, but the working man must starve in the midst of untold plenty, for the atrocious crime of being no longer able to produce profits for an idle parasite class.

Oh working men and women. There is contained in the above letter a tragedy. There is contained in it an appeal from our own class for a chance to live. It is the voice of one of our class asking the why and the wherefore of things. It is the voice of one who ASKS WHY, since his life has been spent producing wealth; THAT NOW in the evening of life HE HAS NOTHING.

It is an indictment of Capitalism that Capitalism can not face. It is a demand from the working class for the exploiters to get down off our backs.

WE ARE DEMANDING THINGS THESE DAYS. Labor is awake, and aroused. Soon all the workers will ally themselves with their own political party, capture the governmental powers in the interest of their own class, use the powers thus gained to take over the mines, mills and factories and through their government operate them in the interest of all, much in the same manner as our post-office system is now managed.

TAKE ACTION

All Fair-Minded People, we are now calling for your support to contribute to a "Defense Fund" to be used in defending your four brothers who so patriotically and fearlessly protested against the alleged unbearable conditions imposed upon our citizens who were unfortunate enough to come before the Probate or Juvenile Courts, presided over by SAMUEL L. BLACK. As this defense for the four accused will cost [illegible] of money, you are urged to contribute liberally. All contributions, large or small, will be gratefully received.

VIOLATING THEIR PLATFORM PLEDGES.

Socialist Party Press Service.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 26, 1914.—The Democratic party has decided to violate another platform pledge in order to square itself with the interests of capital. This platform pledge states that the labor organizations "should not be regarded as illegal combinations in restraint of trade." President Wilson this week stated, however, that the amendment to the Sherman law proposing to exempt labor unions from prosecution under the Sherman act is not a part of his anti-trust program.

This means—if it means anything at all—that the Wilson administration has definitely decided that its game is to placate the business interests, to obey the expressed wishes of the N. A. M. and other manufacturers' organizations, meanwhile endeavoring to make the country think that it is "radical," "progressive," and everything that the interests that stand behind the Democratic party are not and can never be.

The Wilson trust program, omitting as it does the labor exemption bill, has simmered down to almost nothing at all. The interlocking directorate bill will never be passed; the price-fixing bill will be killed in committee; the "personal guilt" bill may possibly come somewhere near to getting through. The only bill which will certainly pass will be the much-heralded trade commission bill; will merely change the name of the Bureau of Corporations, raise the salaries of the head employes and allow the commission a little more liberty to "investigate"!

It will be seen that there is nothing whatever in this program to change the existing business system. Some business men are setting up a howl in order to make it appear that they are afraid of this terrible "drastic" program, and as the bills are more and more talked about, this howl will get louder. The administration is encouraging a certain amount of this howling because it makes it look as if it were really and truly a popular slayer of dragons.

In spite of the impression given to the contrary, no one in Washington is paying much attention to the trust program. The only thing that is worrying the politicians is the pressure which is piling in on them from all over the country from the labor organizations desiring the passage of the Bacon-Bartlett exemption of labor unions bill. This pressure is causing a great deal of trouble especially to members of the House who next fall will have to go before their districts and tell how dearly they love the working man. According to the best information available the present plan is to let the House pass the Bacon-Bartlett bill so that the Democrats who want to be re-elected will be able to make a "labor record" and then have the bill killed in the Senate. This is one of the great advantages of the two-chamber system of the government.

ALL OVER BUT THE SHOUTING

This paper has at all times stood by its own class in all their struggles. For that reason it has incurred the implacable hatred of the master class, but at the same time it has won the love and esteem of the thousands of toiling workers struggling upward towards freedom.

The last attack made, was by a midget brained individual by the name of Geo. B. Kimes, Editor of a scab herding sheet known as Glass Budget, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Seeing that the strikers at the Federal Glass Plant, have practically won the strike, this "scab lover" in an attempt to carry further favor with the masters comes out in an article attacking "The Socialist" for its loyalty to the working class, and also puts up a bluff about The Federal running full force with competent men.

This statement is a bold lie, as the company has very few skilled men in the plant. How could this company secure competent men for $2.00 per day pressing and gathering? Two dollars per day is the prevailing wage, paid most of the men employed at this time. Most of the men who are at work are incompetents who are trying to learn the trade and will quit just as soon as they can find something else to do.

These incompetents are causing the Federal to lose quite a sum of money due to their breaking of rings, ring molds, and the cutting of plungers. The mold makers are busy day and night repairing them.

We want to ask "scab herder" Kimes why, if the company is doing so nicely the following adv. is run in The Clarksburg News, and Fairmont Times:

MALE HELP WANTED.

WANTED—By Federal Glass Company, Columbus, O., five or six skilled gatherers for making tumblers and table glassware. Steady work and good wages guaranteed. The factory is operated strictly on a non-union basis. 1183—3t.

Last week 31 "scabs" were taken out of the plant, and shipped out of town, all glad to get away.

In the Blowroom last week a row started Blackburn the factory manager tried to quiet the men. This same Blackburn is the man who lords it over the men in the factory. When he tried to settle the difficulty Fosburg the notorious scab spoken of in these columns before, shoved Blackburn back in the corner, with the admonition "to stay there until called for." We wonder how he likes being told his place by a scab?

This Plant is trying all kinds of schemes to bring the strikers into court. Because the boys are conducting a peaceful and quiet strike and they can find no cause for action against them, the company resorts to tricks like the following: "On Tuesday, March 17th, this company informed Chief Carter that the strikers were becoming disorderly, and that a riot had almost occurred on Monday evening, March 16th, while the men were coming from the plant. On Tuesday evening, March 17th, Chief Carter, and Safety Director Barger visited the plant, and found the situation perfectly orderly, and found that the report was absolutely unfounded. Carter and Barger were pleased with the manner in which the boys were conducting the strike, and assured them that as long as they conducted themselves in the same orderly manner that they would get a square deal from their departments."

Last week the company discharged one of their deputy sheriffs. When he asked Bracken why he had been fired, Bracken claimed he did not know, but that Beatty had assumed that responsibility. It is reported that he was dismissed because he was intimate with the strikers. This man had the respect of the strikers because he saw to it that the law was enforced in an impartial manner.

S. L. Donahue, Pres. of Local 139, who has been a hard worker for the cause has been confined to his home the past week on acount of sickness but is now back on the job.

Organizer Gillooly is a man of indomitable nerve and force. His strong personality and determination to fight for his class inspires the other boys and one would have to travel many a long day to find a more revolutionary and determined set of men than the Union Strikers.

The boys have done excellent picket duty the past week. All that is necessary is to keep up the good work, and the battle will soon be won. In fact it is all over now but the shouting.

STARS AND STRIPES FOR INDUSTRIAL LIBERTY

Many of you will read this paper for the first time this week.

Not one of you but know that something is wrong with society. You have voted old party tickets, (many of you because dad did), all your voting life and your condition has been getting steadily worse.

All the old parties stand to [illegible] ownership of the tools of industry. That is, they believe in this capitalist system which allows a master class to own the factories, railroads, mines, and all the other industries on which the people depend for existence. Under this system you can not be employed unless you "divide up" the product of your honest toil with the master who owns the tools.

Out of every $10.00 you produce (which according to U. S. Gov. statistics is the average daily production) you are compelled to give the owner $8.00. Fact is you give him the entire $10.00 and he returns you $8.00, barely enough to keep life in you so you can return the next day and produce another $10.00.

Socialists say this system is entirely wrong, and should not be allowed to continue.

Socialists say that since all the people need food, clothing and shelter, that the factories, etc., that are used to produce and distribute the necessities of life should be owned and managed by the people themselves. This is pure democracy.

You may object to our program. Perhaps you like to be brutalized and insulted by the masters. Perhaps you like to be a slave. Perhaps you like to crawl timidly into these factories and ask for employment. Perhaps you think Socialists are "anarchists," etc. We ask you to read and investigate. We leave the decision up to you. We know that if there is one drop of red American blood left in your veins that already you are revolting at the horrible conditions in which you find yourself and the rest of the working class.

If you believe in American liberty and manhood, you will come with us, and help to lift the stars and stripes of our common country up above the sordidness of graft and debauchery into which a master class has thrust it, and swing it to the breeze over every public institution, captured by the workers so that it may wave for industrial, as well as for political liberty.

FLYING SQUADRON.

Boys and girls, I want to get this sentence out right now, and that is, Go to it, with a great big go.

Never was servile plutocracy on the run in this county as it is at present. They are whipped to a standstill.

Take the following as an incident of how the working class are arousing themselves. Last week a working man arose practically from a sick bed and went out and got nineteen new subs. And he says he is not yet a Socialist, but remarks that any bunch of men and women who have the nerve to expose the terrible conditions existing in the Juvenile court of this county deserves the support of every honest and decent citizen.

Subs, Subs. They fairly float in. Every mail brings them. From every nook and corner of the state they come. All we want to say is keep them coming. The working class now know they have their own press.

Press onward. Elect our own working class ticket and then the workers will get justice.

We workers know the terrible injustice that is daily heaped upon our heads, and when we elect our own we know that for the first time in the history of this county we'll our class be treated like human beings.

On with the good fight.

They tell us we are free! Freedom without a living is not freedom at all. We are only loose, not free.

Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!

WHY DON'T YOU WHISTLE?

Has whistling become a lost art? When the writer was a youngster he recalls that nearly every man went about his task cheerfully. He whistled while going to work, while at work, and while returning from work. He was joyous. The cost of living was within reach, and the black night of capitalism had not as yet so enshrouded the world in darkness.

Man is naturally a happy creature. Placed in a happy environment, surrounded by happy influences and beautiful things of nature, his soul expands. He feels welling up within him, thankfulness for his creation, and respect and love for his Creator. Whistling is one way he has of relieving himself of his pent up feelings of good will towards all.

Why do the people no longer whistle and sing? Why don't you sing any more? It is because capitalism is grinding out your very lives. It is because you are bowed down with the terrible thoughts of what may be in store for you and your loved ones.

A few men now own the tools of industry, and will only employ you when they can make a profit from your labor. You are not secure in your position for a single day. How can you be happy? Misery is on every hand. The slums, the tenements, the hungry children, the hordes of unemployed were not known thirty years ago. Consequently people were happy.

Just as soon as these horrible conditions are removed and the people set free, happiness and laughter and plenty will fill the land. Only Socialism can set the people free.

SOCIALISM.

H. S. Swank.

Socialism is the first cult or party ever organized on this planet with such lofty purpose and big ideals since Jesus instituted His great movement for the uplifting of mankind from poverty, sin and bondage to mammon (the idle rich), and which was to be harbinger to his announced plan of "Peace on earth, good will to men."

The Socialist Party, disciples and adherents are every where meeting with the same barbarous, cruel treatment that confronted Him, the same cruel, gibbing, scoffing, betrayal, persecution, villification, assassination and murder; and as then, at the hands of the emissaries of the "evil one," alias "devil, liar and the father of it," but there are so many of us now they can't crucify all.

The same forces of evil obtain now as then. The devil and all his imps—mammon's horde, are more active than ever; and well they may be; for the time is fast approaching when Satan can no longer control the slaves—mammon's fools.

The scales are falling off. Light is penetrating erstwhile beclouded minds; the truth that "God hath not given us the spirit of fear but of power and of love and of a sound mind" is gaining headway.

We begin to know that, "all there is belongs to all that are" and needs only to be accepted and used in order to serve and to bless all mankind:

And the last home be broken up.
None more to drink the bitter cup of poverty, and death and shame
Enforced by greed for brutal gain.
Honest use through honest work makes all men heroes and not shirks
Ope's prison doors to Mother Jones.
Love and good cheer and happy homes
Come on apace to everyone
With curse of poverty forced on none
Good will on earth the watchword be
The end of strife—community
Of interest, truth and helpfulness,
Each one; and every home to bless.

SERVANTS, OBEY YOUR MASTERS.

In all affairs both public and domestic, there must be a head or, in other words a directing force! The most vital point should be, who is to be that directing individual or body; should it be those served or those serving?

To put it in a more direct phraseology, who should be the one or ones to show and exercise absolute power, the one "paying the shot" or the one receiving the pay?

One would think by the absolutism and dictorial attitude [illegible] ority of our public servants that the servant is Boss, and the people the [illegible]f. The people elect one of their number as their representative for the lower house of congress, or to the state assembly or to sit on the bench of justice of one of our courts and though he is one of your "hired men," be at once gets the idea into his head that he is then to abuse and betray you.

Why does he dare to so conduct himself? Simply because he knows that you have no recall string on him; he may betray you for a price as to his vote on a vital measure to the state or county; may rule unjustly from the bench, may be governed by prejudice, or to facilitate an intrigue with some powerful organization, material or religious in casting his vote, or in rendering his decision, and the ones who pay him for his best services have no redress.

All votes and decisions by public servants should be in harmony with the known will of the majority of the people. Under a co-operative form of government, the vote, or verdict of no one man or group of men would be final; the last court of appeal would be the will of the people, and yet the poor weak minded Boneheads who are the most greviously betrayed by lawmakers and law dispensers walk to the poles, perhaps lead by the chains of their degradation and vote for the system that enslaves him and his family, that works the very God given manhood and hope out of his life, causes the "one girl" he fooled into sharing his misery to think he is not worthy of even her respect, sends his boy to the Pen and his girl where the "Red light" gleams, and then when the vote is counted is so proud that he "beat them Socialists."

Who have you really beaten, Bonehead. You have defeated your wife and babies, enslaved yourself and shop mates, bought silks and diamonds, dogs and monkeys for your master's wife, condemned your wife to toil and rags, and should be cursed by God and man and sent where clothes are not needed for warmth.

WOMAN'S DAY

Woman's Day in Warren, O., was observed in a very fitting manner. The Woman's educational club is composed of Socialist Women who have been following a course of study during the past winter using as a text book August Bebels' "Woman and Socialism." The club met Thursday evening, Mar. 19th, at the home of Mrs. Mary Bundy who read the following address by Mrs. Mildred Smith, one of the members, who was unable to be present, (owing to lack of space we can not give the address in full.)

"Those of us who are Socialists know that a great change is going on in this country, the result of which will be a new society, very different from what we see and know now. We know that mighty forces are working to change completely the character of our institutions. We know that the new society will be far better, purer and happier than the one we now live under.

To some people, this hope or vision of the future is unreal, impossible and absurd; to some people it seems very far off and shadowy; but to those who are in the great movement, it is very real and near. We know that those mighty forces touch our own lives, touch the lives of our family and our neighbors whom we see every day.

We know that although the new society will be better and grander than ours, our lives and the lives of those nearest to us will be the very tissue out of which it is built. The influence of evolution is infinitely small as well as infinitely great, and whether the men and women of today realize it or not, they themselves are the instruments of the great change.

It should be the aim of each individual to recognize the trend of events, public and private, and to understand whether the outcome will be good or bad. The women who began this club had a vision of the future, and had certain aims and purposes to carry out. In the first place, they recognized that this little club must be one of the factors in the great change of which I have spoken; therefore they enunciated and embodied in the club's constitution certain great principles which they knew to be fundamental and permanent, to make a sound foundation

The first of these is the principle of democracy. Most people seem disposed to shift the burden of thinking for themselves and acting independently, upon some leader. Right here, I will say that all men and women are human, and not one is perfect. When a leader attains power, there is the constant temptation to abuse the power for personal, selfish ends, and to disregard the welfare of the majority. The only safe way is to curtail all prerogatives of a leader and place the greatest power in the hands of the majority.

We have been studying the status of woman for some months and we know that women are unjustly treated at present, and regarded as inferiors by many men. The goal toward which humanity is now working is perfect equality of the sexes, and only when that is reached will there be the greatest possible efficiency in society.

We hope to make this club a potent factor in shaping the new society in this community, and an instrument to help in emancipating women from their long-borne shackles.

To speak concretely, we hope, first, to gain an intelligent and devoted membership; secondly, to pursue a course of study helpful to our members; thirdly, to bring suitable speakers to Warren.

In addition, since we all are working-women, or have working-class sympathies and ideas, we p rpose to do all we can to emancipate our class, which will be the only class of the great future.

We will do your paper hanging right. 8c per roll for single trim, till March 1st. Quality Paper Co., 1148 Mt. Vernon Ave. E. 4475.

WHAT WILL YOU DO TO HELP?

Mrs. Edna A. Sp[illegible]
Chairman Franklin Co. Womans Suffrage Assn.

It is idle for us to protest against the political system which withholds from wage-earning women the right to self-protection by means of the ballot, while pointing to the steady improvement of working conditions for men since the establishment of universal manhood suffrage, unless we are willing to work to put the ballot in the hands of those same wage-earning women. The question is not "Will Women Vote?" but "How Soon Will Women Vote?", and "What will You do To Help Them?".

We put the question squarely to you; in the following coupon please put a cross opposite the number of the work for which you will be responsible, sign your name and address and mail the whole coupon to the Socialist Headquarters at 108½ S. High St. We ask you to do this to help Suffrage and Socialism.

1—Will you circulate a Petition?
2—Will you be responsible for a ward, a precinct, or a block?
3—Will you open your home to a neighborhood meeting?
4—Will you come or send a substitute when asked to address envelopes or telephone at Suffrage headquarters?
5—Will you help distribute literature?
6—Will you serve on a committee?
7—Will you help with press work?
8—Will you help start a suffrage quartet, glee club, or play?
9—Will you give money?
Will you loan your automobile for township or county work—not often; perhaps once in two weeks?

OUR DANCE.

Every Saturday night at 121½ East Town Street our committee holds a dance. Everything is strictly orderly and you can be assured of a good time. Come out tonight and have a good time. Good music.

INGERSOLL'S VISION

"I see a world where thrones have crumpled and kings are dust. The aristocracy of idleness has perished from the earth.

"I see a world without a slave. Man at last free. Nature's forces have by science been enslaved. Lightning and light, wind and wave, frost and flame and all the secret, subtle powers of earth and air are the tireless toilers of the human race.

"I see a world at peace, adorned with every form of art, with music's myriad voices thrilled, while lips are rich with words of love and truth; a world in which no exile sighs, no prisoner mourns, a world on which the gibbit's shadow does not fall; a world where labor reaps its full reward; a world without the beggar's outstretched palm, the piteous wail of want, the livid lips, the cruel eyes of scorn.

"I see a race without disease of flesh or brain—shapely and fair, the married harmony of form and function; and as I look life lengthens, joy deepens, love canopies the earth; and over all in the great dome shines the eternal star of human hope."

FALSE DOCTRINES

By Prof. Wm. P. Newberry.

The Christian church and clergy are using false scriptures, the apostles never wrote to teach the people idolatry of religion and get money under false pretences.

This is the way the Apostle James wrote in the original "Pure Threskeia and undefiled before our Theos and Father, is this; to care for the orphans and widows in their trials and keep oneself unspotted from the world."

The word "religion," means Roman idolatry or the worship of creatures, instead of Theos the Creator, and is never found in the original Hebrew or Hellenes writings of the Apostles. The Christian Clergy are deceiving the people with false, pagan scriptures.

THE WANT TO TESTIFY.

Since our comrades were arrested a steady flow of men and women from all walks of life who claim to have suffered at the hands of Judge Black, have called, filing affidavits, giving their names and addresses, and asking to be called as witnesses when this matter comes up for trial.

When we started to expose the conditions existing in this Public institution, we had no idea that so many had been before this court.

Disgrace and humiliation have been heaped upon the defendeless heads of the working class until it is enough to make one wonder if the days of the inquisition have passed.

This fight we are making for home and fireside is no personal fight against Judge Black. Were he wronged, as he has evidently wronged others this paper would fight for him as well.

Our fight is against the system of capitalism that produces such conditions, and gives men such despotic power.

All other papers in this city are subsidized and on the side of plutocracy and the plunderbund. Only this paper and the Socialist Party dare tell of conditions and we dare to do it because our movement is founded on truth, inspired with the hopes of liberty, peace and happiness when once the monster Profit is laid low.

You should come in and help win the world for the workers.

DUMP THE MASTERS OFF YOUR BACK.

Tune: "Take It to the Lord in prayer."

Are you poor, forlorn and hungry?
Are there lots of things you lack?
Is your life made up of mis'ry?
Dump the masters off your back?

Are your clothes all patched and tattered?
Are you living in a shack?
Would you have your troubles scattered?
Dump the masters off your back!

Are you almost split asunder
Loaded like a long-eared jack?
Boob, why don't you buck like thunder?
Dump the masters off your back!

All the agonies you suffer,
You can end with one good whack—
Stiffen up, you orn'ry duffer—
Dump the masters off you back!

NOT TO CROSSEXAMINE.

A judge in Indiana had a small boy brought before him, charged with stealing melons. There was no question as to the guilt of the youngster, and the judge was proceeding to deliver a lecture on the sacredness of private property. He wound up his lecture by asking the boy some questions. Suddenly the culprit looking straight at the judge asked him: "Judge when you were a young man did you ever steal a melon?" Tut, Tut! young man you are to understand that you are not to cross-examine the court" replied the judge.

LEAVES $30,000 FOR SOCIALISTS

GRAND JUNCTION, Col., March 23.—William Sawyer, who died recently, left his estate of $30,000 to the Socialist party. The will filed today gives small bequests to many Socialist newspapers and the residue to the national executive committee of the party.—Ohio State Journal.

The Appeal to Reason claims to have come into possession of confidential messages between Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States and General Pancho Villa, commander-in-Chief of the Mexican constitutional forces. Here they are:

"General Pancho Villa, Jaurez, Mexico:—In the name of humanity I call on you to immediately release Luis Terrazas, son of General Luis Terrazas, the wealthy Mexican land owner, who I understand is being held by you illegally.

Woodrow Wilson."

"President Woodrow Wilson, Washington, D. C.:—I shall comply with your request, provided you and your administration will show the same regard for humanity toward one of your own citizens, a woman past eighty years, who is being illegally deprived of her liberty, by General Chase, commander-in-chief of the Colorado division of the Rockefeller forces. I refer to Mother Jones, who is now held incommunicado in Trinidad, Colo. I may take the liberty to remind you that about two years ago Mother Jones made an organizing trip for the Western Federation of Miners through Mexico, under the full protection of President Madero, whom she visited at Mexico City. Will you do as much for Mother Jones?

Pancho Villa."

All legal matter given prompt attention. H. Anna Quinby, 215 Union National Bank Building, Columbus, O. M. 3864, Cit. 7078.—Adv.

CAPITALIST ANARCHISTS

Denver, Colo., March 27, (Spl.)—The militia of Colorado, which for four months have robbed and plundered homes of striking coal miners, insulted women and committed other outrages which created a reign of terror in Southern Colorado, reached the climax in their war for the coal operators when they demolished the strikers' tent colony at Forbes, making men, women and children homeless in a blinding snow storm. Mrs. Zanatell who recently gave birth to twins was thrown out with the others.

The only excuse given by Col. Davis, in charge of the 33 militiamen, was that Adjutant General Chase had ordered "that tent colony cleaned out." After tearing the tents in shreds and breaking the lumber of the camp into kindling wood, the scab-herders went to the upper tent colony and ordered every person in it to leave within 48 hours or be deported.

This is the first threat of the militia to start wholesale deportation. The only other incident was the deportation of Mother Jones, 83-year-old angel of the coal camps from Trinidad.

This latest outrage of the militia brought forth the following statement from the United Mine Workers' officials:

"The prediction of many of the citizens of Southern Colorado was that when the work of the congressional committee was finished and the congressmen had returned to Washington, 'hell would pop in the strike zone' and the people who had courage to testify against the militia and the coal companies would pay dearly for the privilege of testifying to the truth.

"The train with the congressional committeemen on board had scarcely crossed the border line of Colorado when members of the Colorado National Guard, acting under orders of Adjutant General John Chase, raided the Forbes tent colony after thirteen of the residents of the colony had been placed under arrest on a trumped-up charge.

"We are advised by our counsel, Horace N. Hawkins, that this is an unwarranted and illegal act. If this means that deportation is about to take place and the homes of the striking miners thus wantonly destroyed, as citizens of the state of Colorado and officials of the Colorado miners' union, we are going to advise every man to arm himself to protect and defend his home, whether it be from attacks of mine-owners, hirelings, under the guise of Baldwin-Felts gunmen or the Colorado State Militia.

"A striking miner's tent is his home and is as sacred to him as is the mansion to the mine-owner."

The statement was signed by John R. Lawson, member of the International Board of United Mine Workers of America; John McLennon, President of the Colorado State Federation of Labor and E. L. Doyle, secretary-treasurer of District No. 15.

Resolution Adopted by Local Columbus.

Whereas: there now exists in our state one of the periodic smallpox epidemics, and

Whereas: according to the usual procedure certain members of the medical fraternity are using unjust, intimidating, and coercive measures and methods to cause us to have our children and ourselves vaccinated in compliance with their desires; and

Whereas; this process of innoculation or vaccination is regarded as offensive, revolting, and dangerous by an ever increasing number of us, among whom are physicians of repute; and

Whereas; the above mentioned procedure of the boards of health and education work injustice on the working class.

Be it resolved; That the S. E. C. be instructed to draft a law or an amendment to the constitution of the State of Ohio as may be found necessary to prohibit the use of any method whatsoever to compel any one to be vaccinated, inoculated with, or suffer the injection of any toxin, serum, or drug.

STATE

Local Dayton has the following committees which meet regularly: Reception, Newspaper Correspondent, Reading Churches, Reading Labor Unions, Foreign Language, Co-operative Enterprises, Employment, Labor Legislation, Election Statistics, Civic Problems, Study Classes, Reaching Rural Districts.

This is an example that all Locals might well emulate.

Would the Democrat Administration in Columbus Do This?

Socialist Mayor Hinkel, of Hamilton, presented a suggestion to the Socialist City Council down there, which was immediately embodied in a resolution, regarding the Flood Prevention. This resolution demands that the work of Flood Prevention in the Miami Valley, to be done under the supervision of the Morgan Engineering Company, shall be done on a basis of union wages and that the workingmen of the Miami Valley be given the preference in employment.—Dayton Socialist.

Would the Democrat administration in this city, demand that flood prevention work must be performed under Union conditions? Not on your empty dinner pail.

Come on you union men who knock Socialism. Do you really believe in Unionism or not? If you believe in it then vote for it, and quit being a ballot box "scab". Socialists everywhere stand for organized labor, yet some socalled union men vote her straight for those tools of the Plunderbund who spit in their faces the day after election.

NATIONAL

The Socialists of Detroit have condemned Ford's plan of "dividing up." It is said the advertising which he got has brought 75,000 unemployed to the city to starve in the streets. They are offering themselves to employers at starvation wages and throwing thousands of skilled workmen out of jobs.

Rosa Luxembourg, leader of the radical wing of the German Socialist party, has been sentenced to one year's imprisonment for inciting soldiers to desert in the event of war. She has a national reputation as a Socialist agitator, being known as "Red Rosa."

Oklahoma was up with the leaders in February payment of dues. The same thing happened in January. Evidently Socialism is getting popular down in the short grass country, all of which speaks volumes for the farmer Socialists. Oklahoma and Texas are planning to pull off some record-breaking encampments this summer and fall which may change the complexion of Congress. There are two districts in Oklahoma which cannot much longer be kept out of the Socialist columns.

To Combine in Girard.

The Socialists of Girard, Kansas, have nominated Dick Houghton for mayor. The capitalist forces are following the example of the larger cities and combining against the Socialists. The Girard Press says: "There will be no trouble electing an anti-Socialist candidate if there is a united front, but with two or three candidates in the field the chances are not very good. Better get together."

Indiana Socialist party has taken action against the proposed moving picture board of censorship in that state. The Socialists contend that the censorship tends to keep pictures from the public eye which go to expose the present industrial evils, and that the board, instead of ruling out films objectionable from a moral standpoint, would go a step further and place the ban on films either of a political or religious nature which are not sympathetic to the personal opinion of the censors.

Locals in every part of the State are holding meetings in protest against the attempt to establish such a board.

The indictments against Max Eastman and Art Young, editor and artist of The Masses, a Socialist monthly of New York City, will be dismissed. This was the announcement given out by District Attorney Train. Young and Eastman were charged with libeling the Association Press. They had secured a great mass of evidence to prove the Associated Press had suppressed and distorted news in a great number of cases. It is thought the Associated Press feared to have this evidence made public.

"Non-Partisan" Economy.

Wherever Socialists are in power one of the great weapons used to fight their re-election is the claim that they have increased taxes. And in practically every case where the old parties have fused to defeat the Socialists and won, they have spent far more than the Socialists ever thought of spending, with less results. It was so in Milwaukee, and it is so in Schenectady. The budget for the coming year in Schenectady calls for an expenditure of $312,423.87 more than in 1913, the last year of the Socialist administration. While the Socialists have never considered the question of taxes an issue, the propertied class has. They might learn a few things on economical management from the Socialists.

JUDGE SAMUEL L. BLACK ARRESTED ON THE CHARGE OF "INTIMIDATION OF WITNESS"

Minnie Grunden Witness in Black vs. Bates Case, Files Affidavit, Claiming Judge Black Intimidated Her to Keep Her From Testifying.

Last Wednesday Minnie Grunden, a witness for Bates on some of the charges filed with the Common Pleas Judges, asking for Black's removal as Juvenile Judge swore out a warrant arresting Judge Black for intimidation.

She claims that Judge Black called her a "liar and a thief," threatened to kick her out of the office and further threatened to prosecute her if she testified against him in the case now pending in Police Court in which the Judge charges Bates with criminal libel. The affidavit as filed by Mrs. Grunden upon which the Judge was arrested follows and the hearing will be before Justice McCormick Monday morning.

In the Justice Court, Montgomery Township, Franklin County, Ohio.
State of Ohio, Plaintiff.
Samuel L. Black Defendant.

AFFIDAVIT.

State of Ohio, Franklin County, ss.

Minnie Grunden being first duly sworn says that on the 31st day of March, 1914, in the City of Columbus, County of Franklin and State of Ohio, one Samuel L. Black, then and there being, and the affian tthen and the erbeing a material witness on the part of the Defendant and against the said State of Ohio, said Samuel L. Black then and there being the prosecuting witness, in an action pending in the Police Court of the City of Columbus, Franklin County, Ohio, wherein the State of Ohio is Plaintiff and Wesley C. Bates is Defendant, charged with criminal libel, said Samuel L. Black then and there well knowing that said affiant was a material witness in said case, did on said 31st day of March, 1914, in said County of Franklin in said State of Ohio, wilfully and unlawfully attempt to influence and intimidate said Minnie Grunden, witness as aforesaid, by calling her a liar and a thief, threaten to kick her out of the office and to prosecute her the said Minnie Grunden, if she testified on behalf of said Wesley C. Bates and against the State of Ohio and hid said Samuel L. Black as said prosecuting witness in said case, contrary to the statute in such case made and provided and against the peace and dignity of the State of Ohio.

MINNIE GRUNDEN.

Sworn to by said Minnie Grunden and by her subscribed in my presence this 31st day of March, 1914.

W. C. BATES,
Notary Public, Franklin County, Ohio.

BATES ON TRIAL IN PLACE OF BLACK. WHY?

Friday morning, March 27th, Comrade W. C. Bates introduced a motion in Police Court, asking Samuel L. Black's attorneys to elect which affidavit they wished to try him on—the one filed March 14th or the one filed March 21st.

They decided to try him on the one filed March 21st which includes all the 44 charges. The case was then put over until Monday morning, March 30th, for ates to file a motion and demurrer.

On Monday morning Comrade Bates introduced a motion to have the first affidavit against him dismissed, as it amounts to arresting him twice for the same offense. Judge Osborne overruled the motion, and the way the matter now stands Bates is under two charges for the same alleged offense.

Bates then filed his demurrer and was given until Friday morning (yesterday) to cite authorities.

This case will probably be one of the hottest fought cases in Franklin County, and will undoubtedly consume a great deal of time.

For the benefit of new readers who do not know the history of the case it is as follows:

The Socialist Party elected a committee of 3 to investigate the conduct of Judge Black. The committee reported, and Local Columbus S. P. instructed the propaganda committee to file the charges with the Common Pleas Judge asing for Black's removal as Juvenile Judge. On Saturday, March 14th, "The Socialist" published the charges, as handed to the Common Pleas Judges as a public document and Judge Black then had the committee and Bates arrested for criminal libel.

The citizens of this county are asking, why, if Black was innocent did he not demand a hearing before the Common Pleas Judges. He is the man who is under charges. Not Bates, Eubanks, Suddick and Green. Why should these men, who as citizens of this city be placed under charges, when they were exercising the prerogative the American people always have exercised to criticise their public servants? Why did Black not ask for an early hearing before the judges who appointed him? Why did he turn the tables and file criminal libel charges, thus ducking an investigation by the authorities who appointed him? Think it over.

As stated last week arrangements have been made to bring "The Socialist" out as a daily while the trial is on. The verbatum testimony as given in court will be published so that the people will know what is going on in court.

Do no forget the defense fund as this case will take a great deal of money. The money is needed now, at once, to help in paying for counsel and other expenses connected with the trial.

Exact account will be kept of every cent, and you will be mailed a receipt for your contribution no matter how small it is.

Send all contributions to W. E. Bues, Treasurer, 101 N. High Street, Room 68.

I AM CAPITALISM

I am Capitalism: I make the law that gives me the legal possession of the earth.

Owning all things, I hire man to make shelter, clothing, and to raise food for himself. How generous of me! How could the human race banish such a benefactor as me?

To each man for every fivfle pairs of shoes he makes I give him one, or its equivalent, in money.

For every five suits of clothing. I give him one.

In return for building a grand palace for me, I give him a shed for himself.

For raising food enough to last him a month, I give him enough for a week.

Lo and behold; magic of magic! I am overwhelmed with the vast surplus product of his labor. Shoes, clothing, hats, food, luxuries and shelter enough to last me a hundred years. And what shall I do with it all? To consume it myself is impossible. To give it back to him who produced it would demoralise and degrade him. It would destroy his incentive to labor, his home, religion and all the other good things I have given him. That would never do. To sell it to him is out of the question. With the price of one pair of shoes I have given him he cannot buy back the ten pairs he has given me. Oh Profit, my god; let me not lose sight of thee!

Well, there is but one thing to do; close up shop and forbid trespass upon my property, the earth, until this surplus rots away or finds a foreign market through fire and sword to dump it into to.

In the meantime the workingman and his family slowly starve to death just because he has produced too much.

And I, Capitalism, and my faithful retainers, the press, pulpit and the law, chuckle and say, Let him starve and be damned. If he gets too troublesome, give him lead.

And now a word or two about Socialism for the benefit of the wise guys who see no danger in its menace.

Socialism is a system of co-operation carried on through the organization of the working class, which will give to the vulgar workingman the ownership and control of his own job and product, and the means, such as land, tools, machinery, etc., of producing it.

It means that when he has produced a surplus of food, clothing and other necessities of life it will belong to him alone.

IIt means that he may take a vacation until his surplus naturally disappears by his own consumption; that he may work when he wants to, and that no one can stop him.

It means that there will be no hungry, ragged workingmen when storehouses are filled with food and clothing to overflowing.

It means that the vulgar workingman will know leisure, culture and refinement; that he may travel and visit other lands.

It means that potter's fields, jails, asylums and poorhouses will be no more; that drunkenness, ignorance, slums, bums, tramps, scabs, prostitutes and sexual disease will disappear from the earth.

It means that legal tender of exchange shall be useful labor of brain or hand; that money, the root and stay of my existence, shall be destroyed.

That the very source of my income shall be bottled up and the freedom of the vulgar workingman shall come.

And I, Capitalism; oh, my God; it means the end of me!

Patriots of America, defend me from this foreign monster.

Thank God for the Kirby's; thank him for the clubs, dungeons and bullets, and the faithful workingmen, willing to use them in my defense. Thank him for the dives, churches and slums, from whence come these trusted patriots, hand in hand, shoulder to shoulder, to ward off this dread scourage of freedom and equality.

And I know, Father Profit, above all else, I am indebted to thy faithful daily press for the veil of security which surrounds me. I thank thee for its discreet silence regarding matters, if made known to the vulgar workingman, would rend apart my veil of security in jig time. I thank thee that the vulgar workingman knows not my own puny and his mighty strength; that he knows not the use of organization or the ballot; and I trust, dear Father Profit, that through thy faithful ones thou will keep him chained in his slavery, where he be belongs. Amen.

FRANK B. NORMAN.

FAMILY BEING DESTROYED.

"It is awkward that we overlook patiently the rapid and unmistakable disintegration of the family among both strong and weak, postponement of marriage, failing birthrate with its implications, loss of home atmosphere, all due largely to facts connected with the economic motive and then allege against Socialism that it endangers the family. It is peculiar that we find property rights indiscriminately so sacred, and personal rights, humanity's rights, rights of children and of mothers and of fathers, so difficult of demonstration and so doubtful of realization.

Learn From Socialism.

"If those of us who feel that the present industrial order should be defended were to listen patiently to the indictment of it prepared by Socialism and then shrink from no fact and evade no inference, no matter how unwelcome, we might learn more from Socialism than we appear to learn.

"And if we apply the same severe logic to our own proposals for reform that we apply against Socialism, we might be led to see that we match impossibility against impossibility in much that we write and suggest."—Pittsburgh, Pa., "Catholic."

THY MOTHER'S LOVE.

One lamp, thy mother's love, amid the stars shall lift its pure flame changeless, and before the throne of God burn through eternity, holy, as it was lit and lent thee here.—Willis.

A mule is fed whether it works or not. Are you?

They say that money can't talk. That is true, but it buys fellows to talk and also can be used to stop them from talking.

Any man who has become a Socialist knows but one more object in life—to devote himself to the work of liberating the working class from wage slavery.

Say, fellow workers, did you ever notice that your employers never allow silly prejudice to prevent or in the slightest degree hinder their investigating anything that gives promise of more pay?

It's easy to bring down the high cost of living, all you need to do is to stop eating eggs, meat, bread, potatoes, rice and a few other things and the trick is done. But then one will be confronted with the high cost of dying, so we'll have to study some more how to bring the cost of dying down to a figure that our means will permit us this luxury.

More than one-fourth of all the men who work are idle part of the time through sickness due to insufficient food and unsanitary surroundings. The working class political party is not responsible for their failure to get good wholesome food and healthy surroundings. Where are the fellows with superior brains?

As long as there is human oppression, our voice shall ever be the voice of a rebel.

Can a religious person become a Socialist? Yes, providing he has brains.

Why are millions being piled up in the coffers of idle parasites while all the workers are worked half to death and at the same time can never save enough to take a pleasure trip once in a while?

Let another eat your food and you starve. If another wears your clothes you freese. Permit another to do your thinking and you will end your days in the poor house and your miserable soul will soar heavenward from potters field.

The United States, owned and controlled by Rockefeller and Company, is now so prosperous that the unemployed are rushing the restaurants and soup houses. Even the charity buzzards are suffering from a financial stringency.

The more you have in your head, the more you can get in your stomach.

GOMRADES!

Don't fail to settle for "Globe Trotter" tickets by to-morrow [Sunday] at the very latest. To-morrow night is the last lecture of Comrade Creel.

DON'T FAIL TO SETTLE

Some day, and that very soon, the workers will get what they earn and the masters will have to earn what they get, or starve.

If you work the masters do you, and if you don't work you do yourself into the poor house. Get rid of the masters if you would be free.

Russia is contemplating home rule for Siberia. Those who have been ruled by the thugs and Cossacks in Colorado and Michigan will yearn to be in Siberia.

Get a better job, that's the thing. But where are you going to get it, that is the question. The average worker is glad to get any old job but can't connect with it. The only way to get a better job is to own it, and that is possible only when the workers all vote the present system of uncertainty out of existence.

No laws, no customs, no rights of property are so sacred that they may not be made away with, if it can be clearly shown that they stand in the way of the greatest happiness. Do you fellows notice any of these preventing you and yours from enjoying the fullest happiness? Why not help to change things?

The other day a small business man (an agent for the trust) told us it took all he could do to earn a living for his family. He should join the ranks of the wage slaves, as we know plenty of them that seem to take pleasure of earning a living for their own families and the family of their master.s

The American wage slave is sure a boob. He has—

Nothing to lose but his chains, and yet he is afraid of Socialism.

Socialism will remove the need for children working in factories. Is that against your religion? Some people will tell you to stay away from the Socialists as they are against your religion. If you look carefully for the cause of their statement you will find it a financial one.

We want security of life. We want security in the matter of getting all we want to eat and wear. We want leisure to enjoy life. We want to establish a society that acts justly to all its members. We want to remove the necessity of some of our women being driven into living the life of a prostitute. We want safety of life and happiness for our children. These are a few of the reasons why we are SOCIALISTS.

An Italian who kept a fruit stand was much annoyed by possible customers who made a practice of handling the fruit and pinching it, thereby leaving it softened and often spoiled. Exasperated beyond endurance, he finally put up a sign which read:

"If you must pincha de fruit pincha de cocoanut."

Next time your daughter is late to supper, working overtime, console yourself with the thought that you, her natural protector, voted her into wage servitude.

Before the woman suffrage question is settled the kept capitalist press will find it is no joke. The rights of one half of the human race can not be laughed out of court.

CATHOLIC WORKERS SHOULD BE SOCIALISTS

Some of you Catholic working men are afraid of Socialism, because your Priest tells you nasty things about it.

Don't let that worry you. Protestant ministers do the same thing with their congregations.

Look at the thing in this manner.

First. The Socialist Party is a political party and has nothing whatever to do with religion. That is a private matter.

Second. You are a working man. You are compelled to work under the same unjust, deplorable and outrageous conditions that your fellow Protestant working man is compelled to work under.

Sometimes the man who lives off your labor is a Protestant. Sometimes he is a Catholic. Both alike are opposed to Socialism. They are the fellows who rob you of seven-eighths of the product of your honest toil.

What is the difference which one rides you. Don't you and your fellow Protestant work side by side in the factories. Then isn't it to the interest of both you, seeing that your masters regardless of their religion unite in their own Political Parties to keep you in subjection,—isn't it just as logical that both of you unite under the banner of your own party in order to end the capitalist system that exploits and keeps you both down alike?

Come to Socialist meetings and you will never hear a word against religion. You will hear nothing and see nothing but a congregation of earnest men and women who are seeking to uplift the fallen, and save the oppressed workers from further oppression.

If you are a Catholic working man your place belongs in the Socialist Party along with your Protestant brother, because your children, your wife, your mother and your sweetheart, are just as dear to you as they are to anyone, and it is your duty to help bring about conditions that will give them the best that the world affords.

PRAYER FOR THE IDLE

O God, we remember with pain and pity the thousands of our brothers and sisters who seek honest work and seek in vain. For though the unsatisfied wants of men are many, and though our land is wide and calls for labor, yet these, thy sons and daughters, have no place to labor, and are turned away in humiliation and despair when they seek it.

O righteous God, we acknowledge our common guilt for the disorder of our industry which thrusts even willing workers into the degradation of idleness and want, and teaches some to love the sloth which they once feared and hated.

We remember also with sorrow and compassion the idle rich, who have vigor of body and mind and yet produce no useful thing.

Forgive them for loading the burden of their support on the bent shoulders of the working world. Forgive them for wasting in refined excess what would feed the pale children of the poor.

Forgive them for setting their poisoned splendor before the thirsty hearts of the young, luring them to theft or shame by the lust of eye and flesh.

Forgive them for taking pride in their worthless lives and despising those by whose toil they live. Forgive them for appeasing their better self by pretended duties and injurious charities.

We beseech thee to awaken them by the new voice of thy spirit that they may look up into the stern eyes of thy Christ and be smitten with the blessed pangs of repentance. Grant them strength of soul to rise from their silken shame and give to their brothers a just return of labor for the bread they eat.

And to our whole nation do thou grant wisdom to create a world in which none shall be forced to idle in want, and none shall be able to idle in luxury, but in which all shall know the health of wholesome work and the sweetness of well earned rest.—Walter Rauschenbusch, in "For God and the People."

STRIKERS STRONGER THAN EVER.

Scab hearder Geo. B. Kimes in his scab sheet published in Pittsburgh, known as "Glass Budget" in his issue of March 28th spits out a string of venom against the striking union men of the Federal Glass works, that is sufficient evidence in itself that the Union has them licked to a standstill.

This hearder for the masters says, "That the men were coaxed out." The fact is, and every one connected with the strike knows, that the men organized themselves in five days and the Union did not know a strike was on until about two hours after the men walked out.

Kimes says the strike is hopelessly lost. "We should worry." Fact is that the strikers are in better shape as to solidarity and finances than ever before. The Union has more than $30,000 more on hand now than when the strike began, and the weekly benefits have been raised from $6.00 per week to about $9.00.

He further throws a fit over the fact that the Union is attempting to wrest control of this large factory from the present dictators. Although this is a large factory, who made it so? The men employed there who were compelled to work under unbearable conditions made it so, and who have a better right to say under what conditions they shall work than the men who do the work?

Kimes continues to weep over the fact that the strikers are continually taking these strike breakers out of the shop and shipping them out of town. Weep on Kimes, weep on. Soon the whole aggregation of bums and panhandlers, you love so madly, will get out of town—most of them on freight trains.

The most damnable attempt to discredit the strikers and this paper, and incidentally the entire working class movement, is made by this scab sheet "Glass Budget," in an article attacking organizer Gillooly on the grounds that he is a Catholic and a Socialist.

It says, "Mr. Gillooly is a devout member of the Catholic church, which, as is well known, is bitterly opposed to Socialism, so that the question naturally arises whether he is a good Catholic, or neither, or both."

Just when it became a crime for a workingman who happens to hold to the Catholic faith to become a Socialist, and fight for his own class in their struggle for emancipation is not stated.

Working men of all religious faith are Socialists, because Socialism has to do with bettering the conditions of the workers here and now.

Organizer Gillooly as a member of the working class, fighting foir humane and just conditions, both on the industrial and political fields, stands so high above the pigmy souled individual, who thus attempts to discredit him that there is no comparison. He has always been absolutely on the square, open and above board with everything and holds the love and esteem of every one with whom he comes in contact.

We understand that strike breaker Young has had it made so hot for him by the other strike breakers in the barracks, that he refuses to longer eat with them, preferring to go to meals. Thus is retribution being visited upon his head.

The Glass Budget states that the men on strike would be glad to have money to buy sow belly and beans. Be it said that the boys would be glad to live on "sow belly and beans" if necessary to win this strike. They, however, are living just about as well as they did under non-union conditions.

This paper is at all times the organ of the working class, and such attacks as made by scab hearder Kimes, only endears it the more to the workers who control it. Thanks, Kimes, for the free advertising. Selah.

EUGENE V. DEBS IN NATIONAL RIP-SAW.
A BRUTE ON THE BENCH.

Judge Samuel L. Black is the name of a judicial brute and blackguard who sits on the bench at Columbus, Ohio. The proof of his disgrace is in his own handwriting.

The outrage against which the local protested was the jailing of Comrade W. C. Bates, who had a case in the court of this beast and was denounced from the bench without the slightest justification in the following coarse and brutal terms: "If there is an unmitigated liar and scoundrel in this country you are that scoundrel." Comrade Bates had used but the most respectful language in addressing this judicial vulgarian and the above was his brutal retort and when Comrade Bates portested he was sent to jail.

The caliber of this capitalist hireling is apparent enough in this incident. He is a disgrace to even a capitalist bench, low as it is, and ought to be driven from it by an outraged public.

The Socialists of Columbus do not propose to rest meekly under this outrage. The coward and poltroon who has taken advantage of his official position to insult and vilify them will answer to them for his beastly conduct. They will not forget and he will not escape. Before this matter is finally settled Samuel L. Black, the judicial blackguard of Columbus will be relegated to private life and never again will he have the chance to turn a public office into a house of ill fame.—National Rip-Saw. St. Louis, Mo.

WHAT YOUR BALLOT CAN DO

Someone has been telling me that you want to know what Socialism is.

Socialism is a new way of living; a way that will give us plenty to eat, plenty to wear, plenty of sunshine and fresh air, a good house to live in, and a share in all the beautiful and good things of life.

Now, of course, you are beginning to wonder how Socialism can do such things as these—things that would make us all so happy, give the good in us a chance to grow, and give us each a chance to do the one thing that we could do well, that we each would love to DO.

Suppose that you were to wake up some morning and find that a very wonderful thing had happened—that you were to have a factory of your own.

Suppose that someone that knew how to make plans for buildings should come to find out how YOU wanted that factory built, and that you that were to work in that factory all met to talk over what was needed to make the building one in which you could work in happiness and health, and that after the plan was made as you had decided it should be, the building would be built exactly as you had painned it and filled with the best and safest machinery that had been invented.

Suppose that what you made in this factory would belong to you, the workers; that the part of your work that now makes the boss rich, as well as the part that now pays your wages, was to belong to all of you that work there; that you would have it to use to make you happy and healthy and strong.

Such a factory would be a Socialist factory.

That is just what Socialism means; that all the machines, the railroads, the telegraph, the telephones and the land with all its coal, iron, copper, gold, and silver shall belong to all the people and be used by them in what they decide is the best way for their health and happiness, and all that their work creates shall belong to them.

And, now, you are thinking, "How are we to get these things that the bosses own now, which, by law, belong to them, and which they have policemen and soldiers at their back and call to help them keep?"

Well, I will tell you how the working people are going to get these things. They are going to take them with their ballots, and the women are going to take the ballot too, because they have to live in the world, and they are going to have a share from this time on in saying how the world is to be managed.

Would you like to hear a little secret about the bosses. They would not like to have you know, but I'll tell you, anyway.

They took the power they now have from somebody that had it before them, from somebody that governed and also had soldiers to do their bidding.

So you need not feel sorry for the bosses, because when we take these things it will mean that everybody may work, and those that, for any reason, are not able to work will be taken care of, for we shall have time and plenty to take care of and love those that need care and love, and we will make a new race and a new land when we come into our own.

So, stand together and fight shoulder to shoulder and by your brave hearts and steady endurance win your battle, for every such battle won brings us one step nearer the time when everything shall be done for the good of all, the only promise the world holds that is worth fighting for.

Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!

WHY YOU SHOULD VOTE THE SOCIALIST TICKET

There is every reason why, if you are an honest man you should vote for Socialism.

There are no reasons at all why you should not.

The Socialist Party is the only party which will come to you this fall with a constructive program.

It is the only party which stands for law and order.

It is the only party which does not believe in breaking up the home.

It is the only party which is not against religion.

It is the only party which stands absolutely for justice.

It is the only party that can come before the people with clean hands.

It is the only party that is truly American, and at the same time international.

It is the only party that has no political bosses.

It is the only party that believes in pure democracy and practices it, as near as capitalism will allow.

It is the party of the working class, banded together to pull down the exploiters off our backs, and erect a government founded on justice, fraternalism and equality.

We working men and women who understand its beautiful principles and lofty ideals ask no greater boon, than to be allowed to work for it, go to jail for it, and if necessary, die for it.

It has the only program that will eliminate slavery, and set the tired careworn world free.

It has no leaders,—no men who set themselves up as a Moses to lead the lost workers out of the Wilderness. The workers are leading themselves into the promised land.

IIts program is so simple that any man or woman who say they cannot understand it, condemn themselves of ignorance, or prejudice.

It stands for brotherhood and fellowship.

It throws the great weight of its enormous international strength on the side of the oppressed at all times.

None fear it except those who are living in the sweat of other men's face.

None fight it except those who wish to continue to live off the profits made by the labor of little children, and their parents.

It believes firmly in the words of Jesus the Carpenter "Call ye no man master."

It comes prepared to give every child an equal opportunity. It is here to solve the bread and butter question, which the other parties refuse to solve and cannot solve.

In a few words this is what Socialism means. The collective ownership and democratic management of things collectively used, and the private ownership of things privately owned.

When the mines, mills and factories are collectively owned, then will America be truly free. Only the Socialist Party believes in that program. Progress can be made in no other direction. Come with us and help solve the problem of the daily bread.

IT WON'T WORK

To readers of history and those who have a knowledge of astronomy it is a well known fact that Galileo, who accepted and stood ready to prove the theory that the earth turns on its axis an drevolves around the sun was made to recant by the authorities of his day. Today his theory is taught in every school room.

Many people in talking about Socialism say "that it won't work." This is always the cry of those who stand in the way of progress. It is true today just as it was true in Galileo's time. From Steels Popular Astronomy we find that a writer in Galileo's time in condemning the new system had the following to say, which stacks up well with the arguments used against Socialism today.

Page 29. "There are seven windows in the head, through which the air is admitted to the body, to enlighten, to warm, and to nourish it,—two nostrils, two eyes, two ears, and one mouth. So in the heavens there are two favorable stars, Jupiter and Venus, two unpropitious, Mars and Saturn; two luminaries, the Sun and Moon; and Mercury alone, undecided and indifferent. From which and from other phenomena in nature, such as the seven metals, etc., we gather that the number of planets is necessarily seven. Moreover the satellites are invisible to the naked eye, can exercise no influence over the earth, and would be useless, and therefore do not exist. (That settled it.—Editor. Besides the week is divided into seven days, which are named from seven planets. Now, if we increase the number of planets, this whole system falls to the ground."

That was a most conclusive and convincing argument and worked fine, because they made Galileo say, in order to save his head, that his new system was wrong. The only fault that could possibly be found with the critics argument, is, that is was not true, just as the silly arguments against Socialism today are not true.

The people a hundred years hence will be hard to convince that human beings actually brought up the nonsensical arguments against Socialism we hear today.

KEEP YOUR HEAD AND MAINTAIN PEACE

(Socialist Party Press Service.)

Washington, D. C., April 4, 1914.—Figures issued by the Pan-American Union show that Mexico is not tottering to a fall, but that instead her export and import trade is in better condition today than it has been for years. This means that intervention by the United States to prevent ruin is not necessary, that the Huerta government is financially sound, and that to send an American army into Mexico would mean a years-long encounter with a rich and prosperous nation. These statistics give the lie direct to the sensational newspapers and Senators who, largely for their own selfish interests, have been urging that Ameircan wokingmen, dressed like soldiers, be sent across the Rio Brande to conquer new fields for the exploiters of labor who will not shoulder arms and face bullets themselves.

In the fiscal year just closed, the exports of the United States to Mexico were $48,052,000 as against $45,982,000 for 1904. During the same ten-year period the imports to the United States from Mexico increased from $43,981,000 to $81,877,000. This is to say, in spite of the Madero revolution, in spite of the murder of Madero and the rise of the dictator Huerta, business in Mexico is booming. Mexico as a whole is not disrupted by the battles which are raging in the northern portion. The ports of Mexico both on the Gulf and on the Pacific are doing a normal amount of business—or better. Mines and oil wells, ranches and rubber plantations, farm and factories are in the main running full time. Labor is being cheerfully exploited, and industrial unrest in Mexico is increasing as it is in the United States. So, when James Creelman, Hearst, the war lobby, and "patriotic" senators try to make you believe that if "we" do not intervene, Mexico will crumble of corruption like ancient Rome, simply do not believe them. It is not so. Mexico is on as sound a basis as the United States. It is a successful producing nation.

The figures prepared by the Pan-American Union show that the exports from the United States to the northern provinces of Mexico have begun to fall off. For this reason the American capitalists who have been selling to northern Mexico are shouting for intervention. The Pan-American Union also shows that Mexican gold and silver is being shipped to Europe instead of to the United States. For this reason the American capitalists who have been making money buying Mexican gold and silver are shouting for intervention. But American capitalists as a whole are not being affected by the revolts in Mexico. Only a few of them are personally bothered. But these few are shouting bloody murder because they have lost their profits and because they think that by shouting loud enough and by lying brazenly enough they can excite their fellow capitalists and thus the working people of the country into wanting to go to war with Mexico to get back those dear profits.

The fact of the matter is that if the workingmen of the United States do not indicate emphatically that they understand the facts in the Mexican situation, sdn that they will not go to war for the holy dividend of the American capitalists, the men who control this government through their control of capital will create a war out of whole cloth—a long costly war to which the workingmen will be drafted to serve Wall street.

If everyone will keep his head and maintain the peace there will be no war with Mexico. Mexico is a rich and growingly wealthy country. That is why American capital will go in and conquer it—if the howling capitalists who are today being hurt are to have their way. And if American capital goes to war with Mexico, American labor will do its murderous work for just the same as always, and they will be paid the same as always.

FREE WOMEN AND GREAT MEN.
(By Robert G. Ingersoll.)

Slavery includes all other crimes. It is the joint product of the kidnapper, the pirate, thief, murderer and hypocrite. It degrades labor and corrupts leisure.

With the idea that labor is the basis of progress goes the truth that labor must be free. The laborer must be a free man.

I would like to see this world, at least so that a man could die and not feel that he had left his wife and children a prey to the greed, the avarice, or the cruelties of mankind.

There is something wrong in a government where they who do the most have the least. There is something wrong when honesty wears a rag and rascality a robe, when the loving, the tender, eat a crust, while the infamous sit at banquets.

The laboring people should unite and should protect themselves against all idlers. You can divide mankind into two classes: The laborers and the idlers, the supporters and the supported, the honest and the dishonest. Every man is dishonest who lives upon the unpaid labor of others, no matter if he occupies a throne.

We need free bodies and free minds—free labor and free thought, chainless hands and fetterless brains. Free labor will give us wealth. Free thought will give us truth.

There will never be a generation of great men until there has been a generation of free women—of free mothers.

When women reason, and babes sit in the laps of philosophy, the victory of reason over the shadowy host of darkness will be complete.

The rights of men and women should be equal and sacred—marriage should be a perfect partnership—children should be governed by kindness—every family should be a republic—every fireside a democracy.

Many complaints have been received lately of subscribers not receiving their papers. Consequently we took the matter up with Postmaster Krumm. "The Socialist" desires to state that we have always received the most courteous treatment by the local Postmaster.

In reply to our communication we received the following reply:

The Socialist Publishing Co.
Columbus, Ohio.
Gentlemen:

Receipt is acknowledged of your courteous communication of the 16th instant, and in reply you are respectfully informed that we will gladly put forth any effort you desire purposely to ascertain the cause of the irregular receipt of copies of your publication mailed to local subscribers and in order that we may proceed intelligently with our efforts, request that you communicate with us, giving us the names and addresses of all subscribers from whom complaints are received.

We will immediately establish a watch for copies of your publications addressed to the three subscribers us the names and addresses of all 16th purposely to verify the particulars of mailing and delivery.

Very respectfully,
H. W. KRUMM,
Postmaster.

We realize that it is hard enough for a man to earn the paltry sum in the week's pay envelope—but it takes a wizard of a wife to make that sum cover the cost of rent, fuel, clothes, doctor bills, insurance, nickel shows, capitalist newspapers and that other necessity—food.

BEAVERVILLE CONSTRUCTION COMPANY.
(W. W. Green.)

A capitalist passing by where some queer little brown people were chattering as they examined a good-sized stream of water, stopped and asked one which seemed to be the leader, what they were talking about. "We are going to build a dam," said he.

Capitalist—But how are you going to build a dam without money?

Leader—Money! What is that?

Capitalist—Why you see, such an undertaking as this requires capital; that is, you should figure out the probable cost of labor, tools and material necessary to complete the job and issue shares of stock sufficient to cover the expense and sell the shares to your companions, reserving half of the shares for yourself for promoting the industry. Then after your companions have nearly finished the dam, call a meeting of the stockholders and explain to them that you find that there are going to be some "extensions" and "improvements" needed which will require more capital than was at first estimated, and that you wish them to vote to sell some first mortgage bonds which shall be sufficient to cover not only the cost of the whole dam but also to pay 6 per cent dividends on the preferred stock. Having done this, come to me and I will buy the bonds which will give me a first mortgage lien on the dam.

Leader—But suppose we fail to pay the interest on the bonds when they fall due, who would own the dam?

Capitalist—In that case, I would practically own it but you could rent it of me and our interest would be identical.

Leader—So I see the interest would all be in your pocket. Please step aside, you are standing in the way of my brothers and sisters who are ready with their first load of poles and wish to get to work and before he knew it, the capitalist was fairly swept aside by the beavers as they worked with teeth and tail, weaving in sapling and splattering mud.

The capitalist was very wroth and went away to look for a supreme judge to issue an injunction and to declare the work unconstitutional and confiscatory.

When the old beaver told his brothers and sisters the joke, they all laughed and agreed that the capitalist's scheme was not worth a dam to them.

A public shool teacher was handed this note the other day:

"Dear Mum: Please ixcuse Johnny to-day. He will not be at school. He is acting as timekeeper for his father. Last night you gave him this iximple. If a field is 4 miles square, how long will it take a man walking 2 miles an hour to walk 2 times around it? Johnny ain't no man, so we sent his daddy. They left early this morning, and my husband said they ought to be back late tonight, though it would be hard going. Dear Mum please make the next problem about ladies, as my husband can't afford to lose the day's work. I don't have no time to loaf, but I can spare a day off occasionally better than my husband. Rep'Y yrs. Mrs. Jones."

WHY CATHOLIC WORKERS SHOULD BE SOCIALISTS. Charles H. Kerr & Co., Chicago, have just brought out this attractive little brochure by Mary E. Marcy, in which are given the economic reasons why our Catholic friends as well as all other working men and women should be Socialists.

Now that the Catholic Church is running a Lyceum Course of lecturers who are touring the country for the purpose of "exposing the sinister aims of Socialists," this little book will prove a great help in explaining the Party attitude on many points on which we are persistently misrepresented. Some of the subjects discussed are:

Socialism and the Family.
Rent.
Do We Disagree?
Private Property.
Socialism and abor.
Our Attitude Toward the Church.
What We Stand For.
War and Patriotism.
The Class Struggle.
Confiscation.
Religion.

This book should be widely circulated among your fellow workers who do not know what Socialism stands for. For sale at this office at 10c a copy.

We will do your paper hanging right. 8c per roll for single trim, till March 1st. Quality Paper Co., 1148 Mt. Vernon Ave. E. 4475.

WHY BOYS AND GIRLS SHOULD JOIN A. Y. P. S. L.

Boys and girls, if they could always be just boys and girls, would never need to look ahead as they must today if they are to live normal lives as men and women.

Looking at the men and women that you know will not alone prove this but talking with them will. The men and women who have succeeded in becoming of some real use in the world are the ones who had ideals as boys and girls, who early developed a purpose in life and aimed at the accomplishment of that purpose. Those who are today the most contented and happy are those who have become the most useful to the rest of humanity.

Boys and girls should join the Young People's Socialist Leagues because they need to know the FACTS upon which they must in future years base their ideas of what ought to be done and not done.

Because they do not get these facts thru other agencies.

Because joining the Socialist Party with the older ones is usually too dry a process for the younger ones who need more time for amusement and should have it.

Because they can get real entertainment out of the League at the same time that it is giving them the education they need for the future and more weighty duties of life.

Because they can learn to be social instead of anti-social beings and learn to live well.

Because there the boys and girls can learn this fundamental truth: THE INDIVIDUAL TAKES OUT OF LIFE IN EXACT PROPORTION TO HIS CONTRIBUTION TO LIFE.

Therefore join the league, determined to see how much you can do for it. You will be surprised to learn how much it will do for you.

RIBON, HE SEZ.

I presume Judge Black wishes he was a cannibal, so he could eat up the whole Socialist Party. He would surely have a stomach full. Probably he got more than he will be able to devour on April 20th. He will have to eat Hide, Hair, Bones and all of the whole Socialist Party.

A CHANCE TO WIN.

At the primary election Tuesday, March 24th, the Socialist Party of Milwaukee rand first, nominating Emil Seidel mayor by the largest vote ever given at a primary election in that city.

The primary law was passed in that city with the hope of heading off the Socialists, but the people have had a taste of real honest and efficient working class government, under the Socialist administration two years ago, and are no longer to be fooled by "nonpartism."

The regular election will be held next Tuesday and while we are not sure of victory, yet the crooks and grafters sailing under the black flag of "nonpartism" will know that they have been in a fight ere the contest is over.

We are well aware that plutocracy from all over the U. S. Will dump money into Milwaukee next Tuesday to "beat the Socialists," but it is just possible that enough of the workers are clear enough on the principles of Socialism to go to the polls and redeem the city of Milwaukee from the stain and graft of the bunch of "nonpartisan" (?) crooks now in control.

SLAVES.

Slaves were at one time black in color. But now they generally come white. They are of all ages—from ten years up—and are very useful, not only because of their labors, but also from the fact that they furnish magazines with articles to supplement their advertising and clergymen with topics for their sermons.

It was thought at one time that slaves might go out, but, it having been demonstrated that they are necessary for the maintenance of Christian ideals, they have become more firmly established than ever.

At one time slaves were bought and sold in market places by men of means, at retail. Now that they are employed by wholesale and fostered by the government this practice has gone out.

There is another difference between the old time slave and the one today which might be mentioned. The old slave knew that he was a slave. The slave of today doesn't know it. He thinks he is free, it having been discovered that when a slave is laboring under this delusion he can do about twice as much work.—Life.

BELONGED IN THE LUNATIC ASYLUM.

A bricklayer named Sam Kennedy was charged under the vagrancy act with having no fixed place of abode.

Magistrate—What age are you, Sam?

Prisoner—Fifty-two, yer honor.

Magistrate—You are a bricklayer by trade?

Prisoner—Yes, yer honor.

Magistrate—How long were you employed at your trade?

Prisoner—Nearly forty years, yer honor.

Magistrate—You must have built a large number of houses during that time?

Prisoner—Yes, hundreds, yer honor.

Magistrate—How many houses do you own?

Prisoner—I don't own any, yer honor.

Magistrate—But you've already admitted that you have built hundreds of houses.

Prisoner—Yes, yer honor, for other people.

Magistrate—You don't mean to tell me you have built hundreds of homes for others and have not one for your own use?

Prisoner—Yes, sir.

Magistrate (aside)—This is clearly a case for a lunatic asylum. This man should have been sent there forty years ago.—Glasgow (Scotland) "Forward."

BRIEF STATEMENT OF SOCIALISM.

The four leading demands of Socialism in four words and logically arranged:

First—That everyone shall have opportunity at all times to produce a living.

Second—That each shall receive the full product of his labor.

For these two ends—

Third—That the public shall own all public utilities.

Fourth—That these shall be democratically and industrially managed

These four principles will give us Socialism.

Helen had set her worldly little heart on going to the theater in spite of family scruples and prohibitions. To a tearful and importunate appeal her mother said with final decision: "Well, Helen, we'll pray about it."

"Yes," sobbed Helen, wringing her hands in desperation, "and while we're praying all the best seats will be taken."

Helen Keller, the blind girl, gave the best possible answer to the question why she is a Socialist. She simply said: "I thought."

THE CHRISTIAN SOCIALIST.

The Easster issue of The Christian Socialist now out is a Sunday School number. It puts the message of Socialism in terms from which a Sunday School student cannot escape.

There are Sunday Schools in every town, and thirty million Sunday School scholars in the country. They are at their most impressionable age and their religious training is their most approachable point.

The Sunday School number of The Christian Socialist is supplied for $1 a hundred copies in bundles. Will you not see that every Sunday School scholar in your city gets a copy?

Working to make a living for your family is not irksome, but having to work to make a living for the exploiter's family does rub a little hard.

BROTHERHOOD A FACT IN NATURE

Man is gregarious. He loves company. To be with others is happiness, to be alone unhappiness. For ages immemorial he has lived in horde, tribe, clan and nation. In every expanding circle has he expanded the boundaries until today he is almost ready to abolish nation lines and frontiers and meet all men as brothers.

Brotherhood is a law of nature, inexorable and unequivocal as gravity. It works both ways—towards heaven or towards hell.

Oppress a man, strike a woman, rob a child in the factories of England and the effect is felt by the whole race.

Open the door of opportunity, liberate labor, be fair to the worker and just to the child in Columbus and the toilers of the world rejoice.

Brotherhood is the law. Every creed, every law, every system, every custom that controvenes it, and prevents its application to the affairs of daily life, causes public distress, turmoil, war and private, personal disease, suffering and death.

The Golden Rule: "Do unto others what ye would have others do unto you," is its affirmation.

The Rule of Gold: "Every one for himself and the devil take the hindmost" is its denial.

Theology, statescraft, industry and commerce are still largely based upon the old world individualistic idea that each one must live for himself and find the highest in personal salvation and promotion.

The old idea is that we are separate, independent units, each lost or saved, happy or wretched, according to individual merits or demerits.

Theology sends men to an eternal heaven or hell, denying brotherhood.

Statescraft is based upon a ruling and a serving class. Industry has its capitalists and its wage workers, its bosses and its hands. The field of commerce is littered with the wrecks of bankrupts, with here and there a towering monument to a merchant prince.

Society divides itself into rich and poor. Whoever doubts the existence of caste in America, let him attempt to attend a full dress affair in plain clothes and his doubt will be quickly removed.

This old world idea of separateness and separate interests is challenged on every field by the growing consciousness that unity is the law of life and that the welfare of one is the concern of all.

Man is about to realize himself. United in universal brotherhood he becomes master of nature, controls and directs her forces and rules the planet he inhabits.

There is still one formidable obstacle in the way of attainment.

It is the fact that a large portion of the race has insufficient food, inadequate clothing and wretched habitations. Many men, women and children must exhaust themselves in hard and dangerous toil for a scant, pitiful living.

These have been denied the benefits of science, art, invention and commerce. They have been refused their equitable share in the common good, in the fruits of civilization. They are barred from real life, the life of the heart, the mind, the soul, by physical conditions which they individually cannot master.

The race needs every individual and every individual needs the whole race. Separateness means hatred and destructive strife. Unity means love and constructive activity.

Society is prepared for the first time in history, to supply the material means for a full, ample, brotherly life to every human being—provided it will produce and distribute these means collectively.

Eliminate private ownership of the means of production and distribution; secure to each worker the full product of his labor and material want will disappear like the night before the rising sun.

Then, and not until then, will brotherhood become a reality.

The Y. P. S. L. is growing by leaps and bounds. The young folks are training themselves to take care of the co-operative commonwealth.

To all German speaking workingmen: There will be mass meeting of German speaking Socialists on Friday, April 10, 8 p. m., at Kaiser's Hall, corner Third and Frankfort Streets. Speaker, Brunno Wagner, of New York. Admission free.

The Y. P. S. L. will give a hard times dance April 10. Please come dressed to represent the Wilson administration—in rags and patches.

The membership has decided to compete for the gold and silver medals offered for the best essay on Socialism and the Young. Everybody welcome to our meetings.

The First Ward Branch will, beginning next Thursday, and continue each week thereafter until the charter election, hold a debate on whether Socialists should vote for or against the new charter. Meetings at Zimpfer's Hall, 1451 Parsons Avenue. Next week Zimpfer affirms and Hartman takes the negative.

NEWS LETTER FROM THE STATE OFFICE.

It was decided by the State Executive Committee at its meeting last Saturday, that the last day of the State Convention, Sunday, May 31st, be devoted to a picnic to which the entire membership of the State would be invited. It will be held in some suitable park in Columbus.

The arrangements for the event were placed in the hands of State Secretary O. G. Van Schoyck and his assistant, W. E. Bues, who were instructed to select from the Columbus Comrades a sufficient number to help them make the picnic a big success.

It will be known by that time who the Socialist nominee for governor will be and it is planned to have him make his initial campaign speech on this day. Other prominent speakers are being negotiated with for this occasion.

Games of all kinds, for both young and old, will be on the bill.

The proceeds will go to the State Organization to help in conducting the campaign in this State this fall.

The committee will negotiate with the railroads and traction lines for special rates.

If the project is a success it is planned to make it an annual affair.

All Socialists should try to attend this picnic and bring their families and friends with them. A good time is promised to all who attend.

STATE.

The State Executive Committee met at State Headquarters last Saturday and Sunday.

The prospects for the Socialist ticket in this State is extremely bright. With a Democrat, Republican and Bull Moose ticket in the field, splitting the capitalist vote, it is possible that the working class may slip in. Just a little more than doubling the vote of two years ago with anything like an even break between the old parties will turn the trick.

NATIONAL.

In the municipal election in Chicago, week after next, the Socialists are confident that they will poll a largely increased vote and probably be able to break into the City Council. On account of the women participating in this year's contest the political situation is in a chaotic condition and all predictions are regarded as so much idle talk.

National election officials in Italy, after going over the returns from the last campaign, discovered that the Socialists are entitled to another seat in Parliament. The Socialist candidate in the district of Rovigo has been given his rightful seat, displacing a government member.

More "non-partisanism." Democrats and Republicans have ceased to be in Granite City, Ill., where a Socialist administration is in power. The opposition to the Socialists in that city has consolidated and will center the forces of grab and plunder on one ticket. It is the same old story—anything to beat the Socialists.

It looks as though National Headquarters of the Socialist party is likely to get out of debt in the near future, the total obligations amounting to about $14,000. William Sawyer, who died recently at Grand Junction, Col., left his estate of $20,000 to the S. P. The will filed Monday gives small bequests to many Socialist newspapers and the residue to the National Executive Committee of the party.

In turning in subscribers be sure that name and address are absolutely correct as any error results in extra work for both the post office and this office. Be sure and place your name on each list of subscribers you turn in as this sometimes aids us in locating an error. If however you hear of some one who has subscribed and are not getting their paper regularly notify us at once.

Texas workingmen have inaugurated a movement to force the abolition of the poll tax in that state, under which system the politicians of that state have for years discouraged many laboring men from voting and taking a general interest in political affairs. From time to time the State Federation of Labor and the Socialist party have adopted resolutions and made fitful attempts to secure general sympathetic action, but the matter was not systematically pushed. Now the printers of Houston have taken up the matter and are circularizing the organizations of Texas, calling upon labor to "wage unrelenting war" against the poll tax, charging that it is a violation of the United States Constitution, and they declare they will keep at it until success i achieved.

The Intercollegiate Socialist Society has succeded in breaking into the University of Maryland and forming a branch. Siege is also being laid to conservative old Johns Hopkins and Groucher College, in the same state.

Socialists in Berlin have raised $1,500,000 which is to be expended in building a great people's theatre in that city. It is the intention to produce plays dealing with labor and political questions that are now barred by other theaters.

Councilman Robert Wheeler, Socialist, has stirred up a sensation in Allentown, Pa., by charging publicly that the police are in cahoots with the corrupt and criminal elements in the city. Wheeler, who is a glass blower and a fighter, declares that he will hold a mass meeting and expose the whole rotten mess. He demands that the mayor resign or he will make it sultry for him also.

President Yuan Shi Kai is showing no mercy to the radical press in his efforts to kill the republic and establish a monarchy with himself as Emperor. The Chinese Socialist, a paper that had a large circulation, has been suppressed, while the Voice of the People has also been nearly done to death. It is probable that the Chinese Socialist will adopt the methods of their comrades in Russia and print clandestine newspapers and circulate them secretly.

A novel plan has been adopted by the Socialists of Geestemunde, a city near Bremerhaven, Germany, to force the authorities to grant universal suffrage to all workers, instead of merely to those who are property owners or pay a poll tax. The Socialists have sent word along the line to have everybody who can possibly do so to do their trading in Bremerhaven, thus forcing the business element in Geestemunde to concede the franchise to all or eventually land in the bankruptcy court.

Of Social advancement; and place our reliance
On facts and in figures that are proven of worth,
About man's evolution on good Mother Earth.

The tools of production, which history has shown
Were once owned by all and are now owned by few;
And that's what has dumped us all into the stew.

Or work for a living. In the Bible 'tis said,

Interest also, to add to the bill.

The short-eared variety that doesn't eat grass,
But trots along meekly, the boss on his back.
His head with a hammer you hardly could crack.

When Labor awakes, after Capitalists night,
And the Working Class learns where its interests lie;
Looks about it on earth 'Stead of up in the sky.
I—Stands for increase in knowledge we need
To stamp out the contemptible parasite breed,
If we stick we will win; if we scatter we lose.
It's up to you workers now, which will you choose.
S—Stands for slavery, shooting and skin.
Sleep on if you like it; its really a sin.
Your shoulders are stooped; your hands are a sight.

Your master is happy, for he has his fill

A SCRUB.

There was an old woman crept out with her basket,
Late every night with the rise of the moon,
And where she was going I couldn't but ask it,
For in her old hand she would carry a broom.
"Old woman, old woman, old woman," called I,
"Why do you go in that building so high?"
"To mop the Philanthropy Offices dry,
And I shall come down again by and by."

—Mary Field, in the Masses.

DO YOU KNOW

That the gospel of Socialism is preached in more than 50 tongues?

That it is accepted by more than 30,000,000 persons?

That a movement of such magnitude and universality could not spring up without a cause, or continue without a mission?

That to scoff at it is futile?

That to ignore it is folly?

That it must be faced?

That it must be understood—and that you are the one who must understand it?

"It is as much trouble to raise a puppy as a boy," acording to a critic of women. Perhaps, but the pup doesn't go to college and gamble your hard-earned money away, and then expect you to buy an annulment when he gets drunk and marries a chorus girl old enough to be his mother.

The Socialists of Brisbane, Australia, are giving the government a hard tussle in the free speech fight in that city. The Socialists started to introduce street speaking in Brisbane, but as each speaker attempted to talk he was arrested. The Socialists then chained themselves to lamp posts and the police were forced to secure a hammer and chisel in order to arrest them. The Socialists then hit upon a new method. Instead of standing still and addressing an audience, they walked along the sidewalk, talking as they walked to a great throng which followed them. The police could not arrest them unless they stood still. Another method used was to talk from trees which were on private grounds, and also to talk from the roofs of buildings. One of the speakers who was arrested went on a hunger strike for nine days. A physician was then called in and pronounced the man insane. He was put into an insan asylum. The Socialists are getting a great deal of publicity through the fight. The people are sympathizing with them and the police will undoubtedly be beaten.

AND IT WAS.

A teacher recently received the following from the mother of an absent pupil:

"Dere mam: please eggecuse Willy. He didn't have but one pair of pants an' I kep him home to wash them and Mrs. O'toole's goat come and et them off the line and that awt to be eggscuse enuff, goodness nota. Yours with respeck.—Mrs. B."

Why Catholic Workers Should Be Socialists

The Knights of Columbus and the Catholic Church have started upon a nation-wide campaign against Socialism. We must fight back with the weapon of education. Mary E. Marcy has written a booklet suggested by an attack in "The Live Issue," (Catholic) on her article in the International Socialist Review. In it she shows why Catholic Workers should be Socialists, and answers the Catholic arguments on wages and profits, "free love," reforms, war and patriotism, the class struggle, strikes, private property, confiscation and religious freedom.

JUDGE SAM BLACK ... ED—COURT HOLDS MRS. GRUNDEN NOT A LEGAL WITNESS

Last Monday Judge Black who was charged by Minnie Grunden with "intimidation," was released.

Justice McCormick upheld the contention of the defense that Mrs. Grunden was not a legal witness until she had been subpoenaed in the case in Police Court in which the Judge charges Bates with criminal libel.

The whole proceeding hinged on the one point as to when Mrs. Grunden would be a legal witness. The contention of the defense was that she could not be a legal witness until she had been subpoenaed in the case in police court. This contention was upheld by Justice McCormick and Judge Black released, although he made no defence that he had not tried to intimidate her.

The Bates case in Police Court will come up for trial one week from Monday, April 20th.

Your greatest help will be to send in the Subs. By doing this you spread the news so that the people will know what is going on, and help finance the paper.

This paper is in your hands. As a protest against plutocracy striking at a free press, send in a big bunch of Subs next week. Buy Sub cards and sell them. Do your share to win this fight and it will be won.

WHO IS A WITNESS?

The word "witness" is a most general term, including all persons from whose lips testimony is extracted to be used in any judicial proceeding. It embraces deponents as the term is used with us, and affiants equally with persons delivering oral testimony before a jury.—A. and E. Encyclopedia of law 29. Page 533.

A MASS OF EVIDENCE.

When the official acts of the Probate and Juvenile Court Judge, Samuel L. Black first came up for inspection, we had no idea that such an overwhelming mass of evidence existed. We will give none of it away as it will be brought out on the stand in the way of photographed court records, etc.

We are thrice ready for trial.

MINE OWNERS & RAILROAD MAGNATES STRIKE

The mine owners and railroad magnates of this glorious land of the free and home of the wage slave are on strike for more pay.

The railroads have demanded a 5 percent. increase in freight rates from the Railroad Commission, and in order to get it they have gone on strike.

The mine owners are demanding that their employees keep on working at the same old starvation wages, and because the men won't agree the mine owners have also gone on strike.

We shall next expect to see some court issue an injunction restraining the railroads from laying off any more of their men and also compelling them to put back into service the trains they have taken off. Oh yes! you'll see that all right won't you, you dear American Public?

You will also no doubt see some judge issue an injunction, restraining the mine owners from interferring with the rights of the miners who are demanding work at wages that will allow them to live, and then if the mine owners get frisky the Governor will send troops into the territory to see that the miners are protected in their God given right to work won't you?

Fine system! Brainy People on this side of the Atlantic are'nt we—Not?

Here we have coal in the ground placed there by Nature for all her children. We have thousands of men and machinery standing ready and willing to apply their labor to this raw material and convert it into a useful social product, and yet we allow a few bloated hogs to own our coal supply and tell us if we want to keep warm to go to h—— or come to their terms.

Brainy People! Wise owls we are. If we allowed ourselves to own the mines and railroads and some other industries, we would lose all our religion and incentive wouldn't we?

If we got a decent salary and a vacation at the sea shore, and had a nice library, and beautiful surroundings there wouldn't be enough of our homes left to flag a bread wagon would there?

Wouldn't it be simply awful to go to the U. S. R. R. Station and get aboard a coach painted red with the letters U. S. Ry. on it?

Couldn't ride, could we? Besides the fare would only be about ½ cent per mile. Oh horrors! Now the home would be "broken up" sure, because that is just what those horrid nasty crazy deluded Socialists want and they are Anarchists and Bums and hoboes, and, oh everything.

Just keep right on you workers voting capitalist tickets and you will soon have nothing, not even the ballot left.

Plutocracy enthroned today holds the lives of the people in its hands, and when the people show a tendency to no longer stand for being gouged, Plutocracy declares a strike, and you either surrender or starve. The remedy? Socialism.

WHY SO EXPENSIVE?

We notice in the report of the Superintendent of the County Infirmary that it cost the County $57,294.92, on an average of $184.60 each to maintain the 310 inmates kept there. This does not include the use of the farm or housing. This would easily amount to $25 each making a total expense of about $210 each.

Now as the average wage of the workingman of Columbus does not exceed $600 and the average family consists of about six, we can readily see that if the workingmen were to receive wages that would compare favorable with the expense of caring for the inmates in a public institution, we should receive not less than $1260 per year.

But when we take into consideration the fact that where goods are bought for 310 people, it is possible to purchase at not less than twenty percent. below the prices paid where supplies are bought for a family of only six.

We find that it actually costs about two and one-half as much to keep a person at the infirmary as it does in the homes of the workingmen of Columbus. From this we find that either the expense of keeping up public institutions is abnormally large or the wages of the workingmen are miserably small.

Will some of the advocates of the present capitalistic system of government please explain which it is?

Will some of the advocates of the present system please give us a remedy by which these gross inequalities can be remedied.

NO REFUSE COLLECTION

The city is to have no refuse collection this year. The City Council has decided that no money is available for that purpose.

Here is a city department that has to do with the sanitation of the city discontinued and if the refuse is collected it will have to be done by the people individually.

There is no more important city department than this one—a department that cleans up the old disease reeking rubbish and gets rid of it.

It is a branch of the city work that should be socially undertaken and carried on, but yet no money is available.

The city could easily find $30,000 to employ an alleged expert at $100.00 per day to come here from another state and tell us all about flood protection. Isn't it a fact that that money was just the same as thrown down a rat hole? Money has been spent right and left, but when the people want something the old party politicians tell them to go where the temperature is somewhat warmer. Councilman Sherman, (Rep.) made a hard fight for the people in this case, but was overwhelmed by an adverse vote of 11 to 7.

With Socialists in power it would not be necessary to fight for such advantages for the people, because Socialists are a part of the people, and know what the people want, and would see that these natural rights were granted them as a matter of course.

THE DEFENCE FUND

Judge Osborn last Wednesday overruled the demurrer in the case of State of Ohio against Bates in which Judge Black charges Bates with criminal libel. Next Monday the jury will be drawn and the following Monday, April 20th, the trial will start. Many comrades do not realize the amount of money it will take to give our comrades a fair trial. No matter how small your contribution send it in now, because now is when it is needed and needed urgently.

Fifty cents or a dollar from each reader of this paper will furnish ample funds. Many can give much more. Send in your contribution today to W. E. Buse, Room 66, 101 N. High Street.

A man who will consent to suffer is a pimp and a coward.

Thou shalt not kill—we have an army and navy for that purpose.

Any fool can condemn what he does not understand.

The average worker votes for nothing and then kicks because he gets it.

The working class produces all the world's wealth. Why then don't you own it after you have produced it? Are you fellows too loony, or have you got the working class simples, that you continue to vote for that which robs you of nearly all of your product?

Say, you jobless one, don't be so simple and content with a hand out from charity. Break into the jail or poor house and get fed and cared for twenty-four hours of every day. If capitalist society can't give you a self supporting job make them feed, clothe and shelter you.

Dogs quarrel among themselves, but against the wolf they are united.—Armenian Proverb.

In dreams the hungry see bread and the thirsty water.—Armenian Proverb.

Rich thieves are escorted by brass bands; poor ones are chased by blood hounds.

The dollar will be above the man so long as he remains below the boss.

The manner in which many workers grow excited when discussing the monetary system would lead one to believe that they were all going to enter the banking business.

The poor want their wives to keep house for them; but they too must work at the looms; they must work when sick, they must work life out to keep life in.

Riches alone may not bring happiness, but we can assure you that poverty alone doesn't either, by a long shot.

A scientist says gold can be made artificially out of other substances The good old fashioned way of taking it out of the workers hide has suffered no loss of popularity with the employers, however.

Mr. Workingman, do you know why you are living a dog's existence, without a permanent home, without education, without "nothin"? It is because you dare not fight for the rights of yourself, your wife and children. You dare not look the capitalist class in the face and strike a blow that would make life possible for your wife and babies.

All aboard for ten thousand new Subs.

If the worker got three thousand dollars per year instead of five hundred it would break up the rented shack he calls home—because he would go and buy a decent home for his family.

Sam Kinnear says he didn't know it was "agin' the law" to hire sidewalk inspectors contrary to Civil Service rules.

Next time you workers do something against the law, plead ignorance and see what you get. Council Committee decided to pay the men Kinnear had hired unlawfully, after Sam had promised "never to do it again." If there was one law for rich and poor alike, and every man were given the opportunity to plead ignorance of the law not a man would be in the Pen. But then the Pen and jails are built by the workers for the workers and filled by the workers.

Turn in a bunch of four next week. Every Sub you put on means one more nail in the coffin of Capitalism. Line 'em up.

If we dont carry this county this fall it won't be the fault of the Capitalist bunch in power. The workers are being ground down as never before.

Oh the miseries of the working class, and them to think they have the power within themselves to change this system any time they wish, by simply voting for Socialism.

Say John, Bonehead, isn't your wife and family just as dear to you as your bosses. Yes? Then why don't you vote for them in place of voting for his family. Verily Bonehead you are a free lover. You love your bosses wife and daughters more than you do your own.

The railroad magnates are on strike. Call out the militia.

The peanut head who stands around on the corner and talks about "toll repeal" and a lot of other nonsensical unk that don't concern him in the least, is a fit subject for the lunatic asylum.

It is laughable to hear a dirty faced workingman living in a twelve dollar rented shack talking about our country, as if he really had a country. Boob, you are the lowest, vilest slave that ever crept out upon the earth, and disgraced the otherwise fair landscape, with your presence. You have no country and no home, although you pile up millions for the parasite that owns the tools you work with. Vote to own the tools and step out on the earth, in God's fair sunshine—A FREE MAN.

Socialism is misunderstood only by those who refuse to investigate it.

Why do men and women gladly go to jail and gladly die for Socialism. Because it is the truth.

A Kansas medical scientist is going to try two-year, cold-storage eggs on a squad of men. They are luckier than most of us, who have to take the older brands.

Thieves are people who haven't got enough money to employ officers to protect their stealings.

Any worker that is satisfied with the present system of uncertainty, would certainly be a contented mortal in hell.

Those who boast of "blue blood" and look down on the "sucat-stinking" horde as so many cattle, are blood-suckers of the worst kind. You workers want to get your needles working and get rid of these blood-suckers.

The world needs Salvation! The world needs a Mighty Movement of the Conscience and the Soul of the Race against the debris of Hell that rides the Human Family to Degradation and Death.

The only way to blackmail truth is to tell a lie. That's why so many fellows are misrepresenting Socialism.

Slaveries, Mammonism, Competitivism—our modern Hell on earth.

Capitalism stunts and blights the minds of the masses by the conditions under which they live and work. Science and education have scarcely begun their work in the faculties of the people because of the bondage of Capitalism.

"GREAT COMMONER" ASKS FOOTMAN FOR HIS CARRIAGE

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Secretary of State Bryan, who used to be called the Commoner and believed in dollar dinners, is changing his ways He has told the House Committee on Appropriations that it is "bad form" for him to ride around in a carriage without a footman perched on the box.

Bryan said that thirty years ago his predecessors in office had assigned a department messenger to act as coachman. He thought this practice was undemocratic and un-American and that Congress ought to make an appropriation for a coachman for the Secretary of State. Bryan also thought the coachman should have an "assistant," that is tjo say, a footman.

Committeemen suggested to Bryan that he might have an automobile, but premier a moment later "I found it suggestion.

"I am entirely satisfied with the carriage," said he.

"When I went in there," added the premier a moment later, "I found it had been customary to use another messenger when necessary as an assistant to the driver, as a footman. You gentlemen, of course, know you cahnot get along with a driver alone when engaged in the matter of returning calls."

HOW WOULD YOU LIKE TO BE A POODLE?

The following news item from the "Columbus Citizen" should make every homeless and jobless worker feel very good.

$1200 Will Suit Is Won By Dog.

"BOSTON, April 1.—Pete Crafts will continue to enjoy luxuries uncommon among dogs. The Probate court today approved the will of his late master, John Chancellor Crafts, which provides a fund of $1200 a year for the upkeep of Pete. Relatives who had been cut off without a cent contested the will alleging "undue indulgence."

At the hearing witnesses told how Pete had presided at the head of the table at "birthday parties" given in his honor.

This is surely a case of "society going to the dogs," the expression so frequently heard lately.

It matters not the children of the working class go hungry, have not half enough clothes to properly protect them in the winter, are compelled to be born and live in unsanitary and unhealthy surroundings, the pet poodles of the idle rich can have a sum of $1200.00 per year set aside to maintain them.

Words fail at this point. It is impossible to depict in terms that would go through the mails, what we think of a system that permits such conditions to exist. Especially do words fail us when we think of the inertia and lack of interest on the part of the working men, who by their votes, are responsible for such inhuman conditions existing.

You may say in defense that the money and the poodle belonged to the man and he could do with both as he wished. We are not questioning that point, we are questioning the system that places dogs above humans. That gives a poodle $1200.00 per year, and the worker an average of $437.00.

The dog does nothing to produce wealth, and yet he has abundance, while the worker whose labor keeps it, lives on the husks.

Next week when you go to work just remember as you start the daily grind that you are working for a dog.

The capitalist system has rammed many insults down your throats, but this one of making you work to give a dog $1200.00 per year is about the worst yet.

Honest now, workers, how do you like a dog for a master?

WE MUST HAVE 10,000 NEW SUBS

Every battle the workers have fought and won has been largely due to the power of their own press.

We are confident that with [illegible] additional subscribers in this county we have a big fighting chance to elect our ticket this fall.

Next week every one is going to hustle for Subs. Every lover of justice and humanity is going to work for new subscribers. Never was the time so propitious as now to get people to read a Socialist paper.

Take this appeal to heart. Know that it means you. Understand that if you do your share we can put on that additional 10,000 in a short time.

Start out to-morrow. You know of some one who will subscribe. See them and get their subscription.

Make up a big list. If you never got any Subs before start out now and see how easy it is.

You owe it to yourself. You owe it to your family, to end this black night of oppression. Come in and help fight.

Send in a bunch of names next week. Only 25c for 40 weeks in clubs of 4 or more. Will you be one who will help put on that 10,000 new ones? Come on and get in the fight. It's great to fight for Liberty.

MOTHER JONES SMUGGLES LETTER OUT OF COLORADO MILITARY BASTILE.

Military Bastile, Walsenburg, Colo., March 31, 1914.

To My Friends and the Public Generally:

I am being held a prisoner incommunicado in a damp underground cell, in the basement of a military bull pen at Walsenburg, Colo. Have been here since 5:30 a. m., of the 23rd of March, when I was taken from the train by armed soldiers, as I was passing through Walsenburg. I have discovered what appears to be an opportunity to smuggle a letter out of prison, and shall attempt to get this communication by the armed guards which day and night surround me, (me, a white-haired old woman, eighty-two years of age).

I want to say to the public that I am an American citizen. I have never broken a law in my life, and I claim the right of an American citizen to go where I please so long as I do not violate the law. The courts of Las Animas and Huerfano are open and unobstructed in the transaction of business, yet Governor Ammons, and his Peabody appointee, General Chase, refuse to carry me before any court, and refuse to make any charge against me. I ask the press to let the Nation know of my treatment, and to say to my friends, whom, thank God, I number by the thousands, throughout the United States and Mexico, that not even my incarceration in a damp underground dungeon will make me give up the fight in which I am engaged for liberty and for the rights of the working people. Of course, I long to be out of prison. To be shut from the sunlight is not pleasant, but John Bunyon, John Brown, and others, were kept in jail quite a while, and I shall stand firm. To be in prison is no disgrace. In all my strike experiences I have seen no horrors equal to those perpetrated by General Chase and his corps of Baldwin Felts detectives that are now enlisted in the militia. My God—when is it to stop? I have only to close my eyes to see the hot tears of the orphans and widows of working men, and hear the mourning of the broken hearts, and the wailing of the funeral dirge, while the cringing politicians, whose sworn duty it is to protect the lives and liberty of the people, crawl subserviently before the National burglars of Wall Street who are today plundering and devastating the state of Colorado economically, financially, politically and morally.

Let the nation know, and especially let my friend General Francisco Villa know, that the Great United States of America, which is demanding of him that he release the traitors he has placed under arrest, is now holding "Mother" Jones incommunicado in an underground cell surrounded with sewer rats, tin horn soldiers and other vermin.

MOTHER JONES."

BRITISH EMPIRE CHALLENGED BY MINE STRIKE LEADERS

Recently the British Government kidnapped nine strike leaders in South Africa, and deported them. On their landing in England they were given a great reception by the working class. The following from the Milwaukee Leader shows the growing solidarity of Labor, the world over:

(By Shaw Desmond.)

Did you ever hear of nine men challenging an empire? Did you ever see half a million of people gathered in a space the size of a couple of large fields? Did you ever see * * * ? but let me begin at the beginning.

I have just come back from Hyde park. I have seen "men as trees walking." I have seen 500 banners blue and crimson and green shining in the afternoon sun. I have heard the blare of a score and a half of bands, brass and fife and drum. I have looked on a sight which no man has ever looked upon before—the sight of nine men drawing 500,000, and those 500,000 drawing 10,000,000 of organized workers, and those 10,000,000 throwing down the gauntlet to the greatest empire the world has seen in historical times.

Now Botha boy, it's up to you! What are you going to do about it? You deported innocent men in the dead of night without warrant. You argued with 13-pounder guns. You rode amuck through the British constitution. What are you going to do about it?

Music of Life.

And the music. The glorious music with the shrill of the fifes cutting athwart the boom of drum, the smash of cymbal, and the blast of brass! You never heard such music. The Irish bands were everywhere, the green over all.

Here half a hundred wild-looking Celts from the borough were lilting out "The Night That Larry Was Stretched"; beyond them a staid and sober brass-bound body of railwaymen (there were 40,000 of them in the procession) poured out in strict sobriety, "Hearts of Oak"; while three bands beyond them a regular rapscallion "drum and triangle" orchestra smashed out the "Marseillaise" under high heaven, affrighting the very pouter-pigeons, who hitherto had strolled about in aristocratic disdain.

And what of those other pouter-pigeons of Piccadilly of the big west-end clubs who had seen this democratic deluge pour past them at high flood hour after hour? What of the gilded lords who had watched from their vantage points?

They looked desperately uneasy. They wondered if it wasn't the beginning of the end. Some of them you could see, as they tugged aristocratically at their moustachios, had "that whiff of grape" in mind.

Dawn About to Break.

But the speakers to my right, and especially the nine men from Africa, were studiously careful of their words. No wild and woolly talking. They know that the workers have nothing to gain by force, but everything to lose. Brains, not bullets; righteousness, not rifles. The ballot, not the barricade. As one of them said: "The day is coming, brothers. The dawn is about to break over the long night. Labor will come to her own by the ballot—not by the bullet."

Listening to the nine men both here on Sunday and in the packed-out meeting at the London Opera house on the Friday when every section of the movement was represented, from anarchist-communist, through syndicalist, to Socialist, the dominant note underruning their speeches was peaceful not militant action. The vote rather than the strike. But, the strike always in reserve as a good left hand to be driven home and clinched by political action.

H. P. Poutsma (general secretary of South African Railway and Harbor Servants' society), a splendid looking Dutchman, with a leonine head and calm, far-seeing eyes which embraced all things, told us the story in deep thrilling accents of his battle with Burton, the general manager of the South African railways.

When the Mask Dropped.

Burton got the mask off for a moment, and in a burst of rage said to Poutsma: "You don't know the British workingman—you are a Hollander—I know him—I have no time for him!" It was this "gentleman's gentleman" who received a labor deputation, seeking to avoid a strike, by sitting in his chair leaving them to stand and scarcely noticing them.

Then Poutsma told of the troubles in Johannesburg last July. He told of the 500 police who trampled the people down, smashing them over the skulls with pick handles. When they knew that the imperial troops (for English redcoats garrison South Africa) in Johannesburg, had shot down more than 400 innocent men, women and children in Johannesburg, the labor men in Pretoria, where he was at that time, went to the police authorities and said to them: "If you keep away your police and your troops, we will guarantee order!" For, as he said, the place was full of agents provocateurs deliberately trying to stir up trouble with the authorities so that the latter might get the people where they wanted them.

They had a mass meeting of 7,000 in protest at Pretoria, and they kept their word, for no disturbance took place of any kind.

He told us how the authorities had never forgiven him for advocating at that meeting a policy of resistance to the troops shooting down the workers. He advised them to cease all work on the Monday morning in protest, and when Monday morning came "there wasn't a soul at work."

Red Flag on Imperial Train.

He told us how when month after month he had protested against the "retrenchment" of men on the railways, the general manager had coolly put him off with: "Oh, I'll take it into consideration," without doing anything. So, when Burton came to him and said: "Will you not let my trains run?" he (Poutsma) replied: "Oh, I'll take it into consideration!" Then Burton begged that "the imperial train with the mails might be permitted to run;" to which Poutsma replied that he would only let it run on the condition that "the red flag" was fixed to the front of it, which he said "would pass it through the danger zone of the Rand miners who were also out on strike." Every harbor man in South Africa also came out.

That was all before the recent troubles. The government was determined "to get their own back," so as a provocation they decided to "retrench" 1,000 men from the workshops, to which the labor men objected as there was more than enough to do for those employed.

Wouldn't Be "Killed."

Then the government tried to "kill" Poutsma at the elections, but he polled 15,000 to his opponent's 5,000 votes. Labor "dickered" with them over the "retrenchments," but the capitalists persisted. Then labor actually offered, every man of it, to go on short time so that those others, their wives and little ones, might not be flung on the dung-heap of capitalism. But the capitalists would not, Burton saying brutally: "We are ready for a strike."

So the great flare-up started. And here is the irony of the whole business. Not a single one of the nine men is a syndicalist—they are all parliamentarians of rather a mild type than otherwise!

This was proved by J. T. Bain, general secretary of the South African Trades Federation, the white-haired, fresh-faced Scottish South African, like the others, a good Socialist, and one of 30 years' standing at that.

He is one of the handsomest men in the labor movement, with a fine frame and a striking face. In accents that stung like a whip-lash he indicted General Smuts' action as "the action of a coward," winding up with: "This is not a matter for South Africa—it is a matter for the British empire!"

Black and White Together

His story of South African infamy seared the memories of his hearers. He and others showed how the "bosses" were replacing white labor with colored at 46 cents a shift instead of $1.50 to $2. But he brought his audience to him by telling how even the colored men came out on strike at the Bloemfontein mine with their white fellow workers. What they are driving at is a "black South Africa" bossed by a few whites.

He was followed by W. R. B. Waterston, general secretary of the South African Labor party, a pleasant faced young Australian, who told how he and his brother in the Boer war of 1900 had fought for the Union Jack under the mistaken impression that it was a war for human rights against reactionary Boers!

When some of his audience hissed him for fighting on the side of the British, he said tersely: "Some learn by their own experience, and some by the experience of others!" They left him alone after that.

Millions Linger After Speeches.

For hours after the speechmaking was finished, the surrounding streets and the park itself were thronged by between one and two millions of people. These figures might seem exaggerated, but they are the result of a careful computation by papers like the workers, "Daily Citizen," which is doing great work for labor here. Over 1,000,000 persons lined the route of the procession alone!

I received within the past few weeks telegrams from labor leaders like Tom Mann, Ben Tillett and George Lansbury; from Liberal M. P's. like J. C. Wedgwood; and from brilliant writers like R. B. Cunninghame Graham; who demand among other things the withdrawal of British troops from South Africa, and the absolute unity of all sections of the labor and Socialist movement upon the question of suspension of civil rights.

I have been present at large meetings in various parts of Britain of which I relate of the one held in the Ipswich Cinema theater, where I was the speaker.

In that crowded meeting, when a strong resolution was put from the platform by the chairman, demanding the refusal of the king to put his signature to the indemnity bill, the recall of Lord Gladstone, the governor-general of South Africa, and the strongest possible condemnation of Botha's methods, every hand was held up in favor of the resolution—yet two-thirds of the theater was filled with Liberals and Conservatives!

That is the spirit of the great ring of mass meetings now being held throughout the country. The government has thrown down the gauntlet. The labor and Socialist movement has taken it up.

There can be no let up of the struggle until either autocracy or democracy has won. It may take us 10 years—it may take us 20 years—to win this fight, but we have put our hands to the plough and we shall not look back.

Half a million said it yesterday in Hyde park. Twenty million will say it tomorrow!

WHAT ABRAHAM LINCOLN SAID

PRIMARIES—No man is good enough to govern another without that other's consent.

PUBLIC OWNERSHIP—This country, with its institutions, belongs to the people who inhabit it.

DEMOCRACY—If there is anything that it is the duty of the whole people to never intrust to any hands but their own, that thing is the preservation and perpetuity of their own liberties and institutions.

GOLD—Gold is good in its place; but living, brave and patriotic men are better than gold.

THE TRUSTS—These capitalists generally act harmoniously and in concert to fleece the people.

THE SUPREME COURT—If the policy of the government, upon vital questions affecting the whole people, is to be irrevocably fixed by decisions of the supreme court the people will have ceased to be their own rulers.

THE REFERENDUM—Allow all the governed an equal voice in the government; that only is self-government.

PROGRESSIVISM—The cause of civil liberty must not be surrendered at the end of one or even one hundred defeats.

LABOR—The workingmen are the basis of all governments for the plain reason that they are the most numerous. Labor is superior to capital and deserves much the higher recognition.

PUSHING AHEAD.

Socialism is making strenuous efforts to introduce its errors into the American class room. It would above all obtain possession of the future intellectual leaders of the nation by organizing it study clubs and diffusing its literature among college men and women.

Socialist study groups exist in between sixty and seventy universities. The New York alumni chapter has a membership of three hundred and fifty. Berger, Stokes, White and Walling have made special lecture trips among the New England colleges. In addition to this propagande tens of thousands of Socialist leaflets have been scattered throughout the various institutions of higher learning. Many of the most brilliant minds among the students are caught by the sophisms of Socialist teachings.—American (Catholic Weekly.)

TEN REASONS WHY I VOTE SOCIALIST TICKET

1—Because I believe that the economic conditions of the working classes can only permanently be bettered and changed by the workers themselves.

2—Because there is no other political party that represents and is composed of the working class except the Socialist Party.

3—Because all other parties are opposed to the Socialist Party, which in itself is evidence that the Socialist Party represents the interests of the masses.

4—Because the Socialist party stands alone in demanding a change of ownership of the general means of production and distribution from private hands to public hands and because a change will cause a change of relationship in human society of immense value to the working class.

5—Because I believe if political democracy is a good thing, then industrial democracy is far better yet, because on account of its greater importance and influence upon the life of the working class.

6—Because I believe no man is good enough to be another's master, and no man ought to be allowed to sink as low as to be another's slave.

7—Because the Socialist Party is the only party that stands square on the problems of woman suffrage, the extension and improvement of our public school system, guaranteeing every child a rational education, the separation of church and state, considering religion a private matter.

8—Because the Socialist Party is the only political party that stands for universal peace with the only practical program to attain this end.

9—Because it is the only international party that seeks the true advancement of organized labor, and stands for equal pay regardless of sex for the same class of work.

10—Because the Socialist principles are fundamentally correct and based on scientific facts, from a moral, religious, ethical, industrial or political point of view and are bound to be victorious, whether you believe it or not, does not make any difference.

THE COURTS AN ADJUNCT OF CAPITALISM

The Supreme Court of the United States has refused to review the case of the twenty-four structural iron workers who were denied a new trial by the United State Circuit Court of Apveals in Chicago last January.

The men were convicted of a "conspiracy to transport dynamite illegally." Practically the only evidence against the men was the fact that they had at one time or another held an official position in the Bridge and Structural Iron Workers' Union and they were therefore presumed to have known of the various explosions to which McManigal and the McNamaras confessed.

These men, convicted of a flimsy charge, on flimsy evidence, are denied retrial, denied a review by the Supreme Court, while Becker, the police inspector of New York, who hired men to commit murder, has been granted a new trial on technicalities.

The union men are victims of the class war. The Steel Trust dominated by the Morgan interests, have vowed to crush the unions in their industries. They have succeeded in stamping out unionism in their huge steel mills and foundries. But the Iron Workers have been among those who have managed to survive. They were fighting for their class and against the forces controlling society. Therefore, they found all the powers of capitalism arrayed against them. The Steel Trust, the federal courts, detective agencies and spies within the union all united to accomplish their downfall.

With Becker, the case is otherwise. He was part of the government that serves the predatory interests. He has powerful political friends, whom he has doubtless, often rendered valuable political services. He has served the master class and they will see that he is not harmed.

This case should open the eyes of workingmen who still believe that courts were established for the administration of justice. Courts are maintained for one purpose only. To protect the ruling class interests against the conflicting interests of the workingclass. It is not a question of justice, but of power. If the workers would prevent the courts being used against them, they must increase their power through organization, economic and political. When the political power of the workers has increased to such an extent that they control the courts, then and then only, can they expect justice from these institutions.

SOCIALISTS SWEEP MISSOULA, MONTANA.

In spite of the fact that the Democrat and Republican parties forgot their differences and united to defeat them, the Socialists swept Missoula, Mont., at the primaries held March 24th.

The Socialist candidate for mayor received 738 votes, while the united forces of the Republicans and Democrats polled but 332 votes.

Higgins, the "non-partisan" candidate, had confidently predicted that he would "wipe the Socialists off the map."

An American was boasting to an Irishman about the fastness of American trains.

"Why, Pat," said the American, "we run our trains so fast in America that the telegraph poles look like a continuous fence."

"Do they now," said Pat. "Well sir, I was wan day on a train in Ireland, and as we passed first a field of turnips, then wan of carrots, then wan of cabbage, and then a large pond of water, we were goin' that fast I thought it was broth!"

White slavery ended?
Prostitution to be ended?
The rental system abolished?
Clean and sanitary workshops?
Every family well provided for?
Preventable diseases prevented?
Children to have their childhood?
Every child to secure an education?
Slavery of manhood and womanhood ended?
Food poisoning and adulteration stopped?
Industrial work made as safe as possible?
Every man who wants to work to have a job?
Human rights to stand above property rights?
The good things of life for yourself and family?
The black plague of venereal diseases stamped out?
The fear of want driven from every man, woman and child?
The steam railways run for service instead of for profit?
Every man who is willing to work to have a home of his own?
Little children taken out of the mines, mills, and workshops?
The hell holes called slums, wiped off of the face of the earth?
Every dollar of wtalth which you create to go into your own pocket?
It to be unneccessary for any woman to have to sell herself to keep from starving?
The street car lines run for the service of the people instead of the private profit of a few?
Employment made secure to every man who is willing to work to the best of his ability?

Now, brother, just take a pencil and jot down in the space left for your answers; Yes or No, to each one of these questions and when you have answered each one of them in the affirmative just say to yourself, 'I am a Socialist" I don't care whether you say you are a Democrat, Republican, Non-Partisan or a mugwump. You are a Socialist, whether you will admit it or not.

This is what Socialism is: no more no less. It is the method whereby these wrongs against society may be ended and the people who have banded themselves together for the purpose of ending these wrongs are called Socialists. The only difference between you and a Socialist is this: he recognizes the fact that he is a Socialist and you don't!

Don't you think you had better begin to look into the method by which the Socialists intend to end these wrongs?

I don't care what some one has told you that Socialism is or what you imagine it to be. You owe it to yourself and your family to find out the truth for yourself.

You will notice this fact. No one who is against Socialism has ever told you to read for yourself and find out what it is. Why? They are afraid for you to read it and study it for yourself for that is just how one million Socialist voters in the United States became Socialists and they don't want you to read it for fear you too will become a Socialist!

If Socialism is bad, why don't some of the defenders of the present system get up and tell you what is bad about it! They dare not! Socialism is right! They dare not meet our speakers on the platform in front of an intelligent audience and let the audience decide!

It is up to you! Will you allow the capitalist class to rob you and yours of all the good things of life without making any effort to secure them for yourself and your family? Food, clothing and shelter are here in abundance for every man, woman and child. Why don't they have them? Read up on Socialism and you will find out for yourself. Will you do it?

Now, both these lobsters worked all day for the self-same boss at blamed small pay; and devil a bit did this boss care for the bleeding mugs and gobs of hair. "If I," said he "can keep these two—Mike, the Christian, and Ike, the Jew—scrappin' about their creeds and such, I can skin 'em both to beat the Dutch; but if they lose their myths and creeds their goblins, ghosts and strings of beads, and find their interests are one, the two would have me on the run!"

And the boss lay back and smole a smile and dreamed of next year's goodly pile that he would swipe from wealth that grew from sweat of Christian and of Jew. And he blessed the ghosts with all his heart that kept poor Mike and Ike apart.—Melting Pot.

ARE YOU CLASS CONSCIOUS?

Socialists are often heard to use the expression "class conscious." To those who have never studied the question of Socialism this term is misunderstood.

In society today we have two classes. The class that does the useful work, and another class that lives on the labor of the class that does the work.

The class of men and women that do the work are known as workers the ones that do not work yet live in idle luxury are known as capitalists.

When you get to the point in your brain development when you know that you are a workingman or a capitalist, you have become "class conscious."

Capitalists are all class conscious. They know that their interests are identical, and consequently they all hang together to protect their ownership of the earth.

Most working men are not class conscious. They imagine that their interests and the capitalist's interests are identical. The capitalist knowing what easy marks the workers are maintain a daily press and large magazines to keep the worker in that frame of mind.

The capitalist further maintains at least two political parties in order to keep the workers at each other's throats and keep them divided, except in localities where enough of the workers become "class conscious," and in that event he dumps his two parties into one and labels it "non-partisan," as for example in Milwaukee, and Schenectady.

When the workers become class conscious in enough numbers to capture the powers of government and use the power thus gained to set themselves free, then will classes, and class rule disappear from the face of the earth for the first time in history.

TWO SINNERS.

There was a man, it was said one time,
Who went astray in his youthful prime;
Can the brain keep cool and the heart keep quiet
When the blood is a river that's running riot?
And boys will be boys, the old folks say,
And t' man is the better who's had his day.

The sinner reformed, and the minister told
Of the Prodigal Son who came back to the fold.
And Christian people threw open the door
With a warmer welcome than ever before;
Wealth and honor were at his command,
And a spotless woman gave him her hand.
And the world strewed their pathway with blossoms a-bloom,
Crying, "God bless ladye, God bless groom!"

There was a maiden who went astray
In the golden dawn of her life's young day;
She had more passion and heart than head,
And followed blindly where fond love led;
And love unchecked is a dangerous guide
To wander at will by a fair girl's side
The woman repented and turned from sin,
But no door opened to let her in.
The preacher prayed that she might be forgiven,
But told to look for mercy—in heaven.
For this is the law of the earth, we know,
That the woman is stoned, while the man may go.

A brave man wedded her after all,
But the world said frowning, "We shall not call."

PUBLIC LAUNDRIES.

"Cleanliness is next to godliness," and it is also a prerequisite for health. If a community recognizes a responsibility for maintaining health it must recognize the obligation which lies on it to make provision for public decency. This is the keynote of an article printed in the series of "American City Pamphlets" by Donald B. Armstrong, superintendent of the Bureau of Public Health and Hygiene of the New York Society for Improving the Condition of the Poor. Armstrong says that many communities supply means for the cleansing of human bodies, but it is just as essential to health and decency that public facilities for clean laundry should be provided when private ones are lacking. Otherwise the tone of decency of the community is lowered. Expenditures usually understood as being for the benefit of the public health really mean as much for the promotion of public decency. Among the tenement dwellers of large American cities the facilities for washing clothes are decidedly meager, and the establishment of public laundries or wash-houses fashioned after the plan of those long in use in foreign cities is a present demand. There are about fifteen of these institutions in America, five of which are in Baltimore. Other cities which have found an urgent demand for them are Philadelphia, Buffalo and Elmira. Recently the committee of the bureau of which Armstrong is superintendent made an investigation of the necessity for wash-houses in New York, and the cost of their equipment, operation, etc. The investigation covered a population of about 400,000 in the poorer sections of New York, and it was found that from 30 to 45 per cent of the families were without any washing facilities in the home, while no hot water except that heated in the apartment is provided in from 70 to 95 per cent of the houses. Inquiry among 10,000 bathers at one of the municipal baths showed that the women were enthusiastically in favor of the establishment of public wash-houses, and many of the men promised to make use of such facilities. In Baltimore and Philadelphia special days are set aside for men, and there are many men who could use the facilities to advantage. Armstrong says that the educational value of the measure is important. The public wash-house finds its chief justification in the fact that it gives to the people an opportunity to appreciate the value to health and decency of being physically clean. Physical cleanliness, says the Journal of the American Medical Association enhances moral and spiritual tone and leads to a demand for better housing and better household equipment, which in turn make for better health and for decency.—Party Builder.

CREED OF CAPITALISM

Then came unto the common people one Col. Sol Wiseman, the holy prophet and spiritual adviser of The Eye Opener, and spoke these words: Verily, verily, I say unto thee to tell thee and thine what the capitalists believe that thou mayest know what they stand for, so that thou mayest know and judge clearly for thyselves as to whether thou wilt stand with them or against them. And the multitude did prick up their ears (for they were very long) and listen. Then said the holy prophet; Behold, this is the creed of capitalism:

The Creed of Capitalism.

I believe that "whoso lendeth his money upon usury and taketh regard against the innocent" shall be blessed and his pile increased.

I believe in the trinity of rent, profit and interest, and that they will enable me to acquire the wealth of my fellows.

I believe in indirect taxation, because it maketh the rich richer and the poor poorer.

I believe that the lamb was made to be shorn, the goose to be plucked, the weak to be exploited by the strong, the foolish to be ruled by the wise, labor to be the raw material of capital, and money to rule mankind.

I believe in having an army of the unemployed, in the slum, in the sweatshop and brothel, for these things tend to lower wages and raise profits.

I believe in child labor, and that women should be paid less than men for women have no representation or political protection, and the children of the poor are the lawful prey of the manufacturer.

I believe that property is infinitely more valuable than life; that wealth is of vastly greater moment than the commonwealth, and that plutocracy is higher and holier than democracy.

I believe in war as a cunning method to enable ME to make money out of a nation's sorrow and loss.

I believe in any superstition that will keep the masses, the "lower" classes, and all laborers humble and content with their lot.

I believe in the old political parties, for I own them body, soul and estate.

I believe in vested rights, special privileges and class legislation for plutocrats, and in government by injunction for the workers.

And it came to pass when Col. Wiseman had finished these sayings the common people did murmur one to another, saying, "To 'ell with capitalism, 'I God, we'll vote for Socialism."

P. S.—But again it came to pass that some of the common people who had the longest ears (more like jackasses) heard not and who had eyes, saw not, and then also did they murmur, saying one to another: No, Socialism will destroy our rented homes, and make us divide up the jobs with the big guns and destroy our religion by making us practice it, and for us and ourselves we will continue to vote for the creed of capitalism. Selah!

THE POLITICAL SITUATION.

The political situation in this county from a working class view-point is indeed very bright. The Socialist Party is securing new recruits at every meeting, the average amount of Socialist literature being distributed is increasing from week to week.

As one man said last week "I have tried all the other parties, including the Bull Moose and things are no better. I am going to work for Socialism and see if that will solve the problem."

And thousands of others are thinking along the same line. The Capitalist Press is unable with all their power to much longer stem the rising tide of revolt against oppression and intolerable conditions.

The working men and women are determined that next fall they are going to place their own class in power in this locality, and then see the difference in the manner in which industrial problems are met and solved. They will be solved in the interest of the workers, rather than the shirkers.

LOCAL, STATE, NATIONAL

Local Columbus meets every Wednesday evening at Federation Hall, 121½ E. Town St. 7:45. Secretary C. J. Welsh, 191 Belvidere Ave. Pay dues at your Branch organization or at this office, 108½ South High Street, or at meetings of Local Columbus. Attend the meetings and always see that your red book is stamped to date.

LOCAL

Comrade Creel held a very successful series of meetings last week. Local Columbus can recommend his services to any local.

Quite a few comrades have not settled for "Globe trotter" Sub cards they pledged themselves to sell. It is important that this be done at once in order that this matter can be closed up immediately.

NATIONAL

Socialists at Yonkers, N. Y., seeing the large number of unemployed workers in that vicinity, started an agitation in favor of a six-hour day in all trades and abolition of overtime.

Still ianother School Board member has been elected by Socialists in New Jersey. At a special election in Leonia, N. J., last week, the Socialists won one of the three seats to be filled.

New York, Brooklyn and Jersey Socialists are going in for ball playing this summer, having formed a Socialist League. Red caps and socks will, of course, be worn by the ball tossers.

When Socialists were elected to office at Edgewater, Colo., the old officials refused to turn over the books of the city. They had got the notion into their heads that they owned the town. Appeal was made to the courts which decided for the Socialists.

Another great victory has been won by the Socialists of Germany, who carried the district of Borna in the special election just held and send their 111th member into Parliament to take the place of a Conservative. The Socialists lost the district at the last general election by the narrow margin of 23 votes in a total of 26,000. This time they win by over 1,600 majority.

When one of the capitalist daily papers of Butte, Mont., charged the Socialists with extravagance the latter published an itemized statement of the expenditures of the last three administrations. These showed that the old party administrations had spent an average of $908,076.44 a year, while the Socialists spent $830,024.73, though they had a much greater work to accomplish and a bigger city to care for. The old gang politicians were preparing to make their usual re-election attacks on the Socialists, but this has taken the wind out of their sails.

Early and incomplete returns of the general election for members of Parliament in Argentine Republic, South America, indicate that the Socialists have swept the principal city of Buenos Aires, captured seven seats in Parliament and increased their vote to about 100,000, or double that of the former election. Meager reports from the country as a whole show that there is also a Socialist increase in the popular vote in other places, but perhaps no new seats are won.

Los Angeles City Council has just passed resolutions broadening the street-speaking district and to erect a stand at a central place for the convenience of those who desire to hold meetings. Councilman Fred Wheeler, Socialist, was chairman of the committee that prepared the recommendations, which were adopted unanimously. How much easier it is to secure concessions when the workers have a man on the inside of the legislative halls than to depend upon head-cracking and public opinion to get conditions.

Royalty has its troubles. It is cabled from London to a New York paper that the real reason for the hurriedly arranged visit of the Prince of Wales to Norway and other continental countries was the discovery by the King and Queen of certain clandestine visits by the Prince to the poorest parts of the east end of London, of the suddenly developed interest taken by the Prince in socialism, and avowal by the Prince of his agreement with some of the most startling doctrines of the Socialists, and his close association at Oxford with a group of young men who ardently desire to see the existing social structure greatly altered. The report goes on to say that the Prince and several other young chaps disguised themselves as laborers and visited quarters in Shoreditch and Hoxton, where police are compelled to travel in pairs, and since his adventure there have been several gatherings of Socialists at Oxford in the Prince's rooms. The cable adds, reassuringly: "None of the Prince's new friends are in any way dangerour conspirators, but are merely a group of young men filled with what an Oxford don describes as 'a rather exaggerated sense of their duty toward their neighbors.' The great fear of the King and Queen is, however, that the Prince may become infected with socialistic ideas at an impressionable age which might prove difficult to aradicate later."

THE DISSATISFIED MULE

By H. V. Hatzel, of Jamestown (Pa.) Democrat

I haf a mule mit great big ears,
He lives to me next door,
For dere I haf a stable built
Against my grocery store.

I gif him oats, I gif him corn,
Und all vat mules can eat;
I haf a blanket for his back,
Und shoes brotect his feet.

His saddle fits him all around,
Like paper on de wall,
I take it off vensfur he gets
Inside his whitewashed stall.

His bed is made of stubble straw,
So in winter he don't freeze;
In summer he looks the window oud
Und enchoys the efening breeze.

I brotest him tight, mit lock and key
De door he cannot pass;
Uf I did not, dot foolish mule,
Would get oud on the grass.

He works from morning till in night
I do not let him stop;
So long dot he behaves dis way,
He never lose his chob.

I didn't hear him grumble once,
He minds me as I like;
"Brotection" makes him satisfied,
He doesn't want to "strike."

Vot for do I brotect dot mule,
Und gif him dings vot's goot?
Vy stroke his ears and pat his head
Vich looks like gratitoot?

I tell you vy, if you keep still,
Und don't say it oud of school,
I gif "brotection" efery time,
Because I ride dot mule.

It was so in de Faderland,
I find it yet dis day,
He who brotects, gits hold de reins,
Und makes de mule obey.

My mule is like some workingman
Who gets a chob to pull,
Or has a saddle on his back,
So his "dinner" pail gits full.

Who votes de ticket efery time,
Whose heart is full of charity
For all the loafers riding him,
Who brag of "our brosperity."

If my old mule had half de sense
Vot workmen dink dey's got,
He'd lift his legs und take good aim,
Und kick my damn brains oud.

"Vy don't he kick?" some people say,
"Und get oud on the grass?"
My mule don't know to help himself,
His fader was an Ass.

WORKERS SHOULD DISCRIMINATE.

As the sole spokesman of the working class in Columbus, "The Socialist" feels called upon to mention the motion picture film exhibited last Sunday at the Lyceum Theater, entitled "The Workman." Generally speaking any movie film which deals with a strike is pretty sure to idealize the strike breaker, and picture the poor workers being deprived of their "freedom of action" by a big, brutal "walking delegate." The American film producing syndicates all seem to be "inspired" by the interests who love the scab (while he is scabbing) and hate the union man. Consequently it is a great and agreeable surprise to see a picture play which really depicts, in some degree, the sufferings which many a striker actually undergoes in every great strike, in order to remain loyal to his brother workers, and the nasty tactics employed by the corporations in order to divide the ranks of the workers—these being well known among union men, but seldom making their way into the movies. Things must be different in some other countries, for the film referred to (produced by the Swedish Biograph Co.), while not free from the usual beautiful employer's daughter features, actually treats working class solidarity as a virtue rather than a crime. The workers should learn to discriminate with their nickles and dimes between the picture shows who have decent films and those who run the great-American-scab-hero variety of bunk.

SOCIALIST JINGLES.
WHY OUR FLAG'S RED.

The worker's flag is red
Because our blood is red.
The Indian, Sioux or Crow,
The frosty Esquimaux,
The Turk and Japanee
Are all akin to me.
And have red blood, you see,
That's why our flag is red.

THE MODERN MAID.

"Where are you going, my pretty maid?"
"I am going to vote, fair sir," she said.
"And whom will you vote for, my pretty maid?"
"For Socialism, sir," she said."
"Then I'll not marry you, my pretty maid."
"Did anyone ask you, sir?" she said.

LYDIA LOCKETT UP-TO-DATE.

Lydia Worker lost her handbag
Lydia Shirker spied it.
Nothing but her carfare in it,
And a wee bit lunch beside it.

UNDER THE MACHINE.
(Apologies to R. Kipling.)

The man beneath the harrow knows,
Exactly where each toothpoint goes.
That's why he wants to swat the skirkers
Who preach contentment to the workers.

$1650 PER DAY TO PAY INTEREST ON CITY DEBT.

The capitalist officials of this city are certainly a deserving set of hard headed business men.

This is what they have handed the citizens of this city. They have piled up debt after debt until today it costs $1650.00 per day to simply pay the interest on the bonds.

Sixteen hundred and fifty dollars per day interest graft gone to the bankers and idle parasites who do no useful work.

This is the beautiful profit system the old parties stand for. Enough paid out in interest every day to build a working man a home, or if properly applied to build maternity hospitals, recreation grounds, beautiful boulevards, and provide work for the unemployed.

It now goes to buy poodles, wine suppers, and diseased dukes for our most exclusive families

How long do you intend to stand for this sort of thing? Why not vote for a change in the system.

STAY AWAY FROM ST. PAUL.

The following resolution has been passed by the Socialist Party of St. Paul to be published in all Socialist and Labor Papers.

To the Workingmen outside of St. Paul:

We advise you to be aware of the false advertisement in the press to the effect that there is plenty of work here that will require 40,000 men, skilled and common laborers, this spring at good wages. The real fact is like other industrial centers—we have hundreds of unemployed who are unable to get jobs of any kind. The object of the whole deal is to take a mean advantage of the millions of unemployed so as to strand them here, thereby making them desperate so they would work for much lower wages than the rates paid now, which is far too low to meet the high price of living, at the same time it would be a blow to Unionism, as the Commercial Interests want to put the city on an open shop basis.

So beware! All the bosses want is profit, and the best way to get it is to get workers fighting for jobs, which has a tendency to destroy Unionism. Therefore, stay away and save yourselves much worry and misery.

TOM J. LEWIS,
J. W. MARTIN,
JULE J. ANDERSON,
Committee.

SOCIALISTS CUT PRICE OF ELECTRICITY

The Ohio Socialist administration of Hamilton, Ohio, has announced a reduction in the price of electricity furnished by the municipal plant so that in the future the rate to small consumers will be 6 cents per kilowat hour. In addition to furnishing electricity, at this rate the municipal plant furnished $30,000 worth of street lighting to the city for which no charge is made.

Why Catholic Workers Should Be Socialists
The Knights of Columbus and the Catholic Church have started upon a nation-wide campaign against Socialism. We must fight back with the weapon of education. Mary E. Marcy has written a booklet suggested by an attack in "The Live Issue," (Catholic) on her article in the International Socialist Review. In it she shows why Catholic Workers Should be Socialists, and answers the Catholic arguments on wages and profits, "free love," reforms, war and patriotism, the class struggle, strikes, private property, confiscation and religious freedom.

COLUMBUS FEDERATION OF LABOR VOTES MORAL SUPPORT TO THEIR BROTHER WORKERS

Last Monday evening the Columbus Federation of Labor voted their moral support to their fellow workers who are now in the clutches of Judge Samuel L. Black, because they did their duty by their own class as they saw it.

The workers are not slow to realize that when one of their class is accused of a crime, that it is the duty of every worker to come to the rescue. Past experience with the courts in this country have taught the workers that they must be ever on the alert to rescue their brothers, who dare to stand up for justice.

Revolutionary Chain Makers Take Action.

The following resolution has been adopted by The Franklin Lodge of Chain Makers:

Resolved: That The Franklin Lodge of Chain Makers demand if the charges against Samuel L. Black are proven, that he be removed as Judge of the Juvenile Court by the Common Pleas Judges, and that we urge the circulation of the petition for his recall as Judge of the Probate Court and further that we hereby authorize $10.00 paid to the Defence Committee to assist the four Socialists who are arrested to assist them to make a proper defence.

Committee of three.
RICHARD SEEFELDT,
CHAS. A. CUNNINGHAM,
FRED. H. PAYTON.

The jury in the case has been drawn and consists of the following: Owen Curry, Boilermaker; J. M. McDonald, retired; J. W. Reed, Printer; Leo Lindenberg, Pres. Colo. Brass Co.; H. W. Frillman, former County Recorder; L. K. Brown, Law Student; Simon Fought, retired; Bliss Magley, student; Clyde S. Reed, Optician; A. J. Hatch, Accountant; D. W. Hubbel, White Haines Optical Co.; W. A. Legg, Insurance Agent.

The case will start Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

The Socialist will be published as a daily starting Tuesday or Wednesday. We want boys and men to sell these papers. The evidence of the day before will be published just as is given on the stand. No other paper will do this, and in order for the people to know just what is going on it is necessary that these papers be given a wide circulation.

Boys can easily make $2.50 per day while this trial is on. Call at this office at once and leave your name, and we will assign you a district.

With supreme confidence in the working class for whom we are fighting; with a conscience as clear of wrong as any citizen of this republic, with facts back of us that cannot be controverted, we go into this trial unafraid.

Whether victory and freedom, or defeat and imprisonment, means little to us, in the end. We are only a small unperceptible atom, cast onto this planet by a higher power.

It is that we want to see the children of the future, guarded, guided and protected, and only by calling the attention of the people to injustice can they right the wrongs.

COMRADES, YOU MUST HELP

At this time, while the trial of Comrade Bates is on, practically places all the responsibility of getting out the paper on me. You know it is impossible for one man to look after the advertising, write editorials and do the hundreds of things necessary to putting out the paper each week.

Since Comrade Bates was arrested practically all his time has been put in looking after the case, which places all the work on me.

Were we a wealthy corporation it would not make so much difference, as we could hire some one to do the work, but you know this is a working class paper, and it is always very near the edge financially.

The only thing left for me to do is call on you comrades who are interested in justice and interested in seeing this paper live through this crisis to start working for subs. I ask you to come in and buy $1.00 worth of sub cards and sell them. You can spare $1.00. You can work for subs. You can help bear the responsibility of financing the paper until Comrade Bates' trial is over.

You owe it to this community, in the interest of a free press, to help bear the burden.

I cannot bear it alone. The sub list the past week has been very unsatisfactory. Start it on the climb again. Now is absolutely the best time to get subs. People want to hear the truth about Judge Black and Bates. No other paper will print it.

I will not tell you how low our finances really are. We have given you a paper at 25 cents that, for the amount of support we have had, we believe is fully worth the money.

I have been in this movement for years. I love it. At its shrine I worship, but under capitalism it is necessary that we live under capitalism and pay as we go.

Will you help? Will you buy $1.00 worth of sub cards now, sell them, and in this way finance the paper and carry the news to the toiling millions? You have responded in the past. What will your answer be now?

Fraternally,
F. E. JOHNSTON.

BOYS WANTED!

To sell "The Daily Socialist," $2.50 per day assured. Apply this office, 108½ South High Street. Main 2629.

If you workers really know what you want, why don't you vote for it?

As capital is the product of labor, why is it that none of it belongs to the laborer?

Adulteration is only another form of competition.—John Bright.

Competition is the instrument by which, in the commercial world, one man possesses himself of the fruits of other men's labor.—Merrie England.

Every man who wishes work he cannot get is living proof of the failure of capitalism.

It has been the experience of many that one can learn infinitely more about Socialism by being on the inside looking out than by being on the outside looking in.

The Socialist is the only kind of a working man who can look into the future with a smile on his face. He knows that Socialism is inevitable and that it will bring him peace and safety they give the republicans a shaking up, and when the republicans get in power they give the democrats a shaking up. And they both give the people a shaking down all the time.

Dignity of labor is what the capitalist spell-binders are wont to spell on around Friendly Day—the day you vote your rights away. But, honestly now, where does the dignity come in? Do you fellows see any dignity in a bent back, or any glory in a perspiring brow? Can you see any honor in wearing greasy, copper-rivited rags? Do you see anything very delectable in picks, shovels, and calloused hands? Dignity of labor is all bushwah. If there is so much dignity connected with labor, how comes it that the fellows that have been living off labor these many years don't try and get next to this dignity? We say, cursed is the brow that must sweat for hire, and the back that bends to a master's burden.

A French professor says the skin of future man will be greatly different from that of today. Unless we change our voting methods, future man won't have any skin.

There is not a single right accorded man that should not be accorded woman. And the Socialist Party is the only political party that is willing to give her that right.

A thing is true or untrue of itself, no matter who denies or affirms. A fool gets mad. A wise man analyzes and explains. The truth is knowable to those who seek.

If the workers would swallow less of the old party orator's dope around election time, they might swallow something more substantial during the rest of the year.

Socialism is for one thing at a time—and that one thing is the complete overthrow of the profit system by the Co-operative Commonwealth.

Edison says four hours is enough sleep. So is four hours enough work, and if the workers would vote for themselves that's what would happen. Even the capitalists would only be obliged to work four hours per day.

Better economic conditions produce better men and women, and better men and women make a better world to live in. Socialists are working for better economic conditions. Won't you help?

The best place to cast an old party ballot is on the dump heap.

Socialism is the science of getting what you earn.

Giving the poor tramp a chance will not take away your opportunity. It will merely make it so all will have opportunity.

Capitalism is private ownership of the industries; private ownership is competition; competition is strife; strife is terrorism; terrorism is war; war is hell. This hell is voted upon the workers by the workers themselves.

Accounted For.

Katie—Well, youse a sight! I t'ought you said you could lick Mickey standin' on yer head an' wit' bote yer hands tied behind yer back.

Patsy—So I could, but de slob wouldn't fight dat way.—Puck.

The whole history of civilization is the history of millions of men toiling to produce wealth for the express purpose of payng the tax-collector and meeting the state enforced demands of landlords, capitalists and other masters of the sources of production.

Even the brute knows enough to flee from the hand that smites it, but the foolish working man creeps back on all fours to the feet that spurns him and calls it blessed, refusing to understand that clubs and guns are the arguments of the oppressor and that prisons are the safety vaults of tyrannical officialdom.

The hand of greed must reap a harvest of death.

A hungry man or an uncharte woman are a reproach to society.

The way to mend the bad world is to create the right world.—Emerson.

Socialism does not mean the collective ownership of all things, but only those of a public nature. It means the private ownership of those things which are for private use. Let that soak in.

The patriotism of the rich fairly burns and sizzles when their property is in danger, but they never fight. They generously leave that to the workers who have no property. And lots of the poor noodles are only too willing to do their fighting.

When the democrats get in power in his old age. What has this present system to offer the worker in his old age? The pay of the worker now is only a bare existence and work is becoming more insecure every day. When the worker begins to slow down on account of age the capitalist tells him that he must get a younger man in his place. The old man is thrown out of work and he has no income. Starvation or the charity of relatives in your old age is all that capitalism offers to the average worker. Do you like it? Are you going to vote to continue the present order, just because some plute tells you that "Socialism will break up the home?"

Sweet bye and bye is well and good, but, by heck, don't forget that you are entitled to some of the sweets now and then.

Inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto me.

Socialism is a menace to grafters, thieves and crooks. That's why so many oppose it

HEAVY GAINS IN MILWAUKEE

The Socialists elected nine aldermen this year instead of seven two years ago. The vote of their opponents fell off almost 6,000, as measured by the highest vote received by any candidate.

The one item of consolation for the enemies of Socialism is found in the fact that the Socialist vote for mayor fell off 1,000 compared with that of two years ago. But two years ago the mayor received the highest number of votes of any candidate on the Socialist ticket.

This year Bading led the "nonpartisan" ticket, as he did two years ago, because the entire strength of the forces of capitalism was centered on him.

If the highest vote on the Socialist ticket is to be used as a measure both years, then the Socialist vote is more than 2,000 greater than was ever cast in Milwaukee.

Socialist Increase Heavy.

Measured by the solid Socialist vote cast at the presidential election in 1912, the Socialists have increased their vote more than 10,000. There is no possible way of twisting the vote that can bring any comfort to the idea that Socialism is not stronger in Milwaukee than ever before in its history, and that is the one thing that is a menace to capitalism and a promise to labor.

Seidel carried more wards this year than two years ago. The consolidation was complete this year; the 1,062 Prohibition votes of two years ago have disappeared, and went largely to swell the "nonpartisan" strength. The percentage of the total vote cast by the Socialists is much larger than two years ago.

A study of the ward results carries much less comfort to the "nonpartisans." In every instance the anti-Socialist candidates are elected by smaller majorities, while the Socialists not only succeeded in turning defeat into victory in the Twenty-fourth Ward, but increased their majorities in all other wards where successful with the single exception of the Tenth, where the Socialist majority this year was 10 less than in 1914.

Runs Far Ahead.

In the Seventh Ward the Socialist candidate is 610 ahead of his opponent as compared with five two years ago. In the Twelfth, Grass leads by 211 as against 11 for Meyer two years ago. Krzycki increases his lead from 26 to 213 in the Fourteenth.

On the other hand, the "nonpartisan" majority in the Second is cut from 935 to 731; in the Eighth from 574 to 116; in the Sixteenth from 1295 to 881; in the Nineteenth from 772 to 365; in the Twenty-second, from 687 to 493. Everywhere the Socialist vote is creeping closer to the crumbling wall of opposition, and foretells the near approach of the time when "nonpartisanism" will be submerged.

In calculating all these votes it must be remembered that more than 8,000 voters were stricken from the register this year because of the law requiring "second papers" for foreign born voters. It is a very conservative estimate to say that probably 1,000 of these were Socialists, which would account for the entire decline in the head of the ticket.

DEFENCE FUND BENEFIT

Next Tuesday evening April 21st the Defence Committee will give an entertainment and dance at Socialist Hall 121½ E. Town Street. There will be dancing and entertainment features. A light lunch will be served, and every one will be assured of a jolly good time. Admission will be free.

It is the duty of every comrade and friend to come out and help make this a big affair, and incidentally to help boost the defence fund.

Don't overlook the date. Next Tuesday evening, Socialist Hall, 121½ E. Town Street.

ZIMPFER TO CONGRESS

The Socialist Party has chosen for its standard bearer comrade Fred P. Zimpher for eleven years a member of organized labor and for six years a member of the Socialist Party.

Zimpher made such an excellent record in council the two years he put in there, that not one word could be said against him. Organized labor is beginning to get behind him, and he is being assured that plenty of support will be forthcoming for our entire ticket.

And why should not the workers support their own ticket? If they ever expect to be free, if they ever expect to lift the heavy burdens from their shoulders, they must do the job themselves by sending their own class to office to look after their own interests.

Every Sub you put on means that much more education will be carried on between now and election. Put all the workers on the Sub list.

Under the profit system the incentive is to produce poor goods and to pass them off for good ones.

It is not claimed that you will not have to work under Socialism— we said you will not BE worked.

SHOE WORKERS TOLD TO "WALK THE STREETS"

A few weeks ago, The Boot and Shoe Workers Union organized the cutters at the C. & E. plant on W. Mound Street.

According to the men the average wage prevailing for this class of work has been between $12.00 and $14.00 per week. Besides the men would not be employed the year round and their average yearly wage scarcely exceeds $500.00.

Accordingly Monday evening April 6th the union cutters decided to ask for an increase in wages. As is usual in such cases there was evidently a traitor in camp who informed the company, and on Thursday evening, April 9th, the foreman came around and laid off all the cutters (except two girls) with the brutal remark that they could "walk the streets awhile."

The men report that the company says they will not have any union men in the shop.

As an example of the miserable condition of the shoe workers one of them works in the shop, his wife works in another shop, and he does cobbling at night in order to keep the wolf from the door.

The company claims the men were laid off on account of no work and they will take the men back one at a time as they see fit.

The shoe workers went to the "Dispatch," "Journal" and "Citizen", with their troubles before coming to their own press, but the capitalist press gave them the merry "ha ha." When will the workers wake up and build up a big press of their own, and not go around begging the masters for crumbs. Imagine the Wolfs who own both the Dispatch and Journal and also the shoe factory giving their slaves a chance to tell their story to the world.

Only the Socialist press dare stand by labor, but labor steadfastly refuses to stand by The Socialist Press, preferring to put their money into capitalist papers to help enslave themselves.

About half of the union men told to "walk the streets" by this foreman are married men. Thus does the class struggle go merrily on.

Think of a so-called "free" country, where the bread and butter is taken out of the mouths of little children, because their fathers dare to ask for a small portion of the product of their own hands.

The time is coming and that soon when the shoe workers will no longer be compelled to beg for an existence, they will go to the ballot box and vote for it and then with the other workers—take it.

"FOR GOD'S SAKE, SOMETHING TO EAT"

A comrade who is in business in this city was last week approached in his store by a man who asked him for something to do. Our comrade had no work for him and told him so, when he began to beg piteously for work, stating that he had had nothing to eat since the day before.

Our comrade then told him to wait and he would get him something to eat, which he did.

He says the man ate like a famished wolf, fairly swallowing the food whole.

Our comrade then asked the man his politics and he stated that he was a Republican.

It has gotten to the point where the Socialists not only have to furnish all the brain food for the fools who vote themselves into starvation, but we have to furnish them with stomach food as well.

Why didn't this good Republican go to the Republicans he voted for and get a job? Why don't all you Democrats who are out of work go to Wilson, Bryan, Karb and all these fellows and get work?

Don't hold up your hands unless you have the answer.

But then "them Socialists" are crazy—they are agin religion, and the home. Surely they are. Karb, Wilson, Bryan and the whole "shootin' match" of our eminent respectables say so, and that makes it so.

It would never do for all the workers to vote for their own class, and put their own class in office, because if they did, they might end this terrible struggle for an existence. SEE.

RIOTS OF UNEMPLOYED IN JUDEA CONTINUE.
JESUS OF NAZARETH LEADS HOBO ARMY ON JERUSALEM.
(Missa Impressa Associata.)

Jerusalem, March 26.—Yesterday the army of the unemployed, under the leadership of Jesus of Nazareth, reached the outskirts of this city, camping in Mt. Olive Park. The army is composed of a miscellaneous assortment of hoboes, ragmuffins and weak-minded enthusiasts, who have left devastation in their wake among the olive plantations of the countryside. Their leader has himself set the example by destroying fig trees.

This afternoon a crowd of loiterers, tramps, hoodlums, and idle curious, together with a few worthy unemployed of this city, streamed out of town, along the upper boulevard, to Mt. Olive Park, where the hobo general made a highly incendiary address, urging his followers not to work for a living, to despise the virtues of frugality and thrift, and to look to the king, the property owners and capitalists for sustenance in ease and idleness. The police did not interfere, but detectives were among the listeners, taking notes and ready to quell any disorders that might arise.

(Editorial in the Tribuna Diurnalis, March 26.)

With regard to labor troubles in Judea and this applies with equal truth to similar troubles throughout the empire, one can only remark on the inefficiency of the local police departments. Unemployment is, of course, a serious and pressing problem. Those who honestly desire work should be provided for by the state. But, on the other hand, rioting, destruction of property, inciting mobs to violence and lawlessness should be sternly repressed. Order is the sine qua non of any form of government. Softhearted sympathy is misplaced, especially in the present case, as we are informed from reliable sources that the Judean rioters belong chiefly to the class of professional unemployed and habitual roustabouts; that their leader himself has been a persistent, if talented, vagrant for years, his only employment having been in his youth, as apprentice in a furniture factory where his persistent idleness earned him an early discharge. We suggest to the authorities of Judea that a few good applications of the constabular rods now will save a great many casualties later on.

(Tempora Romana, March 27.)

RIOTERS MARCH INTO JERUSALEM, LOOT TEMPLE, EXPELLING LICENSED STALL HOLDERS AND PRIESTS WITH VIOLENCE.
JESUS STILL AT LARGE.
(Missa Impressa Associata.)

Jerusalem.—March 27.—Yesterday, after a night of haranguing and incendiary oratory in Mt. Olive Park, Jesus of Nazareth led his army of hoodlums into the city. After marching through the heart of the town without police interference, they broke into the Jewish temple, and, under the guidance of their leader, who took the most active part in the proceedings, upset all the licensed stalls, drove their owners out, destroyed whatever property they could lay hands on, entered the sanctum itself, expelled the officiating clergy, and even threatened the life of the Rt. Rev. Simon Caiaphas, high priest, who happened to be in attendance.

Jesus of Nazareth threatened to wreck the temple completely, the priests with death and the complete destruction of the building. His almost insane ravings were replete with vile vituperation of all those in authority and of the hard working citizens of the empire, and exalted to the skies, as usual, the thriftless and the improvident.

(Orbis Noctalis, March 27, Gladiatorial Extra.)

JESUS ARRESTED—ARRAIGNED BEFORE FEDERAL AUTHORITIES. REFUSES TO GIVE BAIL.
(Missa Impressa Associata.)

Jerusalem, Wednesday, March 27.—This evening Jesus of Nazareth was arrested on a warrant issued by Hon. Pontius Pilate, judge of the Federal District Court, charged with inciting a riot and burglarious entry. He was taken on information lodged by a Mr. Iscariot, a former adherent of the hobo king, but who had become alienated by the latter's lawless conduct.

It is said Jesus was found carousing with his boon companions in a local tavern; wine was flowing like water and the self-styled prophet was enjoying all the delicacies of the season while his dupes were encamped in the rain, without food or shelter, in the public parks.

The prisoner will be held for trial tomorrow. He refused to furnish bail.

(Tribuna Diuralis, March 27.)

JESUS RELEASED BY FEDERAL JUDGE—REARRESTED BY LOCAL AUTHORITIES—CONVICTION SURE.
(Missa Impressa Associata.)

Jerusalem, March 28.—In the Federal Court today Jesus of Nazareth was discharged by Hon. Pontius Pilate, who held that the federal authorities had no jurisdiction in the premises. The Rt. Rev. Simon Caiaphas was one of the chief witnesses. Jesus refused aid of counsel.

Judge Pilate ordered the prisoner's release on the ground that he had not been guilty of a breach of the federal law, and that the case was one for action by the local authorities.

Immediately after his release, Jesus, with some of the ringleaders of the mob, was rearrested by the local authorities and committed to jail pending his trial in the state courts.

(Editorial from the Tempora Romana, March 29.)

We are shocked by the cowardly evasion of his plain duty in the premises on the part of Judge Pilate. He should under no circumstances have allowed legal technicalities to prevent him from carrying out his clear duty to the public. Jesus of Nazarus, the leader of the disgraceful Jerusalem riots should have been summarily punished.

At any rate, we are glad to see that the local authorities of Judea were so prompt to act. When the history of the present wave of lawlessness, crime and hysteria which is sweeping across the empire, comes to be written, theirs will be the credit for the first brave stand in the face of a dangerous manifestation of public sentimentality.

A CLOSED INCIDENT.

A final period has been put to the activities of the Judean Agitator. Had the government taken the riots in hand earlier, the climax might have been less tragic than eventually proved to be the case. But what else could we have expected from the present vacillating administration? It is to be hoped that the vigorous action of the Judean authorities will do much to check lawlessness and mob rule throughout the country, leaving the sober, hard-working part of our population to pursue their occupations in peace and soon, we hope, in prosperity once more.

As for the problem of the unemployed, which still persists, although to a less degree than we have been led to believe, that should be made a subject of immediate inquiry by a Federal Commission.—The Masses.

DEMOCRATIC PARTY SPLIT WIDE OPEN

(Socialist Party Press Service.)

The passage by the House of the Panama Canal Tolls Repeal bill marks the surrender of that branch of the Democratic party to the American and British transcontinental railroad interests. If the bill gets through the Senate, it means that the entire United States Congress is proved to be dominated by the interests of these railroad interests which have been using the cry of "international honor" to fool the public about their real purpose. International honor, like patriotism, is the last refuge of a scoundrel.

The Panama Canal should be free to American ships because it is a public work, built for the communistic purpose of affording transportation highways for the people. The fact that the ocean-carrying business happens to be in the hands of private capitalists of course gives the chance for these who want this graft to continue to shout that a free canal means ship subsidy. What if it does? Does not this Government subsidize in exactly the same way the traffic on the rivers and harbors of the country, which have been opened to navigation by means of public money? Do not national, state, city and country governments subsidize every driver of horse and carriage, every owner of an automobile by providing goods roads free?

The answer to the Panama Canal row which has at least had the good effect of splitting the Democratic party, is that the Government must go into the ocean carrying business itself. When the Government owns the ships, the Canal will as a matter of course be free to those ships.

At present the ocean carrying business is almost wholly in the hands of the shipping interests which are identical with the railroad interests, as was shown by Taft's Commissioner of Corporations. Outside of this gigantic monopoly there exists a few, a mere handful, of actually independent shippers. But the "shipping Trust" and the "Railroad Trust" are for all practical purposes one and the same.

Now, the railroads want the free tolls revision repealed. This fact no one denies. Since the railroads and the shipping interests are one and the same, this means that the shipping interests want to pay tolls. This fact also no one denies. The only shipping interests which do not want to pay tolls are the few independent lines which are fighting the railroad-owned interests.

Therefore we have the amazing spectacle—amazing to the ignorant, innocent bystander—of the shipping interests asking the Government to charge them for going through the Panama Canal. What is the explanation of this burst of generosity?

The explanation is simple. The shipping interests, which are the railroad interests, want to pay toll because it will tend to keep up the rates through the Canal and will thus tend to keep up the competitive transcontinental railroad rates. The railroads are now engaged in begging the Interstate Commerce Commission to let them raise the rates. At the same moment we find the railroads disguised as ocean carriers, begging Congress to let them raise their water traffic rates. This is the entire Canal controversy in a nutshell.

The solution of the Canal difficulty is a free canal and Government ships. No one in Congress mentions this fact because they are all interested either in hiding their real thoughts or else in calling each other names so as to defeat each other for election next fall.

A free canal and public ships is the answer.

EAST SIDER'S BRAIN IS MUDDLED

The following appeared in "The Citizen" open forum column last week:

"Editor Citizen:—The letter in Tuesday's Citizen about the administration councilmen fighting refuse collection has made me look up some of the other things. On looking them over I am struck by one thing. That is, that the administration forces are against anything where the money is to be paid out to laborers employed directly by the city, such as refuse collection, recreation department, etc. But they are always FOR anything where the work is to be done by awarding a public contract to some individual. They never oppose such things. I can't see the reason for this difference.

"EAST SIDER."

This citizen is beginning, like thousands of other citizens, to wonder why it is that old party politicians refuse to do anything for the people.

Whenever the time is propitious for something to be done by the city in its collective capacity for the people as a whole the money can never be found. When, however, money is wanted to furnish some private contractor with a nice big slice of public pie, ways and means can always be found to get the money.

If someone should mention Socialism to "East Sider" he would probably "throw a fit," and like most of his illustrious citizens swear that Socialism and Socialists believed in "breaking up the home," etc.

He could not understand that Socialists want to have the municipal government carry on all public work, and cut out the private contractor.

Were "East Sider" a councilman for a short time he would soon find out why old party politicians always vote against the people and for the private contractor. About the first big deal that came along he would be "approached" and if he was not solid he would be made "solid" if possible.

It is true that some old party politicians are honest and honestly attempt to serve the people, but they are hopelessly in the minority, and besides they believe in the system of Capitalism, which is decaydent and has seen its day and can no longer serve the needs of the people.

Only Socialism, sweet, glorious Socialism, can solve the problems and set the people free.

THE FEAR OF THE MOB

Fear of "mob dominion" rides some people today like an incubus. They behold the uprising among the multitudes as a muddy proletary surge sweeping over the world. And a great terror is got hold upon them.

But never was fear more groundless. The workers will not be dangerous to this present civilization until they have learned to hang together. And when they have learned to hang together, they will have reached a loftiness of mentality that will make them not a destroying force, but rather a contribution to civic society. Visitors to a lunatic asylum are frequently impressed by the small number of guards. And ask: "Is it not dangerous? because the inmates, suddenly combining, could easily overpower the keeper." But lunatics cannot combine. In deepest sense, the inability to combine is the distinguishing mark of lunacy. The moment they become civilized enough to pull together, they would be sane, and would not need a keeper. So long as the multitude is incapable of government, there is no danger that they will obtain the government—in that unadult stage they are too busy sharpening knives against each other.—From "The Carpenter and the Rich Man," by Bouck White.

The editor probably did not know that Bouck White is a Socialist. If the editor of The Dispatch considered the article worth publishing, it might be in place to inquire by what measure of reason he publishes such an article in one column and in the editorial column uses all the English at his command to disconcert the workers, keep them in ignorance, and to keep them at all times divided.

It is true they are like sheep driven dumbly to the slaughter by their capitalist masters, and they know not where to turn.

At times they strike madly at their persecutors by voting one gang out to find that they have voted another gang in.

And yet on the only point where they can get together and hang together, namely the political field in the Socialist Party, the Capitalist Press keeps them scared within an inch of their miserable lives.

HYPOCRISY OR IGNORANCE, WHICH?

Our Reporter.

On the 2nd inst. the writer was in the Juvenile Court (of course not in Columbus), was an observer, not only of the dealing out of both justice and injustice, but also of the self-appointed advisers to the man who has the last guess.

I could but compare the physiques of those who either because of their hypocritical ego or through their dense ignorance of the law of environment seem to consider themselves the "sure enough" appointed of God to stand as both the inflictor of the grevious wounds (favoring exploitation) and yet the fool quack healer of them.

I say, to compare them with the emaciated victims who were brought before the bar, who almost to a person plainly showed the dire effects of malnutrition, while the "holier than thou" bunch, dressed, some in bald heads and some in bonnets, seemed to have waxed fat through the unequal distribution of the things of this world, and who yet claim "crowns of glory beyond the azure skies."

I could but wonder who made those bonnets; what self-cussedness caused those bald heads; who made the clothes they wore; who felled the trees, sawed the lumber, build the houses that sheltered them? Who raised the food and put it in their silly mouths? And yet this beautiful Sunday morning, April 12th, that whole crowd of fakirs will go to a church and not only fool one another that they are striving to follow Jesus, but are so silly that they think they fool Him, who, by the strength of His terrible, awful, mighty will, can send worlds hurling, swinging, revolving, going, returning—never out of place, being born, burning liquid, cooling, solidifying, finally made homes for man.

Those silly creatures think they can play their foolish frauds on Him. Say, folks, you have another guess coming! Great Scott, sillies, seems you can't fool even poor me; how are you going to "get by" Him? Say, honest, how do you expect "to work the gate"?

Say, you elderly looking girls, who huddled in a bunch at the chief officer's left, how did you like that exhibition of the double code of morals? Now if one of you and I should "love fondly, but too well," I could go home with pa, and you for loving me, could go to the pen. Now, honest girls, isn't that nice (for us boys)?

Each and every home broken up, man sent to workhouse, woman to mad house, child to convent, and all to hell.

Let me tell you, girls, every bit of this hellish business is caused by the capitalist system of government. How in the name of common sense can a man producing ten dollars' worth of goods per day, only getting two dollars per day, buy his family the necessities of life, which in this 20th century should be the full sixty dollars a week? Why should you have flowers on your hat, and they have soiled stringy ribbons on their "tacky" old hats? Tell me, don't stand there looking (or trying to look) so foolishly sweet.

I am in earnest. I adore grand womanhood. I put your sex on a pedestal high above mere man, and I want your answer. Why don't you read our philosophy, emulate that queen of women, Francis Willard—she was a Comrade, a Socialist! If left to us, justice would be yours. You would vote. But read, then vote! Your hearts, I can't quite force myself to think, are bad. I had a mother; say, sisters, think, think hard, and sweep away the dense clouds of ignorance that befoul your minds as to the ethical and economic sense and conditions of society.

As to him who presides at said court, I have nothing to say. He is beyond recall!

In Baden, Germany, the Socialists have again introduced their insurance bill in the State Legislature. At previous sessions it was defeated by combinations of the Clerical, Liberal and Conservative parties. Recently the Socialists have been busy stirring up the Christian unions and regular organizations as well as other bodies, with the result that the old parties are seeing new light and the bill may go through.

If being without money or a job is a crime, then there is about six million such criminals in the United States and every one of them is a walking interrogation point to capitalism, asking "What are you going to do with me" the only answer that capitalism knows is the jail, parish road, and farm. What is your answer? The Socialist answer is contained in its platform, get one and learn the answer.

BOYS ON THE JOB.

The Boys at the Federal Glass Co. are so busy taking out "strike breakers" that they havn't time to turn around. The warm weather is stirring up the "scabs" and they long to "hit the trail."

From indications if the Company don't settle soon they will be up against it right. The Union is holding solidly together, are all getting good strike benefits and are prepared to fight to the limit, in their usual quiet orderly manner.

TO MY FRIENDS and COMRADES
The Leader, 1000 Mt. Vernon Ave., Five Hundred pairs Pants for men at prices to suit.

The boob working man who votes the capitalist ticket and expects to be benefited thereby, is a fool.

If you are a checker player you know that there is such a thing as getting your "men" in such a position that no matter which way you move you lose. This is the position capitalism is in today—every move capitalism makes, it loses and Socialism wins.

Leonard Olson, the Seattle Socialist who was denied citizenship papers by United States Judge Hanford because of his political beliefs, is now a full-fledged American and entitled to vote, the District Attorney of Washington having made the motion to dismiss the case. It will be recalled that Hanford resigned under fire when Victor Berger, while a member of Congress, started the ball rolling to investigate the career of that emminent jurist. It was generally known that Hanford had a bad record, and charges were freely made that he was a mere tool of corporations Hanford had only a short time to serve when he would have been retired on a life pension, which he lost by retiring.

HELEN KELLER IN MILWAUKEE.

The blind and deaf genius, Helen Keller, spoke on Socialism in Milwaukee, Wis., a few weeks ago. Especially interesting is her talk with the local reporters.

A reporter asked her the following question:

"Why do you believe, that woman suffrage will advance the interests of Socialism?" Helen Keller's answer was:

"Because Socialism will grant to women their full rights and guarantee their proper place in the world. The women will grasp this trust at once and will loyally support the cause of Socialism."

"We cannot print that in our papers," confidentially remarked the reporter to his fellow scribes, who clustered around the blind girl in the expectation of getting some "copy" for their capitalist papers. "What interests you most beside Socialism?" proceeded the reporter.

"Socialism includes all and everything," came from the lips of the blind seer.

"But do you not have some hobby, some fad? It is so ladylike? Do you not collect something?"

"Oh, yes! I do that. I collect ideas. Try it yourselves. Ideas are fascinating and very scarce," retorted Helen Keller.

"What is the latest idea in your collection?"

"Socialism."

"What is your most ardent desire in life?" she was asked next. With more earnestness than before, Helen Keller replied:

"My most earnest desire in life is to serve my comrades as a good public speaker. I would like to abolish child labor, poverty, ignorance and remove from the world their causes."

"How would you celebrate Lincoln's birthday?" asked further the reporter in a vain endeavor to make the blind girl talk on some other topic than Socialism.

"I would celebrate Abraham Lincoln's birthday by removing the chains from all (wage) slaves."

"Why is it not an accomplished fact?" retorted the questioner. "And if so, why not?"

"Because there are so many blind people in the world," stated she and for the first time during the interview, laughed at her own sally.

"What was the hardest task you ever undertook?" ventured to query another reporter.

"The hardest problem I ever tackled was the mastering of Karl Marx's teachings. Try it yourselves. It helps to sharpen one's wits."—Wisconsin Vorwaerts.

ADMONITION.

By Eleanor Wentworth.

It was in a dimly lighted, shabby hall on Halsted street, Chicago's unclean caldron, seething and bubbling with a hundred thousand wretched existences—that I caught that fleeting glimpse of Maria, in all her splendid, youthful strength. She was standing at the end of the hall, under the lone gas jet, which flickered up and down as it was buffetted by the spring breeze that came through an open window. Without success, the miserable light attempted to illumine the faces of the score or more girls whom she was addressing.

Though the gas failed to throw its gleams on the faces of the audience, it played and flickered about the girl on the rostrum in a subtle way that emphasized her every mood and expression. One moment it veiled her eyes with tenderness and showed her mouth soft and smiling. The next moment, as she drove home some statement with clenched hand and extended arm, her whole being quivering with the intensity of her earnestness, it threw a bright gleam on the dark mass of her hair, reflecting the lightning flashes in her black eyes and revealed her mouth as a stern, straight line.

In her quaint Italian accent she was pleading with her auditors to organize and upbraiding them in no uncertain terms for working at lower wages than men.

"You girls, who work the whole day on the job, why you no have pride? Why you live in houses where there's bad lights lika dis? Why you live on streets where orange shells and peanut shells of da fruitman and all da dirt from cars and wagons stays for months? Why you no go to schools and learn some of da nice tings of da world? Why you wear such ugly clothes? Why you work for less money than the man and taka da man's job away from heem? Why you go to the boss-lika sheep, afreid—afraid of the wolf?

"Itell you it is because you no tink and act lika women; you tink and act lika children. Because you no stand together. Because you no organize." Each accusation she emphasized with an energetic gesture of her bare arms.

"And you know what you do when you work for less wages than the man—when you take away the man's job? I tell you dis. When you work on da boss's machines for less than the man, you build up a wall with those fast-going machines between you and the man you some day hope to marry. Every time the wheel goes round the wall goes higher. A man no can marry when he have no job. When you take his job you take his life, his happiness, his love—and yours too.

"You kick what you do when you work so fast for the boss and for less wages than the man?" The gas flickered low, dimming her countenance with shades that made it infinitely sad. "Those strong, beautiful little babies you feel in your soul, crying for you, taking hold of you always; those little babies you are waiting for as the dark night waits for the bright sun—you kill them before they come to your hands. Women no can feed babies when they make bad wages. They no can have strong babies when they're weak from working. Nothing, nothing, can you have when you're weak and poor."

The breeze came through the window in a sudden gust momentarily forcing the gas higher. The gleams through the figure of the girl into prominence and heightened the darkness which was her background. For a brief moment she stood there, leaning slightly toward her audience, tense with earnestness, her eyes burning with the force of her message.

"I tell you," she cried, "you must organize." If you no organize ——"

Then the light went out completely and in the darkness I heard only the wind sighing through the window.

WHERE DO YOU STAND?

The time has come for the throwing aside
Of the masks and pretexts 'neath which men hide.
There's a conflict on, and year by year
The lines of cleavage become more clear.
There's a conflict on between the few
Who absorb the wealth, and the ones who do;
And this question is coming straight home to you;
When you stop your hedging and show your hand;
Where do you stand?

There are only two sides in this bloodless fight,
And only one of those sides is right,
Between the two grows too wide a breach
To safely stand with a foot on each.
However we seek to dodge or evade,
The ranks are formed and the issue made;
It remains for each to decide where he
Would wish to bestow the victory.
On the side of Greed or Humanity.
The time has passed for evasions bland,
Where do you stand?

And the forces of justice make this demand:
Our fathers fought in the days of yore;
'Tis the issue that Moses had to face,
When he lead from bondage the chosen race;
'Tis the issue Christ met on Calvary
When He died in the efforts to make men free—
On the one side selfishness on the throne,
On the other the toilers who want their own,
And the forces of ustice make this demand?
Where do you stand?

Welsh, 191 Belvidere Ave. Pay dues at your Branch organization or at this office, 106½ South High Street, or at meetings of Local Columbus. Attend the meetings and always see that your red book is stamped to date.

LOCAL.

The Y. P. S. L. is growing by leaps and bounds. It meets every Friday evening at Socialist Hall, 121½ E. Town St.

The 14th and 15th wards meet every Tuesday evening at Evans Hall, Third and Michigan.

STATE.

The count of the votes cast on the first ballot for nominations of Socialist candidates for the State ticket was completed at Columbus on Tuesday, and a second ballot will be necessary to make the choice. The vote received by the principal candidates who will stand on the second ballot, was as follows:

Governor—Scott Wilkins, St. Marys, 542; J. S. Coxey, Massillon, 462.

Lieutenant-Governor—M. J. Hynes, Cincinnati, 450; W. C. Treece, Findlay, 368.

Secretary of State—M. J. Beery, Crestline, 322; Newton Wyckoff, Martins Ferry, 181.

State Treasurer—S. Neubauer, of Cleveland, 305.

Attorney-General—Allen Cook, Canton.

United States Senator—Joseph E. Robb, Cleveland, 497; Ed. Hitchens, Cincinnati, 478.

The Socialists of Dayton and Hamilton leave nominated Comrade F. G. Strickland for Congress. It is almost an even bet that Fred will be elected, if the old parties stay divided.

The Central Committee, of Local Cleveland, voted to endorse the woman suffrage petition circulated by the woman's suffrage party and directed the City Executive Committee to prepare and forward to the state office a resolution calling upon the State Executive Committee to immediately begin a state-wide campaign for State ownership of the mines of Ohio. The latter action was taken in support of the miners, who are locked out at present because they demand that the mine owners operate the mines in accordance with the State law abolishing screens. For years the operators have been paying only for the mining of coal which would pass over a screen of a certain mesh. The screen served as a method of stealing part of the wages of the miners.

NATIONAL.

The Socialists of Milwaukee, won a magnificent victory at the recent election, not only did they pull down the non-partisan majority from 12,000 the figure two years ago, to 6000 this year, but they elected 11 councilmen and the City Attorney, Daniel Hoan, for a four year term by a majority of 600. There is no power on earth can keep the workers from capturing the city next time from mayor down to dog-catcher, and never again will a capitalist administration be heard of in that city.

In the Seventh district of Oklahoma the Socialists have got a notion that they are going to elect a member to Congress next November. They will hold 26 three-day encampments in the district during the summer and there will be oratory galore during the gatherings.

The proposition to cancel this year's meeting of the National Committee S. P., slated for May 10, at Chicago, has been defeated by a vote of more than two to one.

Eastern Socialists are finding considerable amusement in a passage that they have dug out of a book written by Father Bernard Vaugham, a well-known English priest who recently made a lecture tour of this country for the purpose of smashing Socialism. The paragraph is on page 250, in a book entitled "Socialism From a Christian Standpoint." It not only upholds confiscation, but actual theft, and reads as follows: "A starving man who cannot otherwise obtain food may walk into a baker's shop and help himself to as much bread as is necessary to support life. He may do so openly or secretly and in neither case will his action be one of theft. What is more, the baker has no right to prevent him, for the starving man is taking what he has a right to; to prevent his action would be an act of injustice. It may be illegal and he might be taken up for doing so, but though it might be a deed against the law, it would not be a sin against God. Man, then, has a right to live. He has a right to procure the necessities of life. He has a right to satisfy his absolute needs."

An echo of the bitter campaign that closed in Milwaukee Tuesday will be heard in the Wisconsin Courts for some moons to come. Mayor Bading charged that the former Seidel administration corruptly received $500 from a local mercantile firm for vacating an alley and that the money had gone to the Socialist headquarters. The Free Press and the Germania-Herald printed the charge, and Emil Seidel and Victor Berger promptly brought suits for libel against Bading and the two dailies. Bading made a number of other nasty insinuations and then tried to modify his statements, and other suits are likely to follow.

Now the milk supply of Melbourne, Australia, is to be municipalized. The peddlers are howling "socialism!" "destruction of incentive!" etc., etc. Other citizens are retorting that the incentive to water milk and rob the people ought to be destroyed, and that they have suffered enough from private enterprise in this line of business.

The United Press has discovered that "socialism is waning" in Michigan because the S. P. vote fell off in several places and two councilmen were defeated in Kalamazoo. But the U. P. evidently did not discover, for instance, that the old party machines were combined against the two Socialist Councilmen at Kalamazoo; that for more than two years the J. P. Morgan and other corporative interests at Flint, have been quietly blacklisting and driving out of town all active Socialists and union men who could be reached by the plutocratic conspirators; that Republicans, Democrats and Bull Moosers announced publicly at Hancock and Calumet that they would stand by the Ferris-McNaughton combination of labor-crushers, and that hundreds of Socialists and miners have left the district. Undoubtedly "socialism is on the wane," temporarily at least, in places where all powers of capitalism are invoked to coerce and victimize those working people who imagined that they had a right to believe as they pleased politically in this land of the free and home of the brave.

The capitalistic press of Germany is mightily displeased at the success achieved by the Socialists in increasing their party membership during the recent "Red Week" canvass. The fact that over 117,000 new dues-paying members were secured, as well as more than 68,000 new readers for Socialist papers, in only about 260 out of 400 districts that have so far reported has created consternation among the old parties. Perhaps those stupid American papers that ever so often inform their more stupid readers that "Socialism is on the wane" in Germany will, in time, learn the significance of those figures.

The Houghton (Mich.) Mining Gazette, one of the organs of the mine operators, is deeply concerned at the unusual rush of workingmen in that district to take out citizenship papers. "Personal observation shows," says the Gazette, "that the great majority of these applicants wear the button of the Western Federation of Miners and that many wear Socialist buttons. Undoubtedly the questions asked by the Congressmen have impelled these people to seek citizenship, and it is not unlikely that through this means the Socialist vote in Houghton county will be increased greatly."

YOU AND YOUR MONEY.

The working class have a great power which they can use to their advantage. The name of that power is purchasing power. The workers can use this wonderful power, to their advantage, or they can use it to their disadvantage. In order to make this absolutely perspicuous, the following explanation is given.

It is a well known fact that almost every person or persons, who are in business, do more or less advertising.

Many of the business people advertise exclusively, in the Capitalist paper's; while many other business men and women advertise liberally in the Socialist's papers; and are very well pleased with the results they get. The thing that every laboring person should give deliberate thought is this: A toiler who patronises those who advertise exclusively in the Capitalists' papers is spending his or her money to the disadvantage of themselves and the laboring class; simply because CAPITALISM is opposed to Socialism. The toilers who spend their money with the men who advertize in the Socialist papers are spending their money to the advantage of themselves and the laboring class being represented by the Socialist Party standing firm for the working class.

This publication is the property of the working class and their allies.

Many of the laboring people are using their purchasing power to promote Socialism. Its principles being the by-laws of veritable justice and social economy.

We, the members of the Department of Welfare ask every laborer to give this matter consideration.

The farmers work longer hours, but they are not forced to inhale the fumes of deadly drugs, poisonous minerals, and breathe the dust-laden air of improperly ventilated factories.

Capitalists find it cheaper to get men to take the places of those they kill, than to spend money on ventilation, sanitation and safety appliances.

Competition gluts our markets, enables the rich to take advantage of the necessities of the poor, makes each man snatch the bread out of his neighbor's mouth, converts a nation of brethren into a mass of hostile, isolated units, and finally involves capitalists and laborers in one common ruin.—Greg.

No wonder the masters are wealthy. Every day you fellows work you sell them a $12 article for about $2.00. You should be treated for the simples.

When you workers learn to use your brains at the ballot box, you'll lose your chains. Won't that be awful—for the masters?

If war is conceded to be hell, is not an armory an institution erected and maintained to the glorification and for the perpetuation of hell?

A Capitalist Joke.

War is capitalism's "joke" on the workers.

The workers do all the fighting.

The capitalists reap all the benefits.

One group of workers shoots down another group of workers and it is called—patriotism. The capitalists furnish all the guns and ammunition—for a profit—and it is called—good business.

Why Catholic Workers Should Be Socialists

The Knights of Columbus and the Catholic Church have started upon a nation-wide campaign against Socialism. We must fight back with the weapon of education. Mary E. Marcy has written a booklet suggested by an attack in "The Live Issue," (Catholic) on her article in the International Socialist Review. In it she shows why Catholic Workers Should be Socialists, and answers the Catholic arguments on wages and profits, "free love," reforms, war and patriotism, the class struggle, strike, private property, confiscation and religious freedom.

The Common People Have Their Day in Court

When the case of Comrade W. C. Bates, whom Judge Black had arrested for criminal libel, was called in police court last Monday, the prosecution opened their case by putting on the stand T. J. Madigan, Thomas A. Curran, and Bert Walters, to prove they bought papers of Bates.

This was not a hard matter to prove, as Bates would have admitted that part of the transaction, and saved the learned counsel for Black all the "brain fag" of securing this very important testimony from his three witnesses.

At this point, the State rested their case, and Attorney Tompkins for Bates made a motion to dismiss, as "there is no evidence here that he (Bates) caused that to be printed; there is no evidence here that he conspired with anyone to have that printed. There is no evidence here showing that he had anything to do with, or along the authorship of that article—he is an absolute stranger, except he sold some papers, he had a right to do, etc. Mr. Curran stated he knew that was the Socialist Headquarters, and that is why he went up there, to get a copy of the paper. Not a word by Mr. Bates or anybody else, connected Bates with the publication of that alleged libel, or with the authorship of it any more than it connects me or any lawyer. Inasmuch as the publication refers to public officials to-wit: The Probate Judge of Franklin Co., Ohio, before the case can be convicted, it must be shown that it was made by him, or made maliciously. In this, may it please your honor, these publications are permitted to be published; they are privileged publications, unless the publications are done maliciously. No, there is no evidence of malice—you can not presume in a criminal case; you have got to prove it affirmatively. It is not like a civil action, every element of the crime must be proven beyond a reasonable doubt, etc. I respectfully submit the State has not proven its case, and has not brought the acts of the defendant, Bates, anywhere within the criminal statute."

The Court overruled the motion, and the case adjourned until 2 o'clock.

The first witness called by Bates was Judge Black. As the Judge was not on hand, Wm. Green, a city fireman, was called. He testified he knew Judge Black but had never hauled him home in a cab while he was a cab driver.

The next witness was Moses Schlessinger, who brought with him Deed Book, 347, showing deed transferred from Florence E. Cockell to Samuel L. Black for north-half of lot No. 6, Lincoln and Goodale addition.

At this point, Judge Black being present, was put on the stand, and testified that he had been Probate Judge about 11 years, and Juvenile Judge since 1905. He stated that he is a member of the Masons, Odd Fellows, K. of P., W. O. W., Elk, and Redmen. He denied being a member of the P. S. of A., but admitted he was a member of the Broad Street Methodist Church.

Wendall Waremiller, who runs a saloon at 151 West Maple street, next testified that Judge Black owns the building in which he conducted his saloon. He said he did not know in whose name the property was recorded.

John Gardner, who resides just a square north of the above saloon property, testified that Judge Black owns the saloon property. He said he was acquainted with Judge Black, that he had seen Black in the saloon. He said he had lived in the house over the saloon, and that he had seen Judge Black in there often taking a drink.

He testified that during an altercation with Black about the rent, Black threatened to send him and the "old lady" (his aunt, 72 years old) to the work house.

Jenny Holly, an aged, gray haired lady, took the stand and testified that she knew Judge Black; that he came to the place where she lived, with John Gardner (her nephew) the day after she was seventy-two years old, after rent; that she told him to see Mr. Gardner; that Black then applied a vile epithet (too vile for this paper to send through the mails) to her, and that at different times he came up and abused her. That she asked him to fix the vent pipe, which he promised to do, but would not, and when she asked him to do it on his next trip, he said: "I will fix it when I get d— ready."

Anna Quimby, a practicing attorney, was then called to the stand, testified that a man, whose voice she recognized as that of Judge Black called her up over the phone, last Saturday evening, and asked her if she was coming down to testify in the Seibert case. She said she told him she seen by the daily papers, she was to be a witness, and it was probably the Seibert case they were after. She testified further that Black then told her he was going to fight her, and that he was going to make it hard for her, if she came down and testified. She said Black told her he would fight her as long as she lived if she testified against him, and she told him he was doing too much fighting, and that he wanted to cut that out and quit fighting the people. Black replied, "he did not care, he would fight anyone." On cross examination, Miss Quimby stated she was not a member of the Socialist Party.

Grace McCoy, a young girl, 18 years of age, was next called, and testified that on January 7th, while the officers were after her brother for fighting, the entire home was pulled; part taken to the County Jail, part to Detention Home, and part to City Prison. She stated that no charge was ever read against her in court, and that she is detained against her will at the home of the "Big Sisters," 83 N. Twentieth street, this city. That where as all her wages of $5.00 per week formerly went to help support her aged parents, that now she must pay the "Big Sisters" $2.50 per week.

She further testified that the night she was taken from her home, Officer Van Gleason, put his hand on her chest, and otherwise took liberties with her.

This closed the case for the day, and when the case was called Tuesday, it was put over until next Monday, as Judge Black's father-in-law is dead.

Practically the entire proceedings of the case, exactly as given on the stand was published in our last Wednesday's edition. If you have not yet received one of these copies, call and get one. Price is 5c. They are not mailable.

The Socialist will continue as a daily, beginning wtih the resumption of the trial. Get it from the boys on the street, or at this office. The Common People are having their day in court.

INSULTING THE AGED

Human nature can stand a great deal. The people are prone to suffer great wrongs and oppressions, without a murmur, but when an aged woman, like Jenny Holly (72 years old) is called the vile names, she testified under oath, Judge Samuel L. Black called her, and which has not been denied, to this date, (Black's attorneys not even cross-examining her) it is high time that the respectable and honorable citizens of this country, arise in their might and demand that this man be removed from the bench.

When a judge of a court of justice has lost all sense of respect for gray haired womanhood, when he is seen in saloons, drinking, and will so far lower himself in the scale of manhood as to apply a vile epithet to an aged, gray haired woman, it is indeed high time for the people to speak, and that quickly.

It matters not, now, what disposition the jury makes of the case, whether they find for, or against Bates, Samuel L. Black, as a political factor in this community is dead.

The American people, although slow about some things, are quick to avenge an insult to one of their mothers, especially when she is gray haired, and 72 years of age, on the verge of eternity.

Th rumblings are being heard on every hand, and soon there will be a change in the way things are handled in the Probate and Juvenile Courts of Franklin County.

FLINT GLASS WORKERS WIN

IN BUFFALO

The Flint Glass Workers of Buffalo, unable to longer stand the terrible conditions under which they were compelled to work, went on strike, April 6th, and on April 12th, the Company signed up the Union Scale and the boys went back to work as Union Men. The report, as given in the Buffalo Socialist, follows:

"The strike of the Flint Glass Workers at the Frontier Glass Works has ended in a complete victory for the men in spite of the fact that the News did all it could to discredit the men.

The men went on strike on Monday, April 6th, for better wages and working conditions. On the second day of the strike, W. F. Cattell, organizer of the A. F. L., took charge and organized the men with some others from other glass works into a local of the American Flint Glass Workers with headquarters in Toledo, and on April 9th, Organizer Luckock arrived from Toledo. In company with W. F. Cattell and the newly elected president of the Local Union, they immediately went into conference with Mr. Murray, the proprietor of the glass company which resulted in a contract being drawn up calling for a strictly union shop and all men to be taken back to work on Monday, April 12th.

The glass workers are to be congratulated on their splendid victory, but we urge them to guard their organization and keep it intact or else they will be in constant trouble, and the fruits of their victory will be short-lived."

This must be highly gratifying to "scab herder" Kimes of the scab sheet Glass Budget, published in Pittsburg, who spends his time spewing out venom against the Union Glass Workers, the soles of whose shoes, they would not allow him to kiss.

This is the same Kimes, who for the past several weeks has been sending us his "scab sheet" with articles marked, attacking the boys at the Federal Glass Works on Innis Avenue, ye editor, and others.

In the future, Kimes, it will not be necessary to mark the articles, as we assure you that everything in the old "scab" sheet is read by us, and that for a purpose, we are trying to find a single line therein with a glimmer of sense, or an article that shows it was written by any one with the intelligence of a stone-age man. To date, we have failed to find any such line, and we trust you will continue to send the old scab along, as we thoroughly enjoy seeing what a jack-ass a being can make of himself for the privilege of licking the dirty boots of a master class.

The workers at the Federal are all good substantial citizens—are conducting a peaceful, orderly strike, and are bound to win. They are standing together in solid array, while their opposition is crumbling in the dust. It will soon be over, and the plant Unionized.

THE DEFENCE FUND

Last week an attorney told the writer that for the first time in years, attorneys practicing in Black's Court, were getting anything like a square deal. He said it was, undoubtedly, because Black was trying to curry the favor of the attorneys.

The Socialist is happy and proud, not so much for the attorneys, as for their clients, to think they now have a chance of getting some justice.

The Socialist also thinks that the attorneys should show their appreciation by contributing freely to the Defence Fund.

It is true that a great many attorneys have already given something, but there is much more yet to raise. Your name will not be used, if you desire to help.

If you are not an attorney, and want to help out, send in your contribution; makes no difference how small.

This is a fight for justice, in which every American citizen is interested. Send all contributions to W. E. Bues, Room 68, 101 N. High st.

Don't go to bed tonight until you come in and buy some sub cards.

It isn't the court that is sacred, but justice.

Justice is to give every man his own.—Aristotle.

Only ignorance relies on physical force. Intelligence appeals to reason.

In spite of greasing things with oil in Mexico considerable friction remains.

On with the good fight. Keep the subs rolling in.

A Pluto's word is as good as his bond if there is any way he can sneak out of either.

Capitalism makes men work so hard for a living they have no time to get it.

Socialism is for free access of all people to a chance to work and make a living.

Those who work hardest receive least; those who do the least get the most. That is capitalism in operation.

The Socialist, 25c for 46 weeks in clubs of 4 or more. Even his Satanic majesty would subscribe at that figure. Somebody put the gentleman on.

To "cuss" Socialism helps to a discussion of it, and discussion boosts it always and everywhere.

Socialism ceases to be a dream when the workers become wide awake.

Why do you fear to read and weigh political ideas different from those you hold?

The wages of Capitalism are blamed small.

Dynamite is not half so dangerous to privilege as an idea is.

War! What for? Have you fellows ever given it any thought?

Awake ye sons of toil and strike for industrial freedom and social justice. Use the ballot while it is yet your privilege.

A shower of new brains would be a blessing to some working men who continue to dodge paying dues and voting the ticket of the masters.

Some wise guys tell us that we appeal to class hatred and then in the very next breath will tell us that there are no classes in this free land of Rockefeller and Company.

How would you like to see yourself and everybody else guaranteed free and equal opportunity to work and enjoy the full product of their toil? That's Socialism.

Prayers may get one justice in heaven, but if the working class expects to get any justice down here, they will have to vote for it. Do you fellows that pray one way and vote another, get this?

It is claimed that the people of the United States are Christian people. But are they? Everywhere one looks there is murder or preparations being made to commit murder. Surely the sword, gun or cannon cannot be classed as emblems of Christianity.

Mr. Workingman, think; it isn't as painful to think as to starve. Try it and see.

The present capitalist system, by its own inherent nature, must infallibly work its own downfall.

Some people are natural born fools. Others acquire it by reading editorials in the big daily papers.

The education of a Socialist does not end when he joins the Socialist Party. It only begins there.

Show me the man who owns your job and I will show you the man who owns your life.

It is a mistake to say that capitalism doesn't produce anything. It does. It makes paupers, prostitutes, and criminals.

Yes, we believe that God made man, but we have often wondered if He wasn't ashamed of some of the excuses that pass for man.

When a worker really thinks he becomes a Socialist. When a Socialist thinks, he hustles like the mischief to bring Socialism.

We are told to be grateful to the rich because they give us work, yet look how ungrateful they are when we propose to do as much for them.

Man is the only creature that will suffer for food in the midst of plenty. The reason is, he has been taught respect for the law of the masters.

"I'd rather feel the lash and die
A fettered, driven slave,
Than reap the wealth that wrung a heart
Or dug a child its grave."

Some one has said that it requires intelligence to take a man into heaven. If that is so, then may the Lord have mercy on some fool working men, for if he don't, hell will be overcrowded.

If it were true that the Socialist party was opposed to marriage, but were in favor of everybody sloshing about with everybody else indiscriminately, one-half of the men voters of the old political parties would join the Socialist party before the next general election.

SOCIALIST PARTY DENOUNCES WAR

When this is written it looks as if War, horrible black War were inevitable.

War! What for?

To avenge the insult to the flag? No. Read the following from the editorial column of the Columbus Dispatch, last Sunday:

"We do not care a copper about Huerta or his salute. But the interests of this and other countries cannot be left at the mercy of persons claiming authority, but showing no sense of responsibility or respect."

There you have it gentle readers. "They don't care a copper about Huerta or his salute."

Then why all this flub dubbery about the "salute"?

Socialists know that those lines are only too true. It is not salutes Wilson and his administration want. It is protection for the oil and other interests of American Capitalists that they want.

How much interest have you got down there, Mr. Reader? You don't own a foot of soil in the U. S., let alone in Mexico. Then why should you fight for Standard Oil, and get killed, and throw your family on the community? Let those who declare war, and want war, go to war.

SOCIALIST PARTY PASSES RINGING RESOLUTIONS.

Columbus, Ohio, April 19th, 1914.

To the President, Congressmen and Senators of the United States.

Gentlemen:

Whereas, it is very evident that certain interests of this country are determined to cause a war with Mexico upon the pretext that Huerta, Provisional President of Mexico (unrecognized as such by this country) refuses to apologize for insulting our flag, and,

Whereas, it is very plain that by his refusal he hopes to save his head, by the United States interceding at this time, when victory seems perched upon the banners of the Constitutionalists and the independence of the people of Mexico seems assured for the first time in its history, which the capitalists of the United States who have vast holdings in Mexico desire to avert for economic reasons, and,

Whereas, every means to create public sentiment in favor of such a war has been exploited without success until now when they hope by the alleged insult to our flag, to throw the working-class of this country at the throats of the workers of Mexico with whom the workers of this country have no quarrel, and,

Whereas, we do not believe the alleged insult to our flag justifies the United States Government in declaring war and sacrificing the lives of our fellow-workers, which would be inevitable, and,

Whereas, our country has on numerous occasions, gracefully averted such a conflict, desired by certain American capitalists and their agents in Mexico, upon the ground that we do not recognize Huerta as President of Mexico,

Therefore be it resolved that inasmuch as our flag has been insulted, apparently as a trick to embroil this country in war, I, the State Secretary of the Socialist Party of Ohio, in the name of 88000 voters and many other citizens of this state, emphatically protest against the declaration of such a war, and,

Be it further resolved that we demand of the congressmen and senators of Ohio that they use their voice and vote against such a proposition if submitted to them; and we further demand that in case war is declared that the President of the United States adjourn Congress and draft each and every member of the House and Senate voting for war, as soldiers to constitute a regiment, commandered by the President of the United States in his capacity as commander-in-chief of the Army and Navy and they be sent to the front at once to actively participate in subduing Dictator Huerta, and,

Be it further resolved that a copy of these resolutions be sent to President Wilson; and also a copy sent to Congressman Brumbaugh and Senator Pomerene to be read by them before their respective bodies.

Respectfully submitted,
O. G. Van Schoyck
State Secretary of the Socialist Party of Ohio.

WILSON ADMINISTRATION PERMITS MURDER OF 25 AMERICAN WORKERS ON AMERICAN SOIL, AND THEN YOWLS BECAUSE SOME OF HIS HIRED MURDERERS GET SHOT IN MEXICO.

On the first page of Capitalist papers last Wednesday, was the report of two battles. One was where four marines were killed in the seizure of Vera Cruz, Mexico. The other, where 25 miners and their families were killed by the Militia in Colorado. In the Colorado battle, including those killed, or missing, are four women and 13 children. No glaring headlines are given the miners in the Capitalist Press. Why not call out the Government troops to stop the murder of American citizens? Arise! Workers, arise! Demand that until every worker and his family in America is protected, that our policy be, hands off Mexico.

COME ON WITH SUBS

Wars and rumors of Wars! The world in a turmoil, strikes, lock-outs, and murders. The world is aflame with revolution.

Only the Socialist Press can save the world. To do it we must have more readers now, at once. Let's double the circulation next week. One sub from each reader will work wonders. Comrades from out in the state are holding up their end nicely. Don't be backward about how big a list you send in. The bigger, the better. Start the ball rolling up hill again this week. Scour your neighborhood Sunday morning for subs. Bring 'em in in bunches. If you can't get 4 or more, bring them in one at a time. THE MAIN THING IS TO BRING THEM IN. ON WITH THE GOOD FIGHT.

ALMIGHTY GOD! ENOUGH! ENOUGH!

Somewhere, I believe in Jules Verne' works, the hero is made to use the words "Almighty God! Enough, Enough!"

When we look about us and see the devastation and ruin, the wrecked lives, and thwarted ambitions of the people, caused by Capitalism, it causes us to think of these words.

Have not the workers had enough of Capitalism? Have they not been brutalized enough? Have they not been driven from piller to post long enough? Have they not been denied the good things of life long enough?

What is wrong?

When you are ill and the doctor prescribes a remedy, do you stand back and say that he is "opposed to religion." Do you say that he wants to "break up your home," because he is trying to cure you of your troubles? No, you gladly follow his advice, even to having your appendix cut out.

Then why do you balk when the Socialists prescribe a remedy for your social ills? Unless you workers get together, and that soon, you will be past all help.

We have certainly had enough of this system with its child labor, war, hatred, murder, and rapine. We are sick unto death of this daily grind for a mere existence. Nature has provided in plenty for all her children, and yet, her unnatural children choose to be at each others throats, rather than live in peace and security, where every one, even the humblest is well provided for.

Enough? Yes, we, the workers have had enough of this monstrous Capitalist system.

Almighty God! Enough! Enough!

LINCOLN SANDBAGGED

In the beginning of the Civil War, President Lincoln needed money to buy supplies, because most of the military equipment was in the south. He also needed money to pay the soldiers, so he called upon the bankers, who are always the first to hoist the American flag on Decoration Day and Fourth of July, but the bankers replied that it would cost him 35% for the use of their money, which money, however, was the property of the United States, and not that of the bankers, being only on deposit with the bankers.

Instead of Lincoln submitting to such a hold-up by the Philadelphia bankers, he promptly indicated that they "Could go to Hell," and that the United States Government would provide its own money as provided in the constitution.

[illegible] $450,000,000 in greenbacks, good for all debts, public and private, and let it be said here that it was this money that fought and won the Civil War, because that money enabled the government to immediately put itself upon a military footing equal to, and superior to that of the South.

However, in as much as this did not allow the bankers to plunder their (Patriotic) country with Usury, the bankers immediately got together and had passed a measure providing for what is known in history as the Exemption Clause, upon the greenback paper money, which changed this full legal tender money, good for ALL debts, public and private, to money that was simply legal tender for everything, except duties upon imports and interest upon the public debt.

The bankers having anticipated the situation previous to the breaking out of the Civil War, had already gathered in all the gold, so after the passage of the Exemption Clause upon the greenback, then when a man with greenbacks wanted to pay a duty upon an import, he had to go to the bankers and get gold, and for every dollar in gold he needed he had to give three dollars in greenbacks; likewise when the United States Government, itself, wanted to pay the interest upon its public debt, the very Government was compelled to go to the bankers and give them three dollars in greenbacks for one dollar in gold.

Under this arrangement (made by the bankers themselves) the bankers would take the three greenbacks, for which they gave only one dollar in gold, and buy government bonds, and then get their gold back from the government because the interest upon such bonds had to be paid in gold, and so on, have the banking patriots worked the financial jimmy and operated their shell game—even down to the present day.

DEMOCRATS UP A STUMP

SOCIALIST PARTY PRESS SERVICE.

Washington, D. C.

Democratic politicians are listening keenly to the voice of labor as it comes to them from the corners of the country, and this voice is demanding of them things which it is difficult for them to give. The immediate passage of the Bacon-Bartlett bill, exempting labor unions and farmers' organizations from prosecution under the Sherman anti-trust law is being asked as a necessary fulfillment of the platform on which the Democrats rode into office.

But Woodrow Wilson has set his mind against exempting labor unions from prosecution as trusts, and he will break with his party rather than change his mind. From a purely political point of view nothing better for labor could happen than for Woodrow Wilson and his party to split on the labor question. Already it is apparent that the House of Representatives is trembling on the verge of splitting with the White House, and the bi-partisan tory machine which in the Senate stands for the interests of capital, is preparing to kill the bill in that chamber.

The Progressives are flirting with labor in an attempt to gather up labor's votes when labor shall have seen the futility of trusting to the Democratic party. It is rumored that union-card men will run wherever possible as Progressive candidates in the congressional elections this autumn, for the purpose of drawing away from the Socialist strength. The Progressives are pointing with that pride which comes from the secure position of political idleness to their Chicago platform's delcaration that, "We favor the organization of the workers, men and women, as a means of protecting their interests, and of promoting their progress." When the Bacon-Bartlett bill is voted upon in the House, the Progressives will be found voting for it.

All these things add to the terrorism of the Democrats by labor. Scarcely mentioned in the news that comes out of Washington, is this one big fact—that labor has invaded not only the halls of Congress, but also the minds and selfish interests of Congressmen, to an extent never before supposed. Labor is holding a sword over the heads of Congressmen, who, unwillingly, and in order to escape alive, will have to obey.

If labor will but hold Wilson, who is the head of his party, and who can make Congress dance at his mere wish, responsible for the carrying out of the Democratic platform by exempting labor unions from prosecution under the Sherman anti-trust act, then labor will have demonstrated its strength in a manner that may force Wilson to act as it desires. If labor, after trying to hold Wilson responsible for the passage of the Bacon-Bartlett bill, should then fail, that failure must be laid at the door of Wilson, and at the door of no other one man. For, if Wilson had the conviction and the courage to ask for the passage of this measure, it would pass. If he proves not to have either the conviction or the courage to do this, he has confessed himself not the President of the working people of the United States.

CAN CAPITALISM BE REFORMED?

By Ralph Korngold.

The Reverend Father Augustine Ryan, D. D., in his debate with Morris Hillquit, in Everybody's Magazine, takes his stand for "Reformed Capitalism."

"Capitalism," he maintains, "is not all bad; in fact, with the evil eliminated, it is quite an acceptable system."

What Father Ryan fails to see is that one cannot eliminate the evil in capitalism without eliminating capitalism itself.

THE EVIL IN CAPITALISM IS NOT MERELY INCIDENTAL TO IT, BUT IS THE ESSENTIAL CONDITION OF ITS EXISTENCE.

To illustrate:

Every one will agree that unemployment is one of the greatest evils of Capitalism.

According to reliable authorities there are in the United States about one million unemployed in times of so-called prosperity. This number swells to five million and more in times of business depression.

Every one, I think, will also agree that few of the other evils of Capitalism can be successfully combatted so long as the unemployed problem remains unsolved.

Unemployment, besides being a prodigious national waste, is the fruitful source of poverty, vice, crime, insanity, suicide, drunkenness, disease, wife-desertion, inefficiency and slothfulness.

Every social worker, every charitable organization, could confirm this statement.

THE ARMY OF THE UNEMPLOYED, IS, HOWEVER, ESSENTIAL TO THE EXISTENCE OF THE CAPITALIST SYSTEM.

Capitalism cannot furnish permanent employment to all the people without committing suicide.

This can be easily proven:

If all workingmen and women were permanently employed, every strike would be won, inasmuch as there would be no "scabs" to take the places of the strikers.

It is immaterial whether a worker calls himself a Republican, a Democrat, a Prohibitionist or a Socialist, in the last analysis every worker wants the same thing, which is—ALL HE CAN GET.

I never knew a workingman, no matter what he styled himself politically, who would work for three dollars a day if he saw a chance to get four, or for four dollars a day, if he saw a chance to get five.

If, therefore, every strike could be won, the working people would keep on striking until they received the equivalent of the full product of their labor, and Capitalism would cease to exist.

The unemployed man, or rather the fitfully and irregularly employed man, the much despised hobo, wandering from town to town in search of work is, therefore, the cornerstone of Capitalist society. His urgent need, the wolf hunger in his eyes, that and that alone makes the worker submit to exploitation.

Says Gilbert H. Chesterton:

"If we simply ask what has been the main feature, the upshot, the final fruit of the Capitalist system, there is no doubt about the answer.

The special and solid result of the reign of employers has been UNEMPLOYMENT. Unemployment not only increasing, BUT BECOMING AT LAST THE VERY PIVOT UPON WHICH THE WHOLE PROCESS TURNS."

Capitalism, therefore, cannot be "Reformed" it must be ABOLISHED.

LINCOLN'S VOICE TODAY

"I see in the near future a crisis approaching that unnerves me, and causes me to tremble for the safety of my country. As a result of war, corporations have been enthroned, and an era of corruption in high places will follow, and the money power of this country will endeavor to prolong its reign of working up the prejudices of people until all the wealth is aggregated in a few hands, and the republic is destroyed. I feel at this moment more anxiety for the safety of our country than ever before, even in midst of war. God grant that my forebodings may be groundless.

"Monarchy itself is sometimes hinted at as a refuge from the power of the people. In my present position I could scarcely be justified were I to omit to raise a warning voice against the approach of returning despotism. It is not needed nor fitting here that a general argument should be made in favor of popular institutions; but there is one point with its connections not so hackneyed as most others to which I ask brief attention. It is assumed that labor is available only in connection with capital; that nobody labors unless somebody else owning capital, somehow by the use of it induces him to labor. Labor is prior to and independent of capital. Capital is only the fruit of labor, and could not have existed if labor had not first existed. Labor is the superior of capital and deserves higher consideration. I bid the laboring people beware of surrendering the power which they possess, and which, if surrendered, will surely be used to shut the door of advancement for such as they, and fix new disabilities and burdens upon them until all of liberty shall be lost.

"In the early days of our race the Almighty said to the first of mankind: 'In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread,' and since then, if we except the light and air of heaven, no good thing has been or can be enjoyed by us without first having cost labor. And inasmuch as most good things have been produced by labor, it follows that all such things belong by right to those whose labor has produced them. But it has so happened in all ages of the world that some have labored and others have without labor enjoyed a large portion of the fruits. This is wrong and should not continue. To secure to each laborer the whole product of his labor, or nearly as much, is a worthy object of any government.

"It seems strange that any man should dare to ask a just God's assistance in wringing bread from the sweat of other men's faces.

"This country with its institutions belong to the people who inhabit it."
—Written in 1865.

CHRISTIAN(?) HOWLS FOR BLOODY WAR

A representative of the lowly Nazarene, by the name of Rev. Wm. H. Woodring, pastor of the Eastwood Congregational Church, arose in his pulpit last Sunday and howled for war with Mexico, according to Capitalist papers of last Monday.

When preachers arise in their pulpits and demand that the working class go down to Mexico and shoot Mexican workers, and get shot in return, and when they attempt to justify the murder of human beings by laying it all onto God, and when they attempt to make the workers believe that it is the will of divine providence that they should shoulder a musket and fight for John D. Rockefeller, it is time for the workers to thrust a gun in the hands of these pious hypocrits, and defamers of the name of the lowly Jesus, and make them go to the front and do some of the fighting.

Did you ever hear of a preacher going to war? While the workers are out on the firing line, bleeding and dying an inglorious and ignoble death, the preachers are all at home praying for "the success of our armies," while the preachers on the other side are doing the same thing.

If the Rev. Mr. Woodring wants war, let him shoulder a gun and go. Will he do it, or is he too cowardly?

TANNENBAUM'S SPEECH

Frank Tannenbaum, who led a crowd of unemployed into a Catholic Church in New York, and asked that they be allowed to spend the night there, and who was arrested, given one year in jail, and $500 fine for so doing, upon being asked if he had anything to say, before being sentenced, made the following speech:

"There was once a person who said that society would forgive murder or arson, but that one thing that it would not forgive was the preaching of a new gospel. That is my crime. There is no instance in the world's history where the effort of the slave class to free themselves has been considered legal. I belong to the slave class.

"I am accused of participating in an unlawful assembly. I do not know of any assembly on the part of the working people that would be lawful.

"Why is there all this nonsense about bloodshed? The capitalist class sheds more blood in one year than the workers do in five.

"I have only one thing more to say. Before I was arrested I never knew anything about the police or courts. I was ignorant of all such things. From what I have learned since I have little respect for courts or law.

"It is my last trial. If I am ever arrested again there will be no more trials. These juriors are members of your class. They are capitalists in miniature. My crime was that of a starving man who tries to steal bread."

Judge Wadhams listened attentively to Tannenbaum, and said he felt sorry for him in not having embraced the opportunities of this country.

"The jury has properly found you guilty," the judge continued. "It is not for the purpose of administering vengeance, but for the protection of society that, in the judgment of the court the extreme penalty should be imposed."

Tannenbaum is an Austrian and said he is a waiter by trade. He said his home is in a cell in the Tombs.

There is something wrong with a system under which the average working man has to die in order to hand his family a few thousand dollars life insurance. Socialists want to establish a system under which a man may live and enjoy the few thousand with his family. It should not be necessary for any man to live in poverty all his life in order to provide for his family after he is dead.

Socialism would knock the very daylights out of your religion.

How could you believe in the gospel of "peace on earth, good will toward men," if you didn't engage in bloody wars? How could you practice the Golden Rule, and at the same time grant your brother the same equal right to live that you had for yourself? How could you believe in the brotherhood of man if you didn't have a master class to ride on your back? It's simply as clear as mud that Socialism would completely annihilate religion.

Do you know the working class all over the world—the producers of all wealth—are the most ill-fed, ill-clothed, ill-housed, possess least and produce the most? And why? Think about it, and you will find it is because the profit system produces two economic extremes—the very rich and the very poor. The rich are the economic masters of the poor, the poor are the wage slaves of the rich.

Any intelligent man who toils, ought to have sense enough to see that a system that will give the master and his family, who do no useful work, silks, satins, automobiles, diamonds, fast horses and mansions, and the fellows who do useful work, patched pants, wheelbarrows, brass jewelry, plug horses and rented shacks, is a system that makes of him a slave. But the darn fools seem to look at it in another way.

SEND FOR IT.

There is printed in this city a sheet called the "Ohio Journal of Commerce." We have looked the sheet over carefully and have failed to find the Union Label anywhere displayed. The object of the sheet is to knock Socialism into seventeen kinds of cocked hats. "The Socialist" has decided to help 'em do it by giving them some free advertising space. On the front page of their issue of November 22nd, we find the following advertisement, which we herewith publish, for which no bill will be sent:

Here We Have
a discussion of Socialism that will interest every reader. It is profusely illustrated.

This booklet should be in the hands of every voter in Ohio and YOU ought to help put it there.

This tide toward Socialism cannot be stopped by "thinking" it is bad. You must help prove the fallacies of Socialistic claims. One way is to assist in the distribution of proper literature.

We will send you a single copy, prepaid, for ten cents. Three copies will cost you twenty-five cents and for one dollar we will send fifteen copies.

Really what you ought to do is to order 100 copies for five dollars and see that they are carefully distributed.

Ohio Journal of Commerce,

We trust that every reader will get a copy at once in order to see what kind of a monkey you have been, voting and working in the interest of yourself and family.

FOR HUMAN RELIEF.

Open the armories to the homeless.

Open the churches.

Eleven persons are dead as a result of the cold weather, and yet it is such weather as an ordinary person in fair health and decently nourished could stand without difficulty and that most would enjoy.

The returns in the way of actual deaths mean little. Eleven persons taken from our swarming population will not be missed.

But there were thousands and tens of thousands who suffered agonies from the cold. It was five degrees below zero; seasonable weather and nothing more. However, those who were without food, and could keep up the fire of life, who were inadequately clothed and were lashed by the gale, suffered all the agonies that are supposed to be characteristic of hell.

Here are the churches, large, well heated places, preaching a heaven in the future. Why should they not give the outcasts a taste of heaven on earth by taking them in out of the cold? It would not be much, but it would seem like paradise after hours of the pavements.

The churches are the soldiers of the Almighty. This is work for them.

Armories are designed for the soldiers of the commonwealth.

But they are used only once in a while. They would accommodate thousands of persons. They can be admirably heated. They can be made fine places of shelter.

While men and women are creeping into hallways and alleys to die, while men and women are desperately pacing the streets to keep their blood circulating, the spectacle of closed churches and armories only adds to our disgrace.

Throw them open, every one of them.

Keep them open.

Delegate the tin soldiers—either of the Lord or of the commonwealth—to look after the poor, the cold, the freezing, the starving.

No humanitarian work could be higher or holier.—N. Y. Call.

HOW LONG, O LORD, HOW LONG?

DENVER, COLO., April —Driven wild by their exposure before the Congressional Committee, the Colorado Mounted Cossacks are running amuck in their terrorizing misrule of the strike zone.

Almost every night the tent colonies are surrounded and the miners and their families lie awake in fear of their lives while the machine guns are trained on their homes.

Only last week four militiamen robbed the saloon at Suffield and then shot up the tent colony.

The prostituted press of Trinidad has been agitating violence against the miners and the strikers are daily anticipating the militia and hired assassins of the operators to make a murderous assault upon them.

"John D. gives $1,000,000 for aid of beasts," was the interesting announcement made to the country Tuesday and yet he says that to give the Colorado coal miners a wage increase of 10 per cent would put him out of business. In the same connection it is well to remember that before the strike was called he said he would spend $5,000,000 to prevent the Colorado coal miners from getting this increase.

How long will the laboring people of the country reconcile themselves to these outrageous conditions?

We will do your paper hanging right. 8c per roll for single trim, till March 1st. Quality Paper Co., 1148 Mt. Vernon Ave. E. 4475.

SOCIALISM HOSTILE TO RELIGION, IS IT?

By Henry R. Vedder.

There sounds once more in our reluctant ears the voice of the trouble-breeder who charges that Socialism is hostile to religion. It is frequently with charges as with eggs: they deteriorate with age, and this charge in particular has reached a point which renders it highly fitting that it should be borne sadly to its long rest.

In the first place, Socialism claims to be based on truth, and to be increasing in proportion to the widening area of popular intelligence. The Christian religion makes precisely the same claim. It follows, therefore, that the two systems could not possibly be opposed to one another, except upon the supposition that the claim of one or the other is false. Two truths are never hostile or contradictory.

A man holding Socialistic views, however, may be bitterly hostile to religion, and many such men are. Similarly, a man who is undoubtedly very religious may be violently opposed to Socialism—and this, too, is frequently the case. It is my painful duty to add that hostility of this kind is due, first, to inexcusable ignorance; and, second, to an equally inexcusable credulity. Let me illustrate my meaning:

A. is a Socialist. He knows very little about religion. He is aware that B., who is a Christian minister, does not know enough about Socialism to last over night; yet with implicit and child-like faith, he assumes that B. must know all about Christianity, and must be empowered to speak with authority for his faith. And so, when B. proclaims that God abhors a Socialist, and that the whole weight of the Church must be thrown into the opposing scale, A. concludes that it must indeed be true; whereupon he goes forth and shrieks aloud that Socialism must utterly eradicate the whole idea of God from the minds of the people!

The Rev. B., on the other hand, knows little about Socialism. He is aware that A.'s knowledge of religious matters is as deep and profound as a brook in dry weather; yet his reverence for A. as an authority on Socialism knows no bounds. The idea never crosses his mind that A. could possibly be mistaken about the hatred which it is the duty of Socialists to feel towards religion. And so when A. cries out that religion is a wicked device of the capitalists to keep the people quiet while they are being robbed, the Rev. B. concludes that this is in truth the voice of the Oracle of Socialism. He mounts the pulpit and with renewed zeal implores Jehovah to smite these Philistines ere they bring the world to bottomless woe and iniquity!

Thus, having long forgotten who cast the first stone, and never having examined the real merits of the case, A. and B. continue to ply their cudgels, to the shame and disgust of all the wiser and more peaceable of their respective parties. If A. would cease his howls long enough to learn something of real religion, and B. would interrupt his foaming at the mouth long enough to gather in the rudiments of Socialism, each would discover that he had, as it were, been struggling in a dark room with his best friend.

I firmly believe that no man ever made a thorough, candid, and impartial study of Christianity and Socialism, without reaching the conclusion that, whatever of error may have become mingled with them, through the weakness or extravagance of individual adherents, both systems are founded upon eternal truth as upon a rock; and that the structures are no less imperishable than their foundation.

SUPERIOR BRAINS WIN.

After a legal fight that lasted twelve years, William Rockefeller has finally got the Adirondack holding of William Lamora, and now possesses a preserve of 53,000 acres of fine forest land that will insure him that privacy for which his great soul yearns. This preserve occupies all of what was once the little mountain town of Brandon, and it includes part of the St. Regis River, one of the finest woodland streams in the world and famous for its trout.

At one time Brandon did a thriving business in pelts, game and fish, and its inhabitants eked out the rest of their living by some crude farming. Possibly they never thought of the picturesque aspects of the hills rising from the banks of the stream, or the glorious stretches of forest. But they liked to be there and liked to live as they desired, not as they were told to live. To them the woods and the streams afforded a large part of their living. Then along came Rockefeller, filled with a great yearning for solitude and for a game preserve where he and his friends could pot-hunt the animals on which the inhabitants formerly subsisted. He began buying up the land, and he got all except the holding of William Lamora.

This tough old human, one of the last of the woodsmen and hunters, refused to sell. So Rockefeller and his regiment of lawyers began to sew him up. They caused 3,000 signs to be nailed to the trees warning against trespassing, forbidding hunting and fishing and threatening with dire punishment any one who would be guilty of the crime of picking huckleberries. The old man fought back, and a few of his neighbors likewise fought back. One by one the others dropped out until he alone was left. Then after twelve years of it he weakly yielded to superior brains and to an accumulation of many millions of dollars.

It is a snug little property William Rockefeller has up there in the mountains. Manhattan Island has a little over 14,000 acres, or a third as much as Rockefeller's estate. Manhattan Island accommodates 2,500,000 people. The area of the Bronx is only about 26,000 acres, and that, added to two Manhattans, will give some idea of the extent of Rockefeller's place.

It is only within comparatively few years that doctors generally came to the recognition that plenty of wholesome food and plenty of pure air were the surest means of preventing or curing tuberculosis. The Adirondacks have been found admirably suited to such treatment, to be admirably adapted to furnish such treatment. The only trouble is that it costs a lot of money to get there and live there. In the larger cities tuberculosis treatment could be given if only the fresh air could be obtained, and if there was not so much crowding. But the crowding becomes greater and greater, and in spite of all advances made in sanitation and in the understanding of invalid feeding.

The only defect in our knowledge is that it cannot be employed. Rockefeller's estate is not an unusual one. Between Palm Beach to Calais, Maine, there are many of them. All the wonderful coast islands have been grabbed up, and our millionaires have gone into Canada and acquired preserves. The people are just as much excluded from the wild places as they are from the lawns of the mansions near the cities. Our millionaires feel the growing necessity of having 50,000 or so acres so they may have elbow room.

But the people do not seem to mind. Sometimes a figure from dim antiquity and from a barbarous period in human history like William Lamora will put up a fight. But his old jaw traps are nothing to the traps the lawyers could set for him, and the old flintlock of his father could not stand against the magazine rifles of the Rockefeller game keepers, foresters and guards.

Picture a man starving to death in front of a warehouse filled to overflowing with all kinds of food and you have a fairly good picture of present day society under private ownership of the means of life. Thousands hungry and out of employment in the midst of plenty. That's the actual situation as it exists in this country today. Peach of a system isn't it?

Some day this world will be a fit place in which to live and suicide will be a back number.

OUR DANCE

Every Saturday night at 121¼ East Town Street our committee holds a dance. Everything is strictly orderly and you can be assured of a good time. Come out tonight and have a good time. Good music.

We Socialists are Soldiers of the Common Good. We make war upon poverty, child labor, war, ignorance, disease, crime, enforced idleness and the brood of kindred evils. We are preparing for the new glad days of the co-operative common wealth.

"Come join the only battle
Wherein no one can fail,
Where whoso fadeth and dieth
His deed shall yet prevail."

Socialism is not only a political movement to emancipate the working class, but is a great means of building character. It stirs men and women to read and to learn, it enthuses them with a thirst for knowledge, and fills them with a new life by showing them that it is the system that is at fault, and that there is a remedy for the ills of society if the people only knew enough to bring about the change.

IN THE LAND OF THE CHRISTIAN.

To an official window in one of the departments of New York a man came recently, leading his little daughter. "I can't get work," he said bitterly. "This child can. They are hungry at home. May she have a permit?"

She was fourteen and met the other requirements of the law. So the City of New York gave her the desired legal document, the "working-papers," as the children call it. The man and his daughter went out together, the little girl to join the great army of toilers where the insistent sign of industry "Girls Wanted—Boys Wanted" always swing in the wind; the father to swell the ranks of unemployed men.

Last year 40,580 children in New York City went the way of that little girl past the official window carrying their working-papers with them. Throughout the United States there are some 2,000,000 of these child bread winners less than fifteen years of age.

These papers are the passport to freedom from home constraint that economic independence assures. One sociologist has told the story of the sixteen-year-old girl, who in a dance hall of dangerous repute, tossed her head in defiance of the threat of parental objection. "I pay the rent," she said. "What can my mother do to me?"—World's Work.

The leading negroes of a Georgia town started a bank and invited persons of their race to become depositors. One day a darkey, with shoes run down at the heels, a gallus over one shoulder, and a cotton shirt, showed up at the cashier's window.

"See here," he said, "I want mah ten dollars."

"Who is yuh?" asked the cashier.

"Mah name's Jim Johnson, an' I wants dat ten dollars."

"Yuh ain't go' no money in dis here bank," said the cashier, after looking over the books.

"Yes, I has," insisted the visitor. "I put ten dollars in here six mont's er go."

"Why, man, yuh shure is foolish. De intrist done et dat up long ago."—Melting Pot.

NATIONAL.
Socialist Victories.

Burlington, Iowa.—The Socialists elected two councilmen out of four, defeating both the present members. It is the first time in the history of Burlington that a Socialist has been elected.

Jamestown, N. Y.—At the municipal election here today the Republicans elected the entire city ticket with a single exception, in the 4th Ward, where a Socialist candidate for alderman defeated the Republican candidate.

Burlington, Iowa.—This city today elected two Socialist Councilmen.

Cross, "nonpartisan," was elected Mayor by only 224 votes over Schick, his Socialist opponent.

Grand Rapids, Mich.—One Socialist elected to office and the rest running their opponents close seconds are the results of the election for School Board.

Three members of the board were re-elected to full-term offices by safe majorities, but Charles M. Surine, running for short-term office, was easily outdistanced by Charles G. Taylor, Socialist. Taylor had things his own way, with a plurality of 6,565.

In the race for long-term nominations, Mrs. Edward Kosten, Socialist, came fourth, with a vote of 5,774, the first three candidates being elected to offices. Their votes were 7,133, 6,537 and 6,204, respectively.

Socialist candidates for Library Commissioners also made a good showing.

Missoula, Mont.—The Socialists swept the city in the election Monday, electing both candidates for city commissioner. This gives them complete control of the city.

Calumet, Mich., April 8.—Bitter fights were waged by the Citizens' Alliance against the Socialist in half of the precincts of Houghton and Keweenaw townships today. The Socialist ticket swept one precinct at Copper City, but was beaten in the other precincts.

The Socialist candidates were supported by the Western Federation of Miners.

Butte, Mont.—In spite of the fact that the Amalgamated Copper Company refused to hoist its employes from the mines in time to vote, the Socialists carried three out of eight wards at the election here. This, with the Socialists already in the council, gives complete control of the city to the Socialist party.

The campaign was a hard fought one, all the forces of the Amalgamated being used to defeat the Socialists. An effort was made to bring the Catholic Church into the fight and some of the priests did oppose the Socialists, but the voters paid no attention to the efforts to control their votes.

The Socialists have governed Butte ever since they elected Lewis J. Duncan Mayor in 1911. Duncan was re-elected for a two-year term in 1913 against the combined opposition of the old parties.

This election now removes the last obstacle to unified action, and shows that the voters of Butte approve of the work of the Socialists in office.

Socialists of Patterson, N. J., made a great run coming within 187 votes of second place. We are moving forward all along the line.

The Socialists of Girard, Kansas made an increase of 34 per cent. over two years ago. It took a combination of the old parties to defeat them.

CATHOLIC UNIONS AND SOCIALIST UNIONS.

Much has been written in reference to the Catholic Trade Unions of Germany. There has been threats from the Catholic clergy, that unless the Trade Unions of the U. S. quit flirting with Socialism that she (the church) would start trade unions dominated by the Catholic Church.

That the workers have nothing to fear from this source we publish herewith statistics showing the relative strength, and growth of the two bodies in Germany, for 3 years.

Socialist Trade Unions	1,544,803
Catholic Trade Unions	188,106
1910
Socialist Trade Unions	2,017,298
Catholic Trade Unions	295,129
1911
Socialist Trade Unions	2,320,986
Catholic Trade Unions	340,957

As will be seen above for every member secured by the Catholic Unions, the Socialists gained ten members. At this rate, practically the entire German working class will soon be Socialists, and then—Socialism.

A NEW SOCIALIST PAPER.

We have on our desk a new Socialist paper or magazine published by Comrade Harry Spears, Hamilton, Ohio. It is a "hummer" and deserves the support of every "red." The sub price is $1.00 per year. It is a weekly publication. Harry has named it "The Workers' Cause."

BUSINESS PEOPLE SHOULD PATRONIZE THOSE WHO PATRONIZE THEM.

It is a well known fact that the laboring class of people are the main support of business; we acknowledge that the business element patronize the laboring class, in this way:

The business people buy the laboring man or woman's money and pay for it with provisions, so to speak. Some of us were fortunate enough to get some little education, and realize that the intrinsic value of the provision is much less than the intrinsic value of the money, this is practically a discount. We also realize that the retailer is about the same as an agent working on commission. This throws the responsibility on the big combines and trusts, for this reason the laboring men and the retailer should extend a warm hand to one another. The thing that is demanding prompt attention of the retail business man is this:

Almost every person or persons who are in business do more or less advertising. Many of them advertise liberally in this paper. (THE COLUMBUS SOCIALIST). We pronounce these men (Laudable Business Men). There are quite a number of business people, who depend on the laboring class to keep them in business; these same business people advertise exclusively in the Capitalist daily papers.

The retail business men and women should patronize those who patronize them. They can do this by advertising in the Columbus Socialist, a weekly publication which has a normal circulation of 15000 readers; this publication is the property of the Franklin County Socialist Party, and its allies.

We, as members of the welfare department, ask the advertisers to give this matter special consideration.

Each reader will kindly hand this paper, with this article marked, to a business man in his or her neighborhood.

EVOLUTION.

(By Oscar Ameringer)

In every community we find a number of old sages whose intellectual stock in trade consists in the hoary old chestnut, "It always was that way, and always will be that way." And yet, if modern science and the known history of our race teaches any thing at all, then it is that "nothing is eternal but change and interchange." Today is the child of yesterday and the parent of tomorrow. What was good enough for our fathers is not good enough for us. And what we regard as the sublime height of perfection will be thrown on the scrap pile by our children.

The world moves ever onward and upward.

Those who refuse to move with it are let behind. Those who throw themselves in the path of progress are crushed to death.

Life is motion. Even death is life. It moves the bodies of those who are no longer capable of movement. Its function is to make room for the living and to clear the arena for the next

We are told that the first man was created in the image of God. But if one of us could meet this gentleman on a lonely spot in the road, we would take to our heels, or he would scamper up a tree.

The first and last man would not recognize each other as the long-lost brothers.

Every mouth has two hands to feed it. But the mouth will starve if your hands are denied access to the means of production.

The man who eats his bread out of the sweat of another man's brow is guilty of robbery no matter to what extent the act may be legalized by government or sanctioned by custom.

We do not blame a workingman for voting against Socialist candidates if he doesn't know any better; but we blame him for not knowing better, with Socialist literature so readily available.

Whatever there is of greatness in the United States, or indeed in any other country is due to labor. The laborer is the author of all greatness and wealth.—U. S. Grant.

DO YOU KNOW that the total cost of militarism in the United States for the fifteen and a half months ending June 30, 1909, was greater than the total value of all the books, lands, grounds, buildings, furniture, scientific apparatus, machinery, and all the endowments, all the investments and all "productive funds" of all kinds belonging to all our 464 higher institutions of learning? (Official proof of all these facts in WAR—WHAT FOR?)

WHO WILL DO THE DIRTY WORK?

"Who will do the dirty work under Socialism?" is a question frequently put to Socialist orators.

Who, I would like to know, does the dirty work under capitalism? Let us see. They are: The tradesman, who, in order to maintain his profits, adulterates his food products, to the danger of the public health. Is not that dirty work?

The journalist who, in order to earn his bread, is compelled to express views to which he is opposed. Is not that dirty work?

The doctor who retards the recovery of his patient in order to prolong his visits and increase his fees. Is not that dirty work?

The schoolmaster who fills the heads of his pupils with a heap of balderdash, which stultifies their minds and prevents them from thinking. Is not that dirty work?

The parson who teaches his flock to be satisfied with the places in life to which they have been called, blinding them to their real interests. Is not that dirty work?

The patent medicine manufacturer who sells a worthless compound which he guarantees a cure for all ills that flesh is heir to. Is that not dirty work?

The lawyer who bleeds his trustful client ignorant of the ways of the law. Is not that dirty work?

Th member of a legislature who, having at election time posed as a democrat, supports only legislation in the interests of his own class and against that of the people he is supposed to represent. Is not that dirty work?

The newspaper folk who, in their columns, praise commodities they know to be worthless in return for an advertisement order. Is not that dirty work?

The wretched scab who, himself on the verge of starvation, helps to frustrate the just agitation of his fellow workman for higher wages and better conditions of labor. Is not that dirty work?

The prostitute who, debarred from all honest means of supporting herself, is compelled to sell her body in the street. Is not that dirty work?

The judge who passes a heavy sentence on his prisoner who has committed theft in order to save his wife and children from hunger. Is not that dirty work?

The workgirl who, in pain of dismissal, sacrifices her honor at the bidding of her vicious employer. Is not that dirty work?

The plausible and unscrupulous company promoter whose speculations, by robbing them of their hard-won savings, brings countless families to ruin. Is not that dirty work?

The rack renting landlord who, failing to obtain his exorbitant rent, turns his tenant an outcast into the street. Is not that dirty work?

The theatrical manager who, for the sake of lucre, produces plays which he knows to be a perversion of truth. Is not that dirty work?

The soldier who, otherwise unable to maintain himself, has to take part in war which he knows to be unjust. Is not that dirty work?

And so on ad infinitium.

Who is there, I ask who under capitalism does not do dirty work?

Why Catholic Workers Should Be Socialists
The Knights of Columbus and the Catholic Church have started upon a nation-wide campaign against Socialism. We must fight back with the weapon of education. Mary E. Marcy has written a booklet suggested by an attack in "The Live Issue," (Catholic) on her article in the International Socialist Review. In it she shows why Catholic Workers Should be Socialists, and answers the Catholic arguments on wages and profits, "free love," reforms, war and patriotism, the class struggle, etc., private property, confiscation and religious freedom.

"JUDGE BLACK IN ROADHOUSE WITH WOMAN" ---Says Witness

The case of Judge Black against Bates was called last Monday after an adjournment of one week.

Mr. Tompkins, attorney for Bates, then made an argument and motion to dismiss the case "for the reason that the state had failed for want of evidence to prove its case against the defendant." The motion was overruled.

The first witness was Mrs. John Renner, who swore that she lived at 99 Brickel street. She swore that she was acquainted with the McCoy family and that she seen the family arrested on the night of March 7th. She further testified that the next day she saw Miss Murray, Judge Black and some other person in the McCoy home routing around and taking pictures.

The next witness was Mrs. Ella Starling. She testified that the day after the McCoy family was taken to jail, she saw Judge Black, Miss Murray and a Juvenile Court officer come to the McCoy home while the family were all in jail, hoist a window and go in the house. She said they stayed in there fifteen or twenty minutes.

The next witness was Mrs. Elmer Cook, who testified substantially as the above in reference to the McCoy family. She said they locked the door and came out the window when they left the house.

Katherine Donaldson, sister of Grace McCoy, who resides at the McCoy home, testified that they came to the house to arrest her brother and then took the entire family down, part to the Juvenile Home, and part to the County Jail and part to the Police Station, and that no charge was placed against her; and that when she was finally released and went home she found that the house had been ransacked and her trunks broken into.

The next witness called was Buck Cordell. It is impossible to send through the mails the language he testified under oath, Judge Black used to boys in Juvenile Court before Women. We give the testimony but leave out the obscene words.

Direct Examination.

Q. What is your name? A. Buck Cordell.

Q. Where do you live? A. No. 172 Hossack street.

Q. Are you a married man? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you any family? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Of what does it consist? A. My wife and two children.

Q. What are your children, boys or girls? A. One is a boy and one is a girl.

Q. How old is the boy? A. Three years old past.

Q. I will ask you, Mr. Cordell, if you ever attended a sitting of the Juvenile Court in this city? A. Yes, sir; one time I was in that Court.

Q. Under what circumstances? A. Well, there was a number of boys called up there, I don't know what the case was, and some of them told that my brother-in-law knew something about it and they subpoenaed him and he refused to go—he did not want to go unless I went with him, being a little fellow about twelve years old, and I went along with him.

Court: Talk louder, so the jury and stenographers can hear you.

Well, I say there were some boys up there before the Juvenile Court and they gave the name of my brother-in-law that he knew something about the matter and he was subpoenaed up there and he would not go unless somebody went with him, and I voluntarily went with him, being my brother-in-law and a little fellow.

Q. Was the boy tried? A. How.

Q. Was the boy called up to answer to any charge? A. He was called up at the same time as the other fellows.

Q. Do you know Judge Black? A. I have seen him, never had any acquaintance with him.

Q. Did you hear him say anything to any of the boys? A. Well, I think I did.

Q. Tell us what it was? A. Well, he was questioning them in regards to smoking and chewing tobacco and then he began to inquire about other things—the language I would not like to tell right here in Court.

Q. Tell what he said? A. Must I repeat the language he used?

Q. Yes, go ahead and tell what he said? A. Well, sir, he asked the boys about smoking and chewing and I will repeat the very words he said. He did not ask them—he did not use the word ———. He asked them ———. He asked all of the boys there that—all that was there. And he asked them a great many questions, you know, in regards to that too.

Q. Well, what did he ask them? A. Well, now he, as well as I can remember, he went to work and asked them—he asked them in very vulgar words, I will repeat them if you tell me to.

Q. Tell what he asked them? A. He asked them a great many things—he asked the boys if they ———, in fact that language. I can't remember all the things he asked them.

Q. Who was present in the court room at that time, if you remember? A. Wylie Ellis, Martin Shoemaker, Mrs. Kent, Roney Elliott—there were some several, I remember being there on that occasion.

Q. Well, what was done with the boys, if anything. A. Indeed I cannot say what was done with the first charge. In the wind up of the charge he asked my brother-in-law if he chewed ——— and ———, and he said he ——— and a pipe, and then I rose up myself and told him, and said, Judge, his father grants him the privilege of smoking a pipe rather than to get into the habit of smoking cigarettes. He said, if I had his father, I would send him to the penitentiary—lock that boy up. I came home. I watched for the car and next morning saw the boy going on the car to Lancaster. I got on the car and went as far as Groveport. Let me see, I think it was Groveport. Yes, I went as far as Groveport with him.

Q. Did the boy go to Lancaster? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long did he stay there? A. Well, as near as I remember, it was between three and four days, I can't just remember, but it was not more than that.

Q. How did he get away from Lancaster. A. Well, I got an attorney and the attorney, I suppose, got him out, anyway, well, the boy was gotten out.

Q. Where is he now? A. Oh, he is at home.

Q. When did this happen? A. Well, that has been nearly three years ago, probably a little more and perhaps not so long, well anyhow, I would call it right near three years.

Q. Do you know anything about what the attorney did to get him out of the reform school of your own personal knowledge? A. How?

Q. Do you know what the lawyer did to get him out? A. No, sir, I only asked him what it would cost me?

Q. Who was the attorney? A. He was a man by the name of Thomas.

Q. Remember his first name? A. Well, I don't remember whether it was John Thomas, John M. or John H. Thomas, he was in the Harrison Building at that time, way up something like the eighth, ninth or tenth floor.

On cross-examination he testified that he had never been arrested in Juvenile Court in his life or was never arrested for anything. That he did not know what the boys taken to court were charged with.

He testified that he votes the Socialist ticket, and that he is not ashamed of it; that he takes the Socialist paper having received his first issue last week. He said he never met Bates, "just saw the man." He said he did not think the boys brought before Judge Black were treated right, "or I would not have secured an attorney to get him out."

Mr. Lindenberg, one of the jurymen, asks the following question of the witness:

Q. Was the question the Judge asked these boys in the language of the boys the language that the boys used, so that they would understand? A. Well, my friend, it was just this way, it was simply this way, some of these boys were great big boys, I suppose they were eighteen or nineteen years old, now he the Judge simply asked them the questions in the language that I told you—just exactly that way.

Q. Just exactly that way? A. Yes, sir.

An incident of the Tuesday morning session was the jailing of Lewis Gier, who attempted to intimidate his son-in-law, Seibert, to keep him from testifying in behalf of Bates. He threatened to "make it hot for Bates" and etc. Judge Osborn first ordered him locked up for five hours but he talked back and the Judge made it two days. Gier in his statement to the Court said he had talked to Judge Black about his son-in-law testifying and the Judge told him he did not have to testify without a subpoena.

WOMAN TESTIFIES BLACK IN ROAD HOUSE

Minnie Grunden, being first duly sworn, testified as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION.

Q. State your name to the jury? A. Minnie Grunden.

Q. Where do you live, Mrs. Grunden? A. [illegible] ue, 2108.

Q. [illegible] while in this [illegible] and Troupe did [illegible]

Q. [illegible] in your family? A. My little boy.

Q. What is his name? A. Edward.

Q. How old is he? A. Fourteen the 20th of November.

Q. Have you ever had an occasion to be in the Juvenile Court of Franklin County, Ohio? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was you there more than one time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When was the first time you appeared in Juvenile Court? A. In the year 1912, in the spring—well it was in January, I don't remember the date.

Q. How did you come to be there at that time? A. I brought my husband in before Judge Black for non-support.

Q. What was done at that time? A. He was ordered to pay twenty dollars a month.

Q. Was there a hearing there at that time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where were you living at that time? A. Groveport.

Q. Was your husband living with you? A. No, sir.

Q. What if anything was said by Judge Black at that hearing? A. Well, he ordered him to pay us twenty dollars a month.

Q. Was there anything else said at that time? A. There was nothing else said at that time.

Q. Did he commence to pay you the twenty dollars a month? A. Not for over a month, and I came back to Mr. Black and asked him why he did not send that support, that we were destitute and starving, and he ordered him to get some money as quick as the Lord God Almighty would let him and that he wanted him to stay away.

Q. Well, did he commence paying you any money? A. The 15th of the next month he sent us ten dollars.

Q. Did he send you any more? A. Yes, sir, I got five dollars every month since with the exception of one month, last month.

Q. Does he live in this county? A. No, sir; he is out at Warren, Kansas.

Q. How long has he been out there? A. Since last fall.

Q. When did you receive the last payment? A. Fifteenth of last month

Q. On what dates of the month has he been paying this money? A. It was always at the Court the fifteenth of every month.

Q. Did you call for it on the fifteenth? A. I went on the eighteenth and they said there was none there.

Q. Where did you go for that money at that time? A. At the the Juvenile Court.

Q. Who did you talk to there? A. Mr. Souders.

Q. Mr. Souders, he is in charge? A. Yes, sir; he is the clerk and he has always paid me the money.

Q. He has always paid you the money? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was there any reason given at that time why there was no money there? (Plaintiff's counsel objects. Objection on the ground of question being immaterial. Overruled. Exceptions by plaintiff.) A. He said there was no money there and I asked him why there was no money there as he never failed during the winter when times were harder and I did not see why it was that he had failed now, and he said I don't know.

Q. Had you had any conversation with Judge Black and Mr. Souders prior to that time with reference to money being paid to you by your husband? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When was that if you know? A. On the 30th day of March.

Q. In this year? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You may state what that conversation was? (Plaintiff objects. States objection.)

Mr. Bates: If the Court please, we charge in these specifications that Judge Black receives money into his Court and refuses to pay it over to the proper parties at the time it is due, etc.

(Objection overruled. Answer the question. Plaintiff excepts.)

A. I lived beside a man by the name of Mr. Elmer Frizzell and he and his brother got into a fight and he threatened my life first and he threatened his——

A. Well, the 31st of March I went down to his court and Mr. Bates told me

Q. You said Mr. Bates, did you mean that? A. I mean Judge Black. Miss Murray told me the Judge wanted to see me after Court and——

Court: What is the object of this question?

Mr. Bates: The object of this question, Your Honor, is this, that Mrs. Grunden had been paid this money until Judge Black told his deputy, Mr. Souders, to write to her husband and tell him not to send her any more money and if he did not to give it to her, we wish to show that in support of specification No. 38.

Court: The first thing you will have to show is, was that money there. I will sustain the objection. Exceptions.

Q. Mrs. Grunden, you may state whether or not you ever lived in Briggsdale. A. Yes, sir; I did.

Q. When did you live there? A. I lived there in 1912.

Q. Where were you living at the time before you moved there? A. At Groveport.

Q. Why did you move from Groveport to Briggsdale?

(Objection.)

Plaintiff objects. Do you claim that Judge Black had anything to do with this woman moving from Groveport to Briggsdale?

Mr. Bates: I will withdraw that question.

Q. Was you employed at Briggsdale by a lady by the name of Mrs. Greenleaf, sometimes known as Mary Gaver? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long have you known Mrs. Gaver before you went to work for her? A. I did not know her at all.

Q. When did you commence to work for her? A. Moved into her house the 10th day of July, 1912.

Q. What did you go there for? A. To cook in a boarding house, that is what she hired me for.

Q. Did you know the kind of a house she kept when you went there to work? A. No, sir.

Q. How long after you was there did you discover what kind of a house it was?

Objection by the Plaintiff, stating objection. Objection sustained. Exceptions.

Q. You may state what, if anything occurred during the time you was working there with reference to Judge Black visiting that place?

Plaintiff objects. Objection sustained. Defendant excepts.

Q. Did you at any time see Judge Black at that house? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Under what circumstances? A. He was masked.

Q. Now just go ahead and tell the jury what you saw? A. He came into the hall, I answered the bell, he had a heavy-set lady hanging on his arm and he asked me how I liked it there and I recognized his voice, he walked through the hall and I recognized his walk; he went up to the room, he rang the bell for some beer; I answered; I asked what he wanted and he said he wanted beer and I recognized his voice again; he put out his hand and I recognized his hand. I went down and Mrs. Gaver got the beer and I told her I would not take it up to him because I knew it was Judge Black.

Q. How long did he stay there in that house at that time? A. Until between half past eleven and twelve o'clock.

Q. You said a heavy-set lady was with him? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was she masked? A. Yes, sir; she was veiled.

Q. Was anybody else in company with these two? A. No, sir.

Q. How late did you stay there at nights? A. I usually stayed until after midnight.

Q. Did you see them when they left. A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did Judge Black and this woman go away together? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long did you work there after this time? A. Only about a day, that night and the next forenoon.

Q. Do you know of any other time that Judge Black was out to that house? A. No, sir; he was not to her house but he came to my house.

Q. How close do you live to the Gaver house? A. Just across the road.

Q. When did he come to your house? A. Well, he came to my house a couple of days after I had been to Juvenile Court with some people—he wanted to take me out auto riding.

Q. Did you go? A. No, sir. He wanted me to go; he asked me and I told him I was no ——— and never expected to be.

Q. Did he make any reply to that? A. Yes, he got angry and cursed me.

Q. You say that was two or three days after you had been to see him with some other parties? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who was the parties? A. Brother Woodrow from Briggsdale, Rev. Chandler, Mr. White, an attorney, and myself.

Q. What did you go to see him about? A. We came up to have her arrested for the kind of a house she was keeping and selling beer.

Q. Well, tell just what occurred in Juvenile Court at that time? A. I told Judge Black that Mrs. Gaver said he had been coming out there and that his son had been coming out there, he and his son both came out there and Attorney White had some conversation with Judge Black, and he said that is the best evidence we have had from there yet.

Q. What did Judge Black reply to that? A. He said "Yes."

Q. What did these gentlemen whose names you have mentioned want to do about that house? A. They wanted to have her arrested.

Q. Did Judge Black make any statement as to whether or not he would arrest her? A. No, sir.

Q. Did he ever do so as far as you know? A. No, sir.

Q. Who was present on the occasion, if anyone, when he came out to your house and wanted to take you automobile riding, who was present? A. My little boy, Edward.

Q. How old was he? A. He was twelve years old.

Q. Did he hear the conversation? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you had any conversation or have you met Judge Black at any other time? A. Yes, I met him last fall, in October, on the street up here just between the alley and High Street and he was under the influence of drink and he asked me to go to the hotel to stay all night with him. I told him I had my little boy and I would not do anything like that. He said if you will go ———.

Q. What did you do? A. I walked on and he went on out to High Street.

Q. Have you ever met Judge Black on any other occasion, if so when and where? A. No, sir; I don't remember of any other time.

Q. Mrs. Grunden, are you a member of any church? A. Yes, sir; I am a member of the Methodist Church.

Q. When you were living at Briggsdale did you attend any church there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What church did you attend?

This is the testimony as far as our stenographer has been able to transcribe it up to going to type Wednesday.

It might be mentioned that Mr. Brennaman from Gahanna testified that Judge Black was out there drunk during the campaign two years ago. His testimony was substantiated by other witnesses from that neighborhood.

The testimony of Mrs. Mary Rinehart, an aged lady, when she testified to the death of her son, whom she claimed died as a result of a workhouse sentence imposed by Judge Black, was touching in the extreme.

Another witness, Mrs. Dodson, testified that her children had been taken from her and the youngest sent to the children's home, and to this day she is unable to find out where her child is at.

The case will probably consume several weeks' time. If you want extra copies of this paper you can get them at this office.

UNITED MINE WORKERS PASS RESOLUTIONS

Columbus, O., April 21, 1914.

To the members of United Mine Workers of Ohio we desire to call to the attention of each delegate and through him to the attention of the membership at home of the following judicial abuse:

Whereas, We believe the action of Samuel L. Black, Judge of the Juvenile Court of Franklin County in his sentence of W. C. Bates to jail for contempt of court and the charges of this same judge against our fellow workers and comrades, E. B. Eubanks, M. C. Green, J. M. Suddick and W. C. Bates, of criminal libel to be one of persecution with intent to silence those who dare raise their voice in behalf of those who are oppressed.

Therefore, be it Resolved, That we pledge our moral and financial support to these brothers; and be it further

Resolved, That if the charges against Judge Black be proven true that we assist our fellow workers in the removal of said Judge Black as a bigoted tyrant and unfit to sit as a judge in said county.

AS LITTLE CHILDREN

A Miner's Sermon.

By Mather Smith.

I have a child—a son. He is eighteen months old, and his future already worries me. He has a most unselfish disposition, evidently a remarkable instance of atavism, but I must see that environment and early training conquer the pernicious influence of heredity. When he has a piece of cake he shares it with the dogs; if he has sweets he offers others some. This pleases his mother, but fills me with anxiety, as, unless I hurry up with his education, I can foresee that his future life will be a hopeless one.

I have started already, and I know that I have started badly. I got him a pair of rabbits and he watches them intently. When they are fed, they share and share alike and neither tries to take more than it wants. The silly things, I must get rid of them at once and try to get a pair of jackals!

I also made a little aviary and have a few birds in it. He watches them, too. They fly down, eat what they want and they fly chirping, up again. Is not this a bad example to the child? I do wish one of them would get on the seed-tin and keep the others off. I'd teach him to admire that bird!

I must teach him, as he gets older, to annex the other children's cake, etc. I must tell him that when he lends his top he must get it back with two or three marbles as interest. If he responds to my teaching, he may rise to any height. He may even attain to the dignity of a title!

At present, in his silly little half-conscious way, he seems to have extraordinary ideas. He does not beg for food—he demands it as a right!

The day isn't half long enough for him to see all the wonders that the Almighty has given for (as he imagines) his benefit. He takes nothing for granted, but wants to inquire into everything for himself. He seems to think, the silly little chap, that he has as much right to his share of God's earth as anyone else. What a shock he'll get when I tell him that he was born too late. Take all the seats at the Master's table are marked with a large "Reserved." That the All Merciful and All Just ceased providing for such as him long before he was born. That he will have to beg of his fellow-men for permission to obey God's curse—"to earn his bread by the sweat of his brow." That in his Father's House the many mansions are all locked up. And that he will have to buy, if he can ever manage to save enough, what he at present thinks is his by right of birth—a share of the earth.

I wonder why God made him so silly; but then he seems to have endowed all the babies, even the black ones, with these funny ideas. I wonder why He made them think they know more than we do, with our wisdom—the accumulated wisdom of the ages.

"Verily I say unto you, whosoever shall not receive the kingdom of God as a little child shall in no [illegible] therein."—Miami Valley Socialist.

WAR! WHAT FOR?

We are drifting into war abroad and at home. We are drifting into war in Mexico and in Colorado.

We do not know why and wherefore we are drifting into war in Mexico. Not as yet. But we can do some guessing.

No man in his senses believes that we are making war in Mexico because of a difference as to how and with what ceremonial some pounds of powder should be ignited in honor of our flag. That is too palpably ridiculous, the flimsiest pretext ever offered for war. With the least good-will that difference would have been adjusted by diplomacy. Diplomats settle such trifles easily if they want to. We maintain an elaborate and expensive ambassadorial service, partly for the settlement of such trifles.

We maintain it also for other less avowed purposes, as a spy system established for the benefit of our ruling class. Our diplomats and consular agents are to find out the best and easiest way of getting profits in foreign countries. They are the agents of Big Business. They secure trade advantages and concessions of all kinds. Their pomp and show and medieval ceremonial only cover their real mission.

In Mexico our regular Ambassador was recalled after Huerta's coup d'etat. Instead, we had John Lind sent there as personal representative of our President. We also left in charge O'Shaughnessy and less conspicuous agents. The people that pull the strings in Washington are fully informed as to conditions in Mexico. The American nation is groping in the dark.

President Wilson inaugurated his policy, "watchful waiting" in Mexico. Waiting for what? Waiting for a chance? For whose benefit?

We are drifting into war with Mexico because Big Business finds this is the great opportunity for which "watchful waiting" was adopted.

All protests as to our disinterestedness will be forgotten when the time comes for settlement. Then the price of war will be exacted, a full pound of flesh, just as we exacted it sixteen years ago from Spain.

The workers whose sons are slaughtered in war will have no share in that price. They must be content with the "honor of the flag." The spoils of Mexico will go to the same class that got the spoils of Cuba and of the Philippines.

We have drifted into war at home, in Colorado. We know what for. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has lifted the veil with brutal frankness. It is war against organized labor for "freedom of contract," the only freedom our rulers still cherish.

In that war men, women and children have already perished. They died of bullets so that merciless exploitation might go on unchecked. It is a war for more profits, for higher dividends.

That is where we are drifting with Woodrow Wilson at the helm, and the sons of the Southern slaveholders in the saddle.

That is Woodrow Wilson's "New Freedom."

PATRIOTS OR PARROTS

When WAR, which is "HELL," is called for it will be the dumb-driven workers and not the sleek-fat shirkers who will go to "hell" under the false impression that they died patriots instead of parrots that they are. The writer does not intend to murder any human being at home nor in any strange lands. Woe unto him who forces a gun in my hands.

Better, far better, to fight and get killed at home, where your dead body will at least be handed over to the care of your loved ones, than to die in a foreign land, to make more profits for Wall Street, which is back of Wilson and his gang.—From our issue of December 13, 1913.

Wash Ties, 9c. THE CLIMAX, 1034-36 Mt. Vernon Ave.

Socialism means industrial co-operation, and such co-operation necessarily means universal employment.

The idle workers should distinguish the difference between voting other men into office and voting themselves into jobs.

WORKERS IT IS TIME TO ACT

Workers, it is time to act.

Evidently the capitalist class of this country have declared war upon our class.

Not satisfied with starving the miners in Colorado, the capitalist class have declared war, not only upon the miners, but upon their defenseless women and children as well.

Hired thugs and assassins are shooting down our comrades and their children in cold blood, burning down the tents in which they seek to shelter themselves, and are carrying on a reign of terror that would make the bloody Czar of Russia and Huerta of Mexico blush for shame.

The Federal Government, whipped into line by an overwhelming public sentiment in favor of the miners, has decided to send Federal troops into the territory. From past experience, this will be done only to protect the mine owners in their deeds of anarchy.

If the workers want protection it is they who must do the work. Serve notice now by writing to your Congressman, demanding that he work and vote for the public ownership for the mines and denounce in no uncertain terms the acts of a government that would rush into a conflict with a foreign country, simply to protect the interests of American capitalists, while they allow American men and women to be brutally murdered by American soldiers on American soil.

Write today and then send a copy of your letter to your Congressman and one to this office.

Labor must be heard. It is now that we must raise our voice or soon it will be stilled forever.

THE PROPER PLACE TO SLEEP

"On Friday night, March 6, 1914, over five hundred unemployed men stood in drizzling rain and snow in the city of New York."

Because they were hungry, ragged and homeless, stood in the cold, enduring the biting winter blasts of that stormy night. Few had on socks, and fewer yet had underwear to protect them from the weather. They finally went to the churches and asked for food and shelter; some of the churches rendered them some slight aid, but the great Alphonus Roman Catholic Church refused, and because they asked to be allowed to sleep in the building, the priest, Father Schneider, had them arrested.

No doubt that church was reserved for dead saints and live communicants to sleep in, as most old members go there "to doze and nod."

Those starving, freezing men, no doubt harking back to impressions of earliest childhood, considered the church the proper place to sleep in. Of course they did not go there to pray; it would have hurt their knees, as they were so ragged at both seat and knee that they could neither face, right about face, or endure it to be upon their knees.

They were cold, hungry and sleepy. No doubt the fat, well-fed fake followers of him who said, "Feed my lambs," "Inasmuch as ye did it not unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye did it not unto me," were afraid the shivering, starving, perishing, dispossessed, and outcasts by man, and apparently of God, would consume the blood and body (in the shape of wine and bread) of the Carpenter who had "not where to lay his head" of our [illegible] deprive him (Schneider) of fighting the wine, and [illegible] all, then [illegible] on the bread.

To what holier purpose could a church be used than to [illegible] shelter Jesus' brothers? But you are no doubt aware that churches are built, not by fat, over-fed priests, but by workingmen, not for their own use, but for the use of priests; not a place of shelter for the beloved poor of Jesus, but a place for hypocrites to fool fools in, see? Yes, to fool them—to make them believe that those dead and damned saints must have a place to keep warm in.

Why, bless your poor silly hearts, those saints are too warm where they are, and if that fat faker, Schneider, believes what he tells you, it would be his duty to turn the hose on them, and he would have to point the nozzel downward.

But never mind, they locked those starving, freezing, hungry men in where it is warm; and, if not, the vermin will keep them too warm; anyway, it's all right, they are only poor workingmen, and no doubt most of them voted for all those pleasant things.

To give to every man his due, that is supreme justice.—Cicero.

Socialism cannot be a slavery, because it is a growth and not an invention.

It is all right to elect good men to office if they weren't so dead easy as to help maintain a bad system.

Capitalism cannot explain poverty and misery in the midst of plenty without condemning itself.

LABOR INVINCIBLE.

By James DeWitt Carpenter.

I, Labor Invincible.

I have smothered the forges fire to build titanic cauldrons fit for Jove, whose smoke ascends and hides the stars.

Whose leaping, roaring, thundering flames paint midnight's sky with uncouth gnomes and elfin forms.

My hammers have ceased to be playthings of pounds: they clang upon the anvil with the weight of tons.

I have forgotten the distaff and the spinner's wheel. I leave the hand loom to its cover of dust.

Within the factory walls my myriad hands perform their wonted tasks. From Masters' looms pour cataracts of woven wares, whose prismatic colors shame the morning sky.

I have ceased to be a globule to become a giant.

I, who play with Nature's elemental forces. I, who invade the air, or sail the sea. I, whose plastic hand tears hidden metals from earth's dark caverns.

I, who build palaces, inhabit hovels to feed my weary frame with a slave's reward, a beggar's pence.

I come forth a giant, with a pigmy's head; my Lilliputian masters lash me with hunger's cruel knout. In coal camps I crouch as a beast behind frail tents' walls. My blood stains the copper country's snows.

The factory's brazen voice calls me from my petty individual cares, unifies and makes social my labor power.

I am led by filmy strands of ignorance, prejudice, falsehood, where my master wills; strands my political power will break.

Each day they call me to my task I learn anew that solidarity is my power; anew each day I apply my cyclopean strength and grasp the social meaning of my productive force.

I can stand forth freed only when I become cemented by solidarity to direct myself when masters shall be no more.

I am destined to do the world's work as a free being.

Through my class consciousness, I will solve the riddle of the universe.

I, Labor Invincible.

IN THE LAND OF THE FREE.

By Carl D. Thompson.

This is a free country. Sure!

If one doesn't like the conditions where he is working, he can quit.

And if he quits, there are 6,756,354 chances that he will not be able to get work at all.

But one doesn't have to work. He can starve.

And that isn't so bad as certain vulgar muckrakers would have the working class believe. For after all, when one has starved and is dead, the starving hurts him no more, forever.

To be sure, some of these workingmen who get discontented with their lot and quit and can't find other jobs, have families. And we must admit that while the bread-winner is hunting for work and starving, it is rather hard lines for the wife and babies.

But here again—this is a free country. No workingman is forced to marry. And as a matter of fact, he ought not to do so unless he has a good job and is going to keep it. So the fact that a man has a wife and children is his own fault.

Anyone can find work that wants it. Except of course the 6,756,354 who can't find work. But they don't count; they are nobodies. The very fact that they can't find work proves that they are no account.

So the whole trouble is that the workers are altogether too likely to get dissatisfied and discontented. In fact, there are certain vicious demagogues—socialists and anarchists—going up and down this country, stirring up class hatred, dissatisfaction and discontent.

That is the real trouble.

There is no trouble with this country. It is a free country—the land of the free and the home of the brave.

As a bright and shining example of the unbridled liberty, unmitigated freedom vouchsafed to the workingmen of this great and glorious nation of ours, gaze on the following:

And after you have gazed, go smite your manly (or womanly) bosoms mighty smite and say: "Away with all vain fellows who are trying to make this a better country—it's good enough now!"

HAS HE ENLISTED?

The editor of The Dispatch must be happy now. The war seems to have come. Now let The Socialist make a suggestion. He has been shrieking for war. He has been making it possible for war to come. He is partly responsible for the imminence of war.

THEN LET HIM GO TO WAR! LET HIM GO RIGHT IN FRONT, WHERE THE BULLETS ARE FLYING. He wants the boys of the working class to stop bullets. Then let him stop bullets. Let Champ Clark stop bullets. Let every man who has called for war go out and stop bullets.

It is a capitalists' and editors' war. Let them fight it!

War is hell. Then let the capitalist class go to hell!

The workers get what they vote for.

MAY DAY AND THE REVOLUTION

By Eugene V. Debs

Socialist Party Press Service.

We are again about to celebrate the annual holiday of the International Socialist Movement. The thrill of May Day is even now in our veins and our hearts beat faster as we contemplate the glad tidings of this day of days to the workers of the world.

May Day is above all days in the year the day of the working class; the day of rejoicing and fraternal greeting; the day of high hope and lofty aspiration; the day of national and international celebration.

Not yet have we of the United States risen to the heights of this grand occasion and given to May Day its revolutionary significance as have our comrades in European and other nations; not yet have we grasped the full and splendid meaning of this day to our class and to humanity, but this year I trust our celebration may be worthy of the day and that this jubilee of the working class may resound from coast to coast with the glad tidings of the coming revolution.

May Day was not granted as a boon to the workers by their patronizing masters to tranquillize their discontent, but was chosen and set apart by themselves as the day upon which to arouse themselves from their lethargy, lift their weary bodies from the earth, clasp hands with their fellow workers, and solemnly vow to break their fetters and emancipate themselves from slavery.

May Day is therefore emancipation day for the working class. On this day the revolution breathes the breath of life into the nostrils of the workers and the awaking, pulsing workers recruit with eager, passionate spirit the swelling ranks of the revolutionary movement.

Each and every industrial center and each and every agricultural district should this year join the May Day celebration and make its observance so general and fill it with such ardor and enthusiasm as to compel attention to the program of the day and the significance of the event. The very thought that labor's holiday has been internationally proclaimed and will be celebrated by the workers of every nation on the face of the earth; the very contemplation of the fine spirit of the day and of the eager greetings of comrade to comrade and nation to nation, voiced in every tongue known to man and borne to us on every tide and even breeze, is of itself enough to thrill us in every fibre and set every drop in our veins tingling with the fervor of international solidarity.

On this day of the downtrodden masses the inspiring message that Socialism brings to them must be heard around the world. The electrifying shibboleth of Marx must be echoed and re-echoed everywhere!

"Workers of the world unite: you have nothing to lose but your chains. You have a world to gain."

Unity and solidarity must be the watchword of the day. Industrial and political organization of the workers, all the workers, regardless of race, sex or creed, must be urged with all the force and persuasiveness at our command. Without organization the struggle is vain and the cause lost. The commonwealth of the workers that is to be must be organized primarily in the industries where they are employed and the time to do that work is now, and May Day is the day to emphasize its supreme necessity.

We suggest that he draw a cartoon of Gen. Chaze with his Cossacks shooting down defenseless women and children in Colorado with "Old Glory" waving from his ranks.

We further suggest that these contemptible cowardly capitalist editors shoulder a gun and go to war and avenge any insult the flag may have had, and we warn him that his slander of Socialists better stop or it will rebound on his own head.

WAR—WHAT FOR?

Here is the cause of the Mexican mix-up. It is a war in which the fool workingmen go down and get shot in the interest of a pack of mercenary parasites who wouldn't even use him for a spittoon. This is a war to "protect" the big interests of the Plunderbund. Note the following and then come to your senses and quit demanding that murder be committed:

PROPERTY IN MEXICO

Washington, April 23.—Americans and Englishmen own more of Mexico than Mexicans themselves. Americans control property valued at $1,057,770,000; Englishmen, $821,302,800, and Mexicans $793,187,242.

This is a war in the interest of The Plunderbund. Where in hell is the Plunderbund? Are they out fighting for their country? Not on your grandmother's hoopskirt. You boobs will go and furnish the worms with something to eat. There is one thing lower than the vilest lowest thing on earth! That thing is a working man without a home or country going to war to fight his boss's battles. Fools.

CAPITALIST LIARS

Of course, some of the New York newspaper hirelings couldn't let the opportunity slip by without making the charge that Mahoney, the crazy man who shot at Mayor Mitchell last week, was connected with the Socialist movement in some manner. It is the usual thing to make the reckless claim. When McKinley, Mayor Gaynor, Roosevelt and several other prominent men became targets for murderous bullets, the first editions of the reptilion sheets always characterized the assassins as Socialists, and after investigations proved that the charges were deliberate lies there was no great fuss made thereafter to learn what particular party they happened to be connected with, and the subject was invariably dropped out of sight into an ocean of silence. One malicious and sensational press association prostitute, somewhat crazier than Mahoney himself, sent out a lengthy description of the would-be murderer as being a Catholic and a Mason and a Socialist leaflet denouncing Carnegie, was found in his pocket, although Mahoney disclaimed bearing ill-will to Carnegie. We anticipate Did your to next few weeks, to find me while in charge that Mahoney is as she did socialist leader, duly chronicled in the backwoods boilerplate organs, with perhaps timely editorial embellishments exposing the criminal tendencies of Socialism in its campaign to break up the home, demolish religion, etc.

A CALL TO ACTION

War mania has hypnotized the people. Members of the working class are storming recruiting offices, clamoring for the right to be shot. The deliberate slaughter of striking miners in Colorado and the enforced idleness of the masses are being obscured by war fever.

What are we—Socialists, trade unionists, industrialists, and radicals of every type—going to do about it? Shall we allow the workers to get drunk with the odor of gore, with the stench of decaying flesh, with the sight of heaps of skulls and crossbones? Shall we allow them to murder to the tune of the cannon's roar? Shall we allow them to make countless widows and orphans? Shall we stand by idly while the workers are led to carnage and thus retard progress for decades?

Now is the time for action! Now, before the roar of a cannon has made the workers deaf to our appeal. Now is the time to forget differences of views and factional strifes. We are all, all of us, united in our opposition to organized murder. Why not act unitedly?

Comrades! This is a call for united action. Let us get together on this one thing. Let us lay all formalities aside and organize immediately for the purpose of a great nation-wide anti-war agitation. Let there be held thousands of street meetings in every city and town. Let us reach the masses and dispel the effects of the jingo's hypnotic influence. Let us reach the masses before hell breaks loose.—Max Sherover in N. Y. Call.

THE SLANDERER

Last Sunday, Ireland, the individual who makes his living by drawing dirty yellow cartoons for the master class, had in his "passing show" page, a cartoon of an I. W. W. and Socialist, with hands reeking with filth and around the cartoon the following words:

"Not through any particular love for the parties, but simply through a desire to live in a quiet community, we suggest that it might be wise for these persons to desist in their attacks on the flag until further notice."

Of course Ireland knows that no Socialist would attack the flag, he knows that no Socialist has attacked the flag, and he knows that Socialists will not attack the flag, but his masters also know that Socialists are opposed to war, and his masters instruct him what cartoons they want and its either produce the goods or get out.

Who has attacked the flag? The editor of The Dispatch attacked it in the edition of that sheet April 19, when he said: "We do not care a copper about Huerta or his salute."

This amounted to an attack on the flag, and the editor should be arrested for treason.

The owner of this same sheet is also one of the biggest exploiters of the labor of women in this city. He is living on the sweat of men and women, who are, many of them, actually below the bread line.

Attack the flag—forsooth. Socialists have something else to do—we have a living to make for loved ones. We as Socialists respect the flag for what it is supposed to stand for.

We are fighting the conditions that exist under its folds, however. We suggest that Ireland draw a cartoon depicting the cuthroats and thugs in the pay of the master class when they tore the stars and stripes from the hands of a woman striker in Michigan last winter, and trampled it in the mire.

Everything ready to wear. THE CLIMAX, 1034-36 Mt. Vernon Ave.

The political power of the workers must also be developed through the Socialist Party, the only party organized and controlled by themselves; the only party which represents their interests, expresses their aspirations, and fights their battles in the war for emancipation.

May Day, pregnant with new and bounding life and athrill with the rapture of resurrection, is the glorious harbinger of the social revolution, the gleaming promises of industrial freedom and social justice to all the WORKERS of the WORLD.

HER MURDERED BOY

New York, April 24.—"My boy! Oh, my boy! If I could only have seen you once more; if I could have kissed you before the end. God, God, why do you permit this dreadful war that robbed me of my boy—my son, who was so good to me, who was so young and strong."

Between hysterical shrieks, these words were sobbed out by Mrs. Lewis Mackey, 74 Suydam street, Brooklyn. Just a few hours before she had learned that her son, John F. Schumacher, 23, coxswain of the dreadnought Florida, had been pierced through the heart by a Mexican bullet on the first day of battle at Vera Cruz.

Heartbroken over the tragic death of her beloved boy, Mrs. Mackey abandoned herself utterly to her grief.

"Tell me," she queried pleadingly, "what are they killing each other for in that dreadful Mexico? I don't understand. All I know is that this war has taken from me my son. I shall never see him again."

WHAT SHE WANTED.

"I suppose," said the new saleswoman, "that you want a suit that will make you look attractive to your husband?" "Attractive to my husband!" echoed the shopper. "I should say not. He wouldn't know if I wore a suit ten years old. What I want is something that will make my next-door neighbor turn a pale pink green with envy."

One condition of society enables one kind of man to succeed. Another condition of society enables another kind of man to succeed. Now, would you say that was the best condition of society that gave to the lowest type of humanity the pre-eminence? Or would you say that was the best condition of society that gave the highest type of humanity the pre-eminence?—Merrie England.

If a worker, a producer of wealth, gets things and is unable to pay for them, he is called a crook, and loses his credit and respectability. But the masters who get their luxurious living by crushing down the workers and not working themselves, are called captains of industry and great financiers and the best citizens. And what are you going to do to change this?

The less brains the rulers possess, the harder they try to make up the deficiency with bayonets.

America, the home of the free and the slave, is developing a large house of landlords.

Archaeologists have found a prehistoric village of Indians. That'll swell the old party vote next election.

Socialism is not bomb-throwing except it throws bombs of reason which cannot explode without a fertile brain in which to explode.

The workers that work hard and only get a cheap living, are giving something away for nothing. What tramps do you keep?

The Democrat votes for low wages and the Republican votes for high prices, and the kind-hearted capitalist sees that we get both.

This capitalist system is so much concerned about woman that one female of every nine in New York State is employed in a factory.

Some of you very intelligent men profess that you love and respect your wives, mothers and sisters, yet you deny them the same right that the negro enjoys—the ballot.

The capitalist robbers don't mind much how you talk against them just so you fellows vote with them as you have been doing.

LOCAL, STATE, NATIONAL

Local Columbus meets every Wednesday evening at Federation Hall, 121½ E. Town St. 7:45. Secretary C. J. Welsh, 101 Helvidere Ave. Pay dues at your Branch organization or at this office, 108½ South High Street, or at meetings of Local Columbus. Attend the meetings and always see that your red book is stamped to date.

JEWISH SOCIALIST CONVENTION

The Jewish comrades of Ohio will hold a convention Sunday at Federation Hall, 121½ East Town Street. The meeting will be called to order at 12 o'clock.

The object of the meeting is to devise ways and means how to more systematically spread the Socialist Propaganda amongst those of the Jewish race. Delegates from all over the State will be present. Every one invited. Good speaking.

The Socialist Party of Columbus is showing more activity at present than for the past two years.

The comrades are organizing a ball team, which will pull off an exhibition game the day of our first annual picnic.

The state office has selected ten members of Local Columbus as a committee to help in the arrangements for the annual state picnic. Comrade E. V. Debs will be the principal speaker.

There is a growing activity all along the line. Several old Locals have reorganized and from now on the state campaign will warm up.

Local Cleveland is pushing the referendum to eliminate the non-partisan feature of the new city charter. It requires 10,000 signatures. They already have 8,800.

The Socialist administration at Hamilton, O., is making good. The capitalists have made arrangements to bring the notorious Peter Collins there to take a smash at Socialism. In a forgetful moment they challenged Comrade F. G. Strickland to meet the crafty Peter in debate. No sooner done than Strickland accepted. Now Collins is up against it. He is in a corner. If he carries out his previous programs, he will miss train connections, or have a convenient sick spell. If he meets Strickland he will look like a piker to the crowd when the debate is over. The odds are 10 to 1 that Peter crawls out of it.

The four Socialist members of the Akron City Council are making a hard fight to amend the ordinance passed by demagogical politicians during the rubber strike last year whereby a Police Judge could find any person accused of rioting or inciting to riot the sum of $500 or commit him to prison for a period of two years and four months. The Socialists want the ordinance amended to provide trial by jury. They won first reading on a tie vote—five to five—the President of the Council voting with them and breaking the tie.

NATIONAL.

Socialists at North Platte, Neb., broke into the City Council by capturing one seat.

At Muscantine, Ia., the Socialists secured a number of Board of Aldermen.

At Frontenac, Kan., the Socialists elected four out of five candidates for City Council against a Rep.-Dem.-Prog.-Prohib. combine.

A City Councilman and two members of the School Board were elected by Socialists at Hobart, Okla., against old-party combine.

In a recall waged against Senator Owens in Marin and Contra Costa counties, Cal., the Socialist candidate came in second in a field of four candidates. Owens won, but the Socialists carried every town in which they had an organization.

At Prosperity, Mo., the three old parties combined, and then the Socialists swept the town in school election and announce they will introduce free books and open school houses for public meetings.

Official returns from Buenos Aires show that the Socialists elected seven members to the Parliament of Argentina in that city, while the Radicals secured three. The Socialist vote was 43,836 and the Radical vote 37,517. The Conservatives and Liberals supported the latter party.

Judge Humphries, the notorious Socialist-smasher of Seattle, who tried to jail everybody who insisted upon the right of free speech and became so crasy that the other judges in that city had to call him down, is having more troubles. A local attorney sued Humphries for $10,000 damages, claiming that he was libeled by the latter in his court and that the libel was placed upon the records. Humphries is said to be ambitious to be elected to the State Supreme Court and the people laugh at his queer notions.

A ray of light has flickered in on the Coshocton Tribune, a daily published at the gateway of one of Ohio's mining districts. After reviewing the present situation and pointing out that nearly every year for a generation there have been strikes or rumors of trouble in the mining fields, the Tribune remarks that the struggle between the miners and operators has become "the eternal conflict." Every conceivable plan of arbitration has been tried, only to fail, but there is still one more plan, says the Coshocton paper, and "that plan is the abolishing of the private ownership of our mineral wealth." Go to it, Trib! The miners and lots of other people approve of the idea. But the fat operators and their politicians don't.

Supreme Court of New Jersey has reversed the lower courts and wiped out the sentence of $200 and an indeterminate sentence of one to 15 years against Alexander Scott, editor of the Socialist weekly Issue at Paterson, N. J., pronounced against him by a capitalistic judge and jury during the textile strike because he denounced Chief of Police John Bimson as "chief of Paterson's strike-breaking Cossacks." The cases of Boyd and Quinlan, who were also given prison sentences for attacking the plutocratic strikebreakers, are still before the court on appeal.

Every once in a while some chap, having no other argument, makes the flippant charge that Socialists are only out for offices, same as old-party politicians, overlooking the fact that if such was the case the active Socialists would join or remain in the old parties, where the picking is much better than in a minority party. The fact that Socialists have no great ambition for office is further proven by an incident that has just taken place at Shelby, where Fred Behler was elected Justice of the Peace last fall. He refused to accept the office and Local Shelby was compelled to expel him from the party for refusing to obey the mandates of the people. Have you got a picture of any old-party politician refusing to accept office where elected? Did it ever happen? Nix!

It is universally understood that a general Parliamentary election will take place in Great Britain this year and the Labor party forces are lining up for the contest. So far 92 men have been put forward for nominations by the Labor party, of which number 34 are miners, 18 I. L. P. men, 7 textile workers, 4 railroaders, 3 steel workers, 2 machinists and 24 in miscellaneous trades. This number will be largely increased. The Labor party is rather hard up for funds, as is the usual thing with all labor movements, and efforts are now being made to prepare a war chest to be able to make a good fight.

Available returns from 185 of the 230 Parliamentary districts in Sweden show that the Liberal party lost 16 seats to the Conservatives and 3 to the Socialists.

Every town in the strike district of Colorado was carried by Socialists and local Labor parties except Walsenburg. It now transpires that in Walsenburg the notorious General Chase aided the crooks to steal the election, over 200 recently imported scabs and gunmen having been voted like cattle. One of the mine owners henchmen threatened publicly that they would now down the union men and sympathizers with machine guns if necessary to carry the election. This is doubtless another "great principle" that the sanctimonious young oRckefeller had in mind when he so bravely defended scabbery before the Congressional Committee several weeks ago. Having the money he can, of ourse, buy all the crooks that he needs.

The Labor party of South Africa, having gained control of the Transvaal Legislature by a large majority in the recent State election, will hasten to strengthen its hold on the political machinery of that commonwealth. With that purpose in mind bills are being prepared to smash the old bulwarks of specialized college, property qualificatio shame, discrimination in voting of our sorts expect to put throu all, thereby placing the ballot in the hands of male adult men and women, whether or not they hold property. The Crown, through its Governor, holds the vote power, but it is doubtful whether it will be used in this instance.

At Bradford, England, last week the Independent Labor party convention went on record by a vote of 233 to 78 to instruct Labor members in Parliament to act independently of the Liberal party, and to support and oppose all measures solely upon the ground of their effects on the working class. The I. L. P. refused to merge with the British Socialist party, although both bodies hold steadfastly to the principles of Socialism. Their main difference is that of tactics, principal cause of division in every country where there are two Socialist parties.

LEAD PENCILS AND MARBLES

W. E. Bues.

Dear Editor: Lead pencils and marbles spell work and recreation. In a picture of a child holding these two articles in his hand, the first impression to be derived from it would be that the child was desirous of developing itself intellectually and physically, two most commendable traits. They are the making of men-good citizens.

In the humming of the child, we see a great future before it as a singer; in its play with swords, guns and flags, we say it has the making of a soldier and in the boy who is always at the head of his playmates, directing the games, we discover a leader of men.

It is right that the peculiar characteristics of the children should be noted and they be educated along their particular line and in this way develope into specialists that modern society demands. Eduecation of this form would link work with play and thus eliminating the arduousness of the studies, yield far greater results to society.

In the picture of the child with the lead pencils and marbles you should at once discern a great inclination towards a mathematician and an athlete. He should be encouraged to work with those pencils and play with those marbles.

Such is the picture that I saw today; but it was a real picture, a living picture, a moving picture. It was a boy of about ten or twelve years of age. Over him towered a big, stalwart policeman holding onto the collar of this child's ragged coat as if it had committed some capital crime. He was being taken from one of the down-town ten-cent stores (from where he had, no doubt, taken those LEAD PENCILS and MARBLES) to the police patrol, where the wagonman was instructed to take him to Juvenile Court to be haled before Judge Black. Here is the parting of the ways in that child's life. Will he be sent to school where he can develop the use of those lead pencils and marbles and be of benefit to society or will he be sent to some penal institution where he will develop into a hardened criminal to be a menace to society forever?

As this child was dragged past me, I heard him mutter words of vindictiveness and a look of revenge was stamped on his face.

THE MEXICANS' SIDE

Not a great while ago, through some misunderstanding, three or four of our citizens living in Mexico were placed under arrest, but were promptly discharged when it developed that they were not guilty of any wrong doing, and due apology was made for the mistake. All hands were then satisfied with the exception of President Wilson. He demanded that a second apology should be made, and a spectacular one. He wanted to have twenty-one guns fired at one time so as to make a big noise. The Mexicans were unable to see any legitimate demand for such a humiliating exhibition on their part. Wilson threatened them with war and, incidentally, pestilence and famine if they did not obey, and gave them twenty-four hours' notice so they would have time to think it over. They failed to obey so we have invaded their country and killed, all told, about four or five hundred of their men, women and children, by way of giving them a taste of what they must expect if they do not obey. It is evident from the procedure so far that our authorities were determined upon making war from the start. Our invasion of Mexico is without the shadow of an excuse, and those who are responsible for the killing that has resulted are simply guilty of murder, and should be duly punished.

J. F. LINTON.

ONE MOTHER'S VIEW.

Mrs. M. G. Lilly.

It looks to me like a lame excuse,
The one that our President gave.
Starting a war would seem a crime
If it put my son in a grave.
Somebody's boys are slaughtered
'Cause money rules our land;
Hundreds of children are fatherless
Caused by war's cruel hand.
To those who really have need of help
This fight will do no good;
It's always the way, that every war
Increases the price of food.
Don't give your blood, like a tool,
For the rich man to use in need;
Our country needs protection now
Against the God of Greed.

Why Catholic Workers Should Be Socialists
The Knights of Columbus and the Catholic Church have started upon a nation-wide campaign against Socialism. We must fight back with the weapon of education. Mary E. Marcy has written a booklet suggested by an attack in "The Live Issue," (Catholic) on her article in the International Socialist Review. In it she shows why Catholic Workers Should be Socialists, and answers the Catholic arguments on wages and profits, "free love," reforms, war and patriotism, the class struggle, socialism, private property, confiscation and religious freedom.

"FILTH AND VERMIN IN PLACE to which Girls are Sent"--says Witness

Nurse Testifies She was Trapped and Decoyed, Taken to Convent without a Trial.

Relates Horrible Experiences and Tells of Filthy Conditions of Place To Which Working Class Girls are Sent by Judge Black.

Gladys Crawford, being first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination.

By Mr. Bates:

Q. State your full name. A. Gladys Crawford.

Q. Where do you live now, Gladys? A. Mansfield, Ohio.

Q. Where were you living about December, 1911? A. On North High Street.

Q. What city? A. Columbus, Ohio.

Q. Where were you working at that time? A. Kresges' Five and Ten Cent Store.

Q. You may state, if at about that time you were arrested and taken to Juvenile Court? A. I was.

Plaintiff objects, stating the papers in the case are the best evidence.

Miss Murray ordered to bring the records in this case.

Q. Gladys, state, if about that time, if you were arrested and taken to the Juvenile Court of this County? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where were you when arrested? A. I was at the corner of Spring and High streets, at a cafe, I afterward heard, I do not know the name of it.

Q. Who had you gone there with? A. Marie Bartlett, Margaret Carson, and a girl I do not remember her name.

Q. Margaret Carson, how old was she? A. She was about twenty-three.

Q. How old was the girl whose name you do not recall? A. Past eighteen.

Q. How old was Marie Bartlett? A. Past seventeen.

Q. Were these girls all working with you at Kresges? A. Only Margaret Carson.

Q. How long have you been acquainted with Margaret Carson. A. Just a few days. She came in during the holidays.

Q. Why did you go to this wine room? A. We went there to the toilet as we could not get in the toilet of the ten cent store. Margaret Carson told us to wait and go with her to a place where she went, we did. We came down there, she took us in a side door through a room and up to the toilet.

Q. Before you went up to the toilet of this wine room did you meet or talk with anybody? A. Margaret Carson stopped and talked with two detectives that afterward arrested us. We did not know they were detectives, they were plain clothes men.

Q. How long did she talk to these men before you went in the wine room? A. Just a few minutes.

Q. Did you go any place else before going in the wine room, in an effort to find a toilet? Any further effort than Kresges five and ten cent store? Did you go any place else? A. They were all closed.

Q. Now tell the jury just what you did? A. We went to the toilet, it was up on the second floor. We went through one room and turned to the left. There was a petition that divided it from the room.

Q. Did all four go into the toilet? A. No, sir; just two of us.

Q. Which two went in the toilet? A. Marie Bartlett and I.

Q. What did these older girls do while you were in the toilet? A. When we came out of the toilet they were sitting there in the room drinking.

Q. Then what happened? A. When we came out of the toilet these two detectives stepped in front of us and when I tried to step aside, they stepped in front of us again. I asked what they wanted; they showed us they were detectives, showed their badges, and told us they were going to take us to the Juvenile Court.

Q. Did you hear anything of the conversation between Marie Carson and the officers before you went up stairs? A. No, sir; they were talking very low and they stepped aside from we two girls.

Q. Was there any proposition made to you by any of the officers? A. They decided they would let us go providing we promise to not come back up there again. Then they told Marie she could go and held me, and she went, and she came back to see why I did not come and they arrested her.

Q. They then took you and Marie down to the Juvenile Court. A. They took us to the Police Station first.

Q. How long did you remain at the Police Station? A. Just a few minutes.

Q. On whose order was you taken to the Police Station, and what time of night was it? A. It was 10:25 when we were arrested. I don't know on whose order we were arrested.

Q. 10:25 at night? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What time was it you quit work at Kresges? A. 10:15.

Q. You were arrested just ten minutes after you quit work? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was done with you after you were taken to the Juvenile Detention Home? A. They locked us up, up stairs.

Q. How long did you remain there then? A. Until the 21st.

Q. Then what occured? A. They sent us to the Convent.

Q. Did you have any trial? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know what you were charged with? A. No, sir.

Q. Did your mother come to the Juvenile Court to see you while you were there? A. Yes, sir; she came the morning of the trial and the day I left, or the day before, I do not remember just which.

Q. Gladys, I hand you "Exhibit B-29" and ask you to read it over and state to this jury whether this was presented to you or not, or you heard it read in your presence at any time before you were sent to the Convent?

A. I never read that; No, sir.

Q. Did anybody read it to you? A. No, sir.

Q. Were you given any opportunity in the Juvenile Court to deny these statements?

Objection by the plaintiff.

Court's Ruling: Ask her what was said and what was done.

Q. Gladys, I hand you here "Exhibit B-24" affidavit, and ask you to read that over, and ask you to state whether you were given an opportunity to read it or had it read to you, at any time before you were sent to the Convent at Cincinnati?

Plaintiff objects. Sustained by the Court. Defendant excepts to the Court's ruling.

Q. Now Gladys, state just what occurred at the Juvenile Court from the time you was put in there until you were taken to the Convent of Good Shepherd at Cincinnati? A. I was arrested the eighteenth, the night of the eighteenth at 10:25 o'clock and had my trial. They did not tell my mother when I was sentenced to the Convent. They took me the 21st; I begged them to let me stay until Xmas was over, but they would not do it. I was arrested on the 18th and taken to the Juvenile Detention Home, and the 19th I had my trial and on the 21st they sent me to the Convent.

Q. Did they notify your mother that they were going to send you away? A. Only found it out by me having a policeman to bring me some clean clothes down to wear.

Q. You spoke about a trial, had there been any trial; just state what was said and done? A. Judge Black asked the officer where he found me and the officer told him and he said, send this girl to the Convent and that was the only thing that was said during the trial.

Q. Did not the Judge ask you any questions? A. Never ask me a question.

Q. Was your mother present? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was she allowed to testify? A. No, sir.

Q. Was any attorney representing you there? A. No, sir.

Q. And you was taken to the Convent when? A. The 21st of December, 1911. No, 1912, I think. Well, I don't just remember; I have been out two years.

Q. To refreshen your memory, I hand you this paper and ask you to look at the date? A. 1911.

Q. How long did you remain there in that Convent? A. From the 21st of December to the 4th of May.

Q. What year? A. 1912.

Q. Did your mother visit you at any time while in the Convent? A. No, sir; she did not have the money.

Q. How often did you write? A. We were allowed to write once a month.

Q. You were allowed to write once a month? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you allowed to write what you wished? A. No, sir.

Plaintiff objects and asks that the answer be striken out and the jury be instructed to disregard it. Overruled. Exceptions.

Q. You may tell the jury what you did while you was in the convent?

Plaintiff objects. Overruled by the Court. Plaintiff excepts.

A. I sewed on power sewing machines when I first went there until my health failed me, then afterward I was put in the laundry.

Q. When working on the power sewing machines, how many girls in there worked on the same machines?

Plaintiff objects. Objection sustained. Defendant excepts to Court's ruling.

Q. How long did you work in the power machine room? A. I don't just remember, I think it was a couple of months.

Q. How long did you work in the laundry? A. The rest of the time I was there.

Q. What did you do? A. Worked at the mangle.

Q. How many hours per day did you work? A. Ten and a half hours.

Q. Were you ever required to work overtime? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you allowed extra recreation for the overtime work?

Friday Morning Session

May 1st, 1914.

Gladys Crawford still on the stand.

Stenographer read the last question:

Q. What was the condition of the beds in this room where you had to sleep? A. They were pretty dirty at times. They were only changed every two weeks.

Q. Now, if the Court please, I will hand this witness "Exhibit B-29" and ask her to read the letter and state whether or not she had had an opportunity to admit or deny the statements therein contained.

Court: You can ask her some questions from it. The letter has been read in testimony. If Trixie Davis was on the stand you could ask her these questions.

Mr. Bates: The point I wish to bring to the attention of the jury was that this charge made by Trixie Davis in this exhibit number "B-29" which was obtained from her while she was in the county jail, was not read to Gladys Crawford, nor was she permitted to read the same. And these charges were brought up in the Juvenile Court and she was not permitted to deny the same. Court's ruling: I think Trixie Davis would be the proper person. Objection sustained. Exceptions.

Q. Gladys, while you were in the convent at Cincinnati, was there any inspection of the place by the State Board of Inspectors. Plaintiff objects. Objection sustained. Defendant excepts.

Mr. Rubrecht: Judge Black would not be concerned whether there were inspectors there or not.

Q. At any time while you was there in the convent at Cincinnati, were you and the other girls required to prepare for the inspectors? Objection by the plaintiff. Sustained by the court. Defendant excepts.

Q. Gladys, while you were in the convent at Cincinnati was there any fire in that institution? Plaintiff objects. Overruled. Exceptions by the plaintiff. A. A girl set fire to the convent while I was there. Rubrecht: Your honor, we object to these questions on the ground that they are prejudicial to the State.

Q. I will ask you, Gladys, if while you were confined in the convent at Cincinnati any of the girls became despondent and threatened to commit suicide? Objection by the plaintiff. Objection sustained by the court. Exceptions by the defense.

Q. Gladys, I will ask you if while you were confined in the convent at Cincinnati, if at any time while the girls were sleeping, any one would go through the sleeping rooms dressed like goblins and devils? Plaintiff objects. Objection sustained. Exceptions by the defendant.

Q. Gladys, you may state while you were confined in the convent at Cincinnati, at any time, what if anything, would take place in the sleeping rooms? Plaintiff objects. Sustained. Exceptions by the defendant.

Q. I will ask you, Gladys, if at any time, while you were confined in the convent at Cincinnati, one Mother Adolph would tell the girls goblin stories? Plaintiff objects. Sustained. Exceptions.

Court: I might say as to my ruling before, only the manner regarding the care of the institution can be shown, not what happened in the institution. Only as to the care of the institution, cleanliness, sanitary conditions and such things as that. Judge Black would not be responsible for what happened in the school. Only as to the care of the school.

Q. You may state, Gladys, what was the nature of the food that was given to you and the other inmates of the convent while you were confined in the convent? Objection by plaintiff. Overruled. Plaintiff excepts. A. We got chickory instead of coffee, spoiled meat they made hash out of. The first day I was there I was permitted to have potatoes, that was because the juvenile court officer was with us. After that we never had potatoes.

Q. What affect did this food have upon you? Plaintiff objects. Objection overruled by the court. Plaintiff excepts. A. The dope in the food puffed us up and made us fleshy and made us so we could not remember. I even forgot my friends and part of the time I could not think [illegible] name.

Q. You state of anything else? A. It was for a time after I came home—I was home for weeks before the bloat went down at all. It also affected my health so I have not had good health since I came from there and I am preparing now for an operation the first of June, the fault of the convent. Plaintiff moves to strike out the answer for the same reasons as stated a while ago. Motion overruled. Exceptions by plaintiff.

Q. You may state, Gladys, if during the time you was confined in the convent at Cincinnati, you became infected with body lice and head lice? Plaintiff objects. Overruled. Exceptions. A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was the condition of your head when you came home? A. My head was full of vermin and my mother had to help me to get rid of it. She had to put stuff on it; it ruined my hair and most of it came out and I have not had near as much hair since I came away as I had when I went there. Plaintiff objects. Overruled. Exceptions. Plaintiff moves to strike out the answer to question.

Q. I will asq you to state, Gladys, if at any time while you were there, if your mail or letters was intercepted by the authorities of the convent? Plaintiff objects. Objection sustained. Exceptions by defense.

Q. You may state, Gladys, whether or not at any time while you were confined in the convent at Cincinnati, how you were punished, if so, for what? Plaintiff objects. Objection overruled. Exceptions. A. I was made to kiss the floor several times and also had to eat my supper on the platform where the nun sat.

Q. What was the platform where the nun sat? A. It was just the place or platform that the nuns sat on.

Q. Was that where the nuns sat, on a platform in the presence of other girls? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How many hours of recreation

Help Find "Baby Dodson"

You remember how capitalist papers went into hysterics about Catherine Winters, who they claim had been kidnapped.

Last week a working class mother, living in this city, testified under oath that Sam Black took her little baby girl away from her and sent it out to Children's Home from which place it has been farmed out, or disposed of in some manner, and Sam Black nor the parties in control of this institution will tell her where her baby is.

No capitalist paper is interested in finding the child of this working class mother, which has disappeared, as if the earth had swallowed it, right here in this city.

"The Socialist" is determined to find this child if we can find one hundred men and women with enough red American Blood left in their bodies to help do the job.

The mother of this child broke down and wept until it brought tears to the eyes of more than one, when she told the jury how her child had been torn from her bosom, and the inhuman persons in charge of it now refuse to tell her where it is.

Where is Baby Dodson? What has become of her? Is she alive? If so where is she?

Will you help find out? If you will do so, forward at once to "Baby Dodson" fund, care this paper, $1.00.

It will take at least one hundred dollars to do the work.

Habeas Corpus proceedings must be brought, to make these paaties produce the body of this child in Court, and show cause, why they should not be compelled to turn her over to her mother.

Are you one of a hundred with enough red blood to put up $1.00 each to help find this baby? If so, do it now, today, and we will see if working class babies can be secreted away, and grief-stricken mothers denied the right of knowing where they are.

In an effort to locate the child, Mrs. White, the head of the institution where the child was taken, was subpoened into court by Bates, with the records in the case. But even on the stand she refused to tell. Sam Black who sent the child there refuses to tell.

My God! men and women is this Russia or is it America?

Let us see. Send in that $1.00 now, more if you can spare it. Let's find "Baby Dodson" for her grief-stricken mother.

ATTEMPT TO SUPPRESS "THE SOCIALIST."

An attempt is being made to suppress this paper. From present appearances the attempt will be successful.

No! Don't jump at conclusions and think that is the master class. While they would like to see this, the only organ of the working class in this community, stilled, they can not do it.

It is the Socialists and working class in general who are attempting to suppress and put out of business "The Socialist." How are they doing it? By withholding their support at this vital moment. They view the situation calmly and serenely while this paper, struggling against the greatest odds, barely keeps its head above water.

The situation can not continue much longer. While this trial is in progress, as we have told you before, it is impossible to go after advertising and support the paper in that way.

What will you do? Will you sacrifice something this week to help keep the paper in the field? If this paper is worthy of your support, then come to the rescue now.

John W. Morey, being first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

Q. State your name, please? A. John W. Morey.

Q. Where do you live, Mr. Morey? A. 980½ North High Street.

Q. Do you know Jedd Corbett? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Are you any relation to him? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What relation are you to him? A. A second cousin.

Q. Are you the Mr. Morey that was appointed guardian for the boy? A. I was his chosen guardian after he became fourteen years of age.

Q. How long did you remain his guardian? A. I think one day if I remember right.

Q. I wish you would state to the jury the circumstances under which you were appointed guardian of the boy? A. In 1912, I think the fore part of September, the boy's uncle, Prof. Axline of the Northern Ohio University came to the city and the arrangements for the boy's choice of guardian were made. The boy expressed to him that he wanted me to become his guardian. Mr. Axline, the boy and myself called at Judge Black's office and stated the facts and the Judge said it was all right; that the appointment would be all right. The boy was requested to sign a certain statement in regards to his choice and he did so, but the matter was not complete for there were certain other work connected with it; that is giving bond for good behavior in the matter and I was requested to call in a day or two, which I did. When I called the Judge was absent and so I met his deputy and the matter was completed through the deputy and the business and choice of appointment was completed through the deputy. Then I paid the court charges out of my own pocket, I also paid the bonding company for the bond for good behavior and supposed everything was regular. The next day I was called to the phone by the Judge and requested to come into his office that forenoon. I was busy that forenoon and I told him I could not well leave and asked him if it would be satisfactory if I called in the afternoon. He said it would and for me to come at two o'clock. And at his request I called at two o'clock and on going in the Judge was busy with some one at the time and I took a seat and waited for about fifteen minutes. Then Mr. Hatch came in and said to me, Morey the Judge is ready for you, and I went in and stood in front of the Judge. The Judge said to me, Morey, how did you get that appointment? I was surprised. I did not know what to say and after thinking a moment, I said, by your authority and order. He said, no you didn't, you got this appointment by sneaking in the back way. I said I did not come in the back way to your office, I came in your office and got this appointment regular. Then he said, I will revoke this appointment. I said to him, well I am surprised, this is not a matter or office that any one should seek; there is nothing in it that requires any special care or special secrecy. I am surprised. Then I said to him, I believe I will look after you in the future. I am not used to such talk as that. I had not given any cause to be spoken to in any such manner. I found out next day——

Interruption by the plaintiff: We object. We don't want any hearsay.

A. Well, that is what took place between us. He carried out his order and the report was published in the Reporter the next day.

Q. Well, now, did he say anything else in this conversation with you, other than what you have related? A. Yes, he turned to some one and wanted to call the police to arrest me.

Q. What did he say? A. He said, call in the police, and talked as if he was going to have me arrested at once.

Q. Was that all? A. That is all.

Q. Then your appointment was revoked? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you go there at any other time with anybody with reference to the guardianship of Jedd Corbett? A. Yes, sir.

Q. With whom and when did you go? A. With the boy's grandfather, Dr. J. B. Evans; it was about the beginning of spring or the latter part of the winter of 1911. The boy had chosen his grandfather to become his guardian, soon after he was fourteen years old and Dr. Evans was duly appointed in Hardin County, the boy having been removed out of Franklin County into Hardin County. The Dr. was chosen by the boy and come with the papers. He had been duly appointed by the probate judge of Hardin County and on presentation of the papers Judge Black simply ignored the whole business.

Patterson, counsel for plaintiff: Are you speaking about something that you heard or know? A. I was there and heard the whole thing.

Q. Did he say anything else to the doctor? A. He ordered him to get out of the office.

Q. Did he say he would have him arrested? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did the doctor do? A. Well, the doctor did not want to have any trouble so he let it drop. He told the doctor, I know why you want to get this boy's money, you want to squander it and I will see that you do not get it.

Q. Is that all that was said? A. All that I recall.

Q. Did Dr. Evans show Judge Black any papers at that time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What were they? A. He presented the papers to show that he was duly appointed guardian for the boy by the probate judge of Hardin County.

Q. Was anything on that occasion said about the police? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was it? A. He said he would call the police to have him arrested.

Q. What was the doctor doing at that time? A. Standing in front of the probate judge's desk.

Q. You stated, I believe, he was the boy's grandfather? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is he living now? A. No, he is dead.

Q. Was he a man of good character? A. Yes, sir, yes, sir.

Q. Practicing physician? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How old a man was he at that time? A. I think he was sixty-five or sixty-six years old.

Q. What did the doctor do then? A. Well, the doctor simply went away he couldn't do anything else.

Q. Did you go with him? A. Yes, sir, I went with him to my place.

Q. The man who came down here—was not that the grandfather of the ward? A. I have known him since my earliest recollection.

Q. How long have you known his wife, the grandmother of the ward? A. I have known her, the wife, for twenty or twenty-five years.

Q. You knew them both? A. Yes, sir.

Q. They had been separated hadn't they? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Divorsed? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long had they been divorced? A. I can't tell exactly, it has been some eight or ten years.

Q. Then after this money came to the ward or accrued for the ward, they got married again? A. Who got married again?

Q. The grandparents of this boy. A. They did not get any money before that.

Q. Re-marriage took place after this money got into the courts? A. They were re-married, yes.

Q. Mrs. White, I wish you would explain to this jury what the modus operandi is when the child is committed to your institution, as to its future and its control and how it is done.

FILTH AND VERMIN

church? A. Third Avenue Methodist Episcopal.

Q. Do you belong to any temperance organizations? A. Yes, sir, the W. C. T. U.

Q. Have you held any official positions in that? A. Yes, sir, I have served many times as president of the W. C. T. U.

Q. Was you one of the Crusaders back in 1860? A. I was.

Q. Have you had any occasion to visit the Juvenile Court or Probate Court? A. I did.

Q. Which was it, Juvenile or Probate? A. Judge Black's Court.

Q. When was that? A. I cannot tell you the date at all, maybe three or four years ago, but I am quite sure I was there.

Q. Now just tell why you was there? A. My son was called there, he was an invalid, he was called there for non-support of his children that I was taking care of.

Q. How long ago has that been, Mrs. Rinehart? A. Well, it has been a pretty good while ago. The judge was about to sentence him to be locked up somewhere and I went to the judge. I went then to the judge's office and I told him that my son had tuberculosis and that the whole family on his father's side had died with tuberculosis and that my son wa safraid of it and so was I—that he was all that I had left. I had this one son left and I told the judge in his office, in the presence of a young man I think probably he was a clerk, at least he was sitting at a desk. The judge stared at me, picking his teeth and looked as I thought rather defiant at me. I cried, I cried, I could not help it. I plead for the life of my boy—all that I had left, and he sentenced my boy—he gave him sixty days in the work house and fifty dollars fine. I told the judge (I am a little ahead of my story) if he would confine my son, that he would die; that he now had tuberculosis cough and he was afraid of it, and from the experience I had with the disease in the past, I had reasons to believe that he had the disease, but they gave him sixty days in the work house. And they took Harry over there and questioned him and he said—

Objection by plaintiff.

Judge Osborn: You cannot tell conversations unless Judge Black was present. I will sustain the objection.

Well, let me see where was I; well, they took him over there and they did not want him there, but he said, "I will take my medicine."

Plaintiff: We object to the last part of her statement.

Court: Jury disregard the last statement.

Q. How long did your son remain in the work house? A. I believe that he served his days, but not his fine.

Q. Now what day was he brought home? A. He was brought home the day he fell—his days over there had about expired.

Q. What was his condition when they brought him home? A. Oh, I did not know him at all—I did not know him at all, he—

Q. Just tell what his condition was as to health? A. This confinement hastened on his disease that he had when he went there.

Q. After he was brought home, what if anything did you do about seeing Judge Black? A. I went to the phone. I don't even use language like that I said to him: I went to the phone and I spoke as I felt. I said, "Judge Black, is this you?" "Yes," he said in his quiet way. I said to him, "Sam Black, you are a murderer of the first water. I want you to come to my house and see your victim, that he may haunt you the balance of your days." He said to me, "come to my office." I said, no, I will never put my foot inside your dirty office.

Q. What else if anything, did Judge Black say to you? A. He asked me to come to his office and I refused and that was all. Oh, yes, I remember now, more that I said. I said to him, I intend to put you just as far as the law will allow me to. With that I think I put up the receiver and went to my boy.

Q. Is your son living yet? A. I did not understand you.

Q. Is your son living yet? A. Oh, no, he lived only a few weeks and died and left me childless.

Q. How many children had he? A. He had a little boy and a little girl

Q. Were you taking care of them? A. I was and I told the judge I was taking care of them. He was with me a great deal of the time. I took care of him, he was not able to do anything for them. I was willing and wanted to and told the judge so.

Q. Did any one interfere with you taking care of the children? A. I had a blind man living back in the rear of my house and the children would be out in the yard and my little grandson got to leading him about the yard. I told them to be kind to him. I always taught them to be kind to the blind.

Q. Did Judge Black interfere with your taking care of the children? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Go ahead and state what was done? A. This little boy and girl of my son's was taking care of the old blind man, that is just being kind to him, leading him about the yard and this old blind man, his wife took in washings for other people, and they got the children away from me, got them so they would not speak to me, and I went to Judge Black's office with the children and their mother and this blind man, that I might get the children back, that I might get the children away from the blind man; that he was not a proper person to take care of them. I had witnesses to testify as to my being able to care for them financially and good characted and so on, but the children were taken away from me and I did not get to have a hearing at all. They were dressed in their best and looked clean and he said, Judge Black said, these children look like they are being well cared for, and he gave them to the old blind man and his wife took in washings and my grandchildren, went about gathering up the dirty clothes of people and carried them back to their owners afterward, and Judge Black gave them to that man.

Q. Was he a fit person to have these children? A. He was not a fit person at all.

Q. Mrs. Rinehart, I will ask you what was your condition financially, at that time, to care for these children? A. My financial condition all through my life has been good.

Q. Now you say you was financially able to care for these children at the time you were asking Judge Black to give them to you? At the time you was asking him to let you have them?

Objection by plaintiff. Sustained by the court. Exceptions.

Q. You may state, what if any conversation you had with Judge Black at the time you were asking for the custody of these children, with reference to your ability to care for them? A. I did not have a hearing at all. I did not get a chance to say one word.

Q. Did you try to tell the judge? A. I did.

Plaintiff objects to the answer. Overruled. Plaintiff excepts.

Q. Did you try to have any conversation with him? A. Most assuredly. I was there with my witnesses. He did not give me a chance to say anything or my witnesses, he just said the children looked like they were well cared for and gave them to the blind man.

Plaintiff objects. Objection overruled. Plaintiff excepts.

Q. Did you afterward get the custody of the children?

Plaintiff objects.

Argument by Mr. Bates:

Your honor, this witness was before the Juvenile Court asking for the custody of these children, who were her grandchildren. We have charged in our specifications that Judge Samuel L. Black has refused to hear witness present in court in persons' behalf and he has refused the custody of children to respectable and suitable persons. Specification 16, Your Honor.

Court: Answer the question. Objection overruled. Exceptions by plaintiff.

A. The little children later were taken away from this blind man by their mother and given to me. She said grandmother was right. Plaintiff objects.

Court's ruling: Cannot tell conversations between you and other persons. Jury disregard the latter part of her statement.

Q. Were you in the Juvenile Court at any other time, with reference to these children? And if so, when? A. I believe that after the mother took the children away from the blind man and gave them back to me that settled it. I don't remember of being back to that office over again.

"SOCIALISM AND ITS ENEMIES"

This lecture is, in part, an appeal to the church. But it is neither bitter on the one hand nor cringing on the other. Mr. Strickland meets the enemies of Socialism fearlessly, but good naturedly.

You will enjoy this lecture whether you agree with the speaker or not. Religious people are right in asking that they be allowed to present their own cause. The Socialists should also be granted the same right. Do not condemn anything till you give it a fair hearing.

Why Catholic Workers Should Be Socialists

The Knights of Columbus and the Catholic Church have started upon a nation-wide campaign against Socialism. We must fight back with the weapon of education. Mary E. Marcy has written a booklet suggested by an attack in "The Live Issue," (Catholic) on her article in the International Socialist Review. In it she shows why Catholic Workers Should be Socialists, and answers the Catholic arguments on wages and profits, "free love," reforms, war and patriotism, the class struggle, strikes, private property, confiscation and religious freedom.

BLACK'S PASTIME— ARRESTING SOCIALISTS

F. E. Johnston and Mrs. Minnie Grunden Latest Victims of Sam's Wrath

Continuing his persecution of citizens of this county, and apparently in a desperate effort to suppress a free press, Judge Black last Saturday arrested F. E. Johnston on the same charge as Bates. The affidavit covers the same publication as that on which Bates is now on trial.

Stung to the quick by the testimony of Minnie Grunden, who swore she had seen him at Mother Gaver's road house, Black last Saturday had this hard working woman arrested on a charge of perjury. Mrs. Grunden was still under the jurisdiction of Judge Osborn, as Black was holding her for cross examination, making her report each day and otherwise annoying her, until she was compelled to appeal to charity for help.

When the last chapter in this case will be written is hard to say, as there are now under arrest, yet to be [illegible] J. M. Suddick, E. B. Eubanks, [illegible] D. Creed, F. E. Johnston and Minnie Grunden.

In the meantime the circulation of "The Socialist" is growing by leaps and bounds.

LET THE GOOD WORK CONTINUE.

GIRL TESTIFIES JUVENILE COURT OFFICER BETTS OFFERED HER BEER AND TRIED TO HUG AND KISS HER.

Nannie Schropshire, being first duly sworn, testified as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION.

Q. State your name to the jury. A. Nannie Schropshire.

Q. Where do you live, Nannie? A. On West State Street.

Q. Was you ever in the Juvenile Court of this County, Franklin? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you remember the first time you was there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Can you tell the date? A. It was May 15th when I was arrested.

Q. What year? A. It was when I was sixteen years old, it was three years ago—1911.

Q. Do you know at the time what you was arrested for? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you have a trial? A. I had a trial, yes, sir.

Q. How long was you kept in the Juvenile Court before the day of the trial? A. Well, I don't remember, I think it was about a week or over a week.

Q. Was your father and mother present at the trial? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did they testify for you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was there any other witnesses there to testify? A. No, sir; I don't think there was.

Q. Did you testify? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And what was done with you? What did Judge Black do with you? A. He sentenced me to the convent at Cincinnati.

Q. And did you go to the convent? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long did you remain there? A. I stayed there two years and two months.

Mr. Bates: Now, if the Court please, the testimony of this witness regarding the conditions at the convent would be corroborative and accumulative of the other girls that have been to the convent.

Court: Under the rules laid down accumulative evidence, unless it is additional evidence tending to prove facts, is barred by the Court. You have the right to produce this witness on rebuttal if it is defuted.

Q. When did you return from the convent? A. In June.

Q. What year? A. 1913.

Q. Then what did you do, did you go home? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did you do after you came home? A. I came home and helped my mother, she was sick, afterward I got work in Smith's Shoe Factory. I got out of work there, on account of my age. I went up to the Juvenile Court and asked Mrs. Ritter to get me a job. She asked me what I wanted to do. I told her I would like to learn the hair dressing trade. She told me she would send me out to the Home of the Big Sisters to learn the trade. A gentleman took me out there to learn the hair dressing trade and when I got out there they put me out to do house work. The first place they put me out was all right.

Q. Just a minute, who is Mrs. Ritter you spoke of? A. That lady sitting right over there. (Witness pointed to Mrs. Ritter sitting by the side of Judge Black.)

Mr. Bates: Your Honor, if the State expects to use this lady as a witness, I ask that she be excused from the room. (Mrs. Ritter ordered by Court to step back in his private room.)

A. The first place they put me out was an all right place, I was not there very long and then Mrs. Hart sent me to Mrs. Betts to work. Mr. Betts came after me with his machine and took me out to his house. He tried to hug me—

Q. Who was this Mr. Betts? A. Officer Betts of the Juvenile Court.

Q. All right, go on. A. He tried to hug me and offered me beer, I took it but I did not drink it. He told me not to tell on him as it would make it worse for me than for him and they would hold me down more.

Q. How long did you remain there at Officer Betts' home? A. I was there two weeks. I washed every day while I was there the first week and four days the second week.

Q. Did you receive any pay? A. I received five dollars.

Q. What did you do with the five dollars? A. Gave to Mrs. Hart.

Q. Who is Mrs. Hart? A. She is the lady that has charge of the Big Sisters.

Q. Where did you next go? A. I went out to Mrs. Birmingham's.

Q. What is her first name? A. I don't know what it is, oh, yes I do, it is Lucile.

Q. Where does she live? A. On Sixth Avenue.

Q. What is her number? A. 388.

Q. No. 388 East or West Sixth Avenue? A. West Sixth Avenue.

Q. What did you do there? A. They had me doing housework. When I went out there I was to just nurse, but they had me doing housework.

Q. Now who sent you out there? A. Mrs. Hart.

Q. What did they pay you? A. They just got me my clothes, but they would not give me any money to spend and I do not think that is any way to encourage a girl to be good.

Objection.

Q. They bought you what they thought you needed? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did they pay you any wages? A. Betts were the only ones that paid me, they paid me $5.00 and I took and gave that to Mrs. Hart.

Q. What did you do next? A. I went home. I told Mrs. Betts I was going to a convention and I went home. (Witness must have meant Mrs. Birmingham instead of Betts.)

Q. Why did you not go back to where you had been working? A. Because my mother was sick and she needs me at home.

Q. You are still staying at home now? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you come home? A. Last Saturday.

Q. You have been at home since last Saturday? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Anna, while you were at the Home of the Big Sisters did you do any work while there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did you do? A. I had to clean the living room and wash the dishes; I did not go to school, I was too old, so I done housework about the house until they put me out to work.

Q. Do they have any school or lessons on the day? A. Mrs. [illegible] reads me once and a while, but she never had any school.

Q. What would she read to you? A. Books.

Q. Now on Sunday at the Big Sisters, did they have religious services? A. They would read prayers at night, but on Sunday they never read out of the Bible, but they did of evenings after supper time before going to bed.

Q. While you was there did you go to any entertainments or amusements of any kind? A. I went to three different shows while I was there.

Q. Did you attend any dances? A. We went to a dance at a hall on Washington Avenue. They took us down there every Saturday afternoon and taught us how to dance.

Q. Did you attend dances any place else while you was at the Big Sisters? A. While I was working out to Mrs. Rosesmith's the Catholics gave a big dance and I went to that. I phoned and asked Mrs. Hart if I could go.

Recess for five minutes.

Mrs. William Barrett being first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Q. What is your name? A. Mrs. William Barrett.

Q. Where do you live? A. No. 39 Franklin Park West.

Q. Are you married? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you a family? A. I have two children.

Q. How old is the oldest? A. She is seven years old, she is out to St. Mary of the Springs.

Q. Are you and your huband living together? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you remember what month it was? A. I think it was in February, I am not positive.

Baby Dodson's Mother Wept with Joy when we informed her of our intention to locate her Baby. We still lack funds. Send in $1.00 to-day and join the one hundred brigade.

Q. What year? A. This year, 1914.

Q. You may tell under what circumstances you met Judge Black. A. I was over to Lancaster and I acted as chaperon—I chaperoned my cousin and two schoolmates of mine to a dance and when we came out to come down the stairs, the girls went on ahead of me and I stopped in the hall to speak to a young man I had not seen for seven years—I used to know him before I was married—

Q. What time was this? A. It was about eleven or half past eleven o'clock. And when I came down stairs the girls were standing talking to five gentlemen from Columbus, supposed to be from Columbus. Those men wanted to take them out auto riding. One of them came over and talked to me and insisted on taking us out auto riding and take us home. I said, if you take me home you would have to go to Columbus, and the man supposed to be Mr. Black—

Q. Supposed to be Mr. Black? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, was it Mr. Black? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The gentleman sitting right there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, what did he say? Go ahead and tell what was said and done. A. He said, we are going to Columbus, we are from Columbus, I am Judge over there.

Q. Did you know the other gentlemen? A. No, sir, I did not know who the other gentlemen were.

Q. Then what happened? A. The car came and we got on the car and two of them got on the car and when it started up they got off. This car had a new motorman—we was not frightened any more, and we went home.

Q. Did Judge Black hand you any card? A. No, sir, he did not give me a card, but he gave one to my schoolmate that was with me.

Q. Who was your schoolmate that he gave the card to? A. Miss Ruth Mason.

Q. Do you know her address in Lancaster? A. I think it is 622 Washington Avenue.

Q. Did you observe the conditions of the men as to whether they had been drinking? A. They were all intoxicated.

Q. Did you pay any particular attention to Judge Black? A. Not any more than I did the rest.

Q. Was he intoxicated? A. They were all intoxicated.

Q. Was he so intoxicated that he could not walk straight? A. No, sir, but they were all intoxicated.

Q. Have you seen Judge Black on any occasion since that time? A. Not since that time.

Q. Is your husband and Judge Black acquainted? A. My husband said he knew him.

Q. Did you make any effort through the Juvenile Court to have your husband support your children? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When was that? A. I think it was the fifth day of November.

Q. You may tell the circumstances under which you went to see Judge Black. A. I went to see Judge Black myself. He asked me what my husband's name was and after I told him my husband's name he said, I am sorry, but I can't do anything for you.

Q. Was you cited to appear there any time since then? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you file any complaint against your husband? A. Yes, sir, I did.

RE-DIRECT EXAMINATION AFTER THE CROSS EXAMINATION

Conducted by Mr. Bates:

Q. Did Judge Black make any effort to get you into the automobile that night? A. No, sir; he was not talking to me, he seemed to be interested more in Miss Ruth Mason, but several of them took the girls by the arm and tried to get them to go auto riding and there were five men of course and only four girls.

Q. And there was not girls enough to go around? A. No, sir.

MONDAY AFTERNOON SESSION

Mrs. Barrett recalled by Mr. Bates:

Q. Mrs. Barrett, the night you stated you was at Lancaster, you may describe [illegible] Judge Black was dressed. A. He had a black overcoat on with the lapels of the collar turned up and a black slouch hat on.

Q. Have you had any conversation with any one with reference to any one being down to Lancaster? A. Yes, the girls told me that there had been.

Objection by State. Sustained. Exceptions.

Q. I will ask you, have you had any conversation with Judge Black, or has Judge Black made any statement to you today? A. Yes, sir, in the hall this noon when I passed him, he said, "I'll get you next," as he came in the court room.

Mrs. Kate Dodson being first duly sworn, testified as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION.

Q. State your name to the jury. A. Kate Dodson.

Q. Where do you live, Mrs. Dodson? A. I live at 507 Welch Avenue.

Q. What is your husband's name? A. John Dodson.

Q. Where does he work? A. At the South Parsons Avenue viaduct.

Q. How long has he been employed there? A. It will soon be a year now.

Q. Have you ever had any occasion to be in the Juvenile Court of this county? A. Yes, sir, I was taken up there, me and my children.

Q. When was this, about when? A. Well, it was the 13th of last June.

Q. Go ahead and state what took place. A. Well, they took and notified me that I was wanted at the Juvenile Court and I took the children and went up there and Judge Black took my children away from me. When I went to speak he told me to shut my mouth or he would take my kids and give me six months in the workhouse.

Q. Have you ever found out why your children and you were taken up there? A. No, sir.

Q. Was there any witness to testify against you or the children? A. There were no witnesses there as I saw.

Q. Was there any witnesses there as you heard to testify for or against you or your children? A. No, sir.

Q. How many children were taken that you had at that time? A. I had five children, he taken four away from me.

Q. How old was the oldest one taken away from you? A. He was eleven years old.

Q. How old was the youngest? A. Three years old.

Q. How old was the youngest that was not taken? A. She was a little over a year. No, not quite a year.

Q. What was done with the children that was taken away from you? A. He sent my two boys to Lancaster to the "Boys' School."

Q. What was done with the other two? A. Sent them to the Home.

Q. Which Home? A. Franklin County Home.

Q. The one near Shepherds? A. Yes, sir, the one out east.

Q. Who is superintendent of that Home? A. I cannot tell you.

Q. What did Judge Black say at the time he sentenced the boys to the Lancaster School? A. I don't know as he said anything to them. He said to me that we were living like a pack hogs; that we were living worse than in a "nunch"; that my home was not fit for them; that we had no moral surroundings.

Q. Had any one else testified to that fact? A. No, sir, not that I heard.

Q. Was it true that you had kept your house in that condition? A. No, sir.

Q. You may state in what manner you kept your house at that time? A. I always tried to keep my house decent and respectable.

Mr. Patterson, counsel for plaintiff, objects to this testimony.

Judge Osborn: What specification is this under?

Mr. Bates: Under No. 2, No. 4, No. 5 and No. 11.

Objection overruled. Plaintiff excepts.

Q. Where are these two youngest children now? A. I have my little boy, but my little girl, I don't know where she is at. She was taken to the Home and from there they put her out and I don't know where she is at.

Q. Have you made any effort to find her? A. Yes, sir, I have went to Judge Black several times. I went to him and told him I wanted my children back and he told me to wait sixty days, and I went again and he told me to wait sixty more days, and I went after that and he said I have investigated your home and find that it is all right and I could get the children; I got the little boy, but the little girl was out and they would not tell me where she was at.

Motion by State to strike out all evidence relating to the Children's Home, as it is controlled by the Board of Trustees and after the child is taken there it is beyond the jurisdiction of Judge Black.

Mr. Bates: Your Honor, these children were sentenced to the Children's Home by Judge Black; that child three years old is lost to this mother perhaps forever, we want to know who is responsible that this child is lost.

Court: After the child is at the Children's Home it is beyond his jur-

THE CAUSE OF AND THE REMEDY FOR THE CLASS STRUGGLE

By John A. Gahan

The false idea so prevalent among workers that the great Marxian theory of a century's long antagonism existing between two factions of the human race, was only the vagary of an excited mind, prompts me to this little lesson of the theory.

Is it not a little strange that a working class of this "enlightened age" should be so blind as to fail to see, and see clearly, this class strife, which may appear dormant at times, but whose grim form is definitely outlined in the frequent strikes and periodical industrial crisis which punctuate our prosperous age?

This whole business of life and death, of work and wages, of sorrowing and rejoicing, of Capital vs. Labor, is so clear, so luminous, that I sometimes marvel at workers opposing Socialism—their political movement.

The Socialist Party, through its agitators, its platform and press, is endeavoring to make the workers conscious of their class and the class struggle that has existed for thousands of years, the Tragedy of Ages. In this class strife the workers or slave class have furnished all the servitude, humility, blood, tears, mangled bodies and despair, and yet even now the habit of being meek is dominant in them as a class, even though their meek attitude may mean hardship for their loved ones.

Socialists do not believe that slavery and its necessary poverty is the will of God, and they also hold that when the workers are thoroughly convinced that there is but one way to gain industrial freedom, they will take that course.

Few of the working class are so deaf as to fail to hear the cries of misery, the sobs of injustice, the piteous wail of children for bread (in a nation that boasts its wealth), but the great majority refused by their inaction to aid themselves and their unfortunate brothers and sisters in chains. Instead they forge the chains still faster by voting for a continuation of capitalistic rule.

Now between the slave classes of other days and the wage slave class of today, the most salient feature of difference is this: The slaves of ancient times and the serfs of medieval days were powerless to free themselves, since the former class of chattels had no suffrage and the latter class of serfs had little or none. "Divinely appointed" kings did pretty nearly all the voting that was to be done; but with the wage slave class of today, however, in America, the mighty machine and power of political democracy has been won and you refuse to use it to liberate your class.

Remember that any party that represents the interests of Capital is opposed to a worker's interests, which are chiefly: high wages, short hours, good sanitary shops, decent food, clothing and shelter at reasonable prices. Therefore to vote for the old parties is to indorse the system that robs you of the greater portion of your product, thus keeping your loved ones in degradation, want and ignorance.

Why does a worker arise in the early morning with the working class; respond to the [illegible] with the working class; eat with the working class; meet with the working class; laugh with the working class; marry into the working class; rear a family of the working class; in short, why does he share sorrows and joys, tears and laughter, work and strikes with his class, and when the time arrives when he can really aid them (election day), why does he vote for the natural enemy of his class, the Capitalist Party?

This Capitalist Party has three divisions, each of the three being labeled with very inappropriate and misleading names, but workers should not be deceived into believing that the so-called Democratic, Republican and Progressive parties (which each one is decidedly not), are opposed to each other. Capital owns them all and merely uses them to divide you, the workers, so that in fighting one another you will forget, or rather, not recognize, that the Capitalists are the real enemies you should oppose. The antagonistic attitude of these several parties toward one another has been best illustrated in their resent fusions at Milwaukee and Schenectady, where they had to come under one tent to beat the Socialists. Just why this very desirable object was striven for is obvious.

There are some workers, multitudes of them, who believe that their and Capital's interests are identical. In fact, an organization has appeared which, to me, seems to be just what this brand of brainless, spineless workers want. It is the Civic Federation, whose being is dedicated to the lofty ideal that the interests of the masters and the slaves must be the same. Now it would be nice and peaceful to believe this grand palavering if the workers got their share of the product of this sanctified partnership, but for every dollar a worker produces he receives as his part about one-fifth of it. The bosses take the larger portion, since they pay expenses, and contribute the brains, and constitute the "senior" branch of this lovely, harmonious, convivial union of—lambs and wolves.

Your faith in your masters is pathetic, to say the least. The Capitalists lie and say they are with you to build up society and glorify the Stars and Stripes. Glance backward a year or two and witness some of this upbuilding of society. In Lawrence, Mass., men, women and children were clubbed, shot and bayoneted by the State militia, those hired assassins awaiting the master's summons to come and kill. These strikers "got theirs" for "rioting." Imagine the awful industrial conditions that force a body of workers to riot. The Lawrence Textile Strikers made woolen garments all year around and yet many of the child laborers were found to be without underclothing in the dead of winter. In Philadelphia much the same atrocities were inflicted upon the car strikers. In West Virginia, the Siberia of America, the coal miners, after being evicted from their hoval homes, lived through the cold winter in tents, suffering indescribable hardships in order to win their strike. The identity of interests between Capital and Labor once more made itself most beautifully manifest when the "senior partners" of the firm of "Coal Barons & Coal Miners" called upon their trusties, the State militia, who responded with alacrity, thus showing their loyalty to their masters—and their treachery to their class. They tore down tents in the velvety blackness of midnight, beating the men, striking the children and tearing suckling babes from their mothers' breasts.

And now, before I say too much and get into trouble, I will illustrate as clearly as I can the opposite aims of Capital and their greed and Labor, the chained slave, and the remedy for the latter.

Closing the hand and then raising the thumb as far as possible, remembering that the thumb represents the Cost of Living; and then bending the little finger as low as possible, the little finger representing Wages; you have the aim and ambition of Capital.

Now of course the wide gulf noted in the first illustration is not conducive to a better life for the workers. They want to eat plentifully, sleep sufficiently, and educate their young, so they strive by uniting in trades unions to get what illustration No. 2 depicts, and that is endeavoring to make the thumb, Cost of Living, and the little finger, Wages, meet. As your wives say, "making the ends meet." They do not join, but in such degree as Labor lessens that gulf, Capital loses. Prices lower and wages raise. Hence the Class Struggle.

This clash of classes is the natural result of an unnatural, unsocial, inhuman system of society. It must cease. The progress of true civilization is retarded by it!

In view of the above apparent facts, and knowing that the cold steel of the Pennsylvania Cossacks is not a bit less fatal than the hot lead of the Massachusetts militia; and realizing, too, that the cry for bread of strikers' children is often drowned by the thunder of machine guns in the hands of militiamen, who are entrenched snuggly behind Capital and Tradition, forming a citadel of military despotism and uniformed scabbism, we Socialists propose to advance our views and theories to result in the ultimate inevitable elimination of the Capitalist Party and Capitalism, blending the names Republican, Democratic and Progressive into one grand working class movement, the Socialist Party of the World.

Ours is a Republican party because in government we profess republicanism; ours is a Democratic party because we are Social Democrats and there can be no other kind; and ours is a Progressive party because we are with and not against the forces of evolution, which is the onward tide of civilization.

If you will kindly look carefully at the third illustration you will see how simply the class struggle can be eliminated, thus freeing mankind.

We have seen Capital's aim. We have viewed the vain attempts of Labor to "make the ends meet," while the three middle fingers remain closed; so now, by removing these three obstacles, representing Profit, Rent and Interest, the other two easily join, creating plenty, harmony and joy.

Since Capital and Labor cannot remain together in peace, justice or hope, one must go, and certainly Labor must remain. Hence exit Capital, State Militia, Poverty, Ignorance, War and Oppression, and lifting our tired eyes and toil-stained hands toward the sunlight, breath of Hope, sweeping its exhilarating zephyrs from the Heights of Justice, and as a Proletariat, united, joyous, liberated, triumphant, enter your Co-operative Commonwealth, your World for Workers, the Socialist Republic.—American Flint, official organ Flint Glass Workers' Union.

JERUSALEM AND NEW YORK.

"And they come to Jerusalem, and Jesus went into the temple, and began to cast out them that sold and bought in the temple, and overthrew the tables of the moneychangers, and the seats of them that sold doves;

"And he taught, saying unto them, is it not written, My house shall be called of all nations the house of prayer? but ye have made it a den of thieves.

"And the scribes and chief priests heard it, and sought how they might destroy him; for they feared him, because all the people was astonished at his doctrine."

"And they come to New York; and Jesus went into the Calvary Baptist Church, and he began to cast out them that had made a mockery of his religion, using his name to commit all manner of crimes and cruelties, using his name to cloak the murder of innocent women and little children.

"And he taught, saying unto them, is it not written, My house shall be called of all nations the house of prayer? but ye have made it a den of thieves.

"And the scribes and chief prists heard it, and sought how they might destroy him: for they feared him, because all the people was astonished at his doctrine."

And so the scribes and the chief priests called the police reserves and the plain clothes men of the City of New York. And the reserves came in a patrol wagon, and they took Jesus and smote him in the face with a blackjack, they kicked him with their feet, and threw him into the street, cursing him for a disturber of the peace. They cast him then into the patrol wagon and carried him before a judge. And the judge, fearing the wrath of the rich people of the land, commanded that he be taken to the [illegible]workhouse for three months.

The day following the Times, the news[illegible] of the Pharisees, comments on the occurrence, saying:

"According to the police report, Jesus, the outlaw, who invaded the temple yesterday and tried to convert the service into a riot, represents a peculiar variety of unbelief. In the public mind he is ticketed as an offender against law, order, and decency who should be effectually suppressed.

"But this outlaw has gained exactly what he strove to gain, a huge advertisement of his lawlessness and indecency. To ignore him would be futile. He is aiming for the support, not of intelligent people who read newspapers, but of the illiterate foreigners who have found advancement hard in this country in a period of financial depression. (We have heard it stated that Jesus himself is a penniless 'Sheeny.') They cannot be ignored. But sterner measures should be taken to compel them to obey the law. This is no time to tolerate civil strife of this sort, nor is there the slightest excuse for the kind of mob violence these anarchists of various brands, all equally destestable, are trying to foment."

INFLUENCE OF HEREDITY IN CRIME AND INSANITY.

By Dr. Edwin F. Bowers.

Josh Billings—the irresponsible—once wrote, "It is dredful easy tew be a phool—a man kan be one and not know it."

This quaint aphorism came into my mind as I read of the determined efforts of certain clerical gentlemen to defeat the operation of a law recently passed by the Legislature of New Jersey, and signed by the Governor, which would minimize the influence of heredity in crime and insanity and insure to Humanity its greatest right—the right to be well born.

Stamp Out Hereditary Crime and Degeneracy.

A certain group of public spirited men with brains and imagination advocated this measure. The breeding of criminals, deviates, defectives, and degenerates, from parents of similar characteristics was to be stopped by a simple, absolutely harmless operation, requiring less than ten minutes' time, which in no way interferes with the subject's pursuit of life, liberty and happiness, but which does rather render him absolutely sterile.

And while the wind mills of opposition are in full blast, a most illuminating and convincing study of the influence of heredity in crime and feeblemindedness is under way at the New Jersey State Training School for Feebleminded—right in their own balliwick. Dr. H. H. Goddard is collecting these statistics.

The results are astounding. Through his field workers Dr. Goddard has traced scores of remarkable instances showing indisputably the potent part played by heredity.

Dr. G. L. Orton, of the New Jersey Reformatory, at Rahway, has also contributed some data tending to assist in the discomfiture of the reactionary clericals—or do they call themselves "conservatives?"

A study of 300 inmates of the reformatory demonstrated 48 per cent of mental defectives, and one or both of the parents showed feeble-mindedness or degeneracy. Tuberculosis, alcoholism and drug addiction were common among the parents, and there was a history of crime in 30 per cent of the cases.

Epilepsy, too, is distinctly hereditary, according to an investigation by Supt. Dr. David A. Weeks, of the New Jersey State Village for Epileptics, at Skillman. And so on, stretching out until the crack o'doom.

In the name of all the gods at once how much longer is this pollution to continue? How much further are we to permit humanity to be defiled, for want of the exercise of a little common sense and judgment? Now that we understand how to prevent the propagation of defectives, by safe, harmless, absolutely effective means, there should be no delay in putting the knowledge into immediate practical application.

Greatest Stride in Advance the World Has Ever Known.

Then the humorous originator of simplified spelling would have to withdraw his soft allegation that "Man was created a little lower than the angels, and has bin gittin' a little lower ever since."

For the greatest single measure, favoring the regeneration of the race, would be operative. We would have taken the most far-reaching stride the world has ever known toward achieving the superman.

The final figures of the National Parliamentary election in Sweden are at hand. They show that the Liberal party, which was the government party in the last Parliament, was badly battered by the Conservatives on the one side and the Socialists on the other. In the old Parliament the Liberals hald 101 seats, the Conservatives 64, and the Socialists 68. In the new Parliament the Conservatives will form the cabinet, having 86 members; the Socialists increased their number to 73, and the Liberals dropped to 73 members. The actual policy of the government will really change but little so far as the military dreams of the King are concerned unless the Liberals abandon their former opposition and join the Conservatives in putting through the monarchial schemes of enlarging the army and navy. The Socialists, well satisfied with the gains they have made and will continue to put forward their demands for improved legislation for the working class.

National Secretary Laufersick, of the Socialist party, reports that on April 1 the assets of the National office amounted to $24,461; liabilities, $13,451; surplus, $11,009. During the past 10 months the party made a gain of $10,175, decreasing the liabilities by the same amount, in round numbers, $5,000 and increasing the assets by the average dues-paying membership for the first quarter of the year 1914 was 103,758. The average for the whole of 1913 was 96,957.

AT ONCE—TODAY

CANNON FODDER.

Not content with plunging the Working Class of this country into one of the worst panics since '92-'96, the reactionary and servile Democratic administration must needs start a war, and make the Working Class "food for cannons."

Glorious, isn't it! Fine, to be a poor, half starved boob, without owning an inch of land in this country to go down to Mexico and make food for the masters' cannons, in the interest of Rockefeller and other Wall Street magnates.

Where is John D. Rockefeller, Jr., the Morgan family, and all the other blood suckers who have been howling for war? Are any of them at the front? Will they go to the front and be a target for Mexican bullets?

No! They are too patriotic. They think too much of their wives, daughters and sweethearts and their own cowardly hides to go down there and be shot. They will stay at home while you common ordinary working suckers go down and help to fill the land with widows and orphans.

You should be patriotic enough to think of your wife and children.

You should be humane enough to think of the Mexican women and children. You should be patriotic enough to think of the Mexican workers, fighting for freedom, and assist them as France assisted us when we were fighting for freedom.

Be men! Be class conscious! If the masters want war, let the masters fight the war. You will be a real patriot if you look after your interests at home. The only interest you have is your wife and family. They are worth fighting for. But John D. Rockefeller's oil interests are not worth a tinker's dam to you.

Read the following from Wilhelm Lamsyn's book, "The Human Slaughter House," and forget your desire for murder.—Description of a battle, and showing glorious war in all its horror:

"And at length someone comes crawling toward us .. .. .. he is crawling on all fours .. .. .. he is dragging upon all fours .. .. .. he is dragging something behind him with his body, and all the time he is whining like a sick dog, and is howling shrilly in long-drawn tones .. .. .. he is still crawling along fast .. .. .. and when he has reached us we see—and the blood stands still in our hearts—they are his entrails hanging out of his body .. .. .. his belly has been ripped up from below .. .. .. he is crawling, he is crawling upon his entrails .. .. .. he is coming .. .. .. the entrails are coming .. .. .. horror breaks out from every pore .. .. .. for hardly three paces from me he lies still .. .. .. and then .. .. .. may God forgive me .. .. .. he raises himself slowyl on his hands .. .. .. he succeeds for a moment .. .. .. and looks .. .. .. merciful God! .. .. .. he looks at me, and refuses to let my eyes go again .. .. .. and I can see nothing but those great death-stricken eyes .. .. .. Merifcul God! .. .. .. his eyes, those eyes! Those are a mother's eyes looking down on me unspeakably .. .. .. that is a son of his mother lying before us—butchered. I will throw myself on him, sobbing, and kiss his face, and bathe his anguish away in tears. .. .. .. I will do it! I will. .. .. .. Then the monstrous strain relaxes—his arms give away .. .. .. he falls forward on his face and sinks down on his tortured body. His hands twitch once more .. .. .. then he lies still and kisses Mother Earth.

"'Drummers; Strike up!' shouts a voice.

The state is the result of the desire to keep down class conflicts. But having arisen amid these conflicts, it is as a rule the state of the most powerful economic class that by force of its economic supremacy becomes also the ruling political class and thus acquires new means of subduing and exploiting the oppressed masses. The antique state was, therefore, the state of the slave owners for the purpose of holding the slaves in check. The feudal state was the organ of the nobility for the oppression of the serfs and the dependent farmers. The modern representative state is the tool of the capitalist exploiters of wage labor.—"The Origin of the Family," by Frederick Engels.

What I must do is all that concerns me, not what the people think. This rule, equally arduous in actual and intellectual life, may serve for the whole distinction between greatness and meanness. It is the harder because you will always find those who think they know what is your duty better than you know it. It is easy in the world to live after the world's opinion; it is easy in solitude to live after your own; but the great man is he who in the midst of the crowd keeps with perfect sweetness the independence of solitude.—Emerson's Essay on "Self-Reliance."

A bachelor never knows whether to call a baby he or she, so he says "it."

The Socialist is a voter that knows, and then knows that he knows.

No property will bring its full value at a forced sale. Labor is always sold at a forced sale.

"Dividing up" is one of the most popular things going. All profits, dividends, rents and interests are founded upon it.

Under Socialism there will be no wealth among the non-producers. That's why the non-producers tell you that Socialism is bad.

Can a real Christian look on at the way private interests fight righteousness and refuse longer to understand Both sides?

isdiction. It is the same as if he sent a child to the penitentiary or to the workhouse. You can ask the question, Mr. Bates, whether she has the child or not. I will sustain the motion.

Q. Have you this youngest child now? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know where she is? A. No, sir.

Q. Have you had her any time since Judge Black sent her to the Children's Home? A. Never saw her.

Q. What charge was placed against the children, if you know? A. He did not say any.

Q. What charge was placed against the boys that were sent to the Industrial School? A. He did not say any.

Q. Had they committed any offense? A. Not that I knew of. They did not say.

Q. Are the boys in the Industrial School yet? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have they been there continually since sent there by Judge Black? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What wages does your husband make? A. $2.25 a day.

Q. Has he been making that continuously for the past two or three years? A. He has been making that for over a year, he made more than that before and he gives me his envelope every two weeks.

Q. Does he squander his wages in any way? A. No, sir. Gives me his envelope unopened every two weeks.

No cross examination.

WHY DID CAPITALIST PAPERS SUPPRESS THIS?

Mrs. Florence March, being first duly sworn, testified as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION.

Q. State your name to the jury? A. Florence March.

Q. Married are you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where do you live? A. In the rear of 146 King Avenue.

Q. Did you ever have occasion to visit Juvenile Court in this city? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was the occasion? A. My son has been before the Juvenile Court on several times. The first time was for writing his name on the Grogan School House and the next time was for stealing a pocket book, they had to let him go because they said he was tubercular and the next time he was down there was for breaking into a ——— with two other fellows. The trial had been before I got there.

Q. Was you there at any other time? A. One day I went away on a visit, my baby was eleven months old, I took her, when she was a little baby girl two weeks old. One day I went away on a visit and when I got back home the first thing I knew I was summoned to Juvenile Court. When I got there the first thing I knew, Dr. Darby was there and Judge Black said to him when I came in, Dr. Darby, that woman is in the second stages of syphillis and Dr. Darby, you know this woman took two other children and buried them both. He said to me, you are not fit to raise any children. I said, "For God sake in Heaven, don't take this child away from me." I did not have syphillis and the doctor examined me and said I never had any such a thing. He drug the poor little baby out of my arms and ordered me out of the Court Room.

Q. Who took the child? A. They were Juvenile officers.

Q. What was done with the child? A. I don't know.

Q. How old was the child? A. It was then eleven months old.

Q. On former occasions that you were down there, did you have any conversation with Judge Black? A. I asked him one time if I could see my boy and they ordered them to bring the boy in before he went to Lancaster and I saw him.

Q. What did Judge Black say on that occasion? A. He did not say anything.

Q. Was you prepared to take care of this baby they took away from you? A. I certainly was. Miss Murray admitted she was a big, healthy baby. We were poor, my husband was only a working man but we could raise a child.

Q. Did you have any conversation while you was there in the private office, with Judge Black? A. I was subpoenaed in this trial against my will, I don't want to testify against anybody.

Q. What is your answer. A. No, sir, not in his private office in the Juvenile Court."

Q. That was the time you was down there when he wrote his name on the school building? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did Judge Black say, if anything? A. He said, Madam, I don't want to take your boy away from you. He said he did not want to take my boy away from me.

Q. Is that all he had to say to you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that all he had to say— A. Yes, sir.

Q. at any time in any private conversation? A. I won't answer that question.

Q. Why? A. Because my boy is in Lancaster and I won't answer that question.

Q. Did he tell you under what provisions your boy will have to go to the Lancaster farm?

Witness hesitates.

Q. Didn't he tell you under what provisions he would not send your boy to the farm? A. No, sir.

Q. Are you sure of that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then why did you say you would not answer because your boy was at Lancaster? A. I have nothing more to say. I am on the stand now.

Q. I will put this question, if you insist on it, "Didn't Judge Black call you into his private office and put his arm around you and say to you, if you will do as he wants you to he would not send your boy to Lancaster? A. I do not have to answer that question. I will not answer it.

Court: Answer the question.

A. I will not answer it.

Court: We will send you down stairs if you do not answer.

A. I can't help it, I will not answer it.

Q. I will ask you another question in this connection. Do you know a man by the name of Johnson?

Q. He came to see you last night, didn't he? A. Yes, sir.

Q. His wife was with him, was she not? A. Why sure, Mrs. Johnson was there.

Q. Didn't you make this statement to Mr. Johnson, in the presence of his wife, that Judge Black called you into his private office and put his arm around you and said if you do what I want you to, I will not send your boy to Lancaster? A. It don't make any difference what I said last night, I am not going to repeat it.

Court: Answer the question, "yes" or "no."

A. I told Mr. Johnson if he subpoenaed me I would tell what I wanted to tell, I told him I would not talk while on the stand.

Court: Answer the question, "yes" or "no."

A. I won't answer it, you can lock me up, you can't do more than kill me, I will not answer it.

Court: Take her down stairs.

Judge Osborn locked her up until last Monday, when she was released without further questioning.

From present indications the defense will close its side of the case next Friday.

There is but one logical way to establish the peace of the world. That way is never advocated by socalled big or little statesmen, because it is the way that leads to Socialism.

Don't be afraid to study. The Socialist movement finds its chief strength in the fact that it has a solid scientific basis. Socialism is the crown of all scientific thinking.

If your vote is not important in dollars and cents, to someone why is it that those who own the most dollars and cents are so anxious for you to vote a certain way?

Socialism becomes the logical, the natural and the necessary result of the evolution of the hand tool into the labor saving machine and the development of small industry into great industry.

All things are working to bring on Socialism and all people who are wide-awake and see what is coming are preparing for the change.

Work, you slaves, so your master will make enough money to get a divorce from his old wide, buy a new dancing girl one, and a titled husband for his daughter.

The fool workers have always crucified their saviors and canonized their oppressors—in order that a small group of masters might keep them slaves. When they begin to do their own thinking, they will end such criminal folly, and for all time.

Socialism will remove the need for children working in factories. Is that against your religion? Some people will tell you to stay away from the Socialists as they are against your religion. If you look carefully for the cause of their statement you will find it a financial one.

Lying about Socialism seems to have failed here just as it failed in Germany, just as the report that the early Christians were free, lovers and cannibals failed to prevent the spread of Christianity. The lie is not half as strong a weapon as the liars imagine it is.

Some years ago a prominent man went into the business of raising hogs. A friend congratulated him on his success, as his breeds were certainly fine. "Hogs!" replied he, contemptuously. "Why, these people never knew what a big hog was till I came here!" And he wondered why they laughed.

Canadian labor papers say that the independent movement that has been in the Dominion for several years has about collapsed. The open shoppers and labor haters generally incited some of the thoughtless and patriotic workers to secede from the internationals and set up independent organizations, claiming that the labor people in the United States cared nothing for their Canadian fellow-workers. For a time the independent movement cut considerable figure in Montreal, Quebec, and a few other places, but gradually it disintegrated and now is only a shadow.

The capitalistic government of South Africa has dropped the prosecution against the labor unionists who were arrested as an outcome of the great strike several months ago. The result in the Transvaal election for the State Legislature, when the Labor party succeeded in nearly sweeping the two old parties out of existence—because the workingmen in the Liberal and Conservative parties woke up, cut loose from the political bosses and joined the Labor party—has scared Premier Botha and his clique so thoroughly that they are afraid if the prosecutions continue the workers in the other states will follow the example set by those in the Transvaal.

RESOLUTION ADOPTED BY REVOLUTIONARY IRON AND TIN STEEL WORKERS, NOW IN SESSION IN THIS CITY.

To the Honorable Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States of America:

We, the Delegates Assembled in Columbus, Ohio, in the Thirty-ninth Annual Convention of the Amalgamated Association of Iron Steel and Tin Workers of North America, do hereby vehemently protest against the most arbitrary and unjust methods employed by the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company in their attempt to subdue their employees, in their struggle to maintain their rights as guaranteed by the Constitution of the United States.

American citizens have been killed and wounded; women have received the fatal bullets in their breasts and little children have been cut down like so many blades of grass by the merciless machine guns, behind which stood men wearing the uniform of the United States Army and badges of the great corporation which controls the destiny of the State of Colorado.

What a spectacle to see the representatives of the men of 1776 who defied the British lion and suffered untold privations at Valley Forge, that Liberty might live, giving their lives cheerfully that their descendants might enjoy the blessings of Liberty and justice, now obeying the mandates of the monied interests of this country, doing their utmost to stifle and annihilate all sentiments of freedom in the hearts of the workingman, who ever was and always will be the foundation and prop of all governments whose purpose is to give the people liberty, whence comes peace, contentment and justice, and deprive the people of their rights by which acts will come discord, hatred, and bloodshed, which will result in the overthrow of all restraint and government will be destroyed.

The war in Colorado is much worse than the war in Mexico, as civil war is always more brutal than bloody conflicts between men of different nations and races.

In Colorado the struggle is between Americans; the men, women and children being of our own flesh and blood. The one side doing the bidding of the monied interests of this country whose fell purpose is to destroy all the noble instincts in the hearts of the workingmen and make them cringing slaves. On the other hand a gallant band of workingmen whose sole desire is to defend those principles that God Almighty put into the breast of every man, to defend with the last drop of blood.

We are told that mostly all Mexicans are robbers and murderers and further informed that prisoners are shot by order of the General, but there is not a banded chief nor blood thirsty commander in Mexico who ever penned up scores of women and children in little dog tents and burned them alive.

Mexico never sent out a story of a woman 82 years old being thrown into prison for going from one part of a state to another teaching the principle of humanity to the workingmen which would help them to live a nobler and more spiritual life.

Mexico has never sent out the tales of horror that have come from Colorado; not even West Virginia have such stories.

Mexico does not make war on women and children. No Mexican commander ever penned up scores of women and children in a tent colony, raking the tents with machine guns, and then set fire to it, cremating them alive. That sort of warfare was left for peaceful, civilized and enlightened America.

The men who did that are not savages, but claim to be free Christian American citizens. Men, who in times of peace we call the backbone of our Republic and mainstay of our institutions. In Colorado the joy of every patriotic heart, the Stars and Stripes, have been sneered at, spat upon and trampled under the foot by men wearing the uniforms of the United States Army.

The Mexicans insulted our flag, and the armed force of the United States was sent against her. In Colorado Old Glory has been ground into the mud and nothing is said. Why? Sooner or later, this question must be answered, and we pray that the answer will not be such as to rock the White House from its foundations.

Finally, those miners being driven to desperation by the inhuman tactics practiced upon them, rebelled, took up arms and defended with all their strength the honor of their wives, their children and their homes. In this course they were upheld by international law which gives the right to any people under any government of insurrection against a government which tramples upon their Constitutional rights and prerogatives.

As the Chief Executive of this great nation, the situation is up to you, and we hope it will be handled as becomes the head of so mighty a people.

We hope and pray that you will see the hand-writing on the wall, which shows so distinctly the mutterings and warnings of that ominous storm which will hurl this fair land of ours into a condition where sorrow and bloodshed will prevail.

Respectfully submitted,
WILLIAM JENKINS,
ROBERT EDWARDS,
JAMES H. PARKER,
JAMES CADMAN,
FREDERICK KEIGHTLY, Secy.
WILLIAM S. COLLIER, Chmn.,
Committee.

NATIONAL.

SOCIALISM IS NEXT.

A new society founded on industrial peace and forethought, bearing with it its own ethics, aiming at a new and higher life for all men, has received the general name of Socialism, and it is my firm belief that it is destined to supersede the old order of things founded on industrial war, and to be the next step in the progress of humanity.—William Morris.

NO RING IN HER NOSE.

Workers in the Chicago stockyards furnished $1,000,000 worth of jewels for Mrs. Ira Nelson Morris to hang upon various portions of her anatomy at the first Italian court ball of the season in the Quirnal Palace in Rome, Monday night.

With Mrs. John Hayes Hammond, who accompanied her, the sum total of jewels displayed by the two women reached close to $2,000,000.

Mrs. Morris had one necklace valued at $500,000 and another rope of pearls and diamonds estimated to be worth $100,000.

She hung $10,000 worth of pearls on her ears.

She did not, however, wear a nose ring.—Milwaukee Leader.

Chicago Federation of Labor and central bodies in other Western cities adopted resolutions strongly condemning war with Mexico. The Unionists declare that workingmen, almost wholly, will be expected to do the fighting and thousands will be killed and wounded in battle or die of disease in the tropical climate, while women and children will be the principal sufferers. Hundreds of millions of dollars will also have to be paid by the wealth producers of the country to finance the war, and in the long run the American landgrabbers, mine owners, oil and timber combines and other conspirators who do not go to war will be the only ones to profit by the invasion of Mexico.

Prof. Anton E. Morse has resigned from the faculty of Marietta College because his Socialistic views did not suit the higher-ups. The students wanted to strike to force Prof. Morse's reinstatement, but he discouraged them from doing so.

Congressman Smith, of Texas, is fathering a bill to prohibit any contractor on government work to employ workers who have not become naturalized or declared their intentions to become citizens. The penalty upon conviction shall be a fine of not to exceed $1,000 or imprisonment of six months or both.

LIKE SLAVES WE TOIL.
By M. J. Connolly.

Like slaves we toil from day to day,
Like slaves we toil, and get for pay
Scarcely enough to keep our lives—
To feed our children and our wives.
The best we have we freely give
Of brain and hand, and yet we live,
Though wealth abounds on every hand,
As if a famine filled the land.

The noble souls who see the wrong
And dare denounce in accents strong,
With voice and pen would shackles break,
Not for themselves, but others' sake,
By minions of the law are seized
And thrust in jail. The masters, pleased,
Again the whips of hunger crack
And drive the striking workers back.

Workers, unite! What is your life
But hell on earth? But want and strife?
The world you fill with wealth untold,
Then back to you a pittance doled
By those who own what you produce,
Who own the tools that you must use.
When you do own the tools you need,
Then will begin your life indeed.

"SOCIALISM AND ITS ENEMIES"

This lecture is, in part, an appeal to the church. But it is neither bitter on the one hand nor cringing on the other. Mr. Strickland meets the enemies of Socialism fearlessly, but good naturedly.

You will enjoy this lecture whether you agree with the speaker or not. Religious people are right in asking that they be allowed to present their own cause. The Socialists should also be granted the same right. Do not condemn anything till you give it a fair hearing.

Why Catholic Workers Should Be Socialists

The Knights of Columbus and the Catholic Church have started upon a nation-wide campaign against Socialism. We must fight back with the weapon of education. Mary E. Marcy has written a booklet suggested by an attack in "The Live Issue," (Catholic) on her article in the International Socialist Review. In it she shows why Catholic Workers Should be Socialists, and answers the Catholic arguments on wages and profits, "free love," reforms, war and patriotism, the class struggle, strikes, private property, confiscation and religious freedom.

"BLACK APPROACHED COUNCILMAN ABOUT CITY PRINTING"

—SAYS WITNESS

Councilman Sherman testifies Black said, "I'll make it all right with you if you vote against 'The Times' getting the city printing."

Thomas M. Sherman being first duly sworn according to law, testified as follows:

Direct Examination.

Q. State your name, please? A. Thomas M. Sherman.

Q. And what is your profession? A. Beg your pardon?

Q. What is your profession? A. I am an attorney.

Q. You occupy any official position in this city? A. I am a member of the City Council.

Q. How long have you been a member? A. This is my fifth year.

Q. Are you acquainted with Samuel L. Black? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you ever have any conversation with him with reference to State printing contract? A. I recall a conversation that was had on one occasion.

Q. When was it, where was it and what was it? A. I can't recall the date of it. It occurred on Broad Street, near 16th East Broad Street.

Q. And what was it? A. It was relative to letting of the contract for public printing of the city. At the time of this conversation, the matter of the letting of the contract for public printing was pending before the City Council and when I came out of the Hayden Building one day, I met Judge Black; he stopped me and said he did not want "The Times" to get the contract for the public printing. He said he did not like or had had some difficulty with, or something to that effect, with the man who had an interest in the "Times." I believe he said it was John Lentz's paper. I think that was what he said.

Q. Well, go on. A. And I told him we had made a hard fight to reduce the cost of printing and that I was not interested in what paper got it, but only in the reduction of the cost to the city and I presumed that the lowest bidders would get the contract, but I thought we had votes enough to pass it.

Q. Well, go on? A. Well, I think the Judge insisted that he was very much opposed to Lentz's paper getting the contract and that he further stated he would make it all right with me if I voted against that paper having the contract.

Q. You say you are a member of the City Council? A. Yes, sir.

Cross Examination.

By Mr. Patterson:

Q. Who got the contract? A. I think the "Times" and the "Journal" if I am not mistaken.

Testimony of Bessie Sands, confined in the Idiotic Asylum, when 12 years of age while the man she testified had mistreated her was allowed to go scot free by Judge Black. Read the testimony. Do you think this child is feeble minded? Why is she detained in this institution? Why was she sent there in the first place?

Bessie Sands being first duly sworn according to law, testified as follows:

Direct Examination.

Conducted by Mr. Bates:

Q. How long have you been at the Institution for Feeble Minded? A. Three years and this makes my fourth year.

Q. Now, to refresh your memory, was not the number on Perry Street, 1226? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was you arrested and taken to the Juvenile Court? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you remember what school it was? A. First Avenue School.

Q. How long have you been attending school there? A. I don't know how long.

Q. How old was you when you started to school? A. I don't know how old I was. I went to Second Avenue school first, then Hubbard Avenue and this school.

Q. How many winters had you gone to school before you was arrested. A. I think only one winter in that school house.

Q. More than one winter? Witness hesitates.

Q. What did the work consist of? A. What did you say?

Q. What different things did you do? A. Cleaned up the house, make the beds, sweep the floor and dust and after I got that done, I would get ready for school.

Q. Do all these things? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did you do when you came home from school at noon? A. I ate my dinner and sometimes got papa's dinner.

Q. Who would get dinner? A. Sometimes I would and sometimes mamma would.

Q. What would you do in the evening when school was out? A. Come home and take my dress off and go out and play.

Q. Where would you go out and play? A. Sometimes down on First Avenue.

Q. Why did your mother have to wash clothes to make a living? Was your father sick? A. Half of the time he was sick, yes, sir.

Q. Now, what time of day was it when the officer arrested you at the school house? A. About the time school left out.

Q. Do you know who it was that came after you? A. Yes, sir; Mrs. Leanders.

Q. Had you ever seen her before? A. No, sir; only that night when she cama to the school house after me.

Q. Only that night when she came to the school after you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How did she take you down to the Juvenile Court? A. On a street car.

Q. What car line—on what car line? A. Pennsylvania car line.

Q. Who asked you this question? A. Miss Murray.

Q. Was Judge Black there at that time? A. I did not see him.

Q. Do you remember any question Miss Murray asked you?

State objects on the grounds Judge Black was not present. Sustained. Defendant excepts.

Q. Was Judge Black there? A. I don't know.

Q. Did you ever see Judge Black before that day? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever see that gentleman there with the glasses on before? (Pointing to Judge Black.) A. Only that time he called me up.

Q. What did he ask you? A. He asked me what I did.

Q. Asked you what you did? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you tell him? A. Yes, sir; I told him I was down there because I had done something wrong.

Q. With whom? A. A man by the name of Carter.

Q. This man, his name is Carter? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What store is that? A. Vogle's store.

Q. Where is that located? A. Corner First Avenue and Pennsylvania. The school is on that side and the store is on that side.

Q. What did you say the man's name was? A. Carter.

Q. What did you tell Judge Black he done to you? A. He done something wrong—he done something real bad to me.

Q. You told Judge Black what he did? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did Judge Black bring this man Carter down there? A. I did not see him only when he called me up.

Q. Mr. Carter was in the court room before Judge Black at the same time? A. Yes, sir.

Unclean! Unclean!

Our Columbus comrades, however they come out in their effort to substantiate the long list of charges they brought against Judge Black, have exposed enough of his record in the trial now on to cause the observer to shudder as in the presence of moral leprosy. As one reads in the "Columbus Socialist" the stenographic report of the evidence, and finds women testifying how this exalted wearer of the ermine, holding in his palm the power to bestow liberty or imprisonment on those who came into his presence, prostituted the authority of his high office, how he patronized assignation houses which were being maintained in defiance of the law which he was sworn to uphold—one feels like crying out, "Unclean! Unclean!" But perhaps the most horrifying feature of the whole affair is, that there is scarcely a remote possibility that Judge Black will ever face impeachment proceedings. His career on the bench has proved eminently satisfactory to the powers that be. Business men of Columbus, the pharisee pillars of church and state, are firm in their support of Judge Black. They are indignant at this attempt of the disreputable "Reds" to bring the noble judicial luminary to book for his little peccadillos. They much prefer a conservative gentleman like Black on the bench to some horn-fisted workingman with radical views on the relations of the sexes and doubts as to the right of the employer to skin the workingclass. —Dayton, Ohio, Socialist.

Comrades, you have seen the hard and bitter fight we have put up to prove the charges against Judge Black. If you could have attended the trial and heard the evidence as brought out on the stand, if you could have seen as we have seen, strong men and women break down and weep as they testified to the horrible treatment accorded them by Judge Black and his court officers, you would have gone away determined to sacrifice something to help win this fight. It is a fight for decency. It is a fight for home and fireside. It is a fight for working class homes.

Our hardest fight has been raising the finances. Much money is yet needed. The committee needs your help now. Send in all you can spare. If necessary, sacrifice something for your class, but do it today. Send all contributions to W. E. Bues, 101 North High Street.

WOMEN AND CHILDREN OF LUDLOW

By Frank J. Hayes.

(John D. Rockefeller, Jr., testifying before the Congressional committee, investigating the Colorado strike, when asked if he approved of the use of machine guns and paid gunmen to break the strike, even though scores of people were murdered, replied: "My conscience acquits me.")

Your conscience acquits you—but how make reply
And speak now of justice—with eyes to the sky,
When there in the ashes their torn bodies lie,
The women and children of Ludlow.
How look on their faces, their blood-matted hair,
Their charred, blackened bodies all swollen and bare,
And the babes on their bosoms thy fiends murdered there,
The women and children of Ludlow.

Your conscience acquits you—but what of the dead?
O! what of the murdered—they asked you for bread.
They begged you for freedom and you gave them lead—
The women and children of Ludlow.
They sought but a chance for their husbands and sons,
A future more kindly for their little ones—
Your conscience acquits you—yet slaughtered with guns,
The women and children of Ludlow.

Your conscience acquits you—go look where they died,
Go look where they perished, aye, pleaded and cried,
The mothers, the children, the babes crucified,
The women and children of Ludlow.
And then tell the God you profess to adore,
O! then tell the Master, your hands red with gore,
Your conscience acquits you—though slaughtered the poor—
The women and children of Ludlow.

A JOURNEY TO CANOSSA

Whenever a person high in authority goes to another who is not rated to be so high, but who is by that act made the master, reference is made to that historical event in the mist of the Middle Ages when the famous journey was made to Canossa. By such a journey a man humiliates himself. He eats dirt. He prostrates himself before one whom he thus makes his master.

Monday, Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States, the most powerful constitutional ruler in all the world, made a journey to Canossa. He groveled in the dirt, he ate crow, he publicly acknowledged to the world that, powerful as he is, he has a master. His Canossa is located at 26 Broadway, New York.

Whenever a sovereign power acknowledges that there is a power higher than itself, that higher power becomes sovereign by that act. The United Colonies might declare themselves Free and Independent States, but not until they can "get away with it" are they actually thus free and independent. The power that makes itself obeyed is the sovereign. The power from which, as a source, all other power flows is the supreme power in the land.

Woodrow Wilson was finally made to take notice of the war in Colorado. It was rather late, but he finally saw it when it was forced upon his notice by the enlightened working class, led by the Socialists. He could take the same attitude that he took in Mexico that there is no order there; that the power that sets itself as the government is a fake because it cannot make itself felt, or doesn't want to, in protecting the lives of the working class. He could have taken a firm stand. He could have sent the standing army with positive orders to stop all killing and to restore the Constitution.

Did he do it? He did not.

He sent a personal representative to John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and asked him to stop the war. He did not tell him to. If he had, he would have acknowledged Rockefeller as a little sovereign, but himself as the chief one. He did not insist.

HE ASKED HIM TO. Get that. Let it sink in. Wait until it percolates. The President of the United States requested a private individual to restore order throughout a large section of the United States.

Socialists have always maintained that the real power in the United States is Wall Street, that the capitalist class is boss, and that all the officers elected by the capitalist parties are more or less conscious puppets thereof. We have been roundly damned for it, we have been called all manner of names for thinking such treasonable thoughts. This journey to Canossa proves we were right.

The greatest power in the United States should be the Government of the United States. If it is not so, it is a shame and a burning disgrace. If a group of men, or one man, stands higher than a government, the government stands disgraced before all the world.

By his journey to Canossa, Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States, Commander-in-chief of the Army and Navy of the first Republic on earth, wrote himself down as a little lower than the financial angels.

Mrs. Myrtle Patterson, being first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination.

By Mr. Bates:

Q. State your name to the jury? A. My name is Patterson.

Q. State your full name? A. Myrtle Patterson.

Q. Where do you live, Mrs. Patterson? A. I live at No. 572 West Walnut Street, I think that is the number; I have only lived there about a week.

Q. Where did you live about the month of October, 1913? A. I lived at No. 200 South Mitchell Street.

Q. Did you ever have an occasion to go to the Juvenile Court of Franklin County? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you remember when the first time was that you was there? A. In October, some time, I do not know just exactly when or what time it was.

Q. You may now tell the jury just what occasioned your going there. A. Well, Miss Murray brought a summons over to my house, I was not there, and she told my father to tell me and my husband to come down to the Juvenile Court and bring the children. So the next morning, me and my husband and the three children, the others were in school, went before Judge Black. When we went in my husband took a chair and I and the children stood up. An officer from the Juvenile Court came and stood behind my husband with a mace in his hand, he stood there and that is all I know about it. Well, Mr. Black asked me my name and where I lived and he turned to my husband and asked him his name and then he said to him, Patterson, you are the biggest humbug that ever came into my court, I will give you three years to the workhouse and five hundred dollars fine and costs, then he said to the officer, you take him out and lock him up.

Mr. Patterson, Counsel for Plaintiff: I thought you were on a lunacy investigation or inquiry.

Mr. Bates: I thought all the records had been read. I was busy at the time and thought all the records had gone in.

Mrs. Patterson is excused from the witness stand until after Mr. Tompkins read the records in the case in the Juvenile Court. No records against Davis Patterson, husband of Myrtle Patterson.

Mrs. Patterson called to the stand.

Q. Will the stenographer read the last question and answer asked Mrs. Patterson? A. Stenographer reads the last question and answer.

Q. Now just go on and tell the jury what took place? A. Well, the Juvenile officer taken my husband and locked him up and Mr. Black told me I could have the custody of the children and after Court was over I took my children and started home. Miss Murray came up to me as I was starting out and said, Mrs. Patterson, I have an affidavit here for failure to provide against your husband and if you sign it we can shut him up. I said to her, I can't swear to that because it is not true, if you have any other charge I will swear to it. I went on to High Street and a Juvenile officer met me, he said you have to swear to that affidavit, I said to him I can't swear to anything like that. He said, we understand that your husband has spent eighty-five dollars of your money. I said I don't care, I can't swear to anything that is not true. If you had any other charge I could swear to, I would swear to that, but I could not swear to one of failure to provide. He said if you swear to it, you can get three dollars a week. I told him he had not failed to provide, he always gave us all he earned, and that he makes two dollars and a quarter a day and I got all of that. So he kept on teasing and I told him I would go and ask my father and see what my father said and then I would come back the next day and let him know. So I went on home and I said to my father, they got Dan in jail—

Objection by Mr. Patterson.

Court's Ruling: You can't tell any conversation unless in Judge Black's presence.

Q. Just tell the jury what you done? A. I went back and said to Mr. Black, he was not at the Juvenile Court, he was over in his other office, so I said to Mr. Black, I can't swear to a charge like that against my husband because it is not true. He said, you get right out of my office or I will think you are as big a fraud and hoodoo as your husband. I said to him, I can't help what you think about me, I am not going to sign a charge like that because it is not true.

Q. Go on and tell what next occurred? A. Well, I went home and then we got another subpoena to come to the Juvenile Court and bring the five children.

Q. Who summoned you this time? A. A lady brought the summons, but I do not know which one it was. She asked me some questions about a gentleman we had rooming at our house, I told her I did not know anything about him, good or bad and just after we got that subpoena that very night we received a message that my husband's brother was dying down to Nelsonville, so we went down to see his brother. I came back on Saturday evening on the 8:28 and my husband was to come as soon as his brother was so he could leave him. Saturday, I was not feeling very well so I went up stairs and laid down and left the two children down stairs with my father and two officers came to my house and took me and the little girl, two policemen from the police court here and I never was arrested in my life before. They had some kind of a paper they said was a warrant. My father had went out to get a bottle of milk when they came and they said to me, get your clothes on and get ready, Judge Black wants to see you.

State objects. No ruling.

I got my clothes on, of course it excited me and I went over to the city prison here, in the police patrol. They took my name and took me over to the county jail and locked me up. On Monday afternoon, Miss Murray came over to the county jail and wanted me to swear out a warrant for my husband. She asked me where my husband was and I told her he was in Nelsonville. She asked me if he was diseased and she said he was no good. I told her if he was diseased I did not know it, when she said he was no good, I did not make her any answer, I just let it go in one ear and out the other. The next morning they took me over before the Juvenile Court and brought my children in. My baby came running up to me calling for its mamma. And Miss Murray said to the Judge, Mr. Black, Mrs. Patterson has decided to go to the hospital, I said, I am not sick, I want to go to my home and my children, and anyway they commited me over to St. Anthony's Hospital. After I had been there about an hour the Priest came up to the hospital and he said to me—

State objects to conversation unless in Judge Black's presence.

Sustained by the Court.

Q. Well, just tell what you done? A. Well, the Priest told me I could go home.

Q. Well, did you go home? A. So I went down stairs and Mother Superior let me out and somehow the Juvenile Officers heard I was out.

Q. Did you have your daughter with you? A. Yes, sir, they turned me loose and sent me home, so they heard I was out and the Juvenile Officers came to my house the next morning. I was up stairs picking up things and packing up, we were going to move. My little girl came and told me and I went down stairs, it was Miss Swayne, I think. She said to me, you have got to go back to the Juvenile Court and I said I would not go back to the Juvenile Court you have no warrant. They took the little girl back to the Juvenile Court, I don't know what they done with her and in about twenty-five minutes after that they came back for me, but I went down to my brother's and they did not find me. And I found that my little girl was over there and my sister told me to come and get the little girl, and when I came back the Sheriff came back after me and took me to the County jail and locked me up until Friday and Friday about eight o'clock I was committed to the State Hospital.

Q. How long did you remain in the State Hospital? A. Twenty-eight days.

Q. On what charge was you committed? A. I don't know. I went to the staff meeting and the doctor said, who sent you over here, your place is home with your children. State objected and asked that the latter part of this answer be stricken from the record. Sustained.

Q. How long did you remain in the State Hospital? A. 28 days.

Q. How was you released? A. Why my husband got a lawyer to go to Judge Black and get papers and let me out.

Q. Where did you go from the hospital? A. I went to my home.

Q. Where was that? A. 72 South Centner, went to my father's house.

Q. Tell the jury what you found when you got home? A. My husband had been in the county jail nine days.

Q. What else? Where was your children? A. My little boy and litthe girl was over with my sister. They had been after them twice from the Juvenile Court but they did not get them. My little baby was out at the baby hospital on Bryden Road and the little baby one at the Columbus Hospital and Esther was at St. Anthony's hospital.

Q. In what part? A. She was on the fourth floor in the tuberculosis ward.

Q. Did you get to visit her while she was there? A. No I visited her the week before she was taken out. We were not allowed to see her at all.

Q. Did you go to the tuberculosis ward? A. I went there on a Sunday and brought her home the next Saturday.

Q. Was you in the tuberculosis ward at St. Anthony's hospital? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now tell the jury what you found there?

Plaintiff objects. Objection sustained. Exceptions.

Q. Was you committed to the tuberculosis ward of St. Anthony Hospital? A. I was in that ward and stayed until after dinner there.

Q. Now tell the jury what the condition was in that ward while you was there?

State objects. Objection overruled. State excepts.

A. Tell what?

Q. Tell the jury just what the condition was in that ward while you was confined there? A. Well, there was a number of persons sick there, I did not just know the number, there were several ladies there about to die with tuberculosis, and one did die while I was there. The place was clean but it was an awful small room and the Father let me go out.

Q. What ward was that? A. Tuberculosis ward and it had several tenants.

Q. On what floor was it? A. It was on the fourth floor up in the attic, it was a very small room, not very high with little half windows. Just a little small room and the beds, had to set some this way and that way room to sit in there.

Q. What did you observe with reference to windows for light? A. On the front side there was one small window and on this side was two little bits of windows, and a little window on that side.

Q. Did you notice any other means of ventilation? A. I noticed there was a little window on this side and a little half window on that side.

Q. Did you notice any fire escapes from that floor? A. I did not look. But afterward I found out there is not any.

Objection by the State. Exceptions. Objection sustained. It was very cold in there and had no fire while I was there and I was just near froze when I got out.

Q. Now you stated a while ago that you started out of the Juvenile Court to go home to see your father, did you go home and talk it over with your father about swearing out an affidavit against your husband? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then after you talked with your father, what did you do? A. I went back over and told the Judge. I told him father said I could not sign a charge like that.

Q. What did the Judge say to you when you told him that? A. He told me to get out of his office or he would think I was a fraud and a hoodoo.

Q. What next occurred? A. I walked out of his office.

Q. Was anybody else present? A. There was two ladies there and they offered to keep me.

Q. You walked on out? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you have any conversation with the ladies? A. No, I did not, they were there when I was taken to St. Anthony's. I saw them there when they took me to St. Anthony's—they were there that day.

Q. Go on and tell what next occurred in Juvenile Court or Probate Court.

Q. Was you in the county jail more than once? A. I was in the county jail twice.

Q. Now, Mrs. Patterson, you may state what condition you found your home in when you returned from the insane asylum?

State objects. Objection sustained. Exceptions.

MASS ACTION TOWARD ONE END.

By Charles Edward Russell.

The first principle of individual success in concentrated attention and the first requisite of mass success is the combined attention of all its units on one subject.

Beyond doubt great power lies in the mere psychology of the same thought at the same time in a large number of minds. I think this is why May Day, as observed by the workers of Continental Europe, has been found so useful to their cause. On one day in the year the attention of great masses of men and women is drawn to Labor, its function in society, the monstrous injustice that it suffers. No doubt this is one of the reasons why the cause of Labor makes faster progress relatively abroad than it makes with us.

We have this year more than ever pregnant subjects for our most serious thought on May Day. We have the desperate situation of the workers of America, bearing an always increasing load of injustice, and we have the immediate work to be done for our own party.

No one who has observed the great increase in our membership in the last three or four months can fail to see that we have now before us our greatest opportunity. Let every member of the Socialist Party observe May Day and Red Week by securing at least one new member. It can be done. The time is ripe. The material is ready at our hands. Far more than 100,000 men and women are ready to join the Socialist Party if we will but give them the opportunity. No Socialist who at the end of Red Week has failed to secure at least one new member can feel that he or she is worthy of the greatest movement ever known on earth.

UNDER WHICH FLAG?

By Edward J. Dutton.

Rockefeller or the coal diggers. That's the issue. Rockefeller and his kind of union labor. Or all labor. He stated it plainly himself before the Congressional Committee at Washington. Said his company would spend millions to prevent the men from organising. All union labor should have hurled the challenge back in his teeth the moment it was uttered; but it did not—so you could notice it. Only a very weak murmur was heard. It should have been a mighty roar. It was no revelation to most of your readers, but it has cleared the atmosphere to have it stated so bluntly by one of the leading capitalists of the country.

He who fights the miners, then, no matter what kind of a uniform he wears or what kind of a flag he carries, is fighting for Rockefeller the II. And so they shoot down men, women and children. I think it was "Mad" Anthony Wayne who killed the Indian babes, saying if you killed the knits there would be no lice. So it seems, that while they do not wish to kill all the knits, they do not like the particular brand that is growing up in Colorado, and have disposed of a bunch of them.

Mr. Rockefeller was once the teacher of a Bible class. Perhaps is yet. Gets his inspiration and justification thereby. "The poor ye shall have always." He'll see to that part of it. Thinks it his duty. "Sell all your goods and give to the poor." How about this? Used figuratively. Don't mean a word of it. Has it blue pencilled. Takes what suits him. From the scriptures and elsewhere. "The meek shall inherit the earth." That's the stuff. He's the meekest of the meek. Got Uriah Heap backed off the map for humility. Meek enough to own all the earth. And he's after it. And for what? He has more than he can use, or his children can use, or his grandchildren can use, and then some. Did you ever see a hog eat all it could and then lie in the trough so that the others could get nothing? Now we are arriving at it. Hogs. Pure and simple. Contemptible swine. Worse. Because they are more intelligent. Bristles on their backs. You can gamble on it. But it's the system, and they are only individuals. Ah, yes. True. But the farmer takes a club and everlastingly belabors the hog lying in the trough. A hog can be taught to keep out of the trough. Perhaps human beings can also. No serious attempt has been made as yet, but the outlook is promising. A little satisfaction on the journey lends encouragement.

The people of Colorado are intelligent. The blood courses swiftly through their veins. The high altitude compels it. But the State is dominated by Big Money through petty politicians. The corporations own the State, and Rockefeller thought he knew whereof he spoke; but he has overreached. He's in bad. Not a doubt of it. He probably would give a million dollars of his "hard earned" cash could he recall his words uttered before the Confressional Committee. His fellow exploiters will be found denouncing him privately. He is the grave digger par excellence of the present order.

It's up to men and women of red blood to meet the issue here raised. Those who are satisfied with merely securing a few fat political jobs for their leaders will not count. They are back numbers. For or against Rockefeller, in both Mexico and Colorado. That's the all important question facing us.

Socialists elected two members of the School Council in Paro Robles, Cal.

In Aberdeen, Wash., two Socialist party members were elected to the City Council.

THE SOCIALISTS' BIG STATE PICNIC.

Arrangements have been completed to hold the State Picnic at Indianola, the Park Beautiful of Columbus, Ohio, Sunday, May 31st.

Comrade Debs of the National Rip-Saw, Comrade Fred A. Hinkel, Mayor of Hamilton, and the Socialist candidate for governor, will be the speakers. In case of inclement weather, the speaking will take place in the theater of the park.

This park is the most closely situated to the central part of the city and easily reached by two street car lines on which first class service is provided.

Many locals have already been heard from, promising to send big delegations from their vicinities, and with weather conditions in our favor we expect to crowd the park to its utmost capacity.

The park is not only the most beautiful in Columbus but is the best equipped, having all the up-to-date attractions—Shoot the Chutes, Blue Streak, Merry-Go-Round, Immense Bathing Pool (flowing water) and many others, including one of the finest dancing pavilions in the State and restaurant service to take care of the largest crowds.

A baseball game between the Y. P. S. L. of Cleveland and the Socialist Reds of Columbus is also on the picnic program and developing a keen rivalry between the comrades supporting these two teams.

We are now sending out to all the locals several thousand tickets which will admit the holders to the park free.

We want everybody coming to the picnic to be sure to use these tickets as they will be the barometer by which we determine the success of the picnic.

This is the first opportunity that all the Socialists of Ohio have ever had of getting together in a social way and the committee is hard at work to show all a good time.

Reception committees will be on hand at all railroad and traction stations to take care of and direct the incoming crowds.

Everybody prepare to turn out to this picnic and bring your friends and neighbors with you and help to make it an annual affair.

O. G. VAN SCHOYCK, S. S.

P. S.—Free tickets of admission will be given all who apply at this office.

A ROUSING RALLY

The meeting at headquarters addressed by Comrade F. G. Strickland last Tuesday evening took on the aspects of a religious revival. Time and again the applause and cheers were deafening. Relating the incident that occurred recently in N. Y. City, in which Comrade Bouck White was arrested and sentenced to six months' imprisonment at hard labor for attending Rockefeller's church, Strickland said: "If it has reached this point, then it is time for the workers to boycott the church." A good substantial collection was taken up.

SOCIALISTS WON'T REMAKE PARTY TO TAKE IN THE VICE PRESIDENT.

Socialists denied yesterday the report that they would remold the Socialist party so as to admit Vice President Thomas R. Marshall, who is reported willing to join provided it suited his particular views.

"The Socialist party is founded on certain fundamental truths," one of them declared to The Socialist, "which cannot be overlooked or denied according to the religious or moral viewpoint of an individual. Mr. Marshall would have to subscribe to the idea of the class struggle and the belief that to the producer belongs the product to join the Socialist party. What he has to say regarding religion doesn't enter into the matter. If this doesn't suit him, let him stay out. However, I would advise him to join anyway, because it will be a long time before a party comes along that will fit in with his views."

Marshall made the statement alluded to before a church gathering Sunday in Washington. He stated that there was "too much science and too little God Almighty in the so-called educational system" of today.

The Vice President also let it be known that some day he would forget all of the other political parties and join the Socialist.

"But," he went on, "I shall never do this until it becomes a friend of the church; never while it flaunts on the streets a red banner in the face of faith in God and the marriage service. The Socialism in which I believe, and to which I hope some day to adhere, is not that which concerns itself with consideration of power and property, but that of spirit."

CAPITALIST PAPERS SUPPRESS THE NEWS.

Some people believe that this is a country in which the newspapers give every one a square deal. Probably three-fourths of the people in this city do not know that a meeting was pulled off at Memorial Hall a week ago last Tuesday evening that taxed the capacity of the hall.

Had this been a meeting in which Peter Collins had been here to knock Socialism capitalist papers would have given the meeting front page headlines. It happened, however, that it was a meeting addressed by Dr. Rutledge, a Protestant minister of this city, in which he showed up the political significance of the Catholic Hierarchy, and how they are insinuating themselves into every fabric of our political life, how they use the juvenile courts to sentence innocent girls to convents where they are used to make profits for the Hershy Rice concern, and others.

About 3000 persons attended but not a line reporting the meeting appeared in capitalist papers. "The Socialist" was the only paper that would carry the adv. and is the only paper to make any comment. Draw your own conclusions as to why they refuse to print the truth.

CLAIMS REMEDY FOR TUBERCULOSIS.

A corporation was organized this week known as The Addiline Medicine Company.

The company was incorporated for the purpose of manufacturing and placing upon the market a remedy known as "ADDILINE" for Tuberculosis.

The persons back of this new company have for two years tested and determined the true merits of this medicine.

After a thorough trial of the medicine they are convinced that they have a remedy for tuberculosis that surpasses anything upon the market for this much dreaded disease.

The principle of this remarkable remedy is, by allowing the fumes to penetrate the air cells of the lungs, and by so doing it is believed that it will cure 65 per cent of the cases in which it is given a thorough test.

Those that have used the remedy are anxious to give their testimonials as to the true merits of the remedy and what it has done for them.

The Company expects to gather in addition the many testimonials they already have, the experience of those who have used it, and have them for those who wish to investigate the remedy.

If this remedy proves to be what those back of the Company claim for it, it will no doubt be one of the greatest discoveries for the human race, in recent years.

We are informed that this remedy contains no alcohol or opiates and has no ill effect upon the human system.

The company will open offices in the Brunson Building.

COLUMBUS—AS SEEN BY A DELEGATE TO 39TH ANNUAL CONVENTION OF THE A. A.

A most remarkable state of affairs exists in Columbus regarding the speed laws and the utter disregard of the most ordinary rules pertaining to the safety of the individual at street crossings and other places where people are usually in masses.

Automobilists act in a manner which is incomprehensible to travelers who are accustomed to visiting large cities, elsewhere all vehicles are subject to certain regulations and rules. Here in Columbus the drivers of autos have no regard for the simplest regulations which has for its purpose the preserving of the limbs and lives of the people; they act in a manner unbecoming civilized people, and think themselves above and greater than the law which protects the rights of the people.

Their action and behaviour indicate very plainly to all discerning persons that they think themselves above the common people and can have no interest in things and matters which are necessary for the good and safety of the masses.

Not only do those auto drivers override all rules of manners and common courtesy, but the executive department of Columbus, the police force, to whom the citizens look for the enforcement of all laws enacted by them, are violating the ordinances themselves.

Just think of the police patrol going through a crowd of men, women and children at the rate of sixty miles an hour, and what is the purpose of all this speed—the transporting to jail of a common drunken sot, endangering the lives of scores of people that the police may have the honor of making a quick run to the scene of trouble. The absurdity of this is beyond the comprehension of all intelligent sojourners in this city.

The liability insurance companies that formerly took $1,000,000 out of Ohio annually, and have been waging a desperate legal battle to cling to their graft, were given another knock-out blow by the State Supreme Court last Tuesday, when a decision was handed down upholding the workmen's compensation law. The court held that the section of the law which prohibits an employer from pleading the common law defenses of "fellow servant" responsibility "contributory negligence" of "assumption of risk" if he neglect to contribute to the compensation fund for injured employes is not contravention to the State Constitution and the fourteenth amendment of the Federal Constitution. The case will probably be appealed to the United States Supreme Court.

Why Catholic Workers Should Be Socialists

The Knights of Columbus and the Catholic Church have started upon a nation-wide campaign against Socialism. We must fight back with the weapon of education. Mary E. Marcy has written a booklet suggested by an attack in "The Live Issue," (Catholic) on her article in the International Socialist Review. In it she shows why Catholic Workers Should be Socialists, and answers the Catholic arguments on wages and profits, "free love," reforms, war and patriotism, the class struggle, strikes, private property, confiscation and religious freedom.

BATES TAKES THE STAND IN HIS OWN DEFENCE

Wesley Carl Bates, being first duly cautioned and sworn, testified as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION.

By Mr. Tompkins, counsel for defense.

Q. State your name to the jury? A. Wesley Carl Bates.

Q. You are the defendant in this action? A. I am.

Q. What is your age, Mr. Bates? A. I am forty-eight.

Q. Are you married? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What of a family have you? A. I have a wife and three children.

Q. Where do you live? A. I live at No. 385 Woodland Avenue, this city.

Q. How long have you been a resident of the City of Columbus? A. I came to Columbus at first, in 1887, I think.

Q. What is your profession? A. Attorney.

Q. How long have you been a practitioner of law? A. I think I was admitted to the bar in 1893.

Q. And have been engaged in that profession ever since? A. No, sir; not continuously. I was in the coal mining business for a number of years, possibly six or seven years, and I was in the real estate business for three or four years.

Q. Here in the city? A. Yes, sir; here in the city.

Q. I wish you would tell the jury what transpired in the Probate Court on the sixth day of February, this year? A. John C. L. Pugh and I had prepared a petition to sell the property of Mrs. Reeves, or rather it was the property of Mr. Reeves, who had died, leaving his widow and three children. The three children were being maintained and educated by Obed Jewell, who was their guardian and also an uncle by marriage. He came to me and advised with me with reference to the support, education and maintainance of these children, and later advised with Mr. Pugh and I together. The result of that consultation was we prepared a petition and made application in the Probate Court of this County to sell this property for the support and maintenance and education of these three minor children. The petition was filed in the Probate Court by Mr. Pugh. Both of our names were signed to the petition as I remember correctly, and the case was set for hearing on the 4th of February, but for some reason it was continued until the 6th of February in the afternoon. I was detained at my office on account of a real estate matter and did not go with Mr. Pugh and Mr. Jewell. I think it was about two o'clock when I reached the Probate Court room. Judge Black was not on the bench when I came into the Court room. I went in and took a seat like, over there (pointing to the north). There was a table sitting right along here (motioning with his hands) and another table run along here. Mr. Pugh and Mr. Jewell were sitting here at this table. I had not been there but a few minutes when one of the deputies went out of the room into another room and he and Judge Black came back into the room and Judge Black went on the bench. The bench was like ever here. Mr. Pugh arose and stated the object of his presence in Court and was told by Judge Black to proceed, and I think he read the petition and application for the sale of this property and then made a brief verbal statement. After he had finished, Mr. Nicholas, the attorney representing Mrs. Reeves, the widow, arose, I think, and read the answer in the nature of a cross petition; at any rate he made a statement to the Court. Up to that time I had said nothing; I was sitting over here (motioning with his hand.) Judge Black looked down from the bench and said to me, "Mr. Bates, I want to know what you have to do in this case. Is this a case of breaking up another American home?"

Q. Let me ask you, where were the children at that time? A. I think the oldest boy was in the Court room; I don't remember seeing the other child.

Q. I meant in whose home were they staying? A. They were staying at the home of Obed Jewell. Mrs. Jewell was their aunt. Mr. Jewell was guardian of the children. I replied, No, your Honor; I am here representing Mr. Jewell. I then made a brief statement of the case as I understood it, referring to the answer and cross petition, filed by the attorney for the widow, and I closed with this remark: "that this court has jurisdiction to grant this application and sell this property, and upon final distribution, determine the equities in the case." Judge Black said, There is no such a law, and you can't find such a law, and you know there is no such law. I replied, Your Honor, if the Court will permit me time, I will cite you authorities upon it. He replied, You get that law, right now. I asked one of the deputies to give me the index to the General Code of the State of Ohio. He brought it and laid it on the table. I walked around and took up the book and commenced to turn through the index to find the section of law upon which I was relying. While I was doing that, Judge Black said, If you come in here to make trouble, you can get all you want. I replied, No, Your Honor; I did not come for that purpose. I found the deputy had given me the wrong book; the book lay on the table. I goes around, picked up the book and continued my search through the index of that book, endeavoring to find the section of law upon which I was relying, and while I was sitting there at the table, Judge Black pointed his finger at me like that and said, If there is an unmitigated liar and scoundrel in Franklin County, you are that scoundrel. I made no reply.

Q. Who was this statement made to? A. He made it to me and pointed his finger like that. He repeated it almost identically the same words, and again I made no reply. He said it a third time, then I said, If there is another in this county, you are it. Judge Black then ordered the deputy to bring the Sheriff down and lock me up. One of the deputies went out and came in with deputy from Sheriff's office. Judge Black said to him, Take W. C. Bates and lock him up in the county jail—lock him up. I was locked up in the county jail, I think it was about three o'clock. I did not look at my watch immediately. I was searched, everything of value taken from my person. My money, pocketbook, watch, knife, and everything, and then turned loose in the corridor, until they locked me up in a cell that night. I was locked up in a cell and kept there until the next morning. But, before I was locked in the cell, I had gotten word to Charles E. Belcher; he came down to the jail sometime between five and six o'clock with a petition, for habeas corpus proceedings to get me out. I went back in the corridor and remained there until between nine and ten o'clock the next morning, when I was brought out before Judge Dillon and gave bond and was released on bond.

Q. Now Mr. Bates, state to the jury all the connection you had with the composition and punblication of the 44 specifications complained of in this case? A. It was on Saturday—I was released from jail the 7th of February. Local Columbus Socialist Party meets every Wednesday night. At the next meeting, the question of my arrest and incarceration in the county jail was taken up. I was called upon for a statement, which I made, and also referred to a number of affidavits which I had in my possession, and to the conditions existing in the Juvenile Court and the Probate Court, and I was requested to formulate charges against Samuel L. Black, Judge of the Probate Court.

Q. What was to be done with these charges? A. These charges were to be submitted to Local Columbus. I am not sure, but I think on the following Wednesday night, these charges were submitted to Local Columbus, directly in the form which they are now, and then Local Columbus appointed a Committee of three, consisting of E. B. Eubanks, M. Green and Edgar Wood, but Comrade Wood resigned and J. M. Suddick was appointed in his stead. That Committee called on me and we went over these charges together, and I submitted to them these affidavits which I had in my possession—some I had had two years—with the names of witnesses, together with statements which the witnesses had given me, but not sworn to, and a great mass of them were gone over by this committee of three. Some two weeks time was consumed in this investigation. Not, of course, two weeks, continuously, but evenings and nights for two weeks. I think the second Wednesday night after this committee was appointed, this committee made their formal report to Local Columbus, and that formal report is down in that paper, which I think would be better for me to read than to tell it verbally This is the formal report:

The Local Columbus Socialist Party of Ohio: We, your Committee, duly elected and instructed to inquire into the charges of misconduct in office of one Samuel L. Black, Judge, beg leave to submit the above, consisting of our preamble and 44 specifications as our report, and hereby certify that each of said specifications can, in our opinion, be substantiated by an overwhelming array of witnesses.

Your committee beg leave to recommend that the Propaganda Committee prepare such petition as is authorized by law, and present the same to the Judges of the Common Pleas Court of Franklin County, Ohio, respectfully, but firmly demanding the removal of Samuel L. Black as Judge of the Juvenile Court; and, upon refusal, to prepare and circulate such petition as is authorized by law, for the recall of said Samuel L. Black, as Judge of the Probate Court of Franklin County, Ohio.

E. B. EUBANKS.
M. C. GREEN.
J. M. SUDDICK.
Committee of Three.

Q. What was the object in formulating these charges?

Plaintiff objects. No ruling by the Court.

Q. What was the purpose in formulating these charges? A. The purpose in formulating these charges was to bring to the attention of Local Columbus and the citizens of Franklin County generally, the conditions that existed in the Probate Court and the Juvenile Court of this county, and all the unlawful, disgraceful and terrible things that was being done by the Juvenile and Probate Judge of this county, so that the people and the party might know the conditions, and, if possible, remedy these conditions.

Q. What become of these charges? A. After this Committee had reported to Local Columbus that in their opinion, all of the 44 charges could be substantiated, Local Columbus authorized the Propaganda Committee—the Executive Committee of the Socialist Party, I do not mean a campaign committee or a committee for campaign purposes—to employ an attorney and prepare a petition, the petition to include these 44 charges, and file it with the Judges of the Common Pleas Court, respectfully, but firmly demanding the removal from office of Samuel L. Black, Judge of the Juvenile and Probate Court of this county.

Q. By Mr. Patterson: May I inquire if you kept minutes? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You bring the minutes here after dinner? A. I do not know whether I can after dinner or not. I would have to make a special trip after them; I do not know as I can have the time.

Q. Can you get the records? A. The records are in the possession of the Secretary of Local Columbus. This motion was made in writing; all the proceedings of Local Columbus are reduced to writing and spread on the minutes of the books. I will try to reach him.

Mr. Tompkins continues his direct examination.

Q. State what you did? A. I was present at Local Columbus when they passed this motion. I was not present when the Propaganda Committee met. They passed a motion to employ me as attorney to prepare a petition and to include these 44 charges. They did employ me as attorney for that purpose, and under that employment, I did prepare a petition, including these 44 charges, and I did file that petition with the Judges of Common Pleas Court of Franklin County, Ohio, on the 11th day of March, 1914, by handing that copy of the petition and a number of affidavits attached, to Judge Rodgers, presiding judge of the Common Pleas Judges.

Q. What is this document I hand you? A. That is the petition which I prepared as attorney for the Propaganda Committee of the Socialist Party, and filed with Judge Rodgers, presiding Judge of the Judges of the Court of Common Pleas.

Questions asked by juror, Leo Lindenberg:

Q. What was the purpose of that petittion? A. The purpose of this petition was to have Judge Black removed as Judge of the Juvenile Court.

Q. Is that course prescribed by law? A. I think so.

Mr. Tompkins continues his direct examination of witness Bates.

Q. Now upon what facts or information did you base these specifications? A. Well, I based them largely upon sworn affidavits in my possession at the time, many of which were attached to this petition when filed with the Judges of the Common Pleas Court. I also based that petition upon the statements of many witness who had come voluntarily into my office and gave me their names and addresses, together with statements with reference to the conditions existing in the Probate Court and Juvenile Court under Judge Black.

Q. What reliance, if any, did you place in these statements?

Plaintiff objects. Objection overruled. Plaintiff excepts.

A. Many of these witnesses are persons who are personally known to me, known to be respectable, responsible and reliable.

Q. You may state the names of these people? Under Specification No. 1. Read the specification?

Specification No. 1. He has been guilty of gross neglect of duty, gross immorality and drunkenness, and thereby of misconduct in office.

Q. Under this specification, read the names of the person who gave you the information.

AFTERNOON SESSION

Mr. Bates still on the stand.

Q. How many persons whose names you read, gave you information under specification No. 1? A. I did not count them.

Q. Have they all been witnesses, and did they come before charges were filed? A. Some of them have been witnesses here and some of them have not. And I know we have a number of statements of witnesses at the office that have not been introduced here, but what of these witnesses have come to us since the charges were filed, I am unable to state.

Q. Read Specification No. 2. A. He has been guilty of misfeasance, malfeasance and non-feasance, and thereby guilty of misconduct in office.

Q. Read the names of the witnesses that you get information concerning these charges? A. This list of witnesses I am reading from now, came to us before the charges were filed. I might make some possible exceptions to that statement, but I do not think there has been any witnesses' names added to this list since this list has been made up.

Q. By Mr. Patterson: Do not repeat any of the names. A. Now, under these charges, the same name will appear perhaps, a half dozen or more times—the same name will appear under that many or more different charges.

WORKERS, WE CAN WIN IN FRANKLIN COUNTY

Comrades we can win in Franklin County this fall. This is no idle dream. Capitalism is crumbling to its fall. The workers have had a lesson the past winter that has made an impression. That lesson is one of bitter, horrible experience.

On every hand they have been brutally "laid off," discharged and told to "walk the streets." Thousands have felt the bitter pangs of hunger, that never before were in actual want. They have raised their heads, and seen the stores and warehouses filled to overflowing with all the good things of life, while they and their families suffered. In their minds a great doubt has been raised, they are beginning to wonder what it is all about. They are beginning to doubt the "divine right" of the capitalists to skin the workers. They are in a mood that bodes no good to the capitalist lackeys running on old party tickets.

They have had besides, the examples of Ludlow and Calumet. They have seen their class shot down, murdered and burned alive, by the masters who own the jobs. Not only were the workers themselves murdered, but their women and children were butchered as well, and why? All because these heroic men and women were demanding enough of the product of their own toil to keep body and soul together.

The workers have learned that no longer will it do any good to vote an old party ticket. The name Democrat, Republican and Bull Moose is sickening to them. Thousands refuse to vote at all. But they will vote and vote for Socialism if you carry the message. We want to carry this county for the workers. You want to carry it for the workers. We can do it. Double the circulation to "The Socialist" now and we will do it.

It is a very little thing to get us a club of four. Half an hour's work tomorrow morning amongst your neighbors will bring it not only four, but often times many times four. Do your share tomorrow, and all next week. Get in the harness. There are very bright prospects of sending workers to Congress from other districts in Ohio. Our chances are indeed bright, if you workers on the firing line will get up and at 'em. Strike a blow for Liberty. No master ever voluntarily released his slave. "He who would be free must himself strike the first blow." If you have never struck a blow for Liberty before, join the great army of happy men and women who are working for this noble cause, by turning in a club of new subs. next week.

Never was the time so propitious and subs so easy to land as now. Strike while the iron is hot, to double the circulation, and let the cry be, clean out the court-house, and on to Washington.

BABY DODSON NOW LEGALLY BELONGS TO HER PARENTS

It is a sad commentary on present-day capitalist society to be compelled to head an article like this is headed.

When Kate Dodson with her mother-heart torn with anguish, came to "To Socialist" with her story of brutal treatment and outraged womanhood, and motherhood, when she broke down and wept as she told of the harrowing treatment, accorded her by Samuel L. Black in Juvenile Court, when she related between sobs how her darling two-year-old baby girl had disappeared nearly a year ago, and she did not know where the child was at, and the authorities refused to tell her, we determined that we would take this case, as one out of many, and see if any justice whatever remained.

Due to the enormous circulation "The Socialist" has obtained in the past two months, which is slowly but surely moulding public opinion and teaching the people a new ethics and a new economics, we are proud to say that we have succeeded in recovering the child and we did it alone, without the help of a single other publication.

The child was located in the home of John Iuscho, 208 Schultz Avenue, this city. Too much praise cannot be given these kind-hearted people who had charge of the child. Although they had learned to love the little one and had accorded her the very best treatment, when they found that Mrs. Dodson was the child's mother they willingly gave her up. In fact Mrs. Inscho states that when they first learned that the child was lost, they suspicioned that the child they had was "Baby Dodson" and called up the Children's Home to learn the whereabouts of her parents, but the Home refused to tell.

Last Tuesday the habeas corpus proceedings which had been brought before Judge Kinkaid was dismissed, as the mother now has the child. Rejoice, the Socialists have succeeded in reuniting a family that capitalism had "broken up."

This is only a criterion of the happy times that are just a short distance ahead, when working class homes will be just as sacred as that of the masters. It is also a notice that ere long there will be none but working class homes and "every man shall sit under his own vine and fig tree and there shall be none to make them afraid."

THE MASSACRE OF LUDLOW

By Clara Ruth Mozhor.

Two days following the Ludlow massacre I came upon the ruins of the tent colony. Ludlow was still a smouldering, smoking mass of ashes. What was once the homes of these men who had come across the seas to build for their wives and babies was now an aching desolation. I came to get at the bottom of the trouble that caused a colony in which there were women and children to be fired on by machine guns and soldiers' rifles.

Waste and ruin, death and misery were the harvest of this war that was waged on helpless people. The ruthlessness of the steady fusillade of bullets from the machine guns turned against these people by the terrific force of capital in the human form of the inhuman octopus John D. Rockefeller, wiped out whole families, separated husbands and wives, mothers and babies and sent into the beyond little ones whose day of life was but a short time off.

Only a few weeks ago Ludlow was a colony of life. Eight American flags waved gladly in the air over its tents. Here was going on the making of Americans in this great western melting pot in the southern coal fields of Colorado.

And on these self-same ruins was enacted the most awful tragedy, the darkest chapter of American history, the Ludlow massacre when sleeping families were made the targets with which to break the backs of the strikers.

The very region of Ludlow is one of nature's hell holes, full of its dark canyons and deep arroyos, its hills and mountains. And in these mountains, in these Black Hills are scattered the men. Many of them do not know where their families are. Some of the women and children are still in the friendly ranch houses, while most of them are in the shelter of Trinidad homes and refuges thrown open to them.

The entire southern district is in the throes of war. Not civil, but industrial warfare, that has made such a reign of terror as must forever remain a black spot in the history of the state and nation. Ludlow is not the beginning of this war of desolation and sorrow. Seven months ago the union men went on strike. They demanded many things, but they were willing to waive them all should they only be given the recognition of their union.

Today in Ludlow stalks the spirit of the dead, the massacred and the slaughtered. Mothers with babies at their breasts and babies at their skirts and mothers with babies yet unborn were the targets of this modern warfare.

And why? is the question. "Why should this be so?" seems to be written across the early morning sky. The question is not now one of who fired first, but why were women and children fired upon?

In Ludlow the militia answer the question. In Trinidad and where the refugees were, the miners answer the question.

Major Hamrock, the officer who was in command of the Ludlow militia on the day of the attack on the tent colony, to all questions answers only, "Self defense."

"But the machine guns, they were used against women and babies; were they not?"

"Yes, but we thought they had fled."

"Where to? When? They had no time, had they?"

"No, but we thought they were gone."

"We gave them warning," said another officer.

"We had trained machine guns on the colony before," said still another.

No one agreed on the minor question of why? but all knew that machine guns were trained on the colony sometime early in the morning.

"Did you fire the tents?"

"No," was the answer, "that was due to an explosion in the camp." And that is the story of the militia. "Self defense, self defense," insisted the commanding officer.

And then comes the other side.

"They fired the machine guns on us to better destroy the colony," say the strikers.

"They came to us demanding that we deliver up to them a man who was never with us. They had no civil authority to search the camp and the military had already been removed.

"Then came a call for a conference with the Greek leader of the colony, Louis Tikas. He was coming back to us, waving a white flag in his hand, when two bombs went off and the firing started from the militia in front of us and the machine guns to the rear. Our men snatched their rifles and made an open dash for the hills, thinking thereby to draw the fire to themselves and leave us women and children free. But the militia was bent on exterminating us. They fired on us all day long. Some of us were in the pits and dugouts the men had made and some of us were in wells and in the pump house.

"And then at sundown," and the woman have given this out on affidavit, "at sundown, we saw the soldiers go from tent to tent, and as they left each tent would become a blazing ruin."

"At night we fled, some to the ranch houses and some to the depot where a train took us to Trinidad."

This is the story of the refugees.

There was still another story. The story of the dead. On the afternoon that I was at Ludlow, out of one pit, the "Black Hole of Ludlow," the bodies of eleven children and two women were taken, smothered and mangled, charred, burned and swollen. One by one they were placed on the dead wagons and taken into Trinidad. Mexican women and two babies, a third that was to give birth in three months; another woman and her three children, and still another baby that was born dead three days after the mother had been killed. This baby came after the mother was brought to Trinidad. Physicians said it was the strangest child-birth ever given to woman. That same day Charles Costa, the father of the family, was brought in from the sand pits in front of the Black Hills, where he had been doing duty, shot in two.

These were the dead.

In Trinidad were also the living dead. In a cheap boarding house, up several flights of steps, following winding corridors, in a dim lit windowless room, lay Mary Pedrigon. She was living and yet her mind was dead. She had escaped from Ludlow, but her babies were smothered in the pit that held those other women and children. Mary Pedrigon was thin and wasted. And over and over again her parched lips would repeat the names of her little ones, the only persons that Mary Pedrigon could remember.

In another house was a mother, three babies and a father. They were mourners. Frank Snyder, their ten-year-old boy, had been shot before their very eyes. The little one playing in the tiny room, happy and laughing, but in the ears of the mother was not the sound of the voices of the babies left to her, but of the boy, Frank, the back of whose head had been shot off by a bullet.

These are the stories, living and dead, of Ludlow. These were the incidents that marked the Ludlow massacre. These are facts as I found them and the people as I saw them.

And still in my ears rings the unanswered question "Why?"—International Socialist Review.

DO YOU REALLY WANT SOCIALISM?

By John M. Work.

It has been said that socialism will not be introduced on Wednesday afternoon at half past two. In other words, it will not be a sudden process so that we can point to any specific date as the time when the new order was born.

I agree with that statement.

But, it is also true that there will come a time when we will win a general election and capture the powers of the national government.

That day will be the beginning of the end of the great struggle for Socialism. That day will be the beginning of the end of exploitation, poverty, and all the social ills that blight the lives of the great host whose hearts are weary "longing for the strife to cease."

When will that day come?

It will come whenever the Socialists want it to come. We can have Socialism whenever the Socialists really want Socialism.

A minority of the Socialists are exceedingly active. Their work for the cause is all that could be desired or expected.

But there are thousands upon thousands of people who vote the Socialist ticket, and yet who never turn a hand over to get Socialism except by that one act. That act is very commendable in itself, but, instead of being the sole act performed for the cause, it should be the culmination of many activities. Maybe these people want Socialism, but they certainly do not act like it.

In order to get Socialism, it is necessary to convince a majority of the people that we ought to have it — so that they too will vote the ticket.

There is no way to do this except through close, compact, thorough, efficient organization.

We must fight systematicall, not chaotically.

We must fire broadsides, not popguns.

We must meet the powerful organization of the enemy with an organization still more powerful.

Ten million unorganized Socialists would have no terrors for the capitalist class.

But, half a million organized Socialists, carrying on a systematic, persistent, courageous, methodical propaganda, can turn the United States, not upside down, but right side up, scare the plutes into spasms, carry the election and introduce Socialism.

You are not a good Socialist unless you are a member of the Socialist party organization.

You are not a good Socialist unless you hustle for Socialism.

A Socialist who is not a member of the party organization is exploiting his own brother Socialists, because he is making them perform the duties he ought to perform.

We are already beginning to be called upon to step in and take charge of the immediate work of making the transition from capitalism to Socialism. In many localities, this responsibility has already been placed upon us.

Yet, many alleged Socialists still neglect their duty, though these successes make it vastly easier than hitherto to build a powerful organization and to reach the people.

Joining the party organization and paying dues promptly is the first duty of every Socialist. No other work you can do for the cause will have such a telling and far-reaching effect.

Having joined, be a member — a real member — not a dead one.

Every member of the Socialist party is an integral part of the movement.

Every member should be active.

Every member should be thoroughly posted, not only on the principals, but also on the tactics and current events of the movement, so that the organization will at all times be able to act with both wisdom and expedition on every question that arises.

This insures the maintenance of a rank and file movement.

Both a thorough and efficient organization and a rank and file movement are indispensable in the Socialist party.

We do not want members to be like the man who pasted a copy of the Lord's Prayer on the wall of his bedroom and every night when he was ready to jump into bed jerked his thumb at it and said, "Oh, Lord, them's my sentiments."

We do not want any half-hearted devotion.

We want every member to be earnest, sincere, aggressive, persistent, and indomitable.

We want him to pass a resolution in his own mind that he will do all in his power to make his locality an outpost, a recruiting station, a base of supplies, an intellectual and financial fortress if your please, in the political war for the establishment of the Socialist commonwealth.

That it requires to accomplish these results is thorough organization, co-ordinate effort, persistent aggressiveness, wise forethought, and indomitable courage.

The time for scattering shot is gone.

The time for rainbow chasing is gone.

We must be practical.

We must use common sense.

We must advance upon the enemy in perfect order and in battle array.

By so doing, we shall win this political battle and emancipate ourselves from the galling chains of capitalism.

AGAIN, THE "WIDOW MAKER."

There is no intention to use the bromidic "told you so" in connection with the news report to the effect that the one man drill known as the "widow maker" is being installed rapidly in the Calumet district. In one mine, we are told, 250 men have been displaced by this man-killing drill. This drill was one of the things the Western Federation was fighting against. And the installation o fthis machine at this time but reveals the predicted hypocrisy of the mine owners. What they are after is profit. And anything they say is always subject to modification or revision to suit the needs of profit-making. So, despite volumes of welfare talk, there comes the one-man drill — the "widow maker." And every open-eyed person DID KNOW that it would come.

HUMAN RIGHTS — WHERE?

Concerning Mexico, President Wilson is quoted as having declared:

They want order — the old order; but I say to you that the old order is dead. It is my part, as I see it, to aid in composing those differences so far as I may be able, that the new order, which will have its foundation on human liberty and human rights, shall prevail.

That declaration, we must believe, applies only to Mexico. Some day we shall have in the White House a President who will make a declaration something like this APPLYING TO THE UNITED STATES.

SWARMED

R. M. Hartman.

We are now having a depression of business brought about by the Capitalist Class all because the Railroads want a 5 per cent increase in freight rates and the mine operators want the screen bill knocked out.

If the railroads would get this increase in the freight rates, the shippers would have to invest 5 per cent more on every 100 pounds of freight shipped and the consumer would then have to pay them an increase on their investment and if the operators get the screen bill knocked out, then it will be lawful for them to rob the miners of all the screenings.

The miners have to work just as hard to get the screenings out of the mine as they do to get the lumps out and the operators sell the screenings to the large corporations at a reduced rate and the lumps go to the laboring class consumer at an advanced rate but if the bill goes into effect the large corporations will have to pay more for the coal they use to produce the products of the general public and then the general public will have to pay a more advanced rate to the present high cost of living and if the laboring class burn coal they will pay a more advanced rate than at present and the laws are made to protect us; that is why we are in want or in the fear of want.

The laboring class can best be compared with honey bees. The bees produce the honey — that is their luxury — and the laboring class produce everything, and that is their luxury, but do they get to use the luxury they produce? Not any more than the bees. The bees are robbed by the owner of the hive, but he does not take it all; he leaves just enough for them to exist on and sometimes he gives them sugar in return and finally spring comes and they start their much-needed production; but there is dissatisfaction and fear of want among the bees, so the Queen decides to move and they start and the owner of the hive discovers that he is going to lose his bees and he gets a club and starts to hammer on the hive and the bees become confused and return to the hive that was the cause of their near starvation the year previous, and so it is with the laboring class, they can work year in and year out and produce the necessities of life, and all the luxuries of life, only to be robbed, just the same as the bees, but the worst of it is, we vote for this system year after year and have not the sense of the bees.

We call ourselves civilized human beings and still we allow ourselves to be confused in the same manner as the bees. We know that we are being robbed of what we produce and we know we are living in want or in the fear of want. Why are we robbed? Simply because we vote men into office who are picked and financed by the capitalist class to make the laws that rob us.

Why are we living in want or the fear of want? The weather has nothing to do with our producing as in the bees' case. We just go ahead producing as much as we possibly can because we are driven to it and if we cannot produce a certain amount we are shoved out to make room for the next victim who has been in want and he will allow his bones and muscles to be ground into profits that it may be hoarded away and all the time he is living in want or the fear of want.

The big interests by this time have their granaries full and you are laid off and it is about election time and you are in want and the laboring class of the country are in want and we will go from place to place begging for work and in our pursuit we see a congested street corner and we rush up, through curiosity only, to hear one of those slick-tongued capitalist-paid orator telling us that the past four years (for the capitalist class) was the most successful for years, and gents, if you want work and lots of it, vote the same party into office again and he will reduce the tariff or advance it and times will be good again, and right there is where we have been swarmed all our lives and you will have to admit it.

You never stop to think that this man is paid by and represents a party that is financed by the corporations and if elected can only favor the class that financed his campaign.

Did you ever stop to think that the working class has a party that is financed by the working class and that they do not uphold the present system of robbing the working class?

This Party is known as "THE SOCIALIST PARTY" and it stands for working men's rights the same as the two old parties stand for the capitalist class rights.

The only way for the working class to fight the capitalist class is at the ballot box by voting the Socialist ticket straight and finally we will have a Socialist Government which insures that every industry will be run for us and not for profit, it insures us a home to live in instead of paying high rent for a cheap shack, it assures us that everything collectively used will be collectively owned, it insures shorter hours for work and longer hours for pleasure.

In the times of negro slavery the slave owner owned a certain number of slaves according to his industrial capacity and he had to feed them and clothe them and doctor the mand keep a bunch of blood hounds to catch them if they ran away and the hounds had to be fed also and still the slaves found time to dance and shoot crap.

There was war brought on to free the colored slaves, and by so doing there were thousands of children made fatherless and as many homes made miserable and thousands of the best and ablest men, not only in the North, but in the South, that spilled their blood on the land of the free, that the colored slaves could go free at a cost of millions of dollars and a destruction of property that has not yet in all these years been replaced.

Well, what of the laboring class of today? We have to pay the house rent, the grocery bill, the gas bill, the coal bill, the clothes bill, the doctor bill and other bills too numerous to mention and at the end of the year we have a large number of receipts to show for our share of production.

What did the colored slave have at the end of a year? Just as much as any of us less the receipts, and after all this we vote for a system that robs the laboring class almost the same as the colored slave was robbed of what they produced.

The colored slave had no vote by which to change the system, but the laboring class of today have the vote by which they can change the system, but they are so used to being swarmed that they go on from year to year allowing the capitalist-paid orator to tell them how to vote.

It is high time to start a war, not with guns to rob the poor mothers and children of their sole support, but with the ballot. Vote the Socialist ticket straight and abolish slavery without bloodshed.

Was there ever such a thing as real over-production? Did any country ever produce too much food and clothing for its people? The term "over-production" is a misnomer. It is used when the people haven't enough money to buy what workers produce in the mills, mines and factories. So the goods lie on the shelf to rot and the people starve. Nix on the "over-production" stunt. It is wearing out.

Recess Fifteen Minutes.

Q. Mr. Bates, did you have any information, other than the interviews you had with persons in your office or elsewhere, on which you predicated your specifications? A. Yes, I had a number of affidavits. These affidavits, with possibly one or two exceptions, attached to this petition that was filed with Judge Rogers.

Q. Did you have any other information upon which you predicated this information? A. Yes, sir, I had a number of newspaper clippings.

Q. Have you them here? A. Yes, sir, I have a copy of The Trades Record, of the issue of November, 1912.

Q. Read it.

Objection by Mr. Patterson, counsel for State.

Ruling by Court: Might ask if it is a newspaper of general circulation.

Objection overruled. Court's ruling: He can tell where he got his information from.

Q. Where did you get this newspaper article? A. It was handed to me by a son of David Jennings.

Q. Did you ever have any conversation with Mr. Jennings concerning this article? A. Yes, sir, and with other parties also.

Q. Did you get any statement from him with reference to it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What he stated to you is it what is expressed in that article? A. Substantially what is expressed in this article.

Q. Now, instead of introducing this article I will ask you to tell the jury what Jennings told to you?

Objection by Plaintiff. Sustained. Defendant excepts.

Q. Did you have any further information, Mr. Bates, upon which you predicated these specifications? A. Yes, sir. Something about a year ago I had a conversation with C. C. Hollenbeck.

Q. What was that conversation in reference to such matters as you have incorporated in this specification?

Plaintiff objects. Court's ruling; Bring Mr. Hollenbeck here, gentlemen. Defendant excepts.

Q. Did you have any further conversation with anybody upon which you based these specifications—upon which you based these charges? A. Yes, sir. Some time during the fall or winter of 1912 or 1913, I had a conversation with J. J. Lentz to which he referred to an article published in The Times. I asked him where I could get a copy of The Times, he told me and I went and got it and read it.

Q. Did you have that in mind at the time you prepared these specifications. A. I did.

Q. By the way, what did Mr. Hollenbeck state, in regard to the truth of the statement made in The Times?

Objection by Plaintiff. Objection overruled. Exceptions.

A. Mr. Hollenbeck told me the charges publishes in The Times were true and gave me the names of some parties that could be called upon to substantiate them. I think the name of one of the parties was Fire Chief Laurer and another Willis Bolin.

There will be color in the life of everybody when the working class becomes intelligent enough to open the gates of prosperity.

Can any sane man or woman believe that present conditions are to continue? If not, what other remedy is there, aside from Socialism?

How to avoid death in war: Keep putting off enlisting until the Bankers, the Billy Sundays and the Big Business men enlist and go to the front for real service on the firing line.

Interest on money is the meanest way of making money that the brain of man ever devised. It means living off some other fellows labor without doing a lick of work for it.

Every man must live by his own labor or the labor of others. We believe that every man able to work should live by his own labor and not from the labor of others. How do you manage to live?

SOCIALISM OFFERS—

An education to every child,

A job to every worker,

A pension to everyone not able to work.

If this looks Good To You, VOTE FOR IT.

Don't pity yourself! act. Don't beg! demand. The world belongs to the strong, the active, the daring. Power is the arbitrator of the world, and power is the combination of intelligence, courage, energy and material force.

No sane workingman would see a member of his family starved or suffering for the want of clothing. Yet, we are nothing more than a large family on this globe and a majority allow thousands to suffer want and privation by continuing to vote the old parties into power.

Local Fostoria S. P. is initiating a referendum proposing that the first Sunday in May each year be set aside as State Memorial Day in honor of departed comrades.

Another Christian Socialist preacher has received his walking papers. Rev. William Miller Gamble, who acted as one of the "mourning pickets" in front of the Rockefeller offices at 26 Broadway, New York, was fired from St. Mark's Church last week for daring to attract attention to Holy John's murderous warfare against the Colorado miners.

Rev. John H. Yates, of Middletown, to whose radical utterances attention was called in this paper several weeks ago, bids fair to get away with his attack upon the citadel of conservatism. Some of the fogies wanted to kick Rev. Yates out of the pulpit in the Church of the Ascension because he believed in "a certain ism," which is proscribed by plutocracy and its waterboys, and actually talked about it. The Pious Pecksniffs took their troubles to Bishop Reece of this city, who declared that Yates would not be removed. "An Episcopal clergyman has as much a right to be a Socialist as a Democrat or Republican," Bishop Reece declared. "He is not hired merely to preach what the vestry likes to hear. And, as an American citizen, he has the right of free speech." It appears that Rev. Yates' principle offense was in preaching from a church document on the question of Christianising the Social order, which the reactionary boneheads in the congregation were unable to understand.

Hamilton Socialists are going to build a headquarters of their own, a site having been secured for such purpose. The dues-paying membership is increasing at a rapid rate. The Socialists members of the City Council are advocating a minimum wage of $2.50 a day and eight hours for city laborers, and, of course, the old party politicians and taxpayers are howling against such extravagance.

Nine new Socialist party organizations were formed in the state during the month of March, the latest report. Besides that, many locals report a healthy increase, over a hundred new members being gained in 10 organizations. State Secretary Van Schoyck is endeavoring to enforce a plan whereby every local in Ohio will be required to make a regular monthly report of members in good standing, increases, lapses, etc., matter that is sadly neglected by many organizations.

NATIONAL

In the landslide in the French general elections last week for members of Parliament, two renegade Socialists who imagined themselves bigger than the movement, suffered ignominious defeat. Allemane, who led a secession movement in Paris, lost his seat, receiving only 1,200 out of 9,200 votes in his district. Myrens, another former Socialist member of Parliament representing Boulogue, went daffy on the religious question and joined the Briand reactionists with the result that he lost out.

Pennsylvania Socialists have placed a complete State ticket in the field headed by Joseph A. Allan, of Bryn Mawr, for Governor. A largely increased vote is looked for this fall in the old Keystone State, where scandal, incompetency and all-around antagonism to the working people has created much dissatisfaction in the old parties.

Final official returns of the recent British municipal elections have been received from London, which show that the Labor and Socialist Parties had nominated a total of 390 candidates, of which number 220 were elected. The gain was 126 seats in municipal bodies, and only 11 loses, showing a net increase of 115. The grand total gains since April, 1911, amount to 485, which shows that fine progress is being made in the land of John Bull.

There are 50,000 Chinese in the Philippine Islands, and they have a Socialist newspaper, the only paper they read. During the revolution in the islands, an English Socialist, whose name is not made public, who was in business in Shanghai, met a Chinese medical man in Manila, Dr. Tee Han Kee, who was a Christian. The Englishman talked socialism to the doctor one evening, and the result was that later the doctor started a Socialist paper for the Chinese of the Philippines. The paper is called Kong Li Po, that is, Justice and Reason.

The total dues-paying membership enrolled in the Socialist movement the world over has been compiled by Morris Orans and is given as 2,787,984 against 1,007,000 in 1904. When the recent enormous increase of members in Germany is added and the normal growth in other countries considered it can be safely said that the total membership is easily 3,000,000.

Here is a real novelty that should be duly recorded. Val. Bausch, a Jersey City Socialist, was arrested for street speaking by a fresh cop, named Chevalier, who belies his name. Bausch sued Chevalier for damages and the court ordered the latter to pay his intended victim the nominal sum of $5. But that was not the worst. The judge, in awarding judgement, handed out a severe lecture to the officious bluecoat, saying that it was not up to him to suppress free speech without special cause, and that the Socialists have a right to express their views upon the public highways.

Now a nice little scandal has broken out in Schenectady, N. Y. When the Socialists were in power last year the Tax Board was a tie, being composed of two Democrats and two Socialists. The latter wanted to assess a large parcel of land that was being held for speculative purposes at its true value, but the plan was held up by the Dems. After the fusionists defeated the Socialists, a part of the same land was sold to the city for park purposes at a figure many thousands higher than the value estimated by the Socialists. The balance will be sold at fancy prices when the city parks its parcel. Fine business.

Italy may soon be the scene of another great Parliamentary battle. Eighty Socialist members have pledged themselves to make every effort to overturn the present Salandra Ministry. They claim that former Preimier Giolitti secretly planned his own overthrowal several months ago in order to dodge a very bitter attack that would be made upon his war policy in Tripoli, and that he dictated the appointment of the Salandra Cabinet in order to weather the storm if possible, after which another shift would be made and Giolitti would resume the government leadership. The Socialists, who constitute the brains and backbone of the opposition, are arranging their attack not only to dethrone Salandra, but to force a general election, believing that not only would it be impossible for Giolitti to secure a new working majority in Parliament, but that their own representation in that body would be largely increased and that they could dictate important labor legislation as a result.

AN EXCELLENT ARTICLE

The advertisement which appears in this weeks paper in reference to The Demtley Sweeper is worthy of investigation by all of our readers. The editor of this paper has had one of them in his home for some time and the Mrs. reports it is the finest and most reliable article of its kind she has ever used.

The agents for this sweeper are the McAllister Mohler Co., of this city. They will give you a demonstration for the asking.

Why Catholic Workers Should Be Socialists

The Knights of Columbus and the Catholic Church have started upon a nation-wide campaign against Socialism. We must fight back with the weapon of education. Mary E. Marcy has written a booklet suggested by an attack in "The Live Issue," (Catholic) on her article in the International Socialist Review. In it she shows why Catholic Workers Should be Socialists, and answers the Catholic arguments on wages and profits, "free love," reforms, war and patriotism, the class struggle, strikes, private property, confession and religious freedom.

BLACK CALLED BATES "LIAR" —SAYS WITNESS

John C. L. Pugh, being first duly sworn, testified as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION.

Conducted by Mr. Tompkins.

Q. State your name please? A. John C. L. Pugh, age 59, born and bred in Columbus.

Q. Born, bred and still live in Columbus? A. I live in Grandview Heights, but I was bred and born here.

Q. What is your profession? A. Attorney.

Q. Did you have any business in the Probate Court on the 6th day of February? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was it? A. I prepared a petition for Mr. Obed Jewell for the sale of Lot No. 4, of Carpenter's Subdivision, for the maintenance and education of wards that were living with him. It was filed on the 23rd of January, a hearing was set for the 4th, and at the request of Mr. Nicholson, attorney for the widow, it was put off until Friday ,the 6th, at one-thirty and I was there for the purpose of hearing the application.

Q. Just tell what took place there Mr. Pugh? Who was present? A. Mr. Bates and I, Mr. Jewell was there, Mr. Nicholson and the widow, and there was a number of witnesses. I, at the request of Judge Black, had stated the case—the claim which we made in the petition for the sale of the lot and in a brief way, referred to the fact that Mr. Nicholson had filed an answer and cross petition for the widow, claiming that the property, when it was deeded to her husband, one-half of which in equity, would be hers; he also claimed that she had made improvements on the property, paid the taxes on the property, and was entitled to the rest of the property. And Mr. Nicholson stated then more fully the claim of Mr. Jewell for the property, and when he had finished, the Judge asked Mr. Bates what he was there for.

Q. What relation was Mr. Jewell to these children, his wards? A. He was an uncle by marriage—his wife's nephews. Their father and Mrs. Jewell were brother and sister. Judge Black asked Mr. Bates what he had to do with the case. Was it another case of breaking up the American Homes? Mr. Bates replied, No, Your Honor, I appear here for the plaintiff, and proceeded to reply to Mr. Nicholson's statement. Mr. Nicholson, although he appealed to the equity side of the case, he did state that the Court had no right to examine the matters set up in the petition. Mr. Bates and I had examined the authorities, and found that the court had jurisdiction and Mr. Bates so stated it to the Court. Judge Black said, the Court has no such power. I was sitting at the end of the table and Mr. Nicholson between the widow and another witness, and Mr. Jewell was sitting by me, and the Judge was on the bench. Mr. Bates asked the court for time to cite the authorities. The Judge told him to get it and get it right away, that there was no such law, and he knew it. Mr. Bates asked for the index to the General Code; the index to the Code was there on the table. He came around back of me and was looking up the authority when Judge Black pointed his finger at him and said, "If there is an unmitigated liar and scoundrel in Franklin County, you are it." He repeated it twice, and Mr. Bates did not reply. He said it again and Mr. Bates replied, "If there is another, you are it." Judge said to Mr. Morris, call the Sheriff and have Wesley C. Bates locked up in jail. At first he did not move; the Judge said it again, and Mr. Morris left the room and came back in a short time; he was ahead of one of the deputies, Mr. Cousins. Mr. Bates reached over and took his overcoat and hat and went with him.

Q. Did you remain there after that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What happened? A. I asked Eddy Morris to get the 49th Ohio State; he brought the wrong one; he brought the 47th. I got the 49th afterward, and looking up the matter, I told the Judge we were right in our contention of the determination of the equities. He insisted the Court had no power to sell property for maintenance and education of the ward; it must be to pay debts. Then after that he said, the property will not be sold; the petition will be dismissed, and instructed Mr. Jewell to resign as guardian of the children. I told Mr. Jewell to resign, and he went over to another table in the rear of the room with Mr. Morris and Mr. Morris prepared some papers, I do not know what they contained. Mrs. Jewell went up and asked Judge Black not to send these children back to that woman, their mother. He said, I will settle that later. She was persistent in it and he told her to keep still or he would send her to jail. I think Mrs. Jewell stated that the mother did not want the children.

Q. What did he say to Obed Jewell? A. I think he made the same statement to him; I was busy examing the law and had showed him the law at the time the case was dismissed, and there was nothing further.

Q. Was there anything said about Socialists or Anarchists? A. Why, the Judge said to Mr. Jewell, when you come in here with respectable attorneys, or something like that, I will hear your case; if you come in here with anarchists or Socialists, I will not do it. Then Mr. Jewell said, Mr. Pugh prepared the petition for me, and the Judge said nothing to that, one way or the other.

CROSS EXAMINATION.

Conducted by Judge Black.

Q. You was the attorney of record, were you not? A. Mr. Bates and myself were, both of us.

Q. You were seeking to sell the home of Mrs. Reeves? A. Yes.

Q. Out on Carpenter St? A. Yes.

Q. She is a widow with three boys? A. Yes, but Mr. Jewell was their guardian and they were living with him.

Q. I was objecting to your selling the home?

REDIRECT BY MR. TOMPKINS.

Q. Do you know where those three boys were living at that time? A. At the time the petition was prepared they were living with Mr. Jewell.

Q. Their guardian? A. Yes, sir.

The following is a continuance of the testimony of Comrade W. C. Bates, direct examination.

Q. By the way, what did Mr. Hollenback state, in regard to the truth of the statement made in the times?

Objection by Plaintiff. Objection overruled. Exceptions.

A. Mr. Hollenback told me the charges published in The Times were true, and gave me the names of some parties that could be called upon to substantiate them. I think the name of one of the parties was Fire Chief Laurer and also Willis Bolin. I am not sure whether he gave me the name or whether the name was mentioned as a witness, of Anna Carlisle. At that same time he spoke to me also of a publication of the Trades Record and told me where to go to get it, and I got a copy; at that time I had a copy of the paper, not this copy.

Q. Well, did you have any other information? A. Well, for the past two years, persons have been coming into my office almost daily and telling me of the indignities which they have suffered in the Probate and Juvenile Court. I have taken their names and addresses and filed them away. Have taken the affidavits of some and filed them away, and some of these affidavits are filed with this petition.

Mr. Patterson made a motion to strike that out. Motion overruled.

Q. Did you ever have any experience with Judge Black prior to your writing these specific charges, in his official capacity? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Tell the jury what it was? A. About the first of January, 1912, I think it was, I was retained as legal adviser for the Socialist Publication Company. I assumed the duties February 1st, 1912. Soon after I located there with them, Mrs. Penn called upon me with reference to her daughter Gladys Crawford, who had been sent to the Convent at Cincinnati. After that conversation with her I went to the Juvenile Court and looked up the records of Gladys Crawford's case and found how she had been brought in and sentenced to the convent at Cincinnati, but found no record of any hearing of evidence of anything of that kind.

Objected to, by Patterson. The Journal Entry shows there was a hearing, and it has been read here.

A. In the examination of the records, there I found what purported to be a receipt in the Gladys Crawford case, signed by Mother M. and no name filed in as to whose body was receipted for. I made notation of that, and called the attention of Mr. F. E. Johnson to it. In a few days I went back again and looked up the records, and I spoke to Miss Murray about this receipt not being filled in with the name, and the second time I called there, I discovered there was no record showing any investigation had been made with reference to Gladys Crawford's home and surroundings, and on a later date I called and found what purported to be a record of investigation, which was purported to be made up in December, 1912, and it was yet March, 1912, and December, 1912, had not yet arrived. The intended record was supposed to have been made up in December, 1911. The facts are, there was no record when I first called there; that the record was not made up until after they got used to writing 1912. That is why the duplicate records introduced here and that is why Miss Murray tried to explain them on the witness stand. On my first visit there was no record, but on my second visit this record was made up and dated December, 1912, and December, 1912, was way in advance.

Q. And December, 1912, was way in advance? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then go on. What else? A. I called on Miss Murray, with reference to Gladys Crawford; she said I would have to see Judge Black. The next day I called on Judge Black, with reference to the release of Gladys Crawford. He had not talked to him for just a few minutes when he wanted to know how much money Mrs. Penn would or could raise.

Q. Who was Mrs. Penn? A. She was the mother of Gladys Crawford.

Q. The mother of Gladys Crawford; well go on. A. I asked Judge Black how much money it would require, if any, more than would be necessary to pay her car fare from Cincinnati back to Columbus. He said, find out how much money they can raise. I replied they cannot raise very much because they are poor people. They can only pay me a little along, and they have to save it out of what they have to live on. I left and in a day or two I had a conversation with Mrs. Penn, and then went back to see Judge Black about the release of Gladys Crawford, and he wanted to know what they had to say about the money matters. I told him they were poor people and could not raise the money. I wanted to know how much it would take, and he asked me again, how much they could raise. He said they ought to be able to raise fifty dollars, it would give you twenty-five dollars and me twenty-five dollars and car fare. I told him I would take the matter up with Mrs. Penn. I did take the matter up with Mrs. Penn, but I refused to handle any money.

Question by juror, Leo Lindenberg:

Q. Was that after your argument with the Judge down in Probate Court? No, sir; this was before that. Miss Penn made a statement to me about getting another attorney, and I said very well, for I refuse to handle any money over and above the necessary railroad fare. She left my office and I did not see her for a few days, when she came back and said she had had a conversation with another attorney. I am not permitted to tell what she said.

Q. You may name this attorney? A. H. L. Richards. She and I had a conversation for some minutes and then she left my office and I did not hear from her for a few days. I received a letter from her, enclosing a letter she had received from H. L. Richards. There was a number of letters that passed between she and I and she turned over some eight or ten letters to me which she had received from H. L. Richards. She also made an affidavit and I think that affidavit is attached to this petition. She made an affidavit and Gladys Crawford made an affidavit after she came back from the convent. Gladys came back on Sunday, the 5th of May, and a few days later, Gladys, Mrs. Penn, and Mrs. Foster sent their affidavits. They were sworn to by an attorney in Mansfield.

Court adjourned.

Thursday Morning, May 21, 1914.

DIRECT EXAMINATION.

Mr. Bates on the witness stand.

Q. Mr. Bates, have you any affidavits, other than those to which you referred to yesterday, from which you gathered information upon which you based some, if not all of the specifications charged in the affidavit here? A. I have.

Q. Will you produce them? A. I have an affidavit here——

Interrupted by counsel.

Q. I will ask you to find those affidavits of those parents that have not testified in this case? A. This is an affidavit signed by G. B. Reed and Dora Reed, neither of whom have testified in this case. I will ask the stenographer to mark them for identification.

Stenographer marks them B-212.

Q. Have you any others? A. I have here a statement dated March 3rd, 1914 sent to me through the mail, not signed.

Q. No signature at all? A. No signature at all.

Q. Well, we will disregard that. A. I have here an affidavit dated May 25th, 1912, taken before Notary Public in Richland County, Ohio, Mansfield, by Gladys Crawford, who has testified in this case.

Q. Well, she has testified? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, we will disregard that. A. I have here a statement made by Orrin Buckley—it is not signed and not dated, excepting the blank day of March, 1914.

Q. Was it taken previous to the writing of these specifications? A. I would like to state the circumstances under which that statement was taken.

Q. Go ahead. A. It was written down at the time the statement was made. It was not signed because Orrin Buckley wanted to get the numbers of the properties on West Maple Street; he went away and never came back for some reason. We will have it marked by the stenographer.

Defendent's Exhibit B-213.

A. I have also an affidavit from Mrs. Dean-Penn; she has testified.

Q. We will disregard that. A. I have here a statement dated Columbus, Ohio, March 3rd, 1914, signed by Fred P. Zimpher.

Q. We will have that marked by the stenographer.

Marked by the stenographer: Defendant's Exhibit B-214.

A. I have here an affidavit signed by Bertha Hatfield, dated March 3rd, 1914. Stenographer mark this as defendant's exhibit.

Defendant's Exhibit B-215.

A. Here is an affidavit from Mr. and Mrs. Hatfield, they have both testified.

Q. We will disregard that. A. I have here, also, the affidavit of Mrs. Myrtle Patterson, who has testified in this case.

Q. We will disregard that. A. I believe that is all the affidavits that I have.

Mr. Tompkins to Mr. Patterson:

Q. Do you want to see these? A. I am not very particular; what are you going to do with them?

Q. I am going to offer them. A. Offer them in evidence?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. I certainly object to that, and want to be heard further on that.

Mr. Tompkins to Court:

The witness has testified that this statement in writing was signed by G. E. Reed and Dora Reed, and read by him previous to the writing of these specifications in this case, and read by him on the 6th day of March, 1914, and furnished him information which enabled him to prepare some of the specifications, and this affidavit, I formerly offer in evidence to go to the jury. And in order to said time, as there are other writings in the same category as this paper writing, and in order to get this whole question before the jury at once, I will ask this question.

Q. Mr. Bates, have you a copy of the Times? A. I have.

Q. What date is that? A. October 26th, 1912.

Q. You stated a while ago, that some of the information that you got from that paper and seconded by the information received from Mr. Lents and Mr. Hollenbeck, was a part of the information upon which you based these specifications? A. Yes, sir.

Q. We will introduce this in evidence and ask the stenographer to mark it for identification.

Exhibit B-216.

Q. Have you a copy of the Trades Record? A. I have.

Q. A part of the information upon which you based these specifications, I believe you stated, was received from this paper? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Of what date? A. November, 1912.

I will ask the stenographer to mark it for identification. Exhibit B-217.

Objection by Plaintiff. Point argued by Mr. Patterson.

Court recessed to consider the question.

Argued by Mr. Tompkins.

Court's Ruling: Gentlemen, I have carefully considered this case in the Mass. case which seems to be the leading case on the subject, I have also studied carefully the decisions in the case of the State of Ohio, that is, Patrick Boyle versus the State of Ohio, 6th C. C., page 172.

I will sustain the objection.

Defendant excepted.

Q. Mr. Bates, have you practiced in the Juvenile Court of this City? A. Yes; somewhat.

Q. Have you witnessed the procedure there? A. Yes, I have been there on a number of occasions, not only when I have had specific cases there, but I have been there in the court room on numerous occasions and witnessed the manner in which the court was being conducted.

Q. Have you heard any sentences passed? A. Yes; I have been there on different occasions when sentence has been passed.

Q. Did you ever hear any witnesses testify down there? A. I have heard witnesses make statements down there. Never saw any of them hold up their hands and be sworn as wit-

Q. Who would make the statements? A. Well, different persons who would be brought in there before the bench. Judge Black would ask them questions, but not one of them were sworn—I never saw any of them sworn.

Q. Did you ever hear Miss Murray make statements upon which judgement was passed? A. Yes; on a number of occasions, I have heard Miss Murray make statements and read from a paper which she would have in her hand, and the persons whose name she would mention would never be brought into the court and sworn and at that time, the Judge would sentence these people on different matters and different things.

Q. But not one had been brought in and put under oath to testify against them? A. None of these persons whose names were mentioned by Miss Murray were brought in.

Q. Did you ever see a jury trial down there? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever see a number of cases where the defendant was represented by counsel? A. I have seen a number of cases where counsel was there to represent their clients, but were brushed aside by Judge Black.

Q. Did you ever say anything to him about the persons who have filed charges against delinquents? A. Yes; I have spoken to him possibly two or three times, perhaps oftener, about charges being filed by deputies; I also approached Miss Murray about that course of procedure and both of them promised me soon after the Gladys Crawford matter, that that matter would be remedied; that they would insist on persons other than Court officers, swearing to an affidavit and giving testimony against the accused, yet they do not seem to have made very much change in that manner of procedure. The affidavits would be signed by Miss Murray and she would read a lot of stuff she had written on a paper, purported to be gathered up in the neighborhood where the people lived, and none of these people would be brought in as witnesses.

Q. Just sentence people on hearsay? A. That is the way it seemed to me.

Q. Is there any other statement that you desire to make to the jury, that I have not called your attention to? A. There are a number of other matters, but it would be accumulative evidence on what witnesses have stated from day to day, but there is one particular case I might mention. A man by the name of Straight, he worked for the C. E. Shoe Company—I don't know where he is now. I appeared for him as attorney. When his wife was living they had adopted a child. This child was about eight years old when I was employed as counsel by this man. He had been arrested and taken into the Juvenile Court, charged with tampering with this child. There was a medical examination of the little girl and it was proven by that examination that she had not been tampered with. Evi-

A POLITICAL LOUSE

We print below some testimony adduced in the Black-Bates case now dragging its wearying filth through our Police Court. It serves to fasten on Sam Black an almost sure case of attempting to bribe or coerce a public official which should have the attention of the grand jury.

To the public we desire to state that the sole owner and manager of The Times does not personally bear the burden of even being acquainted with little Sam Black, and the political louse lies when he says he ever had a difficulty with, spoke to or was ever recognized socially or otherwise by the owner. He further lies, as we said last year, when he states the Hon. John J. Lentz ever owned The Times or dictated the policy or wrote a line of opinionated or other matter espoused by The Times.

If the grand jury will look into this Sherman testimony where Black was attempting to use his power over an attorney before his court, to induce the council of Columbus to give the Ross-Joyce-Philbrick sheet a contract at a higher price than The Times, the jury may possibly turn up other like attempts.—"The Times" (Dem.).

Here followed the testimony of Councilman Sherman.

SAM KINNEAR SLATED FOR POSTMASTER.

Congessman Brumbaugh has agreed to appoint Sam Kinnear postmaster of Columbus. This action was finally decided upon at the recent visit of Karb and Ross to Washington. Every daily newspaper in the city has been in possession of this fact for over two weeks. Why do they suppress this news?

They are suppressing the news until the appointment is made, at which time it will be too late to organize any effective opposition. Think of it, Sam Kinnear, who has practically bankrupt the city, the man who has used city finance and machinery to boost his own real estate deals to be dumped onto the people of this city as P. M.

The "Columbus Citizen," who has been fighting Kinnear at every stage of the game, is strangely silent. Why? If they are sincere in fighting Kinnear why don't they protest now, before it is too late?

Once more it is "The Socialist" who gives the first intimation of a dirty deal to be pulled off by the old party politicians. Our information is absolutely correct and comes direct from Washington, and Sam Kinnear will succeed Postmaster Krumm unless this exposition of their little game scares them so badly that they reverse themselves at the last moment.

Comrades, you have seen the hard and bitter fight we have put up to prove the charges against Judge Black. If you could have attended the trial and heard the evidence as brought out on the stand, if you could have seen as we have seen, strong men and women break down and weep as they testified to the horrible treatment accorded them by Judge Black and his court officers, you would have gone away determined to sacrifice something to help win this fight. It is a fight for decency. It is a fight for home and fireside. It is a fight for working class homes.

Our hardest fight has been raising the finances. Much money is yet needed. The committee needs your help now. Send in all you can spare. If necessary, sacrifice something for your class, but do it today. Send all contributions to W. E. Bues, 101 North High Street.

THE ISSUE IN THE MINES

With characteristic emphasis, Colonel Roosevelt tells what he had planned to do in the anthracite strike of 1902. He had planned to operate the mines under military supervision, UNTIL A SETTLEMENT COULD BE ARRANGED.

That is interesting. It is quite interesting. It is a peculiarity that the Colonel has—this telling about things he planned, things that were unlike the doings of other Presidents. There was the day out in Arizona at the dedication of the Roosevelt Dam, when he told how "we went down there and took" the Canal Zone—and now we hear talk about paying $25,000,000 for what "we took"; the bill for its settlement is on its third reading down in Washington. It appears that while the Colonel may have highly explosive ideas as to how great issues ought to be settled, he DOESN'T HAVE THE KNACK OF GETTING THEM SETTLED RIGHT AND FOR ALL TIME.

So it is with the matter of taking possession of the mines UNTIL A SETTLEMENT IS REACHED. That settles nothing. The root of the mine evil, as with every other question involving capital and labor, is in the PRIVATE OWNERSHIP OF SOCIAL MEANS OF PRODUCTION AND DISTRIBUTION. And for that there is no permanent cure; except in permanent PUBLIC OWNERSHIP OF THOSE THINGS COLLECTIVELY USED.

So it is today in Colorado. The basic issue is one of OWNERSHIP. Those who toil do not OWN; those who own do not produce. They exploit. Until EXPLOITATION ENDS, THERE WILL BE NO PERMANENT SETTLEMENT—NO RIGHT SETTLEMENT. THE NATION MUST OWN THE MINES AND THE PEOPLE MUST OWN THE NATION.

WOODROW WILSON---HUMORIST

Since he became President, Woodrow Wilson has done numbers of things that other Presidents have not done. He has read his own messages to Congress, he has allowed himself to be quoted directly in the newspapers and he has endeavored to gain for himself the reputation of being a democratic sort of person. And now he blossoms forth as a humorist.

The President told a convention of business men in Washington that the country is suffering from a depression. Then came the joke, his crowning burst of humor: BUT IT IS ONLY PSYCHOLOGICAL!

Isn't that a delicious bit of fun? "Psychological hard times!"

Woodrow Wilson now may take his place with Mark Twain, Bill Nye and Bill Taft. Especially with Bill Taft.

"God knows," said Taft. "Psychological," says Wilson.

Taft told the workingmen that "God knows" what a workingman is to do when he is out of a job and can't find one. Wilson tells him that his condition is merely a psychological one. If Bill Smith is hungry and hasn't the price of a meal, we may sidle up to Bill, in the light of this new dispensation, and whisper softly into Bill's ear that the trouble with him is that he is only psychologically hungry—it's his mental condition that's bothering him, not his stomach!

A stiff course in psychology will fix Bill—a few nights with a good tutor will fix him out. What he needs is a new psychology. There's nothing the matter with him except his point of view. Bill has been looking on lunch counters too long—he's gathered unto himself a bad habit. A new twist in his mental machinery will fix him so that he will never know that he has a stomach, and as for wanting food for that stomach—leave it to his new psychology!

Professor Wilson ought to traipse down the Bowery or over on Cherry Hill with his new teaching. He ought to tell it to the men who are enjoying enforced vacations in Detroit, in Chicago, in San Francisco, in the big steel towns, perhaps even in Washington, right handy under the Presidential nose.

The President is on the short and easy road to fame. Nothing to it now. He has conquered the hungry stomach. The country is saved once more. Bill Taft, with his "God knows," was a mere piker. He hadn't the right idea at all. Professor Wilson has painted "Eureka" on his flag and flung it to the national breeze. Have a bite of psychology, all ye who are hungry and on your uppers. Perk up and sail in; there's plenty of psychology for all! Let it become the national diet! No trust can corner it; Rockefeller can't raise the price.

Three cheers for Psychological Wilson, the man who put the national stomach out of business—the man who busted the grub trust!

His "banner bears the strange device"—"psychology."

THE PLUTE

My name is Plute. I am a ten-horned son of a gun. When I crack my whip the horny-headed sons of toil get a hustle on. When I crease my brows in anger the slaves in my mills and factories cringe in mortal terror. I am all in all. The world is mine. The government is mine. The soldiers and police are mine. The machine guns made by the working class and used against the working class are mine. I am insane with power. I burn, I kill, I slay. I own the courts. I own the legislatures. My puppets make the laws I dictate.

Socialists I despise, because they are the only ones I do not terrorize. They are the only ones that do not bend the servile knee. Thy are after me, and Oh, God! if they sweep into power it is good night with me. The most horrible punishment will be meted out to me. This is what they will do to me:

They Will Put Me to Work!

DEMOCRATS DODGE THE ISSUE

Washington, May 28.—How to avoid the wrath of labor and yet hold their jobs as Congressmen is the proposition which is today before several hundred Congressmen. They are endeavoring to escape from this dilemma by operating the "Underwood machine" in the House of Representatives in such a way as to rush through their fake trust program without a roll-call, on the proposition to exempt labor unions from prosecution under the Sherman Act.

The Democratic platform of 1912 said that "labor organizations and their members should not be regarded as illegal combinations in restraint of trade." The Clayton anti-trust bill declares that "nothing in the anti-trust laws shall be construed to forbid the existence and operation of fraternal, labor, consumers', agricultural, or horticultural organizations"—a proposition of absolutely no meaning or importance whatever. The few friends of labor in the House have proposed an amendment to the effect that "nothing in the anti-trust laws shall apply to fraternal, labor consumers', agricultural, or horticultural organizations."

The Democrats do not want a record vote on this amendment, for if a public and open vote on this amendment could be had, either the Democrats would be forced to vote in favor of labor, or else every Democrat from an awakened labor district would be retired permanently to private life.

A terrific parliamentary battle will be pulled off when this part of the Clayton bill is reached. It is probable that the Rules Committee may have to bring in a special gag rule to force the reactionary program of Woodrow Wilson, the "reversible President," through Congress.

The fashion in which Congress is handling the trust question makes it a joke, and everyone on the inside here knows that the entire trust program is only a subterfuge and excuse. The political and economic situation was well described by the Bull Moose floor leader, Victor Murdock, in these words:

"Twenty-two years ago I was a reporter in Chicago, and my paper sent me down to Ohio to report the first great suit that was brought against the Standard Oil Trust and a high court solemnly and by final decree at that time dissolved the Standard Oil Trust, and I remember distinctly writing the heading upon my newspaper article 22 years ago to the effect that the Standard Oil Co. had been dissolved. What a record of delay, denial of popular demand, and legal helplessness has transpired since. Futility in the highest court of the land ruling one way in the Knight case and another way in the Northern Securities case. Futility in the Congress of the United States. In the Fiftieth Congress the Committee on the Judiciary in this body reported that there was one further amendment necessary to the Sherman anti-trust law to cover the interpretation of the Supreme Court of the United States in the Knight case, a correction that the Supreme Court has since made itself. Futility in the administrative bodies of this Government. Inaction upon the part of prosecutors of the Government, and now, after 24 years, almost a quarter of a century of confessed helplessness on the part of this great Government, we are about to take another step. I am sorry that it is a random step and will be, in my opinion, a futile step. I am sorry that the Covington bill is weak, purely investigative in its powers, born a cripple. I am sorry the Clayton bill persists in the attempt to make this country travel again the old, profitless circle which follows writing rigid inhibition against big business, honest and otherwise, into law and leaving it to the long-lingering delay which waits upon the interpretations of the courts.

I think this is a time when we ought to pause and give ear to the significant events of the hour. What fantastic films the morning newspapers reveal before the eyes of the country. Rockefeller, over at Tarrytown, N. Y., installing a system of electric lights that he may keep, by touching a button at his bedside, his eight guards who surround the house awake through the hours of the night. The testimony in Denver yesterday, where witnesses stated before the board of inquiry that in Troop A, which looted the tents of the striking miners at Ludlow after they had shot the miners down and killed 11 women and children, there were only 8 members who were not either mine guards or mine employees. Constitutional government in Colorado has broken down. The man who has been the beneficiary of our delay, of our careless, futile, trust legislation, passed at random, sits in his palace upon the Hudson, insecure, fearful that the law will not protect him, and the men out in Colorado who are his victims know that it does not protest them."

A powerful news association with radical tendencies will pull the House so as to present to the public a list of the men who vote without a roll call in committee of the whole for and against Labor. The Socialist Press service will also carry the names of these gentlemen.

IN UNIVERSAL SORROW.

Another great catastrophe has come to make all mankind one in universal grief. The wreck of the Empress of Ireland, coming as it does upon the heels of the Titanic, wrings the heart of the world. The papers get out their list of great ocean disasters, with the Slocum and the Bourgoyne and the Elbe and the Titanic, and add to it this latest one. It serves to bind mankind together. There were no classes in the drownings, it seems, and all classes mourn in common.

But those who shed tears, real tears, genuine tears, forget that these dreadful accidents are not the only accidents to men. Their grief is real, but they forget that at other times men and women die, and die needlessly. We, the Socialists, do not forget, and when we dust off our dread list, we add the ten thousand a year who die on the railroads, victims of capitalist greed, and of frenzied financiering. We do not forget our beloved dead of the Triangle. We do not forget the men and boys who die year after year in the mines, we remember those who are mangled in the mills, we bear in mind those whose lives are wasted away in dull, drab toil. And when the terrible toll of the sea is taken we do not forget those who go down to the sea in ships and do not return, the fishermen, the sailors, the stokers, and all the rest who die unpicturesque deaths.

Yes, we weep with the world. Their loss is our loss. But we do not forget the multitudes who die each year for the sake of capitalism. The world forgets them. Their deaths are not like the deaths of those who died in the cold waters of the St. Lawrence. But they are our dead, and we mourn.

THE DEATH HOLE

Denver, Colo., May 28.—(Spl.) to "The Socialist."—New evidence that eleven children and two women, whose charred bodies were taken from one "Death Hole" at Ludlow were not all suffocated, has been unearthed in Trinidad. Preachers and newspaper men who helped take the mutilated bodies from the hole are available as witnesses.

If they are called they will testify that the condition of the bodies and the condition of the lumber lined cellar indicated clearly that they did not all die in the "Death Hole."

They will testify that they are sure that burned bodies of women and children were gathered from various parts of the colony and dumped in one hole. Many of the children were so burned that their flesh fell from their bones when the bodies were removed.

Other evidence may be produced to show that a car load of quicklime was dumped at Ludlow the day after the massacre.

Quicklime has been used following mine accidents, in southern Colorado to destroy all trace of those killed and many investigators who have been at Ludlow believe the gunmen destroyed many victims in that way. Strength was lent to that belief when Gen. Chase ordered Trinidad ministers and newspaper men away from the colony when they sought to poke around the ruins. Colorado and Southern trainmen know of the quicklime shipment.

Of all the rotten methods used by the operators and militia to discredit the striking coal miners, the attempt of Lieutenant Elliot to defame the character of the wives and mothers of Ludlow is the most despicable.

Elliot is a member of the militia. He was at the Ludlow massacre. He was one of those hired assassins who kept up a merciless fire of machine guns on the helpless women and children, finally burned the tented city to the ground, murdering and cremating 19 men, women and children and witnesses say many more who were burned in quicklime to hide the story of the terrible holocaust.

Elliot is an officer in the Colorado National Guard, many of whose members were plummed from the red light districts of many cities where men's lives can be bought for a half a pint of rotten liquor or dope, where the dregs of the earth drive women into lower depths of immorality that they may live on the returns of this prostitution and Elliot is even a stench in the nostrils of these vermin of civic cesspools.

Whatever might be said about this person Elliot suffice it to say that he was at Ludlow, that he is a member of the band who murdered and cremated innocent women and children. Isn't it natural that such a fiend should not hesitate to defame the character of some of these women and children whom the militia did not wipe out in their whirlwind of slaughter?

The Colorado militia and operators' gunmen not only slaughtered the men, women and children at Ludlow and destroyed their homes, but robbed the dead bodies and tents of everything the living and dead had, according to testimony obtained during the past week.

James Fyler, secretary of the local union at Ludlow had $800 in his pocket when the shooting started April 20th. When his body was found, his pockets revealed nothing. Louis Tikas and others were robbed of smaller amounts. Mrs. Mary Thomas lost $1,500 in furnishings and money.

Judge Ben B. Lindsey of the juvenile court, Mrs. Lee Champion, wife of a former judge, and five survivors of the Ludlow horror are now in Washington explaining the terrible situation in Colorado to President Wilson.

The survivors are Mrs. Mary Petrucci, who lost three children, Mrs. Mary Thomas and two children and Mrs. Pearl Jolly who has been called the heroine of Ludlow. She, who with Louis Tikas, rescued the women and children until the Greek was murdered by the militiamen under the command of Major Pat Hamrock and Lieutenant K. E. Linderfelt.

Judge Lindsey and members of his party will visit the principal cities of the east and let citizens know the horrors of the coal miners' strike for the enforcement of the laws of the United States and Colorado.

The newest thing framed up by the corporations in Colorado is the Law and Order League. This organization is composed of wives and daughters of men who have been responsible for the horrors of Colorado's industrial war.

A meeting held this week shows how frantic these women are to win over public opinion now so strongly entrenched on the strikers' side. One of the women calmly announced that the miners had purchased five machine guns and had them shipped into the state since the arrival of the federal troops. This statement illustrates how absurdly the operators' tools will lie to discredit the miners.

At the same meeting Captain W. C. Danks is reported to have said that "if the residents of Ludlow tent colony had been American citizens they would have gone back to work on request of the militia." The miners have always claimed that the Colorado National Guard was sent to Southern Colorado to break the strike and not to preserve the peace. This is the first admission by an officer of the militia that this was the real purpose of sending the state troopers to the strike zone.

Federal troops continue to keep perfect order in Colorado. This is the first time in a decade that constitutional government has existed in certain sections of the state.

MAKE ALL DAYS, OUR DAYS

By J. L. Engdahl.

America's workers in this year 1914 are still the slaves of their jobs. In this they do not differ from the workers of the world.

How inspiring therefore is the fight of the civilized world's toilers to wrest one short day from the masters, the owners of the jobs, and make it a day on which to voice the protest of labor.

This day has come to be known as May Day. On that day enlightened labor knows no land, no tongue, no creed. The blood of all is red, the flag of all is red—the protest is sturdy, red-blooded, awe-inspiring and commanding.

But even on this day the American toiler has as yet secured only a grip that is weak. Yet the years must increasingly strengthen it. Black and murky ignorance, dissipated by the brightening radiance of increasing intelligence will make way for the new knowledge that leads the pathway to emancipation.

From the enslaved East, where the toiling masses at their tasks greet the new born day and also see it fade and die away; to the now over-crowded and idle Far West, where wandering hordes of men pray and cry for chains to bind them to a job, the minds of all men must think the same and all men must act the same before they can set themselves completely free.

Toiling or idle no day now is their day. They speak many tongues and their thoughts are not the same, so they cannot even unite on one day, May Day, when nature proclaims anew the return of spring and summer, while man is still locked in the cold, dreary, relentless and enslaving dungeons of merciless winter.

To the hungry idle and the overworked employed joyous spring and happy summer appear the same as cheerless winter. Every day belongs to the job. No day belongs to the slave.

Yet the army of protest is increasing. The ranks of the proletarian hosts are being swelled by recruits won from ignorance by intelligence. Language barriers are being swept aside. All obstacles are gradually being overcome. Men who think and act the same are now counted by the millions.

Nearly three million men, women and children have united at the job in their efforts to emancipate themselves from the slavery of their jobs in this land of the "free." In their unions they struggle daily to wrest a few more hours of liberty from their tasks. One million men have shown their hopes for the completer emancipation. They have marked the ballots of the social revolution that will knock the chains of bondage from the aching limbs of tortured mankind. In Socialism labor is finding its greatest strength. Our aroused labor will not be content with making May Day alone the day of the toilers. The struggle will continue until all days are made our days. The end will not come until the toiling masses are no longer in bondage to the job. When that day comes there will no longer be masters.

The working class has been in hell to these many years, and they will never get out of it by voting the old party tickets. While it is the mission of the Labor Press of the country to teach them how to get out, it's up to the workers to do the stunt—vote right for their class—the working class.

The capitalist class have no race prejudice. An employer will hire a Chinaman, or a negro as well as the white man. What he needs is the man who will do the most work for the least money. He tries to get the working class to quarrel over color or nationality, because when the working people are divided it is easier to keep them in submission. Get wise.

The entire Socialist ticket from Mayor down was elected at Sisston, S. D.

Nearly every office in Kreetan, Mich., was captured by the Socialists for the first time.

Consider the workers of the field, how they toil. They cease not, neither do they rest. Yet Harry Thaw, in all his idleness, was never starved as one of these.

You don't have to vote for what you do not want. The Plutes will see that you get it. If you want to better your condition you must vote for a change in the system. Only the Socialist Party stands for a change in the system.

John Bonehead, aren't you about sick voting the Democrat, Republican, and Bull Moose tickets? What have you got to show for it? Nothing but degredation and penury. It is about time you pinched yourself to see if you are awake.

No master respects his slave. That's why the boss hates and reviles you. Your tame submission and servility makes him sick at his stomach.

The bosses hate the Socialists, but at the same time they secretly admire and respect them, because they know that Socialists are fighters and refuse to bend the knee to Baal.

Socialists want the people to own all collectively used property, such as mines, mills, and factories. This program will rob no one, because the Capitalist will have an equal opportunity with all others to use this machinery and produce wealth for himself and family. He will not, however, be allowed to own the machinery individually any more than a Capitalist can now own our public roads. It will be noticed in this connection that rich and poor alike use our public roads.

About one more stunt like the Ludlow Massacre pulled off by the Capitalist class of this country, will result in a call that will bring to the ears of the masters, "the clash of resounding arms." War is hell, but if they force our class to fight, they will find that we can fight like hell.

Workers have had, under the lantern jawed Wilson's "new freedom," the following examples:

Armoured trains of Baldwin Gelts thugs, shooting up the miners in West Virginia.

The murder of 72 miners' children, during a Christmas festival in Calumet, Michigan.

The Ludlow Massacre in Colorado, in which the tent colony of these heroic mine workers was first swept by machine guns and the tents then set on fire, and the women and children burned to death.

And yet, there are working men, who will actually so far lower themselves to vote an old party scab ticket this fall. It was the workers in Colorado, you say. Yes; but who knows it may be Columbus, tomorrow.

HOW LONG WILL THE GOVERNMENT STAND FOR IT?

Socialist Party Press Service.
Washington, June 4th.

That conditions in the Calumet field have not improved since the "settlement" of the strike, is the substance of a significant letter sent by President Sidney Thomas, of the Keweenaw Miners' Union, No. 139, to Representative MacDonald, the Congressman who forced the Calumet investigation upon Congress. Thomas makes a hopeless appeal for federal help.

His letter is as follows:

"I don't know if you can do anything to help out the situation, the mine managers have not lived up to their promise.

"About three weeks before the strike was called off, a committee from each local called on the different managers and tried once more to get things settled up, the only condition that things could be settled was the men surrender their cards and sign a slip never to join the W. F. of M. again while in their employ.

"The committee asked if there would be any discrimination, and they all said that every man would be taken back, but those that the Grand Jury indicted, and those arrested for any other serious charge. But many are turned down that have not been arrested or even have been conspicuous in the strike; some were turned down because they went before the investigating committee; one manager said that those that went there will never get any more work in the copper country—so far as I know no one has been hired from this end of the mining country who did go there.

"It seems to me, now that the strike is over, they want to crush the spirit of unionism out of the men by keeping them without jobs and making them go elsewhere to seek work—then it is an expense to move their families after they are settled.

"The poor men are left in a sad place at the mercy of the heartless set of mine owners, who never gave us anything and don't intend to. A job to a man with a large family means something, and it looks like as if they are going to make a job look so good to him that he will put up with most anything before he will go on strike again.

"It makes men say very often—how long will the Government allow such things to be done by the men who own everything, and don't do anything?"

MATTER OF CONSCIOUSNESS.

The workingmen are referred to as the lower classes, simply because they permit the economic master to ride over them. When the workingman throws away the hinges on his knees and stands erect in the full stature of his manhood, he will then be "the noblest work of God."—Miners' Magazine, Denver.

The principal of amalgamation of national unions in Great Britain along industrial lines has made distinct progress during the past few days. After months of negotiations representatives of about 400,000 workers employed in the transportation industry have worked out a plan of consolidation that now goes to a referendum vote of the membership and all indications are that it will be accepted. The tailors' trade is also making substantial progress in the matter of merging the unions, as nine separate organizations are now voting on a program to combine all under one head.

THE WORKERS' HELL IN THE MIDDLE AGES.

Tortures of hell, the whole intellect of Europe was employed in illustrating them. All literature, all painting, all eloquence was concentrated upon the same dreadful theme. By the men of Dante and by the pencil of Oreagna, by the pictures that crowded every church and the sermons that rang from every pulpit the maddening terror was sustained. The saint was often permitted in visions to behold the agonies of the lost and to recount the spectacle he had witnessed. He loved to tell how, by the lurid glare of the eternal flames, he had seen millions writhing in every form of ghastly suffering, their eyeballs rolling with unspeakable anguish, their limbs gashed and mutilated and quivering with pain, tortured by pangs that seemed even keener by the recurrence, and shrieking in vain for mercy to an unpitying heaven. Hideous beings of dreadful and fantastic forms hovered around mocking them and their torments, casting them into caldrons of boiling brimstone or inventing new tortures, more subtile and and more refined. Amid all this a sulphur stream was ever seething, feeding and intensifying the waves of fire. There was respite, no alleviation, no hope. The tortures were ever varied in their character and they never palled for a moment upon the scene. Sometimes it was said the flames while retaining their intensity, withheld their light. A shroud of darkness covered the scene, but a ceaseless shriek of anguish attested the agonies that were below. —Lecky's Rise of Rationalism.

READY FOR A RAISE.

The great magnate summoned his private secretary.

"Have you attended to all the increased prices that I ordered?"

"I have, sir."

"Did you order my steel company to ask more for steel rails and other material that enters into railroad construction?"

"Yes, sir. That has been provided for."

"Has it been arranged that my locomotive works shall increase the price of engines and that my car factories shall increase the prices of freight and passenger cars?"

"Yes, sir. That also is thoroughly understood by our different boards of directors."

"Have you seen to it that my coal mines have tacked on a good, round increase in the price of coal which my engines burn?"

"Oh, yes. We have been pushing up the price of coal steadily."

"That's good. And have you arranged that my lumber companies charge me more for ties than I have been in the habit of paying?"

"Yes. Your lumber companies are 3—4369—SOCIALIST ..... charging so much for ties that your railroad companies can hardly afford to buy them."

"That's good. And, of course, you have seen to it that my banks are refusing to lend money to my railroads except at a much higher rate of interest than has prevailed heretofore."

"Yes, sir. Your banks have informed your railroads that money is very scarce and that no financing can be done except on short time notes at high rates of interest."

"Well, then, I guess we're about ready to make our next move. Have a petition prepared to the Interstate Commerce Commission setting forth that owing to the greatly increased cost of running railroads, it will be necessary for us to have a substantial increase in freight and passenger rates. Understand?"

"Yes, sir. Anything else, sir?"

"Nothing else, except, of course, to notify my newspapers to support this proposition valiantly in the name of the public and to listen to no arguments against it."—Life.

WORKERS ARE ARMING

Denver, Colo., April 26 (Special)—After a week of fighting in which at least twenty-one innocent women and children and six men are known to have been murdered and cremated by the hired gunmen of the coal operators wearing the uniform of the national guard of Colorado, the armed forces of striking coal miners and militiamen are holding their positions tonight under an armed truce while prominent men of the state are meeting day and night at the state house trying to relieve the terrible situation.

Never before in the history of the world has there been a slaughter of innocents which aroused such horror as that at Ludlow, Colorado.

There were 406 women and children in the tent colony. Of these 200 have arrived in Trinidad, twenty-one are known to be dead, and the others are missing.

Probably the most terrible and sickening phase of this inhuman slaughter of the wives and children of the striking coal miners was the burning by the gunmen militiamen of twenty to thirty bodies in a huge funeral pyre.

For three days these murderous assassins prevented red cross nurses from going to the scene of the massacre. It is believed that many of the women and babes died from suffocation who could have been saved had the militia allowed them relief. One doctor who went from Aguilar to the scene of the wholesale murder to administer relief was driven back by the bullets of these same gunmen militiamen.

In one ditch alone were found the distorted bodies of eleven small children and two women showing that they had died suffering great agony.

From every section of the country have come offers of armed assistance and checks with which to buy arms and food that the striking coal miners may continue their fight against the coal operators. Union officials hope that the thirst of Sunday school teacher John D. Rockefeller, Jr., for the blood of innocent women and children has been satisfied and that these guns will not be needed. They have announced, however, that they will fight until every one has gone the way of the slaughtered 27 before they will surrender their constitutional rights to the coal operators and the corporation owned state militia.

Indications are that the long-heralded industrial revolution has started. Men in every walk of life are organizing themselves into volunteer companies, arming themselves and awaiting the call to arms to prevent the further slaughter of their brothers and sisters. The typographical union, one of the most conservative in the country, has contributed $500 "to buy arms and ammunition."

Saturday 1,000 women stormed the state capitol at 10 o'clock in the morning and demanded that Governor Elias M. Ammons call for federal troops. He refused but the women remained at their post until 8 o'clock in the evening and forced him to issue the call.

Today in a pouring rain storm 10,000 persons crowded the state house lawn in a monster protest meeting against the murder of helpless women and children. They demanded that the governor resign at once, that the coal operators' state militia be withdrawn, and that Major Hamrock and Lieutenant Linderfelt be arrested for the murder of the innocents at Ludlow.

Mother Jones was given a monster demonstration. When she appeared after making a hurried trip from Washington every umbrella went down, every hat went off and the men stood there in a pouring rain for twenty minutes while she assailed the lickspittle executives of the state and the Rockefeller interests who are responsible for the Ludlow slaughter.

The horrors of the Ludlow massacre are too numerous to mention. One child, William Snyder, Jr., 11, was shot and killed by the assassins when he ran out of a cellar to get a drink for his mother. When the militia had set fire to the tent colony under orders of Major Hamrock and Lieutenant Linderfelt, two little tots, aged seven and nine, ran from their flaming home only to be driven back by bullets into the tent to be cremated.

But of all the nauseating terrors of the massacre, the murder of Louis Tikas was the most horrible. Louis was the leader of the Greeks. When the tent colony was attacked by the gunmen militiamen he refused to leave until every woman and child was safe. He, with one of the women, got behind a coal pile. The militia finally captured him. After he had been clubbed over the head with a gun and kicked in the face he was shot. There is every indication that he was dead before he was shot. Lieutenant E. K. Linderfelt, whom the lickspittle governor still allows to command the troops at Ludlow, is said to have remarked: "I spoiled a d—— good gun." Linderfelt is the butcher who has threatened to kill Tikas for months, and who has also made his boasts that he would clean out the tent colony.

The United Mine Workers have answered all telegrams offering armed assistance by telling them to organize into companies and hold themselves ready for a call in the event of another slaughter, which seems inevitable as long as the state militia gunmen under General Chase, Major Hamrock and Butcher Linderfelt remain in the strike zone.

DESIRE FOR HAPPINESS
By E. E. Fredenburg.

History is a record of man's efforts to achieve happiness. The aim of all men is joy, peace and contentment. In all ages and all nations the one great impelling motive has been to obtain and retain happiness.

This was the object of the Pilgrim Fathers in leaving the land of their birth and seeking homes across the seas. It was this desire that led the serfs-in-feudal times to revolt against their oppressors. It was the end in view when the framers of our constitution wrote in the preamble, those immortal words, "to insure domestic tranquility, promote the general welfare and insure the blessings of liberty." It was the purpose of certain trades people long ago, in organizing themselves into fraternal bodies and unions to better their condition. It is their object now, in forming alliances and associations to that end.

It was the desire for peace and better living conditions that led the hosts of emigrants to turn with longing eyes and eager hearts toward American shores. The same desire still brings them in flocks and herds, to this the reputed land of the free and home of the brave.

Happiness implies contentment and freedom from doubts and fears for the future of this life. Happiness requires that poverty and hunger be banished from the world. Happiness will have nothing to do with want and despair. Happiness is not found under the roof that shelters destitution and fear. Happiness and poverty are incompatible. They cannot exist together. Happiness does not attend the homeless, the jobless and the companionless.

Happiness means not only the necessities of life, but some of the luxuries as well. Without economic freedom, no man is contented and comfortable. Without freedom and independence, no man can stand erect and look the whole world in the face and say "I am a contented, courageous and happy man."

Imagine the feelings and state of mind of one in middle life who, though compelled to work long hours, day after day, finds himself with a family dependent upon wages scarce sufficient to maintain existence of the most wretched kind. His food so poor that his tired body is improperly nourished for its daily task, his clothing so shabby that he shrinks from the gaze of even his friends, and his habitation so squalid that no one dares to enter it. No leisure for study, recreation or improvement. No time or means to enjoy the simplest pleasures. Denied association and communication with nearest relatives and friends. What wonder this man's head is bowed, his eye without lustre, his step slouchy and hesitating, his posture shrinking and his gaze cowering. We wonder he has even a spark of manhood left; that he is not actually a criminal, prying upon society.

But turn from the picture of this man's wretched life, to a more cheerful scene. Imagine the same man working shorter hours, receiving wages sufficient to maintain a respectable standard of living. He is now able to enjoy some of the comforts which his labor has contributed to the world. Comfortable home and surroundings cheer him after a day's toil. His dress, face and manner reflect his improved condition. His life is gladdened by happy and care-free family, and he rejoices in their companionship. A little time for study, recreation, travel, have given him a broader view of life. Free from haunting fears for the future of his loved ones, his eye regaining its brightness, and his step its sprightliness. Instead of a curse, he has a loving word and a pleasant smile. He is a new being, inspired with new life, a self-respecting citizen of the world, and he pronounces it a privilege to live.

My working friends, what have you done? What are you doing? What are you going to do to achieve this end, HAPPINESS, for yourself, your friends, your family and your fellows?

There is but one answer to the question, one solution to the problem. Get into the organization of your class. Talk, work, stand, vote together, for your happiness and the peace of the whole world.

STATE SOCIALIST PICNIC A GRAND SUCCESS

The Socialist State Picnic, held at Indianola Park by the Socialists of Ohio, was a grand success. From early in the day the crowds began to arrive, and a steady stream of workers from all over the state poured into the grounds.

The festivities were opened at 2:00 P. M., with a ball game between the Columbus Socialist Reds and the Cleveland Y. P. S. L. teams. The visitors got the long end of the score, defeating the local team 13 to 9. The best of order was maintained, and both teams showed that the young people are the strongest asset of the Socialist movement.

Immediately after the game, the program was transferred to the speakers stand. Comrade Scott Wilkins, our candidate for Governor, made a masterful address, in which he fully demonstrated his ability to head the ticket that will bring emancipation to the toiling millions. Comrade Hinkle, Socialist Mayor of Hamilton, spoke of the Socialist administration in Hamilton, and demonstrated to the workers that if they would be free, they must use their political arm and capture the political power.

"Our 'Gene," Comrade E. V. Debs, was the last speaker. He has lost none of his fire or fighting spirit.

As he related the horrors of the Ludlow Massacre, and placed the blame where it belongs, on the head of John D. Rockefeller, Jr. and his paid hirelings and assassins, more than one decided that they would get into this working class fight for liberty. "You may think you are safe," said the speaker, "but how do you know but that the same scene may next be transferred to Ohio or Columbus. What would you have done, had the masters trained guns on you and your wife and your children? You would have taken up arms in self-defence, and you would be an arrant coward did you not."

Continuing, Comrade Debs stated that during his present trip over the country, it has been impossible to get halls adequate to hold the outpouring of the people, who are coming out to hear our message. He closed with a description of the real cause of the Mexican trouble, which is "Wall Street Dollars."

It is hoped that this picnic will now be made an annual affair, as it affords an opportunity for the rank and file of the party to get together and exchange views.

NATIONAL

The first closed shop contract secured by organized bookkeepers and stenographers in New York, has just been signed by the Workmen's Circle, a Jewish fraternal and Socialistic society that is becoming very powerful the country over.

Ivan E. Merrick, a Socialist student, secured second place at the University of Montanna, oratorical contest. His oration was entitled "The Promise." His talk was a strong appeal for Socialism, and it is thought that had he selected some other subject he would undoubtedly have secured first place.

Socialists at Daly City, Cal., elected their candidates for City Clerk and City Treasurer, and also broke the power of a water monopoly by securing the adoption of a referendum proposition to establish a municipal plant.

The first four months that the Socialists have been in power in Pasco, Wash., they reduced the operating expenses of that municipality by more than one-half by wiping out sinecures and introducing various economies.

In Peoria, Okla., the Socialist Party was a poor third last year. Now they have swept the city against an old-party combine, excepting only one Councilman.

In Krebs, Okla., the Socialist Party won three out of four seats in the Council, voted for and secured control of that body. All the other parties had combined against the Socialists, but the bosses couldn't deliver the vote to themselves.

At the municipal election in Durant, Okla., the Socialists won a Councilman for the first time, while in Hobart they secured two. Last year the S. P. was No. 3. This year the old parties had to combine to prevent the Reds from winning a complete victory in both places.

The United Mine Workers of District 14, comprising the men in the Southwest, held their convention in Pittsburg, Kan., shortly, and adopted a resolution, endorsing the Socialist party and recommending members to join it. The delegates also voted to place at the disposal of the general officers $200,000 to be used in any way necessary in the Colorado war.

SOCIALIST HAVE CLEAR MAJORITY.

It appears that in the recent election for members of the State Legislature of the Transvaal, South Africa, only a few over one-half the members retired, while others held over. The House is composed of 46 members, and there were 25 to elect, of which number the Labor Party captured 23 seats and the Conservatives 2. The popular vote was: Labor, 26,108; Conservative, 12,305; Nationalists, 3,029, and about 1,500 scattering. The figures show that some of the most prominent politicians and military officers who stood for election to the House suffered the most crushing defeat. In several instances laboring men were voted out of jail and into Legislature with large majorities.

To impose heavy sentences on wrong-doers, and have the fact published in the daily papers to get the good will of one class of citizens, and then suspend the sentences and let the supposed culprits go unpunished, to secure the good will of them and their friends, is shrewd politics for a "judge," so long as it works, and the people generally don't find it out. That is precisely what the blackest of Ohio probate judges has been doing for years.—Trades Record.

ENDORSE SOCIALIST PARTY.

The Christian Socialists of Belgium, at their recent conference, endorsed the entire program of the Socialist Party, and advised all religious workers to support it. The resolution adopted says:

"The national congress of Belgium Christian Socialists sends fraternal greetings to all the comrades affiliated with the international labor movement.

"Whereas, The church, faithless to the spirit of Christ, has too often placed its forces at the disposal of capitalism, we are nevertheless persuaded that there are many Christians who are ready to accept the economic principles of Socialism, and

"Whereas, The hour has now come to give our active support to bring about the certain triumph of universal suffrage, therefore, be it

"Resolved, That the religious workers should be true to their oppressed class and give their votes solidly to the candidates of the Socialist Party."

MAKE CLEAN SWEEP.

With a Socialist local only two months old at Crested Butte, Colo., the Socialists made a clean sweep against the combined opposition, winning 176 to 148. They elected the mayor, four trustees, marshall, clerk, treasurer, and police magistrate.

REDS WIN IN FLORIDA.

Socialists of Lakeworth, Florida, secured control of the town in the recent municipal elections, electing the mayor and also two commissioners. Lakeworth is under the commission form of government.

"THE WICKED FLEE," ETC.

Perjury ought to be punished, and punished as soon as possible after the case in which it has been committed is terminated and the material statement has been proven to be false. Even womanhood should not protect a perjurer from punishment. On the other hand, for a wealthy man who can employ the ablest lawyers in a large city, to rush from the court in which alleged false evidence has been given and institute in another court, proceedings against a poor washerwoman for alleged perjury, before he has proven the objectionable statement to be false, is an act of moral cowardice. Neither the desire to prejudice the public in his own favor, nor fear of divorce proceedings at home is any justification. The crimson-pated little coward ought to be jailed for contempt of the court fled from.—Trades Record.

You produce everything; the masters have it. They produce nothing and you have it.—Debs.

CALLED BATES "LIAR"

dence in the case showed that a grocerman down on Third or Fourth Street had coaxed and gotten this little girl in a store and taken improper liberties with her.

Q. Did you hear this testimony in the Juvenile Court? A. I did.

Mr. Straight was allowed to take this little girl on condition he would send her to his brother, and nothing was ever done with this grocerman who had taken these improper liberties with this little girl, although it was brought to the attention of Judge Black.

Q. Do you know anything about the examination of the little girl down there, other than hearsay? A. No; I do not.

Q. Mr. Bates, when you wrote these 44 specifications as they are called, did you have any malice in your heart when they were done? A. Absolutely none.

Q. What was your object? A. For the public good. Since I assumed the duties as counsel for the legal department of the Socialist Party, men, women and children have been coming into my office almost daily. I have remained in my office every evening until eight o'clock, very frequently until ten and eleven, listening to the tales of woe of these people. I have not only seen children weep and cry, but mothers and strong men.

Objection by the State. Overruled. Exceptions.

Strong men have told me their story of the injustice they have suffered at the Juvenile Court, and have broken down and wept. I have left my office many a night, heart broken and in tears.

Q. All of these things of which you speak antedated the writing of these specifications? A. Many and instances antedated these specifications, and many instances have come to me since then.

Q. Is there anything more you wish to state? A. I do not know as there is.

Q. Have you any ill will against Judge Black? A. I have no ill will against Judge Black as a man and a private citizen. He was one of the bar examiners when I was admitted. I owe my admission to the bar to Judge Black, he paid me a very high compliment when I was admitted. This has been the greatest trial of my life, to bring myself to the point to file these charges. I wish I had never been called upon as a citizen, to prefer charges against the man of whom I owe my admission to the bar as an attorney at law. I owe my admission to the bar as an attorney to Judge Black.

VICTORY

Jury's Verdict "Guilty", Which Means We Are Going to Double Our Circulation.

Friday, June 5th, the jury in the case of Comrade H. C. Bates, who was arrested March 14th on an affidavit sworn to by Judge Samuel L. Black charging him with criminal libel, brought in a verdict of "guilty."

This verdict was brought in after about seven weeks in taking evidence. Even one of Black's own attorneys had expressed an opinion that the jury would disagree.

This was a peculiar case, to say the least. Black had arrested Bates for publishing in "The Socialist" 44 charges which he (Bates) had filed with the common pleas judges seeking to have Black removed as juvenile judge. The common pleas judges refused to act, Black and Bates and others arrested and Bates started in to prove the charges.

From the very start of the case it was seen that Judge Black was so feared by the average "free" American citizen, that it would be extremely hard to get some of the witnesses to take the stand.

Several witnesses testified that they had been approached and importuned not to testify. Miss Quimby, a practicing attorney, testified that Black called her up, and said if she testified he would "make it hard for her."

In addition to this every daily paper with the possible exception of one colored the proceedings in favor of Black as much as possible.

Never has there been a case in this county before in which such an overwhelming array of witnesses appeared against a public official. Were the people not asleep and cowards of the deepest dye they would see that a new probate and juvenile judge sat on the bench in short order.

The charge of Judge Osborn to the jury was absolutely fair. In this connection be it said that Judge Osborn was absolutely fair during the entire trial. We give herewith some of his charge to the jury, as it is too lengthy to give in full:

"The Bill of Rights says every citizen may freely speak, write and publish his sentiments on all subjects being responsible for the abuse of the right, and no law shall be passed to restrain or abridge either free speech or of the press."

"In all criminal prosecutions for libel the truth may be given in evidence to the jury and if it shall appear to the jury that the matter charged as libelous is true and is published for good motives and for justifiable ends, the defendant shall be acquitted."

"Inquiry into the official conduct of officials or men in public capacity or into any other matter proper for public information or investigation, presents a proper occasion for comment in the public press; and a proper motive and manner exclude notice both in purpose and phrase."

"That if the jury believe from all the evidence that the publication was made without actual notice or negligence, for the honest purpose of giving the public information which it is entitled to have, the defendant should be acquitted."

"That if the jury find from all the evidence that the publication charged in the indictment as libelous was made by the defendant upon information to warrant him in believing that the facts set forth were true, and find further that the publication was made without malice or negligence, the defendant should be acquitted."

"If the jury have a reasonable doubt as to whether the language of the publication imputes corruption to the parties alleged to be libeled, then the defendant is entitled to be acquitted and the verdict should be not guilty."

The jury took three ballots and announced their verdict as "guilty."

The jury was composed of business men, retired business men, a retired faro dealer, a politician, two law students, and a couple working men.

It was a glorious fight for justice and working class homes, and it has been a fight well worth the while. It has served to call attention to the atrocious juvenile law now on the statute book. It has served to show the alliance between church and state, which is forbidden by state and national constitution. It has served to show the people that a thorough house-cleaning is needed in the probate and juvenile courts of this county. If going to jail will still further aid in correcting these wrongs, then we are willing, aye, anxious to go to jail.

Another feature of the trial was the insulting language used by the state's attorneys to Comrade Bates. On one occasion one of them said, according to witnesses, "I'll throw you out, G— D— you." To the credit of the Ohio State Journal they commented on such language in their editorial columns a day or two later.

On the announcement of the verdict Bates made a motion for a new trial. Judge Osborn set the hearing for the argument for a new trial July 9th, at which time the cases of our other comrades will be up and the date for their commencement will be announced. Piles of new evidence is being received daily and the chances are that the next trial will take twice as long as this one. In the meantime roll in the subs. "Let joy be unconfined."

In every noble cause some individuals must suffer, but this only tends to call the attention of the people to the flagrant wrongs of the system. If our comrades go to jail, the people will want to know why they went to jail. They will find out and it will give the movement such an impetus as it has never had before.

It is a cinch that thousands have read Socialist literature the past two months that never read any before. Hundreds are working for the movement that were never before interested. They have discovered that the Socialist Party stands by the working class, even though some individuals go to jail for doing so.

The Socialist has only begun. Another court house record is coming ere long that will cause a sensation from one end of the country to the other. Get ready for it. Roll in the subs. We ought to have twice as many subs before this exposure comes. Next week the bars are down, and you can send in one sub at 25 cents for 40 weeks.

If you can't get 4 or more send in at least one. Celebrate the great victory just won by doubling the circulation, so that we will be twice as strong for the next battle.

We said above it was a "victory." We meant it, because every decision against a Socialist only tends to solidify the movement and attract new workers and that is certainly what it is doing in this case.

Fear of a jail will not prevent the exposure coming mentioned above. It is scheduled, and the date will be announced in a later issue. We think it will puncture the political boomlet of some old party politicians, and furthermore they will have no defence as the record will be so complete and so absolutely convincing that every honest voter in this country will be nauseated when they look at an old party ballot.

Once more we ask your share by doubling the circulation in the City and State.

THE BABIES ARE CRYING TO-DAY

Thousands of babies are crying today—crying for fresh air, for pure milk, for cool breezes, for proper care, for a chance to live. And thousands of them will get none of those things.

Every one loves babies. A baby in a street car is the center of all attraction—if it is a happy, smiling baby. No normal being is other than a lover of babies. And yet how scant are the measures taken for the protection of babies. As a collectivity we give all too little thought to the welfare of those who have just entered this turbulent world.

Existence is full of pitfalls for babies. Ignorance lays some of the traps; greed lays many. And every twenty seconds a baby dies in the United States.

We look at them when they smile—and we are made happy by their smiles. We love them—when they are happy and healthy. But we allow them to swelter and grow pale and sick in sultry, squalid hovels, we allow unfit milk to pass their lips, we allow germs to thrive where they are, we allow bad air and dark rooms to choke the natural sunlight of their budding souls—we allow them to die—one every twenty seconds.

Individually we love babies. Collectively we don't care much about them. Do we?

Labor leaders that actively oppose the working class political movement are wolves in sheep's clothing.

The less brains the rulers possess, the harder they try to make up the deficiency with bayonets.

The bank was not far wrong when it advertised: "We make the interest of our depositors our interest."

The fellows that know it all usually deceive no one but themselves in their profession of wisdom.

What the people use most the people should own.—Carlyle.

MAYOR WANTS THE TRUTH

W. M. Higley, Mayor

Albany, Ohio, June 5th, 1914.

The Socialist Publishing Co.
Columbus, Ohio.
Dear Comrades:—

You will find enclosed the sum of 50 cents in payment for one year's subscription to The Socialist, believing your paper to be the best party paper in the State. I intend to use more of my money for Socialist papers hereafter and less for papers that are simply the mouthpiece of Plunderbund. I am given daily or weekly, large doses of falsehoods from the subsidized press and am tiring of the treatment and am longing for the truth, told in unmistakable language, and I realize it is only thru the medium of the Socialist press that we ian get the real truth. Count me in for a year to begin with and I hope to be a regular patron while you have the courage to stand up for the produsing class and defend true Socialism.

Fraternally Yours,
W. M. HIGLEY.

W. M. H.

Editors of the kept press can't help printing lots of foolish stuff—that is part of the game.

Every nation needs a head, but a block of solid ivory is too expensive.

The Socialist movement is the recruiting ground of the army that will emancipate labor.

There will be no bread lines when Socialism comes.

PERSECUTED LIVE FOR EVER IN THE HEARTS OF THE PEOPLE

On May 29th, 1767, Patrick Henry introduced the famous Stamp Act Resolutions in the House of Burgesses, the last of which declare that Great Britain had no right to tax us. In defense of this rebellion against legalized authority, he made the speech which immortalized him. The resolutions were passed by a majority of one. The next day, in the absence of Henry, the House of Burgesses rescinded the last resolution.

Patrick Henry, the man who had the courage of his conviction, is remembered and respected by the entire country, while the members of said house, who were too cowardly to oppose the "powers that be" are forgotten. Wendell Phillips made many enemies in his fight for the freedom of slaves, but where in history do their names appear? The "Good Citizens" who destroyed the printing plant of David Floyd Garrison, have long been forgotten, while Garrison's name stands as a shining light for our young people. to emulate. How many people in this country know the name of the Judge who sent E. V. Debs to Woodstock? Which is most respected, Debs or said Judge? Have not the advance thinkers of all ages been persecuted by those in power? Was not Christ crucified because his ideas of right and wrong were not in accord with the interest of the ruling class? We have seen Gifford Pinchot drawn from office for exposing the rascality of Mr. Ballinger.

Columbus was jailed by those who benefited by his discoveries. So we must expect that those who have the courage to try to abolish the judicial tyranny and abuses, will meet with the same fate. Don't forget that Judicial tyrannies are just as destructive to our liberties as the tyrannies of Emperors or Kings. Which side are you going to take on this question? Are you going to be a rebel and protest against injustices whenever you find them, or are you going to be so cowardly as to accept such abuses without question? In this struggle for liberty are you going to be a Patrick Henry or a King George? Remember that Judicial tyranny is nothing more or less than the injustices of Capitalism reflected through the Judicial system. The decision of the Courts of Colorado probably had as much to do in bringing about the "Battle of Ludlow" as any other faction. It is your duty, my fellow friend, to take sides in this question, for if you do not openly oppose all injustices done your fellowman, we can reasonably believe you are against him. Are you going to be a "Patriot" or a "Tory"? Which?

A SQUARE JUDGE

It is an old saying that we shall "give the devil his dues." The Socialist desires to make this public statement, that Judge Osborn, during the trial of Comrade Bates was as absolutely fair and impartial as it were possible to be under the Capitalist system of Court procedure.

We make this statement because many were afraid that because Bates was a Socialist, Osborn would not give him a square deal.

We have only this to say: that were all cases in Juvenile Court and Probate Court handled as fairly as Osborn handled this case, no one would have any kick.

Time and again Judge Osborn was compelled to protect Bates from the insulting language of State's Attorneys; and he did it.

The Socialist would scorn to say anything ill of anyone where it was not deserved, and we feel that it is our public duty to state that Judge Samuel Osborn was absolutely and uncompromisingly fair in this trial.

A BOOK OF EVIDENCE

Arrangements are being completed to publish the evidence taken in the Black-Bates case in book form.

A copy will be put in the hands of every voter in Franklin County, and will be sold all over the country.

No better book of Propaganda coul dbe placed in the hands of the people than this. It will serve to show the people the amount of evidence that can be brought against a capitalist public official, and be still allowed to sit on the bench. It will take some time to get the book ready, as it covers 3000 pages of stenographic reports.

Comrades, you have seen the hard and bitter fight we have put up to prove the charges against Judge Black. If you could have attended the trial and heard the evidence as brought out on the stand, if you could have seen as we have seen, strong men and women break down and weep as they testified to the horrible treatment accorded them by Judge Black and his court officers, you would have gone away determined to sacrifice something to help win this fight. It is a fight for decency. It is a fight for home and fireside. It is a fight for working class homes.

Our hardest fight has been raising the finances. Much money is yet needed. The committee needs your help now. Send in all you can spare. If necessary, sacrifice something for your class, but do it today. Send all contributions to W. E. Bues, 101 North High Street.

STATE APPROVES MURDER

Denver, Colo., June 10.—The State of Colorado has placed its stamp of approval on the murder and cremation of men, women and children at Ludlow by the murderous mine guards in militiamen's uniforms.

The coal operators paid some of these men three dollars a day to carry out their work of slaughter. Up to the time of the Ludlow massacre there was some question as to whether these assassins should also be paid by the State.

But when they, clothed with the authority of the State, dressed in he uniform of its militia and using the machine guns of the operators, swooped down on Ludlow, April 20, burned it to the ground, killed and cremated 13 women and children and deliberately murdered Louis Tikas and five others, they did such a noble service for Colorado that the state legislators decided this week to reward them by voting to pay them.

If there was ever any question that Colorado is owned body and soul by John D. Rockefeller, that idea was dispelled this week when the State legislature met. Rockefeller and his gang immediately took charge. Speaker Slattery of the House of Representatives, saloon keeper and gambler, whipped the corporation tools into line. Public sentiment alone prevented the establishment of a mounted Cossack force and a gun bill.

The passing of a million dollar appropriation bill, however, shows clearly what labor can expect from the Colorado State government. Seven hundred thousand dollars of this is to pay the militia thugs and operators' assassins who for over six months intimidated the strikers in Southern Colorado, murdered and assaulted them, insulted their womanhood and robbed and plundered their homes. This amount includes payment of the gunmen who were responsible for the Ludlow horror.

Colorado spent $700,000 in an attempt to break the strike of the coal miners. Today victory for the miners is but a short distance away. Ammons and Chase and others of the operators' tools determined however, that victory shall not come to the miners until they have spent their every effort, so they had their gambler led legislature provide $300,000 additional so that the militia can go back to the strike zone, if the federal troops leave, to complete their work of carnage.

The corporations played their usual card in labor struggles this week when they indicted six men for murder and more than 100 for conspiracy to murder one man who was killed in the Boulder County troubles.

"Indictments in the labor movement," said John R. Lawson, who is in active charge of the strike. "Sometimes they come because the county officials are honest and zealous to perform their duties and serve their constituents and in an effort to preserve the law. Sometimes they come in a blind effort to help the corporations in their scramble to destroy all vestige of organized labor through intimidation and persecution. At other times they come because some of the county officials are anxious to build up on a false foundation, at the expense of the county and the people, they are sworn to serve a political future. I have not at any time been able to discover a district attorney who was even willing to prosecute the coal corporations in whose mines dozens of men had been murdered through their negligence. The miners' officials or the miners do not fear to meet a jury in any court of any country where they have an opportunity to get that measure of justice to which they are entitled."

Among those indicted for murder was W. T. Hickey, Secretary of the State Federation of Labor. His case shows how far the rotten government of the State will go in their struggle to destroy every vestige of labor in Colorado. Hickey not only was not in the fighting in which one man was killed but he was not even in Boulder County where the indictment was brought in by a grand jury. But Hickey is prominent in the labor movement and that is sufficient reason for indictment on any charge in Colorado.

Federal troops have restored order in the strike district. The future must take care of itself. The serious conditions of affairs in Mexico makes it certain that federal troops will not remain in Colorado very long. When they leave the operators will soon find an excuse to have their pet Ammons send the militia back to "preserve the peace." The people of the United States know what this potpourri of barrel house bums, Baldwin thugs, women and children murderers and cremators did before. A leopard cannot change its spots. It is but natural to expect that they will renew their carnival of slaughter and carnage.

DENIED RIGHT TO SEE JUVENILE COURT RECORDS

Last Tuesday, Miss Daisy Perkins, Bates' stenographer, went to Juvenile Court to get some public records, which Judge Osborn had told her, during the progress of the trial, she could get to complete her records. The reason for this was that these records were read in Court and the stenographer could not get them all at the time, and Judge Osborn allowed the records read and told both stenographers that the records would be read and taken back to Juvenile Court, and then they could go down there and copy them.

When Miss Perkins called at Juvenile Court last Tuesday and asked Miss Murray for the records, this "servant" of the people told Miss Perkins, "I won't give you any records"; "I won't allow you to see any records unless Judge Black says so."

Oh! you free born American citizens. Here is a Court of Public record; a Court that the people pay for, and the people are not allowed to even look at public records in said Court.

Talk about tyranny. The Czar of Russia wouldn't dare do such a thing as deny citizens the right to scrutinize Public Records.

Where is your boasted liberty? An agent of the Court can't even look at Juvenile Court records, which should be open to the people at all times.

What other Court in this town, what other public official, eating at the public crib would dare to deny citizens the right to look over public records?

Verily, the people are asleep. Liberty is dead, and tyranny reigns supreme.

"STINKEM'S SOFT SOAP"

The unsightly booths arranged about the State House square, ostensibly to boost "Columbus Made Goods," should be visited by every working man in the city. It is very interesting and instructing.

It tends to show the class character of our goernment in this: that big things of life they produce, and which belong to the masters after it is produced by the said slaves.

It tends to show the class character of our goernment in this: that big business can box up our public squares and show to the hungry eyes of the working class all the products of labor's hands, while the worker's only participation is working long hours, tending to the stalls for the masters who own it all.

Attention is called to one of our largest industries which is not represented in this vulgar show. You can walk all around the square and you will not find our post office represented. You will find no stall advertising the different brands of Uncle Sam's postage stamps. Peculiar, isn't it? Why is not the P. O. Department represented? Because the P. O. belongs to the people.

The people know the cost of stamps and they know where to get them, and Uncle Sam, or Postmaster Krumm don't have to advertise along with the thousand and one little dinky business men, who work the workers making "stinkems soft soap."

Get wise! Vote for Uncle Sam to own the industries. Only the Socialist Party stands for that program.

STATE REWARDS ASSASSINS

Denver, Colo., May:—(Spl.) The State of Colorado has finally decided to reward the hired assassins of the operators for their "splendid" work as militiamen in murdering and cremating nineteen men, women and children at Ludlow, Colorado, April 20th. The State auditing board met yesterday and showed that its members were traitors to the State when they approved the imported murderers' bills for "services" to the State. Two members had moral principle enough to vote against the plan.

Eighty members of the United Mine Workers and sympathizers were arrested and jailed in Fremont County this week; some for the notorious crime of being friends of the miners, and others because they were guilty of the equally grave offense of defending their homes against them urderous attacks of Colorado's national guard. Two hundred miners have been arrested as a result of the two weeks' war—no other arrests have been made.

John Chase, adjutant general of Colorado's uniformed murderers, is continuing his revival meetings for the citizens' alliance. The operators seem to like his services. Now, that he can no longer serve them by using the militia as scabherders and gunmen they have employed him as an evangelist.

John R. Lawson, International Board Member of the United Mine Workers, addressed a letter to Chase telling him he believed it the duty of both sides to fully inform the public of real facts in the coal strike so that they could decide for themselves who was at fault. Lawson suggested that Chase meet him at the Auditorium to give these facts, and of course Chase declined.

"The Ludlow Massacre," by Walter H. Fink, publicity agent of the miners, and which is the first authentic and detail story of the slaughter as well as the strike for the past thirty years, came off the press this week.

The policy committee in charge of the miners' strike sent out the following letter describing the book:

To Officers and Members United Mine Workers of America:

Dear Sirs & Brothers:—

Walter H. Fink, our publicity agent in the Colorado strike has written a book "The Ludlow Massacre."

It contains 81 full-page illustrations, some of them actual photographs of the horrors of our strike; a 20,000 word, one hundred-page book depicting in a narrative form the sufferings of Colorado coal miners, the slaughter and cremation of men, women and children in their fight to win this strike.

The book is a highly interesting and exciting in addition to the Ludlow massacre, a story of the fights made by Colorado coal miners since 1884. Mr. Fink is a trained newspaper man of wide experience, and has been in active touch with the situation since before the strike began. There is none better able to write a story of the struggle. As a matter of fact, we have had Mr. Fink at work for the past eight months on a history of the Colorado war since 1876, which is to be published by the United Mine Workers when the strike is won and over.

"The Ludlow Massacre" is being sold at twenty-five cents a copy, a little more than cost, that every coal miner in the country may be fully acquainted with the horrors of the Colorado strike.

We feel that it would be an excellent thing to have copies of "The Ludlow Massacre" on file in every local union, and if you can assist in the circulation of this book among the members of the organization, we believe it would do much to increase the interest in the Colorado strike and toward final victory.

Thanking you for your enthusiastic support and assuring you that we believe certain victory is not far distant, we are

Very truly yours,
JOHN R. LAWSON.. .. .. ..

DON'T LET BIGOTRY ENDANGER THE PROGRESS OF THE SOCIALIST PARTY

By Albert J. Welch, Socialist Alderman-at-large of Milwaukee.

The anti-Catholic crusade that is just now so vigorously carried on has looked to me for some time very much like a conspiracy to split the Socialist Party on the rock of bigotry.

What "Bigot" Editor Says.

Here are just a few lines from a paper of the patriotic "Protect America From the Pope" persuasion which has just come to my hand, the editor of which I am informed is an alleged Socialist: "When the Socialist Party puts three of the arms of Americanism in its platform and omits two, we are going to wallop them for doing a half-way job, and when the Socialists fall to the Roman political machine's traps, just like the other parties, we are going to tell them of it, and we don't care whether Socialists or the party like it or not."

Few Catholic "Bigots."

As I am not a Catholic bigot, I did what some Catholic bigots would not approve of—I read every line in the sample paper sent me. The result is that I am convinced that the Catholic Church can boast few bigots to equal the bigot who edits the paper referred to.

Catholic Socialists Trustworthy.

The Socialist Party in America is accused of nominating Catholics on its tickets. In Milwaukee, Catholics have been nominated and elected to office on the Socialist ticket, and they have performed their duties to the entire satisfaction of the party membership. Not one of them could be accused of catering to the Catholic clergy in the slightest degree. I have yet to learn of a single Catholic Socialist in Milwaukee or elsewhere in the United States who has proved a traitor to the party.

Don't Be Led Astray.

As the Socialist Party stands committed to free speech and a free press, there is nothing left for us to do but point out the fallacy of this anti-Catholic agitation and warn loyal Socialists against being led astray by it.

Don't Drive Away Members.

Beware of bigots; they are invariably one-sided, and a Socialist bigot is more dangerous to the Socialist movement than any other sort—for his entire time is usually devoted to driving away prospective members. One such bigot can do more harm than a thousand loyal workers can repair with the hardest kind of work.

Are Not Led by Priests.

The trouble with your average anti-Catholic bigot is that he presumes that every Catholic is led around by the nose by his priest. The fact of the matter is that the vast majority of Catholic workingmen have not even a speaking acquaintance with the priest in their parish—except in the smaller towns and villages. These Catholic workingmen are brought into contact with workers of all religions and no religion at all. Very frequently they are the objects of attack by their religious opponents. And yet, these same Catholic workingmen join the unions made up of all these various elements and fight Catholic employers to the last ditch. Catholics cannot avoid the laws of economic determinism any more than the adherents of any other faith.

Leave Religion to Individuals.

The organization of a Catholic Socialist movement has been suggested to me more than once. I have invariably opposed it, for the very reason that I think it quite ridiculous as a Catholic trades union would be. We must have unity on both the economic and political fields, and to accomplish this, we must insist that questions of religion be left absolutely to the individual and his conscience.

Don't Discriminate Religiously.

I sincerely hope that the time will come when it can be said of the Socialist Party of America that it stooped to discriminate against some of its members because of their religious beliefs. The moment the Socialist party begins to discriminate against workers because of their religious convictions, that moment will seal the doom of the party. Our enemies know this full well. Religious intolerance has been one of the strongest weapons in all ages. They are at this very moment putting forth their strongest efforts to inject religious intolrance into the union labor movement—and they will use the Socialist Party as a means to this end if it is at all possible to do so.

Wild Anti-Catholic Fanaticism.

As a warning to Socialists who may be led astray by this anti-Catholic fanaticism, let me quote just a few words more from the sheet I refer to as unmistakable proof of a conspiracy to disrupt the Socialist movement in America: "We must have a new party, an unmistakable American party. Start work now."

Class-Conscious Workers Needed.

Do you want an American party of fanatics or an International party of class-conscious workers?

The Catholic Church and the Socialist Party have both helped to fortify my conviction of the superiority of internationalism.

Train Guns on Capitalism.

Let us keep our guns trained on the monster, capitalism, and if the clergy happen to get in the way let them assume the entire responsibility for their betrayal of Christ whom they pretend to serve while accepting the thirty pieces of silver from the emissaries of Mammon.—Schenectady Citizen.

FAT BILL TAFT ON SOCIALISM

When William Howard Taft discusses Socialism, intelligent beings must approach his words either in a spirit of profound disgust or in a spirit of unlimited levity.

William Howard has just spoken on Socialism once more. He doesn't believe that Socialism is going to come right away. He doesn't believe it is possible for the kind of human beings that now populate the earth to have Socialism. For, says William Howard, "until men are perfect beings of this kind, Socialism must either constitute a tyranny so rigid as to destroy not only the right of liberty and to interfere with the pursuit of happiness or it must be a failure."

A gem of purest ray serene!

But wait: Mr. Taft spoke at New Harmony—and the object of his speech was to give "reasons" for the failure of experiments in Socialism. Mr. Taft, as would be natural at New Harmony, spoke of Robert Owen as having made the "most notable" experiment in Socialism: The wide expanse of smile that will spread over the faces of the nation's Socialists upon learning that any individual has made "experiments in Socialism" will eclipse the well known smile of even Mr. Taft himself. Of course, Socialists are familiar with the work and words of Robert Owen, and no Socialist has yet learned that Mr. Owen or anybody else, ever made "an experiment in Socialism."

But Mr. Taft assures us, in solemn words, that Robert Owen's experiment failed "because it found no substitute for the motive essential to arouse and make constant human effort that is furnished by the competition of private property and the shaping o freward by competition and natural economic adjustment.

Another gem of ray purer and more serene than the first—if that is possible!

Professor Taft should not be teaching law. He should be teaching the principles that underlie correct joke-smithing. That appears to be his forte.

It seems needless for any Socialist or for any Socialist newspaper again to repeat that there never has and never can be any experiment in Socialism, either by an individual or by a colony, any more than there could have been an experiment in capitalism before the capitalist system became the established order. But it appears that as long as William Howard Taft is among us, the statement will have to be repeated for his benefit—for his and Chancellor Day's.

HOW IT WORKS.

The capitalists own the tools with which the worker works, if he works. A worker can't work unless he has the tools with which a worker works to work with. As long as the capitalists are allowed to own the tools a worker works with he has the privilege to work the worker out of as much work as he can work the worker out of and will continue to work the worker out of all the work he can work the worker until the worker works the capitalists out of the tools the worker works with when the worker works.

A friend sent a picture of a luncheon recently given to a number of dogs, "by their mistresses," and suggests that the phrase, "a dog's life," as expressive of misery will have to be revised. Perhaps the worst human condition can be better expressed by a "worker's life." Who wouldn't prefer to be some people's "poor Fido" today in preference to "a free American voting king?" Free to quit your job, but not even to starve for if you don't get a new job you're liable to be arrested, imprisoned and felonized for vagrance. Nice, isnt it? Study Socialism.

Hope in a string of new subs this week sure. This is your most effective weapon and you can make it just as effective as you wish. Think of it, only 25c for 40 weeks. Cheaper than a capitalist paper, and more solid food for thought than all the capitalist sheets combined. Get back on the firing line.

The only thing the children of the workers inherit are poverty and misery. What is in store for your children? Whose fault is it if they go wrong, when you have been voting wrong so long yourself?

GOD CAN NOT DO IT

God cannot save the hundreds of millions of honest men who are jobless in this big world today, because other men have hogged the land and other means of access to nature's wealth, unless He first destroys the hoggish capitalist system which uses machinery to displace workers, and which uses enforced wage competition between men, women and children to displace men. The unemployed problem will last until capitalism ends. Henry Ford's plan of paying a minimum wage of $5 per day does not even touch the unemployed problem. 30,000 men were rioting around his factory demanding jobs which he cannot give, and which no man under Capitalism can give. Hundreds of millions of men, women and children are hungry and miserable today—and all in a world of boundless plenty, because of the cruel, insane, brutes—battle for the necessities of life which wastes most of the labor in useless drudgery and prevents the very producers themselves from obtaining the product of their labor!

God cannot save the world from unemployment, want, misery and social injustice while Capitalism lasts.

Those who obtain luxury by the brutal methods of competition are robbers, while those who support and defend the system which makes bitter rivals of men who should be brothers, and who refuse to stand for co-operative commonwealth, are PARTNERS IN CRIME with them, even though they be ignorant of the fact.

The unemployed problem is shaking every nation, filling every large city with horror, and driving the working people to frenzied agitation for social justice—and all the church knows enough to say is: "You will get your reward in Heaven."—But beware the men who tell you that the people should own the means of life, that workers should have the product of their labor, that the exploitation of the poor should cease."

There is hope in God for the poor under Capitalism—Capitalism makes the "Good news to the poor" a mockery, because Capitalism inevitably means unemployment, low wages, misery, sin and despair.

If God approves of exploitation, by rent, interest, profit, or by any other force or fraud, legal or illegal, THEN the working class has no use for God. He is not their "father" nor their "friend."

A real God, just, loving, and worth believing in, would stand for the workers against their exploiters.

If the churches continue to stand for Capitalism, for the exploiting Capitalist system, the working people who number the vast majority of mankind, will despise religion and destroy the church—and the real God within them will make them do it.

Christianity means the Social Revolution, else "the salt has lost his savor, and is fit for nothing but to be cast out and trodden under foot of men."

Both God and man despise a church that prates of "love," "charity," "righteousness" and "brotherhood"—and yet defends a fierce and hopeless dog-fight for the means of life.

Just stop a minute—Think!—Think of poverty, starvation and misery in a world such as ours! Its soil possessing marvelous productive qualities, responses to our efforts in abundant quantities of cereals, fruits, vegetables—and in all other needful products. Vast forests to furnish us with materials for houses, bridges, ships—and thousands of other useful and necessary commodities. In the bowels of the earth are stored rich deposits of iron-ore, gold, silver, copper, coal, petroleum, gas, etc. Not one thing that is necessary to our well-being is absent—And all in the hands of God's favored few."—All in the hands of Rockefeller, the "Ludlow murderer."—Carnegie, the "Homestead murderer"—the Morgans—and other rich heads of the modern churches—while the working people of the world beg them for the right to live. And if they protest—well, you surely remember what happened to the poor innocent babes at the "Ludlow Massacre"—in the Rockefeller War—remember Calumet—remember the Christmas Tree at Calumet—remember Paterson, N. J.—remember Little Falls,—remember Lawrence—remember the horrors of West Virginia—and all to make these "favored few" rich.

If the church really believes in "God our Father" and in the "Brotherhood of Man," why don't they help save mankind?

The working class today contemptuously spurns the church beneath its feet. Why? Because the church and its ministers and priests in general fear to stand squarely for social justice—against all forms of exploitation.

God will not, God cannot save the world from the misery of want, even though he has filled the world with plenty, until we overthrow the brute system of making a living by preying upon each other, and establish the system of brotherly co-operation, any more than He could have freedom, peace and plenty in an absolute despotism ruled by Nero.

If the churches keep on trying to save their lives financially by "lying at the rich man's gate, FULL OF SORES, desiring to be fed by the crumbs that fall from the rich man's table," they shall die.

Socialism—the collective ownership of the means of producing and distributing wealth—true political and industrial democracy alone can prevent, and therefore cure it their very source, all the evils resulting from poverty. Which side are you on? Show your colors now, and do something to prove your worth.

PATRICK L. QUINLAN

The conviction of Pat Quinlan has been affirmed by the Supreme Court of New Jersey, and he must go to jail for from two to seven years and pay a fine of $500. What he did is of no consequence. He incurred the hostility of the owners of Paterson by his sturdy advocacy of the cause of the strikers in the course of the silk strike. He did more. He advocated the capture of the forces of government by the working class. Whatever else he did, that was sufficient to damn him.

The immediate charge, that he "incited to riot," is the sheerest rot. He did nothing of the kind. He advocated solidarity of the workers, he advocated the standing together of all the men and women of the working class in the shop, in the union and in the political field.

That is what hurt. That is where it galled the maddened bosses of Paterson. They pulled the strings, and Pat was arrested. He was charged with a number of things, in the hope that at least one of the charges would stick. This one did. And now, if the appeal to the Court of Errors and Appeals fails, Pat must go to jail.

Well, if he must, he must. But we honor him for it. We glory in his superb courage in sticking to his guns, in remaining in the vicinity of New York while the case was being argued, although he could easily have left. Victor Berger said in Congress one day that under some circumstances it is glorious to go to jail, aye, even glorious to be hanged.

Pat Quinlan, you did your duty. You are a man. You fought for the working class. You did not flinch. If your duty led you to incur the stupid hatred of Paterson, you stuck. And out of jail, your rich Irish brogue was an inspiration to the working class, it was eloquent. And in jail, the victim of hideous injustice, your silence wil be more eloquent than your tongue. It will inspire us to greater efforts to capture for the working class the city that you helped to put upon the map. And when you are freed, Pat, you will be welcomed by a brass band, and cheers, and the Socialist officials of the city, and the freedom of the city.

And it is your sacrifice that will have helped us in the capture of that city.

Pat Quinlan, the working class is proud of you.

GOD, AND THE GOOD OLD SUMMER TIME

By Henry M. Tichenor, The Rip-Saw Poet.

"When a man is broke, and out of work, what is he going to do?" And Taft, but shook his head and said, "that only the Great God knew!" Never so many out of work, and broke, as there are this year—and Wilson says, "cheer up, poor men, summer will soon be here!" It's great to have such rulers, who are so wondrous wise—one points you to the summer, the other beyond the skies. No matter though the masters have swiped your last lone dime—you still have God to look to, and the good old summer time!

Killing the working class movement is like a dog barking at the moon.

When the workers rule the rulers have to work.

Capitalism cannot explain poverty in the midst of plenty without condemning itself.

"AND THEY SCOFFED AND REVILED HIM."

Our attention was called to a street accident seen from our office window this week.

A venerable colored man, so lame and generally decrepit that he could scarcely walk, had, in trying to board a car, been thrown to the pavement. He first tried to get on the front vestibule, which the motorman would not allow; he then started for the rear, and just as he was about to get on, the car started, throwing him down on the hard bricks, and the car crew refused to come to his assistance. He was finally assisted to his feet by two news boys, and led across the street where two "Bobbies" detained him until the "Hurry up" wagon could be brought to take him to "the Jug." He might have had too much "Hot stuff," we know not, but the lack of the "Milk of human kindness" shown both by the officers and the morbid crowd which gathered around the poor victim of disease or rum (both the "hand maids" of Capitalism) was a disgrace to the very name of civilization, and only showed too plainly that to be one of poor and dispossessed is indeed a most unfortunate state in which to be placed.

We were heartily pleased by the act of those two boys and of a manly man in the crowd gathered around him. What would Jesus have done, had he been present? Perhaps the poor man was once a chattel slave, and now he is a wage slave, and it would seem no more to be considered than a cur dog (certainly not a blooded one) and yet, we are told that even he has an immortal soul and will be with God and the angels.

You who sneered! you unclean! You leering whelps! Will you dare face him when the smile of God's love and approbation illumes to the whiteness of snow that visage? Will you?

Those who gathered in vulgar and silly-mindedness about him, are no doubt, too ignorant to know that even his color was caused by environment, that his very thought, speech, habits, good or bad, are each and all caused by his surroundings and his economic station in life, and yet the poor unfortunate is treated with contempt by those who are but buffons themselves, and who in some circumstances, would, appear much more crude than he did.

Be kind, it costs you nothing, and you are paid in gratitude and smiles. "For in as much as ye did it not unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye did it not unto me."

The human race will not really begin to live until freed from the struggle for existence.

Socialism cannot be a slavery because it is a growth and not an invention.

In the general election held in Belgium last week to choose one-half the members of Parliament, the standing of the three parties was changed but slightly. The Clericals elected 41 members, the Socialists 26 and the Liberals 30. The Socialists gained one and the Clericals two seats from the Liberals. The old ballot system still prevails whereby one Clerical plutocrat casts three votes and a Socialist workingman only one. It will be remembered that last year the Clerical government, in order to end the great general strike, solemnly promised to grant franchise reforms. The people were betrayed, no concessions having been made. Hence much bitterness exists and it is not improbable that another general strike will be organized to force the government to abolish plural voting.

Final returns show that the Socialist party of France will have 102 members in Parliament. The strong trend toward Socialism that was manifested in the election caused the Cabinet to resign and it will probably be succeeded by a more radical governing body in order to conciliate some of the dissatisfied elements that threaten to go over to the Socialists. The latter are naturally elated at their splendid gains in this year's election and are now almost in a position where they can dictate legislation.

In Holland the Socialists have entered into an alliance with the Liberals against the Clericals in the coming provincial election. The reason is that the latter, true to their reactionary policy, are endeavoring to block the granting of the ballot to many workers who have heretofore been denied the franchise. The Socialists and Liberals have forced the suffrage bill through the Lower House, where the Clericals have a large majority. The Senators are chosen by Provincial Legislatures, and hence the Liberal-Socialist coalition to bump the Clerics and put the new franchise bill through Parliament.

There will be no people dependent on charity when Socialism comes.—There will be no need for charity, because all will be fed, clothed and sheltered.

The capitalist is not shot in labor disputes.—Oh, no. It's usually the fool working man, who voted over to the capitalist the gun that does the shooting.

The capitalist idea of feet is that they were made to tramp with, not to kick with. Which way do you use yours?

Why don't the government make a dicker with the people who earn the money, instead of the people who live off of it?

'Tis this we ask, that the workers learn
To keep for themselves what their efforts earn.

Giving woman the ballot will not take power from man. It will merely make him stronger by making him right.

Some of our good citizens say that we have no panic. It looks as if they are right. Since the passing of the currency bill the financial capitalists have decided that there shall be no more overproduction. 'Hard times are to be permanent.

Capitalist punishment and abuse of the prisoners are survivals of the ignorance which imagines a man is entirely responsible for his own acts. The society which does the punishing is in many respects guilty of the crime.

If we were wise we would unite our forces to war against the common enemy of mankind instead of frittering away our time trying to get the best of each other.

Education is the spinal column of Socialism, and every book you read of its literature is a vertebra. For the worker without backbone there is nothing like a good course of Socialist books to make him stand up straight.

It is about time we fired this old capitalist system of society on to the junk heap and replaced it with a humane, civilized method of living.

If you see through the capitalist game it means that it is becoming so thin it will ere long be dissolved.

LABOR UNIONS NOT EXEMPT

Socialist Party Press Service.
Washington, D. C., June 10, 1914.

Although the politicians will protest to the contrary, the Clayton anti-trust bill which passed the House last week DOES NOT CONTAIN A CLAUSE EXEMPTING LABOR FROM PROSECUTION under the Sherman act. The compromise clause which was agreed upon in an eleventh hour conference at the White House is a fake. In private, those who were most concerned in drawing it up and in riding it through as a sop to labor, are confessing that it is a fake, that under it the unions can still be prosecuted, and that at the very best it will have to go to the courts for elucidation.

Let there be no mistake about this: the one big labor measure for which the labor lobby and the labor politicians of the two old parties have been pressing for nearly a year has been hamstrung. The story of this hamstringing, as one member of Congress puts it, is another "Legislative tragedy" for labor. The labor people asked for an amendment to the trust law, which would declare that nothing in the trust laws should "apply to" labor unions. That was clear and concise. Its meaning was unmistakable. It was in accordance with the suggestion of the Supreme Court—the supreme law-making body of the land—in its decision in the Banbury Hat case. To this clause the labor men in the House rallied, and, as described in these dispatches, a terrific parliamentary battle was imminent when it was scheduled to come up.

But at the last moment the suave politicians prevailed, and a compromise provision was brought in. This compromise added to the original bill these words:—"Nor shall such organizations, orders, or associations, or the members thereof, be held or construed to be illegal combinations or conspiracies in restraint of trade under the anti-trust laws."

"It seems to me that there is a concealed purpose here to throw to the laboring men of the country, something that means nothing," declared one member. "That amendment will not exempt those organizations from the operation of the anti-trust laws," declared Rep. MacDonald of Michigan. "IN THIS AMENDMENT YOU HAVE for certain purposes, and, as to certain acts BROUGHT THESE ORGANIZATIONS WHERE THE COURTS MAY HOLD THEM EXPRESSLY WITHIN THE OPERATION OF THE SHERMAN LAW," he continued. "Every amendment proposed in the past to this law has used the words 'shall not apply,' and that was in the amendment that the Supreme Court in the Danbury Hat case said if Congress had done those things there would be no question about the operation of the law."

It is significant to note that Rep. Bartlett of Georgia, the man who introduced the original exemption amendment, could not stand up honestly for the fake compromise, although, for political reasons, he voted for it. "Whatever may be the result of this amendment to the antitrust bill," he said, "I claim no special credit for it." If the result of the amendment had been clear in his mind, Bartlett would be the last man in the world not to claim credit for it. In this remark, therefore, there is what amounts to a confession that the amendment is a fake.

The big business men, standing behind the Democratic party, are laughing in their sleeves at the way in which they have buncoed the working class. They had assurances in advance that everything would be "all right." President Wilson "let it be known," without coming out boldly and saying so in so many words, that the amendment would not exempt labor unions from prosecution under the anti-trust act. Astute legal minds in Washington, completely realize that the amendment will not exempt the unions, but the politicians are delighted with the success of the game they have put across. Representatives of the N. A. M., labor fakers, reactionaries, most of the "Progressives" and practically every Democrat voted for the compromise. When birds of such feathers flock together, there is the devil to pay. Mr. Workingman will pay the devil next time he gets the federal government down on him for being a trust.

NATIONAL

The fight for the life of Carl E. Person, editor of the organ of the System Federation strikers on the Illinois Central railway, has begun at Clinton, Ill. Person has been indicted for murder in the first degree although it has been shown indisputably that he shot a thug named Tony Musser, who waylaid him, to defend his own life.

Nearly everybody concedes the fact that the Illinois Central and other corporations demand the blood of Person, because of the successful campaign he has waged to prevent the destruction of the System Federation. Unions all over the country are donating funds to assist in Person's defense.

Very frankly, one Rosenheim, ribbon manufacturer at Paterson, N. J., now admits that the bosses maintain a black-list, a charge that has been steadily denied by the employers. "When a weaver applies for work at any mill or any other ribbon plant in the city," says Rosenheim, "he is asked where he worked last. When he has answered he is told to wait for a few minutes and his place of last employment is communicated with by telephone. If he is a striker or a disturber he is told that he is not wanted. So you see that it is absolutely impossible for my weavers or those of any other mill in which a strike exists to obtain work in Paterson."

For the purpose of accommodating Socialists who intend to visit the Panama Exposition next year, the Socialists of San Francisco are not only going to erect a large auditorium in which daily meetings will be held, but a substantial hotel is to be built, equipped with first-class lodging facilities, rest rooms, library and athletic grounds. It will be a truly international headquarters for the use of Socialists and sympathizers from all over the world.

Another result of the South African strike and the government's ruthless policy of applying the iron heel was large-sized secession movements from the two old parties. The latter have offered to join the labor party, provided that the latter will agree to "broaden" and make room for middle class men and their interests. The Laborites are shy and will hardly accept the bait.

Carl Liebknecht, the aggressive Socialist member of the German Parliament, has again fired hotshot and stirred up the privileged animals. Liebknecht charges that high government officials have been making a fat living by selling decorations and titles. An official of the Empress' privy purse, whatever that is, handed out decorations of the Red Eagle for $2,000, while titles of nobility cost as high as $10,000, depending upon the vintage and legendary bunk connected therewith. General Lindenau, late Governor of Metz and great patriot, did a regular land office business and had a schedule of prices for his assortment of titles. The exposure has scandalized the "best" people.

THE MASTERS MEET

With capital estimated at $10,000,000 under its control and with an army of 5,000,000 men in its employ, the National Association of manufacturers was in session. The truth of the matter is that an unemployed army is an asset to the manufacturers. That is one of the brutalities of capitalism. Unorganized and unemployed workers waiting at the shop gates are as desirable on the part of Big Business as is a plentiful supply of timber or iron or fuel. The thing that does not please Big Business is the seething tide of "unrest" that is flowing through the ranks of the unemployed and unorganized. Consciousness of fundamentals and the resulting spirit of solidarity among these men is not pleasing to the masters.

A YEAR OF SOCIALIST PROGRESS

Within the last twelve months the International Socialist movement has made wonderful progress. In a number of countries general elections have taken place during the year and in every instance the Socialists gained in votes and mandates. In Italy our comrades almost doubled their previous vote and the number of members elected to the Chamber of Deputies, the total Socialist vote reaching almost the million mark (997,000), electing 79 Socialist members in Parliament. In the Argentine Republic the Socialists increased their representation in the National Congress from 3 to 7, increasing their vote correspondingly. Sweeden has a general election and the Socialists increased their number of members in the Rigsdag (Congress) from about 40 to 64. In Bulgaria, where the Socialist Party had practically no representation in the Sobranje (National Legislature), there are today 31 Socialist members in the legislative body. Finland increased the number of Socialists in its national Parliament from 81 to 90, in spite of the Russian Czar's tyranny and persecution.

The latest news of unprecedented Socialist progress comes from France, where the Socialists increased their vote by about 300,000, reaching the 1,400,000 mark, gaining 38 new seats in the Chamber of Deputies, where they are now represented by 108 members. In Germany, Holland, and other countries good Socialist progress was also made in municipal and other local or special elections.

The three central European countries—Austria, Germaney, and France—have today a combined Socialist vote of over 6,700,000. What a magnificent army of Labor working for freedom and International Peace!

It is now up to the Socialists of the United States to add to these many victories of the International Socialist movement at the next November election. Now is the time to prepare for the great Socialist campaign.

David Goldstein, the "escaped Jew" who has been on a speaking tour to smash Socialism, under the auspices of the Knights of Columbus, has been having a hot time in the Canadian Northwest. In Calgary, "a vitrol Bedlam" broke loose, one paper says, while in Vancouver the interruptions were so frequent that nearly everybody in the hall was talking, and the various debates were kept up long after the show. In Winnipeg, where a city election is pending, the charge is made that Goldstein is to be brought in to split the labor ranks, and the renegade is promised another sultry reception. To add to the confusion, a "genuine, old-fashioned religious row" is threatening among Orangemen and Catholics, and a lot of the latter are dissatisfied with the mixing of politics and religion by the "converted Hebrew," who is regarded as an adventurer who has induced the K. of C. to engage in a mission, foreign to its original purpose in order to obtain a fat meal ticket and plenty of notoriety. Goldstein makes no attempt to explain the principles of Socialism or discuss the modern economic problems that affect all humanity. He simply makes personal attacks and appeals to prejudice with the old slush about Socialists being free lovers, breaking up the home, denying God, etc.

The Intercollegiate Socialist Society has had another prosperous year. During the college year new franchises have been formed in the Universities of Minnesota, Texas and Florida, in Radcliffe, Western Reserve, Howard, Washington, John Marshall Law, Oregon Agricultural and Hiram. The I. S. S. is now well organized in over 60 colleges, including practically all the larger ones. Many speakers have delivered addresses to the students, Mrs. Rose Pastor Stokes alone having filled 30 engagements. The enthusiasm is said to be becoming greater each year.

California Socialists nominated their State ticket by referendum vote, and it will be headed by N. A. Richardson of San Barnardino, for Governor. Ernest Untermann, the well-known writer, has been named for United States Senator.

In the cantonal electeion at Berne, Switzerland, the Socialists captured two new seats in the Council. The two old parties were compelled to combine in order to save their seats. The Socialists also gained another seat in Lengnau and one in Tun.

Mayor Bading, the "non-partisan" politician of Milwaukee, who has been acting like a lawless petty czar in ousting Socialists from office, has received a second smashing blow from the Wisconsin Supreme Court, which has just ruled that Carl F. Ringer, Building Inspector, is legally entitled to his position and has $5.25 salary coming. About a month ago another Socialist official was restored to his position by the court.

The Socialists of Dallas, Texas, have acquired the ownership of the Laborer. The owners of the paper gave the title to the publication free from debt, to the Socialist Party. Nat L. Hardy, a young Socialist journalist whose articles on Southern agricultural conditions won national distinction in Socialistic journalism, has been retained as editor of the publication.

The class struggle cannot be hid in the fog of fake philosophy.

GLASS WORKERS' UNION PREPARING FOR BIG CONVENTION

When the gavel falls in the convention hall at Rochester, Pa., July 6th, it will call to order the largest delegation the American Flint Glass Workers Union ever assembled at an annual convention.

The convention will be called to order July 6th, and will remain in session until July 20th. Local Union, No. 106, have elected as delegates, S. L. Donahue, Nicholas Reginer, Edward Walters, Edw. Zimpher, and Barney Larkin, to represent the local, the members of which are striking employees of The Federal Glass Plant on Innis ave.

This loyal bunch of workers have been on strike for eleven months and are holding the fort with ranks unshaken.

The emmisaries of Beatty, President of the plant, have been spreading the report that the coming convention would order the strike discontinued. This shows the ends to which organized greed will go to defeat organized labor. The facts in the case are that the A. F. G. W. U. never give up a strike. They fight until they secure their just demands, or the company goes bankrupt. Besides, the chances are that the convention will vote a raise in strike benefits to the men which will strike further terror in the hearts of the parasites who wish to fatten at the expense of the women and children of honest workers.

The delegates to the convention are going with the intention of working to bring the National Convention to Columbus. They will be assisted in this by Morris Langnon, proprietor of the Davidson House, who will tell the convention of the advantages Columbus has over other cities, in the way of accomodations and etc.

The very latest development at the Federal Glass Plant is the erection of a sort of "Colorado Bull Pen," by the company.

The plant is located on Innis ave., about two squares out of the city limits. The road that leads to the plant is the private property of Beatty and the property owners on the north side of said road, although the road now in use is all on Beatty's property.

Along the north side of the road, on the property of Mrs. Lehew, are some nice big shade trees. The Union pickets have been assembled under these trees, and accosting the "scabs" as they came from work, and inducing them to leave town.

The hot weather has made the said scabs so tender-hearted? that when they hear the strikers' plea for justice and show them the price of a ticket out of town, they have been grabbing at the chance to get away in such numbers that the plant was almost depopulated at times.

Seeing his scabs fading away, Beatty evidently decided that the shade of those trees had something to do with it, so last week a force of workmen were put on the job erecting a high wire fence between the trees and the road which the strike breakers must travel to go to and fro. Part of the fence is in front of the property of Mrs. Lehew. She states that when she noticed the men at work she asked what it was all about, and one of Beatty's deputies called her vile names. Mrs. Lehew is a highly respected woman, and resented the insult.

In spite of all the intimidation the company has used, the strikers are standing firmly together. The company is unable to do any great volume of business, as the "scabs" can not turn out the quantity of ware demanded by the trade.

The company will eventually realize, (in fact they do now) that in holding out, they are only "cutting off their nose to spite their face," because it is only a matter of time until it is either recognize the Union or quit.

COLUMBUS DELEGATES TO CONVENTION OF A. F. G. W. U.

Top Row, reading left to right—E. A. Walters, Financial Secretary L. U. No. 22; B. J. Larkin Treasurer; Edw. W. Zimpfer, Secretary. Bottom Row—Nicholas Reguer, Vice President; Jos. Gillooly, Organizer; Joseph O'Malley, Organizer; S. L. Donahue, President. Brothers Walter, Larkin, Zimpfer, Reguer and Donahue will represent L. U. No. 22 at the Rochester, Pa., Convention.

Communications are being received by the Columbus delegates from other delegates throughout the country, stating that they are going into the Convention for the purpose of electing Organizer Gillooly, Vice President, as they feel he is the logical man for the position on account of the many sacrifices he has made in the interest of the A. F. G. W. U.

JUDGE LINDSEY WANTS TO ABOLISH THE CAPITALIST SYSTEM

The following interview with Judge Ben Lindsey "the kid's ffiend," of Denver, Colorado, was taken while the Judge was in New York City on his trip, attempting to see John D. Rockefeller, Jr., to tell him of the murder of the striking Colorado miners and their wives and children, by the hired gunmen and assasins in the pay of the said John D., Jr. Read it! Every word of it. It tends to show how even Capitalist officials who have any manhood left, are beginning to stand appalled at the results of the system they uphold.

From the New York Call:

"What were your movements last night, Judge? Did you attend the theater? Did you have any social engagements?"

"My movements? My movements were these—I came to New York, I went to the Imperial Hotel, and I went to bed."

This sounds trivial, but it has a certain significance. It means just this. It means that all the capitalist papers are concerned with is whether a man with a national reputation goes to see Gaby Desleys dance or whether he goes to bed without witnessing Manuel's favorite in her peculiar gyrations.

But let the reporters talk. Let them ask questions. When they are all through, when they have gone down town to write up their inspired impressions of Judge Benjamin Lindsey of Colorado, who is in the east for the sole purpose of informing the public about the civil war now raging in the western state, then we shall have a chance to ask real questions.

They ask him where he spent the evening. The Call asked him what it was that caused men, and even women, according to his account, to take up arms to fight the militia of the state of Colorado.

The Call asked him what it was that was responsible for the merciless killing of suckling babes. What was his answer? Judge Lindsey answered: "The Beast."

"But what is the Beast, Judge? Is it John D. Rockerfeller, whether senior or junior?"

"Of course not."

"But what is the Beast? If it is not an individual, what is it?"

"It is Things as They are."

"It is Things as They Are."

"But Things as They Are, Judge, what does that mean? Does it not really mean monopoly, as you would call it; does it not really mean the system of private ownership of the means of production?"

"Why, of course; what else could it mean?"

"But you are not a Socialist, Judge. How is it that you blame the private ownership of the means of production for the killing in Colorado and other similar manifestations of the capitalist system, such as West Virginia and Homestead, without also advocating the abolition of the system productive of such atrocities?

"I cannot. The cause lies far deeper than any particular private ownership. It is due to monopolization. It is Things as They Are."

"And Things as They Are are wrong, then Judge?"

"Could they be worse?" was the answer.

"Does President Wilson understand, Judge, that the Colorado trouble is but a symptom; does he know that there is danger of the outbreak of the miners spreading to the entire working class of the United States?"

"If he did not knew it before, he knows it now, because I told him so. But I really think that he knows the seriousness of the situation. I believe that Colorado is worrying him more than is Mexico."

But Wilson is saying that there can be no peace (worthy the name) in Mexico until there is a more equitable distribution of the products of toil. Does not President Wilson realize that, once committed to that theory as far as it concerns Mexico, he is also committed as an honorable man and an honest man to the theory that in the United States there can be no real peace until there is a more equitable distribution of the products of labor?

"I believe, from the talk that I had with him, President Wilson believes that is firmly as do you or I."

"But, Judge, you surely do not believe in fighting, in physical force as a means to better the conditions of labor?"

"What would you do?" asked Judge Lindsey, "if your wife and your child had been killed by men in the employ of the mine owners? Would you take up arms? And remember that one-half of the atrocities committed by the legally constituted authorities of Colorado has not been told."

"Has Mother Jones told the truth?"

"As I said before, not half the truth has been told. Mother Jones has not and cannot tell the whole truth about Colorado. Language fails when attempting to describe conditions there."

"What do you think of Mother Jones, Judge?"

"She's a damned good woman." (An apology is due Judge Lindsey for the exact quotation.)

"Judge Lindsey, you have been called the 'kids' friend,' because of your activity in the children's court in Denver."

"Yes," replied the Judge, "but you can't even be the friend of the children without the Beast getting after you. They're after me now, and I don't believe that I shall ever be able after this to be the children's friend officially."

"Who's after you, Judge? The Beast?"

"Yes."

"And the Beast is the capitalist system—is Things as They Are?"

"Certainly."

"Is there any remedy, Judge, for Things as They Are, other than the abolition of the Beast, of the capitalist system?"

"I would say that there is no remedy for Things as They Are, for conditions that have brought about the killings in Colorado, other than the abolition of monopoly."

"You may call it monopoly, Judge, but we shall call it the capittalist system, and we want to abolish it, root and branch."

"I don't blame you."

THERE WAS A LEAK

The "Columbus Citizen," in their edition of June 16th, had the following to say in reference to the local P. O. situation:

"Although Congressman Brumbaugh is still sitting on the lid, a leak in the Columbus postoffice kettle intimates that the recommendation of Samuel Kinnear, present Columbus service director, soon will be sent to the postmaster general."

It will be noted that "there was a leak." "The Socialist" reminds its readers that the said leak was sprung in the columns of "The Socialist," June 6th.

In that edition we charged that Kinnear was slated for Postmaster, and we further charged that every daily paper in town knew about it, and that every one of them had had the information two weeks prior to our publication of the story.

They are suppressing the facts in the case because were it made known now such a storm of protest would arise from the people that it would be necessary for the gang to recall the appointment.

After it is all done and over, then "reform" newspapers like the "Citizen" can "holler their heads off," in order to fool the dear people and tell them what an outrage it was to shift Kinnear off on the people in this manner.

And don't forget that every daily newspaper in this city knows right now that Kinnear is slated for Postmaster.

A damphool is a person who has brains but refuses to use them.

Yes, these fellows are great on praying, but they are also past masters on preying on the workers the rest of the week.

CELESTIAL ARBITRATION

A mortal smelling faintly of kerosene knocked at the pearly gates.

"Open!" he cried. "On earth I was the leader of a Bible class."

"There is just one little formality," said St. Peter.

He took from his robe a needle and handed it to the shade. It was the smallest needle in the world. The eye was so fine that it scarcely could have borne a spider's thread. St. Peter waved his right hand toward an old, blind camel grazing near the gate. The camel was larger than an elephant. It was as big as a mountain.

"Go to it, Johnnie," said St. Peter.

From the assembled saints, archangels, cherubim and seraphim burst such an outroar of laughter that the vast spaces of Heaven shook and rang and, far within the portals, the little murdered children from Colorado, who were playing in the fields of asphodel, looked up in wonder.

Hunger may lead to a riot, but it will require more than a riot to change a system that leads to hunger.

The law will never make men free; it is men who have got to make the law free. They are the lovers of law and order, who observe the law when the government breaks it.—Thoreau.

Have you ever noticed how pious the skinners of labor are when offering prayer in public on Sundays?

The human family is divided into two classes—those who manage and those who are managed. The manager gets the cream, the managed gets the skim milk. Yet the managed division is several times as large as the other crowd and they could end it any time if they had the brains and the backbone.

The wage slaves rise up in church and sing, "We shall meet on that beautiful shore in the sweet bye and bye," while the masters hie themselves off to the beautiful seashore in the sweet here and now.

The word trust means that the property of the people is put into the hands of certain "benevolent people" as trustees. The evidence is clear that they have not been faithful to the trust, consequently the people have the right to take from their hands that which was entrusted to them.

Intelligent of self interest is not selfish. The only way in which any worker can be free is to help free others; therefore, one may for his own sake and his children's sake seek the ending of the system that robs and debauches the world.—Socialism is the only source of freeing the human family from the system that compels it to be selfish to survive.

There will be no outcasts suffering from cold and hunger when Socialism comes, for then all may have jobs at a remuneration that will admit of good living for all.—Good shelter and clothing will be produced for the use of the producers and not as now, for the profits of the owners.

The money for building all the industries of the nation came out of the pockets of the fellows that wear overalls. Yet none of you fellows that wear overalls have anything to show that you paid for these industries and should be the owners of them. Just get that into your heads.

The fellows that vote for the mortgage system hope sometimes to be able to choke the life out of some one else with a mortgage. Working the golden rule as we know it today.

Say, you Intelligent Workingman; if you want to recommend yourself to all thinking people as an ass, never lose an opportunity to say, "I never read any working class literature."

If the thief can make you believe that his title to what he has is sacred he has nothing to fear. Unpaid labor is legalized thievery.

One of the objections urged against chattel slavery was that it parted children from their parents and wives from their husbands. The present system of industrial slavery is a thousand times worse in that slavery.

We live in a world which is full of misery an dignorance and the plain duty of each and all of us is to try to make the little corner he can influence somewhat less miserable and somewhat less ignorant than it was before he entered it. To do this effectually, it is necessary to be fully possessed of only two beliefs: the first, that the order of nature is ascertainable by our faculties to an extant which is practically unlimited; the second, that our volition counts for something as a condition of the course of events.—Huxley.

Karb, Mayor; Sam Black, Juvenile Court Judge, and Sam Kinnear, Postmaster to be. Oh, Lord! where is Thy mercy?

EVIDENT.

In a registration booth in San Francisco an old colored woman had just finished registering for the first time.

"Am you shore," she asked the clerk, "at I'se done all I has to do?"

"Quite sure," replied the clerk; "you see it's very simple."

"I'd ought to knowed it," said the old woman. "If those fool men folks been doing it all dese years, I might 'a 'knowed it was a powerful simple process."—Life.

Every new idea or method is first opposed, not only by the ignorant, but by a great number of those whose education takes the form of egotism. A person who thinks that he knows it all, not willing to listen to a new idea, is suffering under a great illusion. We see this self-deception everywhere.

When the Russian-Japanese war broke out the Socialists carried on a great anti-war agitation, and their weekly paper soon grew into a daily. While the war was in progress the International Socialist Congress took place, at which George Plechanoff and Sen Katayama, representing the Socialists of the two nations, shook hands.

THE REVOLUTION IN ITALY

The Italian workers are in revolt. Under the guidance of the Socialists, the Proletariat of that country is fighting for the establishment of a republic.

Whether it will succeed or not, cannot now be said. It came so suddenly, it flashed across the vision with so much brilliance that the American public does not yet know the complete details—cannot know them for some time yet. But the one certain thing is that the workers are tired of the monarchy and they want to rule themselves.

There is one thing that stands out—the hostility of the capitalist press to this event. Not yet knowing what it is, the master class pulled the cords, and they all denounce it and color the news of it to make it appear as if it were merely riot and rampage.

If there ever was anything that the Americans should cheer, it is the attempt of a people to throw off the yoke of monarchy and establish a republic. And yet the press has opposed every attempt of this kind in the last few years. The Turkish revolution, the Persian revolution, the Chinese revolution, the Russian revolution—most shameful of all—the Portuguese and the Mexican revolutions—all have been fought by the dominant press of just that country that should have been gladdest of all to see the example of America followed.

But unerringly the Socialists can point out to the workers that any move that originates from the working class automatically incurs the stupid hatred of the capitalist class and its press, be it in Italy or Russia or Mexico.

We hail the Italian workers. We cannot say if the move will succeed or if the organized might of the enemy and the international capitalist class may crush it. We hope that the workers succeed, and we hope that they will not be swerved as the Chinese workers were swerved by the traitor who is now President of that alleged republic.

We will give them our support, and when they call for it we will send them money. We will remind them of that historic day in '89. The King of France stood upon the balcony of his palace at Versailles. A vast gathering of men and women stormed below. He turned to his Minister and asked: "My Lord, is it a revolt?" "No, sire; it is a revolution!"

And so to the Italian workers we shout: "Bravo!"

INSPIRATION FROM CLEVELAND

The fighting spirit of the Cleveland grade school teachers who are struggling for the right to organize is the spirit that makes good with the American working class. These teachers, most of them women, know that they need an organization—and furthermore, they know that somewhere, tucked away in the midst of popular belief, they have a RIGHT to organize.

Of course, the teachers found themselves facing a bullet-headed School Board—one of those conservative, protect-the-rights-of-the-public sort of school boards that never had a new idea and wouldn't know what one was if it came plump onto it in the middle of a sunny street. But these teachers are not to be frightened by staid and pompous school boards. They have the organization idea clearly in their heads, they know what they want and they know that they can win out if they stand together.

It is such inspiring battles as this that make the fight worth while. It is such struggles as this that fill the whole working class with hope. All cheer to these fighting teachers; all power to their determination. Will they win? Will they gain the right to organize? Of course they will!

OUR LANDED ARISTOCRACY

Washington, June 18.—Startling figures drawn from government archives, showing the alarming increase in concentration of land ownership in the United States, have been compiled for the first time, and are herewith presented to the public through the Socialist press service. These statistics prove that the United States is in as great need for "land reform," recommended for Mexico by President Wilson, as is Mexico herself.

Here is a partial list of the principal gigantic land holdings in the United States. It should be pointed out that most of these land grants were "concessions" obtained either through sheer graft or through official favoritism, so that in this respect the United States has nothing on Diaz or Huerta.

In seven states, 1,803 holders own 39,652,000 acres.

The Southern Pacific Railroad owns 18,879,931 acres.

The Union Pacific Railroad owns 975,127 acres, equivalent to the land areas of Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New Jersey and Delaware.

The Weyerhausers own 1,525,000 acres in two states.

182 men own 16,990,000 acres in Florida, or about half the state.

Three men own 4,200,000 acres of Florida.

The Michigan Iron and Land Co. owns 320,000 acres.

The Cleveland Iron Co. owns 890,000 acres.

The Chicago Northern Railroad owns 370,000 acres.

Three corporations in Oregon own, respectively, 175,000, 800,000 and 36,000 acres.

Ten men in Louisiana own 440,000 acres.

One man owns 125,000 in California, received as "paper concessions."

The Miller and Lux estate in California has 14,500,000 acres.

It is pointed out here that the famous 1,000,000-acre ranch owned by William Randolph Hearst in Mexico is pitifully small in comparison to the American land-holdings of some of Hearst's brother feudalists. These American land-holdings, moreover, are far more extensive than those of the Maderos; and John Hays Hammond, the professional land-grabber and natural resource-exploiter, owns a much smaller fraction of the Province of Sonora than his countrymen possess of, say, the State of California.

In his famous interview in the "Saturday Evening Post," President Wilson is on record as desiring "a suitable solution" of the Mexican land question so that, as he put it, "the day will come when the Mexican people will be put in full possession of the land, the liberty and the peaceful prosperity that are rightfully theirs."

Wilson said, in that interview, that the Mexican situation had been particularly hard to handle "because so many elements of it have been without our control and our territory." "In a domestic matter," Wilson went on to explain, "we can see our way clear, because ordinarily all the elements are within our view and consideration."

The land question in the United States is a domestic matter, and all the elements are within our control and observation. The various Bureaus in Washington can furnish the President all the facts he needs about land concentration and ownership, and the wise heads who are preparing a scheme of land reform for Mexico are equally able to prepare one for the United States.

What is Wilson going to do about it?

Nothing?

JOHN DEE AND THE APE MAN

That story about Rockefeller's system of private guards at his private palace, with an electric signal outfit, by means of which the rich man, pressing a button in the night, can verify the watchfulness and wakefulness of the Negroes who surround him with rifles, is evidence that neither centuries nor science can carry us very far from the wild.

The correspondents tell a pathetic story of a sleepless old man, raising a window at night and calling to his guardsmen. "Are you there?" They tell how the guards devised a system of cheating the patrol clock which recorded their nightly vigils, and how the fear-stricken victim of wealth installed electrical equipment, which instantly flashes a signal to every guard at any hour of the night, to which the guard must respond at once, on pain of dismissal from the fat service.

So after all, America's richest citizen is in a position not unlike that of his ancestral ape a thousand centuries before Adam. The ape was equipped with well-trained ears, which keenly analyzed, while he slept, the myriad night voices of the forest. A hostile or suspicious sound brought him to wide-eyed wakefulness—peering, sniffing, listening for the approaching enemy.

Those were long nights, long years, long centuries and many of them.

"Man," bluffing, brow-beating, overwhelming the "lower animals" with weapons and trickery, and lately inventing great steel claws to tear asunder his fellows in the game of war, is comparatively a new creature. The peace and safety of civilization has but recently given us the habit of eight hours' sleep. By far the older and deeper habit is to awaken frequently, with terror twitching the muscles of the back and sharpening every sense for combat or fight.

The most prosperous ape could not surround himself with such wealth of climate, fruit and verdure as would protect him against terror. He could not hire his fellow apes to guard him through the night; and could he have done so, he would probably have found himself, like Rockefeller, in doubt as to their fidelity, and forced at last to rely chiefly upon his own tense nerves, his own sensitive ears, his own keen nose and his own powerful muscles, ready to awaken him in the fraction of a pulse beat and send him catapulting through the tree-tops.

The ape was thankful and happy when he could keep a whole skin; and your modern billionaire, master of a million other men, finds himself still facing the same problem which concerned the ape—just the simple physical defense of his own body from the terrors, real and fancied, of the hours between sunset and sunrise.

WHAT TO DO WITH THE MILITANTS

The papers are solemnly discussing the symposium of some London paper as to what to do with the militant suffragists. Various dignified gentlemen have given ponderous answers: Let them hunger strike to death; Don't let them die; Release them; Don't release them.

All of which reminds us of this: Some time ago an excellent lady was speaking with Bernard Shaw about the drama in England. How to get rid of the censorship, was the question. Shaw quite shocked the lady by saying: "Abolish the monarchy!"

The shocking thing about that answer was that it was the only one that got to the root of the matter.

There is an equally shocking soluion of the question of the militants. GIVE THEM THE VOTE!

That solution seems never to have dawned upon the Tories, who are so sanctimoniously giving the authorities their permission to starve the women to death.

ICE AND BABIES

All of the New York ice supply is owned privately. The business of selling ice is a monopoly. And ice is a NECESSITY. That is, it is a necessity if proper sanitary conditions are to be maintained, if food is to be cared for properly, if babies are to be made comfortable. Ice IS a necessity. And yet the ice supply is owned privately AND REGULARLY THE PRICE GOES UP IN SUMMER.

To such a problem there can be but one answer. The people must own the ice business.

Of course, those who now own the ice business will call that anarchy and treason and interfering with "the rights of business," and all of that.

But from the viewpoint of The Call it is infinitely better to interfere with "the rights of business" than to interfere with the health and happiness of the people and with the lives of little babies. And that is the viewpoint that is rapidly coming to be the predominant one. The Ice Trust cannot safely count on many more seasons of unrestrained profit-grabbing.

THE LORIMER BANK FAILURE

"Lorimer's bank," the La Salle Street Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago, has been closed by the State bank examiner. With it have gone a number of smaller banks controlled by the same interests. "Bad paper" is given as the cause.

It is openly admitted that these banks were "political banks." Lorimer was not the controlling spirit, though his name was at the head of the business—for political purposes.

Just how many poor families will lose meager savings intrusted to these banks, because of Billy Lorimer's name is not given out. It is probable that the number may be considerable.

William Lorimer has been one of the pillars of the system. He liked the system as it was. He liked it so well that even the United States Senate couldn't stand for him. And he seems to have liked it so well that he put his name at the head of a banking institution that, to judge from reports, he must have known—or ought to have known—eventually would have to crash.

The disclosure of the fact that the bank had made a contribution to the campaign of State Auditor James J. Brady seems to have started the final trouble. What bankers call "bad paper" did the rest when the bank examiner came around, if the news reports are accurate.

Capitalism is full of this sort of muddy holes. The system begets this sort of traps for the poor. Out of this sort of wildcat business a few men are enable to reap immense fortunes, as did C. B. Munday, reputed to be the actual head of the Lorimer chain of banks. State banking laws do not seem to prevent this sort of thing. Nor will capitalist laws prevent this sort of thing, so long as the capitalist system remains to foster them and to encourage them and to give them warm and sunny places in which to find breeding ground. This rotten, despicable sort of fleecing of the poor will go on until the people have wiped out the system that has its tap-roots in exploitation, robbery, chicanery and treachery.

THIS IS THE WAY TO ANSWER

Last Monday our request that the boys and girls on the firing line get busy on subs. was answered by Comrade Copley, Hebron, Ohio. The letter reads as follows:

"Comrades, you will find enclosed $4.25, for which please send 'The Socialist' to the following eighteen addresses."

That was all; then followed a list of 18 names that this comrade had secured. What does this signify? It means that this comrade is sincere in his desire for Socialism. It signifies that he is class conscious and realizes the absolute necessity of supporting the working class press. It shows that he believes in education, and it shows further that he believes in "The Socialist" as a propaganda paper to educate his fellow-workers.

From all over the State subs. have been rolling in. At the Strickland meeting in the First Ward last Sunday evening $13.00 worth of sub. cards were disposed of. And thus it goes.

People call up and ask to be put on the sub. list, requesting we send our collector out for the money. From every nook and corner of the county the people come in and subscribe.

This is proof positive that the people are aroused as never before. They are determined to find out what we stand for. They are going to begin reading now and when the eleventh hour roorback comes this fall they will say, "Get ye behind me, Satan," to the capitalist outfit of "bumballifs."

The most significant part of the whole proceeding, however, seems to be that many of "the Flying Squadron" seemed to have temporarily "laid down" on the job. It should not be necessary for a single individual to come to the office and bring in his own sub. or telephone it in.

"The Flying Squadron," which includes every subscriber, should be constantly on the alert for a possible new subscriber. Keep the idea of a 40-week's sub. for 25c constantly in mind, and don't fail to tackle all your neighbors and shopmates.

If you only realized. If you only knew the sentiment for Socialism in this county, you would double and treble your efforts to land subs., as this is the medium that welds the sentiment into a tangible fighting force that is bound to bring about the liberation of the working class.

We tell you candidly that with double the circulation we have a fighting chance for a congressman from this district.

What are you going to do? Do you intend to stand back and allow possible victory to be turned into inglorious defeat, or will you jump in with the other workers and put Franklin County on the map this fall, and help to make the Stars and Stripes stand for industrial liberty.

A WESTERN SOCIALIST TOURING OHIO

Comrade Oliver B. Montgomery of Kansas, on of the hardest workers in the cause, is coming to Ohio to speak. Comrade Montgomery has been in the movement over five years and is a writer, as well as a speaker. Two years ago he resigned his position with the Kansas City Star and entered the lecture field for the Socialist Party, coming east in the spring of 1912 to visit his old home in Pennsylvania, he was elected editor of the Harrisburg Socialist, the circulation of which was 56 paid subscribers, a large amount of work was outlined, plans were laid to immediately increase the circulation and with the able assistance of Comrade F. H. Hall as circulation manager the circulation increased with leaps and bounds, in one week 317 new subscribers were obtained. In October Comrade Montgomery resigned the editorship to re-enter the lecture field, the circulation had grown up to this time to over 3,000 paid up subscribers, and it then became the largest circulating Socialist weekly newspaper published in Pennsylvania. Comrade Montgomery is en route west from an eastern speaking tour, having lectured from the Pacific Coast east the past winter.

We give herewith dates he has assigned. It will be noted that he has some open dates. Locals desiring one of these dates should write him at one of the towns where he is dated to speak.

June 20, Barberton; June 21, Alliance; June 22, open; June 23, open; June 24, Shelby; June 25, open; June 26, open; June 27, Canton; June 28, Canton; June 29, open; June 30, open.

The Socialist movement in Japan dates from 1897, when Sen Katayama returned to that country from the United States. The labor unions and the party grew rapidly till they were suppressed in 1900 by the government. While the Socialist party was abolished, Socialist societies were allowed to exist under the law. The Socialists thus continued to carry on their agitation.

PLATFORM OF THE SOCIALIST PARTY OF OHIO

The Socialist Party of Ohio reaffirms its allegiance to principles of International Socialism and to the platform of the Socialist Party of the United States, and declares itself to be the party of the workingclass with no other aim than to fight their present struggles and to win their final emancipation from the capitalist system.

The struggle between the workers who produce the wealth of the nation and their exploiters, the capitalist class, grows ever fiercer. Although modern machinery of production has made it possible to supply the necessities of life in abundance to all the people, the capitalist class through its ownership of the means of production and distribution takes from the workers the major part of their product and leaves them scarcely enough to maintain life. The capitalist amass enormous fortunes while the workers lead lives of misery and poverty.

These conditions are the basis of the bitter class struggle which is manifesting itself on all sides. The reduction of the purchasing power of the wages of the workers and the consequent lowering of their standard of living, through the constant advance in the cost of living, have forced them into desperate struggles for more bread. In Paterson, N. J., among the hills of West Virginia, in the copper mines of Michigan, and in Colorado, the bitter class war resulting from the brutal oppression of the exploiters has been raging.

In all these struggles the workers have found that the organized power of government was in the hands of the master class. Members of the working class, struggling for better wages and working conditions to enable them to live like human beings, together with their wives and children, have been brutally attacked, beaten and even murdered in large numbers and the hirelings of capitalism in control of the powers of government have aided their oppressors rather than furnishing them protection. This has been true alike of the Republican, Democratic, Progressive, and Non-Partisan office holders.

We maintain that the evils under which the workers suffer are the outcome of the capitalist system. Want and poverty, child labor, prostitution and unemployment are fruits of capitalism and cannot be entirely abolished until the workers through their united political and industrial power wholly abolish private ownership of the means of production, and collectively assume the management of the industries and operate them for use and not for profit, for the benefit of all and not for the enrichment of a privileged class. In this the Socialist party stands alone in the political field.

The Socialist party declares that the evils of the present system can be relieved and their final disappearance hastened by social, political and economic measures which will have the effect of bettering the lives, strengthening the position of the workers and curbing the power of the dominant capitalist class. It supports the working class in all its struggles against the exploitation and oppression of the capitalists, and submits the following program:

Woman Suffrage

We consider the struggle for economic and political rights for women secondary only to the struggle for the emancipation of the working class. Woman bears an equal share of the burdens of society and is entitled to all the rights and privileges which man possesses. We pledge to the women of the state our hearty support in their struggle for enfranchisement.

Industrial

We propose the enactment of an eight hour day law; legalization of the right to strike, picket and boycott; abolition of the injunction as a means of breaking strikes, and the establishment of trial by jury in all labor disputes; prohibition of the use of the military and police power to break strikes.

We pledge our candidates to work for the establishment of state ownership of the mines and their operation through the miners' organization under the principle of industrial democracy.

We will work for the establishment of state workshops to relieve unemployment.

Public Education

Recognizing the great part played by public schools in the intellectual advancement of the working class, we avow ourselves the friend of public education. To further increase the efficiency of the public school system we propose:

1. That all teachers of three years' experience be granted life certificates without examination. All other teachers to be allowed to take special examination. All certificates hereafter granted, to be granted for life and to be granted upon examination after completing a state normal school course or its equivalent.
2. Direct financial assistance by the state to young men and women of the working class who desire to enter the teaching profession, to assist when through high school and normal school courses.

The abolition of country and city boards of school examiners and substitution of one state board to be elected by the teachers themselves.

5. Direct election by the teachers of the state school commissioner.
6. Free text books and school supplies.
7. Home rule for cities in public school management.

Agriculture

All land owned by the state to be retained and other land bought into public ownership and use by reclamation, purchase, condemnation, taxation, or otherwise. Such land to be organized into socially operated farms for the conduct of collective agricultural enterprise.

Such measures of relief as we may be able to force upon capittalism are but a preparation of the workers to seize the whole power of government in order that they may thereby lay hold of the whole system of socialized industry and thus come into their rightful inheritance.

HOW THE INVISIBLE GOVERNMENT WORKS

Washington, June 18.—How the forces of the invisible government worked when the National Association of Manufacturers and its lobbyist, Col. Mulhall, succeeded in defeating the labor exemption bill in 1970, is described on page 10016 of the Congressional Record by the chief lobbyist himself of the N. A. M., the redoubtable James A. Emery. In view of the apparent victory of the labor forces in securing from the House an exemption provision in the Clayton anti-trust bill, this letter is important.

For the N. A. M. is still in the job, and the word has gone forth that the exemption provision must be defeated in the Senate. Here is the letter, as furnished by Representative W. J. McDonald, a member of the special committee that dug it up originally:

June 24, 1910.

514 Reibold Building, Dayton, Ohio.

My Dear Mr. Kirby:—I had the pleasure of wiring you last night the news of victory on the Hughes amendment after the closest and hardest struggle of the session.

Returning here Wednesday morning from our New York meeting, an interview with the Colonel, Mr. Dwight, and Senator Heyburn showed the Senate to be determined, the House exceedingly weak. Mr. Gompers made his headquarters in the office of Representative Cary of Wisconsin, in the House Office Building, and had something in the neighborhood of 100 aids about him making persistent office canvass, petitions and memorials being piled in from every union source. I called at the White House, and being unable to see the President because of engagements, took the matter up with his secretary, who showed the greatest interest and declared he believed the President would take personal part in the fight, and this the President did Wednesday night.

In the meantime, after an hour's conference with Mr. Dwight, the whip of the House, at his office the program was outlined and carried out to the letter. To the Colonel was given a list of 14 names, some Democrats, some Republicans, who voted with Hughes. He accomplished his work so successfully that of the 14 but one failed to either absent himself or vote with us yesterday. I communicated with Mr. Bird requesting certain telegraphic assistance through his office, and this was carried out, with extensions suggested by himself, with splendid success. In the meantime we hammered the South and West, and while we changed but two southern votes on the roll call, 28 Democrats who voted with Hughes on the last roll call remained away and were as good as votes for us. This demonstration of what our southern friends can do is most encouraging. Especial thanks are due to Capt. Chamberlain, of Chattanooga, the Georgia Industrial Association, who influenced the Savannah, Atlanta, and Columbia and New Orleans members, who did likewise with their Representatives.

THE PATRIOT.
By John McDonough.

Henry Dubb was a patriot, and when the war broke out
He grabbed his gun and swore that he would put the foe to rout.
And when he saw the enemy he said
I'll kill a few,
A cannon ball struck him in the guts and cut him right in two.

The buzzards picked out Henry's eyes, the blue flies laid their eggs
In the patriot's mangled stomach, while some dogs dragged off his legs.
His country built no monument o'er
Henry's brave remains,
And death was all the poor Dubb got for all his aches and pains.

The ethical impulses have a better chance to develop in a man or woman who is neither master nor slave. The spiritual side of every man or woman can develop under Socialism, while the present system kills our better nature.

At Mr. Dwight's request, I called Wednesday night on Judge Madison, the insurgent Representative from Kansas, who formerly sat on the bench. It was felt that if he could be induced to speak on the floor on this subject it would exert a great influence over insurgent Republicans. After a long discussion he agreed to speak and was supplied with all the data which this office could give, and made, as you will see from the Record, a most effective speech. Indeed, the language of the debate was bolder and nobler than I have ever heard on the floor, both Tawney and Madison declaring they would leave their seats in the House before they would support such a proposal.

I cannot emphasize too strongly the confidence with which Hughes and the labor people approach this vote. We know from newspaper men that they had telegrams and statements prepared for distribution through the Senate, after this last vote, would recede from its position. While I have an assurance of two Senators that they would fight this issue to a finish, I have also the best of authority for believing that the Senate conferees would have recommended the abandonment of their position if the House by a large majority had continued to insist upon the amendment.

The motion, as presented to the House, was that the House recede from its amendment and concur in the Senate amendment, striking out the Hughes proposal. On this motion the ayes were 138, noes 130, answered "present" 16, not voting 105. On Tuesday last the vote to insist on the Hughes amendment was 154 to 105. A majority of 49 was thus overcome, and we had 4 votes to spare, which were not used, the Speaker's vote and three members who would have changed from not present to aye if necessary.

The debate on this subject is comparatively brief, but so instructive and educational, especially as the association was sharply criticised by Mr. Hughes, the whole matter being presented as our fight, that I have ordered several copies of the debate, as taken from the Record, for distribution. The number can be increased in accordance with any suggestion you may make. We can procure franks and distribute the matter as part of the Congressional Record free.

Adjournment is now expected Saturday, although a filibuster is under way in the Senate which may delay matters unexpectedly.

Sore fears are also expressed that the President may be inclined to revive his injunction program if Congress is further delayed in adjournment, as he occupies a peculiarly powerful strategic position, the so-called "pork" bills being in his hands for signature, and of course, no other subject is so dear to the congressman as public buildings in his district, and he will do anything to get them. The best information at present is, however, that there is no danger in this matter unless Congress should be unduly and unexpectedly delayed in adjournment.

Very truly yours,

JAMES A. EM.

(Copies to Messrs. Jarvis, Hanch, Schwedtman, and Bird.)

QUERY: To whom is "James A. Em" writing today, and what are his plans for defeating Labor in the Senate?

WILSON AND MARSHALL ARE GOOD SOCIALISTS

EXCEPT IN THEIR OWN COUNTRY AND ON ELECTION DAY

In a recent speech before a New York audience, Vice President Marshall astounded and shocked his hearers by saying:

"I am a kind of a Socialist. I stand ready to quit the Democratic Party when the right kind of a Socialist Party comes along; one that marches under the Stars and Stripes, and according to the laws of the Christian religion."

We won't stop to argue with Vice President Marshall about the laws of the Christian religion. Too many good people have become enemies for life trying to decide which are the laws of the Christian religion. We Socialists simply declare that our party has nothing whatsoever to do with religion; it concerns itself strictly with political and economic questions. It seeks to bring industrial freedom and equal opportunity to all men by establishing collective ownership and democratic management of the great, collective machinery of production and distribution. If this is contrary to Vice President Marshall's idea of the laws of the Christian religion, it's too bad.

As for Vice President Marshall's unkind fling about the attitude of the Socialist Party towards the Stars and Stripes, we can say, that we march under the Stars and Stripes as certainly as he himself or John D. Rockefeller, Jr., or the most patriotic employer of scab labor in the land. If the Socialists were in complete power, the Stars and Stripes would continue to fly over the Capitol at Washington much as before. There might be an added luster to the stars, however, from the knowledge that they shone over a land where no murderous thug could button himself into a militia uniform and shoot bullets into a coal miners' camp and set fire to the tents and kill and burn helpless women and children of the strikers—as happened the other day at Ludlow under the Stars and Stripes with a Democratic administration in power.

So if the only thing that's holding Vice President Marshall out of the Socialist Party is his fear that we are against religion or the Stars and Stripes, he is separated from us by shadows of imagination.

President Woodrow Wilson is pretty much of a Socialist, too.

He was interviewed the other day by Samuel G. Blythe. And that interview was published in the Saturday Evening Post.

Here is what Wilson says of the Mexican class struggle:

"My ideal is an orderly and righteous government in Mexico; but my passion is for the submerged eighty-five per cent of the people of that republic, who are now struggling toward liberty.

"I challenge you to cite me an instance in all the history of the world where liberty was handed down from above. Liberty always is attained by the forces working below, underneath, by the great movement of the people. That, leavened by the sense of wrong and oppression and injustice, by the ferment of human rights to be attained, brings freedom.

"It is a curious thing that every demand for the establishment of order in Mexico takes into consideration, not order for the benefit of the people of Mexico, the great mass of the population, but order for the benefit of the old-time regime, for the aristocrats, for the vested interests, for the men who are responsible for this very condition of disorder. No one asks for order because order will help the masses of the people to get a portion of their rights and their land; but all demand it so that the great owners of property, the overlords, the hidalgos, the men who have exploited that rich country for their own selfish purposes, shall be able to continue their processes undisturbed by the protests of the people from whom their wealth and power have been obtained.

"The dangers that beset the Republic are held to be the individual and corporate troubles of these men, not the aggregated injustices that have been heaped on this vastly greater section of the population that is now struggling to recover by force what has always been theirs by right.

"They want order—the old order; but I say to you that the old order is dead. It is my part, as I see it, to aid in composing those differences so far as I may be able, that the new order, which will have its foundations on human liberty and human rights, shall prevail.

"Every phase of the Mexican situation is based on the condition that those in de facto control of the government must be relieved of that control before Mexico can realize her manifest destiny.

"To some extent the situation in Mexico is similar to that in France at the time of the Revolution. There are wide differences in many ways, but the basic situation has many resemblances. And eventually I shall fight every one of these men who are now seeking and who will then be seeking to exploit Mexico for their own selfish ends. I shall do what I can to keep Mexico from their plundering. There shall be no individual exploitation of Mexico if I can stop it."

The only thing lacking to make these statements of Woodrow Wilson's into a good Socialist speech is to apply them at home instead of abroad.

Our passion is for the submerged 85 per cent of the people of this republic. We also believe that liberty is never handed down from above—by the hand of any big exploiter or little. It must be attanied by the forces below—the exploited class itself.

We also recognize that every demand (except the Socialist) for the establishment of order in the U. S. and the allaying of the unrest, is premised upon the continuation of the processes by which the great owners of property, the overlords, the hidalgos, have exploited this rich country for their own selfish purposes, undisturbed by the protests of the people from whom their wealth and power have been obtained.

In fact, after analysing the statements of President Woodrow Wilson and Vice President Marshall, we are of the opinion that they are both good Socialists except in their own country and on election day.—Dayton (O.) Socialist.

FAME AND OTHERWISE.

"Every time I see grandfather's sword I want to go to war."

"Well?"

"But every time I notice grandfather's wooden leg I cool down."

Economically the mule worker is better off than the man worker; unlike the man worker, the mule doesn't have to save a part of his daily rations in order to eat on the days he doesn't work. Mules are valuable and worth owning. Men are cheap and not worth owning. In order to exploit the mule the capitalist must own him, but he can exploit the man by owning his job. If the mule ever learns to talk and think he will lose his job. What say you, Mr. Worker? Better turn yourself into a four-legged mule instead of remaining the two-legged jackass that you are.

No man, in the long run, ever lost anything when he took a stand for justice. The only loser in this world is the man who is afraid of his convictions.

LOCAL, STATE, NATIONAL

Local Columbus meets every Wednesday evening at Federation Hall, 121½ E. Town St. 7:45. Secretary C. J. Welsh, 191 Belvidere Ave. Pay dues at your Branch organization or at this office, 108½ South High Street, or at meetings of Local Columbus. Attend the meetings and always see that your red book is stamped to date.

LOCAL

Don't forget the big lawn fete to be held in Goodale Park next Thursday evening. Bring all your friends along with you and be assured of a good time.

The meetings of Comrade Strickland last Saturday and Sunday were a big success. If the sale of literature is any indication of how things are going, then we can confidently expect to elect our ticket this fall. On Saturday evening Comrade Baker, literature agent, took a good, big supply of literature with him, and sold completely out, and could have sold as much again. On Sunday afternoon at Goodale Park, almost the same thing occurred. The people fairly eat up the literature. At the meeting at Parsons and Jenkens Sunday evening $13.00 worth of subs. to "The Socialist" were sold. Things are looking mighty fine for a big working class victory in November. Just keep on pushin'.

STATE

Comrade Joseph W. Sharts, editor of the Miami Valley Socialist, Dayton, Ohio, has handed in his resignation as editor and will take up the practice of law and real estate. While the comrades of Dayton will thus lose a valient and capable worker in one position, yet Comrade Sharts will be a power in this working class fight in his new position at the bar. If he turns out as good a lawyer as he has been as editor of the M. V. S. he need have no fear, but that he will be able to pull a living out of the capitalist system.

Over in Dayton they have discovered that the sheriff of the county has been a very busy man. As the M. V. S. puts it:

County Records Show Sheriff Some Traveller

If any farmer or workingman of Montgomery County imagines that the duties of the sheriff and his deputies are a dull routine of guarding and feeding prisoners in the county jail, he has much to learn of the Dem-Rep method of conducting our public affairs.

The county records indicate that the sheriff and his men are busier than bird dogs.

They seem to be flitting from one end of the county to the other, to the great terror of evil doers and the great joy of the taxicab companies.

Easy Money

Because the taxicab companies charge $2.50 and $3.00 per hour for the use of their taxies. And all they have to do is to put in their little bill for taxicab hire, and the Dem-Rep County Commissioners, who just now happen to be Messrs. Eberly, Michael and Brenner, will have a warrant drawn on the City Treasurer to pay it.

People's Taxi Co. Gets It!

Here, for example, is Warrant No. 3606, dated February 28, 1914, drawn in favor of the "People's Taxicab Company," for $47.75.

It is "for taxicab service for sheriff."

It apparently covers his taxicab bill with that particular firm for five days in the month of February.

Thus on February 2, one afternoon call of two hours cost the county $5.

On February 5, one morning call of a little over one hour and a half, cost the county $5.25.

On February 12, Sheriff Leo kept up the strenuous life with another afternoon call which cost the county $6.75.

On February 20, the Terror of Evildoers must have been touring the whole county in search of chicken thieves or orchard robbers, for we find that a total of two calls, aggregating a little over seven hours, cost the county $15.

And on the next day, unfatigued by this extraordinary effort, we find the sheriff making three calls, totaling about seven hours, and costing the county $18.25.

Here is Voucher No. 3151, paid February 19, 1914, in favor of the Dayton Automobile Company.

It is for "auto hire." It foots up to $27.50. The autos were used on three occasions on three different days.

This indicates the very efficient way in which the Dem-Rep crowd do things, and yet you will hear some people say that Socialists are only dreamers, that they are not practical, and it would never do to trust them with power. Candidly, could we ball the job up any worse than it already is?

NATIONAL

Speaking of the pious young John D. Rockefeller, mass meetings are being held throughout the West to consider the Colorado situation. Great crowds gather everywhere, and to illustrate what they are like it should be stated that a meeting occurred at Spokane a few days ago, arranged by the local Socialist and union organizations. The largest hall in the city was packed, as were the stairways, windows and sidewalks and hundreds were unable to get within earshot of the place. After a number of addresses, the meeting voted to wire the following appropriate quotation to the famous Sunday School teacher and Biblical authority:

"Come now, thou multimillionaire, John D. Rockefeller, jr., weep and howl for your miseries that are coming upon you. Your riches are corrupted and your garments are moth-eaten. Your gold and your silver are rusted and their rust shall be for a testimony against you and shall eat your flesh as fire. You have laid up millions in these last days. Behold, the hire of the laborers who tunneled your mines, which is of you kept back by fraud, crieth out, and the cries of the miners that digged your coal have entered into the ears of the Lord. You have lived delicately on the earth and taken your pleasure. You have nourished your heart while slaughtering your brothers."

Vice-President Thomas R. Marshall somehow can hardly make a speech nowadays without getting into a trend of mind leading to socialistic philosophy. Thus, in an address at Aurora, Ill., at the dedication of a school the other day, the Vice-President pointed out the injustice of educating young men and women and then turning them loose into a system where they are unable to make a decent living. It is these people who are becoming the discontented and dangerous element and take to socialism quite readily. Continuing, Marshall said: "Uninformed men, like unbroken horses, shy at things they do not understand. To many Americans the word Socialism suggests terror. They do not know that there are many phases of Socialism; they are unaware that many doctrines advocated by some branch of the Socialists are being put into operation year after year by the different states of the Union. It does not take a mild-mannered theorist or a syndicalist to consent to the doctrine that it is the duty of the state to furnish some kind of education to its children. An old-fashioned Democrat will admit this. The future building of this Republic must be along the lines of efficiency and contentment. This can be accomplished only by training men for their intended life work. Right-minded men who read the life of the Man of Galilee agree that his teaching was socialistic; but the socialism of the Nazarene was one of spiri not of society nor of goverment. When it comes it will come on the wings of love, not in the chariots of hate." Whether Marshall is a good prophet or not is immaterial. The fact that he is talking about socialism is the principal advantage.

British workers are amused at the speech delivered at a meeting in London by Lord Milner to the effect that he is a Socialist "in principle," but he didn't think the people were ready for or could administer the new system. Therefore, he "viewed with alarm the scheme which seemed to bring the whole life into the sphere of public administration." A funny old Socialist is his ludship to be sure! But this rich and influential gent's alarms are also shared by very many poor persons who go plugging along their weary way from day to day to produce more wealth for Milner, while he talks nonsense and labels it "socialism." It isn't true that there is no real humor in Briton.

WHAT JUDGE DAYTON CONSIDERS A "CRIME"

Here is what Federal Judge Dayton of West Virginia said when he sentenced Fannie Sellins to six months in jail for helping the striking coal miners of that state. Pote the terrible "crimes" in black face:

"This court finds from this evidence that you are a paid organizer of the United Mine Workers; that you have made the false pretense of being engaged in religious and charity work; that you frequented the camp at Collier, which was not a fit place for any decent woman; spent most of your time with James Oates and Secudo Coliffe, aiding and assisting them in directing the activities of the strikers in preventing the company's employes from working; made inflammatory speeches, intended to incite the strikers to acts of violence; incited attempt on the company's employes at the railroad bridge; aided in providing supplies for the camp at Collier, using funds of the United Mine Workers; aided in the defense of the strikers arrested for assaulting the company's employes; participated in the attempt to make the Moore funeral a means of inciting the strikers to acts of violence; that you advised the strikers to beat up the non-union men; that you advised the strikers to go to number three mine and beat and assault non-union men; that you led a mob of from one hundred and fifty to two hundred men to intercept the company's employes, north of Wellsburg, paid their fares on the cars to the place where they divided into three separate troops for the purpose of intercepting the company's men whom you expected to come from work by one of the roads; that you advised the strikers to knock the heads off the non-union men, whom you designated as 'scabs,' preached to the strikers your defiance of the orders of this court and urged them to defy and disobey the court and its injunction; that you broke your promise made to this court on December 2d, and after promising to obey the injunction made a speech in which you proclaimed your defiance and your intention to continue to disobey the injunction.

"This being the evidence, the sentence of this court is that you be imprisoned in the Marion County jail for a period of six months."

Miss Sellins asked, "May I say one word?"

Judge Dayton replied, "Not one word."

Then Miss Sellins said, "That evidence is all false."

THE SOCIALIST

A Weekly Newspaper Without a Muzzle

Vol. IV Whole No. 184 COLUMBUS, OHIO, JUNE 27, 1914 Price, 2 Cents per Copy

University Library Rm. O. S. U. N. High St.

THIS PAPER is published in the interest of the working class. If you think it is worthy of your support, support it by getting new subscribers. If you don't like it, don't knock. We are making it as good as you will allow. Whenever the workers support their own press as valiantly as they do the master's press we will be able to do really big things for the emancipation of the workers. In the meantime, we are forging ahead conscious of the fact that our cause is just, that right will finally triumph, and the workers step forth emancipated from the age-long servitude to a robber, master class.

ATTEMPT TO BLOW UP CITY OF HAMILTON, OHIO

Democrat and Republican Anarchists Attempt to Blow Up City to Discredit Socialist Administration.

By H. G. Creel in The Globe Trotter, St. Louis, Mo.

By arrangements with the Globe Trotter edited by H. G. Creel, St. Louis, we herewith give the reader of "The Socialist" one of the best examples of the ends to which Democrat and Reublican anarchists will go to discredit a working class administration it were possible to give.

After you have read this article pass it on to your neighbor and keep it going until it is worn out.

And remember that the workers can secure just as efficient an administration in Franklin County this fall, by voting their own class ticket into power.

The Red Flag of Socialism Stands for Anarchy, Disorder, Rape and Lawlessness.—Hamilton (O.) Journal (Dem.), Oct. 31, 1911.

I'VE WITNESSED SOME LOW POLITICAL FIGHTS in my time. I have seen the forces of greed line up to strangle Justice. I've watched race and religious antagonisms forced in the breach to stem progress. I've heard vile men denounce clean men. I've known crooked newspapers to assail honest institutions. I've seen cowards at work on that basest of attacks—the slur on womanhood, when modesty was dragged in filth, chastity sneered at and virtue reviled. But against all the vicious, indecent, unwarranted and shameful carnivals I have ever known, the Hamilton, Ohio, (unsuccessful), campaign against Socialism stands out like a rocket in the night.

And the campaign was unsuccessful. The viciousness of the assaulting horde was more than matched by the aggressive advance of the local movement. Everything imaginable was done to turn the steady advance of Socialism into one of a thousand side issues. But without avail. Never for a single moment was Local Hamilton on the defensive. Through a figurative hail of fire and a literal shower of slander, misrepresentation and ridicule, the Party pressed on and captured the city, taking possession January 1, 1914.

To understand the situation, we must go back to March 25, 1913, when Hamilton was devastated by flood. The water came almost five feet in seven minutes. And it continued to rise, but more slowly. Many husbands and fathers could not reach their dwellings. Children at play a hundred yards from their homes could not reach their mothers. In a twinkling some were swept away. Within an hour water was pouring into the second stories of many houses. Two hundred persons are known to have drowned, but the total can never be known. As the waters subsided, the soldiers came and martial law was proclaimed.

Hamilton emerged from the flood bruised, crushed, poverty-stricken—and needing a levee.

Fall Campaign Begins.

With the coming of the fall campaign, in spite of the record of great activity of "business" interests and politicians, the Socialist ticket showed considerable strength. The two local dailies, the Reublican-News (Rep.) and the Journal (Dem.), both admittedly edited by the Chamber of Commerce, published several stock editorials against Socialism—and waited for the sentiment to subside. But it did not subside. In the previous election several Socialist aldermen had been elected and they gave good accounts of themselves during the flood period. The people of Hamilton, without regard to former political affiliations, decided that they wanted more Socialists in the councils of the city.

Socialist sentiment began to mount almost as quickly and quite as remorselessly as did the waters in March.

In a panic the local papers launched their shafts against the propaganda. The quotations throughout this story are but a few from that daily campaign. Nor are the most vicious ones quoted. Some are too utterly vile to appear in a reputable publication. After detailing "what Socialism stands for," one paper closes its slander with, "If you want Hell itself, vote for Socialism."

Religious War Thwarted.

Frantic newspapers and more frantic politicians tried to introduce a religious war against the propaganda. They learned to their amazement that nearly half of Local Hamilton were Roman Catholics. Robt. Puthoff, who was for four years president of Branch No. 1, Catholic Knights of Ohio, is an active member of Local Hamilton. When two visitors made an anti-Socialist speech before the pupils of St. Stephens' Parochial school, 12-year-old Magdalene Buckner, daughter of Socialist Councilman Joseph Buckner, took the floor against them and protested. She was sent home. Other Socialists, whose children attended the same school, declared that religion did not enter into their Socialism, and that Socialism (or anti-Socialism) ought not to enter into their religion. After some controversy the priest in charge announced that no more anti-Socialist speeches should be made to the scholars.

On the night of August 25, the Hon. Harry Probasco of Cincinnati, was a guest of honor at the Hamilton Y. M. C. A. Secretary Morris called on him for a speech. Probasco was primed for the occasion. He launched into a tirade against Socialism—and was instantly called to order by his host, the secretary. He left the meeting in a huff and gave a statement to the ever-ready Hamilton press, in which he said that Socialism was anti-religious and "contemptibly insulting to the marriage relation and to woman."

A regular distribution of anti-Socialist literature was made—and is still made—at church doors by paid agents who catch the congregations as they come from worship.

Father Ryan, who has just closed a debate with Morris Hillquit in Everybody's Magazine, came to Hamilton to tell members of the church that they could not be Socialists and Catholics. The experience of Robt. Puthoff, mentioned above, is typical of the manner in which Roman Catholic Socialists handled their side of the case. Because of Puthoff's prominence in Catholic circles, Father Ryan made a personal appeal to him. He told him that Socialism was violently opposed to Catholicism. Puthoff, who repeated the conversation to me, replied to the priest:

SEND IN FIFTY CENTS

Dear Comrades:

The trials of our other comrades will soon be up for trial, the Defense Committee is short of funds. It is absolutely imperative that we have on hand an additional $100.00 by July 10th. WE HAVE DECIDED TO ASK EVERY COMRADE TO SEND IN THE SMALL SUM OF FIFTY CENTS AT ONCE. Dig down in your jeans and bring to the light of day that old musty fifty cent piece, and send it in to the committee. Fifty cents won't break you up, and it will do a great deal towards defending our comrades. We positively must have One Hundred Dollars by July 10th. Send in your fifty cents at once to the Treasurer of the Defense Committee, W. E. Bues, Room 68, 101 North High Street, Columbus, Ohio.

THE DEFENSE COMMITTEE,
O. G. VANSCHOYCK, Chairman.
WALTER J. DAVIS, Secretary.

Roman Catholic Socialists.

"Father, I was born and brought up a Catholic. I believe in the doctrines of the Catholic church. That is my religion. Socialism is my politics. You say Socialism is opposed to Catholicism. I do not find it so. I am a Socialist. You are not. I am in a position to know. You are not. If the Socialist Party told me I must leave the church or the party, that would be just the same as putting me out of the party. If they put me out, that would be their fault, not mine. My conscience would be clear. I've attended church all my life. I'll continue just as long as I'm allowed to. But if, because I'm a Socialist, you won't let me attend—if the church puts me out—that will be the church's fault, not mine. My conscience will be clear."

That man and scores of other Hamilton Socialists are still members of the church into which they were born.

The Chamber of Commerce, most of the large manufacturing concerns, and several judges threw themselves into the fight, which by this time was red hot.

But the party continued its agitation along strictly Socialist lines, refusing to be embroiled in religious controversies or any other side issues which did not pertain to the point at issue. The citizens of Hamilton began to support the campaign with cash contributions. Chas. Baker, local organizer, told me they frequently took up $25 and $40 collections at street meetings. The banner collection was one Saturday night when Fred Strickland, present candidate for Congress from that district, spoke on the streets; $76 was contributed by the open air audience. This money was spent for literature, telling people what Socialism was, what the party stood for, and totally ignoring the anti-religious canards.

As a last resort, a fusion ticket was put in the field against them. This failed to draw the necessary support. When the votes were counted November 4, the Socialists had carried every municipal office but two, both unimportant.

Blocking the New Adminsitration.

It was my privilege to spend a week in Hamilton during March and to see the new administration at work. And that was inspiring. The heavy odds against which the ticket battled its way to victory are equaled only by the unbelievable methods still employed to hamper and discredit the officials. That the Socialists have made good so far is nothing short of a miracle; that they will continue to make good is a foregone conclusion. There are more miracles to be performed.

The new administration took office January 1. On December 31, the outgoing administration appointed a Building Committee, composed of defeated Democratic office holders, to have charge of the erection of a new $200,000 city hall. And Hamilton was still without a levee! John Holzberger, deposed Director of Public Service, was appointed Commissioner, while Mike Burns, defeated Democratic candidate for Mayor, was appointed president of the board. If the appointments were allowed to stand, they would afford rich picking for the old gang; if they were not allowed to stand the Socialist administration could be charged with responsibility for the dilapidated building which now, and for years past, has housed the city offices.

The new Mayor, Comrade Fred A. Hinkle, promptly dismissed the Building Committee, declaring that the city must have a levee and flood protection, even if it kept hungry politicians from the public trough. To use his own words: "The Socialists believe it poor policy to repair the inside of the house until the roof is patched."

I cannot speak too highly of Hinkel. Untrained in political trickery, he has, to date, sidestepped all the traps set for him and conducted himself and his administration with striking efficiency.

Handling the Vice Situation.

What do you think of this for a man new at the game? Hamilton had a segregated vice district. It operated for years with the sanction and connivance of capitalist politicians. The red-light district was deliberately located in a working-class neighborhood. Men of wealth were accustomed to patronize the district when it suited their pleasure; at other times, in the exclusive portions of town, they were far removed from the social cancer they perpetuated. Workers, forced to live in neighborhoods adjoining the district, protested year after year. They could not afford rent in another part of town and must, therefore, raise children in that environment. No capitalist administration heeded their protests. When Hinkel assumed office their appeal was heard for the first time. After several civic and religious bodies agreed to care for all girls who wished to give up the life, Hinkel ordered the district closed on and after May 1, 1914. This is the theory: If outraged daughters of workers are good enough to entertain wealthy men in a working-class neighborhood, they are plenty good enough to ply their profession next door to the homes of those same men. For the first time in the city's history it is brought face to face with the relation between low wages and public prostitution. If employers raise wages to a point where girls can support themselves decently on their incomes, the social evil in Hamilton will practically disappear; if they do not raise wages to that point, the social evil will operate in the city's most exclusive residence districts. And if employers cry that they cannot raise wages to this level, it will be an admission that the present system is criminal and will precipitate a revolution in the city. It is, by far, the most absorbing situation I have come across lately, and I shall watch it with much interest.

While I was in Hamilton Comrade Hinkel was called upon to address 300 high school pupils upon "The Power of Public Opinion." It is not uncommon for members of the administration to be invited to address church congregations, clubs, fraternal bodies, etc. In fact, about the only place they are not welcomed is in the offices of the Chamber of Commerce.

One of the big surprises of my life awaited me when I entered the municipal court room. I was prepared for and expecting to see judge, bailiff and prosecuting attorney wearing Socialist buttons; but what made my head swim was the sight of several large bills announcing my meetings for the week. Imagine a Socialist agitator's advertising matter posted conspicuously in a court room!

A Socialist Judge.

In that court room I spent many interesting, instructive hours. To see Judge Shank pass upon a case is a revelation. Here comes a man arrested for drunk. The city attorney, Comrade B. F. Primmer, brings out the facts, not harshly and never in an insulting manner, while the judge listens. Frequently he asks a question himself. This is the general mode of procedure: Leaning over his desk the judge says to the prisoner, "You're a working man. You can't afford to spend your money foolishly; you and your family need it much more than the man who makes whisky for profit. I'll put your case on the open docket (no fine). Don't come back here again." Two men picked up for fighting are brought before the court. The judge hears all the testimony. Then he asks, "If I release both of you will you promise to behave in the future?" They agree. "All right," he continues, "I'll put your cases on the open docket. If I fine you it will take money from your families. I don't want to do that."

One very interesting case in that court I shall not soon forget. The president and general manager of the Hamilton Milk Company was arrested on a warrant sworn out by the Health Officer, charging him with selling impure milk. The manager appeared with two impressive-looking lawyers. City Attorney Primmer read the complaint. It was faulty. He and Judge Shank looked at each other a moment, an imperceptible nod was passed and, over the protest of the manager's lawyer, the case was stopped until another and binding complaint could be prepared. Had this been in a capitalist court, the case would have proceeded on a faulty complaint. It would have dragged its way through the trial, witnesses examined, lawyers' objections made, exceptions noted, and finally, after a conviction was had, the whole thing would have been knocked out on a technicality. But the Socialist prosecutor and judge reversed the usual order. They caught the technicality first, prepared another complaint that would hold (attorney for the defense violently protesting and objecting all the time) and then proceeded to secure a conviction.

While the defendant was on the stand he swore that he had been president and general manager of the Hamilton Milk Company for twelve years—and had never filled a milk bottle in his life! Even the judge leaned back and laughed at the admission. It was good to see a judge laugh. He seemed human.

Hamilton's Pioneer Socialist.

Comrade Jacob Halperin, court bailiff, is father of the Socialist movement in Hamilton. Alone and unaided he held the fort for many years, distributing literature, scraping his pockets to bring an occasional speaker to town, etc. He has lived to see his work bear splendid fruit. Many of the present city officials are the very men who used to revile and sneer at him for his Socialism.

FOSBURG IS "HUMILIATED"

As an example of the kind of individuals that go to make up strike-brakers and the kind of material that is brought into a decent community to take the jobs of union men, we mention the case of a scab named Lovett, who has been employed by the Federal Glass Company, on Innis Avenue, whose Flint Glass Workers are on strike and have been for over eleven months.

Lovett got "tanked up" and went into a saloon and flashed a gun, probably thinking he was in Colorado. He was promptly arrested, charged with carrying concealed weapons, and Judge Osborn bound him over to the grand jury under bond of $400.00. He gave bond and is now at liberty awaiting the action of the grand jury.

Another chapter in the strike situation was written when "Scab" Fosburg, whom readers of this paper remember as being mentioned in these columns before, recently brought suit for $250.00 damages against Mr. Ryan, an old resident of the South Side, who runs a picture show. Fosburg claims he was "humiliated" because he was not allowed to enter Mr. Ryan's picture show. As a salve to his wounded "pride," Fosburg claims damages in the magnificent sum of $250.00. Wow!

An incident that shows how the Company's influence reaches out and controls the life of private citizens of the South Side, who are in no wise connected with the strike, how they are molested and put to trouble and expense is that of Mr. O. Coleman.

Mr. Coleman, who for nearly three years has resided at 462 East Innis Avenue (which is near the Glass Plant), in a house owned by T. J. Fullmer, who is assorting boss in Beatty's factory, was ordered by Fullmer to move. He was served with a notice to vacate the premises. It is claimed that Coleman had been interfering with "scabs," and that Beatty ordered Fullmer to get Coleman out of his house or lose his job. And then some working men talk and vote as though this were a "free" country! Free to do what? Only one thing—starve—or "bow the knee to Baal."

Organizer Gillooly and President Donahue will not be present at the convention at Rochester, Pa., as they believe that the four delegates elected by the Local can take care of the interests of Local No. 122. Although Organizer Gillooly is being touted for Vice President by delegtaes from all over the country, and his presence at the convention would undoubtedly have a great deal to do with his election, yet he feels more interest in winning the strike in Columbus than being elected Vice President.

It is a safe bet that the next annual convention in 1915 will be held in Columbus. Many of the delegates have already pledged themselves to work along that line. As far as accommodations, etc., are concerned, Columbus is ideally located and able to take care of the boys if they finally decide to come here.

THE SPELL OF THE MAGICIAN

By W. M. Wesley

Many, many centuries ago, when the gods and devils fought hand-to-hand wars for the rule of the world, there lived in a dark cave a very wicked magician.

One day this magician decided that by means of his black art he would build a castle for himself and would rule over the men of the earth, even as the gods and devils had ruled over them.

Forthwith he went into the fields where men were tending their flocks and tilling the ground and cast a deep spell over them. And when the spell was on them they did follow him and work for him.

As he planned, they builded him a great castle upon their own ground, the like of which had not been seen before in all the land.

And when they had finished the building of the castle they said one unto another: "Are not his powers wonderful that by his magic he can build so great a home for himself?"

"And while he was building it did he not give us work so that we were not idle?" said another.

A third said with great awe: "Surely no one has lived on the earth so great and generous as he, for while we worked did he not give us of the grain which he plants and reaps by his magic?"

"And of the clothing which he weaves by his magic?" another added.

So they honored him high above themselves and they bowed to him gravely when he approached. More and more men that toiled in the fields, that spun in their homes, that hunted in the woods came under his spell. What he bade them do they did.

One night a man, who had toiled so hard through the day that no sleep came to his eyes when he lay down at evening, caught the light of a strange star; a star which of all the stars in the heavens was fatal to the power of the magician. When the star's light touched his brain the spell dropped from him and he saw the stupor of all his brothers.

He saw that the magician did nothing by his magic except to cast the wicked spell over men.

In the morning he went in the fields, but instead of toiling as he had been wont to do he raised his voice to tell all near him of the spell and to denounce the magician. He would have made all men free. But lo, his brothers gathered up stones and slew him. When he was dead the people gathered around the castle of the magician and paid homage to the enchanter. They told him that a man had blasphemed against him and that they had slain him.

Then the wicked magician saw how great was his power over men and he made them a speech. He told them they must work longer hours and be more sparing in the eating of his grain. Some of them he gave great lashes, that they might cut the backs of those that lagged in their work or who stumbled under the weight of their loads.

It was not many nights before another toiler who lay awake upon his bed of rushes caught the light of the strange star, and immediately the spell fell from him. When the sun was up he went to the magician and told him that it was wicked to keep the people under his spell and to take from them the wealth which they had made. He begged the wizard to free the people from the spell, and at last grew so bold as to call down upon him the wrath of the gods.

But the magician did not fear the gods nor the devils, so he only laughed loud and long, and he mocked the man, saying: "Tell it to the people."

Weeping, the man went forth and told the people all that he had learned. And straightway the people stoned him and rejoiced when he was dead.

And many other men who caught the light of the strange star were stoned and some were hanged.

By and by a man who was wise among men saw the star, and when he had seen it he did not take his eyes away until he had made sure of its place in the heavens.

"Aha," he quoth, "this is the star that others have seen before me and by its light they have died. We, whom they would have saved, have slain them."

For many days he was silent, but night after night he gazed at the star and pondered. In the day he toiled as though the stupor were still upon him. He did not condemn the gods or the devils. He did not mention the spell of the magician. But after much pondering he asked his companions of the day to go with him that night that he might show them a strange star.

When the jewel-studded mantle of the night was spread over the earth his companions went forth, and he pointed straight to the star that he would have them see.

All could not see it. For the eyes of some were dimmed by too long looking at their work. But those who caught the gleam of the star lost their stupor and swore they would work no longer for the magician.

So wroth were some of them that they vowed they would pull down the castle, which they had helped to build, upon the head of the magician. The wise one pleaded with them in vain.

"Remember," he said, "how many have been slain by the stupid ones. You will but share their fate, for know the magician has an army of the stupid that numbers thousands. We must show them the star—there is no other way."

"We will tell them of the spell that is over them. We will awaken them."

"They will stone you," said the wise one. "We must show them the star."

"It will take too long to show all the star. We are not cowards. We will tear down the castle."

They went away, many of them armed with stones and sticks. When they arrived at the castle they were hanged, and the people rebuilt a small break which they had made in the wall. All the time the magician sat in his castle, sipping wine, and he knew naught of the attack. Neither did the people worry him with the story of it.

The wise one shed a tear at the graves and continued working with his brothers. "Tonight," he would say, as he stooped by a companion, "I will show you a star."

So every night he pointed out the star to some one. "Now that you have seen the star," he would say to him, "do not forget it, but point it out to another. Whomsoever the light touches loses the spell of the magician."

The number of the awakened grew steadily, and as they grew in number they talked more boldly until the magician learned that his power was weakening. So great was his wrath that he ordered all of the awakened ones stoned, but only a few stones were thrown, and these by such stupid of his men that they went amiss.

Everywhere at night men might be seen pointing out the star and many even of the magician's household had seen it.

"The end is nigh," said the magician to himself when he saw that his own servants no longer held him in reverence. "It is time for me to go back to my cave."

That night the magician stole out of his castle and was on his way back to his old haunt when he fell into the hands of men who were on their way to his abode with firebrands. These men would have made way with him had not the wise one appeared and pleaded for him.

"No need is there to slay him," he told them, "for his power is gone. He can work no more evil. Let him go where he will. He has at least taught us better how to work. His castle we will use for ourselves and we will build others by the magic of our labor, even as we builded this one."

So they let the magician go his way. And he was seen no more.—Melting Pot.

COME OUT AND KEEP COOL

COLORADO WORKING CLASS WILL VOTE AS THEY STRIKE

Denver, Colo., June 25.—(Special)—A possible strike-breakers' walk-out is the latest development in Colorado's industrial war.

The Colorado Fuel and Iron Company has made a reduction ranging from 5 to 20 per cent in the weekly wage of its strike-breakers.

Operators deny the cut in wages and explain the average wage of the miners, at the Walsenburg mine in particular, has been reduced because of the reduced amount of tonnage put out by each man per week. They insist the rate of wage per ton has not been lessened.

It is explained that the strike-breakers, when first put into the mines, were more or less inexperienced toilers and, to meet the demands for coal, every man was given rooms where coal could be mined the easiest and the consequent output brought as near to normal capacity as possible.

Since that time, it is said, the strike-breakers have become accustomed to digging coal, the output has begun to exceed the demand and, as a consequence, the strike-breakers have been out to work in more inaccessible portions of the mine.

Strike-breakers are beginning to insist that they be put back in those portions of the mine where they can produce the greatest tonnage, claiming their work is hazardous and because of their character as strike-breakers they should be given opportunity to make as much money out of their distasteful employment as possible.

The operators admit the situation has become embarrassing and they are in danger of having a walkout of strike-breakers unless they agree to their employes' demands.

"My employes are honest; I have every reason to believe in their sincerity, integrity and honesty," John Dee, Jr., gave vent to this at the same time he said "My conscience acquits me."

And now some of these same employes are charged with stealing thousands of dollars from him at his Pueblo plants.

If these "trusted" employes would steal isn't it possible that they would pad their strike reports? It might have been well for John Dee, Jr., to have visited Colorado months ago not only to investigate the grievances of the miners but the record of his "honest" representatives.

With the state election but a few months away, the usual number of friends of labor are bobbing up. Many of them will be left severely alone.

Organized labor in Colorado has learned a hard lesson in the past eight months. They realize that the time has passed when they can support any man who promises to be a friend of labor before election and then starts to lick the boots of capital as soon as he is elected.

Governor Ammons was a good example of these pre-election friends of labor who turned out to be a spineless trickster.

Labor in Colorado has decided that it is to have no more of these political crooks and the fall election will see organized labor vote more solidly than ever before.

The story told by Charles Ravailo, "scab," who has just made his escape from the Morley mines, is a pitiful one.

Ravailo produced statements showing that for the week ending May 31, in which he put in 50 hours' work, he received $10.25. His board cost him $5.40. Fifty cents went towards hospital maintenance and $2.00 went out in drafts, leaving him $2.35 to expend in riotous living.

For the week ending June 8, he put in 50 hours' work, receiving $10.25 or $1.70 a day. His board cost him $6.75 that week and $1.00 was taken from him for the hospital, leaving him $2.50 profit.

Ravailo says that the treatment offered the men in the Morley mines is something awful: the board is of the cheapest kind and the men are guarded at all times to prevent them from escaping.

He says that the mine superintendent forces the men in the mines to write letters home to relatives and friends, telling them of the good working conditions and the high wages paid, and begging them to come on as "the strike is over" and there is plenty of work.

CHRIST'S SECOND COMING

A number of learned gentlemen recently met in Chicago, and after a solemn conclave declared that in their opinion the second coming of Christ was close at hand. We shall feel very sorry for Christ if he visits the earth again, for it is absolutely certain that if He preaches the doctrine which He proclaimed nineteen hundred years ago, He will never be able to remain 33 years on the bosom of Mother Earth. The moment that Christ would lift His voice for the freedom of the downtrodden and oppressed, He would be branded as an agitator, and, instead of being crowned with thorns and nailed upon a cross, He would be shot by one of the latest and most improved machine guns operated by Baldwin-Feltz thugs in the employ of Rockefeller & Co.—Miners' Magazine, Denver, Col.

ATTEMPT TO BLOW UP HAMILTON

The Department of Public Service, Comrade J. B. Meyers (Catholic) in charge, has a remarkable record for its first 90 days. This department has charge of the municipal light, power and water plants, building of levees, paving and grading of streets, etc.

Meyers is one of the most interesting characters I ever met. When I asked for the Director of Public Service and he stepped forward I thought him a laborer come to direct me to his chief. He is admitted to be the most competent man ever called to the place, with a technical education excelled by none. Yet he is wholly self-educated. Years ago he dug out of a correspondence course the theory he later applied in practice and now uses to magnifcently manage the tremendous machinery of his department. And he, too, is decidedly human.

The Man Who Was Hungry.

While supervising a gang one morning he noticed that a newly hired man shoveled earth into a wagon with difficulty. He watched for a moment, and then sent for the man.

"What's the matter with you?" he asked. "Are you sick?"

"No, sir," answered the laborer. "I can do the work. I'm all right."

"You're not all right. What's the matter with you? I want to know."

"I guess I'm a little weak, I just got this job this morning and I haven't eaten for three days!"

"Drop that shovel!" yelled the Director. Then, pointing to the automobile furnished by his department. "Climb in that machine." He gave a few hurried orders to the foreman and then said, "We're going up town. Back after while." And away they sped to the first square meal the man had had in days.

At another time he heard of a destitute family. He made a personal investigation, climed a ladder into the hayloft of a disused barn and found a father, mother, nine children and a newly-born babe "living" in that place. There was no heat. Four potatoes comprised the stock of groceries. When he told me of the case tears sprang to his eyes and certain highly expressive terms relative to the capitalist system leaped from his lips. He put the man to work at once.

Bills Genuine and Otherwise.

All sorts of bills pile in on this and other departments. The itemized account of the Spoerl Hardware Company, reprinted in this story, gives a list of 35 separate purchases totaling $133.05. These articles were supposedly bought by the department nine months before Meyers took charge—and he is unable to find a single article or any record of their receipt. This is true, also, of the bill for $116.75 from the E. A. Kinsey Company of Cincinnati. Bills of this sort come weekly to the various departments. If the Socialist administration pays them, the city treasury will be greatly depleted; if it does not pay them the city may have to stand suit and the administration can be branded as dishonest and unwilling to pay the "just" debts of "honest" creditors.

But such methods are in the kindergarten class when compared with other means used to discredit the Socialist. An eight-inch gas main, laid 14 days before the new administration took charge, was found filled with water at a point where the iron pipe made a peculiar turn. The first freeze would have bursted the pipe, a great quantity of gas would have been wasted and a considerable portion of the city plunged in darkness. At another point in the same main the pipe was found clogged with mud.

I am opposed to capital punishment. But the longer I think over what I'm about to relate the more willing I grow to suspend the rules just once to visit justice on the fiends who engineered the following:

A City in Flames—Averted.

Hamilton receives its gas supply from the natural gas field at a pressure varying from 75 to 125 pounds. To regulate this and supply gas at an even pressure, the city has a "reducing station." There is no one in attendance at this station, for the machinery works automatically. Its purpose is to distribute gas to the meters at a pressure of eight ounces. The meters will not stand a pressure greater than ten pounds. To make sure that an extra heavy flow from the gas fields shall not damage the meters, the reducing station is provided with a safety device, the principle of which is the same as the safety valve on a boiler. When the steam pressure in a boiler become dangerous, the safety valve opens automatically and allows the surplus to escape; when the gas pressure at the reducing station becomes dangerous, this safety device operates automatically and allows the surplus to escape without forcing its way through the pipes and into the meters. After discovery of water in the eight-inch main, Meyers grew suspicious of the reducing station. And this is what an investigation revealed:

Attend Grand Socialist Rally and Picnic and Hear DEBS at Cedar Point Sun., July 12, '14, 2 P. M.

The safety apparatus had been so treated that it could not work! And in addition to this, nine buckets full of water were pumped from the machinery.

The seriousness of this may not be apparent at first. Had the temperature gone to freezing before this water was found and removed, the machinery of the reducing station would have been shattered—with no gas available for days. Had the periodical heavy flow come from the gas fields, with the safety device unable to work, gas would have been forced into the meters at a pressure greater than ten pounds, and the caps would have been blown from the meters. No matter how quickly the department had acted, before the gas could have been shut off basements would have been filled and furnaces going at full blast in January would have caused dozens, perhaps hundreds, of explosions.

Hamilton, Ohio, a city of 35,000 population, has been sleeping over a volcano for months!

The danger is past. The mischief has been undone. But this announcement will be the gang's first intimation that its goulish vandalism has been uncovered.

There are 5,000 meters in Hamilton. Figuring three to the family, the lives of 15,000 people were criminally jeopardized—that capitalist politicians might "prove" the unfitness of Socialists to manage a city!

Tell the truth: If the fiends directly responsible for this could be definitely and positively located, wouldn't you, too, favor suspending the rules on capital punishment?

A Paper's Remarkable Prediction.

By a tremendous stretch of imagination the whole thing can be laid to criminal negligence or wanton carelessness on the part of those in charge before the Socialists went into office. But was it either? Was it not done with deliberate intent? Do you think dethroned capitalists incapable of such sickening disregard for human life and limb? Let the Hamilton Journal speak. In an editorial printed in its issue of October 23, 1913, this paper warns:

"Under Socialism Hamilton will not be made safe, and the very tap roots of its livelihood would be cut off."

How did this paper know that Hamilton would not be "safe" if the Socialists went into office? By what supernatural power was it able to peer into the future and predict with unerring certainty that the lives of thousands of citizens would be endangered if the Socialist ticket were successful eleven days later? Who in the offices of the Hamilton Journal, who in the secret recesses of the Chamber of Commerce, could foresee the terrible catastrophe so narrowly averted?

Again on March 27, 1914, this paper sneeringly announced that the city's water plant was "on the blink." Who put it "on the blink?" Not the Socialists. At that time they had been in power but 86 days. Nothing serious had happened to the water plant machinery up to the above date. Perhaps the capitalist papers are "guessing" again. And while they're guessing, the present administration is working like a community of beavers, putting things to rights and uncovering more rascality every day.

From its municipal light and power plant Hamilton furnishes electric current at from 2¼ to 8 cents per k. w. The Socialists say they will reduce this to a flat rate of 2¼ cents.

Raising the Wages.

Formerly city laborers were paid $1.50 a day. The pay has been raised to $2 and they are now at work to institute another raise of 50 cents a day, making the wages $2.50 for an eight-hour day.

Does that burden the city with debt? Follow these examples of efficiency and see:

For a grading machine to use on the streets the old administration had been paying $10 a day rent. The Socialist administration bought a much better machine for $450. The first forty-six days more than paid for it and the $10 a day which formerly went to a capitalist contractor can now be used to raise the wages of the men who do the work.

Before the Socialists took charge, a private contractor bid 50 cents a yard for furnishing earth with which to build a levee. At the same time another contractor bid 32 cents a yard to cut down and grade a street that crossed a steep hill. This is the way the bids stood:

For building levee, 16,000 yards at $0.50	$ 8,000
For grading hill, 16,000 yards at $0.32	5,120
Total for both jobs	$13,120

The $5,120 cost for grading would have been assessed against property owners, many of whom are now without employment.

How It Is Done.

Meyers threw out both bids and put the city's force to work. In grading the street on the steep hill, they cut and hauled away 16,000 yards of earth. Meyers had it taken to the river bank where another part of his force immediately used it to construct a levee. Figuring on the basis of the private bids, he thus built the levee for 32 cents a yard, instead of 50 cents, a saving to the city of $2,880 on the one job and cut down the street for nothing, a saving to small property owners of $5,120. And while he saved them that amount in cash, he increased their property values correspondingly. This is the way the account stands now:

To building levee, 16,000 yards at $0.32	$ 5,120
To grading hill, 16,000 yards at $0.00	0,000
Total for both jobs	$ 5,120
And here's the comparison:
Private contract bid for both jobs	$13,120
Socialist cost for both jobs	5,120
Saved city	$ 8,000

The levee is now constructed. The street is graded. Both have been well done—and no assessment hangs over the heads of property owners.

You needn't be a Socialist to see that with such management the city can easily afford to pay $2.50 a day to laborers—and save money as against the old, wasteful gang methods.

And, mind you, the man who formerly got a meagre wage is now getting more. He spends more money with the corner grocer, the shoe merchant and clothier. His children are better fed, housed and clothed. They are better scholars. The standard is being raised. Money which formerly went into the offices of great contracting firms in Cincinnati, Chicago and New York as profits is now distributed as wages to the workers and is spent by them in Hamilton. Even the merchants are beginning to open their eyes.

People Commend Administration.

And so the record goes. To date it is a magnificent achievement against ovewrhelming odds. And the people—not "big business" nor the newspapers, but the people—Socialiist and non-Socialist are heartily with the administration. Letters of commendation pour in upon Mayor Hinkel daily. I read some of them as they came from the postman's hands. And most of the letters are from people who frankly admit that they voted against the Socialists.

Old party politicians stand aghast, and cannot fathom the new way of managing a city. The first meeting after election one of the old politicians joined the local, contracted to buy ten teams and announced that he would take the city hauling as his share of the "pie." When informed that there would be no "pie" he renounced his membership and once again he is sure that Socialism will break up the home, and that it is violently opposed to religion.

Socialism Versus Side Issues.

And this brings me to the one great thing that Hamilton's history should burn deep in the minds of all Socialists: Do not be embroiled in religious controversies for any church or against any church. Hamilton anti-Socialists depended upon religious antagonism to win the day for them. But the Socialists hewed close to the line, advocated straight, revolutionary Socialism, not taking time to reply to their enemies within the church nor to those outside the fold of any church. Paid disrupters wormed their way into the local and advocated attacks upon the churches which fought them. They were ignored. Had the Socialists, for one fleeting moment, divided their energies to engage in a religious controversy, in that moment their combined antagonists would have been upon them like a pack of wolves and the city would have been lost. Protestants, Catholics, Christian Scientists, Jews, Unbelievers—all work in perfect harmony on the political and industrial field for the collective ownership and democratic management of things collectively used. Neither designing foes nor well-meaning friends can swerve them from that revolutionary course.

I have mentioned but a few of the city officials. In the short time at my disposal, I could not possibly go into the work of all departments. Each is doing splendid work and the administration as a whole is making history for the Socialist movement of the United States.

The Party on Trial.

The Socialists went into office in a three-cornered fight. Had the fusion ticket been successful, they could not have been elected. They drew many votes from people utterly disgusted with the tactics of the old parties. Better than any one else, they know it was not a class-conscious vote that placed them in power. They realize that they are on trial. But they're standing the test. And what an unequal, handicapped test it is! Nevertheless, they have both the mettle and the ability to make good. They have splendid chances of sending Frederick G. Strickland to Congress in the coming Congressional election.

Hamilton is an example of the power of unadulterated Socialism to vanquish every obstacle placed in its way. It is a ringing challenge to ultra-religionists and to radical anti-religionists who, sincerely or insincerely, would divide the Socialist movement upon something wholly outside the realm of collective ownership and democratic management. I've seen many thrilling examples of class-conscious effort toward working-class emancipation, but for pure grit, cool-headedness and clear-cut action, the Hamilton comrades surpass anything I've seen so far.

More power to them.

NECESSITIES UNDER CAPITALISM

The conditions existing in this city amongst the working class are almost beyond belief. constantly The Socialist is besieged with appeals for aid. They come asking that we use our columns to notify the people of their condition so that they may in this manner secure aid.

To all we give the same answer: OUR FIGHT IS FOR NO INDIVIDUAL. Our fight is for the working class as a whole. Our fight is to abolish the capitalist system, from which spring all of the poverty and misery of the working class. Were The Socialist to take up the individual case of all those suffering under these "P——" Democrat hard times, our space would be taken completely with this matter alone.

As an example of the vicisssitudes under the present system, showing how those who have much are never safe, how impossible it is under capitalism to lay aside for a "rainy day." We mention a case that came to our attention the past week.

An old lady scarcely able to totter about came into our office last week and wanted to know if we would give her a write-up in the paper. We asked her the occasion for it. She said she was 78 years of age. That she had been raised in the lap of luxury. That she had lost everything she had except a small parcel of wild land in Tennessee, which she could not sell; that the rent for her one small room at $5.00 per month was due, and she could not pay it, and the landlord intended to put her out.

And thus the story went. Here is an old woman, 78 years of age, born with plenty, dying with nothing. A mother of the race, whom the race should venerate, thrown out upon the cruel world amongst a pack of hyenas to be torn alive. This is one picture of capitalism. Here is one who is in want in the midst of plenty. Too old to work, she should have the best of everything and her path be smoothed to the grave.

Let us take up another case, that of an East Side family. It consists of the father, mother and five children. The father is a man in the prime of life, willing and anxious to work. He is laid off. He wants work. He can't find it. They are getting desperate. Here is their daily menu: Breakfast, rice; dinner, cold rice and greens; supper, greens and rice.

Yes, you old party voter, this is in Columbus, Ohio, in the year of our Lord 1914, and the second year of the great Wilson. This is the system you vote for. You make it impossible for men to support their families because you vote for a system that robs them of $8.00 every time they produce $10.00.

What do we Socialists want to do? How can we better things? We will capture the government and make the industries of this nation public property—the property of the people and what the people own will be used by the people in the interest of the people.

THE CONTEMPTIBLE CUSS

Every truly great man this country ever produced came from the ranks of the working class.

Abraham Lincoln, "the rail splitter," born in poverty, reared with the common people, whom he loved, is an example.

The puny, contemptible cuss now in the White House, who says that the sufferings of the working class are only "psychological," would have been spurned beneath their feet by the revolutionary working class of fifty years ago.

A great crisis demands a great leader, and in the present crisis the working class HAVE a leader, and that leader is themselves, finding expression through their own political Socialist Party.

HE LIKES IT!

Canal Dover, Ohio, June 23, 1914.

The Socialist Publishing Company, Columbus, Ohio.

Dear Comrades:

When in the City of Columbus yesterday I made inquiry at a news stand as to whether there was a Socialist paper publsihed in the city. He handed me a copy of The Socialist, which I purchased, and which has been carefully read. I am very much pleased with the general character of the paper, and very especially so with the editorials. In fact so well pleased that, although already receiving quite a number of our party papers, I feel The Socialist to be also a necessity, and enclose herewith my check for 50c in payment of a year's subscription.

Nearly all the officials of this little city are Socialists, and were elected last November. I happen to be City Solicitor.

Please to accept my congratulations on the excellence of your paper, and my best wishes for the larger success you richly merit.

Yours for the Revolution,

AMOS C. RUFF.

FATHER'S PLIGHT.

Son—So you have sold our house to Mr. Banks, father. Did you get a lot of money for it?

Father—Why, no, son. I didn't get—anything—for it.

Son—Why, dad! Did you GIVE it to 'IM?

Father—N-o-o. I didn't give it to him. You see, I borrowed some money a good many years ago from him, and I couldn't pay it back, so I am letting him take the house.

Son—Oh! Poor Mr. Banks, it must have been hard on him waiting all this time for his pay, and not getting it.

Father—Oh, he did get something. I paid him the interest on the money I borrowed.

Son—How much was that, father?

Father—Wel-l, altogether, I guess, it is more than I borrowed in the beginning. It has run a long time.

Son—But, father, you said you didn't pay him.

Father—Quite right. I DIDN'T pay him.

Son—But now you say you paid him MORE than you borrowed. What are you giving him our nice home, too, for? What will mother and I do? We haven't any—

Father—Oh, son, you don't understand. I PAID Mr. Banks INTEREST, but I COULDN'T pay the principal, and now he wants that.

SON—WANT'S THAT? What does he want THAT for, when you have already MORE than paid him?

Father—My dear boy—But YOU couldn't understand. It is the law. When a man borrows money he pays interest, and then he pays the principal, or he loses his home, or whatever he puts up as security for the debt.

Son—Well, it's a skin-game of a law! I hope when I am grown up we won't have such laws.

Mother—It is a foolish law, my son. I am glad MY sex never had a hand in making it.

Father—My dear, I hope your sex is too wise to try to make ANY laws.

Mother—We are too wise to make SUCH laws, I hope. But we ARE going to make laws, one of these days. Laws that won't take the home from over our husband's and children's heads. Laws that will PROTECT the race, instead of robbing and ruining it. Laws—

(Exit father, waving his hands in protest.)

Son—Mother, I am going to be a suffragist, so the women can help make the laws when I am grown up.

Mother—I hope you will be a suffragist, and a Socialist, my son. In these movements lies our only redemption.—Coming Nation.

Our captains of industry support the three parties of their class—and are wealthy. You fail to support the political party of your class—and are poor.

Vulgar opulence fills the street from wall to wall of the houses, and begrudges all but the gutter to everybody whose sleeve is a little worn at the elbows.—John Weiss.

To give a man a part of what you have robbed him is charity. Charity is an insult. Socialism is justice. When justice is given charity is not longer needed.

Everytime you hear of some poor mortals having been murdered in Mexico, just remember the United States, owned and controlled by Rockefeller and Co., is punishing Huerta. It may be rather rough on those that are murdered, but just remember it's good for business.

LOCAL

Big Mass Meeting at Socialist headquarters tomorrow (Sunday), June 28th, at 2:30 P. M. Matters of the greatest importance will be taken up. Bring all the sympathizers with you. The hall is equipped with electric fans, so if the weather is warm come down and get cooled off. Let us urge that you will be at this particular meeting without fail.

The First Ward has made arrangements to give a big lawn fete next Thursday evening, July 2nd, at Parsons and Jenkins. Things will be done in regular First Ward style. All kinds of refreshments will be on sale and good speakers will be secured. Turn out and make a big demonstration.

NATIONAL

This has been "Red Week" in Great Britain, when a combined effort was put forth throughout the country to increase the dues-paying membership of the Socialist parties as was recently done with great success in Holland and Germany.

It is reported from Pennsylvania that in the recent primaries in that state, A. M. Fuller, the Socialist candidate for Superior Judge, received the second highest vote. He received 41,000 votes in Allegheny County, or a majority of nearly 10,000 votes over all other candidates. The total vote for Fuller was 91,865 and he will be the second of the four candidates on the ballot.

A small town in southeastern Kansas, population 4,000, by the name of Frontenac, 12 miles east of Girard, is a credit to the Socialist movement; it has a local with 240 members, that is, the American local, and the Austrians have 115 members. The Socialists control six Councilmen, one Police Judge, one Justice of the Peace, two Constables, four School Board members; control all but two Councilmen, Mayor and City Treasurer.

There will be two special elections held in Germany for members of Parliament to fill vacancies during the next few weeks. The Socialists stand an excellent chance of gaining one of the seats from the National Liberals.

The Christian Socialist Fellowship is making good progress in the South. Rev. E. E. Carr and Mrs. Carr have had a very successful trip in the Southern States, organizing branches in Louisville, Memphis, Montgomery and several other places. Meetings were held in many churches and the message of Socialism was brought to many people who had never heard of it or who confused the Socialist movement with anarchy and the like. The Carrs believe that the general interest displayed will result in the formation of many local organizations to spread the propaganda.

"There are arguments, and, we believe, good and conclusive ones against Socialism," says the Daily Troy (N. Y.) Standard-Press. "But if we, as admittedly pronounced and antagonistic students of the tenets of the teaching, have a right conception of the true aims of Socialism, and we believe we have, they are, without exception, economic, and not moral or religious. What of immoral and irreligious teachings have been lugged into the present-day propaganda for the spread of Socialistic ideas have been lugged in by vicious or ignorant men and women incapable mentally or morally from reaching up to grasp the real meaning of the principles of the Socialistic doctrine in its true and original sense. There are bad and dangerous Socialists, just as there are other men who are bad and dangerous. But there is nothing immoral or irreligious in the Socialism that has been and is being taught by many great and good men. Assaults on the social structure, on the finest and noblest attributes of man and upon the church and its teachings which are made in the name of Socialism are hell-born of evil minds and in all fairness should no more be charged against Socialism than the lying and stealing and bearing of false witness by hypocritic pew-warmers should be charged against Christianity."

In an address delivered at Grand Rapids, Mich., Rev. Dr. H. C. Ledyard said, among other things: "While I do not know who is to be the judge as to what constitutes the best interests of this country, I will say that if the accumulation of wealth by the few through the labor of the masses is the 'best interests' of America, then, thank God, Socialism is opposed to the 'best interests,' tooth and nail. But if the best interests are, as I believe them to be, the equal distribution of wealth and opportunity, then Socialism surely is not opposed to it. If there are atheists in the Socialist Party, they are so not because of the theory of Socialism or because it teaches any such doctrine, but rather because they are driven to it by capitalism. Socialists believe in the sort of a Jesus who preached the gospel of equality of opportunity. The command, 'Servants, obey your masters,' never came from the lips of the Carpenter of Nazareth, but from the self-appointed Apostle Paul."

In Florida the Socialists have made such rapid progress that they are now the second party in the state, and the old corrupt Bourbon machine politicians have become so frightened at the "red spectre" that they have put a primary law through the legislature that piles up the cost to a total of $18,000 for the Socialist Party to place a state ticket in the field. The unfair and disfranchising swindle will be tested in the courts.

Unity in the Socialist movement of Great Britain is now assured. The British Socialist Party has decided, in a referendum vote, to join with the Independent Labor Party and Fabian Society and affiliate with the Labor Party. Today (June 20) a joint meeting of the executive officials of the parties will be held in London to make final arrangements to consummate the merger, and in the future complete harmony will exist instead of division and dual candidates in political campaigns.

THE PEOPLE'S COLLEGE

The Revolution is on! To hasten the victory we must have education and solidarity. We must know and we must act together. We have our own press. We must have our own school.

THE PEOPLE'S COLLEGE, a school owned, controlled and directed by the workers, based upon their needs and teaching their philosophy, has been established at Ft. Scott, Kansas.

This will be the greatest school the world has ever known—a school having both resident and correspondence departments in which all branches of learning will be taught. Those inaugurating this movement are men and women well known to the working class of the country.

The People's College Union is establishing this College of the people. This is THE ONE BIG UNION for every class conscious worker. We must have as members of this Union every man and woman who toils.

Will you help us get them?

Here is an opportunity for real service in the class struggle. We want 10,000 earnest, active men and women to act as organizers for the Union. Write us and we will tell you what to do.

A BIG PICNIC

The comrades of Local Xenia are busy arranging for a big Socialist Picnic at Kil Kare Park, Saturday, July 11th. The main attraction is to be Eugene V. Debs, who is scheduled to speak at 3 P. M. There will be music, dancing and other special attractions. The Xenia comrades are working hard to make the picnic a success and the Xenia comrades hereby extend a cordial invitation to all the comrades and their families of nearby locals to join them for a good time.

THE RIGHT TONE

Sending for $1.00 worth of sub. cards, Comrade Peyton, Carpenter, O., writes: "Comrades, enclosed find check for $1.00 for four sub. cards. The paper is certainly meeting the approval of all Socialists and should receive both moral and financial support of all who love justice and right."

This letter has the right tone. If you comrades on the firing line can endorse this letter, "show your faith by your works," and turn in a bunch of subs. now, and be ready for the fireworks in November.

ADVERTISING

We would like once more to urge on our readers to support our advertisers. With the present "psychological" hard times, and its resultant curtailment of expenses, "The Socialist" is hit harder than any other paper. This condition could be turned into profit for the paper if all our subscribers would insist on buying only from those who advertise in The Socialist. Not only can this be done, but hundreds of merchants all over town who have been getting your patronage could be persuaded to advertise if you would speak to them about it.

THE UNNAMABLE WRETCH

The contemptible coward, the dirty buzzard, the unnamable wretch, Captain K. E. Linderfelt, murderer of Louis Tikas, who was leader of the miners at Ludlow, Colo., has been tried by a court martial, and although the despicable assassin, the murderer of working class women and children, pleaded guilty to the charge of murder, the sentence of the court was that he be "reduced five files in the ranks."

Were this one of the workers who had "laid out" the cowardly carcass of this unhung villain, he would have been hung ere this. This is only one more manifestation of class rule in this glorious free (?) country.

Everybody stands free and equal before the law on this side of the pond. Like hades they do! If you murder working people at the command of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., you need have no fear. You will only get reduced in rank. If you revolt at unbearable conditions imposed on you by the plutocrats of this country, no matter how peaceably you conduct yourself, it's prison, or the gallows for you.

All this under the stars and stripes that are supposed to stand for liberty. Unless conditions are changed for the better, and that quickly, the American working class may arise in an armed revolt that will shake the Plunderbund from their backs forever.

Tell advertisers you saw their ad. in The Socialist.

The government became frightened at the growth of the movement and started their campaign of persecution, which is still being carried on. Seven Socialists were sentenced from 18 months to two years in prison for refusing to surrender a red flag in their possession. In 1910 twelve more were put to death as "anarchists."

THE SOCIALIST

A Weekly Newspaper Without a Muzzle

Vol. IV Whole No. 185 COLUMBUS, OHIO, JULY 4, 1914 Price, 2 Cents per Copy

THIS PAPER is published in the interest of the working class. If you think it is worthy of your support, support it by getting new subscribers. If you don't like it, don't knock. We are making it as good as you will allow. Whenever the workers support their own press as valiantly as they do the master's press we will be able to do really big things for the emancipation of the workers. In the meantime, we are forging ahead conscious of the fact that our cause is just, that right will finally triumph, and the workers step forth emancipated from the age-long servitude to a robber, master class.

THE FORGOTTEN DECLARATION

At festivals throughout this land today, July Fourth, the Declaration of Independence will be read, or glorified in sounding terms.

That Declaration rang in the ears of a startled world like the clarion call of a new era. But today its hopes are dead, its prophecies unfulfilled, its guarantees forgotten, its meaning lost.

We are beholding the collapse of the Republic. By conspiracy between the Law and the lawless, both bought for hire; by judicial decisions from a prostitute bench on the one hand, and by the reign of terror of savage mercenaries on the other, the liberties of our nation have been stolen, and the rulership over us given to irresponsible despots, reigning from golden thrones. Power, attained by inheritance or by fraud, lies in the hands of a concentrated oligarchy.

Let us recall the brave words of the forgotten Declaration, and see whether any spark of manhood and independence still remains in the breasts of men whose fathers fought or fled from despotism, to urge them to claim again their inheritance.

"We hold these truths to be self-evident: that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by the Creator with certain inalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness."

These "truths" are denied by every fact of our national life. Equality cannot be other than a mockery where a million children are robbed of land, sunshine and air, and doomed to lifelong disease and toil, in order that one favored child may rot in surfeit and luxury.

"That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed; that whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends it is the right of the people to alter or abolish it, and to institute new government, laying its foundations on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to affect their safety and happiness."

Judicial treason and mercenary thuggery have reduced to helpless slavery the greater proportion of the American people. No shadow of government by the consent of the governed obtains in vast territories of our industrial system. In West Virginia, Colorado, Michigan, Pennsylvania, and many other states, constitutional government has been utterly suspended in favor of autocratic edicts from non-resident sovereigns, supported by the purchased power of prostitute law and by the terror of savage brutality and organized assassination.

"Prudence, indeed, will dictate that governments long established should not be changed for light or transient causes; and accordingly all experience has shown that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed."

It is true. The patience of the American working class under the evils they have endured has been one of the world's marvels.

"But when a long train of abuses and usurpation, pursuing invariably the same object, evinces a design to reduce them under absolute despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such government and to provide new guards for their future security."

Freedom of speech, freedom of the press, freedom of assemblage, have been denied the working class. Government by injunction has denied them the right of trial on the merits of their case. Kidnapping, officially legalized and sanctioned, has been employed. Every means the workers can use to secure their betterment and freedom has been proscribed and outlawed, while every weappon their foes could employ to beat them down into subjection has been blessed and sanctified by the courts. It is evident that reduction under absolute despotism of the money power is the purpose. Under circumstances such as these, "It is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such government, and to provide new guards for their future security."

"The history of the present king is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations, all having in direct object the establishment of an absolute tyranny over these states.

"To prove this, let facts be submitted to a candid world.

"He has refused his assent to laws, the most wholesome and necessary to the public good."

Every law for the protection of workers has been opposed by courts.

"He has forbidden his governors to pass laws of immediate and pressing importance, unless suspended in their operation, until his assent should be obtained, and when so suspended, he has utterly neglected to attend to them."

Establishment of the constitutionality of labor laws has been indefinitely held up or refused.

"He has made judges dependent on his will alone for the tenure of their offices and the amount and payment of their salaries."

The judiciary is notoriously chosen for its sympathy with property and wealth.

"He has kept among us, in time of peace, standing armies, without the consent of our legislatures."

Private detective agencies and company guardsmen are maintained by corporations to overawe and defeat the workers, as private armies outside the law.

"He has affected to render the military independent of and superior to the civil power."

In every state where large strikes have occurred, the civil courts have been superseded by drumhead courtsmartial, in defiance of the law.

"He has combined with others to subject us to a jurisdiction foreign to our constitution and unacknowledged by our laws, giving his assent to their acts of pretended legislation;

"For quartering large bodies of armed troops among us";

As in Colorado, Michigan and West Virginia.

"For protecting them, by a mock trial, from punishment for any murders which they should commit on the inhabitants of these states";

As in Ludlow and Hancock.

"For imposing taxes on us without our consent";

By company stores, false weights and lying deductions of wages.

"For depriving us in many cases of the benefits of trial by jury";

As in all cases of government by injunction.

"For transporting us beyond the seas to be tried for pretended offenses";

As in kidnapping labor leaders for trial.

"For taking away our charters, abolishing our most valuable laws, and altering fundamentally our forms of government";

By denial of constitutional rights in time of industrial strike.

"He has abdicated government here, by declaring us out of his protection and waging war against us.

"He has plundered our seas, ravaged our coasts, burnt our towns and destroyed the lives of our people";

By Death Specials, armored trains and assassins' torches.

"He is at this time transporting large bodies of foreign mercenaries to complete the works of death, desolation and tyranny, already begun, with circumstances of cruelty and perfidy scarcely paralleled in the most barbarous ages, and totally unworthy the head of a civilized nation."

No savage tribe burns women and children alive.

"In every stage of these oppressions we have petitioned for redress in the most humble terms. Our repeated petitions have been answered only by repeated injury."

Our President humbly sought audience with John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and was scornfully repulsed.

The Declaration closes with these words:

"We therefore, the Representatives of the United States of America in General Congress assembled, . . . do in the name and by the authority of the good people of these colonies, solemnly publish and declare that these colonies are and of right ought to be free and independent states; that they are absolved from any allegiance to the British Crown, and that all political connection between them and the State of Great Britain is and ought to be totally dissolved:

"And for the support of this declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine providence, we mutually pledge to each other our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor."

The old Declaration is dead. Let us make a new one. Let us in our assemblies this 138th anniversary of the birth of our republic proclaim that Labor from henceforth will rule itself, emancipating itself from the tyranny of Capital by its own power; to the end that the blessings of liberty may be secured to us and our posterity.

ROCKEFELLER GUNMEN STILL IN GOOD STANDING

DENVER, COLO., June 27.—(Special.)—Colorado is able to manage her own affairs, such is the report to be made to President Wilson by the state legislative committee which investigated the Ludlow affair, according to a report at the state capitol.

That statement would probably be true if Colorado governed herself, but it is an utter falsehood considering that Governor Ammons, a pliant lickspittle of the coal operators, is attempting to run the affairs of the state.

"How is Colorado any better able to manage her own affairs now than she was before the federal troops came into the fields?" is the question her real citizens are asking.

Ammons, the person who bowed and scraped and licked the boots of John D. Rockefeller and his representatives in Colorado, is still in office, ready to repeat his anarchistic attempts to break the strike at the expense of the state.

Adjutant General Chase, who rode down the women and childen in Trinidad, who kicked Sarah Slator savagely in the breast, is still head of the National Guard.

Linderfelt, Hamrock and every other leader of the militiamen who destroyed the Ludlow tent colony, murdering and cremating nineteen men, women and children at Ludlow in the most terrible slaughter in industrial history, are still members of that body.

The gunmen who, armed with state equipment and operators' machine guns, mowed down the innocents are still in good standing.

There has been no change whatsoever in the personnel of the operators' tools who run the state government and who tyrannized the strike zone for seven months before Ludlow.

If the federal troops are withdrawn from the field, the operators will soon cause enough trouble to provide the governor with an excuse to send the scab-herding militia back to the strike district.

There is no sane reason to believe that Chase and his gunmen will do any other than before—terrorize the strikers, their wives and children and possibly slaughter the innocents again as they did at Ludlow.

But the militia is to be reorganized. What do you think of that? Yes, sir, the legislative committee think so, and so do many others.

Suppose it is reorganized, who do you think would care to wear the cloak of the Colorado National Guard, stained with the blood of the innocent men, women and children of Ludlow who, unarmed and unprotected in any way, were slaughtered?

Who would care to take the place of Adjutant General Chase, knowing that, with Ammons in the chair, the head of the National Guard must be prostituted to the coal operators and shoot down men, women and children?

Who would join a National Guard defamed by such murderers as Hamrock and Linderfelt, for certainly as head of the gunmen militia at Ludlow they were as responsible as any for the slaughter of the innocents?

As a matter of fact the reorganization of the Colorado National Guard is a joke. There may be changes in the official heads of the organization, but they will always be under the command of Commander-in-Chief Elias M. Ammons, cowpuncher and tool of the coal operators.

VOTE THE SOCIALIST TICKET, THE ONLY PATRIOTIC TICKET, AND MAKE THE STARS AND STRIPES STAND FOR INDUSTRIAL LIBERTY.

We, the workers, now and forevermore declare that we have absolved all allegiance to King Rockefeller and the capitalist class in general.

Give us industrial liberty or give us death.

The next wind that blows from the Rockefeller mines may bring to our ears the clash of resounding arms.

Piece! Piece! There is no Piece. The capitalist class have taken the last piece, and only left us the crumbs.

Socialism grows while a great many Socialists sleep.

There's none so blind as those who will not vote for themselves.

Private monopoly is always oppressive, public monopoly always beneficial.

To reject an idea because it is new is not a proof of shrewd sense; it is a proof of bigoted ignorance.—R. Blatchford.

There can be no right morals until economic conditions are made right.

The race of mankind, would perish did they cease to aid each other—Scott.

Socialism is needed to make private property possible for all.

The man that gets scared by the word revolution these days has got a disease of the eyes known as blinders. He had better consult a doctor about his eyesight and his mental vision.

Some slaves are bought with money, and others with praise. It matters not what the purchase money is. The distinguishing sign of slavery is to have a price, and be bought for it.

DEMOCRATIC LABOR HATERS PUT ANOTHER ONE ACROSS

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 2, 1914.—A joker in the railway mail pay bill which would result in bringing the federal troops to break every railway strike has just been discovered. This bill is pending before both the House and Senate and may pass at this session. The two bills differ in the amount of graft that they hand over to the carriers, but they agree in the grand principle that workingmen must not be allowed to strike.

Here is the joker as it appears in the Moon bill, reported to the House a few days ago:

"The Postmaster General shall in all cases decide upon what trains and in what manner the mails shall be conveyed. Every railroad company carrying the mails shall carry on any train it operates, and with due speed, all mailable matter, equipment and supplies directed to be carried thereon. If such railroad company shall fail or refuse to transport the mails, equipment and supplies, when required by the Postmaster General, on any train or trains it operates, such company shall be fined such reasonable amount as may, in the discretion of the Postmaster General, be deemed proper."

By enacting a federal statute that "any train" shall carry mail if so ordered by the Postmaster General the power is invested in that official to put a mail bag on any and every train operated by a railroad company under contract to carry the mails. This means that if the Washington government so desired it could put mail on every trolley car. In times of a threatened or actual strike on a railroad or on a street car system, which would undoubtedly come under the definition of a "railroad company," the Federal Government could hurry its troops to the scene of action with the usual disastrous effects.

The railroads are behind this provision in the pending railway mail pay bills. They are not saying much if anything about it, but they want it enacted into the law. It is said that they are even willing to compromise on certain other features of the measure in order to be sure of this one.

Former Senator Jonathan Bourne, the "progressive" millionaire statesman from Oregon, is chairman of the Joint Congressional Committee on Railway Mail Pay, and he is putting up the fight for this provision as a part of his bill which gives the railroads more money than the Post Office Department believes is necessary. In a statement just issued Bourne incidentally shows his attitude on the burning question of private property when he says: "In its insistent efforts to reduce railway mail pay the Post Office Department has attempted to dictate to Congress rates which, if adopted, would be confiscatory."

The Senate bill has not yet been reported. The House bill, containing the anti-labor joker, has been reported, and is now on the House calendar. The majority or Democratic members of the Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads making the report are: Representatives Moon of Tennessee, Finley of South Carolina, Bell of Georgia, Cox of Indiana, Wilson of New York, Tuttle of New Jersey, Rouse of Kentucky, Fowler of Kentucky, Blackmon of Alabama, ALLEN OF OHIO, Reilly of Connecticut, Holland of Virginia, Beakes of Michigan, and Buchanan of Texas.

These men should be asked to explain to their workingmen constituents whether they stand for this bill and if so why?

—Ruskin's "Crown of Wild Olive."

Man has a tyrant, ignorance. . . . That tyrant has begotten royalty, which is authority springing from the false, while science is authority springing from the true. Man should be governed by science.—V. Hugo. Washington Star.

Nobody is helping Socialism quite so much as the fellows who are hardest at work fighting it—with words. A fair discussion helps any good cause, and unfair discussion helps to get fair discussion.

When a politician tells his audience they're prosperous, and their stomachs tell them they're not, and they believe the politician, it's a sign they're old party voters.

Do you realize that all you will be able to leave your children is a heritage of slavery? Is it right that this should be so?

The worker is skinned every day, and spends his time in nursing the sore places so there will be more cuticle for the grafters.

The rain falls alike on the just and the unjust," a clergyman once said. "Not a bit of it," a parishioner retorted. "The unjust have all the closed motor cars and umbrellas.'

The Socialist weapon is the ballot. It is made effective when used with reason and the skill that comes of a study of economics.

Charity, they say, covers a multitude of sins. It is made a cloak for hiding the systematic robbery and induced poverty of the workers.

Look not upon the politician when he is red in the face, when he spouteth patriotism by the ton; at the last he stingeth like an addder.

A worker is a man who is supposed to "make a living" for himself and his family, and a fortune for his employer and his family.

The misery of man proceeds not from any single crush of overwhelming evil, but from small vexations continually repeated.—Johnson.

The man of intellect at the top of affairs; this is the aim of all institutions and revolutions, if they have any.—Carlisle.

Why don't the government make a dicker with the people who earn the money, instead of the people who live off of it?

"The threatened aspect of the industrial situation foretells some radical changes in the near future—whether we are to lapse into government ownership, Socialistic control, or go back to the customs of fair Hellenic days, when there was no factory system, and no capital, and no proletariat, but every man had his own little shop in which to make his neighbor's shoes, coat, carriage, build his house or construct his store."

Read the above editorial from the Ohio State Journal of June 5th over again, and you will readily see that even the editor of that representative of Capitalism cannot keep away from the evils of the present system. He concedes that the present order of things must soon pass away and he appears to be clear sighted enough to know that to go forward means Socialism, to go back means Individualism.

Are we going to destroy our railroad system and go back to the days of the "ox cart?" Are we going to destroy our splendid shoe factories, and have a shoemaker on every corner? Are we going to abandon our street cars and walk? Are we going to tear up our paved streets and have mud roads?

The Colonel knows as well as you do that we are not going backward. He knows that every movement in the industrial system is for co-operation. He well knows that we could no more go back to the individual shoe shop or the ox cart than we could recall last year's snow. His editorial is an acknowledgment that Socialism is inevitable. It is a fact, acknowledged by nearly every political economist, that all roads lead to co-operation, the development of which means the "co-operative commonwealth."

If the men employed by Capitalism to keep the people in ignorance cannot refrain from divulging the truths they are hired to conceal, we certainly are reaching the breaking point of the present system.

For a slave-owner to have conceded in 1860 that chattel slavery was near its end would have shown he had an insight into the conditions existing at that time. Whether or not wage slavery shall be eliminated, as was chattel slavery, depends altogether on the intelligence of the people. If the majority of the people, when the final clash between capital and labor comes, has sufficient economic education to handle the situation all will be well, but if the standpatters and reactionaries are in control, as were those who believed in chattel slavery in 1861, we must expect a repetition of the bloody days of the early '60's.

It is a duty we owe ourselves, our families and all mankind to press the glad tidings of Socialism forward to every nook and cranny in the land. Talk to your neighbor about it, get him to take Socialist papers. Read our literature, hear our speeches, and get his mind developed along the line of economics.

Don't forget which side the Supreme Court of the United States was on in 1857 and remember they are on the same side today. They were hand in hand with the slave owners at that time and with Capitalism today. Wake up and enter your protest against the Capitalist system by joining the party of your own class and helping to overthrow the present damnable system and aid the ushering in of the co-operative commonwealth by peaceful methods before it is too late to prevent bloodshed.

BILL BRYAN—FAKER

WASHINGTON, July 2.—The fact that the most highly paid Chautauqua artist in Wilson's cabinet, Secretary of State W. J. Bryan, the fake "radical" and "terror of Wall Street," has been playing dollar diplomacy straight into the hands of the big New York international banking interests has done more to discredit the Wilson administration in the eyes of those who have up to this time considered it to be an honest reform administration than any one other fact. For political reasons purely the Senate has started a little flurry about the Colombian and Nicaraguan loans, but not much will be uncovered by an investigation by the Senate, for a real inquiry would reveal things which would discredit all three parties—the Republicans, the Democrats and the Bull Moose.

Wilson began his term in office with a sensational statement in which he told the country that he was throwing dollar diplomacy overboard by not inviting the Wall Street interests to partake in the Chinese loan. The Wall Street interests thereupon pretended to be very much offended, and a popular chorus of approval went up from the stupid press of the country. Dollar diplomacy was dead, and Wilson had killed it with his little hatchet.

For some time this delusion prevailed. Finally it was discovered that the State Department had been using the Red Cross as a catspaw to negotiate a big industrial loan to China. The rich Huai River valley was the prize which the American bankers wanted to get their fingers into, and the officials of the United States government kept the cable between Washington and China hot in order to be sure that the United States beat the other greedy capitalists sailing under various foreign flags to the Oriental goal. The United States won, thanks to Bryan and Mabel Boardman, Taft's friend, who runs the Red Cross. Taft's former private secretary, Charles D. Norton, a member of the Red Cross Board and an official of the National City Bank in New York, also had a finger in the undertaking.

Now come the Nicaraguan and Colombian revelations, showing conclusively that Bryan has been hand in glove with his exploiting friends in New York in the little game of subjugating the South American "republics" to the domination of Wall Street.

"These revelations," said an astute political observer in Washington the other day, "should be the beginning of the Bryan myth, and the full story of the Bryan myth should result in the driving of Bryan out from public life. Bryan is probably not corrupt in the way of taking rake-offs for himself—he can make enough by merely opening and shutting his mouth in a Chautauqua tent to keep him reasonably honest and prosperous. Bryan's game is deeper. He is at heart a Civic Federationist—he thinks that capital and labor can lie down together and be perfectly happy. He has at his tongue's end a few—a very few—old-fashioned 'radical' reforms, which include direct election of senators, the initiative and referendum, and the abolition of what he calls 'plutocracy.' But Bryan doesn't even know plutocracy when he sees it, or he wouldn't surrender the helpless little republics of Southern America to the untender mercies of Brown, Seligman, et al. I don't like to call Bryan a fool, but I cannot help concluding that the very best thing that can be said for him is that he is a fake. There is not and never has been a single really revolutionary plank in his platform—witness how promptly he side-stepped government ownership of railroads a few years ago. If the people of the country knew him as we in Washington know Bryan, they would turn the entire Democratic party out of office for letting itself be dominated by one such man."

DON'T SCAB ON YOUR OWN CLASS

We are now approaching the time when we are to go to the ballot box and select the citizens who are to conduct the business of this county for the next two years. In this selection we are all vitally interested. We are not interested so much in the kind of man who is running as we are in what he stands for.

What are his principles? Are his platform pledges of a kind that will benefit me and mine, and will he live up to those pledges if elected?

Naturally the working class, who comprise 85 per cent. or more of the population, and on whose shoulders lie all the burden of the support of government, are beginning to inquire more closely into the causes and reasons for the brutality practiced upon their class. They have voted year after year for Democrats and Republicans, and last year even sought relief in the Bull Moose, only to find that they are all alike. He finds that these tools of the Plunderbund, once election is over and they are safely ensconced in a $5,000 job, are too high and lofty to notice a common working dub. They are of superior clay, and if you approach them on a matter of public business, for which they are paid, you must do so in a properly humble manner or be insulted.

The working class have had enough of the "good man" dope, and they are beginning to study the principles of the Socialist party, and find that therein lies their only salvation.

All the lies and slander hurled against the Socialist party by the kept press, and the Democratic-Republican branch of panhandlers has only had the effect of making the honest working men and farmers investigate, and to investigate is to believe, and go forth to conquer.

The old story the politicians have been slipping to the workers in the past, to the effect, "Yes, the Socialists are all right but they can't win, so don't throw away your vote," don't go any more. The workers have learned that every time they vote an old party ballot they lose not only their vote but their self-respect, and they are coming home to their own party and work and fight for their own class.

Socialists do not claim to be better men than the Democrats and Republicans, now in office. We never laud our candidates as "great men" and "honored citizens." We never claim that our candidates are more honest than the average. However, Socialists know beforehand that their Socialist administration will be more honest, more efficient, and more economical than the administration of any Capitalist party. This has been exemplified in every city in which the Socialist party has ascended to power. In the city of Milwaukee a Capitalist paper sent a representative to investigate the conditions existing there since the Socialists came into power, and the first line of his report read: "I cannot find a nickel's worth of graft in Milwaukee."

And thus it will be in Franklin County this fall if the workers rally to their own standard in such numbers as to carry the black flag of anarchy, which is the standard of the Democrat and Republican parties, down to ignominious defeat.

And why should we not do so? Remember this is a class fight and a class government. In other words, every public official now in the Court House is a representative, not of the people, but of the Capitalist class. They are representatives of the class who live off the labor of the working class. They are placed there to defend the Capitalist class against the working class. They are placed there to keep the workers in subjection.

Not a single representative have the working class got in the government of this county, and then they wonder why they are so poor. Why they can't get a square deal? What's wrong?

The trouble is that in the past the workers have placed all the power of government in the hands of their most insatiate enemy—the Capitalist class. They are in the position of a general leading an army of men up to the enemy and then handing all the guns over to the said enemy and telling them to shoot at his own men.

So the workers are learning that if they want protection they must send their own class to office. It is always safer to have all the guns in your own hands. Work and win. Only by the efforts of the workers themselves can they emancipate themselves. Don't scab at the ballot box.

You work with your class all the year round.

You associate with your class all the year round.

Your joys and sorrows are all bound up in your own class.

Even when the worker dies he is buried in a spot with his own class.

You workers live together and die together. Now, all together, and VOTE TOGETHER.

HOW THE BATTLE OF THE LORD GOES

The battle of the Lord must be in sore straits if it must wait upon the will of one mortal man. George W. Perkins, who since the defection of Brother Munsey is the chief tom-tom beater for the Bull Moose party, has capitulated and now believes that Roosevelt should run for Governor of New York to save the party from extinction. Which is illuminating.

Either way the thing turns out, there will be food for joy to the faithful. There are two reasons for being in politics. Either you are in it to benefit the people, or you are in it to benefit yourself. Socialists are in it to benefit that part of the people whom they think to be the important class, the working class. The capitalist parties are in it to get what there is in it for themselves in exchange for service to Capitalism.

There was much ado about the Bull Moose being "different," as the advertisers say. It was a battle for principle

Now it looks as if it is upon the decline. Rather than lose a stranglehold upon a certain number of officers, the party is ready to do one of a number of things. It will either make a trade with the Republicans, as was done last year, and in return for that support there will be tendered offices, as was done in the case of the Mitchel fusion. This the doughty Colonel favors.

Or it will rest its case upon the personal popularity of one man, and not upon the abiding principle that was supposed to have underlain its foundation. Rather than lose its grip upon a number of voters, which is the medium of trading, and the only one known, it is willing to "humiliate" its best known man, it is willing to make a liar of him, it is willing to do anything at all, but only, hold onto that block of votes.

The idea of continuing to fight for certain abiding principles without regard to office, and without regard for personalities, seems never to have entered the minds of the Perkins type of leaders.

That is why the cleanest men of the lot, the few real idealists in the ranks, are sick at heart, and are making the first signs of a move to cast their fortunes with the Socialists, the only politicians who have never surrendered their ideals.

THE GIANT CRANE, THE GREAT MAGNET AND THE WONDERFUL LATHE

Sometimes the editorials in Collier's Weekly are interesting, sometimes they are amusing and sometimes they are foolish. In the current issue the foolish editor has written at least one.

Usually it is risky for a treadmill artist to write about labor—and when the writing is for a treadmill publication the result is certain to be foolish.

Three new inventions—not so new at that—caught the eye of the writer-of-pieces-for-the-paper who helps stuff the Collier's editorial columns, and he waxed wise about them. Listen to his wisdom:

"Magnet cranes that will pick up and carry five tons of loose scrap iron; one-man coal-handling bridges that will unload 500 tons of coal in an hour so that you can see the ship rise in the water; lathes in which ten tools cut into two piece of steel at one time, and one man runs two such machines—these are only three of the new weapons we are now using to conquer the world of things. What are we going to do with it?"

Entirely from the point of view of heaped up wealth! That is how Collier's views the matter. Here are a lot of labor-saving machines that do the most wonderful things. They will help conquer the world. Yes, they will; but for whom? Collier's would shy at that question—or else give a wabbly answer.

Under present conditions these machines help conquer the world—help coin it into cash—for the capitalist class. Under Socialism they would be used to lighten the burden of those who toil. They would be used for the benefit of those who work. Then they would be in the service of humanity, instead of in the service of dollars.

Today the great machinery that unloads coal helps to heap up greater profits for those who own and sell the coal supply. Today the great magnet that replaces hundreds of men does its work for the benefit of a small owning class. The men who work with these wonderful machines get low wages and often they work long hours. Always they work longer than is necessary. And every little addition to their financial or physical welfare that they secure is bought at the price of hard fighting and keen suffering.

Constant improvement in machinery is one of the marks of the age, and machinery is the thing that makes this age as it is possible. There is no greater blessing than machinery. And there is no greater curse than the private ownership of machinery that must be used collectively. To remove that curse is to set mankind free from the stifling bonds of wage slavery.

THE FORD PLAN

BY RALPH KORNGOLD.

With blare of trumpets and column interviews in the newspapers, Mr. Henry Ford has announced the inauguration of a profit-sharing plan in the Ford Motor Company's plant in Detroit.

The plan is calculated to make the minimum wage paid to the employees of the plant five dollars a day.

While the sum which will be distributed to the employees of the plant is enormous, it is doubtful whether Mr. Ford could have obtained the amount of advertising that the announcement of the plan has brought him for any less. Certain it is that he could not have obtained as DESIRABLE advertising at any price.

The announcement of the plan has, therefore, made Mr. Ford a world-celebrity, and he will henceforth be known as a model employer and a benefactor of labor.

For years to come he will be the chief attraction at Civic Federation banquets, at meetings of the Society-For-the-Promotion-of-the-Use-of-Nail-Brushes-Among-the-Coal-Miners, and similar organizations for the "uplift" of the working class.

All this ought to give Mr. Ford a great deal of personal gratification, and, with the increase in efficiency that will no doubt result among his employees, and the freedom from strikes and other labor disturbances, ought to richly compensate Mr. Ford for his munificence.

In the meantime the Socialists fail to see that Mr. Ford has brought the solution of the labor problem any nearer.

They point out that at best Mr. Ford occupies the position under capitalism that Harriet Beecher Stowe's kind-hearted slave owner typified under slavery.

MR. FORD IS A GOOD MASTER.

But precisely the fact that he is a MASTER is what the Socialists object to.

THE SOCIALISTS OBJECT TO A SYSTEM WHICH MAKES THE WELL-BEING OF THE WORKERS DEPENDENT ON THE WHIM OR THE MUNIFICENCE OF ONE MAN OR A GROUP OF MEN.

The Revolutionary Fathers would not have been satisfied with a GOOD king instead of a BAD one; they wanted to abolish kings altogether and have the people become their own rulers.

The abolitionists would not have been satisfied had all slave owners become kind and considerate toward their slaves; they wanted to abolish slavery.

THE SOCIALISTS CAN NOT AND WILL NOT BE SATISFIED WITH CONSIDERATE AND KIND TREATMENT BY EMPLOYEES BY EMPLOYERS, WITH PROFIT-SHARING DEVICES AND THE LIKE; THEY WANT TO ABOLISH THE SYSTEM WHICH MAKES IT POSSIBLE FOR ONE MAN TO CONFISCATE ANY PART OF ANOTHER MAN'S PRODUCT. THEY WANT THE PEOPLE TO BECOME THEIR OWN EMPLOYERS.

However well-meaning Mr. Ford might be, his profit-sharing plan is but of doubtful value to labor.

It is likely to have a bad effect upon the back-bones of Mr. Ford's employees.

There is a decided danger that it will make the mless self-reliant and will make them put their trust in the MUNIFICENCE of EMPLOYERS instead of in an ORGANIZATION AND SOLIDARITY OF LABOR.

They will receive more wages, but the chances are that they will be more than ever at the mercy of Mr. Ford.

It is also likely that they will stand selfishly apart from the mass of other workers still battling for living conditions.

High wages are good, provided they are obtained as a result of labor's own efforts, industrial and political.

High wages which are GRANTED to labor by the magnanimity of an employer are more than likely to result in helping to perpetuate a system which makes it possible for one man to GRANT to other men as a FAVOR what should be theirs as a RIGHT.

There is, however, still another possibility.

The Ford plan may bear results unforeseen by Mr. Ford.

After the men have once adjusted their standards of living to their new income, it is quite likely that Mr. Ford or his successors would have a hard time indeed trying to go back to the old wage scale.

What was granted them as a FAVOR the men may demand and maintain as a RIGHT.

It is also not at all unlikely that men working in other plants will become dissatisfied when they compare their standard of living with that of the Ford employees and will strike for higher pay.

The profit-sharing plan has also the fatal defect of exposing to the view of every working man the magnitude of the profits that have been made off their labor by their self-styled benefactors.

The Ford plan may yet turn out to be not what Mr. Ford bargained for.

ABANDONED.

By George Allan England.

A worker lay on his death-bed
At the pale dawn of day.
No nurse to smooth his fevered head
Had he, for none would stay;
But with a screen they hedged him in
To gasp his life away.

To gasp his life out, like some beast
That crawls away to die—
An outworn, worthless, broken slave,
Paralyzed, blear of eye,
Worked to the bone, outcast, alone,
His very marrow dry—

His marrow dry with endless moil
In heat, in cold, in rain;
His only memories, of toil,
Toil for anothers gain,
Toil—childhood, manhood and old age;
The worker groaned with pain.

Groaned, as the poorhouse walls grew white;
The old man shrank, afraid.
His dull ears heard Death's rushing wing,
Heard his spent heart, that stayed.
Then Death loomed at the open door;
The worker sobbed, and prayed.

He prayed—"O God, God of the rich,
Once I believed on Thee
Once I believed the slaughtered Christ
Who died on Calvary,
The Carpenter, the workmen's Friend,
Was of Thy company!

"Was of Thee, O Thou rich man's God,
Whose churches every stone
Is paid for out of workers' lives,
Walled up with sweat and groan;
Whose dividends wax fat, wax great
On workmen's blood and bone!

"Such was Thy will, the Masters said;
Their fat priests bade me pray.
I must not question, must not doubt,
But bow my back each day
To grievous burdens, all my life,
My Masters to obey!

"See now my face, these toil-racked hands,
This scrawney breast and bare
A withered heart hath been my part
And locust-husks my fare.
Once, rich man's God, I prayed to Thee;
I found no answer there. . . .

"No answer found I, rich mans God,
For golden is Thy throne
And I am lead. . . ." The worked choked,
His words died with a groan.
Then Death strode through the open door
And bore him off, alone.

When, in the almshouse chill and bare
The other poor awoke,
They whispered that a corpse lay there,
And no loud word they spoke.
The worthless clay was dragged away
By cold, official folk.

Some cursed, some jeered, but no one cared
That, in the potters' field,
What once had been a human soul
Forever lay congealed;
And if God knew, and if God cared
Stands not to us revealed,
For graves be deep, and workers cheap,
And wide the potters' field.

BEING SUPPORTED.

(By Janet Fenimore Korngold.)

Thomas O'Brien was a generous man. He earned twenty-five dollars a week, and each Saturday, from the fullness of his heart and purse, he gave twenty dollars to his wife, Mary.

He kept just five dollars in his own pocket.

Thomas was a man of modest and temperate taste. His noon-d-ay lunches down town never cost him more than thirty-five or forty cents. Sometimes he economized by taking advantage of the free lunch at The Hermitage.

O'Brien liked good cigars, but at most they never cost him more than a dollar and a quarter a week. Sometimes, in a spasm of economy, he would forego the cigars and take to his pipe for a week or so.

As to liquor—Thomas was a temperate, though a social man. Not more than two dollars of his fifive ever corssed the bar in a single week.

But there was always car fare, and newspapers, and unclassified incidentals, and naturally it sometimes happened that on Thursday he would be obliged to ask his wife if any of her twenty still remained, as he needed perhaps a shave, a hair cut, a new collar or a pair of sox.

Mary O'Brien, as I have said, was given twenty dollars every Saturday.

With this twenty dollars she provided food, clothing and shelter for herself, her three children—and for Thomas.

Twenty-five a month she paid for rent. Every Saturday she secured some six dollars of her weekly "gift" safely in the clock to have ready for this monthly expense.

As for food—some weeks Mary spent eight dollars at the grocers, the butchers and bakers. Other weeks she managed to reduce her bill to six.

With from twelve to fifteen dollars spent on good and shelter each week, Mrs. O'Brien found herself with an average of six dollars a week on which to clothe five people, pay for fuel and light, purchase school books, pay doctor bills, insurance premiums, and all incidental expenses.

Occasionally, Mary shut her eyes to economy and desperately, in the face of out-standing bills took the three kiddies to a picture show.

Outside the cost of the food and shelter which she shared with the children, and the cost of her own ordinary clothing, of her munificent gift of twenty dollars, Mary spent, perhaps an amount varying from twenty to forty cents a week upon her own personal desires.

To earn twenty-five dollars a week is, no doubt, a difficult task, requiring a modicum of ability and competence.

But if it be a difficult task to earn an average income, it is a task at least equally difficult to spend an average income in such a way as to make it cover the week"s necessities for a family of five.

Under our present social system, man is wage earner—a producer of commodities. Woman is a wage spender—a buyer of commodities. It is quite certain that the proper performance of the latter task requires no less labor and efficiency than the accomplishment of the former.

Thomas O'Brien was a hard working man. He labored diligently—eight hours each day—for a weekly compensation of twenty-five dollars.

Mary O'Brien was a hard working woman. She labored diligently sixteen hours a day, as cook, seamstress, laundress, scrub-woman, chambermaid, infant nurse and kindergartner, for no compensation at all—simply for the privilege of spending twenty dollars a week upon other people.

For in the eyes of present society, a woman's work is no work at all. The endless, irksome drudgery of the domestic woman is not labor—it is "Being supported."

The ever increasing number of women wage earners is often lamented. Certain good people long for an industrial re-adjustment which will return the woman to the home.

They are doomed to disappointment.

Economic necessities forced woman into industry. She went because she was obliged to—but she will remain because she wants to do so.

She has discovered that the labor of an occupational or professional pursuit carries with it more dignity, more self-respect, more compensation and more leisure time, than her former farcial task of being supported.

TO THE GIRL.

By Freda Hogan.

To you at work—in department stores, in factories and mills, in offices or before telephone switchboards—this is written.

It is not many years since you left school to go to work to add to the family income. But the daughter of the man who owns the factory or mill in which your father works didn't leave school. She went to the state university, a college or a seminary, but not because she did better school work than you or was more adapted to a better education, but beacuse her father had money which was made for him by your father and men like him. Because her father doesn't work.

You were sorry, many of you, to leave school. Some of you had ambitions. You dreamed and hoped. You thought you might write, teach, or become an artist or musician. But the avenues of preparation were all closed to you. Your fathers hadn't money to send you away to study and you went to work.

You started work, however, with bright hopes. You planned to do a great deal with your wages, much more than you have ever been able to do. You never dreamed that the contents of your pay envelope would vanish so quickly.

All your life you have longed for pretty things, dainty dresses and beautiful ribbons. You never had the courage to ask for them when every want depended upon your father, but you expected to supply these wants easily when you began to earn your own money. But you have found a pitifully few possible.

You cannot afford dainty, pretty dresses—not even when you work hard all day. But the daughter of the man who owns the store or factory in which you work can have them in abundance, as can the daughter of the man for whom your father works.

Perhaps you have contrasted her surroundings and yours. She has lovely dresses, a beautiful home, a maid to care for her and theater and opera tickets at will. Many times your working places are not pleasant; there is dirt and nerve racking noise. And when you go home, if you live with your family, the children are fretful and perhaps mother and father are cross. They can not be expected to be pleasant when their lives are a grind which grows more exacting all the time. And when you find time for a bit of recreation or amusement you must content yourself with a visit to the five or ten-cent picture show.

You have been taught to economize, as was your mother before you. You wash, iron, press and mend your clothes after work hours. If you live alone you cook and eat and do these things in one little room. Your mother darns and makes over clothes long after the rest of the family has gone to bed.

But it has not seemed to help. Your employer accords you a lower wage and longer hours than he does your father or brother. This seems to be about your only reward for thrift and economy. You do not get ahead. It seems you work to no end.

Maybe you will get married, tho, and get away from it all. You will have some one to take care of you. Perhaps some of your girl friends have married. And how is it with them? Their struggles may be different from yours, but isn't it a struggle nevertheless?

The boy you might marry is a worker too, no doubt, and he can never be sure of the future. He can never know just how long he will be permitted to work and earn wages so that he can care for you. He never knows when the factory or mine may be shut down and even when work is steady, it isn't easy to get along. As his wife, you would meet the same round of monotonous work and worry which has wearied your mother in soul and body.

There is something wrong. We both know that. It would seem that you, who are willing to work, are entitled to some of Life's sunshine, some of the brightness and beauty. It would seem that your father and mother, who have worked hard for so many years, whose faces are full of care lines, whose shoulders are stooped, deserve something better than their round of hard labor and endless worry; something better than the dread of what the future will mean to their children when they are no longer able to work.

Socialists say to you that the wrong is fundamental, that drudgery like yours will endure just so long as men and women and girls of one class go on piling up wealth for men and women and girls of another class.

And we are organizing to put a stop to it. Your lot and the lot of your father and mother is common to us all. And we can only get away from it, can only reach something better through our united work.

We have therefore formed Young People's Socialist Leagues where the working girls can come and forget the worries of the day by enjoying a social time with others of her class; where she can learn the cause and cure of her daily troubles; and where she can help lay the stones that will build a better, brighter and happier world. Come and join us.

Under present conditions when some one invents a machine which enables one man to do the work formerly requiring three, two men lose their jobs, and the benefits all go to the owner of the machine. Under right conditions the benefits would go to all society. Every new labor-saving machine invented would increase production and instead of throwing men out of employment would tend to shorten the hours of labor. Let all the people own all the machines and then all the people will get all the benefits.

There is not such a great difference between handwork and brainwork as is commonly supposed by those who earn their bread by mental labor, for there are no brainless workers. The hand can do nothing without the active co-operation of the mind. It is the head that directs the hand, it is the hand that executes the orders of the head. The head must think what the hand is expected to do. No man can perform any piece of manual labor without thinking about it.

When the intelligent workingman stops to look around him and to cogitate analytically on his environment, he begins to realize that while all the wealth and progress of the world is of his making, his chances of ever enjoying the fruit of his labor are meager indeed. These reflections may or may not—according to his ability to think consecutively—lead him further afield, and if the spirit of manhood has not been completely crushed in him, his very sense of justice will revolt.

LOCAL, STATE, NATIONAL

Local Columbus meets every Wednesday evening at Federation Hall, 121½ E. Town St. 7:45. Secretary C. J. Welsh, 191 Belvidere Ave. Pay dues at your Branch organization or at this office, 108½ South High Street, or at meetings of Local Columbus. Attend the meetings and always see that your red book is stamped to date.

LOCAL.

The lawn fete held in Goodale park Thursday evening, June 25, was a grand success. From seven o'clock until ten o'clock the crowds came, and every one enjoyed themselves. About forty-three gallons of ice cream was sold, besides many cases of pop, buttermik and other refreshments.

The treat of the evening, however, was the magnificent address of Comrade Fred Hinkle, mayor of the city of Hamilton, Ohio.

"Socialists are charged with being dreamers," he said. "I want to call your attention to the history of a man who in his time was scoffed at and reviled because he dreamed of the time when we would have a universal public school system. I have reference to Horace Mann. Although he was considered insane in his day, yet today we find his dream has come true."

Speaking of the attitude of the Hamilton Comrades in reference to the Mexican war situation, he said: "When the war started I sent a letter to President Wilson, demanding that steps be taken to stop the war. I was backed up by the local. The capitalist press began to get funny and treat the matter as a joke, but when the war was finally stopped I told the reporters that evidently President Wilson got my letter."

In reference to the American Flag, Comrade Hinkle gave a beautiful illustration of what the stars and stripes stand for. "It stands for the idea that 48 nations are bound together in one big nation, for their mutual protection. It demonstrates and stands for what we Socialists are seeking to accomplish—the solidarity of the working class."

Comrade Hinkle is a fine young man, and is an example of the kiknd of material the Socialist movement is developing. In the hands of such men, Hamilton will be a guiding star in our struggle upward.

The Y. P. S. L. will give a lawn fete at Schweitzer's Grove, Tuesday evening July 7. Take Camp Chase car and get off at Ryan avenue. Refreshments 10 cents.

The Campaign Committee have made arrangements for a speaker at Broad and High streets every Saturday evening. So you can be there and be assured that a meeting will be held every Saturday evening at 7:30.

The Propaganda Committee has secured Comrade F. G. Strickland for a meeting to be held in Schiller park Sunday afternoon, July 12. Meeting will be called to order at 2:30.

Another big lawn fete will be held in August. The committee has secured Schiller park for August 13 and will arrange for speakers later.

FIRE 'EM IN.

Sending in four subs, and 50 cents for the defense fund, Comrade Mrs. Moody, Zanesville, Ohio, writes:

"Send the paper to these four people, who are all Socialists, only they don't know it. We want them to get acquainted with the 'real thing.' Socialist publications are about the only things the 'dear common people' have left to look to as champions in their battles for justice. Every one with a drop of red blood in their veins ought to rally to the support of 'The Socialist.'"

This is the proper spirit and is the kind of work that is going to roll up 250,000 votes for Socialism in Ohio this fall. Every new sub put on means a possible new voter this fall. Let every subscriber determine to send in a club of four this week. Help make up the deficiency in advertising by doubling your efforts to land subs. Fire 'em in!

THE LUDLOW MASSACRE.

For seven days after the massacre of the miners' wives and children at Ludlow, April 20, the state militia of Colorado made frantic efforts to conceal the charred bodies of their victims lying in the little cellars beneath the burned tents.

Ministers of the Gospel, bearers of the Red Cross, relatives who sought their dead, were diven back from the camp with curses by the armed gunmen.

Frensied with the fear that they had lit the fires of a revolution when they laid the torch to the miners' tents, the militia sought to destroy with quicklime and gasoline the ghastly human remains.

But it was too late.

The American working people were aroused.

An armed invasion of the State of Colorado for the purpose of crushing the militia was imminent and would have taken place but for the quick intervention of United States troops, bringing an armed truce.

The militia has retired to its kennels, at the Capitol, growling.

The miners are rebuilding their tent colonies, watchfully.

The labor world waits.

YOU BET, WE ESTEEM HIM.

Having been earnestly solicited by Columbus comrades to deliver an address at a lawn fete last Thursday, Mayor Fred. A. Hinkel generously donated his services.

The purpose of the gathering was to raise funds for the defense of Comrade Bates and four others who are being not only prosecuted, but persecuted, for exercising the right of American citizens. It is only another attempt of corrupt interests to oppress the people by denying them the most sacred privilege of civilized society, to present their grievances and receive justice at the hands of a judicial tribunal.

That such cases are a travesty upon justice goes without comment and until the people take an active and uncompromising attitude in defence of their rights such farces will continue in the name of justice.

Mayor Hinkel is held in the highest esteem by the Columbus comrades, and it is to be hoped that public sentiment will be so strong in favor of equal justice for all that the persecutors will be forced to slink into hiding and that in the future the rights of all will be respected.—Hamilton (Ohio) Socialist.

AMERICAN WAGE SLAVES WILL KINDLY DRINK OUT OF FINGER BOWL IN FUTURE AND AVOID CONFUSION.

ROME, June 27.—One of the most charming figures in the recent festivities here has been that of the Duchess De San Lorenzo Dampierre, who was born Princess Ruspoli of Poggio Suasa. She is a niece of Princess Eugenia Ruspoli, who was a Miss Berry of Washington. Her sweetness gives her as many admirers as her beauty, which is of the dark Italian order.

In spite of his French name, her husband is an Italian.

At a society dinner the duchess sat near a foreign lady who did not know the use of finger bowls, and solved the difficulty by sipping some of the water out of the one placed before her. The duchess noticed the horrified looks of the other people at the table; the stranger did too, saw she had made some mistake and grew crimson with confusion. So the duchess raised her own finger bowl to her lips and took a sip out of it too.

This graceful little act was much appreciated by everybody at the table.

The duchess has now gone to the Italian Lakes, in which district her husband owns a villa.—Columbus Dispatch.

LIFE AND LIBERTY.

"The God who gave us life gave us liberty at the same time." It was Thomas Jefferson who said that.

The times of Jefferson have passed, but the Steel Trust is here and this industrial giant does not care who it was that gave us liberty, but it takes the liberty away from its employes, prohibiting them to belong to any labor organization which would enable them to assist their manhood and secure the means for a decent living in accordance with the standards of modern civilization.

Neither does the starving proletarian ask for the author of that liberty, which he cannot enjoy, but he runs from door to door in search of some one willing to buy his labor power, so that he may find bread. What liberty is there for a man in search of a master who will exploit him? What liberty is there for men and women unable, though perfectly willing and only too glad, to sell themselves as it were for an opportunity to make a living?

Tell advertisers you saw their ad. in The Socialist.

The world judges you by the amount of property you have at your command. That is a very poor test, for according to it Judas Iscariot was a better man than his master. The thrifty Judas got thirty pieces of silver; but what did the founder of Christianity get? It is because we use the property test that the Judases occupy the high places, while the redeemers are crucified. If you do not believe that property should rule, then vote for humanity. The only party that holds humanity superior to property is the Socialist party.

MIGHT IS RIGHT.

Might was right when Christ was hanged beside the Jordan's foam,
Might was Right when Gracchus bled upon the stones of Rome;
And Might was Right when Danton fell; when Emmet passed away.
"'Tis the logic of the Ancient World and the Gospel of to-day."

Might was Right when Spartacus went down in a sea of blood,
And where the cummune perished in the self-same crimson flood;
And Might was Right at Cripple Creek, at Tampa, Homestead—yea.
"'Tis the logic of the Ancient World and the Gospel of to-day."

Might is Right when children die by thousands in the mills;
When jeweled hands reach down and take the gold their blood distills;
And Might is Right when maidens give their love-dreams up for pay.
"'Tis the logic of the Ancient World and the Gospel of to-day."

Might was, is, it e'er will be the One and only Right,
And so, O Hosts of Toil, awake! O working men unite!
Unite! Unite! For Might is Right; 'tis freedom's only way—
"'Tis the logic of the Ancient World and the Gospel of to-day."

Yes Might is Right, and Might well have
When each to all united stand:
Then Jubilee will be proclaimed,
And Liberty throughout the land;
When Might of God and right of man,
Will join in thatclose closing day
Then Might indeed shall be the Right,
And Love and Truth shall come to stay.

The first two hours you work, feeds, clothes and shelters you and your family twenty-four hours. The other six, eight or ten hours you work goes to the boss to feed, clothe and shelter him, and to further enrich him so that he can the easier make you work these six, eight or ten hours daily for him without pay. Why do you do it? Study Socialism. It would abolish the boss and let you work longers than two if necessary, and you wanted to, so you would get a better living, but you'd get its products and not the boss.—See?

Socialism does not aim to make all men equal. It purposes only to give all men equal opportunity to toil and retain all they make.

ADVERTISING

We would like once more to urge on our readers to support our advertisers. With the present "psychological" hard times, and its resultant curtailment of expenses, "The Socialist" is hit harder than any other paper. This condition could be turned into profit for the paper if all our subscribers would insist on buying only from those who advertise in The Socialist. Not only can this be done, but hundreds of merchants all over town who have been getting your patronage could be persuaded to advertise if you would speak to them about it.

Have a talk with your grocer, butcher, milk man, ice man. Get their adv. and watch the columns of the paper and make all purchases from advertisers.

THE SOCIALIST

A Weekly Newspaper Without a Muzzle

Vol. IV Whole No. 186 COLUMBUS, OHIO, JULY 11, 1914 Price, 2 Cents per Copy

THIS PAPER is published in the interest of the working class. If you think it is worthy of your support, support it by getting new subscribers. If you don't like it, don't knock. We are making it as good as you will allow. Whenever the workers support their own press as valiantly as they do the master's press we will be able to do really big things for the emancipation of the workers. In the meantime, we are forging ahead conscious of the fact that our cause is just, that right will finally triumph, and the workers step forth emancipated from the age-long servitude to a robber, master class.

ZIMPFER SOUNDS KEYNOTE

Socialist Candidate for Congress Makes Magnificent Address, Before Immense Audience at Parsons and Jenkins Avenue, Thursday Evening, July 2nd

WHAT IS WRONG?

Every one, rich, poor, old or young, all know that something is wrong. What is it? Just this! Capitalism has brokekn down, gone on the rocks and has outlived its usefulness.

Capitalism is very sick. We have tried all sorts of remedies but nothing seems to help it. Allopathic, Homeopathic and all other so-called progressive remedies have been tried but capitalism is getting sicker all the time.

Dr. Republican gave you high tariff and under high tariff monopolies got larger and more powerful all of the time and the workingman's dollar got smaller all the time.

Then comes along Dr. Democrat and gives us low tariff and prices keep on going up, and the workingman's dollar is getting smaller than ever, and in all of the large industrial centers where there is work wages have been reduced on an average of 50 cents per day, and although the new low tariff went into effect October 1, 1913, statistics will show that almost everything has increased in price, but not in weight.

Under both Democratic and Republican administrations things have been getting worse all the time, millions of men have been unemployed since last fall and there is no relief in sight. In England there is no tariff. In Germany there is high tariff. Others have tariff for revenue only and all are in the same boat. Wherever capitalism is, the same conditions exist to a greater or less degree, and what are we going to do about it? Are we going to let it go on this way for all time? In spite of the desperate efforts of the capitalist press and our President of the United States telling us that there is no depression and that it is merely psychological, we have it with us!

The smash of the Lorimer banks in Chicago and the $40,000,000 Claflin stores in New York, and the four Siegel stores of New York, depriving thousands of depositors of their savings, these are bigger crashes than heralded the great panics of 1873 and 1894. Capitalists excuse these as exceptions due to rascality and "bad business" judgment. They blame the meddling politicians, the ignorance of officials or the exorbitant demands of labor, but Socialists who understand and see beyond the industrial system of today know what is wrong.

WHEN LABOR RECEIVES WHAT IT PRODUCES THERE WILL BE NO MORE PANICS.

Today the United States is harvesting a record crop. All the forces of nature have worked for the good of man. There has been neither war nor pestilence, drought nor flood. Thousands of mills stand ready to change the raw materials into forms that will satisfy human wants. Millions of men are ready to operate those mills, while millions of women and children are suffering for the lack of those very things machinery and human labor are capable of supplying.

In the midst of this muddle of misery the most scholarly President we ever had stands and mumbles that the trouble is only "psychological." This means that times are not hard, you only think they are.

If the President would accompany me for a day through this city, where the working class live, and note how they live, he might change his mind. Some have no work at all, some are on half time, and most all of them are running into debt. They are being shut off by the storekeeper and they are being compelled to go without necessary food for themselves and families.

The business man is up against it about as bad as the workingman. He has lots of accounts he can't collect because when the workers don't work they can't pay, and when they can't pay then the business man can't pay his accounts, and so it is an endless chain of calamities along the line.

A friend of mine went into bankruptcy Tuesday after having been in business fifteen years. He worked hard, was very careful and saving and now he hasn't one cent left, and lost everything he and his mother had when he started in.

A system that makes paupers of honest hardworking working and business men and makes millionaires of drones is unjust and wrong and must be destroyed and come to an end.

Do you find any panic in the postoffice? Do you find any panic in the Parcel Post? Do you find any panic at the Panama Canal, or in our school system and all other social institutions? No, you do not. And when we take over all of the industries as the Socialists propose then there will be no more panics and not before.

Nothing stays the same, we must go either backward or forward. To stand still is impossible; it is against all nature. In this age of industrialism and materialism we are producing, even under this system of anarchy, more than we need if it were properly distributed.

The man who works hardest gets the least, and lives in the utmost poverty, while the parasites who are too lazy to work and who never work out the problems and inventions in the factories which they control, get all the wealth and enjoyment out of life.

What are the property owners on High Street doing? They have doubled the rent from Rich Street to Chestnut wherever the leases expire, and who foots the bill? You, Mr. Workingman. Every workingman must help pay this outrageous increase in rent. Every time you buy 5 cents' worth of goods you are charged a certain per cent. of that rent. Do you think that the business man stands it? No, certainly not; he tacks it on the price of goods and we pay for it, and where does this money ygo? It goes for riotous living, trips to Europe, to Florida, new touring car or two at the most extravagant prices, a new dress for wifey every night in the week, the same dress is never worn twice, and when you meet these snobs at their social functions they would not wipe their feet on you working class people. I know, I have been around them for years. Even our honorable Governor whom you all think is so "democratic," wouldn't ret[illegible] time of day to you workingmen when he is out in society.

But whose fault is it? Don't blame the parasites, they know you, Mr. Workingman, not only in this generation but in all [illegible] from ancient Roman history to date and still whenever one of the candidates for these parasites is put up you vote for him and whoop her up. But, I see a great change taking place. Some of the working people are waking up and asking themselves, WHAT AM I GETTING OUT OF ALL THIS? And then they start to think.

I know it hurts some people to think at first, but after they get used to it they rather like it, and later derive a real enjoyment out of it.

Gibbon, the great historian, said "The German's, excepting the women and children and old men, along the years of 225 A. D., were called 'barba-

10.000 MEANS VICTORY

"The Socialist" is going to use this, the most valuable space in the paper, to have a heart to heart talk with you comrades and friends and sympathizers out on the firing line.

The subscription price of "The Socialist" is 25 cents for 40 weeks in clubs of four or more. Single subscriptions 50 cents per year. This price was made after the insistent demand of hundreds of comrades who felt that $1.00 per year was too high, as the working class from whom our support comes, can scarcely afford to pay so much at one time.

After mature consideration we decided, that if we could secure a circulation of 10,000 we could afford to put the paper out at 25 cents for 40 weeks.

With supreme confidence in the loyal supporters of the paper, we launched on the new venture some eight months ago. At the same time the policy of the paper was changed and it became more aggressive, more determined to fight to the last ditch the enemies of the working class. The result was that our circulation began to boom, and there has been a steady increase from several hundred subscribers to several thousand at the present time.

Our aggressive policy, however, got under the hide of several of our heaviest advertisers with the usual result that they withdrew their advertising patronage. This did not swerve us from our course, however, as we continued to expose corruption wherever we found it.

Our circulation continued to climb, and as long as this continued we were safe, even if advertisers did withdraw.

The profit on a 25 cent subscription is very, very small, yet with a circulation of 10,000 it will be sufficient to make the paper self-supporting, and that is what we want to talk about.

July and August are always the slackest times in the newspaper business. From now until September it will be a hard struggle, unless you comrades turn the tables. And you can do it. Let us employ this time putting the circulation up to 10,000. This for a two-fold purpose.

First, that "The Socialist" may weather the storm, and second, that we may deal sledge hammer blows at capitalism, during the last days of the campaign, and not be compelled to use space asking for aid.

There are many comrades and sympathizers who cannot take subscriptions, but are willing to help. For the benefit of all such comrades, we wish to say, that we have a list of all the farmers in Franklin County and if you wish to send in $1.00 we will put four of them on for 40 weeks.

There are thousands of subscribers all over this county and state, and all that is necessary to land them is to speak to them about it.

WILL YOU HELP TO PUT THE CIRCULATION UP TO 10,000? Will you do it? This is not for the benefit of any individual, it is for the benefit of our own class—the workers.

Ten thousand circulation means Zimpfer goes to Congress. It means that the workers will have representation in the next Legislature. It means that the day of deliverance draws nearer and nearer.

See how big a bunch of new ones you can land next week. Thousands of you new subscribers have never turned in a subscription. Try your hand at it. Our forefathers had to take a gun. You don't. Use your greater weapon—education and the ballot. Let every one make a desperate and determined effort, next week. Start things off with a bang and keep it up, and when the circulation has reached 10,000 we will spread it all over the front page of the paper, and throw such a scare into the capitalist politicians that they will start up "Salt Creek" to return no more.

Saint Rockefeller has increased the number of guards to protect his worthless hide in his home. There were four, but now there are eight, with the addition of a bull dog. It is said that the dog is ashamed of his job.

A reformer who stands with the master class would simply make new and stronger shackles for you.

The coal oil standard of Standard Oil in Colorado is more powerful than the Stars and Stripes. Does Rockefeller own the nation that the flag represents? Let the flag worshipping patriots answer.

When the capitalist parties promise to serve the workers, they should be made to say whether they will serve them "raw" or "well done."

Oh, you "Psychological" hard times.

But then it's great to be crazy.

Taft said, "God knows"; Wilson goes him one better and says you're not hungry when your belly tells you you are. You only think you're hungry.

Send in a club of 4 new subs. 25c for 40 weeks.

Socialism is needed to save the country from actual starvation.

The miners keep the world warm and live in a cold shack.

Capitalism speaks all languages—and bosses the workers in all of them.

Democracy means literally a rule by the people. Republicanism means in the original a rule by representatives of the people. Socialists on the other hand, advocate a complete political democracy, and a complete industrial democracy as well. The people are to have absolute control of the industries as well as of the government.

Business is becoming more up to date every day. It is now declared that white slavers inject poison into the veins of their prospective victims, and as a result they lose consciousness and are marketed without protest.

Social-democracy has nothing in common with the so-called state socialism, a system of half measures dictated by fear and aiming merely at undermining the hold of Social-democracy over the working classes by petty concessions and palliatives. Such measures Social-democracy has never disdained to promote and approve, but it accepts them only as small installments which cannot arrest its onward march toward the regeneration of the state and of society on Socialistic principles. Social-democracy is essential to revolutionary; state socialism is conservative. As such they are irreconcilably opposed. —Liebnecht, in speech at Congress in Berlin, 1892.

Every person who does not believe in Socialism is an industrial anarchist. This may appear to be a broad statement, nevertheless it is true. Any one who votes the old party ticket votes for capitalism which is a painless, chaotic and anarchistic system which should be buried.

WORKERS BELIEVE A CROOK BUT STONE AN HONEST MAN

Socialists have been for years telling the people that there was only one logical way to solve the railroad problem, and that was "government ownership."

We have been, of course, treated to the usual amount of mud slinging.

Our real "respectable" people raised the cry that we were "anarchists," and the best that could be said about us was that we were crazy.

The cry of these "eminent respectables" was at once echoed by a servile and boneheaded working class, who always allow the "eminent respectables" and the politicians to do their thinking for them, as it was very fatiguing to think for themselves.

When, however, a confessed crook and wrecker of railroad systems, such as Mellen, former president of the New Haven system, testifies before a congressional committee "that the only solution of our railroad difficulties is government ownership," we find all the "wise ones" sit up and take notice. "Brainy man!" "That's It!" etc., are the expressions one hears from the same crowd who have been slandering the Socialists for advocating the same thing.

It is a peculiar fact, though true, that the American people prefer to take and follow the advice of confessed crooks and liars rather than that of honest men, which undoubtedly accounts for the election each year of numerous old party politicians.

Truth from the mouth of Socialists is anarchy. The same thing from the mouth of a deposed R. R. President, who is sore and wants to get back at the people who froze him out, is "pink pearls of wisdom." Verily the American people are one huge jackass.

Why not demand that the government run a bank which does not pay interest to bankers?

The time the workers spend in hunting jobs, would suffice to build homes for every family in America.

More people are tired of capitalism than most of us have any idea, but as their favorite newspaper or magazine helps them to remain in ignorance, it is up to us to spread the light.

When the school bell rings there are millions of children of school age who do not respond. They are answering the factory whistle instead. Did you ever stop to think why?

A thing is true or untrue of itself, no matter who denies or affirms. A fool gets mad. A wise man analyzes and explains. The truth is knowable to those who seek.

WILSON AND MORGAN TALK "REMINISCENCES"

The "new freedom" [illegible] Glass Company, grace of the Henry Dubbs of this country sits in the White House [illegible] odically hands out "pink pearls of wisdom" for a gullible working class to swallow, has been at last discovered. "We now know what the Prof. meant when he talked about his "new freedom."

The discovery came about when we read the following significant news dispatch July 2nd:

"President Wilson and J. P. Morgan of New York, head of the big banking house of J. P. Morgan & Company, held a lengthy conference at the White House today."

The dispatch went on to say that Morgan's face was wreathed in smiles when he emerged from the President's office. "I had a most cordial visit," he said as he jumped into a waiting taxicab.

Now let the American wage slaves throw their hats in the air and cheer lustily. What has been going on secretly heretofore is now done openly. Big business no longer needs to play the game of being "against the Wilson administration," because the servile working class have shown that they will plaud for any insult and indignity the Plunderbund wants to heap upon them.

Yes, throw your hats and cheer. Wilson's "new freedom" is about to dawn, and that "freedom" IS THE RENEWED CONTRACT BETWEEN BIG BIZ AND THE WILSON ADMINISTRATION TO ALLOW BIG BIZ TO CONTINUE TO SKIN THE WORKERS.

And how gullible are the workers. They swallow bait, hook and line. They actually believe Wilson's statement after the interview that, "We were only talking reminiscences, as we have known each other for a long time." It seems that Wilson, the college Prof. and eminent church member, is also an adept at lying. He expects YOU to believe that. And some of you WILL believe it. Nevertheless it is a lie. The President of the United States stoops to lying to cover up the dastardly alliance between his office and the office of J. P. Morgan, labor hater, and labor crusher.

This is the "great" Wilson with the mind of a child, who at the Baltimore convention was touted as the real genuine simon pure "trust buster." This is the "lickspittle" who now licks the boots of the haters and crushers of labor, while children of the workers starve and rot and die in unsanitary tenements, and foul cellars.

This is the Modern Nero who, secure in the thought that his army and navy are ample to crush any uprising of the workers, "fiddles while Rome burns." This is the same puny, contemptible coward who first got down on his knees and appealed to our industrial king, Rockefeller, Jr., to stop murdering women and children in Colorado. In place of using his army to arrest this assassin, and try him for murder, he rushed this army to Colorado to break the miners' strike.

To think that with thousands, aye millions of men out of work in this country, after practically all the reforms promised by the Democrats have been enacted into law, and STILL the wheels of industry refuse to revolve, that there are still individuals who believe that Wilson is doing something for the people.

During the campaign preceding Wilson's election a political discussion took place in one of the business men's clubs in this city. One man, a lifelong Republican, spoke up and said, "I am going to support Wilson. These damn working men are getting too independent. The Socialists are getting too strong. Wilson will give the ——— four years of empty stomachs which will cure them of their independnece."

WAS HE RIGHT?

When men grow discontented with their condition they are on the way to realising a condition with which they will be satisfied. Discontent, dissatisfaction with present conditions and a desire for better. It breeds radicalism. Radicalism will lead to Socialism.

A Denver man advertised that he will sell himself as a slave in order to obtain employment by which he can live. And this under a progressive Democratic administration. No slavery would be possible under Socialism. Do you know why? Read The Socialist 40 weeks and it will tell you why.

A capitalist politician says the workers can live on 75 cents per day per family if they will "purchase intelligently." They won't need to live on 75 cents per day if they will vote intelligently.

If we were wise we would unite our forces to war against the common enemy of manking instead of frittering away our time trying to get the best of each other.

DEMOCRATS AND FOOL DEMOCRATS

We noticed last week in one of our daily papers that James Cox, Democratic Governor of Ohio, was in Washington working for the rejection of some of President Wilson's appointees on the Reserve Board and incidentally for the appointment of his Republican friend, Harry Wolf, on said board.

This is no doubt an attempt on the part of the Governor to recompense the Wolves for the service they have rendered him (politically and otherwise) through their papers (Dispatch and Journal) and also to assure him of their support in the coming campaign. They (the Wolves) have supported him, on the grounds that he is giving the people a "good business administration." What do we mean by good business? According to the ethics of modern business, the most successful business man is the ONE WHO CAN LEVY THE MOST TRIBUTE OFF HIS FELLOW MAN, and not the one who renders a great service.

That Captain Kidd was a greater pirate than any of the competitors of his day we all agree, but he is but a mite as compared with the present day pirates. We cannot agree as to the above code of ethics being right, but believe it should be "He who renders the greatest service to mankind ought to be the greatest man." But we find men of the Cox and Wolf stripe calling such men fools.

This brings us to a point where we have two kinds of Democrats and probably many more kinds of Republicans. We have the business Democrats and the fool Democrats. The business Democrats are those who are Democrats for "revenue only," and the fool Democrats are those who are their aids and allies, without getting any part of the swag. Which of these classes do you workingman belong to? Don't tell us that you are not injured by the levying of tribute as you are the producer of all wealth and the burden of any tribute must rest on your shoulders.

As long as they, the capitalist (Coxes and Wolves), can keep you fool Democrats fighting the fool Republicans and vise versa, they, the business Democrats and business Republicans, can have easy sailing. During the next few months you will see the business Democrats and business Republicans will make all kinds of pretenses at fighting each other for the sole purpose of keeping the workingmen from thinking of the real issues. If a burglar enters you rhouse and steals a loaf of bread or a pound of meat (there is no danger of his stealing a whole ham from the home of a workingman) you are not going to waste your time in discussing whether he was a Democrat, Republican, Bull Mooser or Socialist. You know you have lost the eatables. As long as the workingmen are content to be robbed, what difference does it make to them whether they are robbed by a Democrat, Republican or Bull Mooser?

What the workingman needs most, is to stop the game of piracy, or [illegible] profits come from the producers of wealth and they should band [illegible] this [illegible] which they must bear if [illegible] said [illegible] cannot do this, just remember that your father was a Republican or a Democrat and whoop her up for the old party, vote 'er straight and remain in slavery the rest of your days.

RAILROADERS, WHERE DO YOU STAND?

Last fall and winter when the railroads began to lay men off on account of depression in business, the public had the assurance from the officials that it would only be temporary and that within a few weeks all would be put back to work and all would be well. Some seven or eight months have elapsed and we find the condition worse now that it has been at any time.

It is true there is hopes of it brightening up a little, but the men who are only working two days a week can stand many more days' work before it is near normal. How about the thousands who were laid off in December and have not yet been taken back? If you have been one of these you know the terrors of unemployment. If you had a little savings from your former employment and have seen it dwindle to nothing, you can begin to see the great advantages of the private ownership of the means of distribution. Unless you have been able to take some other man's job from him, you have been idle for seven months with but little prospects of your old job back.

Suppose the work on the roads doubles with the resumption of the mines, it will only give those who are working two days a week, four days' work without offering any hope for you. HOW MANY MAIL CARRIERS WERE LAID OFF HERE LAST WINTER? NOT ONE. HOW MANY WERE REDUCED IN PAY? NOT ONE. Why? If it was necessary to lay men off on the railroads on account of a depression in business, why was it not necessary to lay the mail carriers off for the same reason? There must be a reason why these things happened as they did. This being the case is it not your duty to yourself and family to investigate?

When you learn that the railroads are owned and controlled by private interests, NOT for the purpose of accommodating the public, but for the express purpose of making money, and the postoffice is conducted by the government for the benefit of the public, you will be getting on the right track.

If the railroads were owned and controlled by the people do you believe you would have been laid off to starve? Would you not have received as good treatment as did teh mail carriers? Do you believe the postoffice employees would vote to have the postoffice revert to private ownership? Are you going to continue voting for the private ownership of railroads and other collectively used utilities, or are you going to vote to give yourself the same protection as Uncle Sam's employees?

If you believe, Mr. Railroad Man, that you should have the protection for yourself and family they deserve, is it not your duty to support the party that can and will give you such protection? YOU HAVE BEEN LAID OFF UNDER BOTH DEMOCRATIC AND REPUBLICAN ADMINISTRATION. Has capitalism asked which party was in power when it suited their convenience to lay you off?

HAD A SOCIALIST PRESIDENT BEEN IN POWER WHEN YOU WERE LAID OFF, HE WOULD HAVE DECLARED THAT THE LAYING OFF OF SO MANY MEN WAS A MENACE TO THE BEST INTEREST OF THE COUNTRY, AND IN THE DEFENSE OF THE LIFE, LIBERTY AND HAPPINESS OF YOU AND WIFE AND CHILDREN, WOULD HAVE HAD A RECEIVER APPOINTED FOR THE RAILROADS AND PUT YOU BACK TO WORK.

They frequently do this in defense of property rights. Then why not do it in defense of human rights? Is property so much more sacred than the lives and happiness of our wives and children, that we must continue to support the parties that place property above human rights?

Let the two million railroad men answer these questions by their votes this fall and if they answer them as they should, the old party politicians will fall over each other in their attempt to do something for the railroad and other workingmen.

But, if you fail to answer correctly, then you should not complain of the treatment accorded you. THE POWER IS IN YOUR HANDS, WILL YOU USE IT?

On With the Good Fight!

WHERE DO WE COME IN?

WE have sold the battleships Mississippi and Idaho to the Greeks and got twelve million hard, cold dollars for them. Hooray!

Now WE will go right ahead and build a "superdreadnaught" with the twelve million. That is, we'll use it as far as it will go in building one. "Supers" are costing about fifteen million these days, and the price is continually rising.

It was an excellent stroke of business for US, and the Greeks are also jubilant. Case of mutual benefit on both sides, as all such deals naturally are.

The Mississippi and Idaho are not new ships; neither are they very old. They are not "junk" by any means.

WE simply got rid of them because they are not "efficient" enough to kill the kind of people we expect to kill. They were once, but now now. WE want "superdreadnaughts," and "super-superdreadnaughts" if such things can be evolved.

But they are all right to kill Turks with. That's what the Greeks want them for, and what they bought them for. They're quite good enough for that, because the Turks themselves haven't got anything better in the line of murder.

The Turks protested loudly, of course, against the sale. Not against killing as a general thing, to be sure, but against the Greeks getting the means to kill them.

But the twelve million dollars talked louder than the Turks. Money always talks the loudest, as everybody knows.

Yet behind the twelve million dollars there was another voice, the voice of millions of American, Greek and Turkish workingmen.

They said, "Go ahead with the sale. WE will do the killing, and we'll stand to be killed. We'll work these murder machines and sink, burn and destroy each other without limit."

Or, if they didn't say it in so many words, they kept silent, and their silence was taken for consent. Quite properly, too.

If it were not for the consent of the workers of all three countries, the Mississippi and Idaho, instead of selling for twelve million dollars, would just fetch their value as scrap iron, and no more.

And that goes for the dreadnaughts and the superdreadnaughts and the super-superdreadnaughts as well. If the workingmen of all countries would not stand for killing each other, the greatest warships on every sea would instantly become mere junk.

So in this sale, WE, the workingmen, really provided the twelve million dollars. And our share of it will reappear in another and bigger murder machine, in which we will have the privilege of killing other workingmen and permitting them to kill us. What can WE ask fairer than that?

What are WE, the workingmen, anyhow?

Well, WE are simply an asset—valuable things, and things that give value—as in this case. That, and nothing more.—New York Call.

SOCIALISM AS A BUGABOO

About the only stock in trade left for the radical politicians in all countries is to shout "The Socialists'll git you if you don't take us." That was the real platform upon which Roosevelt ran for President.

It is the platform upon which Wilson is now running. That threat is the whip with which he drives Congress.

As Michael E. Burkak of the Second Disconsin district, expressed it in Congress the other day: "Let these special privileges which are opposing these bills reflect that at this time they are choosing between the beneficial purposes of this proposed legislation on the one hand and Socialism on the other.

"If you don't let us bust your trusts the Socialists will take them away," shouts the Democratic politician. "If you don't let us 'regulate' you the Socialist will eat it," cries the La Follette politician in Wisconsin.

"If you don't let us run the city the Socialists will win," screams the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association in Milwaukee.

Lloyd-George is singing the same song in England. Bethmann-Hollweg joins the chorus from the German reichstag. Briand made his last campaign and was licked on the same issue in France.

Socialism has 'em on the run, clear round the globe.

Every year several thousand more people are turning round to have a look at the dragon. Having looked they cease to be frightened and soon are running with the Socialists.

Few of those who use Socialism as a bugaboo ever try to tell what terrible thing would happen if Socialism came. Most of them could not tell anything about it if they tried. The most hopelessly ignorant person on Socialism is the politician or editor who uses it to frighten people.

The only person that is more ignorant is the one that is frightened.

To the Socialist, the most amusing thing about all this is that it never works. In every country where these tactics have been tried Socialism has grown with swift upward leaps.

The politician would know this if he ever remembered anything. But a capitalist politician who still talks about regulating and destroying the trusts does not have a memory. If he had a memory he would remember that the trusts eat regulators and "busters" and thrive on them.

He would also know that a man or a party or a system that depends upon a bugaboo for existence is resting on a mighty thin foundation.

"There in't no sich animule."

Socialism is something very different from a bugaboo.—Milwaukee Leader.

FIREMEN WORKING FOR THE COMMON GOOD

Ding dong; ding dong. The fire bells ring. All is hustle and bustle around the city engine houses. Hardly a minute has elapsed ere the department is on the way to the fire. Every man is at his post. There are no blunders. Each worker has his part to do and does it systematically and well.

Last Sunday afternoon a big fire broke out down in the center of the city.

Amongst the workers whom we pay to protect our homes from fire there was no confusion. Every man amongst them had every faculty on the alert to catch the signals, keep the engines working and doing his share to fight the common enemy.

It was an inspiring sight to see these custodians of the city's safety fighting for the common good.

NOT A MAN AMONGST THEM REFUSED TO WORK FOR FEAR IT WOULD "DESTROY HIS RELIGION." NOT A WORKER AMONGST THE FIREMEN SEEMED TO THINK THAT IT "WOULD BREAK UP HIS HOME" BECAUSE HE WAS WORKING FOR THE PEOPLE. In fact they worked like the very devil for the very reason THAT THEY WERE WORKING FOR THE PEOPLE, and were held accountable by the people who pay them.

The fire department is socialized. It is owned by the people. No one would vote for a private individual to own our fire department. If they did it would be a sure sign of imbecility. And yet thousands of citizens will go to the ballot box each year and vote for the private ownership of our industries, which cause more deaths, and property loss in one day than fires do in a year.

The next time you see the fire department making a run to protect the common good, just remember that that is a socialized institution; that the men in the service are all efficient; that they all get good pay; that because they are working under a minor Socialist system; that they "DO NOT lack incentive," that their homes are NOT broken up, because they get twice as much pay as you Henry Dubbs; that they don't get fired when times are slack; that they get a vacation each year with pay.

AND DON'T FAIL TO REMEMBER THAT MOST OF THE FIRE LADDIES ARE SOCIALISTS AND ARE VOTING FOR THE COLLECTIVE OWNERSHIP OF COLLECTIVELY USED INDUSTRIES.

WHAT DO YOU SEE?
By Mark Time.

Have you ever wondered how adequate your vision of the Coming Time is? Have you ever soberly set yourself to picture to the full the glories, the great, impressive artistry of the Life to be lived in the Tomorrow?

Does the coming of Socialism mean simply to you a work day of but four or five hours? Does it mean to you just a guarantee of a job? Does it mean to you only a more secure existence? Or, with these things, do you picture the Morning of Mankind something as Philip Green Wright visioned it when he wrote:

Art shall revive when men shall do for joy
And not for hire; all labor shall be art,
And art shall be man's labor in that day.

Somehow, the song of this poet brings breadth to the vision; it brings that soul satisfaction without which the Dawn cannot be complete. If not all of us can picture it in just that way it is because the terrible wrenching and grinding of Today has chocked the music in us and blinded our eyes to the beautiful; because the strain of the struggle has deadened our souls to the inspirations that come with liberty.

But after we have rested a bit in the Budding Spring we shall awaken again to the strong, deep strains of music that run through all labor and bind all humanity. 'Tis strange, perhaps, that we turn back the pages of Time's Writing for proof, but, strange or not, we find it there. In the wonder creations of the workingmen of old, the unbound men who wrought in song before money gripped the world, we find the choicest soul expressions of all time. It was then that were fashioned the most beautiful structures; the cathedrals that cause wonderment among us today; the fabrics that our Money Masters bring to decorate their homes in preference to the slave creations of today; the deathless sculpture and canvasses; the classic lines of Goth and Greek in stone, after which we can model, but upon which we cannot improve, though millionaires strew their dollars to the world's ends in search of brains for hire; it was then that mankind created most beautifully.

Oh, Morning of the Morrow, bring us a chance to work, bring us security against want, bring us here and there a rest time and a play time, but above all, surmounting all, overshadowing all, bring us LIFE. Let us turn loose our souls and let us sing into our daily work the songs that have been crushed back into us for lo, these many weary ages. Bring us LIFE, oh Tomorrow! Then will we show to the gods what a world we can build!

Our work whensoever and whereso-ever we would do good, is to open to men the gates of life.—George D. Herron.

And this freedom will be the freedom of all. It will loosen both master and slave from the chain.—Edwin Markham.

Lo, before us gleam her campfires! We ourselves must Pilgrims be.—James Russell Lowell.

rians,' were addicted to gambling and excessive drinking, both of which vices by different means, the one by inflaming their passions, and the other by extinguishing their reason, alike relieved them from the pain of thinking," just the same as the majority of the working class today. But the joke on the Germans is not so great because they are today thinking harder and clearer than any other working class in the world, and they are even making the Kaiser think. He has not drank any liquor for ten years and is giving his officers strict orders on drinking and gambling to excess.

The Social-Democratic Party went on record for sobriety for the workers instead of enriching liquor and brewery trusts, and in one year cut the consumption of beer 50 per cent., which gave the worker a clearer brain and a bigger pocketbook with which to fight capitalism, with its war jingoes and monovolies, with its endless chain of parasites.

I am not preaching prohibition, but sobriety; any one who wants to study Socialism and understand it must have a clear head. We are unlike other parties where the leaders do all the thinking and the rank and file do the voting. Our success depends upon the rank and file doing the thinking.

I pointed out some of the evils of the present system of anarchy in production and distribution, and I wish to give you the remedy. Of course my answer is Socialism, but that term is too general, and if you will be patient I will give you details.

First, government ownership of railways. The government would run the railways for the people, instead of for profits.

As a candidate for Congress I think the most important question for the immediate demands of the people and the Socialist party is government ownership of railways. I know that government ownership of railways is not Socialism but it will be one of our first questions along the evolutionary process to solve. The railways are the largest monopoly in this county and are more corrupt in private hands than any other monopoly, on account of the enormity of wealth and power concentrated in a few men's hands. After the railways have been taken over there will never be such a depression in railway shops, steel mills, steel casting mills and other industries depending on railways as at present. Do you imagine for one minute that the government would have a lot of broken rails and cars and poor safety devices? Not on your life! If you are familiar with the practice of the United States government you know that every safety device would be used and all equipment would be up to standard and kept there. When I was out in San Francisco my brother took me around the Presidio where the army is stationed, he showed me where an old type disappearing gun was being taken away and replaced by a later model, and it was pointed out to me that that old type gun was very efficient, that a target about as large as a barrel was shot to pieces at a distance of one mile from the short, so you can see by the way the government has been operating the army, the navy, the postal service and many other projects such as the Agricultural Department, the Department of Commerce, etc., that the United States doesn't do anything by halves. Now you know what would happen if the government would get busy properly equipping the railways. Every steel mill would be busy day and night for years to come. It would not take the government very long to find out that it is being robbed by the steel mills, then the government would take over the steel mills and run them.

Oh! you say, the steel mills would not rob the government. Well, let's see, in 1904 the government was buying lots of armor-plate for our battleships and the Carnegie Steel Company made a contract with the government for $616.00 per ton and the same steel company was selling it to Russia at the same time for $249.00 per ton, a difference of $367.00 a ton or more than double, and yet Carnegie calls himself a great patriot. I got these facts from the Congressional Record.

You will admit that our government was skinned out of at least $367.00 per ton for armor-plate, as I don't think that the great Carnegie Steel Company would make it for less than cost to Russia.

When the people find out how well government ownership of railways and steel plants succeed, the next thing to be taken over would be the mines, and in this manner the different industries would be taken over one after another until our industries and means of distribution will have been all taken over.

Now there are a lot of people who will say, "That sounds all right but it won't work out in practice." Well I will say this, that the United States is the only large civilized country in the world which does not own its railways. Germany, France, Italy, England, all own their own railways, and none of them have ever gone back to private ownership again.

How many here would want to have our parcel post system sold to the express companies again? I'll bet there isn't one in this large audience who would stand for it. As for the government tackling big things, what's the matter with the Panama Canal? The government finished this stupendous job before the estimated time and at a less cost than estimated and this all where private enterprise failed utterly.

One little example of what Socialism would be like can be shown by the illustration of a little city of South Germany, Klingenberg, of 1700 inhabitants; they have a lot of fine clay deposits around the city but instead of selling it cheap to some enterprising capitalist, the city took over all of this valuable natural resource and the city, after paying every one who works in these clay fields good wages, pays each inhabitant who was born there, a dividend of $400.00 per year. Of course that would be foolish in America, for if we would get a dividend of $400.00 we wouldn't know what to do with it; we might buy ourselves a home or some other foolish thing like that, but to work for starvation wages is all right because that keeps up our "incentive."

After having served as Councilman for two years as a Socialist, I will say that we Socialists are more free to practice individualism that are officials of the old parties. There are a lot of good men elected by the old parties but no sooner are they elected than they are tied hand and foot and no matter how good their intentions are they are helpless.

One of the charges against Socialism is that it would kill individualism, but after having studied the matter and with the experience I have had I find we aid individualism instead of hindering it.

I haven't much patience with a union man who works hard in his union and must surely observe how things are going on the whole and after knowing all these things and trying to get every one to work under union shop conditions the same as the Socialist party is striving for, scabs at the ballot box on election day.

I do not blame the parasite or the shirker for not voting the Socialist ticket but I really think a union is either crooked or ignorant to vote an old party ticket. I have been a union man many years and although I know it does not accomplish all we desire it has worked for the best interests of the working class, but under this system of capitalism, its money and many other forms of exploitation, unionism will not be able to get what the working class ought to have by any means.

When the boss raises your wages through a strike he immediately raises the price of his goods and that is done in every line of business and the result is that you pay more in proportion for the necessities of life than your raise has been, so you do not live as well or save as much now as you did before. It is only another one of the many tricks that are being worked off on the working class.

Another joke of the present administration is trying to fool the people by making them believe that if the "Interlocking Directorates" are abolished it will make all monopolies good as angels. What difference does it make who is the director in a company if I own the stocks and bonds? All I need say is, here, Mr. Attorney, you be my director and don't forget I want to have 12 per cent. this time instead of 10 per cent., and if you don't produce I'll get another director. So you see it matters not who is director as long as there is no change of ownership we will have the same evils with us always.

When the vote came up in Congress the other day to reduce the mileage graft from 20 cents per mile to 5 cents OUR MR. BRUMBAUGH DID NOT VOTE AT ALL AND HE WAS THERE, TOO. HE WANTED THE GRAFT BUT WAS AFRAID TO VOTE FOR IT, SO HE DID NOT VOTE AT ALL.

Another thing I would not do is to make foolish, flowery "Columbus Day speeches" and frank it through the mails at a cost of $50,000 to the government. If I couldn't do the people any real good I wouldn't say anything at all. What has Brumbaugh ever done? He hasn't got enough nerve to select a postmaster for fear it will make some one mad.

WITH THE ASSISTANCE OF THE SOCIALIST PARTY I WILL PUT THE TWELFTH CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT ON THE MAP IF ELECTED.

ON TO CONGRESS!

Comrades of America:

The hour has come to strike for a Socialist delegation in the next Congress.

The election of one Socialist Congressman in 1910 gave our cause a tremendous boost. It not only enabled the party to introduce Socialist measures in the House of Representatives, but also to circulate these measures as propaganda matter.

The election of Bergar was a surprise party to the nation.

Since that time, however, conditions have changed. Socialist sentiment has grown tremendously throughout the nation, and there are now at least five other districts besides Berger's where there is a chance to win, and probably others. There is one in Chicago, one in Minnesota, one in Kansas, one in Oklahoma, one in California, with good chances in Nevada. Conditions may change still more before November and still other districts be brought into the column of possibilities.

Ours is the only great nation in the world in whose Congress the working class is not represented. All Socialists everywhere else concentrate their efforts at campaign time on electing representatives to legislative bodies.

Such positions are of tremendous importance. It is time that we in this country rouse ourselves and do likewise.

Our opportunity was never so great as now. The Republican Party is hopelessly split. The Democratic Party will have to apologise to the people from the hour the campaign opens till its close.

The tariff has not reduced the cost of living. It has done nothing for labor.

The Democratic Party has pitiably failed to make good, as witnessed by closed factories and idle men.

The tide is all our way. We simply must take advantage of it.

The comrades in these hopeful districts are doing their utmost straining every nerve. A boost from the national may be enough to turn the tide of battle into victory. Shall we fail them at this crisis?

And now, comrades, our success is a matter of FUNDS!

If you respond to the call for ONE DAY OF YOUR WAGES the party will be supplied with the SINEWS OF WAR.

The first need is for literature. This literature should be in the form of timely leaflets. Printing rates are now hammered down to the point where we can buy in million lots at a low rate.

Two thousand dollars to spend in literature will give us five million campaign leaflets. Another $500 will pay the express. In other words, $2500 will enable us to place a million pieces of literature in each of five congressional districts.

Two thousand five hundred dollars more will enable us to allow five hundred in cash to each district for a smashing finish.

Another thousand will pay incidentals.

There you have it. Six thousand dollars will turn the trick.

The state and county organizations will get half of the funds which means that twelve thousand dollars must be raised.

An average of $2.00 each from six thousand comrades will do it.

There are a million Socialist voters.

There are a hundred thousand party members.

Are there SIX THOUSAND out of the host who will come across with a donation of one day's wages?

On the answer to that question depends the success of our effort to send a Socialist delegation to Congress.

The wage fund blanks are now in the hands of every Socialist local in the nation.

July 15th is the day fixed before the payment of these contributions. The time is short. Act promptly. And if this call reaches you too late for you to get in on that date send it NOW—as soon as possible.

What we do in the campaign depends on WHAT YOU DO NOW.

Make it a special order of business at your next meeting.

Make it your special business to see that this is done.

"MOTHER DOES NO WORK."

A growing boy has obtained a job—his first—and was boasting about the amount of work he did.

"I gets up at half past five and has my breakfast," he said.

"Anyone else get up, too?" he was asked.

"Oh, yes, mother, she gets me breakfast when she gets dad's at half past six."

"And your dinner?"

"Oh mother gets that, too, and then she gets father's."

"Has she the afternoon to herself?"

"Oh, no; she cleans up, looks after the children and gets tea for dad and me when we come home. Then we gets our smoke, and then we gets to bed."

"And your mother?"

"Well, she does a bit of sewing, then, when all is cleaned up, after tea."

"What wages do you get?"

"Oh, I get four dollars and dad gets ten."

"And your mother?"

"MOTHER? Oh, she don't get no wages; she don't do no work."

A friend sent a picture of a luncheon recently given to a number of dogs "by their mistresses," and suggested that the phrase, "a dog's life," as expressive of misery will have to be revised. Perhaps the worst human condition can be better expressed by a "worker's life." Who wouldn't prefer to be some people's "poor Fido" today in preference to "a free American voting king?" Free to quit your job, but not even to starve, for if you don't get a new job you're liable to be arrested, imprisoned and felonized for vagrance. Nice, isn't it. Study Socialism.

There will be color in the life of everybody when Socialism opens the gates of prosperity.

Things Have Changed

Little Miss Progressive had paid an afternoon call upon her new neighbor across the street, who had not been very generous in sharing her toys, from all accounts.

"Well," said her mother in response to her remarks, "if anybody had treated me like that when I was a little girl I should have gone home."

"Umph," returned the small woman with a shrug of her shoulders, "things have changed since you were a little girl, mother' I slapped her face and stayed."

The workers must be made conscious of their interests, and this education can only be accomplished by members of their own class.

"At first the capitalistic code of production forces out the workers. Now it forces out the capitalists, and reduces them, just as it reduced the workers, to the rank of the surplus population, although not immediately into those of the industrial reserve army."—Frederick Engles.

Rev. Bouck White, according to a decision on appeal to Judge Malone, of the New York General Sessions in New York, will have to serve six months on Blackwell's Island because he had the hardihood to interrupt the services by attempting to question the pastor of Rockefeller's Calvary Baptist Church in that city on May 10. Michael J. Woolman and Mary Woolman, who were visitors at the church with Rev. White and attempted to protect him from the assaults of plain clothes cops, were also sentenced to six months each in jail. White had the audacity to endeavor to call the attention of Rockefeller's preacher to some passages in the Bible that dealt with such affairs as the Colorado situation, but those particular references in "the Book" are not very popular with the hypocrites whose business it is to defend modern wage-slavery and ease the conscience of the master class. So White is now keeping company with criminals of every sort because he dared to question the rule and ruin policies of King Rockefeller. And still some people wonder why workingmen don't go to church!

Senator Sees Labor Awakening

That there are some men in the United States Senate who realize that a revolt of the working class is possible at any time is shown in some communications received in this office from a United States senator. We do not care to make his name known at present.

In answer to a communication regarding the Colorado strike he says:

"I note what you say in regard to the situation in Colorado, and absolutely agree with you that it chills the heart and soul of a human being to see these innocent women and children absolutely butchered as a prey to the Moloch of greed."

In talking of a resolution to investigate the Michigan strike, which was introduced in the Senate, he makes the following comment:

"The frowns, the supercilious contempt, the scornful disdain of the Senate which the resolution met, was a painful thing to me. I was sorry to see senators who I felt were humanitarians and of honest impulse, so conservative in the matter of looking into a question where human rights were involved."

When it was pointed out to him that the attitude of the senators was due to their class position, that there were classes in the United States and that the working class was apt to any time rise in revolt, he answered:

"I note your discussion of the economic situation, and also note your view as to the fact that the working class which has been exploited so long will not much longer in patience consent to be further exploited. In many of these great questions, I am entirely in accord with your views."—Party Builder.

Robert Wheeler, the fighting Socialist Commissioner of Allentown, Pa., is giving battle to the whole rotten city administration. Wheeler is in charge of the Waterworks Department and has issued a pamphlet showing how Big Bis and its political whelps are hampering that institution. Heretofore local banks have also had easy graft, and doubtless divided with their political poltroons, by acting as depositories for city money without paying interest. Wheeler raised such a row that the banks finally agreed to pay 3 per cent on deposits. Then the Socialist Commissioner jabbed into the queer methods that obtain in other departments and challenged Mayor Ring to appear upon a public platform to meet Wheeler, and when the latter went ahead with the meeting Ring was arrested for speaking upon the streets without a permit. The Socialist Party and Trades Council are standing solidly behind Wheeler and it is announced that the fight will be continued until the old politicians are all driven from power.

The rich in Great Britain are swearing somethink 'orrible, the reason therefor being that Lloyd George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, proposes to not only materially increase the land tax, but also advocates making it more expensive for the persons of quality to die. The plutes are howling that it's "socialistic confiscation," dontcherknow, because George wants to take from 15 to 20 per cent from their estates when they die and leave from $300,000 to $5,000,000 behind. In fact the action of the Chancellor, in attempting to, in a small way, relieve the burdens of the poor by making the rich pay something for their enjoyment and protection, is arousing the ire of some of our own American plunderers, who say that the Britisher is setting a very bad example, which is likely to be initiated here.

Although the Progressive Party has an old age pension plank in its platform, the Pro. members of the Massachusetts Legislature voted down a bill to give the aged workingmen in that state a pension. Morrell, the Socialist member, worked and voted for the bill. The Progs. evidently look upon the "social service" promises in their platform in the same light as does George W. Perkins, the chairman of the party's National Executive Committee, who is responsible for the "welfare" schemes adopted by the Harvester Machinery Trust and the United States Steel Corporation, the most notorious anti-union concerns in the country. Anything to humbug the working people is the slogan of the bosses.

Big capitalists and politicians in Wisconsin are worried. They charge that in the University of Wisconsin, because some real truths are taught the students, "the seed is being sown which will develop its men and women into Socialists in the course of time." It's too bad, maybe, that the hoary old theories and fictions of a bygone age are not retained.

Another slap has been delivered to the Socialists of Schenectady by the Tammany administration of New York. The Public Service Commissioner has decided against the city in its fight for six street car rides for a quarter, as the Socialists had demanded when they were still in power. The report stated that a decision in favor of the city might be interpreted "throughout New York, and perhaps over a large area, as the equivalent of a warning to private enterprise and capital that these are not particularly wanted any longer in the street railway field." In other words, he believes such a decision might have a tendency to lead to municipal ownership.

Many lives have been lost and much property has been destroyed by the cave-ins during a storm in Paris last month. The occurrence has been made the subject of a governmental investigation, the Socialist members in Parliament having charged that public authorities granted extraordinary privileges to favorites in doing excavating and that inexperienced non-union labor was employed on the jobs. Before the incident is closed another Cabinet or two may be overthrown.

Although the late strike in Italy led to premature proclamations of a republic in a number of cities and towns on the part of workers embittered toward the monarchy and its noble leeches, and those revolts were speedily suppressed by the soldiers, the spirit of republicanism is not only dead, but is growing in all parts of the country. The Socialists and unionists are, of course, the principal advocates of a republican form of government, but there are also many radicals among the middle class who are in complete sympathy with the movement and promise to give it their support in the future. The Socialists are insistent that political efforts to overthrow the monarchy must be exhausted before force can be considered, and the struggle in Parliament will be continued more vigorously than ever.

It is reported from Washington that the conference between the two state Socialist organizations, at which mediators from the National Committee S. P. were present, was a success and that conciliation will result as a consequence.

WORKERS USE YOUR FORESIGHT

The working class voters have often proved that they show much better judgement and common sense in removing men from office than they do in electing persons to fill those positions. In other words, their hindsight is decidedly better than their foresight. When a party in either state or nation has proven itself unresponsive to the wishes of the working people, when the rights of the workers have been ruthlessly trampled under foot, the working class voters have been quite willing to show their resentment by kicking from power those who have been responsible for the betrayal of the workers. But the voters have invariably made the mistake of voting one set of capitalist politician out of office and voting another tribe in, and so, year after year, election after election, the workers have found whether the Republicans or Democrats were in the saddle, the capitalist was always master of the situation and the wishes of the master class was always the first and last thing to be considered.

It does seem that by this time the voters of the working class should have realized the uselessness of expecting any material advantage to accrue to their class by supporting either of the old parties. They have seen the cost of living mounting higher and higher under Republican rule; they have seen that the Democratic party was absolutely powerless or unwilling to stop this upward rise in the price of the necessities of life. They have seen thousands of able-bodied men clamoring for employment and unable to obtain it while at the same time Republican politicians were endeavoring to persuade the voters that were enjoying an era of unexampled prosperity; they have seen this vast army of the unemployed tremendously increased during the present Democratic administration. What are they going to do about it? The elections of next November will furnish the answer.

To a greater extent than ever before the workers have lost confidence in the capitalist parties, and if we use all the energy at our command to the education of the great mass of the working class voters we shall surely see the results of our labors on the first Tuesday of next November.

Only when the profit system in industry is destroyed, will life itself become profitable and desirable.

ADVERTISING

We would like once more to urge on our readers to support our advertisers. With the present "psychological" hard times, and its resultant curtailment of expenses, "The Socialist" is hit harder than any other paper. This condition could be turned into profit for the paper if all our subscribers would insist on buying only from those who advertise in The Socialist. Not only can this be done, but hundreds of merchants all over town who have been getting your patronage could be persuaded to advertise if you would speak to them about it.

Have a talk with your grocer, butcher, milk man, ice man. Get their adv. and watch the columns of the paper and make all purchases from advertisers.

THE SOCIALIST

A Weekly Newspaper Without a Muzzle

Vol. IV Whole No. 187 COLUMBUS, OHIO, JULY 18, 1914 Price, 2 Cents per Copy

THIS PAPER is published in the interest of the working class. If you think it is worthy of your support, support it by getting new subscribers. If you don't like it, don't knock. We are making it as good as you will allow. Whenever the workers support their own press as valiantly as they do the master's press we will be able to do really big things for the emancipation of the workers. In the meantime, we are forging ahead conscious of the fact that our cause is just, that right will finally triumph, and the workers step forth emancipated from the age-long servitude to a robber, master class.

BIG CROWD THRONGS SCHILLER PARK

F. G. Strickland, the Peerless Working Class Orator Holds Thousands Breathless, While He Stirs Them With the Spirit and Fire of the Revolution.

Last Sunday afternoon our Fred—Comrade F. G. Strickland of Dayton—spoke in Schiller Park at 2:30, and in our hall at 7:45 P. M. The largest crowd ever assembled at a political meeting in Schiller Park gathered and for two hours enthusiasm ran high. Time and again as Strickland drove home salient points the cheering and applause was deafening.

Taking up the matter of Comrade Bouck White, Author and Preacher, who is now serving six months in jail for entering Rockefeller's church in New York, Strickland said that the Church of the Social Revolution of which White is Pastor, is founded on the fact that Jesus was a working man and stood with the working class as against the rich exploiters of labor. He is of the opinion that it is bound to grow until churches of this class are established in every community.

In the evening at Socialist Hall, 121½ East Town Street, Strickland took up the Miners' situation in Colorado. "Who are the rebels against this government?" he asked. Not the miners. It is John D. Rockefeller, Jr., with his hired thugs and assassins. When the miners struck, they made eight demands from the Rockefeller interests. Five of these demands, including an eight-hour day were already state laws. The Rockefeller interests rebelled against the state government and refused to abide by the laws put on the statute books. They are above the law.

Continuing, the speaker said when Abraham Lincoln freed the black slaves it was a question of the ownership of human bodies, and he issued his Emancipation Proclamation which solved the problem of ownership. The issue in Colorado is the ownership of the mines. President Wilson can solve the problem by another proclamation freeing the mines from private ownership and making them public property owned and managed by the people, but he is unable to do this as he is in the position, as he told the suffragetts, "I can go no farther than my party."

The Democratic party can give the workers no relief as its campaign fund is furnished by the private corporations who exploit the workers.

There will be no Emancipation Proclamation written on behalf of the Working Class until we organize and vote into power a political movement of our own.

The meeting at the park in the afternoon was so large and enthusiastic that $18.00 worth of subs. were sold to The Socialist, $8.00 worth of literature disposed of, and $13.00 collection taken up.

This is a criterion of the way things are going all over the county. Not in three years has there been such a demand for literature, and so much enthusiasm displayed. A little hard work on the part of every one and Zimpher will land in Congress, and the Court House will get a cleaning out it has long needed.

WOULD YOU CALL THIS A GOOD WAY TO MAKE ANARCHISTS?

The Signed Statement of Arthur Caron, the Dead Anarchist, Made After He Was Brutally Beaten Up by New York Police.

Arthur Caron is dead, but before he died he made a statement that is a terrible indictment of the New York police system and the methods of that system. Arthur Caron was an anarchist when he died. He was not always an anarchist. There is no indication that he was an anarchist before the experience related in his signed statement, made after his arrest during the labor protest meeting in Union Square, on Saturday, April 4, 1914, a copy of which is in the possession of Police Commissioner Wood. Caron's statement, the only word from himself that throws any light on what may have been his psychology, or his intent, or his feeling toward organized society, is as follows:

I started to leave Union Square a few minutes after the first speaker introduced by the chairman of the meeting had begun to speak. There had been no disorder and I did not expect that there would be any. I intended to go down to Rutgers Square, where we expected to have our usual meeting. A young lady who had been standing in the group with me in front of the speakers' stand walked with me through the park southwest toward Fourth avenue and Fourteenth street. We came out on the sidewalk about Fifteenth street, and as we walked down I saw the police with upraised clubs rushing the crowd back.

I ran across the street to the east side of Fourth avenue, just north of 14th street, and saw Joe O'Carroll covered with blood, the blood streaming from his wounds in his head, surrounded by uniformed and plain clothes men with clubs and blackjacks upraised. I saw Becky Edelson standing over Joe trying to shield him from the blows of the police. I tried to get to her, but the police rushed the crowd back and I was driven back with them into the street. The police dragged Joe up Fourth avenue toward 16th street and I followed with the crowd. Near 16th street a plain clothes man whose number I afterwards found to be 744, rushed at me with his shoulder lowered, striking me in the shoulder and spinning me around.

Struck with Blackjack.

At the same moment I was struck by some one with a club or blackjack in the back of the head and two plain clothes men grabbed me. I looked around to see who hit me, at the same time trying to straighten my hat on my head, and a plain clothes man whose number I afterwards found to be 9400, and who had his blackjack in his hand, hit me on the left side of the head. Another officer grabbed my right arm and twisted it up behind my back, at the same time pushing my shoulder, and I got a smash on the shoulder with a policeman's club.

The blows came from behind. I cried out, "For Christ's sake, stop hitting me," and I got another bang with a blackjack on the back of the head and one of the officers said: "You bastard, take that." I was so dazed then by the blows that I was helpless and could not tell whether I was in 16th street or 17th street. As I was dragged along they kicked me in the calves of both legs and I was either kicked or struck with a club in the thigh. I was taken in an automobile that was waiting and in it I saw Joe O'Carroll sitting beside Officer No. 744. There were other plain clothes men on the running board and some in front. I was thrown into the automobile and as I stumbled in No. 744 said: "You bastard, we've got you now," and struck me in the face.

Smashed Him in the Face.

I fell on my knees with my head in Joe's lap. I tried to get up and I got another crash in the face and No. 744 said: "You—— —— lie still." I raised my head again and he smashed me in the face, crashing in the right side of my nose, and then I was struck again in the back of the head. I don't know who hit me then.

As I went down I remember Joe O'Carroll reached down and patted my cheek and said: "Poor Caron, poor boy—Jesus, you're getting it awful."

The next thing I knew I was dragged out of the automobile and into the police station. When we got inside we were given a shove and told to go over and sit on a bench by one wall. I was made to sit at one end and O'Carroll at the other. The plain clothes men then discussed what charges they should bring against us.

One of them pointed to O'Carroll and said: "That's O'Carroll; we'll charge him with striking an officer and resisting arrest." Officer No. 744 pointed to me and said: "What'll we charge that big bastard with?" The other fellow said: "Charge the —— with trying to take him away from the police and yelling, 'Kill the bastards.'"

"We Got Them."

Then they made us both wash the blood from our faces and necks and hands. They took away O'Carroll's collar, which was soaked with blood. Then they took us before the desk and made the charges against us, with one of the police officers who was in the lead dancing and saying merrily, "We got 'em."

We were locked in separate cells. About 8:30 we were taken out and taken up to the 57th street police court in a patrol wagon. In the patrol wagon were Joe O'Carroll, Gans, Adolph Wolf and several others. We were taken into the court pen. This was the same pen I was in after the visit to the Church of St. Alphonsus on March 4. We were taken out of there after a while to an anteroom off the courtroom, where we stayed about ten minutes, when we were taken back to a bench near the pen and made to sit down.

Officer No. 744 pointed to me and said to another officer, "What do you think of the job I did on that big ——?" They stood around us and No. 744 said, "If you —— —— —— have any revolutionary spirit in you why don't you go over to Ireland and fight for home rule? You bastards, you; you ain't got enough guts to fight in your own country; you've got to come over here and make trouble." Then he pointed to me and said, "We ought to have shot you, you ——. I could take any one of you and kick the God damned belly off of you."

Threatened Anarchists With Death.

One of the other boys, I don't know his name, was standing near the door and was told to go down to the end of the bench. He did not move fast enough and No. 744 grabbed him by the collar and rushed him along, saying: "You'll get the same as these other fellows if you don't move faster, you bastard." This man pulled out a note book and pencil and took No. 744's number. No. 744 said: "It won't do you any God damned good to take my number. That's as far as it will go." Then O'Carroll, Wolf and I started talking in French. Officer No. 744, looking down at O'Carroll, called O'Carroll a bastard and told him if he didn't shut up he'd take him out and shoot him, or shoot him when he got him out. I don't just remember. He said also to O'Carroll: "It ain't too late to give you a God damned good beating like we gave this fellow here, you Irish bastard," pointing to me.

They continued to make jeering and insulting remarks about us until we were taken back into the anteroom and then into the court. We were arraigned before the magistrate and then taken back to the cells until we were bailed out.

(Signed) ARTHUR CARON.

[New York Call]

THIRD ANNUAL FESTIVAL

Thursday evening, July 30th, Local Columbus will give a Grand Lawn Fete at Corner West Broad Street and Martin Avenue. This affair is for the benefit of The Socialist. The committee is arranging for a big affair. Comrade Carrie Allen of New York City will be the principal speaker. All money raised at this Lawn Fete will be used to put subscribers on the sub. list out in the farming district of this county. Refreshments of all kinds will be on sale, and every one will have a jolly good time.

The city is bankrupt, the Socialists did it—NOT.

Were Socialists in power in place of a deficit, there would be a surplus, because Socialists don't believe in graft.

The Democrats promised to reduce the high cost of living. They did it. They put thousands in paupers' graves, so that they don't have to eat any more. Moral—Under capitalism you're better off dead.

[illegible] enterpr[illegible] Capitalist will arise and say, "Well if you Socialists don't like it go die." We might, but it's more fun, just sort o' hangin' roun', watching you labor skinners squirmin'. We've got your goat, and will proceed to tie it in our back yard in November.

Mellen cut a melon, but from the indications at present it wasn't ripe. Most of the plutes who sat around the stolen melon, seem to be troubled with the cramps. The Socialist recommends a strong dose of government ownership of railroads as about the proper remedy.

The Rail Light is laying T-rails in State street, where their franchise says they shall lay grooved rails. In the meantime Sam Kinnear, Director of Public Service is backing them up in their position.

Of course it would never do to allow the city to own the Rail-Light, because, don't you know, that would be Socialistic, and liable to bust religion into smithereens, crack the home, and raise the very devil in general.

If the city owned the Rail-Light, the income from that utility alone would be almost enough to run the city without further taxation, allowing the fare to remain at 7 for 25c. We could reduce the fare to 15 tickets for a quarter and have just as good service as now. The Rail-Light is now run in the interest of profit mongers, and must pay dividends. Under Socialism it would be run for the people and not for some lazy parasite to use its profits flirting in Europe with diseased royalty.

Don't forget July 30th at W. Broad and Martin. The Socialist will have a big spread. Comrade Carrie Allen of N. Y. City will be the speaker.

John Bonehead do you intend to make an infernal mule of yourself again this fall? You have tried the Reps., you have tried the Dems., you have also flirted with the Progs. Now wake up and vote your own ticket and start on the road to somewhere.

The Columbus Citizen that "bulwark of liberty," says that times are very prosperous in Columbus. The fool-killer will get that sheet yet.

Bonehead here's a tip on how to get wealthy. Go out tomorrow or next day (better wait until Monday) and start a trust. Then have the Demo-[illegible]nistration [illegible] bust an[illegible] and regulate you. First see to it that you are the administration however, by putting your own tools in office. Then when it comes to busting, you can bust yourself. See? It's easy.

Newspapers report a bumper crop. The wage slaves will get their share in the form of a crop of bumps on their cocoanuts, delivered by big bix, through the medium of a policeman's club.

You have been taught by the masters that Socialism is a horrible dragon, and you have been running away from it, without ever stopping to look around and see for yourself. Stop dead still, turn around and look at us—the dragon.

You are surprised. We are just people, aren't we? Now come on, we press forward with you in our ranks.

The Socialist, 25c for 40 weeks in clubs of 4 or more. You are going to help us boost the circulation to 10,000. Of course you are. Send in a club of 4 next week.

The masters nominate two, or three sets of people who will represent them and let you take your choice.

The trouble is Capitalism makes those it called "inferior" bear the burdens of the world while the "superiors," like brutes, merely look on and sneer.

It is recorded in the Bible that God made the earth in six days, but nowhere is there any record that He made it exclusively for John D. and his class.

If it was intended that the workers should live in the slums and amid unwholesome surroundings, they would not have been given the sense of smell.

GLASS WORKERS SHOW CLASS SOLIDARITY

Rochester, Pa. July 16—[Special to The Socialist].—The American Flint Glass Workers in national convention showed their class solidarity by their unanimous vote to put up $3000 cash bail for Comrade Fannie Sellins, who has been in jail at Fairmont, W. Va., because she helped to organize the West Virginia miners.

She was placed there by the mongrel cur who goes by the name of Judge Dayton, whose removal from the Federal bench has been asked by 10,000 people in his district. This capitalistic cur has been charged with practically every judicial crime possible, and yet the Wilson gang allows him to remain on the bench.

The action taken by the Glass Workers is one of the grandest moves ever made by organized labor, and shows that each day by passing day brings organized labor and the Socialist party closer and closer.

A. W. Rowe, the President of the Flints, upon being informed of the situation at once lined up for the aid of the miners. Mr. Zimmer, organizer for the Flints, who is stationed at Pittsburg, got into communication with Van Bittner of the Mine Workers, who came to Rochester on Wednesday afternoon and stated the case for the miners, the convention at once voted to go to the aid of Miss Sellins and Van Bittner left the convention hall with a check for the bail. This action of the Flints is a recognition of the principle that an injury to one is an injury to all.

It is practically conceded that Organizer Gillooly, who is at present stationed in Columbus, O., directing the strike there against the Federal Glass Company, has the strongest backing for Vice President. Gillooly is a resourceful and hard [illegible] and the ginger he injects into the workers on strike finally means success.

GOING TO CONGRESS

It's in the air, this cry, "We're going to Congress!" For months it has been echoing over the land, in big cities, in little burgs, at crossroads, wherever there is a Socialist meeting place or a pair of Socialists to pass the time of day.

This cry has grown among Socialists until it is the one big thing they talk about and work for. The Socialist party of America is determined to GO TO CONGRESS. It is going about the campaign work as though there were not the remotest chance of being kept out of Congress when the votes are counted this fall.

Ohio plans to be counted in on this migration to Washington. Franklin County also plans to go to the Legislature officially. Ohio has nominated its candidates—Socialists who will know what to do and when to do it when they get to the Legislature and to Washington.

The people have tried almost every kind of political experiment under the sun. They have sent Democrats and Republicans and Moose to Washington—and they all play the same game. The people are learning a lot of things very rapidly just now. Calumet and Trinidad have helped them some. But the universal machinations of the System have done the work, for the most part. The people are coming to understand the WHY of a lot of things. And their conclusions are that Socialism is the one hope of the race. As a beginner, WE ARE GOING TO CONGRESS this fall. And it is the duty of every Socialist in Franklin County and in Ohio to see that some of the Washington delegation comes from Ohio!

GO TO THE PRIMARIES

August 11th we must go to the primaries. While it is true that we will have no contest on, yet it is the solemn duty of all the workers to go to the ballot box and vote at the primaries.

The primary election is a sort of gauge of what to expect at the regular election. Let us not make such a poor showing as we did last year when we only polled 324 votes at the primaries. Go to the polls August 11th just as religiously as if it was the regular election. Ask for a Socialist Ballot, and put a cross-mark before every name on that ballot.

We should have at least 1500 votes at the primaries. That many will scare the old parties, and they will sit up and take notice.

Remember August 11th and march up and vote the Socialist ticket.

ON THE ROAD TO 10,000

We are going to have that 10,000 subscribers. The boys and girls are on the job.

The past week we have enjoyed the best returns from subscribers for some time. At the Schiller Park meeting 73 subscription cards were disposed of. Now put them all on the subscription list, and get the dollar to work, and then buy more cards.

Do you know what 10,000 circulation means? It means that we will carry the county "in spite of the devil and high water." Never was there such an opportunity to land subscribers as now. Let us all work together and scour the county for more subscribers. If every subscriber would turn in just one new subscriber next week we would have reached the goal.

It is this systematic co-operative work that counts. All aboard for 10,000. That's the goal and we won't let up until we get it. That circulation will make the paper self-supporting. Help put Franklin County on the map. How many will you turn in next week?

The Socialist position in brief is: Nobody but the workers can help the workers—or in plain slang: "It's up to you" to help yourself.

A WORD FROM THE ORGANIZER

In looking over the books and application cards of Local Columbus I find that there has been some 2700 people that have been in the local in the last four years. Now we have only about 300 members on the books at the present time. These are the ones that are in good standing, the others have just laid down on the job. I will admit that some have left town and a few have died, but the majority have just quit their work.

Now, comrades, this is your fight. IT is to give your children and your children's children the opportunity for a better life that this fight is carried on.

You have laid all the work on the shoulders of a few and you do not seem willing to do your share, as shown by staying out of the organization.

You are practicing Sobatoga on your own organization. It is Sobatoga of the worst kind, for you are throwing the wrench into your own machine and hurting something that belongs to you and is working for you.

Every human being of normal mental powers has way down in the bottom of his or her heart the desire to do some good to his fellow man. A desire to help them obtain better material life. Now I say those that are normal in their mental makeup. There are some who are not willing to help his brothers and I believe that he is not a fit person to be at large. Now those that wish to help are hindered by the environment that they are placed in.

We Socialists say we can change that environment and make it better. We cannot do it unless we all work together. If you believe that Socialism will give humanity a better chance at life and you want to help your fellowman then there is only one thing for you to do and that is to get into the Socialist party and help with the work. If the party does things that is not to your liking it is your fault, for you should voice your sentiments in the party and not criticise those that are doing the work when you are on the outside. Get in and have a say and then perhaps the mistakes that are made will not be made so readily.

We have approximately 3000 class-conscious Socialists in the city of Columbus and only 300 in the organization. Now I want to know how the 2700 unorganized Socialists could register a protest in the fall election if the organized Socialists had not put the ticket in the field. If you have something better than organization to do the work I would like to hear about it. Maybe we are on the wrong track; if we are you have committed Sobatoga again, for you should have been with us to help show us our mistakes.

Now you comrades that are not members of the party let all of you get in the organization and carry the message of SOCIALISM to our brothers that are in utter darkness.

The time was never so ripe as now to sow the seeds of SOCIALISM. The more we sow the more we reap. With a 1000 well organized Socialists in Franklin County we can carry our message to every man, woman and child in this county and also send Comrade Fred P. Zimpfer to Congress this fall. Other districts are going to send their representative to Congress, why not send ours?

Just rember Calumet, West Verginia and Ludlow. Now then our capitalist papers say that troops are wanted in the Ohio mining districts. If they go there what is to hinder a repetition of Ludlow? Think this over, comrades, and see if it is not worth 25 cents a month to help educate the people that collective ownership and democratic management of the things collectively used is the only solution to our industrial strife.

If you agree with this send me your name and address and I will mail you an application blank, which you fill out and send to me with 25 cents for your first months' dues.

We need your help in this great movement.

Are you a Sobatoger or a worker? Which is it?

Yours for the Cause,
WALTER I. DAVIS,
Organizer Local Columbus,
121½ E. Town Street.

AN OPEN LETTER TO "THE COLUMBUS CITIZEN"

Dear Sir:—In the issue of "The Socialist" last Saturday, July 11th, we published an address by F. P. Zimpfer, Socialist candidate for Congress from this district.

In this address Zimpfer charged that the working class of this city, due to Wilson's "Psychological" hard times, were in dire straits. He pointed out the cause and gave the remedy. He said that "when labor receives the full product of its toil there will be no more panics."

In your home edition that same evening, evidently in reply to that address, you ran a front page article, headed, "Figures Show That Columbus Is Prosperous."

In your article you quoted a few of the representatives of big business, to prove your claims. You attempt to make it appear that Columbus is prosperous while the balance of the country is going to the demnition bow-wows. This of course is done for the purpose of stimulating advertising, which we note has been wofully short in the columns of Columbus capitalist papers recently. Merchants are refusing to advertise because about 15,000 men are out of work in this city at present, and business men are not "psychological" enough to "pour their money down a rat hole."

Evidently your coffers must also be feeling the strain, so something must be done.

In the same issue we note that you have decided to now "accept" political advertising, for lo, verily, politics have been purified, and your lily white hands will not be soiled with handling the filthy lucre filched from the blood and flesh of working men and working women, and their children, by crooked politicians.

No, times are not hard, and yet YOU are compelled to get down on your knees and beg the slimy old party politicians to use your columns for advertising purposes. If times are so good why soil your columns with such trash? Will you answer?

In closing, "The Socialist" makes you this proposition: If you will detail one of your reporters to accompany one of ours, they to dress up in ordinary workmen's garb, and then start out and go from factory to factory and look for a job we will stake our reputation that they won't land a job in a week.

Will you back up your "news item" with practical investigation? Either you will accept, or stand before this community branded as fakers of the deepest dye.

The people are entitled to know the truth. Kindly let us hear from you at an early date.

Respectfully yours,
THE SOCIALIST.

On With the Good Fight!

WIPING OUT THE UNIONS.

By Eugene V. Debs.

When the United States Steel Corporation, known as the Steel Trust, was organized some twelve years ago, the question of the menace of organized labor was being discussed by the board of directors, when John Pierpont Morgan, now Saint John, brought his clenched fist down on the table before him, according to the report, and bellowed with rage, "By God, we'll wipe organized labor out of existence," or words to that effect.

Events which followed in rapid succession proved that Morgan meant what he said. The Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Plate Workers was then a powerful union. It was soon reduced to a wreck and has never since been able to recover. The Lake Seamen's Union was next attacked and met with the same fate. Then followed the Bridge and Structural Iron Workers and now it is the United Mine Workers.

This in brief is the campaign of slaughter, ruthless and relentless, waged by the Morgan Steel Trust and the Rockefeller oil monopoly upon the labor unions of the United States.

There is to be no quarter shown until organized labor is practically wiped out, as Morgan swore it should be, and these colossal combines, piratical and soulless to the last degree, are the absolute masters of the situation.

That is what the miners of Colorado are now up against, and it involves not only the life of their organization, but the life of every other labor union.

The slaughter of the unions was determined upon from the start by the Morgan-Rockefeller interests, and the war now being waged in Colorado upon the United Mine Workers is the culmination of a series of onslaughts which have left ruin and desolation in their wake, and if now the union of the miners, the most powerful of them all, can be smashed, the victory of the Standard Oil Company and the Steel Trust will be practically complete and organized labor will lie prostrate and helpless beneath the iron hoof of its heartless conqueror.

The most powerful exploiting interests in this nation, the interests represented by Morgan, Rockefeller and Wall Street, are all bent upon winning out in Colorado. They are keenly alive to the issue involved there and are determined to strike the death blow to organized labor in the United States. If the miners are beaten there, and the United Mine Workers is crushed and demoralized, it will mean that labor has no right to organize, that a labor union is a conspiracy, and that wage-slavery is the only status of the workingman recognized by the law.

For these reasons the war of the trusts upon the unions in Colorado is war upon the whole labor movement, and every union man should stand by the miners and every labor union support them financially and otherwise, if only from sheer instinct of self-preservation.

The railroad men can end this war in Colorado within 48 hours if they will but do it. Let them proclaim to the world that they are with the miners and that the operators must settle with them or the traffic of the state will be paralyzed.

The railroad men have the opportunity in this crisis to strike the blow for their class that will become historic. The strike may be won without them. But with them it cannot fail, and the victory will be both speedy and complete.

WILL THE RAILROAD MEN STRIKE THE BLOW?

TO THE COMRADES IN BELMONT COUNTY.

By H. A. Schultz, Secretary Local Finance.

Comrades, the time for united action in Belmont County, as well as elsewhere, is at hand. We have an opportunity this fall to smash every old party slate in this county to smithereens. They are hopelesaly split and we have them on the run, they admit it. In 1912 there was a total of about 18,000 votes cast in Belmont County. Of these 2575 were straight Socialist votes. There are nearly 3500 Socialist votes in this county this fall. There are four tickets in the field. Judging from the past state elections there will not be over 13,000 votes cast this fall, perhaps not over 12,000. With four tickets in the field, we having about 3500, could, with an extra effort on the part of each one, sweep the county for Socialism this fall. Is this not worth striving for? Will you do your share? It is up to the comrades along the river from where we are the most numerous, to settle and forget their personal squabbles, and unite at the ballot box. We have the strongest ticket in the field this fall we have ever had, and if we fail to win we can blame no one but ourselves.

Push the Columbus Socialist in this county, send for a bunch of subscription cards. It is the best propaganda paper we have in the state and the most valuable for us at this time, as it publishes more state political news than any other paper and needs your help NOW. Let us have a good representation at the meeting in Bellaire, July 26th, and organize a progressive county organization. Let us add Belmont County to the red column this fall.

IT CAN'T BE DONE

A History of Impossibilities
By Ed Meyer.

CHAPTER I.
(Stone Age.)

Stone Hammer—Look at that crazy gink over there.

Sheep Skin—Wot's he up to?

S. H.—Oh, he's loony. He says it's nonsense to run after a deer in order to capture it. He says he can take a hickory stick, a strip of rawhide and another short stick with a sharp stone on one end, and a feather on the other end, and then send that second stick after the deer and get him! Can you beat it?

S. S.—Gee! He must be a nut! Whoever heard of such bunk? Why, it's against all laws of nature and human precedent! Don't we know from experience that the only way to get a deer is to run after him and catch him? Hickory stick! Sharp stone! Oh, fudge!

IT CAN'T BE DONE!
(But it was done.)

CHAPTER II.
(Later on.)

First Moss Back—Waddye know about that fool blacksmith?

Second M. B.—What's the idea?

First M. B.—Why, the blamed idiot says he is going to build an iron tube and put a black powder in it and then shoot a lump of lead a hundred times as far as we now shoot an arrow from a bow! Ain't that the limit?

Second M. B.—Why, that fellow must be as crazy as they make 'em! Whoever heard of such a thing? It's against all reason and logic.

IT CAN'T BE DONE!
(However, it came to pass.)

CHAPTER III.
(A previous date.)

Tree Dweller—Are you hep to the fool stunts that yap across the lake is up to?

Cliff Dweller—Why, no. Put me wise.

T. D.—Why, the condemned simp has the foolishness to straddle a log when you want to paddle your way across the lake. He says the sensible and scientific thing to do is to burn the inside out of that log, and then sit down inside of the log instead of on top of it.

C. D.—It's a safe bet he's bughouse, all right. Haven't we and our ancestors always straddled a log when crossing the lake? Now comes the bloke and tells us we ought to sit inside the log instead of on top! Oh, piffle!

IT CAN'T BE DONE!
(But the canoe arrived.)

CHAPTER IV.
(Some time later.)

First Fisherman—I've had my lamps on that cuss down in the cove. Wot's doin'?

Second F.—Aw, he's off his nut! He's got the dope that he's goin' to quit paddlin' his canoe; got an idea in his think tank that he will put a big stick up in his boat and hang a hide on it and make the wind take him where he wants to go.

First F.—Why, the poor mut! Does he think he can get away with that? Don't we know from experience that the only way to move a canoe is to paddle it? A sailboat! Oh, pshaw!

IT CAN'T BE DONE!
(But she sailed.)

CHAPTER V.
(Later yet.)

First Bonehead—Get wise to this guy. He's got an idea that he can put the kibosh on the steam that comes from hot water, and then bottle it up in a machine and make that machine work! Get that? Isn't he bughouse?

Second B. H.—You bet he is! Why, there is no weight or power to steam! It floats in the air, as light as a fog! Power from steam? Nothing to it!

IT CAN'T BE DONE!
(But the engine turned over.)

CHAPTER VI.
(Further on.)

First Colonist—Say, there is a darned fool over at the Hudson River with a little ship he calls the Clermont, and he has the fool idea in his bean that he can do away with sails and make the steam engine do the stunt!

Second C.—Do tell! Hasn't he any better sense than to know that while the steam engine has a limited usefulness on land, it is impractical and a failure on board ship? Take it from me, the Clermont will never move!

IT CAN'T BE DONE!
(But the Clermont did move.)

CHAPTER VII.
(Still later.)

First American—Say, this fellow Langley, in Washington, D. C., is dead wrong. The idea of him saying that a human being could learn to fly!

Second A.—Right! It's beyond the bounds of human possibilities to fly. Moreover it is sacriligious to fly. If the Lord ever wanted us to fly He would have created us with wings.

Human beings ever fly? Never!

IT CAN'T BE DONE!
(But they do fly now.)

(Historian's Note)

Several hundred thousand chapters of the world's history are omitted from this work for the sake of brevity.

What the writer desires to point out is that in the progress of mankind a never failing series of cycles has taken place. Here is what has happened in regular rotation:

One day, Ignorance says: "It Can't Be Done!"

Next day, Intelligence does it.

The following day, Ignorance says of something else: "It can't be done!"

The day after that, Intelligence makes Ignorance back up by doing the very thing that "could not be done!" And so we find it down through all ages, Ignorance trying to hold humanity in darkness and Intelligence lifting mankind out of intellectual night into clear daylight—into ever brighter light.

To the non-Socialist who may happen to read the foregoing the writer wishes to point out that the Ignorance which says the interests of labor and capital are identical is the very same Ignorance which says "Socialism is impossible."

On the other hand it is the extremely superior Intelligence of twenty million (20,000,000) Socialists in the world today who say that the interests of labor and capital are absolutely opposed to each other. It is this same massed Intelligence that says we are even now about to realize the fulfillment of this "beautiful dream" which would always "remain a dream."

Now, Mr. Non-Socialist, which way are you betting? Do you back Ignorance to win?

If so, I place my money on Intelligence and give you heavy odds.

And, by the way, if you want to meet up with the highest grade of intelligence on earth today just cultivate the acquaintance of the Socialists. They have the history of humanity's evolution at their finger tips.

They and they alone understand why present conditions are as they are. They (the Socialists) and they alone know how to make the future as it should be—and will be.

When any one tells me (not knowing what they are talking about) that Socialism is "impossible," I think of the "impossibilities" Ignorance has set up all through the ages, and which Intelligence, with unerring aim, has every time wiped away like a set of ten pins on the bowling alley. Then at this point I get real busy brushing the cobwebs out of the cranium of the gink who impersonates a phonograph reproducing a record recorded in his brain by the flutes—"Socialism is impossible."

Without the toil of the workers there would never have been any palaces for the workless monkey tribe to live in.

THE CITY IS BANKRUPT

Boneheads have been wont to cry that Socialists were inefficient. That it would never do to trust them with political power because they could not run a city or county.

At the present time the city of Columbus is bankrupt, and last week 100 Henry Dubbs were laid off to starve. This is as it should be. Last fall these same Boneheads in place of voting for their own class voted their master's ticket with the result that they are now getting what they voted for. Ditto several thousand R. R. men, shoe workers, steel workers, and men in every industry.

Let Socialists be ever so inefficient, they could do no worse than the old parties have done. We could do no worse than bankrupt the city.

But Socialists do not do business that way. Every city where we have been in power our administration has always been efficient, honest and reliable. Usually we are compelled to take hold of a bankrupt concern like this city is at present, and bring it out of the hole. But we are equal to the emergency, and this fall we will begin to clean up Franklin County, represented by the court house.

Be the puppet of your master, and you will live in the dog kennels of your master.

FILL UP THE CHURCH

The Socialist was informed that Rev. Lowe Pastor of the Fourth ave. Avenue Church of Christ, at corner Fourth Avenue and Neil, will have as his subject, "Socialism—Are We All Socialists?" tomorrow (Sunday) evening.

We do not know whether this lecture will be for or against Socialism, but it behooves us to "lend an ear," and fill up the church. Let us all be there.

OUR CASES

The cases of Comrades E. B. Eubanks, M. C. Green, J. M. Suddick, and F. E. Johnston, charged by Judge Black with criminal libel, were "continued generally" by Judge Osborn in Police Court July 9th.

Judge Osborn will decide Comrade Bates' motion for a new trial July 22nd.

PATRIOTISM IN THE OLD DAYS

During the old days in England before imprisonment for debt was abolished the following incident is related as having taken place:

A rumor of a French invasion had thrown London into excitement. An inmate of the debtor's prison was discussing the news through the bars of his cell with a street beggar and a soldier who was considerably soused.

MORTGAGES

And Money—Money in Bank and Mortgages on Homes and Farms the Assets of the Buckeye State Building and Loan Company.

1. Over $7,000,000 of mortgages
2. On homes and farms.
3. Made under careful appraisement.
4. Owns no real estate.
5. Our company has a large reserve fund and growing each year.
6. Five per cent paid on time deposits.
7. Both depositors and borrowers pleased.
8. Rankin Building, 22 West Gay Street, Columbus, Ohio. Assets $7,600,000.

"If the French effect a landing on British soil what will become of our liberties?" cried the imprisoned debtor.

"Yes, and of our property?" echoed the tattered beggar.

"Oh, damn our liberties and our property," vociferated the drunken soldier "what will become of our religion?"

The present game of life is horn and hoof and tooth and tallon. I must be a savage if I survive. I prefer a more civilized system to survive in. Let's change the system.

THE ONLY REMEDY

Socialism is the only remedy for existing conditions. It is the only agency through which we can ever strike off the hateful shackles of capitalism. It is the guiding star of race progress. It is not only the organized protest of labor against iniquitous capitalism, but it is the organized force that is going to wipe out capitalism and construct the Co-operative Commonwealth. We must have organization to win and we must have an organization that knows how to go about it to win. The Socialist organization is the only such organization. Every class-conscious worker belongs within the Socialist party. When enough of us shall have banded together in this great organization we shall forever abolish capitalism, with all of its horrors and blasphemies. Get inside of the organization. Pay your dues to support the organization and use your intelligence to help conduct it. That is the only way to be a real good Socialist.

Western Official—Do you take this woman whose hand you're a-squeezin' to be your lawful wife, in flush times an' skimp?

"I reckon that's about the size of it, squire."

"Do you take this man you've jined fists with to be your pard through thick and thin?"

"Well, you're about right for once, old man."

"All right, then. Kiss in court, an' I reckon you're married about as tight as the law kin j'ine you. I guess four bits 'll do, Bill, if I don't have to kiss the bride. If I do, it's six bits extra."

"JUDGE NOT LEST YE BE JUDGED"

By W. W. Green, Nelsonville, Ohio

Not long ago I was asked by a friend, what church I held to. I told him that the church people called me an infidel, and he replied by saying that there is no such thing as an infidel; but I assured him that Christ said that there were infidels, in fact he said that there are worse things in the world than infidels; he said that "He that provideth not for his household is worse than an Infidel." I would like to ask you Hocking Valley miners if, since April, 1914, you have provided for your household. If not you are worse than an infidel.

"O well" you say, "I have not had a job." If that is the case, why don't you vote to own one? Gump. You know you have been euchred by the Reps. and Dems., and the only thing to do is to vote the Socialist ticket, for if you don't, you are liable to get a dose of progressive euchre.

Under Roosevelt, the cost of living ascended; under Taft it went higher; and under Wilson, it has busted the record. Why try these all over again? Jackass.

The Live Issue, the anti-socialist organ of New York that attempted to fill a long-felt want "by seeking to array Catholics against Socialism" seems to be a dead issue. Last week the company printing the paper filed a petition in bankruptcy stating that the liabilities were $11,579 and the assets $2,818. A receiver was appointed for 30 days to see whether he could pull the bankrupt sheet out of the hole. The Live Issue managers have probably learned by this time that the average Catholic workers are like all other workers, that they are living under economic and political injustices that must be abolished by the workers pulling together for general and complete emancipation, irrespective as to what their race, creed or other conditions may be; that those who seek to inject religion into labor and political affairs, no matter from what side, are merely seeking to becloud the real issue and are committing a grievous wrong against the working class as a whole. The further fact that thousands of Catholic workingmen are members of the Socialist party or vote its ticket is additional proof that the propaganda of such papers as the Live Issue and such individuals as David Goldstein and Peter Collins not only does not retard the Socialist movement, but arouses interest in and in the long run makes converts for the cause of Socialism.

Do you know that woman was the first slave?

It is easy for the plute to preach patience to the poor.

The average worker doesn't work his head enough.

Every Socialist added makes the movement so much stronger.

Capitalism is a game of chance in which the worker has no chance.

A full pig in the sty doesn't feel or feed the hungry one going by.

The brain and not the brute must rule; the ballot, not the bullet.

You voted the guns into the hands of thugs—remember that.

A Socialist ballot means more in stopping war and graft than a thousand years of agitation.

The hard times are making the workers think these days.

Progress is always the outcome of dissatisfaction.

Every child has the right to be born right.

The master would rather give the toilers lead than bread.

To be as good as our fathers, we must be better.—Wendell Phillips.

When the bodies are freed, the souls also will be freed. They cannot be freed before.

The workers get what they vote for—hard times and misery.

Hunt for the cause. There are enough idiots chasing effects.

Business capacity is the capacity to grab what others produce.

A CORRECTION

A statement appeared in this paper some time ago to the effect that Mr. O. Coleman was put out of the house owned by T. J. Fullmer at 462 E. Innis Ave., on account of their sympathy with the strikers at the Glass Plant. Mrs. Fullmer desires that we correct this, as she claims Mr. Coleman was ordered to move because of an altercation over rent matters. The Socialist makes this statement entirely upon the word of Mrs. Fullmer, and trusts that both Fullmer and Coleman will get together on the political field in November and fight the common enemy—Capitalism.

LOCAL, STATE, NATIONAL

Local Columbus meets every Wednesday evening at Federation Hall, 121½ E. Town St. 7:45. Secretary and Organizer, Walter J. Davis, 121½ E. Town St. Pay dues at your Branch organization or at this office, 108½ South High Street, or at meetings of Local Columbus. Attend the meetings and always see that your red book is stamped to date.

LOCAL

Tomorrow, Sunday, July 19th, Comrade W. H. Watts, a speaker of national reputation, speaks at Goodale Park, 2:30. Comrade Watts comes highly recommended and we should see that he has a rousing big meeting.

Thursday evening, July 30th, Local Columbus will give a lawn fete at corner West Broad and Martin for the benefit of The Socialist. The proceeds will be used to put farmers on the sub. list out in the county. This will accomplish a two-fold purpose. It will help The Socialist through the dull months and help our propaganda Let us make this a big affair. With a little boosting we can clear at least $200. Comrade Carrie W. Allen of New York City will be the principal speaker.

Comrade Walter I. Davis has been elected organizer. Mail should be addressed to him at 21½ E. Town St.

Wednesday evening, July 29th, Comrade Carrie Allen of New York City speaks at Socialist Hall, 120½ E. Town St. The next evening she speaks at The Socialist lawn fete at Martin and West Broad.

Tomorrow, Sunday, at 2:30 P. M., Comrade Wm. H. Watts of Sandusky speaks at Goodale Park. Comrade Watts is an author as well as a speaker, having written a splendid little pamphlet entitled "The Essence of Socialism." Bring all your friends and be assured of a good propaganda meeting.

STATE

Reports from over the state indicate that Comrade Scott Wilkins, our candidate for governor is having tremendous crowds at every meeting. He is touring the state in an automobile and in this manner reaching the farmers, who are flocking to our standard by thousands. A little pushing all along the line will roll up 250,000 votes for our state ticket.

Local Cleveland S. P. got 10,000 signatures to a petition to eliminate the Non-Partisan feature of their new City Charter, and it will be submitted to a vote of the people, August 11th. The non-parts are frantic, but from all indications the amendment will carry by a safe majority, as the people are sick of such silly reform dope.

NATIONAL and INTERNATIONAL

Wisconsin Socialists have nominated a State ticket headed by Oscar Ameringer for Governor. Emil Seidel will stand for U. S. Senator. An increased vote is sure to be polled this fall.

Because Liebknecht, one of the Socialist members of Parliament in Germany, has created a big sensation by showing the titles and honorariums were bought and sold like fish, der Kaiser and his crowd have made a bluff that they intend to prosecute him. Liebknecht has challenged the royal gents to go to it, and his friends declare that he has a few more cards that he is ready to play when the fight begins.

Vorwaerts, the Socialist daily in Berlin, has made the charge that soldiers have been maltreated while doing time in the army. The smug capitalistic dailies and ruling aristocrats professed to be horrified by such an assertion, claiming that it was another socialistic lie, insult, etc. Now Vorwaerts has printed a request that all soldiers who were mistreated should send their names to that office, and it is believed that many thousands will comply.

There was a charter election to establish the commission form of government in Olean, N. Y., last week. The Socialists were the only party to take the field against the scheme, which was defeated by a safe majority.

In Braddock, Pa., the official boneheads started in to smash Socialism some more by putting a resolution through the City Council prohibiting street speaking. The Socialists promptly held a meeting and the first man on the box was promptly arrested, whereupon notice was given that the case would be tested. The culprit was fined $5.75 and demanded a transcript of the court proceedings to carry the case higher. The official persons nosed through the law books and put their heads together in numerous quiet and imperious conferences and finally handed back the $5.75 and dropped the matter. All of which made the Reds grin sarcastically.

The new city charter proposed for St. Louis was adopted in the special election last week by about 3,000 majority in 90,000 votes cast. The business elements and politicians generally favored the charter, which was opposed by the Socialist party and the trade unions. On the other hand, Seattle also voted on a new charter carrying the city manager scheme (of which Dayton is becoming heartily tired). It was opposed by the unionists and Socialists and defeated two to one.

Nearly 1,500 Socialist children took part in a two-day exhibition arranged in behalf of universal peace in Paris. About 1,200 formed a huge chorus and sang the different revolutionary songs, thoulands of adults joining in the chorus. Addresses were delivered by a number of women, who scored the capitalistic governments that would make food for cannon of the children and protect the rich robbers and their plundering parasites. The demonstration created a profound impression and will become an annual affair.

Politicians at Rockville, Conn., are trying to victimize Socialist Councilman Andrews because in a public address he denounced the right of the Colorado thugs to carry on their campaign of assassination under the stars and stripes. Originally the white in the flag, Andrews said, stood for purity of thought; the red for the brotherhood of all men, and the stars for the liberty of all in the 13 colonies. In Colorado, where the militia fired on the tent colony, killing women and children, they made the flag to represent something different; they made the red to represent murder and the stars its Governors ready to call out the militia, thugs, and grafters. Andrews was complimented on his address by other Councilmen, after which several got together and preferred charges against him for "insulting the flag." The capitalistic timeservers will try to oust Andrews and the whole town is in more or less excitement over the incident.

My Lord Abinger, the right honorable treasurer of the Anti-Socialist Union of Great Britain, is once again squandering some of his last remaining coppers on coroneted and registered letters to the employers of the country, appealing to them for funds with which to throttle the "menace of socialism." To show that the Anti-Socialist Union is "strictly non-partisan," his ludship appends the signatures of an ex-tory and an ex-Liberal member of Parliament, who are also lords of the earth, to attest to that fact. The British Socialists are amused, as Aby says that because of the money raised from the plutes last year 16,543 Anti-Socialist meetings were held. That shows why socialism is growing so fast in Great Britain.

"The blood of the martyr is the seed of the church!" U. S. Judge Dayton, the notorious injunction swinger, may have thought that he was performing a great stunt when he jailed a score of miners at Fairmont, W. Va., for contempt when they insisted upon their right to free speech, peaceful picketing and to organize non-union men. But it so happened that there were several Socialists among the men, and, not having anything else to do, they started discussions on political and economic problems. Soon everybody in the "coop" became interested and, as the debates progressed, one after another of the old partyites capitulated. One day a vote was taken on the question of forever supporting the Socialist party when the men gained their liberties. The vote was unanimous in the affirmative.

In the State of Washington the Socialist factions are now voting on the new constitution that will amalgamate all the forces if adopted and the ballots are to be counted next week. The unity document was adopted and referred by unanimous vote, and it is almost certain to be endorsed by the rank and file and the internal war ended. The bitterness was largely caused by the I. W. W. freakery—which has disappeared almost completely in Washington—and the holier-than-thou meddlesomeness of the International Socialist Review which tried to split the Socialist movement into "red and yellow" factions in order to gratify the egotism of the bunch of would-be bosses who control that publication. The fact is that the Review's disreputable methods have been pretty generally repudiated throughout the country, and the S. P. is getting back into a harmonious state again. The question arises, what is the next fad that the saviors of the Review will hatch in order to obtain the notoriety that they crave?

Tell advertisers you saw their ad in The Socialist.

It is not the intelligence of the rich that makes them so, but the ignorance of the workers.

There is nothing about the cry of a child for bread to indicate whether the child was born a Protestant, a Mohammedan or a Catholic. The child is just hungry.

A raise in wages is more of a civilising factor than delivering a whole library of sermons.

War is legalised murder in which no Christian man can take part without violating the prime tenet of his religion.

ADVERTISING

We would like once more to urge on our readers to support our advertisers. With the present "psychological" hard times, and its resultant curtailment of expenses, "The Socialist" is hit harder than any other paper. This condition could be turned into profit for the paper if all our subscribers would insist on buying only from those who advertise in The Socialist. Not only can this be done, but hundreds of merchants all over town who have been getting your patronage could be persuaded to advertise if you would speak to them about it.

Have a talk with your grocer, butcher, milk man, ice man. Get their adv. and watch the columns of the paper and make all purchases from advertisers.

THE SOCIALIST

A Weekly Newspaper Without a Muzzle

Vol. IV Whole No. 188 COLUMBUS, OHIO, JULY 25, 1914 Price, 2 Cents per Copy

OSU Libraries University Library 1858 O. S. U. N. High St.

THIS PAPER is published in the interest of the working class. If you think it is worthy of your support, support it by getting new subscribers. If you don't like it, don't knock. We are making it as good as you will allow. Whenever the workers support their own press as valiantly as they do the master's press we will be able to do really big things for the emancipation of the workers. In the meantime, we are forging ahead conscious of the fact that our cause is just, that right will finally triumph, and the workers step forth emancipated from the age-long servitude to a robber, master class.

GREAT EXCITEMENT—DIVORCE PROCEEDINGS THREATENED

While our reporter was out in a remote section of the county last week, he overheard a conversation that ran like this.

John Henry do you intend to take me to The Socialist Fall Festival, corner W. Broad and Martin Ave., Thursday evening, July 30th?

Aw gwan Mary, I hain't got time to go; besides what'll we do with all the kids.

We'll take them along, John Henry, you have had your way all summer, and haven't taken me to a single Socialist Lawn Fete. Now, either you take me to this one, which is for the benefit of The Socialist, or I'll see my attorney and start divorce proceedings on the grounds of extreme cruelty.

At this stage of the game our reporter, who is somewhat timid for a young man in his position, beat a hasty and inglorious retreat. He says, however, that he is sure that there will be no divorce proceedings, and that John Henry and family will be there "with bells on."

To such an extent are the people aroused that a rumor is in circulation, to which is given credence by those who are in a position to know, to the effect, that the young ladies all over the county are politely informing their "gallants" that either they go to the Festival at W. Broad and Martin, next Thursday evening or said "gallants" can look for other porch swings to sit in the rest of the summer.

Solely in the interests of domestic peace, The Socialist pleads with the male section of the population in this vicinity to bring the whole family and come out next Thursday evening.—If you get hungry or thirsty you can buy cake, ice cream, lemonade, crackerjack, pop, chewing gum, in fact most anything. You will get an intellectual treat in the form of a stirring address from Comrade Carrie Allen of New York City. Take W. Broad St. cars, and get off at Martin Ave.

KICK OUT THE BOURGEOIS ARISTOCRAT

Thousands of men refuse to go to the ballot box and vote. These are Socialists in embryo. They are men who have become disgusted with the old parties and are not yet educated to the principles of the Socialist party. There are also thousands of voters in this country who voted our ticket three years ago, and because we were not yet strong enough to carry the city and county decided that "it was of no use," and stayed at home election day.

Last fall there were 10,000 who did not vote in this city. It is a safe bet that [illegible] of them would have voted the Socialist ticket could they have been [illegible] the polls. Wherefore, you we would have made a very creditable showing.

We don't see to it that no repetition of this occurs this fall. Every one must be accounted. We have a chance—an excellent chance, to send Zimpfer to Congress. Other districts will elect Socialist Congressmen, and it is up to us to be in the game column.

The present incumbent, whose name is Brumbaugh, has made himself conspicuous by his silence. He has dodged every issue where his vote would place him on record in favor of labor. He refused to vote against a reduction in the congressman's mileage graft from 20 cents per mile to 5 cents, and yet he is supposed to represent the people.

LET LABOR AWAKE AND KICK OUT THE BURGEOIS ARISTOCRAT AND SEND TO CONGRESS A REPRESENTATIVE OF LABOR.

DON'T GET EXCITED OVER THE REDUCTION.

It is announced that the special session of the legislature, which political move was engineered by the wily Cox, now Governor of this State, has, by a reduction in the tax rate, saved the people of the state $1,000,000.

Jackasses in ragged pants and no jobs are consequently patting themselves on the back and talking about what Cox has saved US in taxes.

If Cox had reduced the taxes so that NO taxes at all were to be paid, you hungry-looking men would get about as much benefit out of it as the angel Gabriel would get out of a trip to hell.

Every time the rent came due, you would pay the same old price. Every time you went to purchase a pair of $5c shoes they would cost you $4.00, just the same as now. Every day you went to work for your master, he would pay you $2.00 every time you produced him $10.00.

The only people who will be benefited by this tax reduction is your master, Bonehead. He owns something. You don't. At least you don't seem to realize you own anything.

You do, however, own one thing, and you could, if you would use your brain, own everything the world affords. That thing you own is your labor power. It is your very life, and yet you are so easily handled that you hand it over to the masters, only asking in return enough of the product of your own toil to keep you from starvation.

Socialists demand the full product of their toil.

SOCIALISTS WIN SCHOOL ELECTION IN CONNECTICUT

The Socialist Party of Naugatuck were victorious in the school elections held at Union City, (3rd District) on Friday, June 26th, electing their entire ticket by a vote of 134 to 43 for the combined opposition. This is an increase of 43 majority in the Socialist vote over that of one year ago for the same officials.

GILLOOLY ELECTED VICE PRESIDENT.

Joseph Gillooly, organizer of the American Flint Glass Workers' Union, which has been in session in Rochester, Pa., for the past two weeks, was elected Vice President of the organization on the first ballot.

Joe went to Toledo last Thursday to take up his new position. In his new position, The Socialist joins his thousands of friends in wishing him success. This action of the Convention was a recognition of the splendid work, untiring efforts of Gillooly in behalf of his fellow brothers. Long may he live.

The Convention also voted to bring the next annual convention of the Flints to Columbus. This will be in July, 1915.

Lives of rich men all remind us,
That we poor men made it all.
Forging chains of wealth to bind us,
While at Mammon's feet we crawl.
Crawling that perhaps another,
Who may vote a few years hence,
Some forlorn and soup-fed brother,
Reading us may learn some sense.
—The Fool Killer

What is the strongest poison for the human body and soul? It is the fountain head of all inhuman and anti-social feeling. Where want spreads out its wings there the sentiment of love, of affection, of brotherhood, are impossible.—Ferri, Positive School of Criminology, p. 69.

The interests of the laborer and capitalists are identical, insofar that both want all the worker produces—but the capitalist gets it. The capitalist is conscious of what he wants and takes it. The worker is unconscious and remains a slave to toil. Wake up.

The workers are starving on every hand
While the plutes are fed on the fat of the land.
And such is the sorrowful case; because,
The Dubbs make the wealth while the Plutes make the laws.

The workers don't always get it in the neck. Sometimes they get their necks into it.

The way the insane asylums are filling up is proof positive that we are living under a crazy system.

The workers' wages do not represent his earnings—it is simply what he gets out of his earnings.

Sometimes the prejudices of the parents is visited upon the children, even to the third and fourth generation.

How much longer will labor, hat in hand, beg for the right to use the tools of production?

Rockefeller, teacher of Sunday schools in New York, murderer in Colorado.

Marriage is a failure under capitalism because when the means of life are short, life itself is a failure.

The eighth wonder of the world is a propertyless wage slave scared into fits at the idea of confiscation.

It is a miracle to be alive in a world where more is spent for machines of murder than there is for education.

The reason an honest man so seldom blows his own horn is that the honest man is generally too poor to own one.

Pure food laws are a good thing, but what the world needs worse than pure food laws is a few more food laws.

Socialism does not say to the grafter, we will take your living from you. It says, we will give you opportunity to earn an honest living.

In one thing the masters are right. There really is nothing to arbitrate. When all belongs to labor, labor must have all, and no compromise is really honest or right.

More than five million women are employed in the industries of the United States. Capitalism says woman's place is the home.

Capital punishment and abuse of the prisoners are survivals of the ignorance which imagines a man is entirely responsible for his own acts.

The society which does the punishing is in many respects guilty of the crime.

Capitalism is a thousand to one shot gambling game in which, if you win you get much more than you want, and if you lose you get much less than you need. Socialism is honest industry that gives every one the value of his product.

No one would have the hardihood to say that the breathing apparatus of the poor is different from that of the well-to-do, yet, when so low a wage is given that one cannot obtain light and air, what is absurd when putting words is declared in action.—Harriet A. Keyser.

I'll vote for my boss, I'll vote for my master.
So he'll have the power to speed me up faster;
Then when I strike, to jail I will go,
That's the practical method—my boss said so.

Justice and humanity have been fighting their way, like a thunderstorm, against the organized selfishness of human nature. God has given manhood but one clew to success—utter and exact justice.—Wendell Phillips.

The rich damn the workers for "boosing," while they guzzle high-priced Burgundys and champagnes. The rich want the workers to be sober so they will not need so much wages and what is saved they will spend on their own bellies. See?

Rightly proportioned to each other, there are no greater blessings in all the world than work and leisure. Wrongly proportioned to each other there are no two greater curses.

There are thousands of poor deluded "bone and sinew of the country" who have not the opportunity to work for a living for themselves and those dependent upon them who vote for the system that is responsible for their condition.

The majority of the workers who condemn Socialism don't know what the word means or what it may stand for. And an ordinary dictionary only costs about 25 cents.

AN IMMEDIATE CALL TO ACTION

Unless the supporters of The Socialist come to the rescue, with a sustainers fund, and that quickly, this paper will be forced to suspend. Last year, during the dull months, the paper ran behind $400.00.

It is impossible to run in debt this year, as the concern that does our printing refuses to carry the load. It is true that a lawn fete will be held next Thursday evening for the benefit of the paper, but it is uncertain what this will produce, and besides we need the money today TO PAY THIS WEEK'S PRINTING BILL. About $50.00 will do temporarily. If you want to keep the paper alive, if you think it has a mission to fill, and is filling that mission, then send or bring in your contribution today.

We are not ashamed to thus appeal for aid. The fact that we do so shows that our skirts are clean. We are not subsidized by big biz.

The N. Y. Call, the Biggest and best Socialist daily paper in the United States has a sustainers fund of $300.00 per week. If we had $300.00 per year it would help some. The N. Y. comrades understand the terrible odds a working class paper has to fight against, and consequently they support their paper.

If you want to see this paper reach you next week, then bring in or mail your contribution, no matter how small, today. Make all Money Orders and checks payable to The Socialist. The present management will positively not allow the paper to run into debt any further. If you want to see the familiar face of The Socialist any more,—then it is you who must donate liberally to its support now during these slack months.

Unless enough funds are secured by Wednesday of next week to insure payment of printing bill, no further issue of The Socialist will appear, without further orders of Local Columbus.

"THE SOCIALIST" MAKES SCOOP; HAS INTERVIEW WITH WILSON

(Our reporter, Josephus Winkendoodle, was dispatched to Washington for an interview with the President. This is a decided "scoop" on all the daily papers, and appears exclusively in The Socialist. All rights reserved.—Editor).

By Josephus Winkendoodle

Naturally having been despatched on such an important "beat," I felt rather ill at ease as I approached the executive offices. What would be the most plausible excuse I could give for wishing the interview? How would I be received? These and many other perturbing thoughts chased themselves through the inside of my cranium. At last, however, I approached the flunky on guard and handed him my card:

JOSEPHUS WINKENDOODLE
with
The Socialist Columbus, Ohio.

Imagine my surprise when the flunky returned and informed me that the President would see me immediately. As I approached the door who should I meet leaving in a hurried manner but the great financier, J. P. Morgan. As I entered the office, the President was seated, but he arose and extending both hands came forward to meet me.

"How are you, Mr. President," I began.

I am feeling fine. Have just been talking "reminiscences" with my old friend Morgan, he said.

I recalled, and told him I had seen Mr. Morgan leaving as I came in, and I began to feel more and more at home.

Tell me Mr. President, how it is that you so readily granted my interview? Is this the usual way? Do you do this way with any one?

No, Mr. Winkendoodle, he replied, but you see, I have heard a great deal about The Socialist, published at Columbus, Ohio, which you represent, and it has said some rather hard things about me and I felt that it was no more than right that I should grant you the interview you desired, as I might be able to straighten you out on some things.

The President, at this point, reached alongside his desk and tapped a fresh keg of "grape juice," and graciously offered me a brimming glassful of the delightful fluid. As the day was exceedingly hot, I accepted this little favor without further ado.

Over our glasses we became more and more confidential. Tell me Wilson (I here dropped the customary Mr. President) what you think of the miners war in Colorado.

I think it is an outrage, Winkendoodle, he said. Those miners are "anarchists," and have been destroying Mr. Rockefeller's property. It must be stopped. Of course, I believe Rockefeller's gunmen should not have murdered so many women and children, but property is sacred and must be protected at any cost. If there is any more killing, the "regulars", will do it. Your paper has attacked me very severely on this point, Winky, he said, and I put it up to you. What would you have done, had you been in my shoes? The miners were armed and had licked the state militia to a standstill. It was either send the regulars or Rockefeller's mining interests in Colorado would have been wiped out.

The Socialists of Ohio are extremely anxious to know, Woody, what you mean by your "new freedom."

(By this time, due to several more glasses of grape juice, it will be noted that I was on very intimate terms with the President and called him familiarly "Woody.")

Ah, he replied, you shall know, Winky, you shall know. Never have I bared my heart to mortal man before on this subject. You see the Democrats and Republicans are so dense that they could not understand it, but I feel that you Socialists can readily grasp its true meaning. You see, the lower classes have, in the past few years, become convinced that they are not getting a square deal. They have come to the conclusion that "the interests" were robbing them, with the result that profits and interest have ben imperiled. In other words "big biz" felt themselves slipping. Now, my idea is to put across a lot of fake legislation to fool the workers, while at the same time I gradually leave out the rope to the business interests so that soon they will have full swing and my "new freedom" will be triumphant, because we will have the lower classes so subjected that they will stand for anything, and "big biz" will be free to go the limit.

But don't you think Woody, that if you place a heavier yoke on their necks that they may revolt as one man may arise over night and sweep everything before them.

Let the damn cattle try it, he said. I have been placed in this position to look after the business interests of this great land of "ours." At the first signs of an uprising I will send the regulars to the scene and we will blow 'em to hell. What does the matter of a few working men's lives count.

But us Socialists, Woody, what do you think of us?

I think you are wasting a lot of time on a poor cause. You are too radical—too prone to criticize. If you would be more conservative, and scratch our backs, we would scratch yours. These common cattle you are fighting for are not worth fighting for. They like to be ground down, because if they didn't like it, they wouldn't vote for me and my class. They voted for hell, and I, as a representative of the business interests are seeing that thy get it. You see I believe in giving the people what they vote for; that's why I am a Democrat.

Just when do you expect to bust a trust, was my next question. The President seemed shocked—horrified that I should ask such a question. He gulped hard several times as though he had a bone in his throat.

Don't you know Winky, he finally managed to say, that I have already busted all the trusts. Show me a trust that I may bust it, he exclaimed dramatically. With my little system of abolition of interlocking directorates, I have smashed every trust. Sometimes I even think I have smashed what little trust the people have in me, he said, more sadly. Yes, it is a glorious country since there are no trusts. My name will go down in history as a great man, Winky, a great man.

At this point Mr. Henry Ford, the millionaire auto maker was announced, and the President told me rather reluctantly that he was compelled to end our interview for the present, but assured me that he would be glad to grant me another audience, most anytime. I thanked him for his kindness, reached for my hat and fell out of bed.

It isn't the saddle and bridle that rulers put on the workers that does the damage, it's the blinders.

LOCAL, STATE, NATIONAL

Local Columbus meets every Wednesday evening at Federation Hall, 121½ E. Town St. 7:45. Secretary and Organizer, Walter L. Davis, 121½ E. Town St. Pay dues at your Branch organization or at this office, 108½ South High Street, or at meetings of Local Columbus. Attend the meetings and always see that your red book is stamped to date.

LOCAL

Tomorrow, Sunday, July 19th, Comrade W. H. Watts, a speaker of national reputation, speaks at Goodale Park, 2:30. Comrade Watts comes highly recommended and we should see that he has a rousing big meeting.

Thursday evening, July 30th, Local Columbus will give a lawn fete at corner West Broad and Martin for the benefit of The Socialist. The proceeds will be used to put farmers on the sub. list out in the county. This will accomplish a two-fold purpose. It will help The Socialist through the dull months and help our propaganda Let us make this a big affair. With a little boosting we can clear at least $200. Comrade Carrie W. Allen of New York City will be the principal speaker.

Comrade Walter I. Davis has been elected organizer. Mail should be addressed to him at 21½ E. Town St.

Wednesday evening, July 29th, Comrade Carrie Allen of New York City speaks at Socialist Hall, 120½ E. Town St. The next evening she speaks at The Socialist lawn fete at Martin and West Broad.

Tomorrow, Sunday, at 2:30 P. M., Comrade Wm. H. Watts of Sandusky speaks at Goodale Park. Comrade Watts is an author as well as a speaker, having written a splendid little pamphlet entitled "The Essence of Socialism." Bring all your friends and be assured of a good propaganda meeting.

STATE

Reports from over the state indicate that Comrade Scott Wilkins, our candidate for governor is having tremendous crowds at every meeting. He is touring the state in an automobile and in this manner reaching the farmers, who are flocking to our standard by thousands. A little pushing all along the line will roll up 250,000 votes for our state ticket.

Local Cleveland S. P. got 10,000 signatures to a petition to eliminate the Non-Partisan feature of their new City Charter, and it will be submitted to a vote of the people, August 11th. The non-parts are frantic, but from all indications the amendment will carry by a safe majority, as the people are sick of such silly reform dope.

NATIONAL and INTERNATIONAL

Wisconsin Socialists have nominated a State ticket headed by Oscar Ameringer for Governor. Emil Seidel will stand for U. S. Senator. An increased vote is sure to be polled this fall.

Because Liebknecht, one of the Socialist members of Parliament in Germany, has created a big sensation by showing the titles and honorariums were bought and sold like fish, der Kaiser and his crowd have made a bluff that they intend to prosecute him. Liebknecht has challenged the royal gents to go to it, and his friends declare that he has a few more cards that he is ready to play when the fight begins.

Vorwaerts, the Socialist daily in Berlin, has made the charge that soldiers have been maltreated while doing time in the army. The smug capitalistic dailies and ruling aristocrats professed to be horrified by such an assertion, claiming that it was another socialistic lie, insult, etc. Now Vorwaerts has printed a request that all soldiers who were mistreated should send their names to that office, and it is believed that many thousands will comply.

There was a charter election to establish the commission form of government in Olean, N. Y., last week. The Socialists were the only party to take the field against the scheme, which was defeated by a safe majority.

In Braddock, Pa., the official boneheads started in to smash Socialism some more by putting a resolution through the City Council prohibiting street speaking. The Socialists promptly held a meeting and the first man on the box was promptly arrested, whereupon notice was given that the case would be tested. The culprit was fined $5.75 and demanded a transcript of the court proceedings to carry the case higher. The official persons nosed through the law books and put their heads together in numerous quiet and imperious conferences and finally handed back the $5.75 and dropped the matter. All of which made the Reds grin sarcastically.

The new city charter proposed for St. Louis was adopted in the special election last week by about 3,000 majority in 90,000 votes cast. The business elements and politicians generally favored the charter, which was opposed by the Socialist party and the trade unions. On the other hand, Seattle also voted on a new charter carrying the city manager scheme (of which Dayton is becoming heartily tired). It was opposed by the unionists and Socialists and defeated two to one.

Nearly 1,500 Socialist children took part in a two-day exhibition arranged in behalf of universal peace in Paris. About 1,200 formed a huge chorus and sang the different revolutionary songs, thousands of adults joining in the chorus. Addresses were delivered by a number of women, who scored the capitalistic governments that would make food for cannon of the children and protect the rich robbers and their plundering parasites. The demonstration created a profound impression and will become an annual affair.

Politicians at Rockville, Conn., are trying to victimize Socialist Councilman Andrews because in a public address he denounced the right of the Colorado thugs to carry on their campaign of assassination under the stars and stripes. Originally the white in the flag, Andrews said, stood for purity of thought; the red for the brotherhood of all men, and the stars for the liberty of all in the 13 colonies. In Colorado, where the militia fired on the tent colony, killing women and children, they made the flag to represent something different; they made the red to represent murder and the stars its Governors ready to call out the militia, thugs, and grafters. Andrews was complimented on his address by other Councilmen, after which several got together and preferred charges against him for "insulting the flag." The capitalistic timeservers will try to oust Andrews and the whole town is in more or less excitement over the incident.

My Lord Abinger, the right honorable treasurer of the Anti-Socialist Union of Great Britain, is once again squandering some of his last remaining coppers on coroneted and registered letters to the employers of the country, appealing to them for funds with which to throttle the "menace of socialism." To show that the Anti-Socialist Union is "strictly non-partisan," his ludship appends the signatures of an ex-tory and an ex-Liberal member of Parliament, who are also lords of the earth, to attest to that fact. The British Socialists are amused, as Aby says that because of the money raised from the plutes last year 16,543 Anti-Socialist meetings were held. That shows why socialism is growing so fast in Great Britain.

"The blood of the martyr is the seed of the church!" U. S. Judge Dayton, the notorious injunction swinger, may have thought that he was performing a great stunt when he jailed a score of miners at Fairmont, W. Va., for contempt when they insisted upon their right to free speech, peaceful picketing and to organize non-union men. But it so happened that there were several Socialists among the men, and, not having anything else to do, they started discussions on political and economic problems. Soon everybody in the "coop" became interested and, as the debates progressed, one after another of the old partyites capitulated. One day a vote was taken on the question of forever supporting the Socialist party when the men gained their liberties. The vote was unanimous in the affirmative.

In the State of Washington the Socialist factions are now voting on the new constitution that will amalgamate all the forces if adopted and the ballots are to be counted next week. The unity document was adopted and referred by unanimous vote, and it is almost certain to be endorsed by the rank and file and the internal war ended. The bitterness was largely caused by the I. W. W. freakery—which has disappeared almost completely in Washington—and the holier-than-thou meddlesomeness of the International Socialist Review which tried to split the Socialist movement into "red and yellow" factions in order to gratify the egotism of the bunch of would-be bosses who control that publication. The fact is that the Review's disreputable methods have been pretty generally repudiated throughout the country, and the S. P. is getting back into a harmonious state again. The question arises, what is the next fad that the saviors of the Review will hatch in order to obtain the notoriety that they crave?

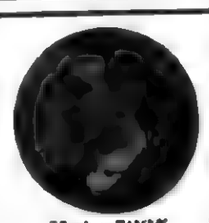
Tell advertisers you saw their ad. in The Socialist.

It is not the intelligence of the rich that makes them so, but the ignorance of the workers.

There is nothing about the cry of a child for bread to indicate whether the child was born a Protestant, a Mohammedan or a Catholic. The child is just hungry.

A raise in wages is more of a civilizing factor than delivering a whole library of sermons.

War is legalized murder in which no Christian man can take part without violating the prime tenet of his religion.



ADVERTISING

We would like once more to urge on our readers to support our advertisers. With the present "psychological" hard times, and its resultant curtailment of expenses, "The Socialist" is hit harder than any other paper. This condition could be turned into profit for the paper if all our subscribers would insist on buying only from those who advertise in The Socialist. Not only can this be done, but hundreds of merchants all over town who have been getting your patronage could be persuaded to advertise if you would speak to them about it.

Have a talk with your grocer, butcher, milk man, ice man. Get their adv. and watch the columns of the paper and make all purchases from advertisers.

THE SOCIALIST

A Weekly Newspaper Without a Muzzle

Vol. IV Whole No. 188 COLUMBUS, OHIO, JULY 25, 1914 Price, 2 Cents per Copy

Duplicate University Library O. S. U. N. High St.

THIS PAPER is published in the interest of the working class. If you think it is worthy of your support, support it by getting new subscribers. If you don't like it, don't knock. We are making it as good as you will allow. Whenever the workers support their own press as valiantly as they do the master's press we will be able to do really big things for the emancipation of the workers. In the meantime, we are forging ahead conscious of the fact that our cause is just, that right will finally triumph, and the workers step forth emancipated from the age-long servitude to a robber, master class.

GREAT EXCITEMENT—DIVORCE PROCEEDINGS THREATENED

While our reporter was out in a remote section of the county last week, he overheard a conversation that ran like this.

John Henry do you intend to take me to The Socialist Fall Festival, corner W. Broad and Martin Ave., Thursday evening, July 30th?

Aw gwan Mary, I hain't got time to go; besides what'll we do with all the kids.

We'll take them along, John Henry, you have had your way all summer, and haven't taken me to a single Socialist Lawn Fete. Now, either you take me to this one, which is for the benefit of The Socialist, or I'll see my attorney and start divorce proceedings on the grounds of extreme cruelty.

At this stage of the game our reporter, who is somewhat timid for a young man in his position, beat a hasty and inglorious retreat. He says, however, that he is sure that there will be no divorce proceedings, and that John Henry and family will be there "with bells on."

To such an extent ar the people aroused that a rumor is in circulation, to which is given credence by those who are in a position to know, to the effect, that the young ladies all over the county are politely informing their "gallants" that either they go to the Festival at W. Broad and Martin, next Thursday evening or said "gallants" can look for other porch swings to sit in the rest of the summer.

Solely in the interests of domestic peace, The Socialist pleads with the male section of the population in this vicinity to bring the whole family and come out next Thursday evening.—If you get hungry or thirsty you can buy cake, ice cream, lemonade, crackerjack, pop, chewing gum, in fact most anything. You will get an intellectual treat in the form of a stirring address from Comrade Carrie Allen of New York City. Take W. Broad St. cars, and get off at Martin Ave.

KICK OUT THE BOURGEOIS ARISTOCRAT

Thousands of men refuse to go to the ballot box and vote. These are Socialists in embryo. They are men who have become disgusted with the old parties and are not yet educated to the principles of the Socialist party. There are also thousands of voters in this country who voted our ticket three years ago, and because we were not yet strong enough to carry the city and county decided that "it was of no use," and stayed at home election day.

Last fall there were 10,000 who did not vote in this city. It is a safe bet that ..tenths of them would have voted the Socialist ticket could they have been ...that polls. With this [illegible] we would have made a very creditable showing.

We must see to it that no repetition of this occurs this fall. Every one must be rotten out. We have a chance—an excellent chance, to send Zimpfer to Congress. Other districts will elect Socialist Congressmen, and it is up to us to be in the royal column.

The present encumbent, whose name is Brumbaugh, has made himself conspicuous by his silence. He has dodged every issue where his vote would place him on record in favor of labor. He refused to vote against a reduction in the congressman's mileage graft from 20 cents per mile to 5 cents, and yet he is supposed to represent the people.

LET LABOR AWAKE AND KICK OUT THE BURGEOIS ARISTOCRAT AND SEND TO CONGRESS A REPRESENTATIVE OF LABOR.

DON'T GET EXCITED OVER THE REDUCTION.

It is announced that the special session of the legislature, which political move, was engineered by the wily Cox, now Governor of this State, has, by a reduction in the tax rate, saved the people of the state $4,000,000.

Jackasses in ragged pants and no jobs are consequently patting themselves on the back and talking about what Cox has saved US in taxes.

If Cox had reduced the taxes so that NO taxes at all were to be paid, you hungry looking men would get about as much benefit out of it as the angel Gabriel would get out of a trip to hell.

Every time the rent came due, you would pay the same old price. Every time you went to purchase a pair of shoes they would cost you $4.00, just the same as now. Every day you went to work for your master, he would pay you $2.00 every time you produced him $10.00.

The only people who will be benefited by this tax reduction is your master, bonehead. He owns something. You don't. At least you don't seem to realize you own anything.

You do, however, own one thing, and you could, if you would use your brain, own everything the world affords. That thing you own is your labor power. It is your very life, and yet you are so easily handled that you hand it over to the masters, only asking in return enough of the products of your own toil to keep you from starvation.

Socialists demand the full product of their toil.

SOCIALISTS WIN SCHOOL ELECTION IN CONNECTICUT

The Socialist Party of Naugatuck were victorious in the school elections held at Union City (3rd District) on Friday, June 26th, electing their entire ticket by a vote of 128 to 65 for the combined opposition. This is an increase of 63 majority in the Socialist vote over that of one year ago for the same officials.

GILLOOLY ELECTED VICE PRESIDENT.

Joseph Gillooly, organizer of the American Flint Glass Workers Union, which has been in session in Rochester, Pa., for the past two weeks, was elected Vice President of the organization on the first ballot.

Joe went to Toledo last Thursday to take up his new position. In his new position, The Socialist joins his thousands of friends in wishing him success. This action of the Convention was a recognition of the splendid work untiring efforts of Gillooly in behalf of his toiling brothers. Long may he live.

The Convention also voted to bring the next annual convention of the Flints to Columbus. This will be in July, 1915.

Lives of rich men all remind us,
That we poor men made it all.
Forging chains of wealth to bind us,
While at Mammon's feet we crawl.
Crawling that perhaps another,
Who may vote a few years hence,
Some forlorn and soup-fed brother,
Seeing us may learn some sense.
—The Fool Killer

What is the strongest poison for the human body and soul? It is the fountain head of all inhuman and anti-social feeling. Where want spreads out its wings there the sentiment of love, of affection, of brotherhood, are impossible.—Ferri, Positive School of Criminology, p. 99.

The interests of the laborer and capitalists are identical, insofar that both want all the worker produces—but the capitalist gets it. The capitalist is conscious of what he wants and takes it. The worker is unconscious and remains a slave to toil. Wake up.

The workers are starving on every hand
While the plutes are fed on the fat of the land.
And such is the sorrowful case, because,
The Dubbs make the wealth while the Plutes make the laws.

AN IMMEDIATE CALL TO ACTION

Unless the supporters of The Socialist come to the rescue, with a sustainers fund, and that quickly, this paper will be forced to suspend. Last year, during the dull months, the paper ran behind $400.00.

It is impossible to run in debt this year, as the concern that does our printing refuses to carry the load. It is true that a lawn fete will be held next Thursday evening for the benefit of the paper, but it is uncertain what this will produce, and besides we need the money today TO PAY THIS WEEK'S PRINTING BILL. About $50.00 will do temporarily. If you want to keep the paper alive, if you think it has a mission to fill, and is filling that mission, then send or bring in your contribution today.

We are not ashamed to thus appeal for aid. The fact that we do so shows that our skirts are clean. We are not subsidized by big biz.

The N. Y. Call, the Biggest and best Socialist daily paper in the United States has a sustainers fund of $800.00 per week. If we had $800.00 per year it would help some. The N. Y. comrades understand the terrible odds a working class paper has to fight against, and consequently they support their paper.

If you want to see this paper reach you next week, then bring in or mail your contribution, no matter how small, today. Make all Money Orders and checks payable to The Socialist. The present management will positively not allow the paper to run into debt any further. If you want to see the familiar face of The Socialist any more, then it is you who must donate liberally to its support now during these slack months.

Unless enough funds are secured by Wednesday of next week to insure payment of printing bill, no further issue of The Socialist will appear, without further orders of Local Columbus.

The workers don't always get it in the neck. Sometimes they get their necks into it.

The way the insane asylums are filling up is proof positive that we are living under a crazy system.

The workers' wages do not represent his earnings—it is simply what he gets out of his earnings.

Sometimes the prejudices of the parents is visited upon the children, even to the third and fourth generation.

How much longer will labor, hat in hand, beg for the right to use the tools of production?

Rockefeller, teacher of Sunday schools in New York, murderer in Colorado.

Marriage is a failure under capitalism because when the means of life are short, life itself is a failure.

The eighth wonder of the world is a propertyless wage slave scared into fits at the idea of confiscation.

It is a miracle to be alive in a world where more is spent for machines of murder than there is for education.

The reason an honest man so seldom blows his own horn is that the honest man is generally too poor to own one.

Pure food laws are a good thing, but what the world needs worse than pure food laws is a few more food laws.

Socialism does not say to the grafter, we will take your living from you. It says, we will give you opportunity to earn an honest living.

In one thing the masters are right. There really is nothing to arbitrate. When all belongs to labor, labor must have all, and no compromise is really honest or right.

More than five million women are employed in the industries of the United States. Capitalism says woman's place is in the home.

Capital punishment and abuse of the prisoners are survivals of the ignorance which imagines a man is entirely responsible for his own acts.

The society which does the punishing is in many respects guilty of the crime.

Capitalism is a thousand to one shot gambling game in which, if you win you get much more than you want, and if you lose you get much less than you need. Socialism is honest industry that gives every one the value of his product.

No one would have the hardihood to say that the breathing apparatus of the poor is different from that of the well-to-do, yet, when so low a wage is given that one cannot obtain light and air, what is absurd when putting words in declared in action.—Harriet A. Keyser.

I'll vote for my boss, I'll vote for my master.
So he'll have the power to speed me up faster;
Then when I strike, to jail I will go,
That's the practical method—my boss said so.

Justice and humanity have been fighting their way, like a thunderstorm, against the organized selfishness of human nature. God has given manhood but one clew to success—utter and exact justice.—Wendell Phillips.

The rich damn the workers for "boosing," while they guzzle high-priced Burgundys and champagnes. The rich want the workers to be sober so they will not need so much wages and what is saved they will spend on their own bellies. See?

Rightly proportioned to each other, there are no greater blessings in all the world than work and leisure. Wrongly proportioned to each other there are no two greater curses.

There are thousands of poor deluded "bone and sinew of the country" who have not the opportunity to work for a living for themselves and those dependent upon them who vote for the system that is responsible for their condition.

The majority of the workers who condemn Socialism don't know what the word means or what it may stand for. And an ordinary dictionary only costs about 25 cents.

"THE SOCIALIST" MAKES SCOOP; HAS INTERVIEW WITH WILSON

(Our reporter, Josephus Winkendoodle, was dispatched to Washington for an interview with the President. This is a decided "scoop" on all the daily papers, and appears exclusively in The Socialist. All rights reserved.—Editor).

By Josephus Winkendoodle

Naturally having been despatched on such an important "beat," I felt rather ill at ease as I approached the executive offices. What would be the most plausible excuse I could give for wishing the interview? How would I be received? These, and many other perturbing thoughts chased themselves through the inside of my cranium. At last, however, I approached the flunky on guard and handed him my card:

JOSEPHUS WINKENDOODLE
with
The Socialist — Columbus, Ohio

Imagine my surprise when the flunky returned and informed me that the President would see me immediately. As I approached the door who should I meet leaving in a hurried manner but the great financier, J. P. Morgan. As I entered the office, the President was seated, but he arose and extending both hands came forward to meet me.

"How are you, Mr. President," I began.

I am feeling fine. Have just been talking "reminiscences" with my old friend Morgan, he said.

I recalled, and told him I had seen Mr. Morgan leaving as I came in, and I began to feel more and more at home.

Tell me Mr. President, how it is that you so readily granted my interview? Is this the usual way? Do you do this way with any one?

No, Mr. Winkendoodle, he replied, but you see, I have heard a great deal about The Socialist, published at Columbus, Ohio, which you represent, and it has said some rather hard things about me and I felt that it was no more than right that I should grant you the interview you desired, as I might be able to straighten you out on some things.

The President, at this point, reached alongside his desk and tapped a fresh keg of, "grape juice," and graciously offered me a brimming glassful of the delightful fluid. As the day was exceedingly hot, I accepted this little favor without further ado.

Over our glasses we became more and more confidential. Tell me Wilson (I here dropped the customary Mr. President) what you think of the miners war in Colorado.

I think it is an outrage, Winkendoodle, he said. Those miners are "anarchists," and have been destroying Mr. Rockefeller's property. It must be stopped. Of course, I believe Rockefeller's gunmen should not have murdered so many women and children, but property is sacred and must be protected at any cost. If there is any more killing, the "regulars" will do it. Your paper has attacked me very severely on this point, Winky, he said, and I put it up to you. What would you have done, had you been in my shoes? The miners were armed and had licked the state militia to a standstill. It was either send the regulars or Rockefeller's mining interests in Colorado would have been wiped out.

The Socialists of Ohio are extremely anxious to know, Woody, what you mean by your "new freedom."

(By this time, due to several more glasses of grape juice, it will be noted that I was on very intimate terms with the President and called him familiarly "Woody.")

Ah, he replied, you shall know, Winky, you shall know. Never have I bared my heart to mortal man before on this subject. You see the Democrats and Republicans are so dense that they could not understand it, but I feel that you Socialists can riddly grasp its true meaning. You see, the lower classes have, in the past few years, become convinced that they are not getting a square deal. They have come to the conclusion that "the interests" were robbing them, with the result that profits and interest have ben imperiled. In other words "big biz" felt themselves slipping. Now, my idea is to put across a lot of fake legislation to fool the workers, while at the same time I gradually leave out the rope to the business interests so that soon they will have full swing and my "new freedom" will be triumphant, because we will have the lower classes so subjected that they will stand for anything, and "big biz" will be free to go the limit.

But don't you think Woody, that if you place a heavier yoke on their necks that they may revolt as one man may arise over night, and sweep everything before them.

Let the damn cattle try it, he said. I have been placed in this position to look after the business interests of this great land of "ours." At the first signs of an uprising I will send the regulars to the scene and we will blow 'em to hell. What does the matter of a few working men's lives count.

But as Socialists, Woody, what do you think of us?

I think you are wasting a lot of time on a poor cause. You are too radical—too proone to criticize. If you would be more conservative, and scratch our backs, we would scratch yours. These common cattle you are fighting for are not worth fighting for. They like to be ground down, because if they didn't like it, they wouldn't vote for me and my class. They voted for hell, and I, as a representative of the business interests are seeing that thy get it. You see I believe in giving the people what they vote for; that's why I am a Democrat.

Just when do you, expect to bust a trust, was my next question. The President seemed shocked—horrified that I should ask such a question. He gulped hard several times as though he had a bone in his throat.

Don't you know Winky, he finally managed to say, that I have already busted all the trusts. Show me a trust that I may bust it, he exclaimed dramatically. With my little system of abolition of interlocking directorates, I have smashed every trust. Sometimes I even think I have smashed what little trust the people have in me, he said, more sadly. Yes, it is a glorious country since there are no trusts. My name will go down in history as a great man, Winky, a great man.

At this point Mr. Henry Ford, the millionaire auto maker was announced, and the President told me rather reluctantly that he was compelled to end our interview for the present, but assured me that he would be glad to grant me another audience, most anytime. I thanked him for his kindness, reached for my hat and fell out of bed.

It isn't the saddle and bridle that rulers put on the workers that does the damage, it's the blinders.

FREDERICK DOUGLASS

This black orator, who has attained so great notoriety for his bold assaults on our institutions, spoke in the State House yesterday at 3 and 7 P. M. Many of our citizens, induced by curiosity, went to hear him. In his first speech he dwelt chiefly on the injustice of American slavery and defended himself from the charges of treason brought against him for his speeches in England and disunion sentiments, by saying he had no country to which he could prove a traitor. At 7 P. M. he spoke of the future destiny of the African race in America, and argued that the prejudice against color would be gradually obliterated and the two races would live on equal terms, as expatriation was impossible."—Ohio State Journal of July 16th, 1850.

The sneers and ridicule used by the slave owned press at that time is, today, making itself manifest by the Capitalist owned sheets. The name of Frederick Douglass has gone down in history as one to be revered, not only by the negro race as one of their greatest benefactors, but by all lovers of liberty, as a man of great courage and fortitude. In less than thirteen years, the President of the United States declared the things Douglass advocated to be right, and used the men and money of the country to prove it.

Had the O. S. J. and other papers of its ilk listened to the predictions of such patriots as Douglass, the question of slavery might have been settled without the enormous loss of life and property. Does not the same papers today ignore the opinions of those more progressive than themselves as they did in 1850?

The slave owned press wanted slavery continued because it was profitable to the slave owners. They now want the present wage slavery continued because it keeps up an aligarchy of money in this country to help maintain the mobbery of titles in other countries.

We claim slavery was wrong because as Abraham Lincoln said "No man was ever great enough or good enough to govern another without his consent." If this was true in 1868, is it not also true today? What economic liberty have we workers today, We can go to our masters, and if it is profitable for them to do so, they will give us a job, by which we will be enabled to live. If it is not, they will let us starve or hunt for another master.

Did a chattel slave ever have to hunt for a master? We think not. What did the slave owners do with their slaves when they had no work for them? Did they tell them to go and hunt something to eat, or hunt for another master? We think not. They clothed, fed and housed them, just the same, when they were idle as when they had work for them. Did the chattel slaves ever feel the effects of a financial or industrial panic? We think not. There has probably been more miners, heir wives and children, gone to bed hungry in the State of Ohio within the past four months, than there were slaves went hungry in the last fifty years of slavery, and yet the capitalist owned press of today treat those who believe that wage slavery should cease with the same discourtesy as they did Frederick Douglass.

The laws forbid an upriaing of he black slaves and they frequently ran away and were spirited away by the "underground railway," but we wage slaves have no where to go to escape the masters of today.

It is true we have a remedy by which we can escape them, but a great many of the workers are so prejudiced against and new ideas that they are slow to adopt them. They do not have to encounter strikes or lockouts to gain their emancipation. If we will only vote ourselves into power we can have jobs for every man in the land, which will be as secure as the jobs of the mail-carriers or postal clerks are today.

The great question is, "will you do it." Those who advocateed the abolition of chattel slavery were called demagogues and agitators; we are called similar names now. Are you not proud of the fact that your father, uncle, or great-gradfather helped to remove the blight of chattel slavery from the land? Will your children and grandchildren point with pride to the fact that you helped to wipe out wage slavery? Or would you prefer to have them say you were a tory or a standpatter, which means the same.

Wake up, workers, and if you have no hopes for yourself, remember that you owe a duty to posterity and unless you have at least tried to make this world better by your living here, that you have been an ignominious failure.

A WORD FROM THE NEXT CONGRESSMAN

Comrade Zimpfer, being a member of he working class is out playing in an orchestra on the Chatauque Circuit. While old party politicians are fixing their fences at the peoples expense, Zimpfer is out earning his living by the sweat of his own brow. In a letter to The Socialist the next Congressman says:

"We went direct from Columbus to Pittsburg. It is the noisest city with the narrowest streets I ever seen. I noticed some men working on a building where we were staying. They start to work at 5 A. M. and quit at 6 P. M. Their wages are $1.75 per day. I can't figure it out, even if they only eat "rice and beans," how they can pay 5c car fare and live. Work is very scarce, same as in Columbus, but promises are very plentiful for the future, but the future is so far away that it don't help the present very much."

"In Stockdale, Pa., conditions are about the same. The experience I have had among the foreigners since coming on this trip leads me to believe that they are, to a very great degree, responsible for the deplorable conditions of the working class in this country. In this locality they are delivered to the company at $5.00 per head. Where the Consolidated Mining Co. is located, as high as 600 are brought in at one time. They are very treacherous, for instance, there are two steel mills near Stockdale, in opposite directions from each othr. A strike broke out in one. Both mills were unionized. The men were getting about $3.50 per day. When the strike broke out the company offered $4.50 per day for strike breakers. The union men, foreigners, quit the mill where there was no strike, and went over to the mill where the strike was on, and broke the strike. I was told this happened several times. But for all that I se. strong Socialis sentiment everywhere. In our band of 30, we have 11 Socialists and several very near. The superintendent of the chatauqua at Fairmount, W. Va., is a Socialist. He is a university graduate, and a great admirer of Emil Seidel, who was on his circuit last year. Fairmount, W. Va., is the home of Ex-Senator Watson, who owns half the property in the city. He is so ignorant that he cannot make a speech. During his entire time in the Senate he never made a single speech. He is a kind of 1st Ward Borror.

I met an old friend of mine here, who told me that buying votes was carried on in the open, and that $15.00 was he prevailing price. That's why Watson landed in the Senate. Watson has worked so hard that he owns 5 blocks of working men's homes near his own home, bu they offend his divine sight, and he is having them removed so that he will not have to longer gaze upon the vulgar countenances of his wage slaves.

"I saw a contrast of these conditions in Old Lick, Pa., a small place about two and a half miles from the Maryland State line on the summit of the Allegheny Mountains. A man by the name of Mr. J. Howard Meager owns a coal mine of 250 acres with a 9 foot vein, has 175 men working for him of which there are only 5 foreigners. All live in 6 room houses with nice porches and lawns, and he himself manages the mine and his girl of 14 years helps in a grocery which he owns, and he says they are all on an equal in their town. And I believe he told the truth, as he spoke to every one and vice versa. We (two of us) ate dinner and supper at his home and he offered us a room for the night but we had previously made arrangements at a hotel. He would not accept a penny for his hospitality, but I dare say you will find few mine owners in his class.

THE FAILURE OF THE NEW FREEDOM

By ERNEST UNTERMANN.

When Woodrow Wilson asked the American voters, before the national elections of 1912, to make him President of the United States, and to place the Democratic party in power, he wrote a personal message to the American people, dated Sea Girt, N. J., October 19, 1912.

In this message he claimed that the Government of the United States had "in recent years," under Republican administration, fallen into the hands of a privileged class; that this class could not have enslaved the American government "had it not been for the tariff;" that the problem of free government for the people as a whole could not be attacked "at its heart," until a fundamental change was made in the tariff policy.

He, therefore, proposed to do the following things: Revise the tariff downward; break up the trusts; establish economic democracy in place of monopoly and selfish management.

This, he claimed, would clear the way for "real programs of social betterment," which would "assist in a hundred ways to safeguard the lives and the health and promote the comfort and the happiness of the people."

The Socialists replied that Wilson's program was impractical and visionary. They said that the United States Government had always, from the very start, been a government of, for and by privileged classes; that the working people had never been represented in this government; that both Republicans and Democrats had always fought every effort of the working people to get control of the government and of the economic wealth of this country; that Wilson's program was a badly disguised plan to continue business rule over the workers; that even the most fundamental change in the tariff policy, even a complete abolition of the tariff and the introduction of out and out free trade could not attack the problem of business government at its heart; that economic democracy and a government of, for and by the people as a whole required a fundamental change in the property relations between workers and business classes; that, in short, the evils of present society were not due to the tariff, but to the private ownership of the national life.

As one of the first steps in the direction of economic democracy the Socialists foretold the nationalization of monopolies, such as the railways, telegraphs, telephones, mines, etc. They declared that these and similar monopolies would soon be nationalized, either by the Democrats or by the Republicans, in order to prevent a civil war between workers and business classes. They prediced that the wisest trust magnates would themselves demand the nationalization of their monopolies, in order to save themselves from a worse fate.

The Democrats were placed in power by a minority, because the majority were divided against themselves. The tariff has now been revised. Trusts have been "dissolved." But no real program of social betterment has been inaugurated. On the contrary, conditions have become worse. Civil war has broken out in West Virginia, Michigan, Colorado. Civil war is threatening in other states. The lives, the health, the comfort, the happiness of the working people have been brutally sacrificed by the champions of the Democratic "New Freedom" themselves.

Not one of the prophecies of Woodrow Wilson has been realized through the inauguration of his tariff-policy and his trust program. But already the predictions of the Socialists have been verified by the facts.

The Postmaster General has advocated the nationalization of railroads, telegraphs, and telephones. The Democratic government has started government oil works, in order to safeguard, not the lives, comfort, health and happiness of the people as a whole, but business interests of the small privileged class, whose interests demand a greater army and navy. Organized labor in various states has demanded a nationalization of the mines for the protection of the toiling masses, but the champion of the New Freedom and the Democratic majority have dodged the issue and clamped the grip of the privileged more securely upon the wrists of the people. Railroad magnates, like Mellen, have declared that nationalization of railroads is the only way out, if the freight and passenger rates are not raised by the Interstate Commerce Commission. But the people have declared that they cannot stand a raise of rates, and the government, claiming to serve the people as a whole, is still dodging the question.

Woodrow Wilson has declared that the Mexican revolution cannot be settled until the peons get the land now owned by millionaire monopolists. But he has never lifted his voice for the American farmers who are being driven into peonage by American millionaires, as the increase of farm tenants and of farm mortgages proves.

Instead of placing the control of the county's finances into the hands of the producing majority, Wilson and his Democratic majority have turned the currency of this nation over to big business men while pretending to fight the control of the national life by big business.

Within eighteen months after the inauguration of Democratic rule in the United States, the futility of the Wilsonian program has been demonstrated by the facts. Even standpat Republicans today clamor for the nationalization of monopolies, while progressive Republicans are flirting desperately with the Socialist program.

Wilson's program, instead of inaugurating economic democracy, has brought this country to the verge of unintelligent revolution. If the Democratic party wishes to continue in power, it must face the question of national female suffrage and of nationalization of great monopolies. But no matter whether the Republicans or Democrats take these next steps, they will not take them for the benefit of the people as a whole. They will take them to protect business and keep the working people away from governmental power.

The Socialists have long advocated these inevitable next steps, and still advocate them, not to maintain business rule, but to clear the way for working class freedom.

SOCIALIST WEEK

Chicago, July 23.—Ten thousand new Socialist Party members and tens of thousands of new subscriptions to Socialist publications are the two big results expected from the celebration of Socialist Week, planned to start Sunday, September 6, and to continue for seven days.

Added enthusiasm is expected to result owing to the fact that the Monday of this week falls on Labor Day when the Socialists customarily take advantage of the celebrations held on that day.

"Socialist Week," known as "Red Week" in European countries, is becoming more and more of an institution among the Socialist Parties of the world. During the past year, such weeks have been celebrated in Germany, France, Belgium and England.

The powerful working class political organizations were brought into action for one week in these countries and did effective work. During "Red Week" in Germany, the Socialists of Greater Berlin alone secured 11,000 new members for the party, and 8,000 new subscribers for Socialist publications. Throughout Germany "Red Week" resulted in securing 140,000 new members. This is more than the entire Socialist Party membership in the United States, but amounted to only ten per cent increase in the ranks of the growing German Socialist Democracy.

During "Red Week" in England 3,000 Socialists meetings were held throughout the empire, 350 meetings taking place in London alone. One million special leaflets were distributed while applications for membership were given out by the thousands.

"In this country if we increase our membership ten per cent we will enroll 10,000 new members in the party," said Walter Lanfersiek, Socialist Party national secretary, in discussing the prospects offered by Socialist Week. "The number of subscriptions it is possible for Socialists to get during this week by intensive effort is unlimited."

"Socialist Week" as part of the activities of the National Socialist movement grew out of the desire to keep the Uniter States Socialist Party abreast of the Socialist Parties of other nations. The matter was discussed by the May meeting of the National Committee and a Socialist Week declaration adopted as follows:

"One week shall be set apart in every year to be known as "Socialist Week," and to be devoted to intensified and Socialist propoganda and activities, such as securing new members for the party, subscriptions to Socialist publications and the systematic and wholesale distribution of literature accompanied by public meetings.

"In the year 1914 such week shall be the week beginning on the first Sunday in September and thereafter the week beginning May 1. The National Executive Committee shall outline a special plan of work for each year in ample time before the Socialist Week, and shall prepare special literature for the purpose."

"Much of the success of 'Rey Week' in Germany was no doubt due to the powerful organization of the Social-Democratic Party in that country," declares National Secretary Lanfersiak. "They have been trained to do this kind of work for years. Yet I feel that it will be but a short time before the members of the American Socialist Party will be trained to do equally effective work.

"The opportunity awaits us now as never before to increase our party membership and build up our Socialist press," he continued. "There is a profound unrest throughout the land. Within the past year we have had three of the most attention-compelling strikes in our history—West Virginia, Michigan, and Colorado. These strikes have made Socialists and Socialist sympathizers in every part of the nation. It is now our duty to get them into the Socialist Party and to see that they read Socialist publications and literature. That is the object of Socialist Week."

A Pledge

I refuse to kill your father. I refuse to slay your mother's son. I refuse to plunge a bayonet into the breast of your sister's brother. I refuse to slay your sweetheart's lover. I refuse to murder your wife's husband. I refuse to butcher your little child's father. I refuse to wet the earth with blood and blind kind eyes with tears. I refuse to assassinate you and then hide my stained fists in the folds of any flag.

I refuse to be flattered into hell's nightmare by a class of well-fed snobs, crooks and cowards, who despise our class socially, rob our class economically and betray our class politically. —War, What For?

The sloppy encomiums on "home," and "mother," and "woman's place in the home" with which the capitalist press perpetually bubbles over, might sound more sincere if they advocated plans by which all mothers could have homes, and the social fact of motherhood would carry with it the rest and peace and protection of a home. With 80 per cent of the population devoid of homes, with mothers sweating like beasts of burden in the sweatshops and at the machines, the protestations of worship of the home and the "queens of the house" are hollow mockery.

The interests are on the job in Washington.

Paul M. Warburg of the Money Trust for the Federal Reserve Board.

Thomas B. Jones of the Harvester Trust for the same.

Ira Nelson Morris of the Beef Trust for Minister to Sweden.

Winthrop More Daniels, the railroads' man, for the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Tom Fox, the "red light boss" of Sacramento, for postmaster.

And a host of high and low Democratic office seekers and small-bore politicians for other jobs.

This is part of the record of Woodrow Wilson, "progressive" President of the United States on the Democratic ticket, a ticket which is just now issuing frantic appeals to the labor vote to vote its continuance in office. Stick these names under your hat and remember them when your Democratic Congressman asks you to re-elect him because of the "record of achievement" of the gentleman who occupies the White House.

If there was ever any doubt that Wilson's administration is making an appeal to business, big, bad, and little, a glance at the list or these appointees should settle it. If this glance does not settle it, a review of the following facts should nail it in the head forever:

Aside from the Mexican peace policy of the President and the reformist program for that shattered republic which he hopes to see Carranza and Villa put through, Wilson has made, is making, and will in all probability continue to make the utmost efforts to aid business. He aided the bankers by passing the currency bill which, according to Representative Lindberg, the near Socialist who forced the Pujo money trust investigation, has strengthened the centralizing power of the kings of finance. If you don't believe this, ask the big bankers.

Wilson is working to secure the passage of a set of harmless trust bills which are desired by all intelligent business men because they will stop for a time the agitation against the trusts and will not interfere with profits. Wilson has steadfastly refused to aid the seaman's bill, which is favored by the Seamen's Union and opposed by the Steamship Trust; Wilson's administration has played into the hands of the railroads by securing the repeal of free tolls provision of the Panama Canal Act, thus helping to keep railroad rates and maintain high freight charges.

Wilson, through William Jennings Bryan, the highest paid vaudeville artist in the cabinet, has endeavored to jam through the Senate the outrageous Columbian and Nicaraguan treaties which even a corrupt Republican Senate sent back to Knox and Taft as too gross a handing over to Wall Street of the helpless South American Republics. Wilson has, lastly, given his official O. K. to the fake labor exemption clause in the Clayton Bill which he admits does not exempt labor from prosecution under the Sherman Act.

Wilson will probably sign the worst pork barrel, rivers and harbors bill which Congress has had up for years. Wilson has damaged to an extent that cannot be repaired for years the civil service system, never particularly well-kept.

Yes, ladies and gentlemen, the INTERESTS are still on the job in Washington. All this talk about the abolition of the lobby from the hall of Congress is idle guessing. The lobby is still here, it is no longer unofficial and amateur—it is official and professional, and it draws pleasant salaries from the United States Government. If you don't believe this, ask Commissioner of Corporations Davies, who is also Secretary of the Democratic National Committee and who transacts his public and his political business in one and the same office.

WAR DEPARTMENT A FAMILY GRAFT.

Washington, D. C., July 16, 1914.

That the famous "Navy League" not only wants a big navy but as a means of securing it insists that it shall be built by private contractors for private profits is the conclusion to which Representative Tavenner of Illinois has come. Tavenner has been on the trail of the "Armor Trust," the "Ammunition Ring" and the Shipbuilding Trust for some time, but only lately has he unmasked those behind the organization which has been backing the big navy idea and succeeded in putting the Navy League on record relative to private profits.

Till his death J. P. Morgan was one of the directors of the Navy League. He also contributed liberally.

Herbert L. Satterlee, general counsel for the League, is son-in-law and part heir of Morgan.

Gen. Horace Porter, President of the League, was for many years an officer of the Pullman Company, a Morgan corporation.

Charles G. Glover, Treasurer of the League, is President of the Riggs National Bank in Washington, which is very close indeed to Wall Street.

Col. Robert L. Thompson, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the League, is an eminent financier of the Morgan group. He is the Chairman of the Board of the International Nickel Company, and in addition holds the presidency of the New York Metal Exchange.

A little while ago Tavenner wrote a letter to the Navy League, which he call "that busy little lobby of the War Trust." "It occurred to me one day," said Tavenner, "it would be interesting to know whether the Navy League had any particular preference as between 'a more powerful navy' to be built by the government at actual cost in a government shipyard with armor made in a government armor factory, and 'a more powerful navy' to be built by private contractors with huge profits to the armor, ammunition and shipbuilding trusts. I put this question to A. H. Dadmun, the Secretary of the League, in this letter:

"'I beg to acknowledge receipt of your letter of the 13th inst., together with inclosures as to why a powerful navy is needed.

"'Assuming that you are in good faith in this agitation and really desire the largest possible navy for patriotic reasons, I am going to take the liberty of suggesting to you that if you will inaugurate a movement for the government manufacture of all munitions of war, including all battleships, your campaign will strike a much more responsive chord with both members of Congress and the people.

"'In other words, if the government is to do all of the manufacturing of munitions of war, including battleships, the point cannot then be successfully raised that the agitation is for the benefit of the armor ring, the ammunition ring, and the Shipbuilding Trust.

"'But if you do not advocate the government manufacture of all munitions of war, including battleships, you cannot successfully deny that you are carrying on a propaganda which means millions and millions of dollars of extortionate profits to the above-mentioned interests.'

"I hardly expect the reader to fall out of his chair in amazement when I report that the Navy League has not accepted my suggestion," declares Tavenner. "Should the government adopt the policy of manufacturing all its munitions of war, I predict that the Navy Leage would not only lock the doors of its elegantly that the only conscience the buyer needs is to observe the rules of the market; now clamoring for a bigger and bigger navy in the certain knowledge that if their agitation is successful they will draw down contracts worth millions, will be the loudest in their protestations against an annual war expenditure of $250,000,000 in time of peace."

"Tell me candidly, doc, do you think I'll pull through?" asked the patient.

"Oh, you're bound to get well," replied the doctor. "You can't help yourself. Statistics prove that out of 100 cases like yours 1 per cent invariably recovers. I've treated 99 cases and every one of them died. Why, man alive, you can't die if you try!"

"Cannot a mother trust a son? Cannot a wife trust a husband? asked one senator in speaking against woman suffrage during the recent debate in the senate.

"Cannot the son trust the mother? Cannot the husband trust the wife?" retorted another senator for the suffragists. And Vice President Marshall warned the galleries that they would be cleared if the applause was repeated.

CONNEAUT COMRADES MAKING GOOD.

"I'm mighty proud to be a muny cook in a Conneaut, Ohio hotel."

Mrs. S. B. Pierson paused over a batch of bread dough long enough to tell of Conneaut's muny summer resort.

"I believe I'm the only municipal cook in the country," she said happily. I'm glad to be that, and I'm also glad for hundreds of Conneaut people who may enjoy the benefits of the muny park, muny hotel, muny baseball team, muny bathing beach, muny bath houses, muny dance hall—and muny cooking."

The 9,000 inhabitants of Conneaut can now spend their vacation right at home at a pleasure and rest spot that's municipally owned and municipally conducted.

D. W. Brace, Mayor, and S. W. Mahaffy, Director of Public Service, the men Conneaut has to thank for this, are both Socialists. Brace is a railroad conductor, and Mahaffy a day laborer.

Brace spends much of his time in one of the muny establishments, asking folk if they're having a good time. Mahaffey enjoys himself most when he's standing at the door of the muny dance hall, taking tickets.

Miss Elda Merch, aged 19, who works nine hours a day in a Conneaut glass factory, is among those enjoying the muny vacation system. She's a guest at the muny hotel. She goes bathing at the muny beach, sleeps in a muny bed, eats muny food prepared by the muny cook, and dances at the muny hall.

"It's just wonderful," she said. "I'll always spend my vacations here. And the city is doing it for me. I'm going to urge all of my friends to spend their vacations here."

The City of Conneaut purchased the park, with a hotel, dance hall, bathhouse and other buildings, twelve years ago, bonding itself for $20,000.

Each year the city leased the park to private individuals, and the people didn't like the way it was conducted.

The Socialist party came into power January 1, 1914. The first thing the Socialist Council did was to plan a rejuvination. Server Mahaffey was given charge.

He found the hotel, a three-story wooden building, in frightful shape. The roof leaked; tubs were used to catch water in the rooms.

Mahaffey appointed Mr. and Mrs. Pierson as muny hotel keepers. They get $30 a month salary and receipts of the dining-room.

Mrs. Pierson, the muny cook, serves a meal second to none in Conneaut. Business men run out to the hotel for their lunches.

Before Mahaffey took charge there'd been six dances in five years at the dance hall.

Mahaffey had the hall cleaned, painted and the floor repaired.

The first muny dance was held last week, and 1,241 tickets were sold on the 3-cents-a-dance plan.

The hotel is a paying proposition.

Dances are given regularly every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday night. But the hall can be used any other time any Conneaut folk want it.

The park has a natural ball grounds, the home plate being backed by a row of shade trees. Server Mahaffey erected a grandstand under the trees, put the grounds in shape and formed a muny baseball team. Tony Grace, Director of Public Service, is manager of the team.

The muny bathhouses were increased to double their size, and were opened this week.—Cleveland Press.

BOOMERANGS

A rich man's son had the habit of takin his lady friend out for a ride along the country road. He thought himself smart and would make fun of the farm hands.

On one occasion he drove by a cornfield where a boy was cultivating corn. The season was dry and dusty, consequently the farm boy looked rather untidy and his patched clothes soiled. As he came out at the end of the cornfield the city man pulled up.

"Say, kid, that corn looks pretty yellow."

"Yes," replied the boy, "we planted the yellow kind."

"Well," said the city man, "that's not what I mean. It looks poor and weak. You won't get more than half a crop, will you?"

"We don't expect to," replied the boy, "we put this in on shares."

"Say," said the city man, "you are pretty bright. Lived here all your life?"

"Not yet," replied the boy.

By this time the city man was getting pretty well rattled. His lady friend was laughing with the boy.

"Say, kid, you are pretty smart, but there isn't much between you and a fool."

"Only the wire fence," replied the boy.

Rome conquered the world by using one nation to subject another. "Divide and Rule" was the well known maxim. It still holds good today. The capitalist knows it. He subsidizes the Democratic, Republican, Progressive and Prohibition Parties and thus divides and rules. Join the working class party and cease to be ruled. Then only can you rule yourself.

The Sunday school teacher was talking to her pupils on patience. She explained her topic carefully, and, as an aid to understanding, she gave each pupil a card bearing the picture of a boy fishing.

"Even pleasure," she said, "requires the exercise of patience. See the boy fishing; he must sit and wait and wait. He must be patient."

Having treated the subject very fully she began with the simplest, most practical question:

"And now can any little boy tell me what we need most when we go fishing?"

The answer was quickly shouted with one voice:

"Bait!"

Someone wants to know what guarantee he will have of a job under Socialism. "If there are no capitalists who will employ me?" is the burden of his cry. If all the people owned all of the jobs—that is, all of the machinery of production and distribution—why shouldn't all of the people have jobs, even if it was found necessary to cut the hours of labor down to two hours a day? And remember you are a part of the people. You would be a part owner of the jobs, and it is not likely you would discharge yourself.

Because a man is out of a job and shabby is no reason for supposing that he is inferior or vicious. A wholesouled man may wear a ragged coat. You cannot judge the contents of a man's heart by looking into his pocket-book. Many a poor man would rather remain poor all his life than wade to success through the blood of women and children. Only under Socialism can you attain success without injuring others.

As long as capitalism lasts you can't get away from taking wages from the man who owns your job. But you don't have to take your opinions from the same source. You can still do your own thinking—if you will. And if you will, you may in time realize the bunco game that is being played on you by the wage deal. You do the work that produces the money that pays your wages and what your master gets—profits. Under Socialism you would get all you produced—that is the social value of it, or its equivalent. Sounds sensible, doesn't it? Study it closely.

Why waste time figuring on what per cent the capitalists get and what per cent the worker gets? One doesn't need a pencil and paper to show what the workers get. Everybody knows the working class as a whole never get enough to eat to give them the gout or force them to rent any safety deposit boxes at the bank. The capitalist class get it all while the working class get the privilege of doing all the work. And they seem to like it. Anyhow they vote for it.

The fat plute in his auto driven by a hireling chauffeur and made by exploited working men, will pass the thin working man and sneer at him for hi semaciated appearance and bedraggled rags. Some years ago this worker used to believe the bunco story about being born for a judgment because of ancentral sin or heavenly decree, but he is becoming "wised up" to it, and like the youngster that learns of the "Santa Claus" joke, he is beginning to kick himself into intelligence. It is nice for the fat plute as long as the thin worker will keep the system up by his vote and labor. When the thin that the plute will work for his own keep and "ease" off some of his surplus corpulency. When the worker gets sense he will ride too, and maybe the fat plute will do a little walking for a change.

REV. LOWE SEEMS TO TO BE WAKING UP.

Last Sunday evening Rev. Lowe, Pastor 4th Ave. Church of Christ, using as his text the 7th verse of the 1st Chap. of John, gave an interpretation of Socialism as he sees it from the small amount of light that has evidently reached him.

"Socialism is against the exploitation of women and children," he said, "and the church is also." The Socialists and the Church should understand each other better.

Socialists can agree with him when he said "Socialists believe that the workers should have more of their product." We do, Rev.; we do. We believe we should have ALL our product. Anything short of that is unjust, and in direct conflict with the biblical injunction in Eccl. 3-13.

The Rev. said he did not believe in class consciousness, as it leads to class hatred, and it will bring around disastrous results in the near future.

Continuing he said, "Socialists believe every one should have an equal opportunity and be rewarded according to his needs. In this position, he said, the Church could say to the Socialists Amen."

In olden times the robber would meet you and stick a gun in your face and say your money or your life. Today the Capitalists do the same thing in a legalized way by owning the means of life, he says.

The Socialists were out in force to the meeting and all expressed themselves as well satisfied with the fairness with which Rev. Lowe handled the question. He did not attack us as most do with the time worn arguments "that Socialists are agin religion," "athiests" and etc. If someone will hand up 50c we will put the Rev. on the sub list for one year.

FORD FOUR-FLUSHER.

Henry Ford, with a blare of trumpets, announced that he intended to pay his help $5.00 per day. Five nice, big, round, glorious bucks for every day they worked in his slave pen, and produced him an average of $40.00. This action was hailed with delight by millions of wage slaves from all over this glorious land, and they began to migrate towards Detroit by thousands. Every freight train brought them. They walked, rode and ran to get those to pluck one of those dreamy $5.00 per day melons. They came in such numbers that Ford ordered the hose turned on them during a bitter cold winter day to keep them away from his plant.

When pay day came, the Ford slaves discovered that there was a "fly in the ointment," that only a few were to receive $5.00 per day. The single men did not come in on the melon cutting.

It has been said that the workers can't think, but one of them put his noodle to work and decided that HE would come in on this good thing. Consequently he got his sister-in-law to act as his wife. It worked fine. He drew his $5.00 per day until Ford's detectives discovered the true situation, which made Ford so mad that he fired him and then brought suit to recover the difference between what he was worth as a single man and what he was worth as a married man, the sum of $365.00.

The jury disagreed.

MASTER AND WORKER.

The master uses the private car; the workers ride the rods.

The master speeds an automobile that the worker made and never enjoys.

The master eats the choice things the worker produces and cannot afford to buy.

The master sends his son to college; and because he is master of the worker's products, the worker cannot send his son to school.

The master's wife dresses in the beautiful fabric the worker has produced; and the worker's wife wears shabby stuff.

The master tells the worker to do the things he wishes. The worker does not get to do what he likes.

The master "employs" the worker because the worker cannot use the tools the master owns on any other basis; and the master never employes a man unless there is a prospect of profit in the transaction.

AS AMENDED.

"Mose," asked the magistrate, "what made you hit the man?"

"Well, Jedge," answered the old negro earnestly, "he call me a wooly-headed fool. Wouldn't you hit a man what call you a wooly-headed fool?"

"No one could call me that," the Judge answered tolerantly. "I'm not wooly-headed."

"Well, den," persisted the old darkey, "ef he call you the kin' of fool you is."—Exchange.

BATES SENTENCED TO 60 DAYS.

Bates' motion for a new trial was overruled by Judge Osborn in Police Court last Wednesday. He imposed a fine of $200.00 and 60 days in the county jail. Comrade Bates gave bond for appeal and the case will be carried to a higher court.

THE GOOD SAMARITANS.
U. G. Risan.

The working men of the world are like a certain man that went down to Jerico. The capitalists sent strike-breakers, thugs, and gunmen, and robbed them, wounded them, and killed them. The Republican party came, looked at them and passed by them; the Democratic party has buttoned up its cloak and looked at them and passed by on other side. Left them dying.

But a certain Good Samaritan Socialist party as they journeyed took compassion on them, came to their relief by finance, helped them, gave alms and took care of them. Which now of these three parties thinkest thou, was neighbor unto the workers that fell among the thieves. Socialist party, sure. Then go to the polls and do likewise; vote the Socialist ticket. Help your brother workers who have fallen among hieves; take them and put them on the beast; put them on the beast; take them to take them to the Inn (Washington) and put Gog and Magog into the pit, and Jesus will come to reign in Satan stead.

Sure enough! We were not mistaken when we conjectured that the assassin of Prince Ferdinand of Austria, would be duly classified as a Socialist by organs of plutocracy and privilege in this country. The New York Tribune has started the falshood in motion. "Slayer a Servian Socialist!" screams the Tribune in black headlines and goes on to explain in the story that follows that Prinsip was "much concerned in socialistic activities" and at the same time quotes him as boasting: "I am a nationalist," and that he has been "yearning to kill a ruler or a prince." There is bright and enterprising newspaper work for you. Here is an alleged molder of public opinion such a consummate, ignorant, braying ass that it muddies its own puddle by contradicting its own charge in connected pentences. The stupidity and mendacity of capitalistic sheets in their understanding and interpretation of current political thought and movements is positively ludicrous. Here is a Servian ruling and propertied class bitterly resenting the annexation of Herzgovnia by the Austrian rulers and Prinsip is used as a tool by capitalistic conspirators to strike a blow in behalf of resorting their domination of the principality. Can any person outside of a bughouse conceive of a Socialist anywhere engaging in a killing for the purpose of substituting one bunch of tyrants for another? The fact is that every political assassin, although always referred to as a Socialist, has always been identified with capitalistic politics, and no Socialist anywhere has ever engaged in the pastime of murdering rulers. Still The Tribune's lie will travel.

If you have money you may boss others and they will work for you. If you lack money others boss you and you work for them. It is not right to uphold slavery in the hope that you may become a master.

When you can't find work, and the grocer shuts off credit, and the children cry for something to eat, just explain to them that the present "business depression is psychological," and, of course, they'll stop crying right off. If they don't, you might write to the President and ask him what to do next.

ADVERTISING

We would like once more to urge on our readers to support our advertisers. With the present "psychological" hard times, and its resultant curtailment of expenses, "The Socialist" is hit harder than any other paper. This condition could be turned into profit for the paper if all our subscribers would insist on buying only from those who advertise in The Socialist. Not only can this be done, but hundreds of merchants all over town who have been getting your patronage could be persuaded to advertise if you would speak to them about it.

Have a talk with your grocer, butcher, milk man, ice man. Get their adv. and watch the columns of the paper and make all purchases from advertisers.

THE SOCIALIST

A Weekly Newspaper Without a Muzzle

Vol. IV Whole No. 189 COLUMBUS, OHIO, A... ...ice, 2 Cents per Copy

THIS PAPER is published in the interest of the working class. If you think it is worthy of your support, support it by getting new subscribers. If you don't like it, don't knock. We are making it as good as you will allow. Whenever the workers support their own press as valiantly as they do the master's press we will be able to do really big things for the emancipation of the workers. In the meantime, we are forging ahead conscious of the fact that our cause is just, that right will finally triumph, and the workers step forth emancipated from the age-long servitude to a robber, master class.

VOTE AT THE PRIMARIES

Next Tuesday, August 11th, you will have an opportunity to once more show your colors.....At the ballot box Tuesday you will have the opportunity to walk to the voting booth, and ask for a Socialist ballot and cast that ballot for working class candidates.

Too little importance has been attached to the primaries in the past. On the result at the primaries depends largely the size of our vote at the regular election in November.

We have no contest on, but every class-conscious working man who has the good of his class at heart will go to the primaries next Tuesday and insist on voting for the Socialist candidates.

If you have never voted at a primary before, for your information remember the following instructions:

Ask the judges for a Socialist ballot. Then mark a cross before every name on that ballot. WEN YOU COME TO COMMON PLEAS JUDGES YOU WILL FIND TWO VACANT PLACES. YOU WILL, IN THOSE PLACES WRITE IN THE NAMES OF T. C. SOUTHARD AND CARLETON BERRY. These two are to take the places of two comrades resigned. DON'T FORGET THIS.

Last year we only polled 324 votes at the primaries, while our vote at the regular election for Councilmen was 4,200.

With a vote of 1,500 at the primaries we will poll 15,000 at the regular election. Don't let Tuesday pass without voting. VOTE BEFORE YOU GO TO WORK IN THE MORNING AND THIS WILL INSURE THAT YOUR VOTE WILL COUNT, because you might be compelled to work late, and miss the polls.

Once more we emphasize the importance of voting Tuesday at the primaries. SEE HOW BIG A VOTE WE CAN PILE UP.

On our vote Tuesday will depend whether plutocracy and brutes in human form shall begin to respect the workers or the same reign of terror in this county shall continue, as in the past.

SHOW YOUR COLORS TUESDAY AND BE RESPECTED, OR HANG BACK AND DESERVE THE CONTEMPT THE MASTERS FEEL FOR YOU.

CAPITALISTS PLUNGE WORLD INTO CARNAGE OF MURDER

Socialism is facing its greatest hour of combat with the tottering thrones of Europe, bulwarked by the capitalist enemies of the organized workers.

European capitalism is fomenting the pending pan-European campaign of wholesale murder as its only hope of checking, crushing and stamping out the continually growing and increasingly formidable rebellion against wage slavery.

If this carnival of carnage is averted it will be the achievement of International Socialism. No other power has raised its hand to stay the wanton slaughter. If this approaching horror, this blood-letting, this suffering, this attempted blow at civilization is checked at its start, then the unity of toil will have once more successfully spoken.

Nearly two years ago at the Extraordinary International Socialist Peace Congress held at Basil, Switzerland, during the Balkan War, the bloody fingers of anti-humanity were seen streaking their hope for war in unmistakable letters across a reddening sky.

The declaration of this congress, November 24-25, 1912, which stayed this war hope for nearly two years, was as follows:

"The Socialist parties of Austria-Hungary, Croatia, Slavonia and Herzegovinia must continue with all their strength their hitherto successful efforts to prevent any attack of the Austrian monarchy upon Servia. They must continue to oppose in the future as they have done up to the present any attempt to take by violence from Servia the fruits of war and to transform that country into an Austrian province and to embroil the peoples of Austria-Hungary and other nations of Europe in conflict in the interests of the ruling dynasty. The Socialists of Austria-Hungary will have to struggle in the future in favor of securing a complete autonomous democratic government for the whole of the Southern Slavs, now governed by the Hapsburg dynasty within the frontiers of Austria-Hungary."

Thus the International Socialist movement spoke. Servia is a haven of hope in Southern Europe. The liberties won by its peoples match the cruel oppression of the dual monarchy of Austria-Hungary as the freedom achieved by the United States challenges middle-aged Russia.

The South Slavs dream of a South Slavic republic. The Servians join in this dream and strive to make the dream real. Such success would mean the wreckage of Europe's trembling thrones and the scrapping of its tyrants' crowns.

It would mean the toiling masses, more united and more unshackled, approaching near to their emancipation, wage slavery a thing passing, and capitalism being abolished from the earth. Hence the effort to crush and annihilate Servia.

On the eve of the approaching conflict the International Socialist Bureau has been ordered to gather immediately at Brussels, Belgium, with the assemblage of the World's Socialist Congress at Vienna, the capital of the belligerent monarchy, less than one month away.

The Italian Socialists have issued a statement declaring that war would be useless and demanding the immediate convocation of Parliament to give the government an opportunity to guarantee that there will be no war, whatever happens.

Immediately the storm clouds broke, the German Socialists issued calls for mass meetings, their watchword being, "Down With War." Risking their lives, Socialists spread broadcast copies of Vorwaerts, the Berlin Socialist daily, freely mingling with the war-insane retainers of capitalism. German workers refused to doff their caps to huge portraits of Emperor Francis Joseph and Kaiser Wilhelm carried in procession by the blood-crazed enemies of progress.

Twenty-five thousand toilers made the streets of Paris alive with their manifestations against war which 2,000 police and a regiment of soldiers were unable to quell.

On the eve of this pending catastrophe to humanity Russia is facing a strike of 200,000 workers centered in its own capital of St. Petersburg; France is on the verge of a political upheaval, and Great Britain is threatened with civil war in Ulster.

It is felt that should the Italian government dare to issue an order of mobilization to help Austria, it is certain that a general revolution will break forth and upset the monarchy.

This is the situation as the Triple Alliance (Italy, Austria-Hungary, Germany) and the Triple Entente (Russia, France, England) are seeking to array one-half of Europe against the other half. The big question is, "Will the workers, led and inspired by those of their number organized into the Socialist party and the trade unions, permit themselves to be led to the shambles and sacrificed on the altar of greed in order that capitalism might endure for yet a few years?"

Lovers of mankind the world over are awaiting an answer.

With its membership of 100,000 and its voting strength of one million men, the American Socialist party should be a factor in stilling this Moloch's cry for blood. This nation is the home of men of every nationality. Representatives of the nations of Europe are to be found in every city, town and hamlet. The American Socialists can everywhere call mass meetings of peoples of all these nationalities, have good speakers decry the futility of hatred of man for man, and point out the brotherhood of all.

Europe's monarchs look to the United States for recruits to their human slaughter house. American Socialism should see that no victim crosses the seas in the mistaken hope that he is helping himself by going to his grave fighting the battles of European capitalism.—American Socialist.

CAPITALISM—A WARNING AND FAREWELL

O Masters, Lords, and Rulers in all lands, like the gladiators of old, salute Socialism, for you are about to die. And we shall assist you to commit your hara-kiri.

For the last time, ask us your lunatic questions about what Socialism purposes to do. About the destruction of "society"—your society—and "civilization"—your civilization. You, the destroyers!

Inquire with horror-stricken voices whether we intend a bloody revolution, and we answer that you are providing both the blood and the revolution. Consider now your work in Europe.

Ask if we intend to destroy property. Will there be any left to destroy after you get through?

Tell us that "it will never come in our time," and then set your wisest prophets predicting what the face of Europe will look like five years from now. It matters not about America. As goes Europe, so goes the world.

Trot out your idiotic sneers about the "catastrophic theory" of Socialism, and then reflect that you are providing the catastrophe. And it will be one for you, if we can make it so. Tell us something now about the "slow and painful process of evolution," just to pacify and refute us.

Do we mean destruction of religion? Has religion—your religion—saved you from starting universal murder?

Do we stand for confiscation? Surely we stand for it as much as you do now. You mean confiscation, but he who confiscates last confiscates best, and that will be us Socialists, after you have spent yourselves in trying to consummate your robbery.

How about preserving the home? Will there be any left to preserve in Europe after you get through? Why not ask us about building up new homes that you cannot destroy?

What about "anarchy" now? How about telling us—you, the preservers of Law and Order—that Socialism and what you called "anarchy" were the same thing? What about capitalism and "anarchy"? Where is the difference?

Socialism is the "end of all things," said one of your wisest advocates. Surely. And you and your system are the "things" it will end.

Do we Socialists believe in "dividing up"? What is your belief except that you can "divide up" the world? We don't believe you can, and we will show you. When this cruel war is over, you'll be over—and done with, too, if we can make it so.

How about the flag? Which one? Yours or the other fellows'? They will all come down, and the old red flag will fly over a united world. It's good enough for us, and it won't come down, either, if we can keep it flying.

Senile, doddering lunatics, we well knew that you would set the earth ablaze. And we shall see to it that your insane system perishes in the flames you have kindled.

You can't kill the working class, the world's proletariat. They are immortal. But they can kill your system, and they will. There will be plenty left to do it, even if they bleed one another white in fighting your battles first.

This is but a foreword to you. Our time is not yet arrived for talking, and when it is we shall do something more than talk.

Your only answer to us now is murder. You began with our Comrade Jaures. He was the first, but he will not be the last. Thousands of us may go down, but there will be enough, and more than enough, left to attend to your accursed unsocial system after the first spasm is over.

We see the city streets crowded with drunken, blood-crazed "patriots" yelling for war. We hear their frenzied shouts of "On to Berlin!"—or Paris or St. Petersburg or Vienna, as the case may be. We see the Socialist peace advocates smashed down in the streets like wild beasts for even being suspected of being out of sympathy with their madness and blood lust.

And we remember history. Those fateful days of 1870, when the same mob in Paris yelled: "On to Berlin!" and two months later were shrieking: "Nous commes trahis' Let us overthrow this government!" And they did,

And we bide our time, remembering the repetitions of history. Remembering that those you have driven to madness will be the first to turn on and rend you when war has finished their education. For that is what you are doing. Educating them for your own destruction.

You startedout to pacify labor unrest by bleeding labor on the battlefield. At the last, Labor, the aroused and immortal giant Labor, will bleed you. And you are preparing capitalism for the knife.

We are holding back Italy from the hecatomb, but not to save your system; rather, to assure its future destruction.

Yes, we see the heaps of slain, the millions of maimed and crippled, the desolated widows and the fatherless children, the hunger and the pestilence, the blazing fields and the devastated cities. But our period for mourning has passed. The inevitable has happened, and now we are watching while working and planning how to destroy your system, the curse of the world, beyond possibility of revival. We knew something like this was due. We didn't overlook it, though some of your alleged wisest insisted it was impossible even after it had started. Your difficulty is our opportunity, and we shall strain every nerve to make it so.

Lock up or slay multitudes of our leaders or spokesmen. Imprison, suppress or kill us by thousands. Take all the "measures for safety" you please. Your Day of Judgment is at hand, none the less. Socialism is the immortal avenger of humanity upon your system. And we bide our time.

The world of the future, in which you and yours have no place, will need no banker and financier spiders, no diplomatic liars, no military bullies, no blood-crazed mobs, no swaggering Kings, Czars and Kaisers. Humanity cannot only do without them, but will soon recognize them as its deadliest curse.

O Masters, Lords and Rulers in all lands! You have taken a chance—you had to—and we, the united working class of the world, shall see that it is your last. You have placed your fortune on a cast and now you shall stand the hazard of the die.

Make ready your death cry: Ave SOCIALISMUS! MORTURI SALUTANT!

BACK ON THE JOB.

When "The Socialist" did not appear last Saturday the phone began to ring about 9:30 and from that time on we have been busy answering the anxious inquiries of thousands of subscribers, informing them of the fact that we could not get the paper out because we lacked finance.

Many did not realize the seriousness of the situation until the familiar face of "The Socialist" did not appear on schedule time, when they immediately rushed to our aid with finance enough to give the paper this new lease of life.

Understand, we are not out of danger—not by a jugful. This resumption of publication is only temporary, unless you comrades who have pledged help make your payments promptly each week. Thousands of our subscribers can afford to donate 50 cents or $1.00 at this time to help out until September 1st or 15th, when we will be enabled to secure enough advertising to overcome the deficit in subscriptions.

There are hundreds of subscribers who, by a little extra effort, could get a club of four new subscribers, and in that way not only boost the circulation but HELP OUT NOW when the help is most urgently needed. No matter what you donate to help the sustainers' fund along we will see that you get subscribtion cards, which you can sell, and get your money back.

The hardest proposition the Socialist party has to maintain is to support their press. This paper is the mouthpiece of working class, and is absolutely unmuzzled, as numerous politicians in this state have discovered to their great discomfiture.

There are hundreds of things happening in a political way in this county and city right now that would be of inestimable value to the working class party had we the means of employing some one to look after them.

Dark and devious are the ways of capitalism and with the voice of "The Socialist" stilled forever capitalism will become ever more and more rampant, until the working class will be ground down even lower than at present.

Do you want to see this paper live to fulfill its mission? Do you want to see it regularly each week from now on? Then bring in or mail in your contribution today. We positively must have a sustainers' fund of $25.00 per week until September 15th, at which time we believe we can go it alone.

Think what a small matter this is. Think what a little it takes to keep the paper in the field. TEN CENTS A WEEK FROM THE MEMBERS OF THE PARTY ALONE WILL GIVE US A FUND OF $30.00 PER WEEK. And don't be afraid to bring in 5 cents if you can spare no more. IT ALL HELPS.

This article is intended, not as a reflection on any one, because we here at the helm realize probably better than you the deplorable condition of the working class at this time. Thousands upon thousands are out of work, or only working part time, and it does seem that they have reached the limit of their endurance.

But it is an old saying that it is always "darkest before dawn," and if our comrades and sympathizers out on the firing line will only close up the ranks now and help bear the burden "The Socialist" will endeavor to do its share to usher in the great and beautiful light that will flood the oppressed workers with its warmth and sunshine—Socialism.

HOW MUCH WILL YOU PLEDGE YOURSELF TO PAY EACH WEEK UNTIL SEPTEMBER 15TH? COME IN AND TALK IT OVER.

WE have special Bargains to offer—Both in Residence and Rental Property.

REV. LOWE SEEMS TO TO BE WAKING UP.

Last Sunday evening Rev. Lowe, Pastor 4th Ave. Church of Christ, using as his text the 7th verse of the 1st Chap. of John, gave an interpretation of Socialism as he sees it from the small amount of light that has evidently reached him.

"Socialism is against the exploitation of women and children," he said, "and the church is also." The Socialists and the Church should understand each other better.

Socialists can agree with him when he said "Socialists believe that the workers should have more of their product." We do, Rev.; we do. We believe we should have ALL our product. Anything short of that is unjust, and in direct conflict with the biblical injunction in Eccl. 3-13.

The Rev. said he did not believe in class consciousness, as it leads to class hatred, and it will bring around disastrous results in the near future.

Continuing he said, "Socialists believe every one should have an equal opportunity and be rewarded according to his needs. In this position, he said, the Church could say to the Socialists Amen."

In olden times the robber would meet you and stick a gun in your face and say your money or your life. Today the Capitalists do the same thing in a legalized way by owning the means of life, he says.

The Socialists were out in force to the meeting and all expressed themselves as well satisfied with the fairness with which Rev. Lowe handled the question. He did not attack us as most do with the time worn arguments "that Socialists are agin religion," "athiests" and etc. If someone will hand up 50c we will put the Rev. on the sub list for one year.

BATES SENTENCED TO 60 DAYS.

Bates' motion for a new trial was overruled by Judge Osborn in Police Court last Wednesday. He imposed a fine of $200.00 and 60 days in the county jail. Comrade Bates gave bond for appeal and the case will be carried to a higher court.

THE GOOD SAMARITANS.
U. G. Risan.

The working men of the world are like a certain man that went down to Jerico. The capitalists sent strike-breakers, thugs, and gunmen, and robbed them, wounded them, and killed them. The Republican party came, looked at them and passed by them; the Democratic party has buttoned up its cloak and looked at them and passed by on oher side. Left them dying.

But a certain Good Samaritan Socialist party as they journeyed took compassion on them, came to their relief by finance, helped them, gave alms and took care of them. Which now of these three parties thinkest thou, was neighbor unto the workers that fell among the thieves. Socialist party, sure. Then go to the polls and do likewise; vote the Socialist ticket. Help your brother workers who have fallen among hieves; take them and put them on the beast; put them on the beast; take them to take them to the Inn (Washington) and put Gog and Magog into the pit, and Jesus will come to reign in Satan stead.

Sure enough! We were not mistaken when we conjectured that the assassin of Prince Ferdinand of Austria, would be duly classified as a Socialist by organs of plutocracy and privilege in this country. The New York Tribune has started the falshood in motion. "Slayer a' Servian Socialist!" screams the Tribune in black headlines and goes on to explain in the story that follows that Prinsip was "much concerned in socialistic activities" and at the same time quotes him as boasting: "I am a nationalist," and that he has been "yearning to kill a ruler or a prince." There is bright and enterprising newspaper work for you. Here is an alleged molder of public opinion such a [illegible], ignorant, braying ass that it muddies its own puddle by contradicting its own charge in connected pantences. The stupidity and mendacity of capitalistic sheets in their understanding and interpretation of current political thought and movements is positively ludicrous. Here is a Servian ruling and propertied class bitterly resenting the annexation of Herzgovnia by the Austrian rulers and Prinsip is used as a tool by capitalistic conspirators to strike a blow in behalf of resorting their domination of the principality. Can any person outside of a bughouse conceive of a Socialist anywhere engaging in a killing for the purpose of substituting one bunch of tyrants for another? The fact is that every political assassin, although always referred to as a Socialist, has always been identified with capitalistic politics, and no Socialist anywhere has ever engaged in the pastime of murdering rulers. Still The Tribune's lie will travel.

If you have money you may boss others and they will work for you. If you lack money others boss you and you work for them. It is not right to uphold slavery in the hope that you may become a master.

When you can't find work, and the grocer shuts off credit, and the children cry for something to eat, just explain to them that the present "business depression is psychological," and, of course, they'll stop crying right off. If they don't, you might write to the President and ask him what to do next.

FORD FOUR-FLUSHER.

Henry Ford, with a blare of trumpets, announced that he intended to pay his help $5.00 per day. Five nice, big, round, glorious bucks for every day they worked in his slave pen, and produced him an average of $40.00. This action was hailed with delight by millions of wage slaves from all over this glorious land, and they began to migrate towards Detroit by thousands. Every freight train brought them. They walked, rode and ran to get there to pinch one of those dreamy $5.00 per day melons. They came in such numbers that Ford ordered the hose turned on them during a bitter cold winter day to keep them away from his plant.

When pay day came, the Ford slaves discovered that there was a "fly in the ointment," that only a few were to receive $5.00 per day. The single men did not come in on the melon cutting.

It has been said that the workers can't think, but one of them put his noodle to work and decided that HE would come in on this good thing. Consequently he got his sister-in-law to act as his wife. It worked fine. He drew his $5.00 per day until Ford's detectives discovered the true situation, which made Ford so mad that he fired him and then brought suit to recover the difference between what he was worth as a single man and what he was worth as a married man, the sum of $365.00.

The jury disagreed.

Tell advertisers you saw their ad. in The Socialist.

MASTER AND WORKER.

The master uses the private car; the workers ride the rods.

The master speeds an automobile that the worker made and never enjoys.

The master eats the choice things the worker produces and cannot afford to buy.

The master sends his son to college; and because he is master of the worker's products, the worker cannot send his son to school.

The master's wife dresses in the beautiful fabric the worker has produced; and the worker's wife wears shabby stuff.

The master tells the worker to do the things he wishes. The worker does not get to do what he likes.

The master "employs" the worker because the worker cannot use the tools the master owns on any other basis; and the master never employes a man unless there is a prospect of profit in the transaction.

AS AMENDED.

"Mose," asked the magistrate, "what made you hit the man?"

"Well, Jedge," answered the old negro earnestly, "he call me a wooly-headed fool. Wouldn't you hit a man what call you a wooly-headed fool?"

"No one could call me that," the Judge answered tolerantly. "I'm not wooly-headed."

"Well, den," persisted the old darkey, "ef he call you the kin' of fool you is."—Exchange.

We would like once more to urge on our readers to support our advertisers. With the present "psychological" hard times, and its resultant curtailment of expenses, "The Socialist" is hit harder than any other paper. This condition could be turned into profit for the paper if all our subscribers would insist on buying only from those who advertise in The Socialist. Not only can this be done, but hundreds of merchants all over town who have been getting your patronage could be persuaded to advertise if you would speak to them about it.

Have a talk with your grocer, butcher, milk man, ice man. Get their adv. and watch the columns of the paper and make all purchases from advertisers.

We are making it as good as you will allow. Whenever the workers support their own press as valiantly as they do the master's press we will be able to do really big things for the emancipation of the workers. In the meantime, we are forging ahead conscious of the fact that our cause is just, that right will finally triumph, and the workers step forth emancipated from the age-long servitude to a robber, master class.

VOTE AT THE PRIMARIES

Next Tuesday, August 11th, you will have an opportunity to once more show your colors.....At the ballot box Tuesday you will have the opportunity to walk to the voting booth, and ask for a Socialist ballot and cast that ballot for working class candidates.

Too little importance has been attached to the primaries in the past. On the result at the primaries depends largely the size of our vote at the regular election in November.

We have no contest on, but every class-conscious working man who has the good of his class at heart will go to the primaries next Tuesday and insist on voting for the Socialist candidates.

If you have never voted at a primary before, for your information remember the following instructions:

Ask the judges for a Socialist ballot. Then mark a cross before every name on that ballot. WEN YOU COME TO COMMON PLEAS JUDGES YOU WILL FIND TWO VACANT PLACES. YOU WILL, IN THOSE PLACES WRITE IN THE NAMES OF T. C. SOUTHARD AND CARLETON BERRY. These two are to take the places of two comrades resigned. DON'T FORGET THIS.

Last year we only polled 324 votes at the primaries, while our vote at the regular election for Councilmen was 4,200.

With a vote of 1,500 at the primaries we will poll 15,000 at the regular election. Don't let Tuesday pass without voting. VOTE BEFORE YOU GO TO WORK IN THE MORNING AND THIS WILL INSURE THAT YOUR VOTE WILL COUNT, because you might be compelled to work late, and miss the polls.

Once morg we emphasize the importance of voting Tuesday at the primaries. SEE HOW BIG A VOTE WE CAN PILE UP.

On our vote Tuesday will depend whether plutocracy and brutes in human form shall begin to respect the workers or the same reign of terror in this county shall continue, as in the past.

SHOW YOUR COLORS TUESDAY AND BE RESPECTED, OR HANG BACK AND DESERVE THE CONTEMPT THE MASTERS FEEL FOR YOU.

CAPITALISTS PLUNGE WORLD INTO CARNAGE OF MURDER

Socialism is facing its greatest hour of combat with the tottering thrones of Europe, bulwarked by the capitalist enemies of the organized workers.

European capitalism is fomenting the pending pan-European campaign of wholesale murder as its only hope of checking, crushing and stamping out the continually growing and increasingly formidable rebellion against wage slavery.

If this carnival of carnage is averted it will be the achievement of International Socialism. No other power has raised its hand to stay the wanton slaughter. If this approaching horror, this blood-letting, this suffering, this attempted blow at civilization is checked at its start, then the unity of toil will have once more successfully spoken.

Nearly two years ago at the Extraordinary International Socialist Peace Congress held at Basil, Switzerland, during the Balkan War, the bloody fingers of anti-humanity were seen streaking their hope for war in unmistakable letters across a reddening sky.

The declaration of this congress, November 24-25, 1912, which stayed this war hope for nearly two years, was as follows:

"The Socialist parties of Austria-Hungary, Croatia, Slavonia and Herzegovinia must continue with all their strength their hitherto successful efforts to prevent any attack of the Austrian monarchy upon Servia. They must continue to oppose in the future as they have done up to the present any attempt to take by violence from Servia the fruits of war and to transform that country into an Austrian province and to embroil the peoples of Austria-Hungary and other nations of Europe in conflict in the interests of the ruling dynasty. The Socialists of Austria-Hungary will have to struggle in the future in favor of securing a complete autonomous democratic government for the whole of the Southern Slavs, now governed by the Hapsburg dynasty within the frontiers of Austria-Hungary."

Thus the International Socialist movement spoke. Servia is a haven of hope in Southern Europe. The liberties won by its peoples match the cruel oppression of the dual monarchy of Austria-Hungary as the freedom achieved by the United States challenges middle-aged Russia.

The South Slavs dream of a South Slavic republic. The Servians join in this dream and strive to make the dream real. Such success would mean the wreckage of Europe's trembling thrones and the scrapping of its tyrants' crowns.

It would mean the toiling masses, more united and more unshackled, approaching near to their emancipation, wage slavery a thing passing, and capitalism being abolished from the earth. Hence the effort to crush and annihilate Servia.

On the eve of the approaching conflict the International Socialist Bureau has been ordered to gather immediately at Brussels, Belgium, with the assemblage of the World's Socialist Congress at Vienna, the capital of the belligerent monarchy, less than one month away.

The Italian Socialists have issued a statement declaring that war would be useless and demanding the immediate convocation of Parliament to give the government an opportunity to guarantee that there will be no war, whatever happens.

Immediately the storm clouds broke, the German Socialists issued calls for mass meetings, their watchword being, "Down With War." Risking their lives, Socialists spread broadcast copies of Vorwaerts, the Berlin Socialist daily, freely mingling with the war-insane retainers of capitalism. German workers refused to doff their caps to huge portraits of Emperor Francis Joseph and Kaiser Wilhelm carried in procession by the blood-crazed enemies of progress.

Twenty-five thousand toilers made the streets of Paris alive with their manifestations against war which 2,000 police and a regiment of soldiers were unable to quell.

On the eve of this pending catastrophe to humanity Russia is facing a strike of 200,000 workers centered in its own capital of St. Petersburg; France is on the verge of a political upheaval, and Great Britain is threatened with civil war in Ulster.

It is felt that should the Italian government dare to issue an order of mobilization to help Austria, it is certain that a general revolution will break forth and upset the monarchy.

This is the situation as the Triple Alliance (Italy, Austria-Hungary, Germany) and the Triple Entente (Russia, France, England) are seeking to array one-half of Europe against the other half. The big question is, "Will the workers, led and inspired by those of their number organized into the Socialist party and the trade unions, permit themselves to be led to the shambles and sacrificed on the altar of greed in order that capitalism might endure for yet a few years?"

Lovers of mankind the world over are awaiting an answer.

With its membership of 100,000 and its voting strength of one million men, the American Socialist party should be a factor in stilling this Moloch's cry for blood. This nation is the home of men of every nationality. Representatives of the nations of Europe are, to be found in every city, town and hamlet. The American Socialists can everywhere call mass meetings of peoples of all these nationalities, have good speakers decry the futility of hatred of man for man, and point out the brotherhood of all.

Europe's monarchs look to the United States for recruits to their human slaughter house. American Socialism should see that no victim crosses the seas in the mistaken hope that he is helping himself by going to his grave fighting the battles of European capitalism.—American Socialist.

CAPITALISM—A WARNING AND FAREWELL

O Masters, Lords, and Rulers in all lands, like the gladiators of old, salute Socialism, for you are about to die. And we shall assist you to commit your hara-kiri.

For the last time, ask us your lunatic questions about what Socialism purposes to do. About the destruction of "society"—your society—and "civilization"—your civilization. You, the destroyers!

Inquire with horror-stricken voices whether we intend a bloody revolution, and we answer that you are providing both the blood and the revolution. Consider now your work in Europe.

Ask if we intend to destroy property. Will there be any left to destroy after you get through?

Tell us that "it will never come in our time," and then set your wisest prophets predicting what the face of Europe will look like five years from now. It matters not about America. As goes Europe, so goes the world.

Trot out your idiotic sneers about the "catastrophic theory" of Socialism, and then reflect that you are providing the catastrophe. And it will be one for you, if we can make it so. Tell us something now about the "slow and painful process of evolution," just to pacify and refute us.

Do we mean destruction of religion? Has religion—your religion—saved you from starting universal murder?

Do we stand for confiscation? Surely we stand for it as much as you do now. You mean confiscation, but he who confiscates last confiscates best, and that will be us Socialists, after you have spent yourselves in trying to consummate your robbery.

How about preserving the home? Will there be any left to preserve in Europe after you get through? Why not ask us about building up new homes that you cannot destroy?

What about "anarchy" now? How about telling us—you, the preservers of Law and Order—that Socialism and what you called "anarchy" were the same thing? What about capitalism and "anarchy"? Where is the difference?

Socialism is the "end of all things," said one of your wisest advocates. Surely. And you and your system are the "things" it will end.

Do we Socialists believe in "dividing up"? What is your belief except that you can "divide up" the world?' We don't believe you can, and we will show you. When this cruel war is over, you'll be over—and done with, too, if we can make it so.

How about the flag? Which one? Yours or the other fellows'? They will all come down, and the old red flag will fly over a united world. It's good enough for us, and it won't come down, either, if we can keep it flying.

Senile, doddering lunatics, we well knew that you would set the earth ablaze. And we shall see to it that your insane system perishes in the flames you have kindled.

You can't kill the working class, the world's proletariat. They are immortal. But they can kill your system, and they will. There will be plenty left to do it, even if they bleed one another white in fighting your battles first.

This is but a foreword to you. Our time is not yet arrived for talking, and when it is we shall do something more than talk.

Your only answer to us now is murder. You began with our Comrade Jaures. He was the first, but he will not be the last. Thousands of us may go down, but there will be enough, and more than enough, left to attend to your accursed unsocial system after the first spasm is over.

We see the city streets crowded with drunken, blood-crazed "patriots" yelling for war. We hear their frenzied shouts of "On to Berlin!"—or Paris or St. Petersburg or Vienna, as the case may be. We see the Socialist peace advocates smashed down in the streets like wild beasts for even being suspected of being out of sympathy with their madness and blood lust.

And we remember history. Those fateful days of 1870, when the same mob in Paris yelled: "On to Berlin!" and two months later were shrieking: "Nous commes trahis' Let us overthrow this government!" And they did.

And we bide our time, remembering the repetitions of history. Remembering that those you have driven to madness will be the first to turn on and rend you when war has finished their education. For that is what you are doing. Educating them for your own destruction.

You startedout to pacify labor unrest by bleeding labor on the battlefield. At the last, Labor, the aroused and immortal giant Labor, will bleed you. And you are preparing capitalism for the knife.

We are holding back Italy from the hecatomb, but not to save your system; rather, to assure its future destruction.

Yes, we see the heaps of slain, the millions of maimed and crippled, the desolated widows and the fatherless children, the hunger and the pestilence, the blazing fields and the devastated cities. But our period for mourning has passed. The inevitable has happened, and now we are watching while working and planning how to destroy your system, the curse of the world, beyond possibility of revival. We knew something like this was due. We didn't overlook it, though some of your alleged wisest insisted it was impossible even after it had started. Your difficulty is our opportunity, and we shall strain every nerve to make it so.

Lock up or slay multitudes of our leaders or spokesmen. Imprison, suppress or kill us by thousands. Take all the "measures for safety" you please. Your Day of Judgment is at hand, none the less. Socialism is the immortal avenger of humanity upon your system. And we bide our time.

The world of the future, in which you and yours have no place, will need no banker and financier spiders, no diplomatic liars, no military bullies, no blood-crazed mobs, no swaggering Kings, Czars and Kaisers. Humanity cannot only do without them, but will soon recognize them as its deadliest curse.

O Masters, Lords and Rulers in all lands! You have taken a chance—you had to—and we, the united working class of the world, shall see that it is your last. You have placed your fortune on a cast and now you shall stand the hazard of the die.

Make ready your death cry: Ave SOCIALISMUS! MORTURI SALUTANT!

BACK ON THE JOB.

When "The Socialist" did not appear last Saturday the phone began to ring about 9:30 and from that time on we have been busy answering the anxious inquiries of thousands of subscribers, informing them of the fact that we could not get the paper out because we lacked finance.

Many did not realize the seriousness of the situation until the familiar face of "The Socialist" did not appear on schedule time, when they immediately rushed to our aid with finance enough to give the paper this new lease of life.

Understand, we are not out of danger—not by a jugful. This resumption of publication is only temporary, unless you comrades who have pledged help make your payments promptly each week. Thousands of our subscribers can afford to donate 50 cents or $1.00 at this time to help out until September 1st or 15th, when we will be enabled to secure enough advertising to overcome the deficit in subscriptions.

There are hundreds of subscribers who, by a little extra effort, could get a club of four new subscribers, and in that way not only boost the circulation but HELP OUT NOW when the help is most urgently needed. No matter what you donate to help the sustainers' fund along we will see that you get subscribtion cards, which you can sell, and get your money back.

The hardest proposition the Socialist party has to maintain is to support their press. This paper is the mouthpiece of working class, and is absolutely unmuzzled, as numerous politicians in this state have discovered to their great discomfiture.

There are hundreds of things happening in a political way in this county and city right now that would be of inestimable value to the working class party had we the means of employing some one to look after them.

Dark and devious are the ways of capitalism and with the voice of "The Socialist" stilled forever capitalism will become ever more and more rampant, until the working class will be ground down even lower than at present.

Do you want to see this paper live to fulfill its mission? Do you want to see it regularly each week from now on? Then bring in or mail in your contribution today. We positively must have a sustainers' fund of $25.00 per week until September 15th, at which time we believe we can go it alone.

Think what a small matter this is. Think what a little it takes to keep the paper in the field. TEN CENTS A WEEK FROM THE MEMBERS OF THE PARTY ALONE WILL GIVE US A FUND OF $30.00 PER WEEK. And don't be afraid to bring in 5 cents if you can spare no more. IT ALL HELPS.

This article is intended, not as a reflection on any one, because we here at the helm realize probably better than you the deplorable condition of the working class at this time. Thousands upon thousands are out of work, or only working part time, and it does seem that they have reached the limit of their endurance.

But it is an old saying that it is always "darkest before dawn," and if our comrades and sympathizers out on the firing line will only close up the ranks now and help bear the burden "The Socialist" will endeavor to do its share to usher in the great and beautiful light that will flood the oppressed workers with its warmth and sunshine—Socialism.

HOW MUCH WILL YOU PLEDGE YOURSELF TO PAY EACH WEEK UNTIL SEPTEMBER 15TH? COME IN AND TALK IT OVER.

COMRADE JAURES ASSASSINATED.

Another brutal crime against the working class has been perpetrated by the capitalist class. Last week Comrade Jean Jaures, one of the most forceful men in the international Socialist movement, was assassinated in cold blood while eating in a cafe in Paris.

The work was undoubtedly done under the direction of French capitalists who have been howling for war. Comrade Jaures had just returned from an international peace conference of the Socialist party, where steps were taken to, if possible, prevent the bloody capitalists from plunging the working class of the world into a carnage of murder.

As a result another atrocious crime can be checked up against the capitalist system, which stops at nothing to carry forward its heinous designs.

Comrade Jaures is dead, BUT HIS WORK LIVES ON. The record of achievement he leaves behind will serve as a ghost to haunt the capitalists of the world, until their damnable system is ushered out and buried by an awakened working class of the world.

"VIVE LA JAURES."

A DEAD SOCIALIST IS A GOOD SOCIALIST

According to capitalist papers the only good Socialist is a dead one. Last week Comrade Jaures of France, who was assassinated, presumably by order of French capitalists, who want war, was eulogized as follows in the Columbus Dispatch:

A PEACE CHAMPION SLAIN.

"The assassination of the French Socialist leader, M. Jaures, appears to be an incident of the present controversy for and against war. A youth, fired with the jingo spirit and angered by the Socialists' strong pronouncement for peace, shot him as he sat, unsuspecting attack. It was a cowardly crime for which there is no adequate punishment. Assassination is never to be excused, but it would much better be directed against the men high in European authority who are now directing affairs so as to cause without reason slaughter of hundreds of thousands of their fellows.

"Many of the theories of M. Jaures were not acceptable, but in his efforts against war, he had the support of an increasing multitude of the people whom it has been customary for monarchs to feed as will to the flames of international strife. That he should have died for that belief will cause him to be long and lovingly remembered."

While Jean Jaures was alive and using his great talent and personality to free the working class of the world, capitalist papers could find for him no word of commendation, but now that his voice can no longer be raised in behalf of the toiling millions of all countries, he was (according to these same sheets) "a noble man" because they now feel a sense of relief that he will no longer be able to attack their rotten citadel of capitalism.

It will be noted that the Dispatch editorial is so worded that it endorses assassination. It says: "Assassination is never to be excused, BUT IT WOULD BETTER BE DIRECTED AGAINST THE MEN HIGH IN EUROPEAN AUTHORITY," and etc.

The Socialist position is THAT ASSASSINATION IS NEVER TO BE EXCUSED, and there are no "buts" included.

As long as the system endures that allows one man to own another's job, the mere removal of a capitalistic despot will not help matters.

When triumphant Socialism finally ushers in the day of peace and happiness for all mankind, and has peacefully removed all despots and tyrants to the workshops and factories, and put them to work earning their own bread, then assassination will be unknown and men and women will call each other "my brother" and "my sister" and in those days it will be known that Jean Jaures did not die in vain.

A FEW—WHY?

For what is government instituted? Why do we have governments at all? These are the questions to put to those who claim to believe in individualism and are opposed to co-operation or Socialism. They will probably reply that governments were instituted to protect the weak against the strong. This being true the question naturally arises as to HOW FAR should a government go in giving said protection? If the people can band togethe rto prevent a marauding tribe from devastating its country, can it not also prevent the robbery of the weaker members by the stronger? If we can take charge of the transmission of the means of communication (postoffice) why should we not own the telegraphs, telephones and railroads? If we have a right to prevent the theft of goods have we not a right to prevent the confiscation of the labor of our citizens by rent, interest and profit? If the city can protect its property by having a fire department, why not protection of its citizens against the extortions of the coal barons by the establishment of municipal coal yards? If it was wrong for the barons of old to collect tribute off the people, by what right has the present day business men to collect tribute from the workers in the form of interest, rent and profit? If it is wrong, as ALL concede, for the trusts to charge us enormous profits would it be easier to pay the same amount to a smaller concern?

If the workers produce all the wealth why do so many working men and their wives go hungry and ragged while the idlers live in luxury? If the private ownership of the fire department in Cincinnati in the early days was not to the best interest of the people, why is the private ownership of hospitals a good thing? If the public ownership of the streets is good for the people, why should a corporation (street car company) have control of the most practical means of transportation over same? If the toll-gates erected on the private roads were wrong why are not the present toll-gates (profits) wrong? If the government has a right to protect the property held by the coal operators, why not extend this right to guarantee those who live by working said mines an opportunity to live without the consent of said operators? If a city can furnish its people with PURE water at a much lower rate than a private corporation would furnish IMPURE water, why should the city furnish us with pure food and help solve "The High Cost of Living" problem? If a city can furnish street sweepers, why can it not furnish street builders and thereby cut out the contractor's graft? If it can build stables to shelter its horses, why cannot it build houses to shelter its people?

From these comparisons you can readily see that the possibilities of a government to help its citizens is practically limitless. A government, whether municipal, state or national, should have the right to do anything a citizen, firm or corporation could do. What we now need is a government by the people and for the people, and not one by commission and for ($5,000 or $6,000 per year) commission as we now have in Ohio.

"JUSTICE" IS BLIND

The following letter was found in the "mail bag" of "The Columbus Dispatch" a few days ago.

The writer, who signs himself "Justice," evidently don't know that our RICH, honorable(?) and respectable church-going Christians don't believe in God or Justice. They believe only in the God almighty dollar, and the wage slaves of this land can rot in hell before these "respectables" turn a finger over to help them.

Besides if "Justice" and his "down and out" friend thought enough of themselves and families to vote the Socialist ticket, they wouldn't be compelled to get down on their knees and beg for "charity." Evidently "Justice" and his "friend" are good old party voters, and they are now getting what they voted for, so, "we should worry."

Vote an old party ticket and then beg your boss for charity.

Vote the Socialist ticket, "Justice," and you will GET Justice. Don't be blind.

The letter follows:

To the Editor of The Dispatch.

Sir: Will you kindly allow me a little space in your valuable paper for a closing plea in behalf of the man down and out. My object is not to criticise my critics or to prolong the controversy. It was to arouse the interest of the well-to-do people of Columbus and elsewhere in behalf of these poor men, who could be saved and made useful members of society and successful men if they had the chance. That was my main object in writing these articles, but so far I have not met with success. The well-to-do and rich people don't seem to care, at least not enough to help. My poor friend is still out of a job and his creditors are pressing him hard and making life miserable for him. He is fast becoming a nervous wreck, and is unfit to look for a position in his present mental state, and I tremble when I think of him.

Out yonder in the great univgrse, the Eternal God is silently watching, watching you, O rich man, and He is weighing every act and thought of yours and some day sooner or later you are going to be called into His presence and you will have a fearful account to render to the Eternal Justice for the way you have treated your poor brother here. Get busy and do something. Don't sit around moralizing and criticising and pitying. Get busy with your check book and help these people now. Show the world that you are living the religion you profess. Don't blaspheme the name of God any longer by calling yourself Christians, but prove to the world that you are actually what you claim to be. Here is your chance now, and if you want to help save a few souls from going down forever, get busy now.

I don't know or care what you believe, but if you believe in God at all, you must believe what He says, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

JUSTICE.

GLASS WORKERS HOLD MAGNIFICENT CONVENTION

The strike of the employees of the Federal Glass Company on Innis Avenue organized by the American Flint Glass Union still presents a solid front to the enemy. The strike has been in progress over one year and the men are just as loyal to their principles as on the first day they struck.

At the recent convention of the A. F. G. W. U. in Rochester, Pa., the convention voted to center all their efforts on Columbus to unionize the Federal plant.

The convention was the most successful ever held by the trade and took a progressive stand on labor matters. An incident of the meeting was the appearance of Saffo Miller, the notorious scab, who came spying around, trying to learn something to carry to his masters.

They don't stand for scabs in Rochester, and the Chief of Police gave the buzzard just one hour to get out of town. HE GOT.

Stirring scenes were enacted during the extra sessions on Saturday and, despite the fact that every attempt was made to expeditiously dispose of all the business before the house, it was 11:15 p. m. when the convention was finally declared adjourned sine die by President Rowe.

Enthusiasm was rampant during the election of officers and all the speeches of the various officials acknowledging the confidence placed in them by the delegates as evidenced by their re-election, were greeted with vociferous applause.

A handsome increase in salary was voted to President Rowe, Secretary Clarke and Assistant Secretary Shipman, the figures as finally adopted by the convention after a somewhat prolonged debate being $3,300, $2,700 and $1,500, respectively. This is an increase of $300 per year for Rowe, $600 for Clarke and $200 for Shipman. The increase was granted by a vote of 180 1-3 to 88 2-3, the yea and nay vote being called on the proposition.

In line with the suggestion made in President's Rowe's report, Vice President Croke, whose health is seriously impaired, preventing him from filling the active duties of his office, was continued in his position, it being understood that Gillooly will relinquish the place should Croke ultimately be able to resume his duties.

From all appearances the delegates were men of good, clean character with a respect for order and decency that forbids even the occasional exception that is so often noticeable in large gatherings.

Although the Flints have a well known reputation for orderliness and respect for the rights of others, their manly conduct and excellent deportment amounted to almost a revelation, because before they came, there was speculation in some circles as to how the crowd would be cared for and order maintained. The delegates, to a man, seem to hold the highest ideals of organized labor, which is fairness and justice for employe and employer, and they waste no time in wrangling over imagined grievances, although there is ever a willingness to hear complaints that come in the proper way from a reliable source concerning any local or member of the national body. Discipline in the organization is good and the delegates have great respect for the wisdom and fairness of the national officers.

Saloons failed to attract many of the delegates during their stay. Nor was there evidence to show that this was the fault of the saloons. The fact is the Flints have shown that they do not mix business with booze. While some members take their glass of beer, some perhaps stronger, the A. F. G. W. U. is not an organization of boozers and their behavior is no less an honor to the Beaver Valley than a credit to themselves.

THE GOD THAT IS ASKED TO AID CAPITAL

After a really able editorial diagnosis of what the European conflagration means to American capital and industry, our esteemed contemporary, the Tribune, concludes with the following counsel of despair:

> As we cannot escape, therefore, contributing our share to pay for the appalling destruction of capital which a modern war between first-class powers entails, it behooves us at least to add our prayers to millions now rising from European lips that peace, or partial peace, may yet prevail.

Whatever may be thought of the efficacy of prayer, all agree that when it is indulged in it is an avowal and recognition that human power and intelligence have reached their limit, and that now nothing but supernatural aid can right matters. It is a complete throwing up of the sponge, so far as the human intellect is concerned.

And to this lame and impotent conclusion we come as regards capital and capitalism! After the multitude of learned economic treatises proving the system resting on them to be eternal decrees of God and Nature; after all the wise utterances of statesmen, politicians, editors and reformers, this is what we come to at last! We must take refuge in prayer. We must go back to the Unknowable, the Incomprehensible, the Power that passeth all understanding, or, as scoffers might say, to the medicine men, the incantations, charms, magic and black witchcraft of past ages of ignorance, helplessness and credulity.

But granting the efficacy of prayer, how is it going to help matters? If all Europe was unanimous and sincere in praying against war and for the salvation of capital, it would no doubt be efficacious enough, or at least there would be no war. But Europe isn't that way. There are other millions of European lips right now praying God to bless war and murder in their interests and for the salvation of their capital and the destruction of the other fellow's. Just look at the miserable Czar and his ikons, the pious Kaiser Wilhelm and his religious services, the senile old dotard on the Austrian throne dribbling his petitions to the Almighty to permit him to draw his sword in his old age and avenge his honor. What is ascending to the Throne of Grace from Europe today is a weltering babel of contradictory petitions that might well stump and confuse even an Omnipotent Being. To whom shall He listen? The sincere advocates of peace or the equally sincere advocates of war or the immense crowd of hypocrites, confusionists and terrorized imbeciles that don't really know what they want, but proclaim themselves willing to take anything He may send?

God helps those who help themselves, says the old proverb, and the capitalists have helped themselves liberally. Helped themselves to "capital" wrenched from the blood and sweat, the toil and agony, the torture and death of hundreds of millions of their fellows.

But God help the capitalists and their system, say we, the working men, if we can hand them the final, destroying smash in this crisis. He will need to help them, indeed. But we will see to it, if possible, that He doesn't, or induce Him to change His mind.

Anyhow, the God of the capitalists, who would supposedly protect their foul, stinking and bloodsmeared capital, and accept their blaspremous prayers, isn't our God, or, indeed, any God whatever. Such a being has no existence. He is simply a creation of their degraded and disordered minds, and it is not atheism to say so either.—New York Call.

NO, IT ISN'T YOURS.

Never mind if gold is going by millions every day to Europe. It won't hurt you, and it isn't yours anyhow. Our bankers, who are all honorable men, never fail in their duty, to provide the sinews of war when called upon. The common herd only give their carcasses, but these gentlemen give gold to measure out "the sum of all human villainies."

CAPITALISM.

That the welfare of the working men of America should depend, even to the slightest degree, upon the condition of the New York Stock Exchange is one of the anomalies of capitalism.

Can anything more crude, more wicked, more absolutely unjustifiable or more asinine be imagined?

If it could, there doubtless are those who would want to have it tried.

WAS JEFFERSON AN ANARCHIST?

If that great Democrat, Thomas Jefferson, were living today, he would be consigned to jail as an anarchist or an I. W. W. It has always been the practice of the House of Have to villify, defame and prosecute those who were not satisfied with the existing arrangements. The present worshipers of the capitalistic Billikin—the God of things as they are—never fail to fling their curses at the working class when the slaves revolt against the hellish conditions forced upon them. Even when hired gunmen are turned loose upon those who toil—when they shoot and club the men, women and children who must sell themselves to capitalist masters—our well-fed bosses profess horror at forcible resistance. Here's what Jefferson, the Democratic idol, said in a letter to James Madison: "I hold it that a little rebellion now and then is a good thing, and as necessary in the political world as storms in the physical." And then in a letter to Colonel Smith, he uses these words: "What country ever before existed a century and a half without a rebellion? And what country can preserve its liberties if its rulers are not warned from time to time that this people preserve the spirit of resistance. Let them take arms. The remedy is to set them right as to the facts, pardon and pacify them. What signify a few lives lost in a century or two? The tree of liberty must be refreshened from time to time with blood of patriots and tyrants. It is its natural manure." As we bow with tear-stained faces over the graves of our comrades who met death on Cabin and Paint Creeks, at Ludlow and Calumet, let us take consolation in the fact that their blood is nourishing the tree of liberty. It remains for us to guard and protect this tree, and in turn to offer our blood that it may continue to grow and flourish. The world has never known a tyranny more heartless than the tyranny of capitalism. The task that lies before the working class is to wrest the political power from the masters. When that is accomplished, we will for the first time in history, have a real government of the people, by the people, for the people.

YOUNG PEOPLE CAN HELP "SOCIALIST WEEK."

By J. Adrian Rogers.

"Socialist Week" is drawing near.

During these seven days exceptional efforts will be made to build up the Socialist Party and to secure new subscribers for Socialist papers.

In this work the Young People's Socialist Leagues can assist in many ways.

In the leagues are a large number of young people eligible for party membership who ought to be brought into the political organization. A large percentage of these young folk would be willing to join the party if asked to do so. Should a concerted effort be made by all the leagues in this direction, it would result in bringing more than 1,000 enthusiastic workers into the Socialist Party.

Each local ought to immediately elect a committee to co-operate with the local in working out a plan of action for this big week of work. In that way great results can be secured.

League members—especially girls—can do wonderful work in securing new subscribers for Socialist papers. There are very few men who will refuse to subscribe for a paper when a smiling girl asks him to.

The most energetic workers in the entire Socialist movement can be found in the Young People's Socialist Leagues. They should be put to work.

Debs tells of meeting a sixteen-year-old Socialist in an eastern town selling tickets for the Debs' lecture.

"How many have you sold?" asked Debs.

"Two hundred and sixty," replied the youth.

"You are certainly doing well," answered Debs.

"Aw, that's nothin'," replied the young fellow. "Ikey Levinsky has sold THREE hundred and sixty."

This illustrates the way these young people do things when they get started. They are filled with such great enthusiasm that nothing can stop them.

Leagues should also not fail to make every affort toward securing new members for the Y. P. S. L. during "Socialist Week." If things are planned carefully in advance any league ought to increase its membership from 30 to 50 per cent, while some can even double it.

A good method to stir the members to action would be to arrange a contest. There should be an equal number of people on each side.

Each member should be given a credit for every new subscriber, new league member or new Party member secured. This credit should be marked up to the side to which he belongs. The winning side should be given a dinner or a theater party by the losers. This will make the contest real fun and will bring far greater results.

Entertainments can also be held during "Socialist Week" at which special efforts can be made to enlist new party members, league members and subscribers to our papers. These entertainments ought to bring in money as well.

Let every young Socialist enter this work with unbounded enthusiasm. This week only comes once a year. Let us make it memorable.

(An excellent way for our Columbus Y. P. S. L. to help out will be to see how many new subs. they can land for "The Socialist" during Socialist Week which will be the first week in September. Think it over boys and girls, bring it up at the next meeting and give a prize to the one making the best showing.)—Editor.

LABOR SHOULD NOT BE BOUGHT LIKE A PUBLIC MART COMMODITY.

By Henry Demarest Lloyd.

The unresisting heart of man is always in revolt against ties founded on force. Yesterday it declared that government is the control of man by man, and that the rights of rulers are drawn from the consent of the governed. Today it avows that property is the control of man by man. That the rights of the ruled are the source of the rights of the rulers in property as much as in government. The central doctrine of the slave power was that the laborer was merely merchandise. The central doctrine of the money power is that labor is merely merchandise. Society supports the latter, as it did the former, with the consolidated array of all its institutions and laws. But both doctrines, and all that is built upon them, are absolutely destructive, not only of the liberties of the laborer, but of the liberties of all. The conscience that said the laborer shall not be a commodity though despised of the builders is now a corner-stone. A new conscience takes its stand before all our institutions and says to them: Labor shall not be a commodity, for the labor is the laborer. The new theory that though the workingman's not a thing his labor is a thing, marks but a slight advance on the old. It means that the labor can be bought and sold regardless of the man behind it; that the buyer, the employer, can take any advantage of the seller, provided he does it under the formulas of supply and demand; that to buy his life of him cheap and sell it dear is all we have to do with the laborer; that the only conscience the buyer neds is to observe the rules of the market; that he can depress or raise prices without moral responsibility for the backs bent or hearts broken by his manipulations; that he can take more than he gives, regardless that the "goods" he gets are the lives of workers who cannot survive if they receive less than they give; that buyer and seller have a right to deal with each other as if they were business animals instead of business men. The labor is the laborer, because the man has to live twenty-four hours in order to be able to work eight or ten. His heart and head, his thoughts, his wants, his aspirations, all co-operate to produce the so-called commodity which at the sound of the factory bell is ready to begin the work of the day. When the man leaves the factory he but takes the "commodity" away to recuperate his wasted energies for another day. That which he has left within those walls is not a thing. It is himself. "The great fundamental principle of anti-slavery is that man cannot hold property in man," said Garrison. The doctrine that "labor is a commodity" gives man property in man, and is therefore iniquitous and void. If you shall not buy the whole man you shall not buy or sell part of a man. You shall not count into your purses the ruddy drops from morn till noon, from noon to dewy eve, and then say: "I know not whence they came or how."—Carpenters' Trade Journal.

JAWN JAY WANTS TO EAT TIMOTHY.

The citizens of this state have witnessed the sublime spectacle, the past few weeks, of Jawn Jay Lents going up and down the land like a raging lion, challenging Timothy Hogan, present misfit in the Attorney General's office, to a debate.

What it is all about nobody seems to know. It is a fact, however, that Tim hasn't so far had the nerve to face the music. If he ever does debate Jawn we advise him to speak first, because if he don't Jawn will keep him there until the wee small hours. There are few with the wind possessed by the ponderous Jawn.

But it is to be noted that the people are not becoming enthused these days by the quarrels between old party politicians. They are beginning to learn that these quarrels are only a sham; that they are only pulled off for the purpose of fooling the people. The idea is to get the people fighting for one or the other capitalist candidates and in the meantime to make them forget their own interests, while the capitalist controls either one elected.

It would seem that the numerous demonstrations the working class have had on this point would have taught them, well—some sense.

That many of them HAVE learned a few things is evidenced by a largely increased Socialist vote at each recurring election, and this fall election will be no exception.

There is another point that might be mentioned here, and that is that no capitalist politician rages around challenging Socialists to debate, Jawn Jay included. No sooner would the challenge be out than it would be accepted. And furthermore, we could put an ordinary working man who understood Socialism up against the most highly educated politician the capitalist parties could produce and the working man would make him look like a piker before an unbiased audience.

It will be many a long day before they will challenge US to a debate, and in the meantime we will just saw wood, and let Jawn eat Timothy if he wants to.

DEGENERATE ROYALTY WILL BE HUMBLED IN THE DUST

It seems to have come—the world-wide war so devoutly wished for by the preachers of capitalism.

Alarmed at the rapid rise of the working class political party, whose sworn program is to abolish war, whose representatives sit in practically every parliament in the world, the capitalists through their governments have taken one desperate chance, in an effort to throttle Socialism by plunging the European countries into a bloody war. But it will avail them nothing. Their days are numbered. War or no war, capitalism is doomed. The chances are that capitalism in Europe will go out in this orgy of blood and murder, and on its ruins will arise the first Socialist republic.

Already from what meagre news we are able to get past the capitalistic censor, indicate that our comrades are active. Only the Socialists have kept their heads. They are waiting, watching for the opportune moment to strike the blow that will hurl the bloody Czar, the insane Kaiser, the degenerate George and the balance of the unhung crowned imbeciles from their backs forever.

To our comrades in Germany, England, France, Italy, Russia, Austria and Servia we extend our hands in fellowship and comradeship, and assure them that when the critical moment shall have arrived they will find us ready.

Your capitalistic governments can force a gun in your hands but in the heat of action they cannot POINT IT FOR YOU. If forced to shoot, shoot straight—but not at your brother worker across the line. Your real enemy is within your own ranks, all bedecked out in gold lace and gold buttons. SHOOT, if you must, but do not shoot your brother working man on the other side. Teach the capitalists over there a lesson, it will save us being compelled to do it over here.

But you are Socialists, your hearts know no fear, and we know that what is necessary to be done will be done, to the end that wars will cease and exploitation of the workers ended forever.

Already it is rumored that Poland has revolted against Russia. Anti-war meetings are being held all over Europe by the Socialists and their sympathizers and it is the opinion of "The Socialist" that the war will wind up in a universal civil war that will sweep all the tottering thrones of Europe in the dust and raise in their stead the red flag of universal brotherhood—the Socialist Commonwealth.

SOCIALISM—WHAT IT IS

There is very little doubt but that nine-tenths of the American people are Socialists. They want exactly the same things we want, but they have been so educated by the capitalist press that they believe that Socialism is something entirely different from what it is.

The Socialist party demands government ownership of railroads. So do practically all the people. When told that the Socialist party has stood for that program for years they reply that government ownership of railroads is NOT Socialism—and we agree. However that is ONE of our immediate demands. It is a program that will be a long step towards the realization of our ultimate aims—the co-operative commonwealth. Every move we force this capitalist government to make that tends to take power out of the hands of private exploiters of labor is a move in the right direction.

A man said to the writer a few days ago: "I was bitterly opposed to parcel post, but SINCE I SEE IT IN OPERATION I am enthusiastic about it." We informed him that it was only through the agitation of the Socialist party that this condition was brought about, at which point he got very indignant. Now this is one of the greatest fights we have to make, to get the people to understand just what we DO stand for.

Briefly stated, the Socialist party stands for THE COLLECTIVE OWNERSHIP AND DEMOCRATIC MANAGEMENT OF THINGS COLLECTIVELY USED, AND THE PRIVATE OWNERSHIP OF THINGS PRIVATELY USED.

Reduced to plain, everyday language, this means, that those wealth-producing and distributing industries which are now used collectively shall be OWNED collectively, and managed democratically. At present these industries while they produce food, clothing and shelter, collectively, are privately owned and are used as a means to make huge fortunes for the men or group of men who simply OWN them but do no useful work.

Under Socialism, then, it can be seen that, since industry would be carried on for USE, rather than PROFIT, the workers would receive the FULL PRODUCT OF THEIR LABOR, in place of a small fraction (about one-fifth) of it as at present.

Now what would be the logical result of a condition of this kind? What would the workers do with their vastly increased wages? They would do the most logical thing imaginable. THEY WOULD USE IT TO ACQUIRE PRIVATE PROPERTY.

Now right here is where many workers become "mixed." They get the impression from their capitalist press that Socialists want to abolish private property. WE WANT ONLY TO ABOLISH THE OWNERSHIP OF SUCH PROPERTY NOW HELD PRIVATELY THAT IS USED FOR THE PURPOSES OF EXPLOITING LABOR.

No person wants to own a railroad for the purpose of using it for himself alone. The idea of each person owning a railroad between Columbus and New York City, for instance, is absurd. We collectively USE the railroads but don't collectively OWN them.

Now, however, every person needs clothes, food and shelter. These are individual needs that every human must have in order to survive. IN OTHER WORDS, THEY ARE PRIVATE PROPERTY THAT IN NO WISE CAN BE USED FOR EXPLOITATION. When you buy a suit of clothes, that serves your individual needs alone, but when you own a railroad, that does not serve your individual needs alone, but serves the collective needs of the people, and you use it as a club to hold the people up, and strip them of their birthright.

To sum up, the Socialist party wants the people to collectively own the industries IN ORDER THAT THEY MAY OWN AN ABUNDANCE OF PRIVATE PROPERTY, in the form of good homes, plenty to eat and plenty to wear, plenty of sunshine and fresh air, vacations, trips to Europe and the seashore, and in fact all of the good things that go to make life happy and desirable.

With this issue, Comrade F. E. Johnston severs his connection with "The Socialist." Comrade Bates assumes full charge.

WAR IS HELL—LET THE CAPITALISTS GO TO HELL

The capitalists of Europe backed up by the capitalists of the United States have plunged the worl dinto an orgy of murder. Let them beware. Ere the bloody deed is over, the awakened working class, into whose hands have been thrust these murder machines, may turn them upon the deceased dukes and degenerate royalty, and rid the world once and for all, of these damned murderers and parasites. "It is a consummation devoutly to be wished." The wish and hope of the American working class, is that when the smoke of battle shall have cleared away, a vision of dethroned and humbled monarchs shall greet the eye and labor arising from its long sleep shall establish in their places the first Socialist Republics.

In the meantime, let's not forget about how prosperous we are under the magnificent statesmanship of the Democratic party.

It would be too bad for the Socialists to get in power and bust up all this beautiful PROSPERITY.

We are positive that we are in the midst of good times, but there must be something wrong with the delivery department of the Democratic Party. We haven't got OURS yet.

IMPORTANT! IMPORTANT!

All candidates must call at this office immediately after the primaries and swear to their expense account. This must be filed with the board of election within ten days after the primary election. Look after this matter immediately, the primaries are over.

"If we simply ask what has been the main feature, the upshot, the final fruit of the capitalist system, there is no doubt about the answer.

The special and solid result of the reign of employers has been UNEMPLOYMENT. Unemployment not only increasing, BUT BECOMING AT LAST THE VERY PIVOT UPON WHICH THE WHOLE PROCESS TURNS."

Capitalism therefore, can not be "reformed," it must be ABOLISHED.

A GOOD WAY TO HELP "THE SOCIALIST"

A good way to help "The Socialist" during this crisis is to take up a collection amongst your shop mates. This is an excellent way to help. It not only helps "The Socialist," but it gives those who are sympathizers but not party members, a feeling that they are helping out. It brings them in closer touch with the movement, to know that they are helping to financially support the party to which they owe their allegiance.

Those who pay the bills, own the party, and we are proud to say that it is the workers who pay the bills of the Socialist Party. No Plute empties the contents of his money drawer in our lap. If he did we would be no better than the Democrats and Republicans, because we would then be subsidized.

Try this plan. Take up a collection amongst your brother workers in the shop, and turn it in to "The Socialist," and let's keep the old ship afloat with flying colors.

Franklin County Campaign Committee met and organized Monday evening. Comrade R. M. Woody was elected as chairman; M. C. Green, secretary; J. C. Welsh financial secretary and G. W. Calvert treasurer.

The field was carefully gone over and plans were laid to start the campaign at once, as demands for organization in Franklin County are coming in from all parts of the county.

With the amount of propaganda material at hand as we have today, this promises to be the best campaign ever held in Franklin county. Every member is requested to attend as many meetings of the committee as possible from now until election.

The lawn fete held on the West side last Thursday evening was a grand success. Comrade Carrie Allen delivered one of her up-to-the-minute lectures on Woman Suffrage.

This lawn fete was attended by some 1500 people.

Comrade Scott Williams, our candidate for Governor, delivered one of his best lectures at Schiller Park Sunday afternoon. The meeting was well attended and he held their attention for almost two hours. Comrade Wilkins is speaking from two to four times a day over the state, traveling in an automobile.

STATE.

Scott Wilkins, candidate for Governor, Dr. Oliver Montgomery, Fred Strickland and Fred R. Snow are filling dates in the state for Socialist locals at present. Quite a number of others also fill occasional engagements while local speakers are going it daily in many places.

Allen Cook, of Canton, and Fred Strickland, of Dayton, debated the subject, "Resolved, That Socialism is a Menace to the Working Class," with a preacher and professor at Doylestown, and it is reported that the Socialists captured everybody in the hall.

New Socialist locals have been organized at Bethel, Lockland, Jackson, Hillsboro, Creston, South Slavic at Steubenville and Newark.

After many months of discussion and wrangling over the question of framing a new charter in Cincinnati, a "good citizens'" slate was elected and finally produced for "non-partisan" election of the Mayor and a small Council, also the recall. But the trouble has been all in vain, as the proposed charter was defeated. Only about one-half of the registered electors displayed sufficient interest to vote.

NATIONAL AND INTERNATIONAL

Unit has once more been perfected among the Socialists of the state of Washington. The constitution submitted to a referendum by the unity conference recently held has been adopted by a vote of 927 to 80, only about one-third of the dues-paying membership having voted.

Robert Wheeler, the glass worker and Socialist Councilman, at Allentown, Pa., who has been raising Ned with the City Hall politicians of that burg, assumed the new role of life saver a few days ago when he jumped into the Lehigh river and pulled out two girls, one of whom was drowning and the other completely exhausted in trying to rescue her friend. "Bob" spoiled a new suit of store clothes, but he didn't mind, saying that economic determinism will remedy that loss.

The attempt of a few impossibilistic freaks in Los Angeles to make trouble for Fred C. Wheeler, the Socialist Councilman, who seems to be unable to overthrow the capitalist system single handed, seems to have fallen flat. At a general meeting of party members it was voted, by 119 to 30, that it was the sense of the members that the recall proposed by several branches be defeated. The general meeting divulged the fact that the attack on Wheeler was largely caused by personal prejudice and envy, that almost everybody who gains prominence in the labor movement is subjected to. One of the bitterest opponents of Wheeler is a woman who has cultivated a rabid hatred for organized labor and who runs a paper printed in a rat shop. She will probably lose her own locks before the incident is closed.

Socialists of the Balkan States are diligently at work organizing the workers into an international federation for the purpose of educating the people to oppose further wars, and to struggle for economic and political freedom. Not only the Socialists of Bulgaria, Servia and Montenegro, but those of Turkey, Greece, Macedonia and Italy are bending all efforts to demolish racial and religious animosities and develop a homogeneous sentiment. Contemporary writers point out that the change of rulers in the conquered provinces has not changed the brutal treatment usually meted out to the workers in the slightest degree, and the Greeks have become particularly arrogant in this respect. In numerous places the workers have been driven into strikes by their desperate conditions and were organized into unions solely by the Socialists to win concessions. It is very difficult to levy dues and assessments and accumulate defense funds, as the war lords are exacting frightful taxes from the people in order to pay the insatiable money makers and the armament that has been wasted and the new supplies that are being accumulated for further slaughter. Wages are low, hours of labor long and the workers are driven like cattle. The Balkan situation will be brought to the attention of the International Socialist Congress, in Vienna, next month, when plans will no doubt be considered to extend all assistance possible to the unhappy toilers of the war-cursed countries.

German Socialists in New York City instituted an organization campaign last January and are highly pleased with the results. Their membership has nearly trebled and is now about 700. They are going to continue hustling.

At an election for member of Parliament in Winnipeg the Socialist candidate received 2,000 votes, running only 500 behind the Liberal candidate and 1,800 behind the Conservative. The show of strength made by the Socialists has thrown a big scare into the old party camps and filled the Socialists with rejoicing and added hope and courage.

In the election for the City Council in Milan, Italy, the Socialists polled 33,000 votes and won 24 seats against 16 for the other parties. In the District Council election, which is circumscribed by property qualification laws, the Socialists were successful in capturing two seats and the other parties six.

The Prussian state officials appear to have grown more nervous than usual. A call has been issued to all parties, professions and religious folk to combine and smash socialism some more. As most of those good people have been playing that game right along, it is difficult to understand how this latest appeal will be any more effective than were their previous efforts.

In special elections to choose three members of the city council in Paris the Socialist party cleaned up two of the districts and the third went to an independent Socialist, who was supported by the combined old parties. In the county council election in the suburbs the Socialists gained three more seats.

COMRADE STRICKLAND IN THE BASTILE

(By Edward H. Kintzer, State Secretary of W. Va.)

Comrade Fred Orp Strickland was arrested Tuesday night, July 23, while speaking on the court house steps at Clarksburg, W. Va. The arrest was made by the city officials on county property, and Comrade Strickland was immediately admitted to bail, and the meeting was concluded inside the court house, a tremendous crowd being present. Never before has there been such enthusiasm at our meetings as at this one.

Within the last year an ordinance was passed by the city council of Clarksburg, forbidding free speech, except on permission from the mayor and chief of police. Application was made by the local local for permit for Comrade Strickland to speak, but permission was "positively" refused by the mayor, and no reason given.

There was nothing left for us to do but to proceed with the meeting, submit to arrest, and test the constitutionality of such an unjust and discriminatory ordinance. Ministers hold religious meetings where Comrade Strickland was arrested. In fact, the exclusion has been made to apply mainly to Socialists.

The neighboring city of Fairmont has passed an ordinance similar to the one in Clarksburg. These two cities are in the grip of the great coal corporations of West Virginia, and it is generally understood that the coal companies have demanded the prohibition of Socialist meetings in the two cities, which are their strongholds.

A defense fund is already being raised and the Socialists are preparing to fight the case as high up as it can be taken. If the courts of West Virginia will sustain the passage of an ordinance depriving freedom of speech, then the people will be shown once more the necessity of a judicial overturning in this state.

We are making it as good as you will allow. Whenever the workers support their own press as valiantly as they do the master's press we will be able to do really big things for the emancipation of the workers. In the meantime, we are forging ahead conscious of the fact that our cause is just, that right will finally triumph, and the workers step forth emancipated from the age-long servitude to a robber, master class.

Religion, War---Socialism Doom of Capitalism

Historical Summary by W. C. Bates.

GERMANY—Why She Refused Peace—AGGRESSOR.

Germany extends 475 miles north and south, and 750 miles east and west through Central Europe. Her area is about 209,000 square miles. Not as large as Colorado and Nevada. Excepting that her country is not so abrupt, she might be said to possess about the same surface and drainage with temperature less extreme. Her people, like her climate, are not given to extremes, possessing neither the hot blood of torrid climes nor the cold blood of frigid zones.

About two-thirds of the land of Germany is devoted to agriculture, and one-third of the people till the soil, yet the number of small farms is surprising to an American. There are over 3,000,000 farms of less than five acres each, 1,000,000 between 5 and 12 acres each, and very few which exceed 250 acres. The character of the soil and climate, generally, with the most improved implements, scientific methods of fertilizing, tilling and technical education, together with the willing brain and healthy brawn, makes the German farmer contented and home-loving.

Germany is one of the leading manufacturing countries of the world, exceeded only by United States and Great Britain, and yet her imports exceed her exports by $360,000,000 annually, and the balance of trade in cash goes to some of the very countries Germany has declared war against, England, Russia, France. How has Germany been able to pay this terrible drain? Has she paid it? Has she not, year after year, been borrowing from Peter to pay Paul, until Peter (Morgans and Gugenheims) have found out who Paul (Rothschilds) really is and refused further loans.

To the casual observer only one thing has saved Germany from financial bankruptcy, and that is the government ownership of her railroads leading into all parts of her Empire and to other countries from Berlin, her great railway center. Carriage roads, telegraph, telephone and mail service is maintained by the government, from which it derives revenue from friend and foe.

The German Empire is a federation of states comprising four kingdoms, Prussia, Bavaria, Wurttemberg and Saxony; seven grand duchies; four duchies; seven principalities; three free cities and Iperial Province of Alsace-Lorraine. These states were federated under the constitution of 1871. To induce these states to federate, some were given greater privileges than others to get them into the federation. The King of Prussia is made Emperor of Germany and cannot be removed, he is not heir to a throne, but to an office. He is commander in chief of the Imperial army, and may engage in defensive war without consulting the legislature, but must have its approval to engage in offensive war.

There was not much of importance in the history of Germany during the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries until the reign of Maximillian I, which marked a strong tendency toward imperial authority. He was succeeded by Charles V in 1519, and he began a serier of persecutions against the Protestants under the title of "The Holy Roman Emperor," in 1544 being in a measure, successful at first, but in 1552 was forced to grant religious freedom to the German Protestants, who, in turn commenced persecutions of the Catholics, going so far in recent years as to banish Catholics from the Empire, under "authority" of the treaty of Augsburg which contained three important provisions:

1—Each Prince could choose his state religion.

2—The Prince could banish any and all subjects not conforming to the established religion.

3—Any ecclesiastical Prince, on becoming a Protestant, should give up his office and lands.

Persecutions of the Catholics by the Protestants, under this treaty, continued until a counter reformation by the Roman Catholics spread rapidly and ended in the peace of Westphalia in 1648 after the thirty years' war, at which time Germany was cut into 200 independent states, owing but little support to the Emperor. Germany's Imperial authority was completely wrecked. Germany was impoverished, unity destroyed, and national feeling crushed, never again to be aroused because of the despotic rule over the states patterned after the absolute monarch of France.

Fro mthis time, 1648, after the treaty of Westphalia, the history of Germany centers in the rise of Prussia.

Prussia is the largest state of the German Empire. Two important elements are associated with the historical development of Prussia; first, the growth of the power of the electorate of Brandenburg, nucleus of the Prussian kingdom, and second, the rule of the Hohenzollern family under whose military guidance the small electorate of Brandenburg grew into a real kingdom. The Prussians were a Slavonic people; their neighbors, the Poles, sought to convert them to Christianity, their efforts resulted as all such efforts have resulted, in war—the religion was shot into them—but not having the ex-ray then it was not known if it stuck, but as religious war has succeeded religious war since then (1283)

PROTEST AGAINST WAR!

MEETING

At Broad and High Sts.

Tuesday Evening, Aug. 18th at 7:30

SPEAKER:

ELLA REEVES BLOOR

Our Band Will Play

PROCLAMATION

We, the Socialist party of the United States hereby extends its Greetings to the workers of Europe in their hour of trial, when they have been plunged into bloody and senseless conflict by ambition-crazed monarchs, designing politicians and scheming capitalists.

We bid them to consider that the workers of the various nations involved have no quarrel with each other, and that the evils from which they suffer—poverty, want, unemployment, oppression—are inbicted upon them not by the workers of some other country, but by the ruling classes of their own country.

We bid them to take thought before they allow themselves to be used blindly by heartless and inhuman despots who would spill the blood of thousands, inflict pain and sorrow upon millions, devastate the land and set back civilization in order to further their own wretched plots and schemes.

The Socialist party of the United States, in conformity with the declarations of the international Socialist movement, hereby reiterates its opposition to this and all other wars, waged upon any pretext whatsoever; war being a crude, savage and unsatisfactory method of settling real or imaginary differences between nations, and destructive of the ideals of brotherhood and humanity to which the international Socialist movement is dedicated.

The Socialist party of the United States hereby expresses its condemnation of the ruling classes of Europe and points out to the world that by their action in this crisis they have conclusively proven that they are unfit to administer the affairs of nations in such a manner that the lives and happiness of the people may be safeguarded.

The Socialist party of the United States hereby calls upon all foreign-born workingmen residing in this country, particularly upon those whose home governments are engaged in the present strife, to hold joint mass meetings for the purpose of emphasizing the fraternity and solidarity of all working people, irrespective of color, creed, race or nationality. We call upon the Socialist locals throughout the country to promote such meetings and to give all possible assistance.

The Socialist party of the United States hereby pledges its loyal support to the Socialist parties of Europe in any measures they might think it necessary to undertake to advance the cause of peace and of good-will among men.

The Socialist party of the United States hereby calls upon the national administration to prove the genuineness of its policy of peace by opening immediate negotiations for mediation and extending every effort to bring about the speedy termination of this disastrous conflict.

By order of

THE COMMITTEE ON IMMEDIATE ACTION.

WALTER LANFERSIEK,

Executive Secretary Socialist Party of America.

Socialism is neither a scheme or a dream. It is a method that means freedom and opportunity for all, something that man has never enjoyed.

The human family is divided into two classes—those who manage and those who are managed. The manager gets the cream, the managed gets the skim milk. Yet the managed division is several times as large as the other crowd, and they could end it any time if they had the brains and the backbone.

Some ask what the workers will do for royalty and nobility (titled bums) when once they get control of the reins of government. Why give them jobs at honest work, of course, and give them their first opportunity to be of some account.

It is of interest to the class deriving benefits from surplus values to continue the present system of distribution of wealth; the interest of the Working Class lies in the abolition of the system.

Freedom of speech is attacked because of private ownership and the owners' interest in conserving his private ownership of the public means of life.

Be as the bird perched for an instant on the too frail branch which she feels bending beneath, but sings away all the same, knowing she has wings.—Victor Hugo.

"Don't strike. Don't create discontent. Stick to your job. Respect your master. You are union men anyhow." These are some of the sayings of the paid retainers of capitalism. And many of the workers, who never use their heads for anything else but a hat rack, are caught with just such truck. Get next to yourselves, you workers and think.

I confess I am not at all charmed with the ideal of life held out by those who think that the normal state of human beings is that of struggling to get on; that the tramping, crushing, elbowing, and treading on each other's heels, which forms the existing type of human life, are the most desirable lot of humankind, or anything but the disagreeable symptoms of the phases of industrial progress.—John Stuart Mill.

The cattle that the working class elected to make laws for them, have been so busy studying up schemes and making laws to punish those who happen to find fault with the respectable rogues that they clean forgot all about the workers. But these same fellows, and others of their class, will soon be among you horny-handed sons of toil promising that they'll do better for you next time. And we venture to say that you easy marks will believe them and give them another chance to do you.

The worker, who is proud that he is a wage slave when he hears the capitalist owned politician tell him what a glorious privilege it is to work for a master, is a disgrace to the working class.

The United States is a great nation. It can boast of the richest loafers and the most poverty stricken toilers on earth. It also has the most grafters and the biggest bunch of suckers that the world has ever heard of.

You can't get away from capitalism so long as we live under capitalism. It's with you when you go to bed at night and when you get up in the morning; it's present when you are born and never fails to attend your funeral—always there, like the organ grinder's monkey, with his tin cup ready to catch the pennies.

The workers are hungry and want things. The mills are idle or on half time. Why cannot the workers use the mills to produce things they need? Because the capitalists own the mills and will not let things be produced therein unless four-fifths of the product is turned over to them and as they now have more than they can sell, the close down, nice for the owners, but h—l for the workers.

PROTEST AGAINST SENSELESS SLAUGHTER PROCLAMATION OF SOCIALIST PARTY OF AMERICA

HANDS ACROSS THE SEA

CABLEGRAM.

Parti Socialiste, 37 rue Sainte Croix de la Bretonniere, Paris.

"LONG LIVE THE GERMAN REPUBLIC!"

Paris, Aug. 8.—L'Humanite, the Socialist newspaper, publishes the following declaration by the German Socialist Club of Paris:

"In this hour of sadness we express our sentiments of fraternity. German Socialists prefer to remain in your country of liberty, refusing to fight their French Comrades. We can no longer love a country which attacks a peaceful nation. Our sympathies are with you in defending the soil of liberty. Go on to victory. Defeat the criminal government of Berlin. Down with the monarchists! Long live democratic France! Long live the German Republic!"

MEN FROM ALL WARRING NATIONS MEET TO PROCLAIM BROTHERHOOD

Speakers Deplore the Military Raid on Cililization. Tyranny Must Give Place to Co-operative Production to the End That Peace on Earth Prevail

'Tis the final conflict;
Let each stand in his place.
L'International
Shall be the human race.

Ten thousand Socialists and their supporters assembled in Union Square yesterday afternoon and blew the international peace trumpet in the face of the embattled male courtesans of Europe who have raped and raided civilization from Dublin to the Danube, from St. Petersburg to Constantinople. The meeting was called by the Socialist party of New York and New Jersey to voice the viewpoint of humanity against commercial and dynastic tyranny that is making Europe red with the blood of the working class of sixteen nations.

The speakers represented every nation now in arms in Europe. Russians, Germans, Frenchmen, Englishmen, Italians, Austrians, Poles and Scandinavians met there in the peace of international brotherhood. Long before the meeting was called to order great crowds stood silently in the broiling sun and awaited the speakers of the various nationalities. Shortly after 3 o'clock Edward Cassidy, representing the Socialist party, who was master of ceremonies and chairman of the meeting of protest, appeared upon the balcony of the little cottage in the square. His appearance was the signal for a mighty cheer that swept the throngs who had waited patiently for the opening. The cheering had not died down when the Socialist band struck up the "Marseillaise," the magnificat of the working class the world over.

HE KNEW.

An Irishman out of work applied to the "boss" of a repair shop in Detroit. When the Celt had stated his sundry and divers qualifications for a "job," the superintendent began quizzing him a bit. Starting quite at random he asked:

"Do you know anything about carpentry?"

"Shure!"

"Do you know how to make a Venetian blind?"

"Yes, sir."

"How do you do it?"

"Shure, I'd poke me finger in his eye!"—Harper's Magazine.

LONDON AND COLORADO.

Take three-fourths of the newspapers of the United States and you will find that they have expressed much more horror over the mutilation of a picture by a militant suffragist in London than over the burning to death of women and children in Colorado.

Here is a cold fact to which no attention whatever has been paid, and yet it is a symptom of a condition of the utmost importance to every citizen.

For what do you suppose is the reason for this strange indifference to murder and savagery in the United States?

Even when we learned of the little children, trapped by the white Apaches of Colorado, thrusting up their hands in their attempts to escape until their hands were burned from their wrists, few of our editors seemed to care.

We have established in this country a crime known as "accessory before the fact"—useful for the conviction of labor agitators and other persons undesirable. How about accessory after the fact?—Pearson's Magazine.

Franklin County Campaign Committee met and organized Monday evening. Comrade R. M. Woody was elected as chairman; M. C. Green, secretary; J. C. Welsh financial secretary and C. W. Calvert treasurer.

The field was carefully gone over and plans were laid to start the campaign at once, as demands for organization of Franklin County are coming in from all parts of the county.

With the amount of propaganda material at hand as we have today, this promises to be the best campaign ever held in Franklin county. Every member is requested to attend as many meetings of the committee as possible from now until election.

The lawn fete held on the West Side last Thursday evening was a grand success. Comrade Carrie Allen delivered one of her up-to-the-minute lectures on Woman Suffrage. This lawn fete was attended by some 1500 people.

Comrade Scott Williams, our candidate for Governor, delivered one of his best lectures at Schiller Park Sunday afternoon. The meeting was well attended and he held their attention for almost two hours. Comrade Wilkins is speaking from two to four times a day over the state, traveling in an automobile.

ORGANIZERS' DEPARTMENT.

1st. District Branch.

This Branch has been given jurisdiction in both 2nd and 3rd. wards and they are holding some good meetings. They have a local speaker every Tuesday evening and the meetings are well attended.

Ten applications were passed upon.

They are doing some good work, bringing in 14 applications.

If you live in this district make it a point to be present at its meetings every Tuesday evening at 856 W. Rich street.

Comrade Bues was elected District organizer and plans have been laid to make this one of the best districts in the city. They meet every Tuesday evening at Evans Hall, corner of Third avenue and Michigan.

Don't forget, comrades, that you and your wife can belong for the same dues by using the new stamps issued by the National office.

If you are out of work keep up your dues by making application to the secretary for exempted stamps.

FRANKLIN COUNTY PICNIC.

The Socialists and sympathisers of this county will hold a mammoth picnic at Sweitzer's grove on Sullivant avenue on Camp Chase line, Sunday, Aug. 23, starting 9:30 and lasting all day and evening. The principal speaker will be Jacob S. Coxey, who will speak on "The Tyranny of the Courts." Everybody boost. Admission free. Bring your baskets.

Come and bring all your friends and have a big get together meeting.

STATE.

Scott Wilkins, candidate for Governor, Dr. Oliver Montgomery, Fred Strickland and Fred R. Snow are filling dates in the state for Socialist locals at present. Quite a number of others also fill occasional engagements while local speakers are going it daily in many places.

Allen Cook, of Canton, and Fred Strickland, of Dayton, debated the subject, "Resolved, That Socialism is a Menace to the Working Class," with a preacher and professor at Doylestown, and it is reported that the Socialists captured everybody in the hall.

New Socialist locals have been organized at Bethel, Lockland, Jackson, Hillsboro, Creston, South Slavic at Steubenville and Newark.

After many months of discussion and wrangling over the question of framing a new charter in Cincinnati, a "good citizens'" slate was elected and finally produced for "non-partisan" election of the Mayor and a small Council, also the recall. But the trouble has been all in vain, as the proposed charter was defeated. Only about one-half of the registered electors displayed sufficient interest to vote.

NATIONAL AND INTERNATIONAL

Unit has once more been perfected among the Socialists of the state of Washington. The constitution submitted to a referendum by the unity conference recently held has been adopted by a vote of 927 to 80, only about one-third of the dues-paying membership having voted.

Robert Wheeler, the glass worker and Socialist Councilman at Allentown, Pa., who has been raising Ned with the City Hall politicians of that burg, assumed the new role of life saver a few days ago when he jumped into the Lehigh river and pulled out two girls, one of whom was drowning and the other completely exhausted in trying to rescue her friend. "Bob" spoiled a new suit of store clothes, but he didn't mind, saying that economic determinism will remedy that loss.

The attempt of a few impossibilistic freaks in Los Angeles to make trouble for Fred C. Wheeler, the Socialist Councilman, who seems to be unable to overthrow the capitalist system single handed, seems to have fallen flat. At a general meeting of party members it was voted, by 119 to 30, that it was the sense of the members that the recall proposed by several branches be defeated. The general meeting divulged the fact that the attack on Wheeler was largely caused by personal prejudice and envy, that almost everybody who gains prominence in the labor movement is subjected to. One of the bitterest opponents of Wheeler is a woman who has cultivated a rabid hatred for organized labor and who runs a paper printed in a rat shop. She will probably lose her own locks before the incident is closed.

Socialists of the Balkan States are diligently at work organizing the workers into an international federation for the purpose of educating the people to oppose further wars, and to struggle for economic and political freedom. Not only the Socialists of Bulgaria, Servia and Montenegro, but those of Turkey, Greece, Macedonia and Italy are bending all efforts to demolish racial and religious animosities and develop a homogeneous sentiment. Contemporary writers point out that the change of rulers in the conquered provinces has not changed the brutal treatment usually meted out to the workers in the slightest degree, and the Greeks have become particularly arrogant in this respect. In numerous places the workers have been driven into strikes by their desperate conditions and were organized into unions and aided by the Socialists to win concessions. It is very difficult to levy dues and assessments and accumulate defense funds as the war lords are exacting fruitful taxes from the people in order to pay the insatiable money loaners and the armament that has been wasted and the new supplies that are being accumulated for further slaughter. Wages are low, hours of labor long and the workers are driven like cattles. The Balkan situation will be brought to the attention of the International Socialist Congress, in Vienna, next month, when plans will no doubt be considered to extend all assistance possible to the unhappy toilers of the war-cursed countries.

German Socialists in New York City instituted an organization campaign last January and are highly pleased with the results. Their membership has nearly trebled and is now about 700. They are going to continue hustling.

At an election for member of Parliament in Winnipeg the Socialist candidate received 2,000 votes, running only 500 behind the Liberal candidate and 1,000 behind the Conservative. The show of strength made by the Socialists has thrown a big scare into the old party camps and filled the Socialists with rejoicing and added hope and courage.

In the election for the City Council in Milan, Italy, the Socialists polled 33,000 votes and won 24 seats against 16 for the other parties. In the District Council election, which is circumscribed by property qualification laws, the Socialists were successful in capturing two seats and the other parties six.

The Prussian state officials appear to have grown more nervous than usual. A call has been issued to all parties, professions and religious folk to combine and smash socialism some more. As most of these good people have been playing that game right along, it is difficult to understand how this latest appeal will be any more effective than were their previous efforts.

In special elections to choose three members of the city council in Paris the Socialist party cleaned up two of the districts and the third went to an independent Socialist, who was supported by the combined old parties. In the county council election in the suburbs also Socialists gained three more seats.

COMRADE STRICKLAND IN THE [illegible]

(By Edward H. Kintzer, State Secretary of W. Va.)

Comrade Fred [illegible] Strickland was arrested Tuesday night, July 28, while speaking on the court house steps at Clarksburg, W. Va. The attack was made by the city officials on county property, and Comrade Strickland was immediately admitted to bail, and the meeting was concluded inside the court house, a tremendous crowd being present. Never before has there been such enthusiasm at our meetings as at this one.

Within the last year an ordinance was passed by the city council of Clarksburg, forbidding free speech, except on permission from the mayor and chief of police. Application was made by the local [illegible] for permission for Comrade Strickland to speak, but permission was "positively" refused by the mayor and no reason given.

There was nothing left for us to do but to proceed with the meeting, submit to arrest, and test the constitutionality of such an unjust and discriminatory ordinance. Ministers hold religious meetings where Comrade Strickland was arrested. In fact, the exclusion has been made to apply mainly to Socialists.

The neighboring city of Fairmont has passed an ordinance similar to the one in Clarksburg. These two cities are in the grip of the great coal corporations of West Virginia, and it is generally understood that the coal companies have demanded the prohibition of Socialist meetings in the two cities, which are their strongholds.

A defense fund is already being raised and the Socialists are preparing to fight the case as high up as it can be taken. If the courts of West Virginia will sustain the passage of an ordinance depriving freedom of speech, then the people will be shown once more the necessity of a judicial overturning in this state.

We are making it as good as you will allow. Whenever the workers support their own press as valiantly as they do the master's press we will be able to do really big things for the emancipation of the workers. In the meantime, we are forging ahead conscious of the fact that our cause is just, that right will finally triumph, and the workers step forth emancipated from the age-long servitude to a robber, master class.

Religion, War---Socialism Doom of Capitalism

Historical Summary by W. C. Bates.

GERMANY—Why She Refused Peace—AGGRESSOR.

Germany extends 475 miles north and south, and 750 miles east and west through Central Europe. Her area is about 209,000 square miles. Not as large as Colorado and Nevada. Excepting that her country is not so abrupt, she might be said to possess about the same surface and drainage with temperature less extreme. Her people, like her climate, are not given to extremes, possessing neither the hot blood of torrid climes nor the cold blood of frigid zones.

About two-thirds of the land of Germany is devoted to agriculture, and one-third of the people till the soil, yet the number of small farms is surprising to an American. There are over 3,000,000 farms of less than five acres each, 1,000,000 between 5 and 12 acres each, and very few which exceed 250 acres. The character of the soil and climate, generally, with the most improved implements, scientific methods of fertilizing, tilling and technical education, together with the willing brain and healthy brawn, makes the German farmer contented and home-loving.

Germany is one of the leading manufacturing countries of the world, exceeded only by United States and Great Britain, and yet her imports exceed her exports by $360,000,000 annually, and the balance of trade in cash goes to some of the very countries Germany has declared war against, England, Russia, France. How has Germany been able to pay this terrible drain? Has she paid it? Has she not, year after year, been borrowing from Peter to pay Paul, until Peter (Morgans and Gugenheims) have found out who Paul (Rothschilds) really is and refused further loans.

To the casual observer only one thing has saved Germany from financial bankruptcy, and that is the government ownership of her railroads leading into all parts of her Empire and to other countries from Berlin, her great railway center. Carriage roads, telegraph, telephone and mail service is maintained by the government, from which it derives revenue from friend and foe.

The German Empire is a federation of states comprising four kingdoms, Prussia, Bavaria, Wurttemberg and Saxony; seven grand duchies; four duchies; seven principalities; three free cities and Iperial Province of Alsace-Lorraine. These states were federated under the constitution of 1871. To induce these states to federate, some were given greater privileges than others to get them into the federation. The King of Prussia is made Emperor of Germany and cannot be removed, he is not heir to a throne, but to an office. He is commander in chief of the Imperial army, and may engage in defensive war without consulting the legislature, but must have its approval to engage in offensive war.

There was not much of importance in the history of Germany during the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries until the reign of Maximillian I, which marked a strong tendency toward imperial authority. He was succeeded by Charles V in 1519, and he began a serier of persecutions against the Protestants under the title of "The Holy Roman Emperor," in 1544 being in a measure, successful at first, but in 1552 was forced to grant religious freedom to the German Protestants, who, in turn commenced persecutions of the Catholics, going so far in recent years as to banish Catholics from the Empire, under "authority" of the treaty of Augsburg which contained three important provisions:

1—Each Prince could choose his state religion.

2—The Prince could banish any and all subjects not conforming to the established religion.

3—Any ecclesiastical Prince, on becoming a Protestant, should give up his office and lands.

Persecutions of the Catholics by the Protestants, under this treaty, continued until a counter reformation by the Roman Catholics spread rapidly and ended in the peace of Westphalia in 1648 after the thirty years' war, at which time Germany was cut into 200 independent states, owing but little support to the Emperor. Germany's Imperial authority was completely wrecked. Germany was impoverished, unity destroyed, and national feeling crushed, never again to be aroused because of the despotic rule over the states patterned after the absolute monarch of France.

Fro mthis time, 1648, after the treaty of Westphalia, the history of Germany centers in the rise of Prussia.

Prussia is the largest state of the German Empire. Two important elements are associated with the historical development of Prussia; first, the growth of the power of the electorate of Brandenburg, nucleus of the Prussian kingdom, and second, the rule of the Hohenzollern family under whose military guidance the small electorate of Brandenburg grew into a real kingdom. The Prussians were a Slavonic people; their neighbors, the Poles, sought to convert them to Christianity, their efforts resulted as all such efforts have resulted, in war—the religion was shot into them—but not having the ex-ray then it was not known if it stuck, but as religious war has succeeded religious war since then (1283)

PROTEST AGAINST WAR!

MEETING

At Broad and High Sts.

Tuesday Evening, Aug. 18th at 7:30

SPEAKER:

ELLA REEVES BLOOR

Our Band Will Play

PROCLAMATION

We, the Socialist party of the United States hereby extends its Greeting to the workers of Europe in their hour of trial, when they have been plunged into bloody and senseless conflict by ambition-crazed monarchs, designing politicians and scheming capitalists.

We bid them to consider that the workers of the various nations involved have no quarrel with each other, and that the evils from which they suffer—poverty, want, unemployment, oppression—are inbicted upon them not by the workers of some other country, but by the ruling classes of their own country.

We bid them to take thought before they allow themselves to be used blindly by heartless and inhuman despots who would spill the blood of thousands, inflict pain and sorrow upon millions, devastate the land and set back civilization in order to further their own wretched plots and schemes.

The Socialist party of the United States, in conformity with the declarations of the international Socialist movement, hereby reiterates its opposition to this and all other wars, waged upon any pretext whatsoever; war being a crude, savage and unsatisfactory method of settling real or imaginary differences between nations, and destructive of the ideals of brotherhood and humanity to which the international Socialist movement is dedicated.

The Socialist party of the United States hereby expresses its condemnation of the ruling classes of Europe and points out to the world that by their action in this crisis they have conclusively proven that they are unfit to administer the affairs of nations in such a manner that the lives and happiness of the people may be safeguarded.

The Socialist party of the United States hereby calls upon all foreign-born workingmen residing in this country, particularly upon those whose home governments are engaged in the present strife, to hold joint mass meetings for the purpose of emphasizing the fraternity and solidarity of all working people, irrespective of color, creed, race or nationality. We call upon the Socialist locals throughout the country to promote such meetings and to give all possible assistance.

The Socialist party of the United States hereby pledges its loyal support to the Socialist parties of Europe in any measures they might think it necessary to undertake to advance the cause of peace and of good-will among men.

The Socialist party of the United States hereby calls upon the national administration to prove the genuineness of its policy of peace by opening immediate negotiations for mediation and extending every effort to bring about the speedy termination of this disastrous conflict.

By order of

THE COMMITTEE ON IMMEDIATE ACTION.

WALTER LANFERSIEK,

Executive Secretary Socialist Party of America.

Socialism is neither a scheme or a dream. It is a method that means freedom and opportunity for all, something that man has never enjoyed.

The human family is divided into two classes—those who manage and those who are managed. The manager gets the cream, the managed gets the skim milk. Yet the managed division is several times as large as the other crowd, and they could end it any time if they had the brains and the backbone.

Some ask what the workers will do for royalty and nobility (titled bums) when once they get control of the reins of government. Why give them jobs at honest work, of course, and give them their first opportunity to be of some account.

It is of interest to the class deriving benefits from surplus values to continue the present system of distribution of wealth; the interest of the working class lies in the abolition of the system.

Freedom of speech is attacked because of private ownership and the owners' interest in conserving his private ownership of the public means of life.

Be as the bird perched for an instant on the too frail branch which she feels bending beneath, but sings away all the same, knowing she has wings.—Victor Hugo.

"Don't strike. Don't create discontent. Stick to your job. Respect your master. You are union men anyhow." These are some of the sayings of the paid retainers of capitalism. And many of the workers, who never use their heads for anything else but a hat rack, are caught with just such truck. Get next to yourselves, you workers and think.

I confess I am not at all charmed with the ideal of life held out by those who think that the normal state of human beings is that of struggling to get on; that the tramping, crushing, elbowing, and treading on each other's heels, which forms the existing type of human life, are the most desirable lot of humankind, or anything but the disagreeable symptoms of the phases of industrial progress.—John Stuart Mill.

The cattle that the working class elected to make laws for them, have been so busy studying up schemes and making laws to punish those who happen to find fault with the respectable rogues that they clean forgot all about the workers. But these same fellows, and others of their class, will soon be among you horny-handed sons of toil promising that they'll do better for you next time. And we venture to say that you easy marks will believe them and give them another chance to do you.

The worker, who is proud that he is a wage slave when he hears the capitalist owned politician tell him what a glorious privilege it is to work for a master, is a disgrace to the working class.

The United States is a great nation. It can boast of the richest loafers and the most poverty stricken toilers on earth. It also has the most grafters and the biggest bunch of suckers that the world has ever heard of.

You can't get away from capitalism so long as we live under capitalism. It's with you when you go to bed at night and when you get up in the morning; it's present when you are born and never fails to attend your funeral—always there, like the organ grinder's monkey, with his tin cup ready to catch the pennies.

The workers are hungry and want things. The mills are idle or on half time. Why cannot the workers use the mills to produce things they need? Because the capitalists own the mills and will not let things be produced therein unless four-fifths of the product is turned over to them and as they now have more than they can sell, the close down, nice for the owners, but h—l for the workers.

HE KNEW.

An Irishman out of work applied to the "boss" of a repair shop in Detroit. When the Celt had stated his sundry and divers qualifications for a "job," the superintendent began quizzing him a bit. Starting quite at random he asked:

"Do you know anything about carpentry?"

"Shure!"

"Do you know how to make a Venetian blind?"

"Yes, sir."

"How do you do it?"

"Shure, I'd poke me finger in his eye!"—Harper's Magazine.

LONDON AND COLORADO.

Take three-fourths of the newspapers of the United States and you will find that they have expressed much more horror over the mutilation of a picture by a militant suffragist in London than over the burning to death of women and children in Colorado.

Here is a cold fact to which no attention whatever has been paid, and yet it is a symptom of a condition of the utmost importance to every citizen.

For what do you suppose is the reason for this strange indifference to murder and savagery in the United States?

Even when we learned of the little children, trapped by the white Apaches of Colorado, thrusting up their hands in their attempts to escape until their hands were burned from their wrists, few of our editors seemed to [illegible].

We have established in this country a crime known as "accessory before the fact"—useful for the conviction of labor agitators and other persons undesirable. How about accessory after the fact?—Pearson's Magazine.

"LONG LIVE THE GERMAN REPUBLIC!"

Paris, Aug. 8.—L'Humanite, the Socialist newspaper, publishes the following declaration by the German Socialist Club of Paris:

"In this hour of sadness we express our sentiments of fraternity. German Socialists prefer to remain in your country of liberty, refusing to fight their French Comrades. We can no longer love a country which attacks a peaceful nation. Our sympathies are with you in defending the soil of liberty. Go on to victory. Defeat the criminal government of Berlin. Down with the monarchists! Long live democratic France! Long live the German Republic!

MEN FROM ALL WARRING NATIONS MEET TO PROCLAIM BROTHERHOOD

Speakers Deplore the Military Raid on Cililization. Tyranny Must Give Place to Co-operative Production to the End That Peace on Earth Prevail

'Tis the final conflict;
Let each stand in his place.
L'International
Shall be the human race.

Ten thousand Socialists and their supporters assembled in Union Square yesterday afternoon and blew the international peace trumpet in the face of the embattled male courtesans of Europe who have raped and raided civilization from Dublin to the Danube, from St. Petersburg to Constantinople. The meeting was called by the Socialist party of New York and New Jersey to voice the viewpoint of humanity against commercial and dynastic tyranny that is making Europe red with the blood of the working class of sixteen nations.

The speakers represented every nation now in arms in Europe. Russians, Germans, Frenchmen, Englishmen, Italians, Austrians, Poles and Scandinavians met there in the peace of international brotherhood. Long before the meeting was called to order great crowds stood silently in the broiling sun and awaited the speakers of the various nationalities. Shortly after 3 o'clock Edward Cassidy, representing the Socialist party, who was master of ceremonies and chairman of the meeting of protest, appeared upon the balcony of the little cottage in the square. His appearance was the signal for a mighty cheer that swept the throngs who had waited patiently for the opening. The cheering had not died down when the Socialist band struck up the "Marseillaise," the magnificat of the working class the world over.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Owing to the fact that Comrade F. E. Johnston has severed his relations with this paper, it became necessary for us to assume full charge thereof.

For manifest reasons it is necessary for us to adopt certain co-operative methods for conducting this paper.

This paper has always been worth more than $1.00 per year, yet it has been issued for months for 25 cents for 40 weeks, depending upon a sustainer's fund to get by.

With this issue the price will be 50 cents for 6 months, or $1.00 per year. No three months' subscriptions taken. However, until after the November election, we will make this offer.

We will send papers to 10 addresses for 5 weeks for $1.00. The 10 names, with addresses and the $1.00, to be turned in at one time.

We will give regular employment to active Socialists and wage-earners out of work, under our Business Department, under Comrade F. M. Wilson in charge of Real Estate, and Comrade Wm. Holt in charge of Collections and Miscellaneous Wants.

An endless chain of co-operative activity will be undertaken that will guarantee a wonderful success to your paper, The Socialist.

We shall never knock, but always boost.

And when night comes, have a place to roost.

HORRIBLE! HORRIBLE!

Democrat Paper Wants an Investigation.

The following account of a whipping given a boy named Williams in Juvenile court recently by a so-called "Big Brother" named Bush, the street car "hero," whose tin rookies shot up the working class districts of Columbus during the street car strike, appears in this week's issue of "The Times"-Democrat. We publish it in full as it shows the sentiment of the real people, who, regardless of party, are demanding a square deal for the children.

"Corporal punishment has been abandoned long since at the Ohio penitentiary and even a whisper of its continued existence in any of the state institutions is greeted by an uprising of public sentiment, and still it goes on in complacent uninterruption in Columbus' Juvenile Court. Seemingly it is all wrong to beat the bodies of grown men, but perfectly proper to scarify the tender bodies of children. Only this week there was brought to the Governor's office a child from the Juvenile Court with its body so brutally bruised and lacerated, that the Governor's secretary, horrified, demanded an investigation. He declared the person guilty of the brutal attack on the child should be punished forthwith.

But then silence spread over the scene. The assailant of the child happened to be a "Big Brother," a military man, a social favorite, and important influences began to work in his behalf. Mutterings were heard against the beaten child and defenders of the child's assailant began to cover him with a multitude of excuses. O, maybe the boy needed a beating! Anyway, his parents had been unable to cope with him and he needed a strong hand! So, why shouldn't the military man and the society favorite give him a good trouncing! So it is that sentiment was sought to be fostered against the child and in favor of the real culprit.

So it is that Major H. M. Bush, head of Battery H, "hero" of the street car strike, and special emissary of Governor Cox to the Belmont coal fields to see if the coal miners were deserving of lead and bayonettes, may freely beat and lacerate little children and have his action condoned and his mighty self exculpated. So it is that public officials, excepting only the Governor's secretary, callous themselves to human emotions when a man high up breaks the law.

The beating by Major Bush of a defenseless 14-year-old boy is the most outrageous bit of fiendishness that has come to light in many a day. Had it occurred in the Lancaster Boys' Industrial Home or some other public institution, there would have been a state-wide investigation. Had it occurred among more or less hardened prisoners in the penitentiary, there would have been a public outcry. But what magic hand is there that stays public justice when brutality is traced to the door of Major Bush and the Juvenile Court?

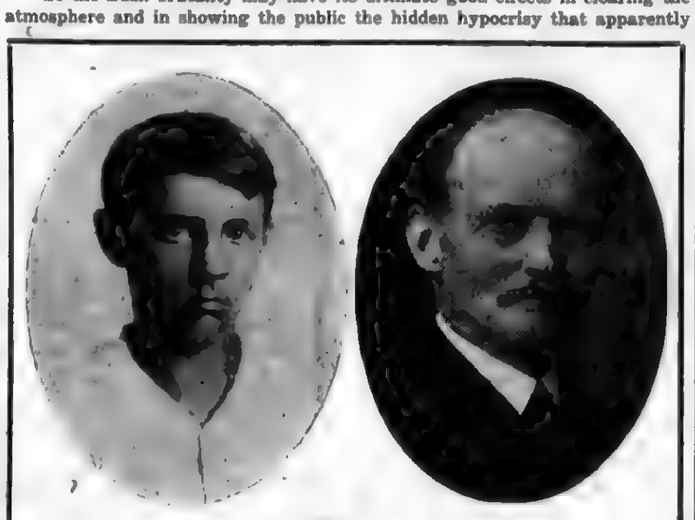
In the daily press Major Bush is quoted as frankly admitting the beating and defending himself by the statement that the boy needed it. He is also quoted as saying that when the beating was over, the child was compelled to say the Lord's Prayer. Truly an excellent way to inculcate religion into the soul of a 14-year-old boy! And yet the defenders of Major Bush would be the first to denounce the burning of witches in religion's name or the tortures of the Spanish inquisition.

But the beating may be an instrument of good after all. It may have the effect of turning the public searchlight upon the Juvenile Court and its methods. It may show that there is much more than pith in the vague rumors that have been circulating about the practices that have been going on behind closed doors. It may show whether any court has the right to hire big, husky and brutal men to apply the rawhide to children of the poor.

The publication of the brutality of the beating is going also to destroy the public confidence in the organization known as "The Big Brothers." The many people who have known of the connection of Major Bush with the Big Brothers did not suspect for a moment that he would carry into that organization the brutal practices he carried on during the street car strike. But the strangest part of the whole proceedings is that he carries them over into the Big Brothers' organization with the utmost impunity. The most lamentable part of it is that when his practices are divulged in the public print, the other members of the Big Brothers' organization sit idly and complacently by.

The public has been led to believe that the Big Brothers were big-minded, intelligent, sympathetic men who worked among the children of the poor for the good they could do and whose aim was to rule by charity and kindness. And yet no member of that body of supposedly big-hearted and intelligent men raises his voice to protest against the head of the organization when that head is openly accused of brutality by none other than the Governor's secretary. Where are the Big Brothers? What do they think of the actions of Major Bush? Do they think, after all, that children must be bull-dozed and cowhided into submission by brute force? If they do not believe, why are they all silent under the present circumstances? If they do so believe, why are they not candid enough to take the public into their confidence instead of preaching and professing a kindness and charity that they do not even know?

And what is the Juvenile Court going to do about it? Is it possible that children are harder to manage than adult criminals and that, although corporal punishment can be abolished in the state's penitentiary, it cannot be foregone in the treatment of child offenders in the Juvenile Court? If the court holds to this principle, then it ought to be fair with the public and publicly proclaim its doctrine instead of professing kindness toward children and practicing brutality.



If The Times guesses aright, the Columbus public is growing pretty tired of hypocrisy in high places. The public is weary of the masks that certain people seemingly are wearing. The people don't seem inclined to tolerate much longer the making of rules that apply only to certain classes and that fail to touch those higher up.

The public is likely to demand certain speedy results to follow in the wake of the Bush disclosures. It is likely to demand, for one thing, a rigid and sweeping investigation. It is likely to demand also the removal of Major Bush from the local artillery of the National Guard in the light of his brazen admission of beating a child. For no man so unfeeling should be permitted longer to occupy a position that can be so easily abused.

The public should also demand an investigation of the procedures in the Juvenile Court. It is a public court and the people are entitled to know what goes on there. It is high time that the public searchlight be turned into dark places as it was turned into the political prison at Vera Cruz when the Americans took charge. The Mexican officials couldn't have done much worse than beat their prisoners as brutally as the Governor's secretary says a boy was beaten in the Juvenile Court of Columbus, O.

So the Bush brutality may have its ultimate good effects in clearing the atmosphere and in showing the public the hidden hypocrisy that apparently has existed so long and so snugly in certain recesses of political officialdom. If the results shall be the tearing away of the mask of spurious charity and supposed philanthropy from the faces of certain fawning individuals and officials, they will almost justify the terrible beating given to a 14-year-old ward of a court that has so long protested its big heartedness and its gracious kindness.

EVOLUTION

Scientists tell us that the first animal life upon earth was an animal consisting of a single cell, living in water and having the power of motion. It could breathe, eat, digest and reproduce its kind. It had no special organs, but was lungs and stomach all over, similar to some of our modern hot air venders. The next order of life was collections of cells with no special senses, like the clam, the sponge, or the voter who allows his boss to do his thinking. The animal life, according to naturalists, gradually advanced through the invertebrate order until it arrived at the stage where a collection of nerve cells were formed in a chain through the entire length of the animal. This might be called the spinal cord. The animal in moving about, I imagine, would occasionally bump one end of himself sufficiently to cause congestion in that particular spot. The blood being sent here in greater quantities developed a small knot of nerve cells which might be call a brain. The animal developed brain in the same way as a shoe worker may when he is bumped on the top end by a policeman's club. This lower order of life, although it had a small brain, it had no bone to protect it at the spinal cord. It was pliable, similar to a shoe-string or to the spine of the man who votes with his boss and scabs his labor party ticket. The scientists go on to say that after continuous bumping the animal developed skull and backbone, and then the brain developed very rapidly. The animal crawled out of the mud, no longer a worm or reptile, but an animal of warm blood, having all the organs and faculties of the highest animal life. They even say that this animal developed enough brain and backbone to stand and walk erect, not like an ape, but like a man. Let this be true or false, I know that:

There is no other process
Whereby apes may human be;
They must boycott all bosses
To be men divinely free.
In their eating and their drinking,
Men and apes are much alike,
And a reasoning or thinking
Mule will sometimes kick or strike;
But a man, though often puzzled,
When at last he knows the right,
Will be neither led nor muzzled,
And will never cease to fight;
Till exploiters all are scattered,
And he hears the hammer ring;
Till his shackles all are shattered,
And he walks erect, a King.
And no monarch grand and gory
With the spoils of millions slain,
Ever reigned with half the glory
That Collective Man shall reign.
Earth now full of hellish noises,
Which every year increase;
Life now full of wailing voices
Shall be filled with joy and peace.

On soft turf 'neath blooming bowers
We should rest alive with God;
Shall we never rest with flowers
Till we sleep beneath the sod?

BIRTHDAY MEDITATIONS

Last week, up at Pocantico Hills, in New York State, a venerable old gentleman who has been a notable figure in developing the resources of his country celebrated, or rather passed, his seventy-fifth birthday. Strictly speaking, there wasn't any celebration. The old gentleman kept carefully out of the public eye. He "ignored the I. W. W.," as the newspapers put it. He ignored them by having his armed guards and patrols doubled and his alarm system of signals improved and extended. But, as against this, he received a lot of congratulatory messages, all of which were carefully examined before being delivered to him.

It seems a sort of irony to wish this old man "many happy returns of the day," but evidently there are many people who really think he enjoys these anniversaries, and, of course, he himself puts up the bluff that he does.

We don't know that the I. W. W. or any of its members seek the old man's life, and we don't think they do. But evidently there are many people who would slay him on sight, if they got the chance. At any rate he thinks so, and thousands like him think so. Hence all the precautions. It is on that assumption, anyhow, that all his guards and detectives hold their jobs—and money talks loudest and most convincingly in this, as in most other cases.

For years and years millions of people—not Socialists or anarchists, I. W. W. or "radicals" of any kind—have denounced this poor old man as a thief and a murderer, and have incited violence against him in that manner. Hundreds of capitalist papers, mostly representing the interests of the small middle class and the people who have suffered through competition, and therefore want it restored, have also swelled the chorus against him. The danger is by no means fanciful or imaginative.

Isn't it a lovely condition of affairs, that after a long and well-spent life of seventy-five years an old man like Rockefeller should have to celebrate his birthday behind bars, bolts, muskets, barbed wire, dictagraphs, telephone alarms and other detective devices? It isn't exactly what might be called an honored old age.

It is, on the other hand, both pathetic and tragical. But mainly so because he is "in our midst," so to speak. At a distance it would seem mostly ludicrous. Our cartoonists of the capitalist press find all sorts of amusement in representing the Czar at St. Petersburg busily engaged in dodging "dynamitovich" and "bombskys." But no cartoonist will take that liberty with the lonely old Czar at Pocantico. It's a serious matter because he's here, just as the presence of the Czar is a serious matter in St. Petersburg or Moscow, that no Russian cartoonist would dare to make comic pictures of representing attempted assassination.

If John D. were really what he thinks he is there would be no need of celebrating his birthday behind bolts and bars, muskets and telephone alarm signals. He could come forth and celebrate in public, and everybody would unite to do him honor. He could receive all his congratulatory messages in public and read them amid popular rejoicing. Just as the Czar of Russia could do if he really were what he thinks he is—the Father of his Country.

Assassination is foolish, insane and irrational, but no more so than the system which makes it seem not only sensible, but the only method, to thousands who fully accept the capitalistic dicta that "guilt is personal."

Perhaps it accomplishes nothing, as some people insist. But it might seem that the widespread belief in it that drives poor old Rockefeller to hunt his hole on his birthday should stimulate some serious thought about the system that makes it appear necessary.

$100,00 ELECTRICAL EXPERT TELLS HOW HE EARNS HIS BIG YEARLY SALARY.

Dr. Charles P. Steinmets.

"What can'a man do to earn the vast sum of $100,000 a year?" Dr. Steinmetz was asked.

"Things other people don't do," was the laconic answer. The charming, almost childlike, personal simplicity of the man kept him from saying what others in his position would have said, and truthfully, "Things other people can't do."

And right there, in connection with a discussion of the $100,000 salary, one runs across the most striking characteristic of Steinmets, every fiber of him—"a constructive Socialist," he insists.

"If society owned the General Electric Company," was asked the great engineer, "would you insist on your $100,000 a year?"

"What for?" was the electric-like response. The little man's eyes flashed. The interviewer had tapped a powerful current of ideas.

"What for?" repeated he. "What would I want with $100,000 a year? What would I do with it? What could I do with any more money than I could use to live comfortably on? What would be the good of a bank account? I save up money now only for my old age or for sickness. If society was bound to take care of me when my term of service was ended or interrupted, what worries should I have? When society guarantees to every child the care it owes it; when society guarantees to every person the education it owes him; when society guarantees to every one the living it owes him; when society guarantees to every one the burial it owes him—that is the system that must come."

"But, doctor," was asked, "do you believe every one would be willing to make the sacrifice you would make?"

"Sacrifices?" he answered, "there would be no sacrifices. Every one would be assured of a good living. What more could he ask?"

"Suppose I wanted an automobile and my neighbor across the street didn't want one, when we occupied the same relative position," was ventured.

"Rot," answered the doctor. "People buy automobiles today simply because they think they are getting something some other people cannot have. If every one could have an automobile no one would want to bother with the thing. They're merely a way of displaying wealth under our present capitalistic system.

"It's the same way with other things we call luxuries today. Take champagne. People buy champagne today because they think the people at the next table haven't the money to buy it and they are anxious to show their wealth. But if everybody had champagne, the same people who spend $4 a bottle now would be drinking beer, or, more probably—drinking water. There would be different ideas of wealth, entirely different conceptions of wealth—not a wealth of dollars. What for? Men like Rockefeller, Carnegie and Morgan—they are all right under the present system. They are needed. They gather great amounts of money and start new enterprises, new development and the capitalization, they would be laughed at as foolish children for the vain effort of piling up millions. What for?

"Our present school system," went on the doctor, "is good. I am for it so far as it goes. But it doesn't go far enough. It stops too soon and starts too late. I'll tell you how I mean it starts too late. Right here in Schenectady many children come to school without breakfast. Without going into details, society ought to see that those children have breakfast. The average American family lets its children do what they please—go into the streets, anywhere—to the devil too often. Society ought to remedy that if the parents won't."—From an interview in Sunday Knickerbocker Press.

WHAT IS SOCIALISM?

Socialism is a proposition for the whole people to become owners of all the means of production and distribution that are socially used and to operate them under democratic control, for the benefit of the workers.

Socialism would mean an ending of the profit system and to every toiler his full social product. It would mean an end of wars that are fought for markets; an end of prostitution for profit; and the profit in liquor; an end of the struggle for existence; and end of the fight of capitalist and laborer over labor's products.

Socialism may be adopted at election through the sanction of those who work, who could not possibly be injured by it.

Socialism does not mean dividing up, free love, an ending of religion or of immorality. They who tell it does are enemies of Socialism who lie to you to keep you slaves.

Socialism can pay for the industries, if necessary, by the product of the industries, while cheapening the cost of living, raising the receipts of the day laborer, all within ten years; and then you will have an undivided interest in all the productive property of America and will always be sure of employment.

RELIGION—WAR—SOCIALISM, DOOM OF CAPITALISM.

it is a sure guess it stuck at least in their crop (craw). They were aided in the Christian raid by the Teutonic Knights, a RELIGIOUS and MILITARY order. This order was founded and fostered by a number of GERMAN MERCHANTS under the guise of CHRISTIANITY, but in fact for the same purpose some of our American merchants formed and foster the Red Cross, the Big Brothers, Volunteers of America, Salvation Army, etc., pure and simple exploitation. It's one fine religion that a man has shot into his head, or a boy has hammered up his anatomy.

This military religious organization was put out of business in 1809 by Napoleon, who had some years before proclaimed complete freedom of religious worship, reconstructed the school system and printed a complete code of laws for France. Because of this religious tolerance, France, through Napoleon, engendered the lasting hatred of Germany, of which Prussia is the dominant state.

Prince Bismarck became chancellor of the German Empire later, with all the hatred for France bred into his system in 1814, five years after Napoleon had put his military-religio fore-fathers out of business. Bismarck formed a triple alliance between Germany, Austria, and Italy. Later, however, Bismarck offended the Roman Catholic party by declaring against the doctrine of Infalibility of the Pope, and Germany has been, for a long time, embroiled in a conflict with the Catholic Church, going so far as to exile Catholics from the Empire, under the treaty of Augsburg, and because many Catholics of Germany are Socialists, working side by side with their Protestant comrades, until they obtained strength enough in the German Reichstag to pass laws allowing Catholics to return within the last two years.

It was reported in The Cincinnati Enquirer of August 7th, that 100 of the Socialist Deputies of the Reichstag had been shot by order of the Emperor. We cannot believe this, but if true we unhesitatingly say that these Socialists lost their lives largely, if not solely, because of three reasons:

1—Opposition to war, generally on humane principle.

2—Opposition to religious persecution of Catholics by the Emperor.

3—Passive support of Italy, who maintains neutrality, because, as we think, she has no heart to ally herself with a nation which is religiously intolerant.

While these things are matters of history, and daily history is being made along the same plane, we are staggered to hear our Catholic comrades and non-Socialists say harsh things about the Socialists being opposed to the Catholic religion. It is not true, brother, sister Catholic, that we oppose your religion. That is your private business and no Protestant should have any more religious freedom than you. It IS true, however, that Socialists oppose WRONG, whether done by a Protestant Judge, a Catholic "Big Brother," an "Infidel Juryman," or an incorporated "Salvation Army" exploiter.

The years following 1809 marked a revolution in Prussia, and of course, Germany, many reforms amounting to a revolution were successfully carried out under Stein, Hardesberg, and Scharnhorst. These reforms so inspired her people, that Prussia demanded and forced recognition by Russia and France, and became the dominant state in the Empire of Germany.

After peace was restored in 1815, Frederick William III, al[lowed] himself to be guided by the Holy Alliance and became wh[olly] REACTIONARY (dry rot), until the impatience of the people ve[ry] Germany and [ing] of a legislative assembly in 1847 and a con[stitu]tional rule.

In 1866 the North German Confederation was formed with the King of Prussia as President. The Catholic states of the South, Bavaria, Baden and Wurttemberg refused to join the federation until the success of the Prussian armies in the Franco-German War in 1871. By success of the Prussian armies, Germany gained Alsace and Lorraine, large indemnity and more important, from a capitalist viewpoint, and awakened national spirit.

The government was changed from a Confederation to an Empire, with William I, King of Prussia, proclaimed the Emperor of Germany, January 18, 1871.

About 1883 Bismarck succeeded in forming the Triple Alliance of Prussia, Austria-Hungary, and Italy.

It is said the Emperor of Germany has been preparing for war for the past 25 years, being imbued with the idea of a vast monarchy composing most, if not all, the nations to whom Germany has been paying heavy tribute in the form of the BALANCE OF TRADE, thereby relieving herself of this annual drain and providing for future supplies of and within her acquired domain. (Don't forget that "Teddy" said something about a world monarchy once.)

Why Germany should strike out so suddenly, and with no apparent provocation is a wonder to the casual observer, but to the Socialists it is readily seen that every day adds terror to the heart of the Emperor when he sees the tremendous growth of Socialism in his empire, and the probable action of the World Congress of Socialists soon to meet, who, it is known, would promulgate strong and positive declarations against war, and religious persecution which is being forsted upon the working class of all countries and all creeds.

A capitalist trick to divide the workers on the economic and political fields so capitalism can keep in the saddle on your back and spurr you on to produce more for them while consuming less, because you have less wages to buy back that which you produce at an enormously increased price.

Already prices of necessities are soaring higher and higher, and the great mass of consumers is penniless to buy. "A penny wise and pound foolish" was never more true than at this time on the part of our capitalist, because the workers the world over are in revolt against capitalism. The "Money Mongers" plunge the nations of the world in war, carnage, bloodshed, empty sleeves, widowed mothers, and orphaned children. All for what? The Almighty Dollar—in the name of religion and patriotism.—That patriotism which takes the husband from his wife, the father from his offspring, and the son from his parents smacks too much of the regions of Hell to be embraced by home-loving, God-serving people-Socialists.

Socialists everywhere predict, and we join with them, that the present struggle of nations "will result in the complete overthrow of th aceptialist system."

Not only France, but the army of France is honey-combed with Socialism. Not only Germany, but the Imperial troops are mutinous with anti-war soldiers. Recently the Socialistic guard to the Pope of Italy, mutinied, and all Italy backed them in it. England cannot command a majority of her people in war, because of the sentiment against it. England has refused her women suffrage because John Bull said she could not go to war, and the women of England has lately demonstrated they could go to war, and slay, kill, burn, and blow up the same as men, and now when England need men the women declare they will go to war against war unless they get the ballot.

No one can accurately foretell the result, but this one thing is sure, that capitalism is at stake and will be "damned and doomed at the stake" and shall be consumed by the flames of its own starting, and out of it all will arise the world principle—Socialism—or the co-operative commonwealth.

Comrade Jean Jaures was assassinated and his blood has consecrated thousands in every nation of the globe to his cause. For every Socialist persecuted or murdered hundreds will consecrate themselves to the movement, so, in the words of Mother Jones, "Let the Hell-Hounds of Capitalism" loose, and in the words of some other martyr let them breed with the "Sluts of Purgatory" and give birth to "Imps of Capitalism," and in their hellish fornication be consumed by their own lust.

He must mean the "Journal," "Dispatch" and "Citizen." Also the Columbus City Council.

The following news item is certainly a peacherino. It clearly demonstrates the reason why capitalist papers can sell their sheets at 1 cent per copy, which does not half represent the cost of white paper alone, and still get by.

It also demonstrates the reason why the citizens of Columbus pay 35c for 10c gas. It is because the Gas company has "the city authorities on its staff."

The most surprising feature of the whole matter is, however, the candid way in which this plute tells us how they skin us. He must be most deucedly ignorant, or imagine that the workers are so ignorant that they won't catch on. Both contentions are probably right, as far as he is concerned, and a large part of our "voting stock," (to use an expression applied to voters the day after election, by old party politicians), but there is a large and increasing number of voters, who have understood this little capitalist game of subsidizing newspapers and city councils for lo these many years—and they are the despised Socialists who understand.

If you want to steal a railroad, see the editor. Do you want to raise the gas rate from 30c to 35c per thousand? See the editor, and the boss of the city council, and distribute judiciously a few shares of "Preferred," and you'll get the boost in rates all right.

But read the following extract from Doherty's speech and learn how the capitalists support their press, and then you come over to Macedonia and subsidize "The Socialist."

Mr. Henry Doherty, of the Columbus (Ohio) Gas Company, in an address before the twentieth annual meeting of the Ohio Gaslight Association at Cincinnati March 18, 1896, said:

"Keep the newspaper on your staff, also the city authorities. Now, how to do this is some times a problem. . . . Say you would go to the managers and proprietors of your newspapers with such a proposition as this: 'I have a few shares of stock to sell you on the following terms: I will take your note, secured by indorsing the stock over to me, with interest at a rate less than the earning capacity of the stock, with privilege of paying it at any time upon giving sixty days' notice.' To be brief, it should be our business today to keep the stock of our companies distributed among those who are in a position to promote the welfare of our business." — From Toledo Union Leader.

By Terrence Loraine.

In mining coal throughout the land
Both men and mules must take a hand,
The men are paid, I've heard it said,
While surely mules are daily fed.
And if by chance they close the mines,
The mules are fed all through hard times;
Not so with men, as the capitalist tool,
They got us placed beneath their mules;
For they let us starve, while our friend, the ass,
Is living fat on the green, green grass.

In the election for members of the Legislature in Luxemburg, Germany, the Socialists increased their seats from five to six. The Liberals are in control with 28 seats, Conservatives 19 and four independents. Property qualifications to vote holds down the Socialist representation.

HOW FREE? AMERICANS SLOBBER OVER ROTTEN ROYALTY

It is otherwise at the great court functions. Then the Czarina appears in a blaze of glory, outshining the most gorgeously gowned ladies of the empire, not only in magnificence of attire, but in regal graciousness of manner. A courtier of the imperial household has estimated that because of her garb the empress on such occasions is worth, as she stands, the cost of a dreadnaught!

One must see her in full court gala array, wearing her wondrous state robes of pearls and emerald cabochons, her priceless gown incrusted with jeweled designs of gem embroidery and adorned with the stars and crosses of royal decoration, and with the scintillating kokshnik, or imperial tiaar, composed entirely of pearls and diamonds set in platinum, towering high upon her regal brow. Then, surrounded by her suite of one hundred ladies in waiting of the premier aristocracy—each radiating a splendor second only to that of the unapproachable Czarina—as the jeweled ebony doors swing open she steps into Nicholas Hall, the most lavishly magnificent interior of the winter palace, where a host of no less than three thousand superbly gowned ladies and brilliantly uniformed gentlemen of the aristocracy attend in state to do her homage. On these occasions she is, indeed, a creature to the purple born and bred, the very incarnation of gracious, lofty sovereignty, every inch the Czarina!—Columbus Dispatch.

NO USE FOR A SCAB I NHELL

(By H. S., E. P., Pa.)

"I ought to get a large reward,
For never owning a union card,
I've never gambled, I've never struck,
I've never mixed up with union truck,
I must be going my way to win,
So open St. Peter and let me in."
St. Peter sat and shook his staff;
Despite his high office he had to laugh.
Said he, with a fury gleam in his eye,
"Who is tending this gate, sir, you or I?
I've heard of you and your gift of gab—
You are what is known on earth as a scab."
Thereupon he rose in his stature tall
And pressed a button upon the wall,
And said to the imp that answered the bell,
"Escort this fellow around to hell,
Tell Satan to give him a seat alone
On a red hot griddle up near the throne."
"But stay, for the devil can't stand the smell
Of a cooking scab on a gridle in hell,
It would cause a revolt, a strike, I know,
If I sent you down to the imps below,
Go back to your master on earth and tell
That they don't even want a scab in hell."

GUARDIANS OF LIBERTY STIR UP RELIGIOUS HATRED

The result of the Tuesday (Aug. 11) primaries in Franklin County, showed the futility of effort to divide the voters on the religious question. The recently organized Guardians of Liberty endorsed certain candidates because they were either Protestants or non-church adherents.

Seven such were indorsed on the Democratic ticket, regardless of the wish of the candidate endorsed. All seven were defeated by candidates of the Catholic Faith, who, if honorable men, have just as good right to the suffrage of the citizen as any Protestant, but men are known by the company they keep, and it is sad indeed that the nominations were controlled by the Bosses, who, by a combination control the voters, that went to the primaries. At least two-thirds of those who voted Tuesday were office holders or political henchmen. The light vote enabled them to win. The great mass of citizens are to be condemned for staying at home. Only in two instances was the slate of the Bosses broken, and that in spite of the feeble efforts of the Guardians of Liberty. What will that organization do at the general election in November? We will see.

Remember, Socialists fight Bossism, graft, and wrong of Protestants or Catholics, but have no quarrel on your religion.

The general election for members of Parliament in Australia will take place next month and both sides are straining every nerve to win. There are only two parties in the field—the Liberal-Conservative fusion and the Labor party. The fusionists are making frantic appeals to the business interests, professional elements and farmers to guard against "socialistic confiscation," while the Labor party charges the old-party fusion with being in collusion with the American Meat Trust and other combines to rob and enslave the Australian people.

Some weeks ago prominent Socialists of Germany charged that soldiers in the army are frequently subjected to inhuman torture. The government officials challenged the Socialists to make good by bringing in action against a member for slander. The Socialists promptly went to bat and announced that they had 1,018 witnesses, with more in sight, who would be summoned to testify. The witnesses are ready to tell of recruits driven to suicide by brutalities of officers, of physiques ruined for life by the kickings and cuffings and lashings of sergeants and corporals; of humiliations which burned as deeply into the souls of soldiers as the welts cut into their bodies. But the government officers abruptly adjourned the case, and it is doubtful whether it ever will be tried. Emperor Bill and his friends fear scandals will shake the country.

According to Berlin cables the organs of privilege in Germany are not yet through discussing the "insult" to the Emperor administered by the Socialists several weeks ago when Parliament adjourned and they refused to rise from their seats and give three "Hochs" to Bill. Some of the reactionists seriously discussed the proposition of prosecuting the Socialists for lese majesty, and the police authorities are seeking revenge by suppressing the gymnasium schools of the young Socialists, claiming they are political and hotbeds for the propagation of socialism. Parliament is also called upon to deal with the matter and pass a law to compel the Socialists to cheer the Kaiser whether they want to or not. The Socialists regard the hubbub coolly and complacently.

Mention this paper when purchasing from our advertisers.

Only one thing can defeat Socialism—something better. If you know of anything better, tell us about it.

Editors of the kept press can't help printing lots of foolish stuff—that is part of the game.

In the eyes of American people the Declaration of Independence meant freedom! To the English it meant high treason! To the Socialist Socialism means freedom! To the capitalist it means high treason.

It must be a bitter thing for an upright, earnest minister of the gospel to look his congregation in the face and realize that if he tells them the truth he will have to give up his job. —Hammond.

Only the Socialists, with their service of all the people, and not the capitalist class, have a solution to the situation that is at all worth considering by thinkers; namely the socialisation of the enterprises, with no one to benefit but the people.

The masters never fight—they merely induce foolish workers to do that; and, when the workers become wise enough to adopt Socialism they will be too wise to fight for the other fellow.

In an organization of human beings there can be no efficiency without discipline. Pure democracy and discipline have never slept on the same pillow.

SOCIAL PROGRESS

In days of old, so we've been told,
The strong man ruled the cliffs,
He took a club to any dub
Sans wherefores, buts or ifs,
And then took of the weaker's wealth
Whatever he thought right;
He did this while he kept his health,
But after that—good night!

But modern days have modern ways
To turn the prima ltrick;
The smallest shrimp, whose grip is limp,
May swing the biggest stick;
And strong men gladly work for him
For part of what is theirs,
And then when death his doused his glim
Keep working for the heirs.
—Rex Lampman.

SOCIALISM.
By Frank B. Norman.

"I stand at thy door and knock and ye hear me not."

I am the dream of prophecy, the kingdom of heaven on earth.

Since the world began I have laid my plans.

I am the revolution, the clanking of the chains of slavery and the famished cry of a little child have aroused me from my slumber.

I am Socialism, the goal of the oppressed.

I come to turn the cry of the child into laughter, the moan of the slave into the cry of happiness.

Science shall be my betrothed; together we shall make the desert spots of earth a blooming paradise.

We shall clean up the filthy spots of earth and make labor a joy.

I shall free justice from the curse of gold and tear away the bandage of greenbacks from her eyes.

The echo of my knocking causes the temples of the money changers to tremble; the mighty ones of earth to shake the quiver, the human ghouls of lust and greed to gnash their teeth with rage and hatred.

All the forces of evil fear me and would render me apart with ferocity.

I come to seal their doom; their ferocity shall avail them naught.

I will tune a new song to the ears of men, the song of contented industry.

I shall remove the discord of profit, greed and individual ownership. I shall tune it to the chord of equal partnership of all men in its ownership and operation and to equal shares in its blessings.

Its notes shall reverberate around the earth in thrmills of ecstasy without ceasing.

Fathers and mothers of America, lend me thine ears but for a moment, but let that moment be full of deep, serious thought.

All the forces of evil are opposed to me. This should recommend me to your attention.

You have a vague knowledge there is something wrong in the world.

You know vice has all the good things, while virtue starves in a garret.

You know dishonesty, corruption and crime are rewarded with honor, while honesty is punished with poverty.

You know there is an abundance of land, yet men herd together in the filth of cities.

You know there is an abundance of rain and sunshine, yet famine abounds.

You know there is an abundance of food left to rot upon the fields of harvest for the want of markets, and men famish of starvation.

You know there is an abundance of material to warmly clothe and shelter every human being, yet men shiver and freeze in rags and have no place to lay their head.

You know men seek and clamor and fight for work and find it not; that work seeketh for men and finds them not.

You know a pull is a greater factor than efficiency.

And thou knowest not the cause of the remedy for these soul-destroying conditions of hell.

Thou art mystified and perplexed because thine ear is inclined to listen to the excuses and the explanations of the powers of evil who control thy source of knowledge.

"Behold, I stand at thy door and knock and ye hear me not."

Many shall come with sweet, seductive music in my name; by their songs shall ye know them.

Go not forth to meet them, but open thy door ere it be too late.

It's getting pretty hot, Bonehead. Why not take a vacation? Hey! What? The masters are out in the country and up on the lakes, and taking cross-country auto trips. How many hilarious, health-making trips are you and your family going to take this summer, Mr. Worker? Your hands and brains have produced all the wealth the bosses are now spending having a good time. Why should they spend it after you make it? Put that noodle to work.

Our river banks could be made beautiful places for the people to spend their idle moments, but capitalism makes them the stink holes of the universe. Take a walk up along the Olentangy and notice the dirty dumps at the end of nearly every street. Many of them are afire and burning and when the wind blows the smoke towards the city it makes a stench bad enough to cause a Dutchman to throw up his socks. Particularly is this true of the city dump at the end of West Third Avenue. But then the working class live over there—it is safely away from East Broad Street, so that the aristocrats don't smell it, and so, presto, it don't exist to our capitalist politicians.

A Weekly Newspaper Without a Muzzle

Vol. IV Whole No. 191 COLUMBUS, O., AUG. 22, 1914 Price, 2 Cents per Copy

O. S. U. N. High St.

THIS PAPER is published in the interest of the working class. If you think it is worthy of your support, support it by getting new subscribers. If you don't like it, don't knock. We are making it as good as you will allow. Whenever the workers support their own press as valiantly as they do the master's press we will be able to do really big things for the emancipation of the workers. In the meantime, we are forging ahead conscious of the fact that our cause is just, that right will finally triumph, and the workers step forth emancipated from the age-long servitude to a robber, master class.

Pope Pius X Dies of Broken Heart

Broken-Hearted, His Only Consollation is in the Firm Stand Taken for Peace by the Socialists of all Nations.

ROME, August 19, 1914—The Pope, head of the Catholic church of every nation of the globe died of a broken-heart because of the horrible war now raging in Europe. Asked all the heads of the churches in Europe to work for peace as are the Socialists of all nations. Realizing the terrible extent of war with all the up-to-date death dealing munitions of war, the Pope swooned, became unconscious and did not fully rally, upon hearing that Germany had declared war on Russia.

Pope asked every Catholic to work and pray for peace.

Socialists the world around will be pleased to know of the enthusiasm of the Pope in his last days and because of his attitude on the war question and because the Socialist Party of the World is the only refuge for peace-loving people. There is but one thing for Catholics who have faith in the Pope and that is to join the Socialist Party and work for peace between nations, peace between classes, and peace between individuals, and peace of soul because the burdens of life are ended through the ushering in of world-wide peace—Socialism—the co-operative commonwealth.

Like Jean Jaures, Socialist, Pope Pious X died a martyr to the cause of peace.

Capitalism in U. S. Prepare for War!

THE LAST GREAT WORLD-WIDE STRUGGLE—THEN SOCIALISM.

By W. C. Bates.

Watch the weak knees of some of the loud-mouthed r—r—revoliutionists quiver and shake and knock together when called upon to stand up and be counted for or against "The System."

That the present DEATH STRUGGLE of the "capitalist system" is world-wide goes without saying. That there is absolutely no excuse for the nations of Europe to fly at the throats of other nations of Europe is admitted even by capitalists. But that it is a war of class against class and the positive truth is denied by capitalists but firmly asserted by Socialists.

All wars of all times were in reality wars of one class against another class but upon the surface that fact was not known or understood by the people, the working or producing class, who had nothing to do with the causing of war, the ordering of war nor its termination, except only after the workers of one nation had annihilated the workers of another nation and had so exhausted themselves as to be able to fight no longer. You have heard the story of the red ants that had their "ant hill" (home) beside the black ant "ant hill" or home. How the farmer drug his clod crusher over both and destroyed them, and the hot-headed black ants thought the red ants had declared war and so the hot-headed red ants said the black ants invaded their home and they both declared war and in a day or two the occupants of both "ant hills" had killed each other save a very few, and so with this war of nations. Capitalism has dragged its profit pulverizer across the "adobe" of Mexico, across the "Heimat" of Germany and the "Roths-childe" of Russia and the hot-headed, uniformed rulers don their clanking armor and strut about demanding that somebody "salute the flag seven times" or war will be declared. After a few days and many murders by the hot-heads it is discovered that there was no insult, that it was only "Farmer Huerta" dragging his pulverizer across the Mexican peon adobe and that "FARMER HUERTA" was only an interloper, preying upon the busy ants (peons) of Mexico. Fortunately these same peons under the reconstructionists, Villa and we hope Carranza discovered the real destroyer of their property and drove Huerta and his co-exploiters form their Ant-Hill (adobe) and expropriated the expropriator's expropriations.

So much for Mexico and we could make the same application as to the European war but it would be too tedious. It is sufficient to say that "Farmer Gugenheim," "Farmer Rothschild," or "Farmer Morgan" have dragged their profit-taking "Steam Roller" over the fields and vineyards of France, Germany, England and Russia, leveling down, crushing and destroying the very "ant-hills" or homes of the busy people and willing workers and in their confusion and desperation each accuse the other of the havoc wrought and failed to see "Farmer Capitalism" drive over them rough-shod while they toiled. Thousands of these toilers were on the lookout for this grasping old "Farmer Capitalism" and saw him coming, gave the warning and called an "Inter-nation" convention to put a stop to his programme, but the stubborn old CUSS only hastened his pace and beat them to it. These millions of "peace-loving" toilers were the Socialists of every nation on the globe with "Hands-across-the Seas" they have sent messages of greetings and played FAITH-TO-FAITH to surrender each other in the "Bosom of Peace" of our "SOCIALISTE UNIVERSALE" brotherhood. Already thousands of the German soldiers have surrendered peacably to the Socialist Belgian army, who are fighting only against invasion of their "Ant-Hill" by "Farmer Capitalism" in the person of Kaiser Wilhelm II, Emperor of Germany.

In the United Statees today "Farmer Capitalism" is trotting out his most up-to-date and powerful profit-getting "Ant-Hill" destroyer and setting a pace of destruction that will, in fact has, created consternattion in the minds of not only the toilers, the busy ants, but of the drones, dead-beats and small parasites. What with the jacking up of prices, and what with the laying off of thousands and thousands of wage-earners "Farmer Capitalism" has so confused, disconcerted and unbalanced the minds of fathers, hunbands, and sons, that they are ready to fly at each others throats, while in fact all should unite in a sensible determined effort to stop the destructive work of the grimm-visaged monster, "Capitalism" by changing the system. This can be done and that right speedily by voting the Socialist ticket from top to bottom.

Day after day we read in the old party press where some "Ant-Hill" has been destroyed by Capitalism. The following only illustrates many we have recently noticed:

Harvester Plant Closes.

Batavia, N. Y., Aug. 15.—Asserting that the European War has had a disasterous effect on its business, the Johnstown Harvester Co., the principal manufacturing concern here, closed down its plant today. The company employs 1200 men and forty per cent of its output goes to Europe.

A few days ago 12000 Longahoremen were laid off, and thousands more. What are these toilers going to do? Yesterday, the day before, and for years past they were willing workers, tomorrow you will say they are "bums" and ought to starve. That they could get work if they really wanted it. You scoundrel, you lie and you know you lie. You know there is only two days between a wage-slave of yesterday and a "bum" of tomorrow.

How are these men to buy of the corner merchant if they have no work and no money?

If 40 per cent of the output of the Harvester Co. goes to Europe, it is safe to assert the same holds good with other plants. Then for U. S. to engage in war means to cut off 40 per cent of her trade and put out of work 40 per cent of all wage-earners, thereby lessening the purchasing power of the consumers 40 per cent.

It is like the fool who stood out on a limb, sawed it off next to the tree and fell with the limb, breaking his fool neck. And so Capitalism is doomed. It is falling of its own weight. Each nation has exhausted its own reasources and the markets of all others. There is now no longer room to expand or extend the markets, and like the farmer with 100 mules on a ten acre farm must secure more land or get rid of his mules. Capitalism has acquired all the lands of the world and has an ovar production of "Human Mules." There are no more lands to be had and Capitalism proceeds by WAR to get rid of the wage-mules who have produced so much that they are starving while looking straight at the heaps of food they produced. Glorious thought!

SCABS PROTECTED BY U. S. TROOPS

(By United News Writers.)

Trindad, Colo., Aug. 15.—"No more picketing at the railroad stations" is the order of Colonel Lockett to the troopers under his command in the strike zone. Armed cavalrymen now meet every train and drive off the union miners that attempt to warn incoming strangers that there is a strike on in the coal camps. But the scab-herders, detectives, and company men are more plentiful than ever around the stations, meeting every train to escort the "greenies," who have been told by agents in Eastern cities that the strike is off, to places of safety.

The striking miners have at last come to the conclusion that the biggest strike-breaking agency of all is now on the job for the coal operators and that its chief is Colonel Lockett of the United States Army.

Never in the history of strikes in Colorado were scabs so well protected as now. Under the militia there was war and scabs did not like to enter the zone of bullets, but now there is a deadly peace in which the union miners are slowly being strangled to death by the Federal soldiers.

A resolution just passed by a miners' local near Trindad shows that the last straw has been placed on the workers' patient back and that not all eyes are opened to the fact that Uncle Sam's gunmen are as deadly to wage workers as the Baldwin-Felts professional mankillers.

The eye opening resolution reads as follows:

Resolutions Unanimously Adopted By La Veta Local Union No. 3038 of the United Mine Workers of America.

Whereas, On or about April 30th, 1914, the federal troops arrived in the strike district. On May 11th, 1914, a proclamation was issued by them forbidding the importation of workmen in the strike district to take the places of the striking miners. Since that time large numbers of non-union men have come in the district and have been given work in the mines, this with the knowledge and sanction of the federal authorities, filling the mines, now operating to capacity.

We believe except for the presence of the troops that non-union workmen would refrain from invading the district, and that ere this, the coal companies would have considered a settlement. We have for many years suffered from abuses and grievous wrongs without any redress, because of the corrupting influence of the coal operators, politically. That all of the things of which we complained, have been righted by said coal operators in the mines now operating, for the benefit of these non-union workmen, denying us the benefit of any such changes. We had great confidence in the integrity, wisdom and ability of their presence to adjust our difficulties and without question delivered to them our only means of defense and placed ourselves helpless in their charge. We believe that we were in a position to defend our rights and effect a settlement of our wrongs before the army was brought here to assist the operators in their career of lawlessness, and deprive us of our only resources—our labor—and we believe with the immortal Lincoln, "Labor is prior to and independent of capital. Capital is but the fruit of labor, and could never have existed had labor not first existed. Labor is superior to capital, and deserved much the higher consideration."

Resolved, That we concur in the foregoing, and that a copy of this resolution be sent to the president of the United States for his respectful consideration.

EUROPE.

By Scudder Middleton.

Sooner or later, it had to be!
For long were you rotting away inside;
Rotting away with unbelief and pride;
Foul with idolatry of kings and empire and gold;
Putrid with the worship of priests;
Diseased by lust and greed;
Loathsomely sucking a fetid milk from the shrunken breasts of Poverty!

Now Death!
Now be about the killing and the murder!
The sooner it is over the better—
The sooner you sink in your own filth the better!
For, up from the place where you fall,
Rising like the sun out of the night
Will come a new Continent, the People!
The long oppressed, denied, the starved and beaten People!
Rising out of your dead body—
The true Resurrection at last—
The Peeople, singing, singing, singing!

TO THE AMERICAN PEOPLE:

A desperate situation confronts the people of America.

Unscrupulous capitalists, using the European war as a pretext, are increasing the cost of food so that millions are threatened with starvation.

The President of the United States has ordered an investigation of the increase in food prices, and the prosecution of those responsible for it. Such investigations and prosecutions have brought no results whatsoever in the past and are not likely to do so now.

European governments, when confronted with a similar situation, realized that there is only one measure that can be depended upon to bring relief—the seizure of all plants and industries responsible for the increase in prices and there operation by the government for the benefit of the people.

We demand that the same action be taken immediately in the United States.

We demand that the government, as an emergency measure, seize the packing houses, cold-storage warehouses, granaries, flour mills and such other plants and industries as may be necessary to safeguard the food of the people.

Such seizure will not only benefit the people of the United States, but also the people of Europe.

When the government controls the industries, the exportation of foods to Europe can be prevented. The rulers of Europe, unable to secure food for their armies, will be forced to call off their soldiers.

We also demand that the exportation of money and of munitions of war to the European nations be prohibited. The United States must not aid the powers of Europe to continue their fratricidal strife. We call upon the people everywhere to hold mass-meetings and to send resolutions to the President and Congress demanding immediate and decisive action.

The need is urgent. We must act.

By order of the National Committee on Immediate Action:

WALTER LANFERSIEK,
Executive Secretary.

THE PRIEST, WAR, TITANIC, HEAVEN

By W. C. Bates.

When the Titanic collided with an iceberg in mid-ocean and went down with much of her human freight, the newspapers gave many instances of heroism and recounted but few instances of cowardice. That was a time of sudden catastrophe, of imminent danger. Men had to think and act quick, and yet we found that almost all acquitted themselves with coolness, bravery and Christian demeanor.

How different the conduct of some of our notables identified with the profit-getting machinery of modern times when caught abroad in Europe when war seized our tourists' countries.

The Governmetn at Washington has bent all its energies to get money by the million to relieve the very few plutes—cowards who were sojourning in Europe at the expense of the toilers of the United States and at the same time looking down upon those whom they had robbed with scorn and contempt.

Yes, millions in money is being hurried across the Atlantic for these few while the millions of real citizens, useful men, women and children are being thrown upon the scrap-heap of the unemployed to starve and die.

Where does the bravery, heroism and Christianity show up in this procedure?

One instance will serve to illustrate many others, of cowardise, degeneracy and irreligion. The capitalist papers fawning at the feet of mammon have given much space to the escape of Bishop Hartley of this city from the war-scared nations and in their "religious zeal" to flatter a sky-pilot unwittingly told the whole truth which recalled the fact that Bishop Hartley played a trick on those who had preference over him at the ticket office to secure passage on the boat to America and thereby deprived a widow and children of passage home in the line in front of him who had to remain there without money or friends.

The papers say, and Bishop Hartley has not denied it, that the bishop, fearing he could not get passage if all those in line ahead of him got to the ticket office first, slipped along the line until he found a priest close to the ticket window and paid him money to procure passage for him, the bishop, against the absolute rights of all in line ahead of him.

Bishop Hartley was in no immediate danger. There was no occasion for such dishonesty. He did not have to act hastily nor excitedly like those caught on the Titanic.

His act was cowardly and un-Christian and we want Bishop Hartley to know the world looks upon him as such.

Bishop Hartley is not alone in such acts of treachery—he has plenty of company in the persons of some high-up Protestant bishops and would-be bishops. The question we want to ask here and now is, if Bishop Hartley and all the rest of the "moral cowards" (see testimony in Bates-Black case) would crowd widows and orphans off the ocean liners to safety from war, at a time offering no immediate danger to a life of only a few years here on earth, would he and they not crowd widows and orphans off the Life-boat of read Christianity to save himself and themselves from torment eternal? We say yes, you are all a bunch of "moral cowards" with not enough Christianity to save the children from the sweat-shops, factories and cotton fields, nay, not enough courage enough to stop the iniquities of the whipping-post in our own Juvenile Court.

Cowards, you are "moral cowards" or every pulpit would resound against the juvenile dungeon, against "Big Brutes" and the "Farming out" of boys contrary to law.

Then talk about Socialists breaking up the home, against religion, opposed to the church and a whole lots more such rot. You are no better than an infidel juryman who declared all Socialists were anarchists, opposed to the flag, etc., and should be convicted evidence or no evidence.

Smoke that in your pipe, oh you vipers, hypocrites and "moral cowards."

PATRIOTISM AND RELIGION EXPLODED

By W. C. Bates.

A man may fight and run away
And live to fight another day.
But he that does, he sure must know,
He's lost respect of friend and foe.

A Bishop may skulk along the line
In waiting for tickets on steamer fine;
He may slip a bribe in a Priest's soft hand,
And passage secure to his own Home-land.

But if he does, and crowds off the boat
Widows and children, to save his own coat,
The world will condemn—for to heaven it stunk
And characterize him as a non-Christ-like skunk.

The above shows a life size picture of Fred Williams, 14 year old boy who was delivered by Judge Samuel L. Black of the Juvenile Court, into the hands of the "Big Brothers"? Major? Harold M. Bush, Secretary.

He was farmed out to the A. E. Pitts shoe house, Number 162 N. High St., under another "Big Brother?" J. J. Baird.

Fred had to report from school each day at 3:30 o'clock and deliver packages until the store closed in the evening each school day and work all day on Saturday.

When school closed Fred had to work every day. He did not get his Saturday vacations during school, nor any vacation like other boys when school closed.

Fred asked his Juvenile slave-drivers to be off on Thursday, July 23rd so he could play ball with his schoolmates. They refused. (Fred could earn a dollar for them that day.) Fred stayed away from the Pitts store and played ball that day. He had a right to, the law says, Fred has a right to stay away from that store every day. If his father placed him there or beat him one-tenth as much as the "Big Brothers" beat him, the father would be sent to the "Works" by Judge Black; then why can the "Bib Brute" legally beat this boy.

The Major'll get you if you don't watch out.

Little sober Sammy's come
To our town to stay,
To round the boys and girlies up,
And see that they obey.
And when vacation time has come
And Sammy's work is done,
We gather at the Gabber House,
And have the mostest fun.
List'nin' to the switch tales
What Sammy tells about,
How the Major'll git you
If you don't watch out.

Once there was a little boy
Who wouldn't go to work,
And when he went to see the game
He told it to the clerk.
And just as they had made a hit,
And all the people hollered,
Two big policemen
That little fellow collared.
They snatched him thru the basement door
'Fore he knowed what he's about
The Major got him
'Cause he didn't watch out.

They beat him and they pounded him
Till he was black and blue;
And even when he fainted
I guess they wasn't thru.
Virginia heard him holler,
Betz-Sickles heard him ball,
But when they's axed about it
They darsent tell at all.
You got to be real careful
Of what you talk about,
Or the Major'll git you
If you don't watch out.

Sammy says that when his face
Is red and the air is blue,
And all the court attendants
Stand 'round and look at you,
You'd better mind employers
And Big Brothers, fond and dear,
And cherish them that watch you
And make you hustle here.
And when you're called to labor,
You'd better be about,
Or the Major'll git you
If you don't watch out.

WE HAVE PAST THE POINT.

By W. C. Bates.

We have past the point where SNEERS CAN CRASH OUR ZEAL
For what is right for man or for the common-weal
When "moral cowards" and degenerates cry aloud and wail
Each time an occasion demands we twist their slimy tail.

We have past the point where politicians' roar and rant
For patriotism of country or the preachers' solemn cant
About the breaking up of homes and disrespect of God
CAN CHANGE OUR COURSE OF ACTION, while still on this old sod.

We have past the point where only right
APPEALS TO US THROUGH BUSY DAY OR RESTFUL NIGHT
With heart brim full of love and conscience ever clear
For weak and helpless children, we'll work, both far and near.

We have past the point where flattery's giddy clans
Or profane threats of detectives can changed our fixed plans,
Where only JUSTICE rules our course, and bold
So long as God enables us pure justice to behold.

JOY FOR REPENTANT SINNERS

There have been great doings recently in London, England. The people of the tight little island, or at least those of them constituting "the world of sport," have been sitting on the seat of humiliation of late in the mater of pulling off competitive athletic events with foreigners.

But they have evidently been bringing forth fruits meet for repentance lately, and, verily, they have had their reward, for the other night they staged a religious slugfest, which in every sense was a grand success—a mighty outpouring of the spirit.

A clergyman, the Rev. Father Boudier, of St. Michael's Angelican Church, Islington, and one of the most popular shepherds in the metropolis, acted as Master of Ceremonies in the place of the Rev. Digby, who, though also present, was disqualified by his Bishop from officiating. Father Boudier introduced the gladiators and received an overwhelming ovation, particularly from the daintily-garbed ladies present, of whom there were thousands in attendance, as might, of course, be expected from the well-known religious temperament of women generally.

During the combat a delegation of Welsh pietists at the ringside solemnly chanted their national hymn, "God of Our Fathers," while their Cymric fellow countryman, valiantly doing battle for the Lord, was whaling the stuffing out of his foreign adversary. The strains of Kipling's famous "Recessional," it is said, were also distinctly heard among the vast audience.

Mr. Welsh, the British glove artist, achieved a tremendous triumph over his opponent; he is now lightweight champion of the world and will pull in a sack of money in the near future. He well deserves his victory, too, for he is a most pious young man, and while training in Wales refrained from boxing on the Sabbath day in deference to the expressed wishes of his constituents.

It was a distinct proof of the power of religion, quite as much so as any demonstration given by the Rev. William Sunday, and considerably more respectable also.

Some of these progressive days, no doubt, some great financial genius and dead game sport will stage a sacred dog fight for the moral uplift of the community. As an attraction for repentant sinners it should prove an immense success and no difficulty should be anticipated in securing the services of a popular clergyman as master of ceremonies. Since the prize ring has been officially sanctified by their presence, almost anything in the line of a physical contest is possible, though, of course, prudence would dictate that a sharp watch should be kept lest the serpent of Socialism creep in unawares and destroy religion.

A PRESCRIPTION.

Socialism just now is a nauseous compound for the capitalist European nations to swallow, but most of them have already swallowed enough of it to induce internal movements in sundry places and divers manners that will to some extent force them to keep the peace. Moral: Try Little Red Pills for that pugnacious feeling. If taken in sufficient quantities, they never fail to bring relief.

OHIO STATE FAIR

BATTLE OF BRAIN BRAWN AND BREEDS

AUG. 31 TO SEPT. 4

Nobody can see all of the Ohio State Fair in one day or week. Those who have the habit of attending know its value best and will come again.

Only those who see it can talk intelligently of its magnitude. Only those who have gone through its many departments can describe its bigness. He who has had the pleasure of seeing this great Exposition is willing to say to his friends: "A State Fair trip is a good investment."

For years you have promised yourself a visit to the Capital City and State Fair. Now is the time to make good the promise. Relax and rest.

Thrice, daily, dish washing appears upon the program of the house-wife. A husband ought to treat his wife to ice cream and soda after marriage. She wants to be sociable. She wants to go with him to the Fair.

The boy has worked through summer heat and dirt. He dreams of the Fair and City. He has earned a short vacation. Why not let his dream come true in 1914? He will pay in work.

Years and birthdays pass. Age comes on apace. Why put off the joys and sweets of life? Why wait for the 'after while' that may never come? Most of our troubles don't happen. Do it now.

TOO TRIVIAL FOR OUR NEWSPAPERS

This is a story of what happened on the Denver School Board. It also shows what our big Eastern newspapers do NOT consider important enough to print, and makes us realize that many matters that are of greatest interest to those of us who are fighting against prejudice and reaction are just the things we never hear about.

On June 7 we happened accidentally to see a copy of the Kansas City Star and so stumbled across a small article announcing the decision of the Denver School Board on June 6 that any woman teacher who marries automatically loses her position.

We rubbed our eyes and read it again. Could this really have happened in equal suffrage Denver, where women have been in public life as voters for years, in a city which sends a woman to the Colorado Senate? If so, it was certainly a most significant event which women all over the country should know about.

We know there had not been a word about the matter in the New York papers we had seen, so we decided to look through them all. We did this for the next few days and found not a syllable. We ask a number of women, part of whose work it is to keep track of just such happenings; they had heard nothing.

"Oh, it must be a mistake," said one of them. "They'd never pass such a rule in Denver."

But we were determined to get at the truth of the matter. So we wrote a letter to the secretary of the Denver School Board asking him if that body had decided that any woman teacher upon marrying was to be summarily discharged. In reply the secretary informed us that the Committee on Teachers and Text-Books had recommended and that the board had adopted the following rule:

"Marriage by a teacher during the term of her employment will be considered by the Board of Education equivalent to a resignation."

So there it was, black on white, undeniably true.

While reading the letter, however, we had noticed that the letterhead showed the president of the board to be a woman, Mrs. Myron Jones. And on looking further we discovered that this same Mrs. Myron Jones was the chairman of the Committee on Teachers and Text-Books, which had recommended the monstrous rule to the board.

The mystery was certainly deepening. What was the matter with the voting women of Denver that they would permit a reactionary old fossil like that to be president of their school board? The women voters of Denver had always been pictured as a most progressive, courageous and determined body. Denver is full of women officials and boasts of the only woman Senator in the United States. And their woman-president of their school board puts through such a measure! What did it mean?

More interested than ever, we were bound to find out if, after having had the vote in Colorado for twenty-one years, the women had developed no further than the situation on the Denver School Board seemed to indicate.

So we wrote another letter, this time to Senator Helen Ring Robinson, who represents the 1st District of Denver in the Colorado Senate. We know Mrs. Robinson to be a very progressive woman, who, for a non-Socialist, spoke out most fearlessly and frankly against the unholy alliance between the mine owners and the State during the Colorado coal strike, and on behalf of the strikers. We asked her please to explain how, in a city where women voted, and a woman was president of the school board, such a measure could be passed.

A few days ago we received the following highly interesting reply:

My Dear Mrs. Block—Your letter followed me around during my recent Eastern journeyings, reaching me only a day or two since on my return.

The situation in regard to the resolution passed by the Denver Board of Education is as follows:

Mrs. Myron Jones, a very efficient member of the board, who believed that the test to apply to teachers was efficiency—not matrimony—resigned from the board for reasons which have no bearing on the subject of discussion. The board has the power to fill vacancies. The request was made by various women's organizations that the vacancy caused by Mrs. Jones' resignation be filled by a woman selected by them. Paying no attention to this request, the board proceeded, in the absence of one member, to elect an old, reactionary man—who then united with the reactionary members who had elected him to pass the resolution you quote, the reactionaries in the board of five being then in the majority.

The situation, combined with the resolution, aroused so much indignation among Denver women and so much unfavorable criticism that the new member resigned and his place was a day or two since filled by Mrs. Helen M. Wixson, formerly State Superintendent of Public Instruction. She told me this morning that her first act at the next meeting of the board will be to introduce a resolution "recalling" the former resolution. She has, as I understand the situation, votes enough to do it.

I trust this resume of the situation is as clear to you as a badly diseased typewriter—wrecked during my absence—will permit me to make it. Having the vote does not always protect Colorado women from the effects of ancient sex prejudices and traditions. But the vote and the added dignity that comes with it does at least prevent the flare-up of those ancient prejudices from working any permanent injury to the women against whom it shows itself. No woman in the Denver schools will ever lose her position merely because she chooses to marry. Faithfully yours,

HELEN RING ROBINSON.

This, then, is the story of what happened on the Denver School Board—a story of the greatest current interest, not one word of which ever reached the New York reading public, although it is not many months ago that all New York was aroused over a similar question.

It is the story of the many attempts of the unseeing, medieval-minded men of today to "keep women in their place"—the place, of course, being one of economic and therefore sexual subservience. Married women must not be allowed to be economically independent. If they are, the last vestige of male control over them goes.

In states where women have won political freedom, they have still to go through the struggle for economic freedom or REAL freedom. As soon as woman seems to proclaim that she wishes to be a self-dependent worker, dependent on no man for a living, in or out of marriage, the struggle is on. As the story of the Denver School Board shows, even where women have the vote, eternal viligance and eternal conflict are the price of woman's complete emancipation.—The Call, N. Y.

Speaking at Broad and High, Saturday evening. Comrades Green, Welsh and Wood will speak.

THE WAR AND THE WOMEN OF AMERICA

That suffering too terrible for words is being inflicted by this monstrous war on the women of Europe, every child knows. The truth that while women have nothing to do with war, war has everything to do with women, is today too well understood to need reiteration here.

How far-reaching this truth may be seen by the fact that this European war is inflicting suffering not only on the women across the sea, but also on the women right here in America. True, theirs is not anguish of the shattered home, of the dead father and the crippled son, but it is suffering for all that, and the kind that is sharp and bitter. For it is the suffering that comes from the inability to keep the wolf from the door, from seeing the larder empty and the children peaked and wan.

We all know how in recent years the cost of living has gone up and how wages have increased only slightly in comparison. We know how many thousands of proletarian families have been living on the edge of destitution and how many thousands more have plunged over the edge. Never have the charity organizations had so many demands for help as in the last few years. And it is the mothers, the long suffering mothers of the poor, on whom the whole miserable burden rests.

Now we learn that on account of the war some of the most ordinary foodstuffs are rising in price by leaps and bounds. Already sugar has gone up 3 cents a pound; coffee 3 to 5 cents and tea 5 to 7 cents. Flour, eggs, rice, rolled oats, onions and other articles used daily in the homes of the workers are steadily going up. All grades of meats have advanced at least 5 cents a pound and are going higher.

For thousands of mothers this spells disaster, if not tragedy, for it means the disintegration of the homes that they have so far managed to keep together. For other thousands it means more worry, more stinting, more sickness and more death among their loved ones.

And for this the war is to blame—a war across the ocean in which America is in no way involved. So closely is the whole world knit together by modern industry and commerce that when one continent is at war the women of another continent are plunged into grave economic difficulties, bring with them untold suffering. For the women of America, especially those of the working class, the war in Europe has a most significant interest.

Denver, Colo., August 15.—(Spl.)—Governor Elias M. Ammons who has won for himself the title of chief lick-spittle of the coal operators is out in a new role—this time writing letters to be used as press matter for the Colorado coal operators.

When the strike was called, Ammons began at once to use the influences of his office for the operators. The state militia was sent into the strike zone, at a cost to the taxpayers, of $1,000,000 to protect coal barons' property at the expense of personal rights and constitutional government.

The slaughter of the innocents at Ludlow was done by his gunmen-militia.

Now that the federal troops are in the field and he cannot use state powers to aid the coal operators, Ammons is writing wilful and deliberate lies in the form of letters to newspapers to be used as "copy" for the operators.

His first effort was spent in a talk on "the other gunmen" in the coal strike. He mentions the several notorious thugs who were killed when the gunmen of industry attacked the peaceful strikers, trying to bring out the point of course that the strikers were "the other gunmen."

But he says nothing of the twelve children slaughtered and cremated at Ludlow by his gunmen-militia, nor of the other 22 strikers who have lost their lives, at the hands of the operators' gunmen, in their effort to obtain industrial and political freedom in Colorado through an enforcement of the laws now on the statute books.

The miners scale committee met in Denver this week to make a scale for contracts to be signed for two years beginning September 1. No definite information has been given out, but it is believed that there will be few changes in the present scale.

There are now thirty-five independent operators working under a contract with the United Mine Workers, and other mine owners are contemplating the recognition of the union.

The greater efficiency of union labor is clearly brought out in the current report of the State Inspection of Coal Mines.

The report shows that mines working under an agreement with the United Mine Workers are producing almost twice their normal tonnage while the operators employing scab labor are only "getting out" about one-third of their normal output.

Aspirants for state and county offices will undergo a rigid examination next week when the State Federation of Labor meets in Pueblo.

For years the workers of Colorado have been buncoed by the pre-election friends of labor. The present strike of the coal miners, however, has taught them a lesson severe enough to make them realise that they must stand together at the coming election and go down the line for real friends of organised labor or else suffer intermittent outrages such as that at Ludlow.

The end and final shake-up of the Colorado National Guard may come this week. It is understood that Chase has refused to pay those men connected with the Ludlow massacre who have been waiting the verdict of the military (?) court martial. If he holds up their money, they have threatened to sue him and the state as well as "to tell a few things they know about the militia."

If they do tell even a few things they know about the Colorado National Gunmen, the world will stand aghast at the horrors of military rule in the coal strike zone.

Poor Elias M. Ammons, sometimes called the Governor of Colorado, continues to be hissed, jeered and hooted at the Democratic assemblies. Ammons, commander-in-chief of the Colorado National Guard, and executive, who prostituted his office to the coal operators, will go down in Colorado annuals as the most discredited Democrat in the history of that party.

LOSS OF LIFE IN COLORADO COAL MINES

Before and since the strike of the Colorado coal miners began, September 23, 1913, the mine owners refused to meet representatives of their men, always claiming that they had "nothing to arbitrate."

That there are two sides to every question, no sane man can deny.

There are two sides to the Colorado coal strike.

The mine owners have flooded the country with their literature attempting to prove that they "have nothing to arbitrate."

Many questions are involved in the present industrial struggle in Colorado which merit the attention of the country at large, and which we think prove that there is something to arbitrate.

There is nothing more sacred than life.

When, through criminal negligence through disobedience of the law, through improper management and inadequate ventilation, the mine owners of Colorado kill in their mines almost three times as many men, per thousand employed, as the average for the United States, and four times the average of states where operators recognize the United Mine Workers of America, we believe there is something to arbitrate.

None can deny that conservation of life is a vital issue in the future of these United States.

Statistics published by the Bureau of Mines of the Department of the Interior show the wanton disregard in which Colorado operators hold the lives of their men.

In 1913 there were 13,000 men working in the mines of Colorado. Of this number, 106 were killed, or an average of 8.31 per 1,000 men.

Eight thousand and thirty-six men worked in the neighboring state of Wyoming where the mine owners recognize the United Mine Workers. In this state, 26 men were killed, or an average of 3.24 men per thousand employed.

Missouri, another union state, had 10,143 miners at work. But 10 men lost their lives in the mines of that state, or an average of .99 men per thousand.

In the organized state of Iowa, 16,514 miners were employed in 1913. Twenty-six men were killed, or an average of 1.57 per thousand.

Illinois, the best organized state in America, employed 79,490 miners. Of these, 164 lost their lives, or an average of 2.06 per thousand.

Oklahoma operators employed 3,544 men practically all of them members of the United Mine Workers. In this state, 23 men were killed, or an average of 2.69 per thousand.

In Indiana, another organized state, 21,415 men worked in 1913. Sixty-six of them lost their lives in the mines, or an average of 3.08 per thousand.

Ohio operators employed 45,527 union miners. One hundred and sixty-five of them were killed, or an average of 3.62 men per thousand.

There were 728,355 coal miners in the United States in 1913. Two thousand, seven hundred and eighty-five of these lost their lives, or an average of 3.82 men per thousand.

In Colorado, the percentage of lives lost was 8.31 men per thousand.

Let us consider the death list of Colorado miners in 1910.

In that year, 14,768 men employed. Three hundred and nineteen were killed, or an average of 2.16 per thousand.

The average number of killed in the whole United States in that Year was 3.92 for every thousand men employed, or one-seventh of the average number of fatalities in Colorado.

Those are the facts.

But the operators insist that they have "nothing to arbitrate."

In 1911, ninety-one Colorado miners out of 14,315 employed lost their lives, or an average of 6.35 for every thousand men employed.

In 1912 there were 18,000 men at work in Colorado. Of these, 95 lost their lives, or 7.31 for every 1,000 men employed. This was twice the average number of men killed in the United States.

The above figures show one of the many reasons for the present strike of Colorado coal miners.

Since the strike of the Colorado coal miners began on September 23d, 1913, the coal operators and other interests have seen fit to attack the United Mine Workers of America. To any controversy that calls for explanation from either factor, there must be two sides. It is not within the bonds of possibility that the Colorado coal operators in arguing their own cause can be expected to give that full measure of justice to which the United Mine Workers of America are entitled.

The real facts must be known that there may be a more complete understanding of the situation.

We hope that a knowledge by the American people of the facts may be led to a solution of the present difficulties which will insure a healthy industrial peace in Colorado and a sounder relationship between Capital and Labor throughout the United States.

SOCIALISTS AND VACCINATION

By B. Liber, M. D., Editor of Our Health.

The Socialists of Germany have at last taken a decisive stand against vaccination. They, or at least their majority, have always been supporters of this medical delusion, against which the united forces of the German Naturopathic School, a minority of the regular medical profession and a large portion of the lay population have been battling for the last thirty or forty years. But two or three months ago the question of vaccination against smallpox came up in the German Parliament on the occasion of a bill which was introduced with the object to repeal the compulsory vaccination law and the Socialist rallied with its opponents, as we see from the German anti-vaccination press. That made the following very favorable result possible: The Reichstag was divided, 119 votes being against the law and 119 votes for it, and the chairman, who on such occasions decides the fate of a law, cast his vote in favor.

But, seeing by what a narrow escape the compulsory vaccination law was saved, the Reichstag, by a large majority, recommended to the government:

First—That a commission of friends and foes of vaccination be appointed to study the question and report the results.

Second—During the time of their studies and investigations the Compulsory Vaccination Law should be suspended, that is, nobody should be compelled to be vaccinated.

Third—An indemnity should be paid to those whose health has been broken by vaccination.

This is indeed a great triumph for the more advanced medical theories and a forceful blow to the dark superstitions which, even if they are scientifically coated, dishonor the great progress in the last half century in medicine.

And now the question is: Why do not the American Socialists, and all the radicals, for that matter, study the subject of vaccination and read the arguments on both sides, so that they may get an opinion in the matter? If it is true that the vaccination theory is one of those big bluffs that, supported by a body of physicians, has deluded a world for more than a century, why not explode it? If it is one of the many oppressions to which the people are subjected, why not free ourselves from it?

That there are radical physicians who defend compulsory vaccination does not prove its usefulness, because most of them are radical concerning their social beliefs only, but in their medical practice and studies they follow the routine of their school and are not acquainted with the ideas of the opposition schools of medicine. They do not know, for instance, that it has been proven that vaccination does not give immunity against smallpox; that, on the contrary, it exposes the body to smallpox; that it often causes other diseases and death; that we can fight smallpox by modern hygienic methods (as isolation); that epidemics of smallpox have disappeared on account of the great improvements in the general sanitary conditions of the cities in the last century and not on account of vaccination, and that where epidemics do occur today they are due both to vaccination and to the lack of those sanitary conditions.

Compulsory vaccination has been defeated in England and lately in Switzerland, probably it will soon be in Germany. It is not absolutely compulsory in the United States, but it is being enforced just the same, because the people do not know their rights and do believe in the efficacy of vaccination, although they do not know why.

Radicals should get acquainted with modern medical views and not follow blindly the decrees of the majority of doctors, notwithstanding their social ideas.

THE SOCIALIST

A Weekly Newspaper Without a Muzzle

Vol. IV Whole No. 192 COLUMBUS, OHIO, AUG. 29, 1914 Price, 2 Cents per Copy

THIS PAPER is published in the interest of the working class. If you think it is worthy of your support, support it by getting new subscribers. If you don't like it, don't knock. We are making it as good as you will allow. Whenever the workers support their own press as valiantly as they do the master's press we will be able to do really big things for the emancipation of the workers. In the meantime, we are forging ahead conscious of the fact that our cause is just, that right will finally triumph, and the workers step forth emancipated from the age-long servitude to a robber, master class.

STARVE WAR! FEED AMERICA!

America can stop the war.

War in Europe can continue only if fed by America.

To feed that war the workers of America must starve.

While the war lords of Europe are leading the workers to slaughter, the money and food lords of America seek to profit by that slaughter by increasing the cost of food.

To curb the war in Europe and to curb the monopolists in this country, also to keep this nation from being drawn into the conflict, two things must be done: (1) We must starve the war by cutting off supplies. (2) We must feed our own people by seizing the sources of supplies.

We must stop the shipping of all supplies into the war zone.

Not a penny for loans, not an ounce of food should leave these shores to prolong this terrible shedding of blood.

This is the only honest and complete neutrality. In no other way can we be sure of keeping this nation out of that fearful whirlpool.

Bread and meat and money are as necessary as men and guns and bullets for the killing of men in war.

Keeping food and cash here will save lives on both sides of the Atlantic.

To carry on the war and to continue the wholesale slaughter, the governments of Europe have seized the stores of food and money, sources of credit, railroads and telegraphs.

Certainly this government is justified in taking similar measures to stop the war and to save lives at home.

THE GOVERNMENT SHOULD AT ONCE SEIZE THE STORES OF FOOD SUPPLIES, THE SOURCES OF CREDIT, THE RAILROADS, AND ALL MEANS OF TRANSPORTATION AND COMMUNICATION AND USE THEM TO BREAK THE GRIP OF TRUSTS AND SPECULATORS.

The packing plants, the cold storage houses, the grain elevators and flour mills, and all else necessary to supply the food of the nation should be seized and operated for the good of all.

Congress should prohibit the shipping to the war zone of any article that will help to keep the warring armies at their murderous work.

It should also forbid the lending of money to any government that has plunged its subjects into war.

The Socialists of America call upon every man and woman who hates war and wishes the welfare of the people to join in this effort to check the war and to safeguard the lives of American workers.

The Socialists of Europe fought against war to the last. Now that war has been forced upon the world by the lust of rulers and ruling classes, Socialists everywhere will fight with every energy to shorten its duration and reduce its horrors.

A tremendous responsibility rests upon you, the people of this nation. By the power of your voice and vote you can stop the ravages of the war abroad and poverty at home.

You can so use that voice and vote in the midst of the turmoil of war today as to lay the foundations of a society in which the government of America will be truly a government of the people, and the industries of America shall bring peace and plenty to those who labor in these industries.

To this the Socialist movement summons you today.

Starve the war and feed America!

Speech of General Jacob S. Coxey

MAGNIFICENT WAS THE ADDRESS and great was the enthusiasm of the audience of several hundred who listened for over two hours to the sound logic of GENERAL JACOB S. COXEY of Massillon, Ohio, at Schweitzer's Grove.

The crowd of several hundred who spent a delightful all day in the pleasant grove of Comrade Mrs. Schweitzer at Ryan and Sullivant Avenues Sunday, August 23rd, and gave heart, soul and ear to that unique statesman, and than whom capitalism cannot produce an equal, argues much in favor of the esteem with which Comrade Coxey is held by the producers of Ohio.

If the workers could all have heard General Coxey's explanation of present conditions how capitalism has planned the war now raging in Europe, how the workers not only produced the artillery and munitions of war at starvation wages, and helped pay for that same artillery and ammunition sold by private corporations to the governments, how those same workers used that same product to murder their fellow workers who in turn had done the same thing, how their wives and children became widows and orphans, how other workers, fortunate enough to escape the bayonet and bullet, would be compelled to produce wealth enough to pay off the enormous war debts of the nations involved, at the same time paying interest to the parasite bond-holders, and so on and on without end, all for the senseless excuse of satisfying the personal ambition of a selfish crown-head of Europe to be EMPEROR of all the WORLD.

General Coxey spoke first of the tyrannies of the courts of the present day, and reminded his hearers that at one time during past history FOURTEEN JUDGES WERE BEHEADED IN ONE YEAR because of their tyranny, and predicted that it might be necessary to politically decapitate some of the present day Judges unless they Judicially administered justice. That when a two-by-four judge stooped so low as to refer to an attorney, practicing before the court of which such a judge presided, as an unmitigated liar and scoundrel, three times without provocation and without reply, it was time to call a halt. That a judge was only the presiding officer of the court and that an attorney, practicing before the court, is also an officer of that court, and that the judge did not rank above the attorney and under such gross misconduct the judge became lower in the estimation of an intelligent public than the ordinary citizen who would so far forget common decency.

Comrade Coxey states as an undeniable proposition that there were but four things necessary for supplying the comforts of life in abundance, and they are:

1—THE LAND, (consisting of course of earth, water, minerals, timber, etc., etc.) which God furnished in abundance for all mankind, not a few plates. So there is no complaint about the first element of our happiness.

2—LABOR, (consisting of hand labor by man, power of beasts and power of the elements harnessed by man, such as electricity, gas, steam, compressed air, etc., etc.) which God also provided and has provided even more yet, as soon as man can discover it and harness it for use. So there is no complaint against God or man about the labor provided.

3—PRODUCTION, (consisting of the spontaneous growths upon the fields of fruits, berries, nuts, roots and all manner of herbageg and vegetation as well as the domesticated productions by the labor of man applied to the soil, applied to the mills, mines and factories, etc.) which God and man in harmony produce together.

So there is no quarrel with God or man on the question of production as there is more produced than consumed year after year.

4—DISTRIBUTION, (including a—Communication, telephone, telegraph, etc., for profit. b—Contract, whereby each individual or firm tries to get advantage over others for profit. c—Transportation, in which distribution is carried on by private parties for profit; and d—Postal system, now including parcel post, registered letters and money orders, in which the people are served without profit.

From the above outline of Comrade Coxey, the student of economics will observe that there is nothing wrong with the land, nothing wrong with Labor, nothing wrong with Production and nothing wrong with that part of Distribution which is retained by the people, namely the postal system, conducted by the government.

Only where Distribution is allowed or granted to private agencies to operate for profit is there "Hell to pay." War is hell and competition for profit is hell, and so by a logical course of reasoning we reverently say there is "Hell to pay."

Then we see that those who own the means of Distribution have the whip-hand over the Land, Labor and Production, and all have to pay tribute to the magnates of that portion of Distribution not controlled by the people as a whole, the government.

Therefore the only remedy, and that a sure remedy, is to take over all the means of Distribution.

How can you do it? Just the same way Uncle Sam could raise money to go to war? Just the same way Uncle Sam did raise money to take over the Black Slaves. Issue non-interest bearing green-backs.

There is still another way, and that is confiscation. Oh! You throw up your hands in holy horror at the word confiscation; but listen. When Uncle Sam wanted your sons to go to war in 1861 he confiscated them. They didn't call it confiscation, they called it drafting men, because they said they needed men for the public good, and they paid them at the rate of $13.00 per. Say they needed some horses too for the public good, and so Uncle Sam came to you and confiscated your best horse, but they called it purchase, when applied to a horse, for they paid the full price and took chances on the horse being killed. Note the difference between the drafting of a man at $13.00 per, and the purchase of a horse at $250.00. If the horse was killed the first month Uncle Sam was out $250.00 If the man was killed the first month Uncle Sam was out $13.00. The man had to earn his killing. See?

And then after Uncle Sam had confiscated your sons and your horses he confiscated the Black Slaves and put guns in their hands to shoot their masters down.

Now suppose France and Belgium could, by some means, and they may do it, turn the wage-slaves of Germany upon the Kaiser and his Plutocratic slave-drivers—Capitalism—what a howl would go up from their profit-guzzling throats, and yet that is just what Abe Lincoln did.

Not only that, but Uncle Sam has been confiscating the earnings of the producers ever since to pay the war debts which the money power switched over onto the people by its special redemption an dbond issues and other financial treachery since that war.

Confiscation—Why the Republicans and Democrats are experts in that game.

But the Socialists have a better word than Confiscation, and that is Restoration. Restore to the people that which always was theirs, viz: the right to the Land and the fullness thereof; the right to labor and reap its full products; the right to equitable distribution with tribute to none as profits.

Under such conditions, with laws enforcing the same, and people educated to uphold the laws, we could have the beginning of Socialism.

Glorious Victory!

By Oscar Ameringer

"A glorius victory has been won by the Belgian forces," says a report from London.

"Alsace is invaded and our troops gained a glorious victory at Muehlhousen." Such is the news from Paris.

"Liege has fallen and the German army made a victorious entry into the city." So says a cable from Berlin.

Ah! We all are victorious these days. We Germans, we English, we Russians and we Austrians.

"Our heroic soldiers have mowed down the enemy by the thousands. The fields of mines exploded with wonderful precision. Battalions of infantry soared in the sky, and for minutes after it rained hands and feet, bleeding trunks and crimson gore.

"The machine guns cut wide swaths into the attacking cavalry, even as the reaper cuts through the golden grain."

"For three days the dead laid unburied in the field."

Happy dead. Your broken eyes no longer saw the comrade crawling toward the sheltering ditch, his entrails dragging in the bloody mire.

Your ears heard not the dying prayers, the cries of pain, the moans and curses, the ravings of the fever tortured, the shrieks of maniacs around the field of carnage.

You did not feel the worms that bore in festering wounds. You did not smell the sickening reek that rose from the battle ground.

You won a glorious victory, indeed.

"Our East Sea squadron sunk a German submarine."

A huge cylinder sinks slowly in the deep and frantic men tear their nails on iron walls. Darker and darker grows the watery night. Faster and faster come the gasps for air. The vessel settles in the slime. The creatures of the deep return and stare with greedy eyes at the silent prey behind the little plate glass window.

Have patience, denizens of the deep, prosperity is coming.

Victoria, a British cruiser, struck a floating mine and sunk with man and mouse.

Go to it, brothers of the finny tribe. This blond haired boy made fishhooks in a Sheffield shop. The fellow bobbing over there wove nets to snare our kind. Our turn has come at last. The fingers, toes and ears are for the little ones. The limbs and trunks belong to us, the sharks, and may the crawlers clean the boney frames.

A glorious victory. The enemy lost 40,000 men. Our own losses are trifling, only 10,000.

A million mothers kneel in prayer. A million rosaries tremble in faded hands. A million hearts cry up to heaven, O God, not mine, not mine.

Fool mother, forget yourself, your sorrow and your boy. The organ peals forth the Te Deum. The chimes ring out the victory. Your son died for God, for Kaiser, for vaterland, for king and glory. The buzzards tear the cheeks you kissed, two bleeding stumps are where the hands were that you fondled. The crows are picking the glassy eyes in whose blue depths you once beheld the joys of heaven.

To me there is no victory. I see not Germans, Frenchmen, Russians or Britons. I see but men and brothers. My side is losing; my side—humanity. And all that's vile and low and brutish is coming back to curse the world anew.

The beasts we thought we had buried long ago, the tigers, sharks, apes and the hyenas again make their abode in human breasts.

I see the best that mankind has accomplished, the acquisitions of the 10,000 years, lost in this thrice cursed war.

I see no victory in the hellish carnival of blood and iron, this saturnalia of greed and stupidity, and I have but one hope and that is that war itself may bleed to death and be buried with every crowned head of Europe under an avalanche of bayonets.

Until then let buzzards, crows and earthworm cry, "Victoria."

Trinidad, Colo., Aug. 25th, 1914

O. G. Van Schoyck,
101 N. High St., Columbus, O.

Comrades of America, Troop A. of Trinidad and E. of Walsenburg, Colo. National Guards Organizations, which massacred women and children at Ludlow, have re-organized to their full strength and are holding nightly meetings in their armories, Colonel Lockett commanding federal troops, states to citizens that he will permit militiamen to parade through Trinidad streets. Federals will then leave. Citizens openly declare these preparations mean further bloodshed, as company gunmen and Baldwin-Felis detectives have been re-enrolling in the militia here for the past week. These things being so, we Socialists of Las Animas County appeal to Socialists of America to take immediate organized action to protect workers here from repetition of Ludlow Massacre, as authorities of State and Nation are impotent. Will you see the slaughter repeated without coming to our aid. This message sent to every State Secretary and National Secretary. LOCAL LAS ANIMAS COUNTY.

SOCIALISTS IN WAR ON HIGH PRICES

Through its national organization the Socialist party calls upon the working people everywhere to rise in protest against the increasing cost of food as follows:

TO THE AMERICAN PEOPLE.

A desperate situation confronts the people of America.

Unscrupulous capitalists, using the European war as a pretext, are increasing the cost of food so that millions are threatened with starvation.

The president of the United States has ordered an investigation of the increase in food prices, and the prosecution of those responsible for it. Such investigations and prosecutions have brought no results whatsoever in the past and are not likely to do so now.

European governments, when confronted with a similar situation, realized that there is only one measure that can be depended upon to bring relief—the seizure of all plants and industries responsible for the increase in prices and their operation by the government for the benefit of the people.

We demand that the same action be taken immediately in the United States.

We demand that the government, as an emergency measure seizze the packing houses, cold storage warehouses, granaries, flour mills and such other plants and industries as may be necessary to safeguard the food of the people.

Such seizure will not only benefit the people of the United States, but also the people of Europe.

When the government controls the industries, the exportation of foods to Europe can be prevented. The rulers of Europe, unable to secure food for their armies, will be forced to call off their soldiers.

We also demand that the exportation of money and of munitions of war to the European nations be pro-

WAR. RELIGION AND SOCIALISM

By Marsh C. Green.

(Editor—This article, written by Comrade Green by request shows the views of one who is, and has been for a long time a member of the Catholic Church. Comrade Green is one of our most sturdy Socialists and whose letters to the old party press get more recognition than any other Socialist of Columbus, because always fair, friendly and to the point. Comrade Green thinks that when we pray "Thy Kingdom Come on Earth as it is in Heaven" we should not then shoulder a forty-round repeating rifle and proceed to murder in the name of War.)

Pope Pius X is dead. Long live his memory. Yes, he has passed to the great beyond, but his deeds and thoughts will live forever after him. The benefits the world will gain if they will only follow his advice will be an everlasting monument to that great and noble soul. He died of a broken heart because the European nation would not listen to his appeal for peace. Had he been a younger man the shocking brutalities might not have had the same awful effect on him. Had his appeal been listened to by the members of his own church there is but small probability that the awful carnage that is now going on in Europe, would have occurred. Had the members of his own church not aided that blood-thirsty old Kaiser in the passage of his war budget, Germany would now be at peace with the world. When war clouds began to hover over Austria, the aged Pontiff sent Scapinelli with a plea for peace to Emperor Franz Josef. The Emperor's attendants were so determined to have war that they denied the messenger the right to see Franz Josef until after war was declared. What heed did he take to the prayer he learned in his infancy, and, no doubt, recites now daily. "Our Father who art in Heaven, hallowed be Thy name, Thy Kingdom Come, on earth as it is in Heaven?" Does he believe Heaven is a place where they murder and kill, or was he trying to show us what hell is like? There is no way I can account for his act except that he is bordering on imbecility, or that he is a natural brute. After the Pope's long and friendly relationship with this old reprobate, to think that his influence with the men whom he had relied upon as friends were warring, was a sad blow to him. The thought that his own children were directly responsible for the terrible massacres now going on, made it doubly hard for him to stand the strain.

Another of the world's greatest peace advocates recently gave up his life for his advocacy of peace. His name was Jean Jaures. How he has labored for many years, in and out of the French Parliament, for peace, is a matter of history. He had just returned home from the greatest peace conference the world has ever known, (Socialist International Congress), and was elated over the peace prospects. He was dining in a cafe when one of those misguided youths, who had been listening and taking heed to the war jingoes, who have been fighting the only party on earth which is pledged to peace, shot him down. The influence of such men as Jean Jaures, for peace, was being felt, and those who believed they would profit by war were anxious to get rid of him. The youth who killed him was merely following out the wishes of the higher-ups who were anxious to have him out of the way. Here were two of the greatest men of Europe, who have been killed by war. One died of a broken heart because the members of his own church refused to hearken to his appeal for peace. The other, because the advocats of murder and rapine feared his power. Can you conceive of a greater homage to be paid the memory of His Holiness than to have the members of his church pledge themselves to do all in their power to help bring about the conditions on earth hoped for by their deceased Pope? Every true Socialist will honor and revere the name of Pope Pius X for his stand for peace, while war was being dinned in the ears of every European nation. Can any Catholic refrain from honoring the memory of Jean Jaures, who spent the greater part of his life, and more especially his last years, in his efforts to prevent the very thing that killed the Pope. Then why should not the Catholics and Socialists unite on a platform for peace and do honors to the memory of these men. They are dead; martyrs to the cause of "Peace," but their names will be cherished in the hearts of mankind long after the war lords of Europe and other continents will have been forgotten. Then let us adopt as our motto "Peace on earth, good will to men."

TURNING TOWARD SOCIALISM

"IF SOCIALISM WILL PUT AN END TO WAR, LET US HAVE IT, AND QUICKLY, TOO!"

There are many indications to show that multitudes of non-Socialists are daily turning toward Socialism because it is the only real foe of war, and because it promises to do away with all war. The most significant indication of this kind this week is an editorial appearing in the Springfield (Mass.) Republican, that was prompted by a non-Socialist writing to the editor and declaring "IF SOCIALISM WILL PUT AN END TO WAR, LET US HAVE IT, AND QUICKLY, TOO." To this the editor replies: "SOCIALISM NEVER LOOKED MORE ATTRACTIVE THAN NOW." The Republican is the leading independent daily newspaper of New England, and is closely followed by editorial writers all over the country. This gives additional significance to the editorial, which is as follows:

(FROM THE SPRINGFIELD REPUBLICAN.)

A striking, if despairing statement, this: "If Socialism will put an end to war, let us have it, and quickly, too; whatever it may be, and no one seems to know exactly, it can be no worse, and may be infinitely better than a system which can generate such a frightful spectacle as the world now sees before it in Europe." The correspondent who closes his letter in that impressive style has undoubtedly given expression to an idea which has been the gist of the thinking of many minds in recent days. In the gloom of the hour, forward-looking people inevitably try to discern whatever of good may come out of the strife and tumult, and hope may even fasten upon anything that promises to put an end to war.

Socialism, whether regarded as a theory, or an organized movement, or a state of mind, never looked more attractive than now. Considered merely as an ideal, it has the inestimable temporary advantage of being able to prove beyond any possible controversy the cataclysmic capacity of the existing order for upsetting the civilized world. Could anything be worse? And the question may not confidently be answered at this point in the unfolding of a stupendous catastrophe. If Socialism in any form could be depended upon to insure mankind against such a prodigious backslide into savagery as one beholds at the center of western civilization, the case would be instantly closed and millions of minds would be made up that have hitherto seen in Socialism nothing but the perfectionist aspirations of visionaries.

But, in regard to war, Socialism is plainly on the right track, whether or not it could ever be realized fully in the industrial organizations of society. At two points it strikes heavily at the foundations of the world's militarism. First, it embodies the principle of internationalism as opposed to nationalism and the principle of human solidarity as opposed to race hatred. This war is a frightful jumble of national rivalries and jealousies, and of racial conflicts and animosities—so much so that by selecting in turn some particular factor for special emphasis one may plausibly justify the warlike course of each of the eight nations at this moment pursuing the business of organized murder.

The higher Socialism means, in the last analysis, the brotherhood of man; but it begins by wiping out nationalities and creating a political federation of the states that may be brought within the sphere of its influence. Socialism would create in Europe one great state having no aggressively imperialistic or militarist basis, and thus it would obliterate those bitter nationalistic passions which have been responsible for so many wars periodically drenching the continent's soil with human blood.

"Slav against Teuton," "Latin against Anglo-Saxon," "Caucasian against Mongolian," "white against black," all the catchword coinage of the fierce race conflicts of the world, find in Socialism a consistent foe. The "Slav peril," which forms the staple excuse of the Austro-German alliance in precipitating the present war, shrivels to nothing under Socialism's analysis, for are not Slavs human and have they not build up a civilization and have they not produced great men and women who have enriched the world's culture?

Socialism strikes its second heavy blow at modern war by recognizing the complete equality of women with men in regulating the affairs of civilized society. What did women have to do with making this war? Absolutely nothing. Comparatively speaking, woman's influence has been negligible, because fighting Europe has been dominated by that fighting animal, the male of the species. The primitive passion for war is masculine; war has ever been man's "game;" and men are the incontestable creators of the whole machinery and apparatus of scientific warfare. Women, according to war-lord philosophy, are made by the Almighty simply to bear sons in a fine plenty to be butchered on the battlefield. Women today throughout Europe are toiling in the harvests which were left unreaped when the storm burst and the sons and brothers and husbands were hurried away from their homes at the war lord's summons.

If there are 20,000,000 soldiers from the Atlantic coast of France to the Ural Mountains, there are twice that number of women left desolate, perhaps impoverished, always in agony of spirit over the dreadful possibilities of the crush of arms. Surely, a world in which women exercised their legitimate influence upon affairs of state, as the natural conservators of the race, would make short work of war.

Militarism for the moment is dominant in the world, but it may be counted upon to bleed itself white in this titanic frenzy of conflicting nationalist, racial and autocratic ambitions. A momentous reaction will follow, and no one need be in doubt as to its character and trend.

SOME FALLACIES ABOUT COURTS

No one will deny that "COURTS" exist for a purpose intended to be beneficent to the public. That existing for a good purpose have the right to accomplish that purpose in dealing out or administering JUSTICE TO ALL.

To make our position plain in this matter it is first necessary to disabuse the minds of the average person of the idea of the "JUDGE" being the "COURT." Nothing can be further from the truth or the facts.

Attorneys In Rut of Custom.

It is true that most attorneys stay in the rut of antiquated custom and usually address the presiding Judge in this manner, "If the Court please," when arising to address the Judge, although that is not the correct manner. The correct salutation to the Judge whom you are to address is "Your Honor permitting." This is proper (not because the position of Judge or because the Judge is more honorable than the position of any other useful citizens, be he ditch digger or carpenter, but as a mark of respect in which we hold our institutions of civilization wherever these institutions are so conducted as to merit such respect) and should be done first to attract the attention of the Judge, and second to ascertain if the Judge is ready to hear. (It is impolite to interrupt the sewer digger in his pursuit unless by his consent.)

Position of Judge No More Honorable Than Other Useful Employment.

The position of any Judge is an honorable position in so far as it is made so by the "JUDGE," but no more so than the position of the sewer digger is made so by the "SEWER DIGGER."

If the SEWER DIGGER prostitutes his position and puts in the sewer fraudulently and the drainage is soon filled with filth and clogs the drainage and the house is filled with stench which smells to the heavens he is a dishonest sewer digger and should be prosecuted for corrupting the good health of the people who employed him.

If, as some of our capitalistic friends claim, the position of the Judge is so much more exalted than the SEWER DIGGER, what should be the punishment of a JUDGE who so dishonestly operates the system of "JUSTICE" as to clog its wheels and corrupt its source and outlet and create a stench which smells to the heavens?

Definition of "Court."

The ordinary person and some lawyers really do not know what a "COURT" is. As applied to the administration of JUSTICE a "COURT" is a certain set of rules, regulations and designated methods of procedure within a prescribed boundary or territory, for the hearing, determining and enforcing of the rights and the ascertaining, eschewing and preventing of the wrongs of the people within that territory so that JUSTICE may be done between man and man.

This definition may not be absolutely correct, and I find there are few law definitions which are correct, as the best law writers disagree continually. This disagreement is what makes litigation. Under Socialism this disagreement would not maintain, but I have not the space to take up that phase of the question now. The point I wish to make plain here is that the "COURT" is an abstract thing. The "COURT" is intangible and exists only in contemplation and must be outlined by writings in which only rules and methods of procedure are stated or made known.

Court Inferior to State and State Inferior to Nation.

We must not forget that every COURT is the creation of some higher authority which prescribes the limitations within which COURTS may function. We speak of constitutions as artificial persons when applied to corporations. The government is only a big corporation and a giant artificial person. The COURT is only a limb of the state and therefore only an "Artificial Limb" of an artificial person. There is no life in the artificial limb nor in the artificial person and must be put in motion by a real live person with prudence and judgment or the skeleton will go to pieces. The government of the state is unlike the persons and things of the state over which the government exercises certain rules.

The "State government" never travels, never goes beyond its prescribed boundaries. The people of the state and the things—property—of the state constantly change and go beyond the state limits. COURTS must function within the boundary of the state and many of them within a much smaller area.

Corpus May Be a Cadaver.

Because the corpus sitting in the President's chair, Governor's chair, or on the bench is good or bad, alive or dead does not prove that the soil, water, coal, or citizens are good or bad. It can only prove the facts about the man whether he is a live corpse or a dead one—cadaver—not yet buried politically.

Blackstone Defines "Court."

A "COURT" is a place where JUSTICE is judicially administered. (3 Bl. Com., page 23.)

If, then, a "COURT" is a place where JUSTICE is judiciously administered, it is a self-evident fact that if JUSTICE is NOT judiciously administered it is NOT a "COURT" and there can be no "Contempt of Court" if there is NO court.

SOUND REASONING WILL NOT ALWAYS STAND THE TEST.

While the above is absolutely sound reasoning it is not correct. The reason why it is not correct is because Blackstone's definition of "COURT" is not correct. (Read our definition again.) It matters not whether there be a JUDGE on the BENCH of the COURT or not. It is a COURT just the same, although not in operation. It is a COURT whether the man on the BENCH is a weakling or a broad minded, justice loving, corruption hating JUDGE. The only distinction being the degree of efficiency, intelligence and humanity exercised.

A "Court" and a "Grindstone."

Be it remembered that a grindstone is no less a grindstone because no one is on the "JOB" turning it. The thing is there with all the grit in the stone ready to grind your pocket-knife or your broad-ax. The efficiency of the grinding, the sharp, delicate edge of the useful instrument depends on the man on the "JOB" turning the stone and the man on the "JOB" holding the knife or the ax in the proper manner for grinding.

If the fellow hold of the crank is a weakling and turns by jerks and spurts and suddenly stops the grinding, there is a jar, confusion and the tool either gets a wire edge, is nicked or is ruined. The man on the "JOB" holding the tool might know how to grind a grubbing-hoe but not able to put the fine edge on a razor.

Ancient and Modern Grindstones.

Formerly grindstones were small and always turned by hand power, and usually by children at the noon time while the grown-ups loafed or snoozed in the shade (we have served our time under just such conditions), but now most grindstones are massive and are turned or put in motion by steam or electric power, and being so driven may turn continuously and steadily with safety both to the ax and the man holding the ax. Nevertheless that machine if not properly regulated has the elements of destruction lurking in its pent-up forces capable of not only ruining the tool being ground, but the man holding the tool on the stone.

Formerly "COURTS" were put in motion by hand power, so to speak, by individuals and usually by men on the "BENCH" as innocent and undesigning as the children who formerly turned the grindstone and was usually on the "JOB" when the loafers snoozed in the shade of their bedchambers (many a circuit riding Judge can so testify), but now, sad to say, many "COURTS" run automatically by machine power driven by old, dilapidated politically bossed machines which have been subject to the corrosion of generations until the boiler leaks, teh flues rusted, the safety valve goes, the governor stuck fast, the crown plate defective, the smoke-stack fallen off and the fire burns spasmodically.

The "Man On the Job" Must Have a Head and a Heart.

In many instances the engineer—the man on the job—the JUDGE on the BENCH—is incompetent by reason of drunkenness, immorality, weakness or wilful corruption. With an incompetent engineer and a rattle-trap power engine to drive the best piece of machinery in the land the effort will not only be a failure but all interested will be in constant danger of an explosion. Under such circumstances who could or would expect to have JUSTICE ground out? Suppose the weakling turning the stone would, after a few whiles, say, "All right, your ax is ground, bring on another?" It might have been a very dull, badly nicked ax and really required hours to do it right. In some of our COURTS the JUDGE says, "Officer, where did you get him?" The officer says, "Asleep in an empty house." The COURT says, "Thirty days in the works and fine of $10.00. Bring on the next." He positively did not take the necessary time to do a good job and just like the ax might just as well have done nothing. You can not get proper service out of a dull and haggled ax, neither can you get proper service nor make a man out of a deadened and "nagged" human being.

Quickened On the Grind-Stone of Justice.

Before the unfortunate "HUMAN AX" can be made to produce the most of life or in life he must be "QUICKENED BY THE GRIND-STONE OF JUSTICE" held up by the skilled

OHIO STATE FAIR NEXT WEEK

HORSE RACING IS THE SPORT OF KINGS

'Twixt flag and wire the race will be won. This will be the rule in speed events at Ohio State Fair, the coming week.

The track is the most picturesque turf ring in America. A round sum of money has been spent in 1914 to make it the Sportsman's Delight.

Colonel Walker of Dayton, Ohio will be starting judge. His experience and success in grand circuit events insure class to his work.

Seventeen events in five days will make blood run quicker. The Governor's Cup will be one of the trophies of battle, and the Billing's Cup another.

The Ohio State Fair Grounds will be a Cross-Roads for Kings of the sport. It costs more, but it is worth more, to live today than ever before.

counselors of the COURTS operated by HUMANITY LOVING JUDGES that the wire edges and the nicks may be all ground away and he have the keen sense of his duty to man and of his rights to respects of other men. He should not, wantonly, be found guilty, put to work under the galling service for capitalism with the rough edges of remorse and the nicks of criminality untouched by the "Sacred Courts of Justice."

Flesh, Blood, Bone, Waste and Corruption.

In conclusion let us say that a JUDGE is a mere man, composed of water, flesh, blood, bone, waste and corruption. This combination has latent within it the element of passion, appetite, desire, reasoning and above all a "SENSE OF JUSTICE." These elements, however, are all latent and it requires some outside influence to put any one of them into motion.

Each one of these elements may be encouraged or suppressed at least to a certain extent. JUDGES can, may and, sad to say, sometimes do, yield to the evil influences about them and in behalf of corrupt "Interests" blow out the "HEAD and HEART" of the steam-chest, suddenly reverse the engine of JUSTICE and create confusion and turmoil, if not explode, an otherwise useful and necessary instrument of civilization.

A "COURT" is an abstract something, consisting of rules, regulations and methods whereby JUSTICE may (should always) be done.

A "JUDGE" is a MAN designated by the people (at an election) to put the "COURT" in motion and may (should always) direct the methods of procedure so that JUSTICE may (should always) be done.

WALTER LANFERSIEK,
Executive Secretary.

STATE SPEAKER.

E. R. Wharton On Firing Line.

In a letter from Comrade Wharton, posted at Holloway, Belmont County, Ohio, he tells of the enthusiastic meetings he is addressing. How the coal miners and their families are suffering the real torments of starvation while the coal operators refuse to open up the mines under the new run-of-mine weight law.

Comrade Wharton spoke at Holloway, August 20th; Flushing, August 21st; Fairpoint, August 22d; Bellaire, August 23d; Minkaville, August 24th, and several minor points between dates, being forced to talk to groups of miners and farmers gathered on the streets at any hour of the day.

Comrade Wharton says: "I saw hundreds of men, women and children begging, not only for opportunity to earn an honest living but to keep from actually starving."

Because the operators, jobbers, dealers and railroads cannot make a good round profit, as they stand between the producer and consumer, they refuse to operate the mines. Fall is here, winter in immediate future and no coal supply on hand. Producers starved all summer and consumer will be gouged all winter because a winter's supply cannot be produced and delivered in so short a time.

Unless conditions soon change in the mining districts both the miners, the merchants and the farmers will demand that the state take over the mines and operate them in the interest of humanity.

As matters now are in the mine regions the miners have had their labor power worse than confiscated, the merchants' business has been confiscated and the farmers' markets have been confiscated by the stubborn and selfish refusal to operate the mines.

If the United States should engage in war it would draft, confiscate these same men to defend our "flag," and yet that flag today floats over shacks called homes, over larders that are empty and over women and children who are actually starving. What interest have these people in defending a government which cannot or does not defend them against starvation in time of plenty?

Comrade Wharton also says: "On Sunday, August 23d, I saw a little child die that had been born blind, or rather its eyes were as jelly, having never developed because of starvation of the mother during conception."

Again: "A reputable citizen told me he saw a little 5-year-old girl catch a real young rabbit and ate it alive."

If these things are true, and we doubt them not, then how can Governor Cox expect these outraged people to rally to his support when he has done absolutely nothing to relieve the situation. What can a Governor do? He did call an extra session of the Legislature to reduce the tax rate of the property owners, why cannot he reconvene the Legislature to raise the income of the non-property holders.

If the Governor of Colorado can open and operate the mines with bayonets pointed at miners for the benefit of operators we think the Governor of Ohio can open and operate the mines with the bayonets pointed at the owners. In Colorado the operators were not starving while in Ohio the miners are.

If the government owned and operated these mines for USE and not for PROFIT they would run every day and coal would be stored during summer to be sold and paid for during winter. The poor could buy one ton at same price per ton as the rich could buy a car load.

A vote for the Socialist ticket will help bring about such conditions more surely than anything else.

WHAT DOES PRESIDENT WILSON INTEND TO DO ABOUT THE TROOPS AT VERA CRUZ?

The United States Government is facing a situation that is being overlooked in most circles. United States troops hold Vera Cruz. That Mexican seaport is under control of United States regulars. The Mexican customhouse in Vera Cruz, the most important in Mexico, is held by this nation. The Vera Cruz terminal of the railroad from Mexico City is in the hands of the United States army. What does President Wilson intend to do about this situation?

President Wilson sent American soldiers into Vera Cruz because he believed Victoriano Huerta needed a lesson. It was a foolish mission that American troops were sent on. Huerta was a drunken brigand and there wasn't a workingman in all America who cared a hoot whether he saluted the Stars and Stripes or not—except that many Americans would rather not have a decent flag saluted by the old rounder.

But that is past. The question is with the present.

If the troops went there to deal with anybody, it was Huerta. Huerta has folded his tent and his fat check book and gone away from there. He is sojourning in London, whence he sends back the message that the strongest combatant is always in the grace of God.

If American troops went to Vera Cruz to deal with Huerta, what are they there for now? Huerta has left the country. His ideas no longer prevail in the government. The constitutionalists, for whom it has been said the President has a high regard, now are in power.

Can it be that the American troops are being kept in Mexico for some purpose that has not been made known to the American people? If not, then why do not the American soldiers come home?

For those to whom that fictitious thing called "national honor" is a bugaboo, it may be said that there would be no lack of honor in bringing back the troops. If there is any dishonor it is in keeping them in Mexico. The United States is not at war with the constitutionalist government. It has not been at war with Mexico, even under Huerta. There is no excuse, except it be a secret and commercial one, for keeping American soldiers in Mexico. There is no excuse for hampering the new constitutionalist government by holding from it its most important seaport and the most important terminal of one of its most important railroads.

The presence of American troops in Vera Cruz, in possession of the city, is seriously hampering the new Mexican Government. That is natural. And, moreover, American troops cannot remain in Mexico much longer without serious results. There are in Mexico those who will not remain passive for long with foreign soldiers in possession of a great city. And if President Wilson tarries to trifle with his blunder until Mexico is forced to demand the withdrawal of American soldiers, the problem will be aggravated seriously—for "diplomacy" is a funny thing and often gets nations into trouble.

More serious, too, than a demand from Mexico would be a demand by Japan for explanations as to the reasons for this unjust American conduct. That much-talked-of Mexico-Japanese alliance is more than a myth.

Let American troops be brought out of Mexico, where they never should have gone. To dally in Vera Cruz is too much like dallying with dynamite. And the American working class insists that the politicians and "business interests" of America shall not drag this nation into further conflict with a nation that has been already grievously wronged by the United States.

The American working class has nothing but the most sincere and intense sympathy with the working class of Mexico. The workers of the United States look upon the workers of Mexico in this their hour of painful reconstruction with a great desire to help wherever possible in bringing the Mexican nation out of the shambles and out of slavery.

But so long as there is a United States soldier in Vera Cruz, there is a barrier to be overcome and wiped out.

From the standpoint of the workers no United States soldier ever should have been permitted in Mexico. It was a crime and even from the bourgeois point of view, a blunder. To keep them there now, with conditions as they are, is doubly a crime.

Let Mexico have every chance and every encouragement. All America hopes that Mexico is on the road to the liberty she has craved. That is, all but the robbers and exploiters hope that.

Bring the United States troops out of Mexico. Get them home where they belong. Else a growing anti-militarist sentiment may insist on wiping out the American army entirely!

SOCIALISTS BOOST WAGES

The Socialist administration of Hamilton, Ohio, has adopted an ordinance providing for a minimum wage of $2.50 a day and an eight hour day for city employes.

SOCIALIST PROPERTY IS SEIZED BY THE AUSTRIANS

The first property to be seized by the Austrian government after the order of mobilization, it is reported, was the automobiles of the Austrian Socialist daily, the Arbeiter-Zeitung.

The next thing grabbed was the property of the Socialists co-operatives. There is little hope that the promise of pay will ever be kept.

QUINLAN AT BUTTE, MONTANA

"The European war is not a workers' war, it is a war between two social systems for supremacy. The aristocrats of central Europe want to regulate business and everything else with the sword. The bankers and industrial barons of France, Great Britain and United States want their system paramount everywhere. They want business to regulate the armies and navies of the world. The dollar must triumph over the sword; the banker over the Emperor.

"When this struggle is ended and though the producing class will suffer considerably there is a chance of the proletariat rising en masse and ending forever the rule of king and kaiser, banker and industrial magnate."

Quinlan ended his speech by paying a glowing tribute to Jaures, the first victim of the war.

BELIEVE REVOLUTION IS SPREADING OVER RUSSIA

That the turbulent volcano of revolution is shaking the dominions of the czar is the only explanation of two unexpected proclamations issued from St. Petersburg.

One is directed to the Russian Poles and pleads for their loyalty, promising them in return autonomy, which would be the realization of the age-long dream of "the proudest people in Europe."

The other proclamation is directed to the much persecuted Jews in the Russian dominions, promising them equal civil and political rights with other subjects.

Both Poles and Jews in the United States place little faith in the promises of the czar and claim that if they were really made it was because of the fear that the country will soon be in the throes of a revolution.

BELGIAN SOCIALISTS SEE THAT CHILDREN ARE FED

As a result of demands made by Socialists, 6,000 children are being fed daily at Brussels, Belgium, by the government while their fathers are away at war. Soup is distributed to all schools from a central station and within a short time it is expected that the number being fed will increase to 10,000.

One of the demands made by the Socialists before being forced into war was that adequate provisions must be made for the families of soldiers who should go to the front. Among measures directly insisted upon was the establishment of school restaurants which should feed teh children.

A bill prohibiting child labor will be submitted to the voters of Arkansas next month. This is the first initiative referendum on child labor in the United States. It secured 21,000 signatures, one-third more than necessary.

RINGING RESOLUTIONS FOR PEACE.

Demand That War Advertisements Be Abolished.

The County Central Committee of Franklin County Socialist party at its regular session Monday night, August 24th, went on record in favor of world-wide peace, arbitration of all national, state and domestic differences and deplored the posting of promiscuous alluring military advertisements in the face of the proclamation of President Wilson favoring peace and calling upon all our citizens to speak not at all in favor of war and militarism. The following platform and resolutions were adopted:

Platform of the Socialist Party of Franklin County, Ohio.

The Socialist party of Franklin County, Ohio, affirms its allegiance to the principles of International Socialism and to the platforms of the Socialist party of the United States and of the State of Ohio.

Realizing that the average wealth produced per annum by each useful worker does not exceed the sum of $2500.00 and that the payment of more than that amount to any person is an injury to all who are compelled to work for less, we declare that no county official should receive in excess of this amount and we pledge our candidates to the State Legislature to introduce and work for the passage of such a law.

We also pledge our candidates to introduce in the State Legislature and work for the passage of a "Right to Work" bill.

We further pledge our Legislative candidates to introduce and work for the passage of a law which will increase the amount of the awards to those injured under our present compensation law.

Adopted August 24th, 1914 by the COUNTY CENTRAL COMMITTEE Of Franklin County, Ohio, in Regular Meeting Assembled.

J. H. SUDDICK,
Secretary.

Resolution.

WHEREAS, The Socialist party of the world stand committed to world-wide peace and absolutely opposed to all war and in favor of peaceful arbitration of all national, state and domestic differences, therefore be it

RESOLVED, By the County Central Committee of Franklin County in regular meeting assembled this 24th day of August, 1914, that we most emphatically demand that the national government at Washington refuse to enter into any entanglements which will in any way embroil the government of the United States in the present international war or any other war; and be it further

RESOLVED, That we deplore the posting of promiscuous military advertisements by the War Department of an alluring nature intended to inflame the brutal sentiment of the youth of the land and we pledge all our comrades and call upon all peace-loving citizens to work and vote to those ends; and be it further

RESOLVED, That in view of the fact that President Wilson has asked that no speech in favor of war be uttered we demand that all such military posters be removed from public places and all military advertisements be discontinued.

J. M. SUDDICK,
Secretary Franklin County Central Committee.

THE WAR SPIRIT.

"What's the matter, little boy?"

"M-maw's gone an' drowned all the kittens."

"Dear, dear! Now that's too bad."

"Yep, an' she p-promised—boo-hoo—that I cu'd do it!"—Everybody's Magazine.

"What are you crying for, Willie?"

"I jis never get to see anything."

"Why, that is too bad, what did you wish so much to see?"

"My neighbor, Sammy, fell out of a tree and killed hisself and I didn't see him do it."

HEROES.

The Losing Game.

By Grace Eaton Ewing.

You may talk in praise of your soldiers,
And heroes of deathless fame,
But I'll tell of the man who has the nerve
To stay in the losing game.

When a workingman's "up against it"—
Life's game where he cannot win;
If he's willing to prove a quitter,
Then the army will take him in.

When he's out of a job, and hungry,
And shabby, weary and lame,
Believe me, it takes some courage then
To stay in the losing game.

When the army offers him shelter,
And plenty of food—and fame,
'Tis the workingman of the hero-brand—
Stays out in the losing game.

For he knows 'neath the suit of khaki,
Or the glitter of tinsel and brass
That the man who goes into the army
Is a traitor to his class.

And he knows, with the men in the army,
Neither love nor honor bind
'Gainst the orders sent from the master class
To slaughter their kin an dkind.

Then, here's to the hero of heroes—
The hero of unknown fame,
The workingman who has got the nerve
To stay in the losing game!

COMRADE A. C. EBY

Arouses the Audience at Schweitzer's Grove.

Many were the expressions from the lips of comrades when Comrade Alvin C. Eby mounted the speakers' stand to be introduced as "the next speaker."

Comrade Eby has not been active in the Socialist campaigns for two or three years owing to business affairs and the health of members of his family, but his enthusiastic utterances and denunciation of this senseless war in Europe proved at once that he had kept abreast of the times on every move effecting the interest of the working class.

Comrade Eby is now living on his farm home southwest of Columbus in Franklin Township and assures us that he is now in the harness for another campaign. Comrades wishing his services can communicate with state office for information, etc.

ECHO OF E. B. WHARTON MEETINGS.

Fairpoint, Ohio, Aug. 22d, 1814.
The Columbus Socialist,
Columbus, Ohio.

Gentlemen:—

Fairpoint was honored today with an address by E. B. Wharton, of Columbus, Ohio. Mr. Wharton handles the subject of Socialism in an able manner, and bares the crimes of the capitalist system until it stands as a great hideous monster sucking the very life blood from the men, women and children of the Nation. Mr. Wharton has the rare ability of telling you what an inefficient and heartless system the people are upholding and yet the most loyal supporters of this system can find no flaws in his argument.

Yours fraternally,
C. L. McFARLAND.

RESOLUTIONS OF PROTEST AGAINST WAR.

The Socialists and peace-loving citizens of Columbus, several hundred, assembled at Schweitzer's Grove, Sunday, August 23d, unanimously adopted the following resolution:

Resolved, This 23d day of August, 1914, that we protest most vigorously against the outrageous slaughter of human beings in the interest of the master and ruling class, and demand that our government in the interest of humanity and the workers of this country, use every possible agency at its command, justified by international law and usage, to stop this abominable and monster conflict now in progress, and more particularly do we demand that this government, the only great power that is not, directly or indirectly, involved in this war, prohibit the industrial and money masters of this country from furnishing to the belligerent powers any moneys, food supplies, munitions of war and any other commodity that will in any way assist to prolong this butchery; that it enforce rigidly the laws of neutrality and do all and every act that will stop and prevent the culmination of a colossal calamity that threatens the entire civilized world.

GERMER JOINS FIGHT.

Prominent Socialist and Labor Man for Uhlich Campaign.

[Adolph Germer, member of the National Executive Committee of the Socialist party and Vice President of the Illinois Miners' Union, has joined the Appeal's campaign to free Bob Uhlich and his thirteen comrades from the Trinidad dungeon. Here is Comrade Germer's ringing message to the workers of this country:]

Mt. Olive, Ill., Aug. 6, 1914.

Editor Appeal to Reason, Girard, Kan.:

My Dear Comrade—The Appeal has just reached me and I must express to you and the Appeal staf my hearty congratulation for deciding to take up the fight for the liberation of Bob Uhlich and his comrades who are held in the Las Animas County Jail at Trinidad, Colo., on trumped-up charges, at the behest of Sheriff Grisham and his colleagues in crime, the Baldwin-Felts Detective Agency.

I know Bob Uhlich. He is a man, every inch of him. The trades union and Socialist movement has no more devoted comrade in all the world. There is not a more tireless worker anywhere. While at liberty, Bob Uhlich could be found on the job early in the morning and late at night. The cause of labor was always uppermost in his mind. He commands the respect and confidence of all who know him and that is why the coal barons and their slimy agents fear and hate him.

I worked with Bob Uhlich long before the strike. No danger was too great for him. Under the cover of darkness, while the coal baron owned mining camps were surrounded with the criminal gun-men to guard against union organizers coming in, Bob Uhlich would find some way to reach the miners to collect dues and receive members into the union.

The coal barons, the Baldwin-Felts thugs, Sheriff Grisham of Las Animas County, Jesse Northcutt, the coal baron's attorney, who personally helped to transport machine guns from Trinidad to Walsenburg and other points to be used against the strikers, Judge McHendrie, who was elected to the bench as labor's "friend," the whole raft of capitalist criminals knew Bob Uhlich's value as an organizer of miners and that is why he must be held in a rotten county jail.

I visited Bob Uhlich several times at the Trinidad filth pen. The last time I saw him was in February. He had then been languishing in prison for several months. The long confinement had by no means crushed his revolutionary spirit. The wrong he was suffering embittered him against the capitalist system.

Bob Uhlich has done much for unionism and Socialism in southern Colorado. Not only is he personally active, but he gives freely of money for the promotion of the cause.

One morning, while in Trinidad, I received a letter from the county jail. I opened it thinking the boys who were confined were in need of something. It contained a check from Bob Uhlich for $64 with the request that I apply it on subscriptions to Socialist papers.

To me, this speaks volumes. It proves that while his life is in the hands of his most bitter enemies he never flinches.

If ever a comrade earned the support of labor, it is Bob Uhlich, and we should not rest until the prison doors swing open and he with his comrades, who are no more guilty of the charges preferred against them by the industrial and political brigands of Colorado than an unborn babe.

Those really guilty of crimes are the coal barons and their agents, Grisham, Belk, Martin, Judge McHendrie, etc.

Fraternally yours,
ADOLPH GERMER.

THIS PAPER is published in the interest of the working class. If you think it is worthy of your support, support it by getting new subscribers. If you don't like it, don't knock. We are making it as good as you will allow. Whenever the workers support their own press as valiantly as they do the master's press we will be able to do really big things for the emancipation of the workers. In the meantime, we are forging ahead conscious of the fact that our cause is just, that right will finally triumph, and the workers step forth emancipated from the age-long servitude to a robber, master class.

Who Stole the Bates-Black Testimony?

Stenographer Daisy D. Perkins makes affidavit that after Judge Black and his coterie of lawyers called some half dozen times at her office on the same day, each time going over the testimony in the Bates case, when she gathered it up that night to take it to bindery to have it properly bound some 622 pages were missing. No one else seems to have been in her office and yet 622 pages of some of the most vital pages were gone.

Judge Black and his friends claimed the defendant did not prove any of the charges he alleged against Black; then why was Black and his attorneys so persistent to see the transcript, especially when they had a stenographer who could have given them any part or all of the testimony? What business had Judge Black and his lawyers in the office of Daisy D. Perkins? If she did not get the Bill of Exceptions out on time it was their business to have it stricken from the files when filed. There was something in that testimony that hurt, in fact all of it hurt, and Judge Black and his lawyers became desperate, and we have a perfect right to our opinion as to where those 622 pages went.

Read the following affidavit and decide for yourself:

IN THE POLICE COURT OF THE CITY OF COLUMBUS, COUNTY OF FRANKLIN, STATE OF OHIO
STATE OF OHIO, Plaintiff, vs. WESLEY C. BATES, Defendant.
No. 1022.

AFFIDAVIT

STATE OF OHIO, FRANKLIN COUNTY, ss:

Daisy D. Perkins being first duly sworn deposes and says that on the 5th day of August, 1914, during a short period of the morning, she was called out of her office, being Room 10, Wesley Block, 101 North High Street, and that on returning she was informed by Dr. O. W. Aldrich, who also has desk room in said office, that Mr. Rubrecht, Judge Black and Mr. Patterson had been in the office and inquired of him where affiant was, as they wanted to see her about the Bill of Exceptions. Affiant says she immediately went to the telephone and called up Mr. Rubrecht and inquired of him what was wanted; that Mr. Rubrecht replied: "Where is the Bill of Exceptions, we want it. Who gave you permission to take it from the Court?" That affiant replied that Judge Osborn had given her permission to take it and have it bound, that she had tried to bind it and had soiled some pages which she had to re-write. That Mr. Rubrecht replied that he had never heard of such a proceeding in all his life and asked affiant if she had saved the copies of the pages she had rewritten; affiant if she had saved the copies of the pages she had rewritten; that affiant informed him that she had and that she would bind the rewritten pages, which was not very many, with the Bill of Exceptions. Affiant said that Mr. Rubrecht again asked where was the Bill of Exceptions and added that it was not at Mr. Jackson's, that they had been there; that Mr. Jackson had told them that this affiant had brought the Bill of Exceptions over to his place to have bound, but did not leave them, had taken them away again with her. Affiant says she told Mr. Rubrecht that she had the Bill of Exceptions in her office and that she did not take the Bill of Exceptions over to Mr. Jackson's, but she took the "exhibits," so he could see what was best to do with them and that she did not leave them as she had been instructed by Judge Osborn to be very careful with them. Affiant says that a few minutes after this conversation over the telephone, Mr. Patterson and Judge Black again came to her office and inquired about the Bill of Exceptions, that affiant told them she had them in her office, that they asked to see them and that affiant showed the complete Bill of Exceptions to them; that Mr. Patterson asked affiant for the last page, which affiant produced; that Mr. Patterson asked affiant for next to the last page and that affiant told Mr. Patterson that next to the last page would be the "Charge," which she produced; that Mr. Patterson then asked for the page preceding the charge, which affiant produced. Affiant further says that Mr. Patterson asked this affiant for a copy of the last page and that this affiant made a typewritten copy of the last page for which Judge Black paid her one dollar; that affiant refused to take the money and told him that she would not charge anything for the work, but that Judge Black insisted and laid the money down on affiant's table.

Affiant further says that Judge Black and Mr. Patterson left the office and shortly afterward returned with Mr. Rubrecht; that they again asked to see the Bill of Exceptions and that affiant showed it to them. Affiant says that when she was returning the Bill of Exceptions to a side table on which affiant kept it, some of the pages fell to the floor, and in picking them up they became disarranged out of their regular order. Affiant says that later on that same day Mr. Rubrecht, Judge Black, Mr. Patterson, Mr. Horace Kerr and Mr. Eugene Morgan called at affiant's office and that Mr. Patterson again asked affiant to let them see the Bill of Exceptions, and that affiant showed the Bill of Exceptions to them and that when they left, Mr. Horace Kerr said to the other gentlemen, "I am not through looking at this Bill of Exceptions," and remained behind after the others had left, affiant says that Mr. Kerr thereupon asked her for the testimony of Mrs. Sue Murray Bolen, of London, and further asked this affiant if any names were mentioned in her testimony; that affiant showed him the testimony and told him what the testimony was and what the Court's ruling was in regards to names of persons being mentioned; that Mr. Kerr again asked affiant before she found the testimony of Mrs. Sue Murray Bolen if his name had been mentioned, and thereupon this affiant found said testimony.

Affiant further says that later on that same day, August 5th, she was again called out of her office and was gone the greater part of the afternoon; that when she returned, as she was to take the Bill of Exceptions on Thursday morning, August 6th, to A. A. Jackson & Son, Bookbinders, East Gay Street, and have it bound, she took the Bill of Exceptions from the table where she had always kept it, and began to arrange the leaves in their regular order, when she discovered that quite a number of the pages were missing; that affiant said nothing to anyone, gathered up her notebooks, the remainder of the Bill of Exceptions and her typewriter and went to her home and locked herself in and after going thoroughly through the Bill of Exceptions, she discovered 622 pages were missing; affiant says she remained at home for nearly a week replacing the missing pages.

Affiant further says that later on the same day, August came again to her office after her return and informed her that the Bill of Exceptions was of no value as the ten days' limit was up, that the only thing of value was the "Exhibits," and inquired of affiant where they were. Affiant told them that she had them in her possession; that they were not in her office at that time and they asked her to turn them over; that affiant informed them she would turn them over to Judge Osborne.

A MIGHTY PROTEST AGAINST UNEMPLOYMENT

On Monday, September 7th, there is to be a Labor Day demonstration in our city. What will it be? Will it be a glad day on which brain and brawn can display their handiwork and the fruits thereof, or will it be a sad day in which only the remnants of workers shall march stolidly down our public streets in servile submission to the inevitable inroads upon organized labor by the "Profit Mongers"? Shall it be an exhibition of the wan, pinched faces of the miners of eastern Ohio, with their starved children pursuing young robins and young rabbits and eating them alive because of their ravishing hunger? Shall it be a demonstration of the simplicity and imbecility of united labor lamb-like, fawning at the feet of "Greed" only to be shorn of the fleece that warms its body in winter, or shall it be a mighty protest against the unnecessary and criminal closing down of the mines, mills and factories and city improvements all over our wealthy state?

Never in the history of union labor has there been a time when those at the head of labor organizations could strike such a mighty blow as at this time. Never was the time more propitious than now when labor could deal such a crushing blow to capitalism. Capitalism, crushed under its own weight, idle because there are no markets for its ill-gotten surplus profits. Capitalism begging of labor to purchase and consume this filched surplus value, well knowing that labor received not enough for producing their products to buy back more than one-fifth thereof. Capitalism the world over, at this time, warring for the markets of the world and all markets exhausted, is forcing labor to war against labor and today on a dozen battlefields the sons of toil lay with faces writhing in the scorching summer sun, bleeding and dying, because they worked too hard, produced too much and received too little for their toil.

When will organized labor awake? For a century organized labor has demanded a "fair pay for a fair day." Organized labor seems not to have known that there can be no "fair pay for a fair day" unless that pay be the full social value of that "day" (day's production). Organized labor boasts of the fact that it has forced the price of labor power up from $1.50 to $2.25 per day on the average. But the exuberance over the increase of wages has totally blinded organized labor to the fact that while receiving 50 per cent advance on one commodity—muscle—it has been forced to pay 50 per cent, 60 per cent and in many instances 100 per cent increase on not only one but many things labor must consume. For 100 years organized labor has seen her subjects going down deeper and deeper in the human scale of degredation and yet organized labor has pursued the same imbecile course directed by the fossilized brains of the tools of capitalism. What course should organized labor pursue? The very course capitalism does not want it to pursue. What course is that? All these years capitalism has dictated to organized labor through its bone-headed officials, that labor unions should stay out of politics. Then if capitalism dictates for labor to stay out of politics there is just where labor should go. When labor tears loose from her present stagnated moorings and sails out into the current of the stream of politics there will be a mighty howl go up from capitalists the land over and that fact will be all the proof needed that labor is in right and should stay. Why should organized labor be in politics? So that labor, controlling 90 per cent of the votes of the country can elect the officers who have control of the government.

It seems never to have occurred to our fossilized union labor officials that it would be better for it to have a union labor man as governor of Colorado, to hold and withhold the clubs, guns and dynamite at the Ludlow strike, instead of that brute of capitalism, Governor Ammon.

It seems never to have occurred to organized labor of Ohio that it would be better to have an organized labor man as governor of Ohio who could and would find a way to open the mines of eastern Ohio and put men to work instead of next winter finding a way to feed and clothe the men, women and children to keep them from starving and freezing.

Men of union labor, in God's name, do you not see and know, after 100 years of disappointment, failure and sorrow that there is no hope in capitalistic methods and capitalistic parties?

Men of the rank and file of union labor, how long will you listen to the hardened brains of your officials pleading of you to keep out of politics after so many years of sad experiences?

If your organization cannot tear away from its dead past as a body you can as an individual vote an individual ballot for yourself and get others to do so and help to elect a true representative of labor as governor of Ohio who will hold the clubs, guns and detectives in his hands, and who will see to it that labor gets a square deal if those clubs, guns and detectives have to be used on the capitalists to get it.

Will you do it? Surely you cannot refuse.

INCENDIARY TORCH OF CAPITALISM

Denver, Colo., Aug. 29.—The murder and cremation of men, women and children is no crime in Colorado.

As exclusively announced by the writer two months ago, the military court martial has acquitted 21 officers and men of the Colorado National Guard who perpetrated the Ludlow massacre and who were held on charges of murder, arson and larceny.

The official findings were announced this week.

Governor Ammons and Adjutant General Chase of course fully approved the findings of the military court which absolved the murderers from blame for the slaughter of the innocents.

Colorado had already placed its stamp of approval on the men responsible for the most terrible holocaust in industrial history by paying them for their bloody carnage, although the coal operators also had these gunmen militiamen on their payroll.

Lieutenant K. E. "Butcher" Linderfelt, one of the leaders in the massacre, has been fully acquitted for his participation in the outrage and also for the murder of Louis Tikas. The "Butcher" killed Tikas by breaking the stock of a gun on his head and then had him shot.

None except residents of the state will be allowed to work in the coal mines of Colorado according to a new order issued by the war department.

This ruling sets out that strike-breakers must apply at the mines for work without previous solicitation by the operators and that they must have lived in Colorado for one year. Scabs are also warned that they must have complied with all the mining laws of the state.

Some discussion has arisen as to whether all strike-breakers now working who did not comply with the rules will be discharged. It is known that only a very small percentage of the scabs have worked in coal mines before. Few are residents of the state.

If the war department ruling is construed to apply to all miners now at work, it will mean the discharge of approximately 3,000 scabs according to an estimate of the United Mine Workers.

The enforcement of the order would, therefore, drive from the state practically every coal miner except those which belong to the United Mine Workers.

The scabs in the mines continue to demand that they be made members of the United Mine Workers and that they be allowed to come out on strike.

Vice President Frank J. Hayes of the Mine Workers is now in Colorado to take personal charge of the fight and wage it with renewed vigor. Hayes said upon his arrival in Denver that the strike of the scabs might be called any time. Although nothing definite has been given out by the miners' officials, it is believed that the walkout of the scabs will occur within the next few weeks.

With the primaries but one week away, the workers are lining up to go down the line in a solid phalanx for real friends of labor.

The Human Holocaust of Capitalism

By special correspondence we are advised by United News Writers that since the anarchistic courts of Colorado found Linderfelt guilty of murdering Louis Tikas, but exonerated him for reasons all their own, the capitalists have become bold and are shipping Gunmen into Trinidad daily. Read what they say.

Trinidad, Colo., Aug. 28.—The coal operators have passed the word to the gunmen who are flocking into Trinidad on every train and enrolling themselves in Company A of the Colorado National Guard. One week ago the officers of this company met in their armory in this city and reorganized. It was done secretly under orders from General Chase, but the fact leaked out. Now, there is nothing hidden and Colonel Lockett, in command of the United States troops here, says that the militia will be allowed to parade, armed through the streets.

This company it was that massacred the women and children at Ludlow, and citizens of Trinidad assert that bloodshed is bound to follow upon its reappearance.

Upon investigation it was proved that 139 men in Company A were employes of the coal companies, gunmen and detectives. And it was in this company that Lieutenant K. E. Linderfelt commanded when he broke the butt of his rifle over the head of Louis Tikas, a bound prisoner, and afterwards sent him to his death at the hands of militiamen.

Hot upon this news of the reorganization of Company A comes the information that the court martial convened to try the 22 officers and men of the National Guard have acquitted all the defendants.

Before the verdict of the court martial was made public it was passed upon and approved by Governor Ammons.

The findings in connection with the murderous attack upon the defenceless union miner, Tikas, are as follows:

"The court finds the accused Karl E. Linderfelt, first lieutenant second infantry, national guard of Colorado, guilty of the facts as charged, that is to say that part of specification 1, charge 6, reading as follows:

"Having then and there a certain deadly weapon, to-wit: a United States Springfield rifle, did then and there with said weapon, commit an assault upon and against one Louis Tikas—but by reason of the justification as shown in the evidence adduced before the court attaches no criminality thereto."

A court martial convened at the rifle range near Golden on May 11. It closed May 29. The officers tried include Major P. J. Hamrock, Captains Edwin S. Carson and T. C. Linderfelt and Lieutenants K. E. Linderfelt, R. J. Linderfelt, G. S. Lawrence, M. C. Bigelow, Ray Benedict, G. B. Elliott and C. A. Connor.

Report says that Linderfelt will return to Trinidad and take command of reorganized troop A when all is ready.

The truth about the wealth of the world is that it has never been paid for.

THE SOCIALISTS AND THE SWORD

By George R. Kirkpatrick
(Author of "War—What For?")

A sword is a three-foot razor with which the working class obligingly and stupidly cuts its own throat in war.

War is a fool's festival in which the working class crucifies itself in the service of capitalism in the name of patriotism.

Patriotism is perfect and glorious in proportion as the starved slave is willing to fight for a fat master.

Patriotism (of this sort) is a brainless, blinding fever that employers and bankers, bishops and politicians eloquently recommend for others, but cunningly never catch themselves—at present under capitalism.

Capitalism, strutting and staggering under the insane burdens of militarism,—capitalism, the present industrial despotism, is motived by robbery, dreads discussion, seduces culture, flatters the foolish, needs the sword, glorifies force, sneers at tears, pretends peace, fattens on war and teaches patriotism to slaves.

For half a hundred centuries this hate-laden madness called patriotism has paralyzed and blinded each new generation of the working class, rendering them the easy, self-slaughtering dupes of a crafty ruling class.

Thus have the workers been duped and stung till now.

Till now.

Light breaks—now. This is the sun-flooded morning of a new era—for the working class.

Slaves see—now. And, therefore, this mocking farce, this hideous tragedy, called war, grows clear in the brain of the working class.

The slave is studying capitalism, and therefore he sees the meaning of capitalist patriotism, and as the slave understands capitalism and its necessary patriotism, he understands war.

And as the wage-slave understands war he understands that Capitalists WANT wars,
Politicians DECLARE wars, and
Workingmen FIGHT the wars.

In all parts of the world the working class are accepting the Socialists' definition of war:

WAR IS WHOLESALE, SCIENTIFIC SUICIDE FOR THE WORKING CLASS IN THE DEFENSE OF THE ECONOMIC INTERESTS OF THE RULING CLASS.

The SOCIALIST Party is OF the working class, FOR the working class and BY the working class—and, therefore, the Socialist Party in every country the sun shines on is opposed to wholesale throat-cutting contests between deluded and betrayed groups of the working class for the amusement and profit of fat-pursed social parasites of capitalism. Socialists strive to socialize society, and have faith in peace as a condition of rapid social progress; and, therefore, they are consistently and persistently against war. "NO MEN TO BE MURDERED AND NO MONEY TO BE WASTED IN WAR," is their slogan all around the world.

The Socialists recognize that war is not social, and is not fraternal, and is not fair; they see that VICTORY ALWAYS GOES TO THE SUPERIOR IN FORCE, absolutely regardless of the moral merit of the armies and questions involved, they see that war is savage resort to brute force, and that, therefore, war does not measure or mete out justice, but simply measures the warring countries' comparative equipment in tiger and savage, cannon and cash.

Socialists observe groups of capitalists seeking and threatening war for FOREIGN markets for goods which the workers produce, but which their WAGES WILL NOT PERMIT THE WORKERS THEMSELVES TO BUY AND ENJOY. And this the Socialists teach diligently to the working class—to warn the working class. Socialists see groups of profit-lusting capitalists, ready with swaggering armies and navies, in many parts of the world, greedily grabbing territory on which to grind and rob still more of the working class. This also is patiently explained to the working class by the Socialists—ever opposed to the slaughter of the toilers. Socialists observe sleek and crafty capitalists everywhere lolling, smiling and safe in their elegant offices and homes, cunningly forcing their lickspittle capitalist governments to protect capitalist investment in foreign lands, by wars if necessary. This, too, is tirelessly explained to the workers by the Socialists—to warn the toilers, ever eager to save the blood and tears of the working class.

The Socialists understand that International Farce, called The Hague Peace Conference; they note the pompous pretense and the laughable impotence of the Hague Conference of Cowards who are too shrewd to go to war, too brainless to prevent a war, and too emasculate and prostitute to warn the WORKING CLASS against war. The Socialists point out that that Conference was originally and vigorously promoted by the blood-stained Tsar of Russia, who, though a member of the Conference, when a war seemed to suit his economic interests, with mocking irony promptly spat on the Conference and inaugurated the bloodiest war in modern times—all in the blessed name of "patriotism," of course. The Socialists mark well the Italian Government, member of the Conference, scorning the Conference when it suits Italian capitalist interest, and with the holy blessings of the Church, engaging in a horrible capitalist war, laughing at the Hague Conference, dignifying their brutality with the cheapened phrase "Christian patriotism"; the Socialists draw aside the curtain and strip the hypocrite's mask from the most noisy, foxy and distinguished member of The Hague Peace Conference, Andrew Carnegie, and remind the world, especially the working class, that "patriotic" Andrew Carnegie and his "patriotic" Steel Company sold steel armor plate for battleships to the Russian government at one-half the price they charged their own dear country for the same armor. That "thieves' banquet" of glittering plutocrats and prostitutes, cunningly called The Hague Peace Conference—that also is explained by the Socialists to the workers of the world.

The Socialists see all the governments of the world that are members of The Hague Peace Conference, without faith and faithless, shrewdly mouthing the words "Patriotism" and "Peace," yet feverishly increasing their armies and navies, preparing for wars in which to win a lion's share of the world's profits at the cost of the blood and tears of the working class. All these things, and more, the Socialists explain to the working class—to WARN the WORKING class.

The Socialist Party is the vanguard of the working class in its grand march upward to freedom. The Socialist Party is the First Regiment in the silent and bloodless war for peace—armed with information and discussion instead of ignorance and dynamite; armed with the printing press and the ballot, instead of the gatling gun and the bullet. The Socialist Party is boldly warning the WORKING class of the world against war—URGING THE WORKERS TO REFUSE TO GO TO WAR.

Wars, modern wars—in almost ALL cases—are between jealous groups of the parasitic ruling class in their swinish international scramble for territory, markets and profits. In these wars the workers cut their own throats (ignorantly shouting "Patriotism!"), and wade in their own blood (ignorantly shouting "Patriotism!"), while the crafty capitalist class, at home, safe and far from the firing line, clap their soft hands together, wink knowingly, and cunningly shout "Patriotism!"

In war the workers' blood is spilt, the workers' tears are despised, the workers' children are orphaned, the workers' wives are widowed, the workers' lives are robbed to pay war taxes and war bonds and war bond interest, the workers' health is blasted, the workers become the hobbling cripples insulted with stingy petty pensions while distinguished high salaried judges (whose lives are never risked where the cannon roar) are fattened on pensions of thousands per year. In war the workers have nothing to gain and all to lose. The workers are learning these things well, very well. The Socialists are striking these facts of warning into the brains of the working class in all parts of the world. Indeed, even the best informed and most distinguished ENEMIES of the Socialist Party in all the world admit that the Socialists are persistently and effectively warning the working class against war.

But the GREAT war is the CLASS war, the CLASS STRUGGLE—the war between the capitalist employer class and the wage-earning working class—between the exploiting class who OWN the INDUSTRIAL FOUNDATIONS of society and live on profits, and the exploited class who productively USE the INDUSTRIAL FOUNDATIONS of society and live on wages—the industrial war, in which the employers struggle to beat down the price of labor power and the workers struggle to force up the price of labor power. THIS IS THE FUNDAMENTAL WAR, the SOURCE of war, the war without an end—while capitalism lasts. In this war of clashing CLASS interests other wars originate. And in this struggle rises the Socialist Party—the political organization of the working class, the political right arm of the working class, the legalized army of the working class, with which the working class is cunningly (intelligently) seizing the political powers of society, and thus legally getting into legal position for strategic SELF-DEFENSE—to legally CONTROL the industrial foundations of society for the benefit of all who are willing to work—to give to all who are willing to work EQUALITY OF OPPORTUNITY TO WORK, and to give to every worker the value of his applied labor power, undimmished by rent, interest and profits.

The Socialist Party lives and strives to FREE the working class—lives and strives, nationally and internationally, TO PLACE THE FEET OF ALL THE PEOPLE FIRMLY UPON THE INDUSTRIAL FOUNDATIONS OF SOCIETY; strives to CONNECT EVERY LIFE WITH THE SOURCE OF LIFE, by making every member of society a joint owner of the industrial foundations of society; that is, a joint owner of the dominant means of production.

This new Industrial State will not, like the Capitalist State, be engaged in betraying, policing, oppressing and crushing a robbed and irritated working class in the interest of a ruling class, for there will not be a WORKING class and a RULING CLASS when all are equals, equals in ownership of the mills, mines, quarries, factories, railroads, forests and the rest of the industrial foundations of society. ALL WILL BE WORKERS (those who will not work will have to starve); and in this new arrangement, the State, the classless Industrial Democracy, so far as the workers are concerned, will be engaged in administering the industrial affairs of socialized society in the interest of the joint owners and users of the means of production, and not in the interest of a class.

THIS WILL CLOSE THE VAST CLASS STRUGGLE AND WILL THUS REMOVE THE PRIME CAUSE OF WAR AND WILL FREE THE WORKERS FROM ROBBERY IN THE FIELDS OF INDUSTRY, AND ALSO FREE THE WORKERS FROM SLAUGHTER ON THE FIELDS OF WAR.

The Socialists are rousing, teaching, warning, moving the workers of the world. Mankind feels this international impulse, thrills to warless Socialism. Civilized mankind is rapidly rousing from a race-cursing spell. Soon every red-throated cannon on earth will boom no more—silenced forever. The tears of the war-robbed widows and the war-orphaned children and the blood of the world's strong men will cease to stain the earth, and never again on great battlefields will foul birds feast on the shattered corpses of working class youths torn from the trembling embrace of fond mothers and forced to face the storms of lead and steel—to stupidly decide (for their masters) which country is the superior, AS A FIGHTER.

The SOCIALISTS proclaim to the whole world: WE DO NOT WANT OTHER PEOPLE'S BLOOD AND WE REFUSE TO WASTE OUR OWN. IF THE MASTERS WANT BLOOD LET THEM CUT THEIR OWN THROATS.

WHAT THE GOVERNOR OF COLORADO DID NOT SAY OF THE [illegible] IN THE COLORADO STRIKE

The writer of [illegible] bulletin was raised in Pennsylvania, where the governor of the state is one of the leading men of the commonwealth, where he is honored and respected, where the chief executive is generally a fearless, honest citizen, mentally, morally and physically big enough to administer his office to the honor of the state.

We feel it necessary therefore to tell you briefly just who and what Elias M. Ammons, Governor of Colorado, is, and what his record in the Colorado strike has been.

Ammons was elected on a Democratic ticket. That he is a political mistake, that he has disgraced his party has been admitted by Democratic assemblies which have not only refused to show his picture in their meetings, but have hooted, jeered and hissed his name whenever it was mentioned in the day's proceedings.

Ammons is the person who, because he owns property in Routt county, tried to threaten and compromise both strikers and operators to effect a settlement of the strike in that section.

Ammons is the person who, when his subordinate, John Chase, rode down the women and children in Trinidad January 22, maiming some of them and injuring others by trampling them under the hoofs of horses, sat in his office in Denver, too much of a weakling to condemn Chase, but condoning his inhuman effort to slaughter the mothers and babes of the strikers' families.

Ammons is the person who suggested that a committee of the State Federation of Labor investigate the cruelties of the militia, and then, when this committee furnished him proof that Lieutenant K. E. Linderfelt had knocked down a boy in the Ludlow station, threatened Louis Tikas with death and thrown a huge roll of barbed wire down the strikers' well, refused to take action.

Ammons is the person who set aside constitutional government in the strike district, who denied free speech, the right of trial by jury, who allowed the notorious third degree to be used on "military" prisoners in an effort to incriminate officers of the strikers in matters with which they had no connection.

Ammons is the person who prostituted the Colorado National Guard to the coal operators and saddled an expense of $1,000,000 on the taxpayers of a state already heavily encumbered.

Ammons is the person who defrauded widows and other poor women who were trying to make a living running boarding houses in the strike district by, as commander-in-chief, quartering the militia in their homes, knowing that he did not have the money to pay them.

Ammons is the person who, as commander-in-chief, allowed the imported gunmen of the operators to be recruited into the Colorado National Guard.

Ammons is the person who did this, although he knew these imported assassins were paid $3 to $7 a day by the operators to "clean out" the strikers. And yet he was willing to have the state of Colorado pay them another dollar a day to carry out their purpose. To further help them, he furnished them with state equipment.

Ammons is the person who, after these gunmen, under the command of two militia officers, had murdered and cremated nineteen men, women and children at Ludlow, remained in Washington, D. C., and refused to return to his state to prevent further slaughter of the innocents.

Ammons is the person who, when he did return, was too cowardly to meet the citizens of his state, some of whom he had slaughtered; who left the train twenty miles from Denver and sneaked into Denver under cover of darkness like a cowardly yellow dog.

Ammons' latest role is that of the operators' gunmen and his militia carried on a brutal civil war against the strikers, sat cringing and crying at the state house, not man enough to assert his authority as chief executive of the state—either because he was too spineless or because he knew that doing so would end the rule by gunmen of the operators to whom he had turned over the State of Colorado body and soul.

The above may give you an idea of the Governor(?) of the State of Colorado.

Ammons' lattest role is that of press agent of the coal operators.

His initial bow appears in Bulletin 12.

Concerning the "gunmen," he says it is "interesting to note what the facts really are."

We admit that it is "interesting."

Ammons says "it is true two men were shot" by the militia.

When Ammons said that, he knew he lied.

He knew that the Colorado National Guard, made up largely of gunmen of the operators, with machine guns and high-powered rifles, deliberately murdered and cremated twenty men, women and children at Ludlow alone.

Ammons says there were other "gunmen," and goes on to say that four men were shot fatally at La Veta.

Four men were shot at La Veta, but none knows who did the shooting.

Let us inform Ammons that there were still other "gunmen," and let us call his attention to the murder of Gerald Lippiatt by George Belcher, Baldwin-Feltz gunman, August 1, 1913; to the murder of Kris Kokich, Andy Auvinen, and Cisto Croci by "other gunmen" on the streets of Walsenburg October 24, 1913; to the murder of Mike Linsini and George Bak by "other gunmen" on the streets of Walsenburg, October 24, 1913; to the murder of Frank Angelo, near Walsenburg, April 28, 1914, by "other gunmen"; to the murder of Luke Visnonik at Forbes by "other gunmen" October 17, 1913.

When Ammons says "a non-union miner named Smith was beaten to death and his body thrown on the railroad track to be run over by a train," insinuating that this was done by a striker, he deliberately tries to deceive the public, for none knows how Smith was killed.

Ammons says a cowboy was shot to death near Ludlow. He fails to say that the name of this cowboy was Matt Powell, that he was a striker working as a cowboy, and that he was shot by the gunmen of the operators when these hired assassins attacked the Ludlow tent colony.

Ammons says "two children were shot in bed at Tabasco." Rumor says they were, but no effort has been made to prove who did the shooting.

He does not say so, but we suppose that these children were shot by some of Ammons' "other gunmen."

Why did Ammons not tell you of "his gunmen"; for, as commander-in-chief of the Colorado National Guard they were his gunmen, murdered and cremated twelve children at Ludlow, Colorado, April 20, 1914?

Ammons, in his initial press agent story for the operators, talks of armed insurrectionists and armed bodies of men, etc.

Remember, the coal operators imported 1,000 gunmen before the strike was called, that these men were in the strike district, intimidating the strikers and their families and shooting up the tent colonies before the strikers had any arms. Remember that these "gunmen" were employed to do this work of extermination. Remember that every battle in this strike was started by the gunmen and not by fire upon the homes of the strikers, and remember that under the constitution of the United States they had a right to carry arms and to use them in the protection of themselves, their families and their homes.

Ammons, press agent, says Major Lester was shot down at Walsenburg while wearing the Red Cross.

Ammons, press agent, you know as well as we that while Lester wore the Red Cross he was not ministering to the wounded, but was leading a [illegible]

Fred Williams
VERY POPULAR EAST SIDE BOY

Readers of this paper will remember that on July 24th Fred Williams was brutally beaten by Major (?) Harold Bush, a "Big Brother," to whom Judge Black had delivered [illegible] for scriptural training.

You will be pleased to know that in a popularity contest for a pony by East Side business men "Fred" got the magnificent number of 464,225 votes as a token of how the East Side people hold him in their respect.

When Judge Black and Major Bush are forgotten except for their brutalities, Fred Williams may be a Socialist Prof. Judge of the co-operative commonwealth. Stick to your books, "Fred," prove your worth to these capitalist authorities. Show to the world that where there is life and ambition there is room of encouragement and not brutal suppression.

derous attack on the strikers whom the "gunmen" and militia had driven from Walsenburg to the Hogback.

Ammons says "we should honor the brave boys of the National Guard." Honor them for what? For the murder of twenty men, women and children at Ludlow or for saddling a debt of $1,000,000 on the taxpayers of Colorado for their services as gunmen of the coal operators? When Ammons says "most of them come from the best families of the state," he libels and slanders the good citizenship of Colorado, for he knows that most of them were dregs of the civic cesspools of the world. Ammons says they were there to re-establish personal and property rights and lawful organized government. The congressional committee's report will show that they were there to defend the property rights of the coal operators, to deny personal rights and to set aside constitutional government.

AGITATORS AND THE COLORADO STRIKE

Much has been said about the activity of "agitators" and their responsibility for the Colorado coal strike.

It has been said that these "agitators" called the convention of miners held in Trinidad, Colorado, September 16, 1913, and demanded a strike.

Let us admit that the "agitators" did call the convention.

Speaking of this phase of the strike, Peter Clark Macfarlane, in Collier's Weekly, issue of June 6, says:

"No scientist has ever been able to agitate a vacuum.

"Now for our illustration: Let us take a single instance of one of those mine explosions. Its cause was undetermined. One theory was that a Japanese miner, 'sneaking a smoke,' struck a match that fired the gas that exploded the mine and slew some scores of men, tearing many bodies so far from human semblance that they were scarcely recognizable as such. Now, in that hypothesis, the match of the Jap was the mouth of the agitator. But if there had been no gas or dust there would have been no explosion."

The same is true of the present strike. As Macfarlane says: "If there had been no long-continued, no high-heaped series of wrongs, real or fancied, floating in the minds of the miners like gas, coating memory thickly with explosive dust that flared up with the fiery words of the agitator, there would have been no strike."

We need not look far for the gas and dust.

Let us take, first, the political oppression of the miners. For years the Colorado Fuel & Iron Company and other large corporate interests have absolutely dominated the politics of Huerfano and Las Animas counties.

These interests have placed in office whom they thought would serve them best. They have influenced the courts and legislatures. They have made justice unknown to him who did not belong to their political gang. The Colorado Fuel & Iron Company has for thirty years had the power to acquit or convict, to send its enemies to the penitentiary or to let its friends go free.

Personal political freedom has been unknown in these counties since as far back as 1884.

Judge Jesse G. Northcutt, of Trinidad, than whom there is probably none better acquainted with conditions in Huerfano and Las Animas counties, and who is now general counsel for the coal corporations of Colorado, told in a speech at Lamar, Colorado, in 1912, how the political parties could nominate no man unless he were acceptable to the officials of the Colorado Fuel & Iron Company. He denounced the political domination of this company and told how the miners were driven to the polls like so many sheep.

A federal grand jury sitting in Pueblo, Colorado, found, December 6, 1913, that "Many camp marshals whose appointments and salaries are controlled by the local companies have exercised a system of espionage and have resorted to arbitrary powers of police control, acting in the capacity of judge and jury and passing the sentence, 'Down the canyon for you,' upon miners who had incurred the enmity of the superintendent or pit boss for having complained of real grievances, or for other cause. These, taken with brutal assaults by camp marshals upon miners, have produced general dissatisfaction among the latter."

This is one of the dangerous gases that has been coating the minds of the miners with explosive dust for thirty years.

And then let us take the matter of weights. Witnesses appearing before the Congressional Investigating Committee testified that they had always been robbed of from 700 to 1,400 pounds of coal on every car they mined. When they complained to the superintendent they were either discharged or told that "It was orders."

Coal miners have learned from long experience that the only way they can secure the just weight to which they are entitled is by employing one of their number as a check-weighman. The right of the men to have this check-weighman has been a state law of Colorado for seventeen years, but whenever the men asked for this legal right, they told the Congressional Committee, they were discharged.

A law forbidding the paying of men with scrip in lieu of lawful money, making it illegal to compel men to trade at the company stores or live at company boarding houses, was passed in 1899. Company men testified before the Congressional Committee that scrip is being used by the operators today. Men who refused to trade at the company store or live at the company boarding house were either discharged or given such a poor place in the mine that they were forced to leave on account of not being able to make a living.

Another gas that added force to the explosion of discontent and ended in the present strike.

In that same year, 1899, another law was passed making it unlawful for an employer to prohibit his employe from joining a labor organization. When the strike of 1904 was called off, six thousand miners who belonged to the United Mine Workers were blacklisted. Many of these men have never been able to obtain a job. It is common knowledge that whenever a miner was found to have joined the union or to even sympathize with its purposes, he was not only sent "down the canyon," but blacklisted, which meant that he could not obtain work in any coal mine in Colorado.

In 1901, the semi-monthly pay-day law was passed by the State Legislature. The Colorado Fuel & Iron Company started the semi-monthly pay-day February 1, 1913, or thirteen years later, according to the testimony of the president of this company before the Congressional Committee.

More gas and dangerous dust.

Since 1901 the eight-hour question has been demanded by the miners and other citizens of the state. By referring bills and introducing "fake" measures, the coal corporations prevented an eight-hour law until 1913, when the Supreme Court cleared up the matter.

These and many other things created the gas and dust in the minds of the 11,232 coal miners, which the "agitators" ignited into the greatest explosion of industrial discontent in the history of labor struggles.

Since the strike of the Colorado coal miners began on September 23d, 1913, the coal operators and other interests have seen fit to attack the United Mine Workers of America. To any controversy that calls for explanation from either factor, there must be two sides. It is not within the bounds of possibility that the Colorado coal operators in arguing their own cause can be expected to give that full measure of justice to which the United Mine Workers of America are entitled.

The real facts must be known that there may be a more complete understanding of the situation.

We hope that a knowledge by the American people of the facts may lead to a solution of the present difficulties which will insure a healthy industrial peace in Colorado and a sounder relationship between Capital and Labor throughout the United States.

SOCIALIST PARTY FIRST REGIMENT IN BLOODLESS WAR FOR PEACE

Direct action is folly unless you have organized power.

The blood of the workers is greasing the machinery of exploitation.

The newspapers declare the glory of war. And the boobs are excited.

There are two hellish ways of exchanging woman's love for man's wealth. The legal and the illegal. Think about it?

"Humble thyself in the presence of thy Masters," is one commandment that a true rebel violates with a true sense of dignity.

Day after day they utter lies, and night upon night they sow patriotism, until the world is one red hell and mankind are turned to demons. Surely I will subscribe to a capitalistic sheet and my soul shall feast on deception. —Words by John De Quet—you finish the Music.

The truth about prostitution is that it goes hand in hand with low wages.

The truth about the capitalist class is that it has drowned the earth in the blood of Labor when it was necessary to perpetuate their rule.

The truth regarding electricians is that when they strike all the glitter of gold and splendor of the capitalist class can not light up the city.

SOCIALIST VOTE ALMOST DOUBLES

The Socialist vote at the recent primary in Oklahoma was 16,000. Two years ago it was 9,000. Two hundred and fifty thousand Socialist books have been distributed in the state besides a vast number of leaflets. Besides the regular Socialist vote there is a good prospect of a large protest vote going to the Socialists. The past two years the crops have been a failure. The crop is good this year but war time conditions are going to act on the price in all probability in which case the farmers will cast their lot with the Socialists. There is an excellent prospect of electing one congressman and a fighting chance to elect two others.

SOCIALIST DEBATE IN CANTON

A great debate took place in Nimissilla Park, Canton, O., Thursday evening, August 27, on the following question: "Resolved that Socialism is a Menace to the Working Class."

Prof. J. C. Skaggs, Superintendent of the Doylestown, O., Schools and Rev. E. M. Lewis, Pastor of the Methodist Church at Doylestown, O., took the affirmative, and Atty. Allen Cook, of Canton, O., and Rev. Frederick G. Strickland, of Dayton, O., the negative. About three hours' time was consumed in the debate, between 4000 and 5000 people were present; the interest was intense, the behavior of the audience beyond criticism and the enthusiasm in high pitch. Each debater has two speeches, and Prof. Skaggs based his entire argu- to close the discussion. The audience remained till the echoes of the last words had faded away. The Slavish American Socialist Band rendered an excellent concert from 7:00 to 7:30, preceding the debate. Then Mr. A. J. Totten of Alliance, O., as chairman of the meeting stated the question, the rules of the debate and the division of the time allotted to each speaker.

Prof. J. C. Skaggs opened the debate by defining Socialism as "A system of government that denies all right to individual property, directs and assigns all labor and compels the equal distribution of all property." Prof. Skaggs based his entire araument upon this erroneous definition of Socialism and proceeded to show how such system would make slaves of the working class, rob the toilers of their great accumulations of property, destroy the homes and kill all incentives to individual efforts. Mr. Skaggs further claimed that under Socialism all "exchange" would be abolished. And that the means of transportation and other forms of distribution would go out of commission and gave as an illustration that the states of the South that depended upon Kansas and Illinois for their corn would have to send each man individually to those states to carry home the corn they would use.

Atty. Allen Cook followed, disputing the definition of Socialism as given by Prof. Skaggs, and said that Socialism demands the social ownership and democratic management of all things socially used and the private ownership of all things privately used. That Capitalism is the private ownership by the few of the things that the many must collectively use, while Socialism is the collective ownership by all the people of what the people must collectively use. He showed that Capitalism is the private appropriation by the few, of the products of the toiling millions with no one able to produce without the consent of some private owner. That Socialism is the appropriation by the many, for the individual and private possession and use of the many of the products produced by themselves, with equal opportunity for all men and women to be producers if they so choose. He said that Socialism would produce for use and not for profit, while Capitalism produces for profit and not for use. Mr. Cook bored into and pressed down upon his opponent with great force and master strokes of logic to the demonstrative pleasure of his audience and the evident discomfort of his opponents. He insisted upon his opponents specifically stating and demonstrating how and in what manner Socialism is a menace to the working class, asking whether it is the menace of anarchy, or the menace to their religion or a menace to their home or the menace of drunkenness or prostitution in the working class. Mr. Cook turned the tables upon his opponent and showed that Capitalism, the very system which they were defending, was doing everything that could prove a menace to the working class of the civilized world. He claimed that the burden of proof was upon the affirmative of this question and asked the audience to particularly note in what way the affirmative claimed Socialism to be such menace.

Mr. Cook was followed by Rev. E. M. Lewis, who claimed that the system of Socialism was built upon a wrong foundation. That the Socialist system looked not so much to the spiritual welfare of the working class as it would to the economic welfare. He claimed that Socialism could never succeed unless it began at the heart of men and worked to the outside. He next said that Socialism was such a fine system that it would require angels and saints to live in accordance with its teachings and probably could never be practiced except in heaven. He said that Socialism would never come into power unless it first got into the church and worked with and for the church instead of against the church as many do today. One of his strong statements, and on which he dwelt at considerable length was, "get your man and your system will come." Rev. Lewis also gave some quotations from prominent Socialists who are atheistic in their beliefs, and held the Socialist party and the Socialist movement responsible for these individual beliefs. Rev. Lewis claimed that environment had nothing to do with the character, happiness and life of man and that this was one of the great mistakes of the Socialist movement. He claimed further that the Socialists did not object as a movement to men smoking cigars, chewing tobacco or drinking beer. He said that the average man could save enough in forty years if he quit smoking, chewing and drinking to build himself a good home.

Rev. Strickland followed Rev. Lewis and pointed out that it was Rev. Lewis that was on the wrong foundation and not the Socialist party. He said the definition given by both affirmative speakers for Socialism was erroneous, misleading and not substantiated by any Socialist platform in the world. He stated that if Socialism was such a fine system that it would require saints and angels to live in accordance with its teachings and could only be practiced in heaven, that the affirmative speakers could certainly not claim that it was a menace to the working class. In answer to Rev. Lewis' argument about Socialism never coming unless brought about by the church, Rev. Strickland stated that the church had been proclaiming their doctrine of individual salvation for the past 2000 years, and that injustice, iniquity and wrongdoing in various forms were more prevalent today than ever before in the history of the world. Rev. Strickland claimed that the Socialists were doing more to carry out the teachings of Jesus Christ than any other organization in existence in the world. Answering Rev. Lewis' argument "Get your man and your system will follow," Rev. Strickland said, "That is exactly what the Socialists are doing. We are working night and day to get the man, and we are getting him, and the system will come and the church will come toddling along after when the system is established." Rev. Strickland placed Rev. Lewis in a very bad light before the audience for his attempt to hold the Socialist party responsible for the individual beliefs and sayings of its members.

The European War was discussed as a Capitalistic Menace to the working class. Attorney Cook said, "That no war had been fought in the past 500 years, the cause of which could not be traced directly to the Profit System of Commerce and Industry." The affirmative did not dispute the statement.

It is impossible to do this debate justice by attempting to write a brief summary of the same. Atty. Cook and Rev. Strickland are both masters of the English language, logical reasoners, very eloquent in their expression and possessed with full round powerful voices which hold the audience to the last word.

Prof. Skaggs and Rev. E. M. Lewis are both forcible speakers, very eloquent in their expression, but the audience seemed to detect the economic errors and misrepresentations they were making. In an eloquent outburst, Rev. Lewis said: "Socialism is a great menace to the working class because it is impossible and cannot be practiced under the present system of government." Instantly the crowd burst into laughter, and Rev. Lewis did not seem to understand the cause.

The applause was about even at the outset of the debate, but after the discussion proceded the applause was almost wholly on the Socialist side, Rev. Strickland and Atty. Cook scoring point after point on their opponents with such force and rapidity as to stagger the opposition. The opinion was very generally expressed that debates are the best way of educating people on the question of Socialism, for the reason that so many non-Socialists are in attendance. Thursday evening, August 27th will long be remembered in the city of Canton.

WAR—MONSTROUS ENEMY OF HUMAN HAPPINESS

By W. C. Bates

War, thou hideous monster, who had thy conception in the early existence of capitalism, crude though were its forms, yet mother of all the abominations of the past out of whose debauched womb thou dost owe thy sinful birth, fed upon the ill-gotten profits from honest toil thou hast not ceased to heap cruel indignities upon the heads of those whom thou hast robbed and slain those who dared to say thee nay.

Marvelous has been thy progress, feeding upon the brain and brawn, yea, even upon the flesh and blood of thy human victims, gorged with all the human attriutes, yet thou art the most inhuman creature extant.

War, thou impersonated Hero—Son of Mars—in thy name of feigned greatness, peoples have become extinct, governments have changed or ceased to exist, that thou might be the more exalted and honored according to the barbarous times in which the deeds were done.

War, thou unmerciful wretch, who has left upon the gory battlefield, with faces upturned to the scorching sun, fathers, husbands and brothers, yea, even women and children, that the coffers of thy exacting master—capitalism—may be filled and the lust for greed be satiated.

War, thou obedient son of capitalism, out of thy hands dripping with the warm, steaming blood of Germans, French, Austrian, English and Russian soldiers, capital will receive her coveted profits, bonds, interest, increased prices on cornered production, rent interest and commissions.

War, hoary headed, gory handed, putrid souled War, in thy name renowned Divines have prayed for the success of thy armies and instruments of destruction and for slaughter, murder, rapine and extinction of thy victims, his brothers, the handiwork of the same God to whom the sainted (?) reprobate prays for destruction.

War, cursed impersonation, such has been the power of thy hypnotic influence that so-called great men of state have fallen victims of thy campaigns and sacrificed their subjects upon the altar of thy senseless ambition.

War, hideous, powerful, exacting and cruel as thou art, yet that day has come when another youthful, brainy, brawny Hero has appeared. Peace.

Peace, conceived in love, nurtured in kindness and matured in humanity, her very countenance betokens liberty, equality and justice.

Peace, young, brave and persistent, has entered the fray against War.

Peace, commanding her allied armies of Socialists and all workers of every land have issued her ultimatum to War, and his close allies, capitalism and all shirkers of every nation, that the class-struggle must close at once or a relentless Peace will be waged against War.

Peace, sweet Peace, which has no
cannon roar with lead,
Peace, dear Peace, which leaves no fields strewn o'er with dead,
Peace that strikes with love and reason,
Peace which knows no spies or treason
In the truth of Socialism
There is Peace, eternal Peace."

Peace, sweet Peace which says to brother
Love thyself and hate no other;
Peace which shields a loving sister,
Ere war's blighting blasts have kissed her.
In the folds of thy soft wings
There is Peace, eternal Peace.

Peace, who says to mothers whom
Have given birth from human womb,
Sons to toil and sons to war,
Bear to capitalism such no more.
In thy passive "str'ke on birth"
There'll be Peace, eternal Peace.

THE TRIUMPH OF TRUTH

By Ezekiel B. Wharton

Proclaim the truth from rich mines deep
Herald it from the mountains high;
Nor shall it in foul prisons sleep,
Nor will vile, traitorous Judges lie.

Truth shall rise as an angel of light,
Clothed with justice, grace and power,
Turning iniquities into right
In her duly appointed hour.

Dismissing armies, lead men to see
The toilers long in ignorance bound,
Shall hear the cry of sweet Liberty
As it echoes in truth and peace
the world around.

Then shall tyranny cease to reign,
Then shall freedom cease to bleed.
Man by brother man no more be slain
Each act the man in word and deed.

Instead of dungeons, men to confine,
Co-operative enterprises span the earth.
Of factory, farm, mill and mine—
Socialist brotherhood of joy and mirth.

The lowly shall rise to grandest thought
Among the noble and the good.
Truth and justice then besought
Love and Liberty the daily food.

Every toiler shall own his home,
With idle rich—be no divide.
For that great era shall have come,
S—SOCIALIST
And rich and poor work side by side.

Glorious thought, there'll be no dearth
Of nature's bounty, yielded free
Give up thy increase, Mother Earth,
Socialism gains the world—Victory.

Lawyers, preachers and politicians, when they seek to enter the labor movement, must be treated like medicine, that is, must be well shaken before taken.

ON THAT TROT.

A post card from our esteemed comrade H. G. Creel, Editor of the "Globe Trotter," mailed at San Francisco, Cal., and posted August 25th, 1914, tells us "Off on the Globe Trot." Let every comrade wish him a safe and profitable journey and a world of god for Socialism.

The truth about poverty is it can be abolished when the workers decide they will not be poor any longer, and stand as a unit to destroy the profit system.

The truth about Unpaid Labor is that it is the cause of the poverty of the people, the crime extant and the misery among the masses.

The truth about factional fights in the Socialist party is that they are often caused by the mixing of two classes in a one-class party.

The truth about theft is that surplus value is the biggest steal.

THE SOCIALIST

A Weekly Newspaper Without a Muzzle

Vol. IV Whole No. 194 COLUMBUS, OHIO, SEPT. 12, 1914 Price, 2 Cents per Copy

THIS PAPER is published in the interest of the working class. If you think it is worthy of your support, support it by getting new subscribers. If you don't like it, don't knock. We are making it as good as you will allow. Whenever the workers support their own press as valiantly as they do the master's press we will be able to do really big things for the emancipation of the workers. In the meantime, we are forging ahead conscious of the fact that our cause is just, that right will finally triumph, and the workers step forth emancipated from the age-long servitude to a robber, master class.

Wm. H. Taft Endorses Socialist Tenets

Charge Samuel Gompers with Fighting Socialism Among the Wage-Earners.

Ex-President W. H. Taft, in a lengthy article in American Federationist, edited by Samuel Gompers, pages 711 and 712, has the following to say: "I have said that were I a wage-earner, I would feel it my duty to join a labor organization, but I would dissent from some of its principles. One is that of a closed shop, which involves curtailment of personal liberty of the individual laborer. Another is duress upon him to compel him to join a labor organization. These, I think, utterly inconsistent with the fundamental principles of a free government and of freedom of the individual in society.

"The effort to paralyze by legislation the arm of courts to restrain lawlessness, the secondary boycott, the blacklist, and other pernicious instrumentalities for winning industrial controversies is a shortsighted policy that I hope labor unions will learn is unwise.

"I cannot think that the exemption of farmers and wage-earners from any general criminal law like the anti-trust law will in the end prove of any benefit to those exempted. If the addresses on each recurring Labor Day shall make clear the duties that the wage-earners owe to society in maintaining the supremacy of law and of rendering an honest day's work for an honest day's wage, such anniversaries will serve their purpose.

"I congratulate you (Samuel Gompers) on the hard fight you have made against the spread of Socialism among wage-earners. (Note that William recognizes that Socialism is spreading.) Under present conditions of human nature the Socialistic state is an impossible one without a tyranny, in contrast with which every hardship or injustice of the present industrial system will seem trivial. The only tenet of Socialism I fully endorse is its opposition to war."—August 11th, 1914.—William H. Taft.

Even Mr. Taft has to admit that the Socialist Party is absolutely right on one thing and that is our position on Peace and War. Then if we are absolutely right on our position in favor of Peace and opposition to War, does it not follow that we are right on some other things which the world has sanctioned for years, the same as the world has sanctioned war for ages? Going still further, Mr. Taft, if we are absolutely right in opposing war, what is your definition and limitation of war? We assume you will answer that it is wholly wrong for one nation to wage war on another nation. The Socialists say yes with you. Then is it not wholly wrong for the people in one section of the same nation or of one church of the same nation to declare war on the people of another section or the people of another church? Your answer, Mr. Taft, can be no other but yes, it is wholly wrong. Then we ask you again, Mr. Taft, is it not also wholly wrong for the government of a state to declare war on some of its citizens and shoot down those citizens in cold blood in the interest of some other citizens as was done in Ludlow, Colorado, in the interest of the mine owners and against the innocent and inoffensive women and children? Mr. Taft, we dare you over your own signature to justify the brutal War upon our citizens under the Stars and Stripes so sacred that the self-constituted president of Mexico, Huerta, was demand to salute the flag seven times while that same flag at the same time dipped seven times seven times in the warm, streaming blood of those its folds should have protected at Ludlow, Colorado. War, war is Hell!—Hell is war. There was war at Ludlow—Hell there was at Ludlow and the American flag floated in Hell in Ludlow dipping in the blood of citizens and waving in the smoke laden with the odor of burning flesh of women and children whose lives had been snuffed out by soldiers commanded by government officials carrying that same flag. Mr. Taft, we Socialists have such profound respect for the Stars and Stripes, for "Old Glory," that we firmly object and protest against it being dishonored and insulted by such atrocities in the name of Freedom, when instead of liberty and freedom, such acts result in oppression, treachery and murder.

It has many times been stated that competition was war. We Socialists assert that competition is war. We are opposed to competition because it is war. Mr. Taft agrees with us on war and war is competition, and so Mr. Taft is of necessity opposed to competition. If there is to be no competition there must be co-operation. There is nothing left but the co-operative commonwealth, and Mr. Taft is in on the co-operative commonwealth, and that is Socialism.

The above reasoning is logical, correct, and Mr. Taft is a Socialist, but lacks the power of reasoning to understand the full import of his declaration, "The only tenet of Socialism I fully endorse is its opposition to war."

While Mr. Taft says the only tenet of Socialism he indorses is our opposition to war, we also find these words in his message to Samuel Gompers: "I look forward to a great benefit from the workman's compensation acts. I cannot, for the life of me, understand why the present congress should not adopt this one for the federal jurisdiction.

Mr. Taft doesn't seem to know that "workmen's compensation," "workmen's pensions," "widows' pensions" and "old age pensions" are all tenets of Socialism.

William, if you really mean it, stick to it, you will swallow the whole dose some day and feel better after your system is cleaned out.

THE ADVANCE OF LIBERALISM

During the first few years of the present century that which we call Liberalism made great strides all over the world. Institutions of a feudal character had been slowly crumbling since the middle of the nineteenth century, owing to the insistent demands of modern life and a new democracy.

The first years of the present century were marked by the progress made along three great lines. First came the separation of church and state, second was the great stride made by Socialism and third looms up woman suffrage. The struggle of [illegible] to free themselves of the political and economic bur[illegible] established church was the most bitter ever contested before it not be seen by some whereby both church and state would benefit by separation. The movement of separation became the one issue in more than one foreign country. France was the first to solve the great problem. This ferment has worked its way into congresses and parliaments till it is leavening all monarchies with the order of democracy. The solution of this ferment is called Socialism. It is Socialism which is the answer to the problem of handling of privileged government, the standing army and private property on "Big Business." In every great country the Socialist Party is ever busy with the furtherance of reforms for a greater economic equality for the masses. In these movements Germany is ever in the foreground. At the present day we see the unnatural militarism and the inevitably destructive consequences that follow it. German Socialism is the protest against the present system. The rise of the party in Germany has been very rapid. In 1874 the Socialists polled only 340,000 votes, while in 1912 they polled more than four and a quarter millions, with 110 members in the German Congress or Reichstag.

For a quarter of a century the republic of Switzerland has been a sort of mill where new and complex problems are ground out seemingly for the benefit of the rest of the world. They passed a referendum law whereby the decision as well as the initiative rests with the voters. It is said to be the best governed country in the world, yet the broad hand of Socialism is spreading out over it. Political and industrial conditions being different in Europe and the United States the social problem must be different. Comrade Victor Berger is the one lone Socialist who has held a seat in Congress. While there he put before Congress a bill for pensioning the working man, as a purely propaganda measure. It did not pass. He also introduced and then caused to be passed a bill that gave universal satisfaction to the mail carriers in the cities of the United States. It allowed them the privilege of removing the coat to their uniforms during the hot summer months. It is not generally known that Comrade Berger is the author of this bill. Universal suffrage is a very important factor in politics in this country as in many foreign countries. In America the suffragist has gone after her right to vote in such a sensible manner, that at the present time there are several states that allow its women the privilege of casting her vote with the same freedom as the men do.

In Great Britain the suffragists uses different tactics to gain their ends, with the result that she is insulted, dragged thro the streets and jailed by every overbearing, hare-brained London policeman that chooses to do so. The London police seem to have buried their ideas of gallantry. The Socialist Party whipped the Liberals and Conservatives into action by an incessant agitation and won the ballot for the women of Austria and Sweden.

In Austria, as a result of the grant of suffrage in 1906, the Socialists increased their strength in Parliament from eleven to eighty-seven. In Sweden they rose from thirty-five to sixty four. The amazing strength of the Socialist Party in the first and second Russian Doumas caused the Czar to abridge some of its powers in the third. The progress of Socialism is shown also by the recent creation of parliaments in Japan, Turkey, Persia and Portugal. Power of the few to rule over the many is being questioned now more than ever before. The general movement toward sex equality is advancing rapidly. As physicians, teachers, lawyers and preachers they practice their calling everywhere. Nearly every great institution of learning has opened its doors to female students who have an innate desire for a higher education. Delegates from national associations from twenty-four different countries held a congress at Stockholm in 1911 on the suffrage question. It was called the International Woman Suffrage Alliance. In 1912 the Progressive Party declared for Woman's Suffrage. At its convention held at Chicago a woman of national note (Miss Jane Addams) seconded the nomination of Mr. Roosevelt for President. The suffragist cause has always been upheld by the Socialist Party, just as the labor cause has been upheld. In order to get what Socialism wants they must have not only the votes of both sexes, but they must have better political machinery. Our representative government is ineffective and unsatisfactory. The Socialist suffrage victory is not only a triumph for American-European liberty, but also for the peace of the world.

Organized power is the result of organized understanding.

Organized understanding comes from basic education.

Basic education is gotten thru a study of working class economics.

Working class literature can be had at the office of TRUTH.

Thou shalt not bear false witness, we have preachers for that purpose.

The worker, who is not an industrial collectivist, is either ignorant or a fakir.

The truth about Surplus Value is —it is the real robbery.

The truth about Labor is that it leads a lemon life.

The truth about the "harmony of interest" unions is that they are almost as wise as some Socialist organizations that take in both the robber and the robbed.

The truth about Graft is that Unpaid Labor is the source of all graft.

The truth about the middle class is that it is not capable of running a working class party.

The truth about proletarian solidarity is that it is the sign of the early supremacy of labor.

The truth about the small capitalist is that he is gradually becoming proletarianized,

The truth about the jail is that the big criminal is outside of it.

The truth about "co-operatives" is that they will not stop the robbery of the toiler.

The truth about the capitalist class is—it could not exist without surplus value.

The truth about crime is that there is none in history to compare with the filching of labor's product by the parasites.

"CONSERVATION OF HUMAN RACE" A MOST GLORIOUS WORK

Columbus, Ohio, Sept. 5th, 1914.

"The Ohio State Penitentiary with its 1623 inmates, situated in the very heart of a cosmopolitan city of 215,000 inhabitants boasts six large Honor Camps, besides assignment of prisoners "on honor" at state institutions and "trusties" in the institution. In all 316 prisoners on the "honor roll." Hundreds of these men from year to year have made good and less than 4 per cent have failed, says the report. Much criticism has been offered of the "honor system" and the newspapers have published bold headlines about any prisoner who escapes or becomes derelict while out on "honor" and very little, if any, favorable comment for the "honor system." If only 4 per cent failed and 96 per cent make good, yes even if 50 per cent should fail, we still contend that the absolute right of the other 50 per cent to make good should not be denied them. Should Brown be forced to a prison life because Smith is an ingrate? By all means, no.

If 96 per cent of supposed hardened criminals make good under "honor systems" it is proof positive that at least that same per cent would maintain with children and adults of other less offences. Then why brutally snatch the boys and girls from parents, railroad them to industrial schools and convents, where instead of reform, they are kicked and cuffed about until there is no ambition left for honorable citizenship.

The report says "The percentage of defections have been less than four per cent, a record the Buckeye State may proudly point to as triumphantly demonstrating that the DREGS OF SOCIETY CAN BE REGENERATED into redeemed manhood. This in a large measure is owing to the ennabling efforts of an administration pledged to the conservation of the human race." Glorious thought. Glorious work. Glorious ambition.

Then if such a work, conservation of the human race from the dregs of society, from men in middle life and past is glorious, the conservation of the human race from the boys and girls of the land is omni-glorious. The best to be expected from the conservation of these declining adults is reformation for a few years, but the conservation of boyhood and girlhood not only reforms the individual but gives society a genius for a long life, a humanitarian in society, a citizen for good to others. There is no place where "conservation of the human race" can be looked into with more good results than with the youths of the land. Howbeit that our government will allow the sexual functions of both boys and girls to be deadened and blasted in our public and private institutions,—industrial homes and convents—the victims thrown into consumption and turned out some day to give off progeny, weakened of constitution, if not entirely devoid of reproducing offspring?

If to "conserve the human race" in dotage is glorious, then to make a fight for conservation of the human race from childhood is christianity itself, and we will suffer the penalties of the martyrs for the sake of continuing the fight.

BUTTONS—PEACE—BUTTONS

No organization, political or otherwise, can claim the pronounced distinction due the Socialist party of the world in its earnest, practical determined effort for PEACE before hostilities began and all along during the bloody butchery of raging warfare in Europe.

In so far as we know the first party move towards organization effort in making public the sentiment of individuals as well as organized public sentiment against war and for peace, is to be credited to the state office of the Socialist party of Ohio. This office, by indorsement of the State Executive Committee and some, if not all, of the locals are putting out an unique PEACE BUTTON, to be sold by locals, speakers and individuals to all who are opposed to war and in favor of PEACE. The Buttons can be had at $2.50 per 100, with black ribbon, symbolical of mourning for our workers slain in cruel war. These buttons sell at 5 cents each so that the speakers and locals can use the excess for distributing anti-war literature.

Comrades, let not your zeal for PEACE cool as long as there is war or rumors of war. Wear a PEACE BUTTON yourself and insist on all others doing the same.

Send in your order today to O. G. Van Schoyck, State Secretary, 101 N. High St., Columbus, Ohio.

The truth about the class struggle is that it is the SUPREME fact of our time and THE GREAT WORLD ISSUE.

The truth about some people is that they don't know and don't want to know, and condemn everything on general principles.

The truth about automobiles is that workers make them and shirkers take them.

THEY SEE IT COMING

By Carl D. Thompson

The beginning of the end is at hand.

The capitalist scouts are every day reporting the rapid approach of Socialism.

Chauncey M. Depew, the famous after-dinner orator of the "Grand Old Party," takes a good look at the military maelstrom in Europe, throws up his hands and cries: "This war will mean the greatest impulse for Socialism that history records."

For once, Chauncey's eloquence sounds good to us.

The Springfield Republican, said to be one of the best edited of the capitalist papers of today, makes an analysis of the war situation, considers the attitude of the Socialists on war, and exclaims: "Socialism never looked more attractive than now. It is able to prove beyond any possible controversy the cataclysmic capacity of the existing order for upsetting the civilized world. If Socialism can save mankind from this stupendous catastrophe, from this prodigious backslide into savagery; if Socialism can put an end to war, * * * let us have it, and quickly, too."

And for once we can heartily agree with a capitalist paper.

Even the great peace societies are beginning to recognize the part that Socialism and the Socialist movement are playing in the world-wide war upon war. Both the July and the August issues of the American Association for International Conciliation bulletins are devoted to this subject. The July number is on "War and the Interests of Labor." "Thousands and tens of thousands of Socialistic writers and lecturers," it says, "are devoting their energies to the spread of the doctrines of peace." The August issue, number 81, is written by George Allan England, who was the Socialist Party candidate for governor of Maine in 1912. The whole pamphlet, printed, published and circulated this non-socialist peace organization, is the message of Socialism and the Socialist Party on the subject of war, set forth without a reservation.

It is a great day for Socialism when its enemies begin to print and circulate its literature.

And everywhere today is a recognition of the great service the Socialist movement is rendering the world in this dread hour of human history.

A dispatch from France recently declared that it is being seriously proposed to change the name of one of the prominent streets of Paris, in order to name it in honor of the service rendered to humanity by Jean Jaures in his valiant struggle against the present war.

Verily, the times change.

Socialism is coming into its own.

EMANCIPATION OF THE WORKING CLASS—SOCIALIST PARTY—CLASS STRUGGLE. STATE PLATFORM ADOPTED BY MEMBERSHIP 1914

The Socialist Party of Ohio reaffirms its allegiance to the principles of International Socialism and to the platform of the Socialist Party of the United States, and declares itself to be the party of the working class with no other aim than to fight their present struggles and to win their final emancipation from the capitalist system.

The struggle between the workers who produce the wealth of the nation and their exploiters, the capitalist class, grows ever fiercer. Although modern machinery of production has made it possible to supply the necessities of life in abundance to all people, the capitalist class through its ownership of the means of production and distribution takes from the workers the major part of their product and leaves them scarcely enough to maintain life. The capitalists amass enormous fortunes while the workers lead lives of misery and poverty.

These conditions are the basis of the bitter class struggle which is manifesting itself on all sides. The reduction of the purchasing power of the wages of the workers and the consequent lowering of their standard of living, through the constant advance in the cost of living, has forced them into desperate struggles for more bread. In Paterson, N. J., among the hills of West Virginia, in the copper mines of Michigan, and in Colorado, the bitter class war resulting from the brutal oppression of the exploiters has been raging.

In all these struggles the workers have found that the organized power of government was in the hands of the master class. Members of the working class struggling for better wages and working conditions to enable them to live like human beings, together with their wives and children, have been brutally attacked, beaten and even murdered in large numbers and the hirelings of capitalism in control of the powers of government have aided their oppressors rather than furnishing them protection. This has been true alike of Republican, Democratic, Progressive and Non-Partisan office holders.

We maintain that the evils under which the workers suffer are the outcome of the capitalist system. Want and poverty, child labor, prostitution and unemployment are the fruits of capitalism and cannot be entirely abolished until the workers through their united political and industrial power wholly abolish private ownership of the means of production, and collectively assume the management of the industries and operate them for use and not for profit, for the benefit of all and not for the enrichment of a privileged class. In this the Socialist Party stands alone in the political field.

The Socialist Party declares that the evils of the present system can be relieved and their final disappearance hastened by social, political and economic measures which will have the effect of bettering the lives, strengthening the position of the workers and curbing the power of the dominant capitalist class. It supports the working class in all its struggles against the exploitation and oppression of the capitalists, and submits the following state program:

Woman Suffrage

We consider the struggle for equal economic and political rights for women secondary only to the struggle for the emancipation of the working class. Woman bears an equal share of the burdens of society and is entitled to all the rights and privileges which man possesses. We pledge to the women of the state our hearty support in their struggle for enfranchisement.

Industrial

We propose the enactment of an eight-hour day law; legalization of the right to strike, picket and boycott; abolition of the injunction as a means of breaking strikes and the establishment of trial by jury in all labor disputes; prohibition of the use of the military and police power to break strikes.

We pledge our candidates to work for the establishment of state ownership of the mines and their operation through the miners' organization under the principle of industrial democracy.

We will work for the establishment of state workshops to relieve unemployment.

Public Education

Recognizing the great part played by the public schools in the intellectual advancement of the working class, we avow ourselves the uncompromising friend of public education. To further increase the efficiency of the public school system we propose:

1. That all teachers of three years' experience be granted life certificates without examination. All other teachers to be allowed to take special examinations. All certificates to be hereafter granted to be granted for life and to be granted upon examination after completing a state normal school course or its equivalent.

Equal pay for equal work to men and women teachers.

2. Direct financial assistance by the state to young men and women of the working class who desire to enter the teaching profession, to assist them through high school and normal school courses.

3. The abolition of county and city boards of school examiners and the substitution of one state board to be elected by the teachers themselves.

4. Direct election by the teachers of the state school commissioner.

5. Free text-books and school supplies.

6. Home rule for cities in public school management.

Agriculture

All land owned by the state to be retained and other land brought into public ownership and use by reclamation, purchase, condemnation, taxation or otherwise. Such land to be organized into socially operated farms for the conduct of collective agricultural enterprises.

Such measures of relief as we may be able to force from capitalism are but a preparation of the workers to seize the whole power of government in order that they may thereby lay hold of the whole system of socialized industry and thus come into their rightful inheritance.

PERSON THROWN BACK IN JAIL LABOR EDITOR ARRESTED AGAIN ON EVE OF TRIAL FOR HIS LIFE

Prosecutor in County Owned by the Illinois Central Railroad Brings Charge of Criminal Libel Because Person called a Scab a Scab in his Paper the Strike Bulletin.

BONDS FIXED TO KEEP UNION MAN IN JAIL TO CRIPPLE HIM IN PREPARATION FOR MURDER TRIAL.

(By Floyd P. Gibbons)

(Special Correspondence)

Clinton, Ill., Sept. 7, 1914.—Anarchy is rife in De Witt County, Ill. It is the red high handed anarchy of the dollar demon.

They have thrown Carl Person back in jail. Today I saw him locked up in the same cell in De Witt County Jail where they had him for six months on a murder charge until a Chicago Judge ordered his release on bail.

The iron heel of the Illinois Central has trampled justice beyond all recognition in this corporation infested community. States Attorney Williams has gone insane with madness, he is serving the interest that is demanding the life of Carl Person.

Latest Outrage is Timed

Williams and the Illinois Central timed this latest outrage just when Person and his attorney, Frank Comerford were engaged in preparing the labor editor's defence on the murder charge, by which the railroad corporation hopes to end Person's life on the gallows.

Several weeks ago Person printed in the Strike Bulletin—the same paper that has cost the Illinois Central millions by its fearless exposures—the name of a man who was known to the union men of the Illinois Central, as a strike breaker for the road. In the Bulletin the man was called a scab, so far it has not been denied that he was a scab. No one has even questioned the rightfulness of the name being applied to Illinois Central Hirelings who betray union men by working in their places during the long strike of the shop men.

Flimsy Foundation for Charge

This is a flimsy foundation for a charge of Criminal Libe on which Person was arrested in Clinton and thrown back in the dinky cell in the De Witt county jail.

States Attorney Williams knows that Persons trial on the charge of murdering Toney Musser, ex-Chief of Police of Clinton, Ill., and chief strike breaker for the Illinois Central is less than two weeks off. Williams knew that Person, working all day long at his desk was working all night with Attorney Comerford on the preparation of the evidence for the defence.

The story of the so-called murder is known to every union man in America. Person was decoyed from his office by the gunman and almost beaten to death when the giant sprang upon the little editor from ambush. In self-defence Person shot and killed the Illinois Central slugger.

The prejudice against Person and the labor hatred in De Witt County was so intense that Attorney Comerford, by remarkable canvass of over 500 square miles in De Witt County secured oxer 500 affidavits of prejudice on which the courts were forced to grant a change of Venue, thereby taking the trial to an adjoining county.

Make Bail Prohibitive

The same prejudice has been taken into consideration by the prosecutor in arranging bail on the last charge so that it will be impossible to get Person out of jail. The prosecutor demands that the bonds in this case be signed by property owners of De Witt County. A large percentage of the property of the Illinois Central is owned by the Illinois Central. The remainder is under the control of the corporation interests which are far-reaching and all-powerful. No property owner of De Witt County dares to sign Carl Person's bond even if he wanted to.

This is the anarchy that is abroad in De Witt County where people are calling themselves Americans.

The truth about capitalism is it is founded upon a lie.
At end of life's commercial chase."
—F. W. TOWNSEND.

SOCIALIST PARTY AROUSING NATION

Chicago, September. —Realizing the tremendous opportunity it affords the American Socialist party, the national office in Chicago is exerting every effort to take advantage of the national crisis growing out of war situation.

Tons of literature have been sent to all parts of the nation for the supreme effort that was scheduled for Socialist Week, and that will continue with unabated vigor during September and October, up to the national elections, November 3rd.

"The Socialist party is making tremendous efforts to educate the American people on the causes of war and the insanity of war," says National Secretary, Walter Lanfersiek. "The historian of the future who lays the cause of the present war to the assassination of two people will not be read; he will be a laughing stock.

"At the bottom of it all is the economic cause, and it is necessary that all peoples recognize this fundamental cause before war will cease to lay his bloody hands on the progress of the race.

"In order to carry on this education, the Socialist party has printed 2,000,000 pieces of literature, and expects that before this war has ended, 10,000,000 will have been distributed.

"We are determined that the people shall be educated to the evils of human slaughter, because they accept ideas along this line now, with the whole of Europe aflame, whereas in times of peace they pay no heed.

"The National Congressional Campaign Committee will devote all the funds at its disposal to the anti-war agitation. By doing so, they are really performing a valuable social service, as their agitation may be the weight that turns the scale against war, in case this country should find itself in a position close to war.

"The local organizations of the party have been called upon to hold mass meetings and pass resolutions against war. In this manner public opinion will be aroused, public education will be promoted, and the possibility of war for this country will be lessened.

"There are 6,000 of these local bodies, and most of them will take action in this crucial time. We are demanding also that the government take over the food supply of the nation, in order to protect the people from those who would fleece them by high prices.

"Unless this is done, a few more multi-millionaires will be created by the war, and the people will pay the fiddler. Already the government is adopting Socialistic plans, several bills having been presented in Congress along the line suggested above.

"It is a peculiar fact that whenever the people are really in desperate straits they always turn to government agencies, knowing that they will be better served by their own elected officials than by private interests.

"As a result of the general agitation of human minds caused by the war, it is likely that some Socialists will be sent to Congress. The connection may not be evident to the casual observer, but if one could see the unusual activity of the Socialist headquarters, the reason can be understood. Literature is being distributed as never before. And greater interest is being shown all over the country.

"Of all the political parties, the Socialist party is the only one that has a message for the people against war."

ANOTHER WAR IMMINENT
Ultimatum Declared

Stomachs of America Propose to Fight Crown-Heads of Europe for Existence.

ASK HIM ABOUT IT

Now is a good time to ask what the old party candidates propose to do about the war being made upon the stomachs and backs of the men, women and children of America. What will the Republican, Democratic and Progressive nominees do about high prices if they are elected?

Will they do just what they have always done—nothing? Will they only pretend to "investigate" and "regulate"?

This question is much more important to the voters of this country than the question of "standpat" and "progressive." It comes much closer home than the question of "commissions."

The Socialists propose that the cities, states and nation shall establish markets and operate the lines of transportation to deliver goods to the people at a price that will insure good wages to those who have done the work on such goods, but will include no profit to idle owners.

Socialists propose that no supplies shall go to the war zone while they are needed in the peace zone.

Nobody denies that these measures will bring relief. Nobody claims that any others will meet the emergency. Yet the only political party that is pressing these measures is the Socialist party.

SOCIALISM AND INSPIRATION

By Thomas W. Williams

Socialism is the most inspiring thing in the world. It includes all that is good and eschews whatever is vicious and bad. It enforces every purpose making for the human uplift. It is not circumscribed by creed, nor embarrassed by organization. Socialism is bigger than party and far beyond the power of man to destroy.

Socialism is a world power. It is the constructive forces of the universe, impelling the "Next Step." Socialism is the dream of tomorrow, the stimulus of today. It takes the individual outside of himself and overwhelms him with the bigness of the whole. His corelation with all other things is discovered. His inter-woven interests with all other beings is revealed.

Socialism is the antithesis of selfishness and self-ascendency. It is altruism made sane and practical. It does not destroy hope. It materialises anticipation. It brings the goal within reach.

Socialism makes for better manhood. No man can work with Socialism who is not moved by high and lofty purpose. Its program is positive rather than negative. It displaces. It does not destroy. It creates; it does not annihilate. It rearranges; it brings things into relation. It reverses incentive.

Under Socialism, the overcoming passion of the part of the individual will be to contribute instead of to receive; to bestow, rather than to acquire. Honor will be the reward of service, not pelf or gain. Men will not be happy in the selfish holding of something to the exclusion of others, but their joy will be full in mutual possession and interest.

The Socialist party is organized to interpret Socialism. It is a voluntary organization, giving expression to the political phase. Socialism does not spring out of the Socialist party. It is not dependent on the dictum of a few men, nor is it circumscribed by party decrees. Socialism is a science. Socialists are merely students striving to master the science. The Socialist party IS because Socialism WAS.

Socialism is all embracing. It is inclusive, not exclusive. It is creative rather than destructive. It makes for peace rather than strife. It stands for love rather than hate. Tobacco stands between the world and reason. It is the one great star of hope in the dark night of capitalism. Socialism is the Universe working with man and man with the Universe.

WOMAN'S SUFFRAGE

Awake! ye daughters, fair and good,
Harken! ye sons so brave and true;
The time is ripe,—you know you should,
The cause is just, (just) we must Pursue.

—F. V. TOWNSEND.

"This is the road Ambition plies
For him who lives for self alone;
Beneath the clouds much misery rise,
Commercial greed we must bemoan.

What profit hath this constant grind
In search of Wealth's enchanted Throne?
Alas! too oft for ere we find
When journeys end we are alone.

While health we left along the way,
And friends forgotten in the race,
Which we regret in later day doesn't have to abolish capitalism to get it.

Judging from the war news, there seems to be quite a brawl in God's family.

THE BOY SCOUTS AGAIN

This paper has no sympathy with the military side of the boy scout movement. It detests militarism in whatever form it seeks to perpetuate its blasting hand of death on the peoples of this world. No difference how subtile may be the game being played by the master capitalists behind the gun to deceive even honest Christian workers we are against the game when we find out the game. When we find out the game we expose it in order that by knowing the truth, the truth might set men free.

The situation is briefly this: We oppose the boy scout movement because it makes the boy a more easy victim for the militia and army to tempt to join its ranks. Because to before the boy a taste of camp life with clare war setting, also to dress him in on the ier's uniform gives him the war spirit during the tender years when he should be taught the ideals of peace as urged by the Carpenter of Nazareth. Let us illustrate how the thing works by a story. There was once a hen which sat on a dozen eggs. They hatched and she used every means to bring them up as honored and respected chicks. But they wore the duck's uniform. One day the old hen and her "chicks" strolled down by the side of a stream. On this stream swam some big ducks. The little "chicks" noted that the ducks were clothed in a uniform like themselves. A short while and they joined with the big ducks to the consternation and chagrin of the old hen that hatched them. So with the boy scouts, they are taught good ideals but they wear the soldier's uniform. They are called scouts. When they grow older they will see the big soldiers marching the streets. Seeing they are dressed in all like the scouts and going to camp they will want to join. They will join. Then to the consternation of the fellows who hatched the brood they will find that all their clucking etc., etc., to call the boys back will do no good. You can't hatch a batch of young goslings and not expect them to turn into ducks or even geese.

BIG SHOW ON THE WAY

Pink Lemonade Day is to Come in Columbus Soon.

Fix your mouth for the taste of popcorn and red lemonade. Practice crossing your eyes, so you can see two ways at once. For on Monday, September 14, the Sells-Floto Circus and Buffalo Bill (himself) to appear in Columbus for a one day's engagement and—well you know the rest.

Double the size of previous years is the Sells-Floto Circus this year. A tent which will seat fourteen thousand persons; two stages, two great steel wild animal arenas, three ring and aerial devices never before used form a part of the completement of the circus. As for the attractions, they are many.

For instance, there is Zora, bravest woman in the world, and her three herds of performing elephants; Capt. Dutch Recardo, the man who trains lions with a buggy whip; more than one hundred acrobats, aerialists, contortionists and tumblers, forty clowns; beautiful, shapely equestriennes and many other features. Principal among which is Buffalo Bill himself, who will salute you from the saddle at each performance.

The parade of the Sells-Floto Circus is to come at 10:30 o'clock the morning of the show and will be led by Buffalo Bill himself.

The price this year? In spite of the fact that everything about the circus has been enlarged, one thing remains the same, the admission, which is still twenty-five cents.

STREET CHILDREN BECOME CRIMINALS

No Provision Made for Their Care or Enjoyment

ONE WAY TO STOP TROUBLE

"I have been looking over Mr. Edward M. Barrows' report upon the condition of the boy in the city streets," says Frank Crane in the New York Globe, "and I have a strong desire to go out and fight somebody. I am mad clear through. Twelve thousand children were arrested in one year in New York City. Their crime consisted in doing the only thing children can do, and the only thing they ought to do—namely, playing." Dr. Crane goes on to show that because we build cities without provision for the children, they are forced to use the streets as playgrounds, and the report in question by Edward M. Barrows of the People's Institute, New York, states that child crime begins with the attempt to play on the streets in violation of the law.

"This crime of children," says the report, "which begins as a purely legal fact, becomes, through normal evolution under street conditions, a moral evil and results in criminal types and criminal gangs." In commenting on this, Dr. Crane says: "You devote millions to police courts and prisons, while if you took care of the children in a decent way your prisons would not be needed. Take care of the children, and the grown-ups will take care of themselves. There is only one big, overtowering reform needed in this world and that is a reform that will lead us to train every child in the nation."

As the Juvenile Law of Ohio now stands, not only children, but adults are unable to know their rights and liberties. In fact many attorneys declare it is impossible to determine what acts are permissible and what are not, under this atrocious Juvenile monstrosity foisted upon the people of Ohio by an anarchist Judge for self-pelf.

A Judge who will deliver one of the most popular 14-year old boys (Fred Williams) over to a bunch of "Big Brutes" to man-handle in such a manner that if half the brutality was shown to a mad bull the whole gang of anarchists would be sent to the works for cruelty to animals.

When a Judge will send a father and mother to the works for drinking beer before their children, as Judge Black did the other day, and let the saloon keeper who sold the beer which was drank in front of the children go free; and a Judge who will send a boy, Harold Sands, to Lancaster Boys' Industrial School for buying whiskey, and refuse to prosecute the saloon keeper after the mother of the boy swore out the warrant, is worse than an anarchist, because, instead of opposing law he uses the law to oppress the helpless and protect the guilty. We are all entitled to our opinion as to why Judge Black does these things.

The truth about the Proletarian Revolution is that it will transfer the ruling powers from the hands of the Bourgeoise to the working class.

Colorado "Justice"

Denver, Colo., Sept. 5.—Colorado's courts and juries of INJUSTICE are at it again.

The Las Animas County Grand Jury, made up of mine corporation employes and tools, and three citizens has returned the expected verdict, placing the blame for all strike disorders on the striking coal miners and naming approximately 200 members of the union for murder.

The findings of the grand jury are another sample of the rottenness of Colorado's jury system. This body of disreputable citizens has been sitting in Trinidad for two months. During that time the jury refused to hear testimony regarding outrages committed by the operators' gunmen. They did not feel that the murder and cremation of nineteen men, women and children at Ludlow, April 20, 1914, was of sufficient importance to be investigated; they did not believe that the charge that the gunmen militia had piled many other bodies on a huge funeral pyre and burned them was worth investigating; they did not think that the slaughter of fifteen other strikers by the imported assassins of the Colorado coal barons merited their attention because they were employes of these same coal barons, because they had their orders as to what was to be investigated and who was to be indicted.

If Justice has been expelled from her other habitations, she should make Colorado her resting place, that is if she can bear the stench of the most putrid cesspool of injustice in the world.

When one considers the outrages of the strike, the findings of the Grand Jury become all the more ludicrous. Two hundred members of the United Mine Workers have been indicted for murder in Las Animas County, where mine thugs were killed when they attacked the strikers; one hundred and fifty strikers have been indicted in Boulder County for the murder of one man; one hundred and fifty men have been indicted in Fremont County for the murder of one man.

In other words 500 members of the United Mine Workers have been indicted for killing eleven men while protecting themselves and their families from the murderous onslaughts of an army of paid murderers imported by the operators.

Members of this same army of paid assassins deliberately and with premeditation shot down in cold blood or cremated 34 members of the United Mine Workers. Among these were eleven little children whose drawn and distorted roasted bodies were found in a hole after the massacre at Ludlow.

Not one of the one thousand thugs who perpetrated these outrages has been indicted.

Walter Belk, a notorious Baldwin-Felts thug, who was under indictment for murder in West Virginia came to Colorado in the summer of 1913. He was at once made a deputy sheriff. On August 16, he and George Belcher, another assassin, walked up to Gerald Lippaitt on the street and killed him.

Belk is under indictment for murder, but released on bond. This alleged murderer was one of the two "peace" officers who served the warrants for murder on the 200 strikers.

The truth about prostitution is that it goes hand in hand with low wages.

The truth about the capitalist class is that it has drowned the earth in the blood of Labor when it was necessary to perpetuate their rule.

The truth regarding electricians is that when they strike all the glitter of gold and splendor of the capitalist class can not light up the city.

THE CALL OF THE WILD

By Carlo

Backward, turn backward, O Time in your flight,
Make me a beast again, anxious to fight.
I am so tired of civilized life,
Fooling around with the children and wife;
Tired of acting on reason and sense
And longing for things that are far more intense.

Longing for battle and bullets and blood,
Longing for corpses strewn 'round in the mud;
Longing to dip into somebody's veins
And dig out his stomach or blow out his brains,
To rip him wide open and see the blood spout,
And hear the wild shriek when his inwards fall out.

Give me my fill of the glory of war;
Let me just wallow in puddles of gore;
With boys all around me just out of their teens,
Too young and too simple to know what it means,
Sent out to be slaughtered and turned into jam
By orders of some one who don't give a damm.

Backward, turn backward, O Time in you flight,
Make me a beast again, anxious to fight.
Let me kill some one—it don't matter who—
For God and for home and for Hullabaloo!
And when the time comes that I get my last swat—
Oh, T'llwithallthat! I'm a patriot—What?

SOCIALIST ENCAMPMENTS ATTRACT LARGE CROWDS

The largest attendance which has ever been recorded by any of the Socialist encampments took place at Elk City, Okla. Nine thousand persons listened to 13 Socialist speakers at nine meetings during the three days. "We are holding 26 of these encampments in the Seventh Congressional District of Oklahoma," writes T. H. McLemore. "I feel sure that we will carry this district."

Everywhere this year come reports of the most enthusiastic meetings. In this county, double the attendance over other years.

SOCIALISTS CARRY CITY OF NAPLES

Naples, Italy—A few days before the European war broke out, a municipal election was held in Naples, Italy. The Socialists and their Republican allies completely swept out the office the monarchial and reactionary politicians. Following so close upon the Socialist victories in Milan, Ravanna and other cities, it is no wonder that the king hesitated to plunge into the general war. The ruling class, despite the fact that they controlled the army, feared that a revolution might be precipitated at once.

From the above it can easily be seen WHY was WAR declared. The capitalist governments the world around are becoming desperate at the sweeping advance of Socialism. That Germany declared war so hastily was not because her integrity had been insulted, but because at the next election the Socialists would most surely have swept the Empire, controlled the government, seized the guns and packed them all away in some basement or made them into plow shares and pruning hooks as per prophecy a la Bible. The Socialists may capture the government at the next election anyway.

CAPITALISTS CALL FOR TROOPS

Butte, Mont., Sept. —Pointing out that the Socialist administration is fully capable of enforcing law and maintaining order, Lewis J. Duncan, Socialist mayor of Butte, has issued a statement charging that the troops were sent here at the behest of the Amalgamated Copper Co. The statement by Mayor Duncan is as follows:

By Mayor Lewis J. Duncan.

The Governor of Montana is sending troops into Butte at the behest of the Amalgamated Copper Company and the business satellites, and despite the assurance that the Socialist administration is able to enforce law and order. Life and property are not in jeopardy and the civil processes are uninterrupted.

There is nothing in the action of the new union of the mine workers that justifies this step. This is evidently a desperate recourse of the employers to save the corrupt control of the local union of the Western Federation of Miners, to drive the Socialist voters out of the county and save the democratic machine.

This is an attempt to discredit the Socialist administration throughout the state and to prevent the success of workmen's compensation and the initiative. The Amalgamated press is deceiving the people. The democratic governor is being used for capitalistic purposes.

CALIFORNIA STARVING WAR

San Francisco, Calif., Sept.—Fifty meetings have already been held in San Francisco and Oakland in the California campaign being conducted by J. Stitt Wilson, national executive committeeman of the Socialist Party and former mayor of Berkeley, to "STARVE THE WAR AND FEED AMERICA!"

Wilson is being aided in this campaign by his son, Gladstone, and by Walter Thomas Mills, the noted Socialist orator who has only recently returned to this country from Australia. Numerous petitions are being circulated, to be made part of a "MONSTER PEOPLE'S PETITION," at the head of which is carried the motion put by Wilson to the Socialist party national executive committee on the present crisis confronting the nation. This motion as adopted reads as follows:

"That the national executive committee take the following action immediately and call all the locals of the party to hold mass meetings to protest arbitrary price of foodstuffs and demand congress to establish food departments.

"Whereas, the speculators are arbitrarily and unnecessarily raising the prices of the necessities of life, and

"Whereas, The United States government should conserve and protect the interests of the producers and consumers as against these speculators who are robbing the people, multitudes of whom are already in dire need;

"Therefore, We hereby petition the president and congress of the United States to establish immediately supply depots in the strategic industrial and agricultural centers of the nation for the purpose of maintaining a just market for the producers and for the purchase of food products and for the sale of these necessities direct to the people."

A People's Food Supply Petition headquarters has been established at 240 Pacific Building, San Francisco, to which all the individual petitions are sent after they have been filled with the names, addresses and occupations of the signers.

It is estimated that 30,000 people have already been reached and that 30,000 signatures have been secured. The California daily press is taking an active interest in the campaign, in many instances publishing the Socialist petition.

The campaign has been endorsed by the California Socialist Party state executive committee and the meetings will continue. Mills will continue the agitation in the San Francisco Bay District while Wilson and his son will start over the state in an automobile campaign.

"The people are receptive and enthusiastic," declares Wilson. "One petition secured is ten feet long. It is full of signatures. This is the supreme move of the hour. This petition should be pushed from the national office of the Socialist party and every local in the nation should duplicate the work that is being done in California."

Other state organizations of the Socialist party are already taking an active interest in the work being done in California and will immediately get in line for a national effort.

MONTANA SUFFRAGISTS CONFIDENT OF WINNING

Butte, Mont., Sept. 6—That woman suffrage will carry by two to one when the constitutional amendment providing for equal suffrage is put before the voters of Montana at the November election, is the prediction made by the women at the head of the suffrage movement here. In the opinion of chairmen of political parties this estimate is somewhat high, but they admit that the amendment is likely to carry by a big majority.

Headed by Jeanette Rankin, former field secretary of the National Suffrage Association, the women of Montana are conducting a whirlwind campaign. Miss Rankin resigned her position as field secretary of the national organization in New York last winter to accept the chairmanship of the Montana Equal Suffrage Association.

The Socialist party, which controls the city administration, stands solidly behind the women in their fight for suffrage. Socialist leaders believe they will greatly increase the strength of their party if women have the right to vote. In fact, there is little opposition to woman suffrage in any part of the State. Several local women have banded themselves together in the Butte Anti-Suffrage Association and have opened their campaign. Prominent suffragists will invade the state before election. Most prominent will be Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, President of the National Suffrage Association.

Not only will Montana give her women the vote this year by the help of the Socialists, but other states, including Ohio, will do likewise and in every instance victory will be because the Socialist party has lent its powerful press and lecture force to the movement. Have you noticed the whole-heartedness of the Socialists for woman's rights and the half-hearted apologetic speeches of others?

WOMEN ON PICKET DUTY IN COLORADO

By Helen Schloss.

Ludlow, Colo., Sept. —Women in the strikers' colony have become pickets. They are already doing valuable work. One Sunday evening recently, as the train was pulling in, a group of women appeared at the station to meet it. They had sashes across their chests bearing the insignia, "WOMEN'S UNION PICKET SQUAD."

The soldiers at the station were dumbfounded and did not know what to make of us. We were not molested that evening, and we called a scab a scab. We pleaded with the scabs not to go into the mines and take their brothers' jobs. We informed them of the danger in the mines with unskilled hands.

We kept up our arrogant picketing for two trains, but when the third arrived we were informed that we would not be allowed at the depot.

Major Cable, of the federal troops, who is a southern gentleman, told us that he hated to see women in the capacity of pickets, and that perhaps the scabs might insult us, and that he, as a soldier would hate to see us insulted. The gentleman pleaded with us, but we stood on our grounds of constitutional rights.

We informed the major that we would return to the depot. He then informed us that we would be arrested and taken before the justice of peace. After much argument, and after we tried to show him what picketing meant, he said that we might return to the depot providing we did not call any names, such as scabs, which seemed to be very offensive to the gentleman.

One Saturday evening, after the train pulled out, and the scabs were waiting in the hacks for the soldiers to take their names, and while the pickets were standing near to listen, we were told to move.

We did move, but not enough to suit the major. "Soldiers," he shouted, "remove the women." The soldiers surrounded us like a pack of hounds, and tried to remove us from the platform. But, alas, they were mistaken, they thought perhaps we would be so frightened that we would run back to the tent colony. But we did not move. One husky soldier grabbed me and dragged me from the platform, and I had a toss and tumble with him. Mrs. Dominiske took hold of a post and stuck to it with all her strength. Mrs. Bartalotti had her face slapped.

For a few minutes the shrill voices of women were penetrating the air. All the excited women talked at once, and the soldiers used more brute force. The men of the wives were standing opposite, and it is a wonder to me that the men had presence of mind enough not to interfere. We would have had blood shed perhaps if it were not for the good behavior of our men. It was a tactless move on the part of the federals, and it looked as if they were favoring the mine owners.

The federals have allowed the mines to be filled with scabs. Quietly, and in small groups, they allow the scabs to come in. If the scab gives a convincing story they allow him to come in. Most of the scabs learn their stories before they come in.

The federal soldiers stand for the same thing as the militia did, namely to protect private property and to break the back bone of the strike. The federal soldiers have done this in a more gentlemanly way, which is perhaps more deadly. The federals maintain that they are impartial, that they are not here to help the strikers or the mine owners, but any one with a grain of common sense will see where the federal soldiers stand, and whose interests they represent.

A delegation of women went to Trinidad from Ludlow, to have an interview with Colonel Lockett. The Colonel refused to see us, but we had an interview with his spokesman, Major Rockwell, and another Major.

The gentlemen advised us not to go picketing, and if we did not follow his advice, we would have to take the consequence. The women answered that they had to take a part in this strike, that their husbands' fight was their fight, and that side by side they would struggle with the men.

The militia is being reorganized under the direction of the Federals, and Major Rockwell informed me that they will be glad to be released.

They have performed their duty by allowing all the scabs into the mines, and now they are ready to go, to allow the militia to do more dirty work.

The strikers stand pat, and say they will never return to work, until the strike is settled. They are ready to remain out of the mines another year if necessary.

While all the countries in Europe are at each others' throats, civil war is pending in the state of Colorado. We Socialists must never lose sight of the main issue.

The Socialists here are having a hard fight to make ends meet. We have no money and not many workers, and we appeal to the Socialists of this country to aid this weak district. The Socialists are a pack of undesirables here. The laws have been in favor of the mine owners, and the men who tried to organize had the choice of going down the canyon, or leave. The reader will understand that if the unionists had such a hard struggle for life, how the Socialists fare in such a community.

We need organizers and workers, and we need money. Send your mites to A. Marians, Pine Street, Trinidad, Colorado.

The Socialists must elect a sheriff this fall.—Socialist candidate Wilson, who is a miner on strike.

IN HEAVEN WE WIN

By W. C. Bates.

They may call us anarchists if they choose;
They who in malice would rend our clothes;
But day unto day we'll sing of tyrants,
Who lash young boys—jail their parents.

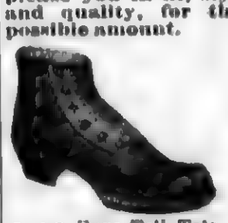
In fierce and scathing thoughts of brain,
We'll flay hypocrites—Ohio to Maine
Of enforced whores we'll speak if need,
Driven to her shame for want of feed.

We'll say vile things of the accursed man,
Who wrought female ruin—yet stalks the lan';
With cutting words that smart and grind,
We'll search them out—their crime unwind.

We'll rave at preacher and at his church,
And never cease our desperate search;
For the man upon the "Sacred Bench"
Who joins with rogues in unlawful "fence."

We'll chastise courts and rail at flags,
Whose power protect thugs and money-bags;
But oppress the weak, helpless and poor,
And turn them hungry from bounteous door.

We'll condemn a world where only lust is,
We'll spit upon Magistrates of Injustice.
If needs we'll stand in fellowship with self,
Conscious that we are not linked to pelf.



In words at least we'll flay hip and thigh,
None can affright, no money can buy.
For we are condemned of no earthly sin
If we do lose in court—In Heaven we win.

In a week or two we will realize that it is hell to be patriotic. Funny a worker's head is so hard that you have to use dynamite and machine guns to blow patriotism out and brotherhood in.

THE SOCIALIST

A Weekly Newspaper Without a Muzzle

Vol. IV Whole No. 195 COLUMBUS, OHIO, SEPT. 19, 1914 Price, 2 Cents per Copy

THIS PAPER is published in the interest of the working class. If you think it is worthy of your support, support it by getting new subscribers. If you don't like it, don't knock. We are making it as good as you will allow. Whenever the workers support their own press as valiantly as they do the master's press we will be able to do really big things for the emancipation of the workers. In the meantime, we are forging ahead conscious of the fact that our cause is just, that right will finally triumph, and the workers step forth emancipated from the age-long servitude to a robber, master class.

CURSE AND CRUSH CAPITALISM

While this paper is the first to actually say, curse and crush capitalism, not only has all the Socialist and Labor publications said so in substance, but many papers heretofore opposed to labor interests are boldly saying, if Socialism stands for PEACE and AGAINST WAR, let us have it, and that quick. Of course we do not ask any one to curse by using profanity. That is ungentlemanly and of no avail. What we want you to do is to put the mark of disapproval upon capitalism. Capitalism, that unholy system of greed, fostered and maintained by men of unscrupulous principles, who for gain to themselves would sell your child and mine into wage-slavery—yes, even into white slavery—for profits. That system which renders it not only probable but most likely that even the children of those profiting by the grasping system will fall prey to its ravishing maw.

Curse and crush capitalism, will be the world rallying cry as soon as the world awakes to the awful deception practiced upon all its peoples by the crown-heads now plunging nation after nation into Hell itself.

Curse and crush capitalism will be the slogan with the German people as soon as they learn the truth about the war declared by Emperor of Germany. Sad to say, the people of Germany were kept so completely in the dark by the censored press of Germany that they do not to this day know the truth. They know that under the confederation of the several countries comprising the German Empire, the King of Prussia is the Emperor of all Germany and that the Emperor has no right to declare WAR only in DEFENSE of her possessions. That the Emperor had absolutely no right to declare an OFFENSIVE WAR under her articles of confederation.

The Kaiser should have convened Parliament and addressed his communications to that body and asked it to declare war if that was advisable or necessary. That would have been not only proper, but constitutional; but the impetuous Wilhelm, craved war, his ambition nurtured for a quarter of a century, to be the Emperor of all Europe would not delay the time necessary for Parliament to act. He could safely depend upon the members of the Bundesiat (corresponding to our Senate), but the Reichstag (corresponding to our House of Representatives he was not so sure of, in fact he knew he could not rely upon. That body contains 110 Socialist members, or one-third the total number and much more than one-third in intelligence and patriotism. These 110 Socialist members, with others, were sure to oppose war in any form, or for any cause. The Emperor wanted war. So the public press was censored and the people told that Russia and France had declared war on Germany. It was not true. Russia and France have not to this day declared war on Germany. Germany issued her ultimatum against France and Russia as she did against England and Japan, and set the day for their acceptance. Neither of these nations accepted the ultimatum of Germany before the appointed time, but refused to reply and refused to declare war. These things were all acts of OFFENSIVE WARFARE on the part of Germany and the Emperor had no constitutional right to issue these ultimati except by the advice and consent of the legislative department. But the Emperor wanted war. He wanted it quick. Why? The WHY is the interesting part of this article. Let me tell you the why from a Socialist's viewpoint.

In 1912 the Socialists cast 4,500,000 votes in Germany. That was one-third the total citizenship of Germany, but not one-third the electorate. You may not know, but it is a fact that in Germany they WATER the electorate as we WATER STOCK in America. To explain. Each citizen gets one vote and some gets more than one. Who would you guess got the watered votes? The wealthy class of course. If a citizen possessed a certain amount of property he got a certain number of votes, and if he owned property in more than one province, he could vote in each province, and by this watering of electorate, the capitalist class has held the government of Germany. Since 1912 the people have flocked to the Socialist party in such numbers that the Emperor and in fact the crown-heads of all Europe have viewed its increase with alarm.

They reason for Germany to go to Socialism would mean the Beginning of the Ending of Capitalism. For should the Socialists capture Germany at the next election, as they surely would have done had there been no war (and possibly even during or after the war) then the armaments and implements of death would be in the hands of the Socialists who would dismantle the battleships, lock up the guns and DECLARE PEACE to all nations in which the red flag of brotherhood floated. Glorious declaration, for every nation has had her Red Flag of Peace floating over the heads of our comrades in peace..

The Emperor of Germany knew all these things and that they all meant to CURSE AND CRUSH CAPITALISM the mainstay of Monarchial Governments, and he became desperate and took a long chance. Risked deceiving his people. Risked war with all Europe and possibly the world. Risked everything, and in our opinion everything is gone and not only Germany, but Europe will awake after the slumbers from the strife and fatigue of war only to find a United States of Europe well on the way to the co-operative commonwealth—Socialism.

Now, as to the predicament of the German Army. The Kaiser planned to strike quick before Socialists the world over could get their powerful press into action. To strike decisive before the nation spotted could mobilize her forces, crush the enemy, France, most hated of all, at one fell swoop and beat a hasty retreat and head off the clumsy, slow moving Russians at the border line. The Emperor planned without reckoning with his antagonists.

To the plucky little nation of Belgium, mostly Socialists, is due great credit for holding up the vast German army at Liege and Brussels for days until France and England could get the trend of events, and they and Russia get into action. Had Germany met no resistance in Belgium, France would have been crushed and the German army today, perhaps, been pursuing the Russian army towards Petrograd (St. Petersburg). There is many a plan goes amiss in war, as in love, and today the German army is losing in France and Austria-Hungary. The mighty triple alliance forces are driving the German forces out of France, and the ponderous Russian army is pressing down upon Berlin. There is no adequate resisting forces left in Germany, and Berlin is already lost to the Russian Czar. To us the German army will be crushed within thirty days and with it will be CRUSHED THE CURSE OF CAPITALISM.

From that day all Germany and Europe will curse the accursed war and the accursed system which inspired war in which so many relatives murdered relatives, church brothers murdered church brothers, fraternal brothers murdered fraternal brothers, etc., etc.

No wonder Pope Pius X died of grief to see Catholics of Germany murder Catholics of France, Catholics of Russia murder Catholics of Austria.

Say, why don't some of you Protestant Priests die of broken hearts because Protestants of England and France are murdering Protestants of Germany?

Why? Why, because you have not enough humanity in your hearts to break an egg-shell.

What in the name of God are you preachers of Columbus doing anyway, about this war? Are you just waiting until Oct. 4th to pray? By that time it will all be over and the Socialists will have put one over on you. We have prayed by our doings for world-wide peace and not for the success of "Our Armies" because that success would mean that we were the greatest and most diabolical murderers of the world murderers—mongers.

Our feelings for peace are so determined that we want to fight for peace, and we want to fight the moral coward who has not the courage to declare for peace until the war is over. Come on, you Reverend Cowards, and do battle for peace, while the war is on!

ROOSEVELT FLUNKS ON PROGRESS

Progressive Party Summersaults

Some may remember that "Teddy" the "Terrible" once lived and at one time, about two years ago, deliberately confiscated some twenty planks of the Socialist platform and called it "Progressive party." The Socialists at the time accused "Big Teeth" of his confiscation of their property, well knowing that Socialists did not believe in confiscation but in "restoration" of their stolen property. This charge of theft and demand for restoration of the confiscated goods by the Socialists has been so persistent that "Teddy's" Progressive party, while put forth to head off the spread of Socialism, proved a boomerang and came back with a mighty force of a gain of 118 per cent. over the previous vote.

This SMASH of the "Progressives'" calculations has taken all the snap out of the "Progressive Party" and all those stolen planks also and the Progressive party of New York says it was "bad politics" to appropriate any of the tenets of Socialism, as that was an indorsement of so much of their programme and only served to arouse confidence in the Socialist philosophy. So in New York the edict has gone forth that Socialism is not in any form or manner to be mentioned and the whole fight of the "Progressives" is to be on Barnes and Murphy and the "Progressives" have really become "Stand Pats," or worse still, reactionaries.

To the now "Reactionary Progressives" of New York all things are chargeable to Barnes and Murphy. The war is charged to Barnes and Murphy. The high prices are charged to Barnes and Murphy, etc., etc.

"The first need is to get back into the hands of the people of the state the power over their own political and governmental affairs," says a passage in their platform; which really means put the only real boss back into power—the ex-governor, who signed the "Alton Grab Bill" through which savings banks of their state lost eight millions of dollars; who called out the state militia to force men to work ten hours instead of the legal day of eight hours on aqueduct work; who vetoed the Ford Franchise Tax bill at the regular session, but on orders from Boss Platt reconvened the Legislature and signed the same measure; who appointed the "wicked Boss Barnes" surveyor of Albany; who threatened to jail Boss Aldridge for "misappropriating" canal money and afterward helped him to a $6,000 job.

The ex-President who, while threatening "malefactors of great wealth" with imprisonment, accepted a $260,000 campaign contribution from his "Practical" man Harriman; whose campaign as a Progressive was financed by George W. Perkins of insurance scandal fame; whose entire administration was marked by turmoil and hypocrisy, by a panic of two years' duration; who denied federal employes the right of petition; who was on the most intimate terms with all disreputable bosses in the country as long as they were "with him."

No, gentlemen of the retrogressive party; your political stunt will not deceive the gradually awakening working class. They want none of your "political freedom," of the Roosevelt variety; none of your "industrial and social justice" of the brand of Perkins whose women employees do men's work in unsanitary surroundings for a wretched subsistence; whose steel workers must work twelve hours a day and seven days a week for the bare animal nourishment. They want none of your spurious reform; THEY WANT REVOLUTION. THEY WANT TO OWN THEIR JOBS.

They want to own the government themselves instead of entrusting their affairs to a group of self-chosen leaders, who under various masks for generations have betrayed the workers into the voracious claws of the Rockefellers, the Morgans, the National Manufacturers' Association, the Associated Industries and exploiters generally.

THEY WANT TO OWN THE FOOD SUPPLY OF THE NATION; THEY WANT TO KEEP WHAT THEIR LABOR HAS PRODUCED.

They HERE and NOW serve notice upon you that they will vote for the collective ownership of all means of production and distribution, and their democratic management.

DOWN WITH ALL BOSSES; including the most intolerant, egotistical, fraudulent Roosevelt.

TO MINISTERS

Preachers, give heed, in the face of nation-wide suffering on the part of working people, who are oppressed by anarchistic capitalism and of multitude of unemployed men who suffer want and unspeakable loneliness and discouragement, the preacher is a fool or hypocrite unworthy to stand in any pulpit, dedicated to Jesus the carpenter, who continues to drivel about abstract principles and esthetic ideas concering this life or the next and neglects to lift his voice fearlessly and plainly against the infamous, inhuman conditions under which the workers suffer. "Ministers who remain silent, or speak softly, timidly, tentatively about such conditions as now prevail in America, falsely declaring peace," where peace is incompatible with manhood, deserve the contempt which is increasing at an alarming rate among the working people towards the clergy. A preacher should either stand with Jesus and the working people, or quit the pulpit for the good of true religion and humanity.

E. B. WHARTON.

Why should we produce thirteen times what the people did one hundred years ago and yet be no better off?

CHILD LABOR IN GERMANY

There are 18,214 children under fourteen years, of whom 7,434 are boys employed in mills and factories in Germany, according to the latest official returns. The number of children between the ages of fourteen and sixteen employed in 110,000 German mills and factories is 505,000, of whom 333,000 are boys. The greater number of little boys are found in metal and machine shops and in tertile factories. The greatest number of little girls are found in textile and clothing factories.

Why should we produce food enough for ten families and have barely enough for one?

Why should we be afraid the Socialists will change things when it is a change we want?

Why should we believe Socialists are against religion when they are working harder than the churches to abolish war and poverty, and establish industrial righteousness?

Why should we believe the old parties are separate organizations when Wall Street is financing every one of them?

MILITIA AT BUTTE—NOTHING TO DO

Military Rule Joke; "Amalgamated" Fears Socialist Strength

CENSOR RULES IN BUTTE

Editor's Note.—In an effort to secure news concerning the Butte situation for readers of The American Socialist, the editor wrote Mayor Lewis J. Duncan. Conditions existing under the rule of the military censor are best told in Duncan's own words: "As editor of the Montana Socialist and the Butte Socialist, I am under military censorship not to send out news stories unless they are first submitted to the censor. I shall be unable therefore to comply with your request for weekly news about the Butte situation while this military occupancy continues." The following excellent account, however, of the latest developments in Butte has been secured by The American Socialist:

The Montana State Guard, 600 of them, are in Butte. There is nothing for them to do, except to go through the motions of military occupancy of a country.

They have taken possession of the Court House for regimental headquarters, and military courts have been substituted for civil tribunals.

Dentist Commands Militia.

Major Dan J. Donohue is in command. In civil life, Major Donohue is a dentist. He is also a politician of the Democratic type. He was the author and sponsor for the Donohue militia bill enacted by the state Legislature in 1911, and killed by referendum to the people, in the election of 1912, after a vigorous campaign by the forces of organized labor and the Socialist party.

There is a deep and subtle political significance back of all this. A workmen's compensation bill will be an initiative measure submitted to the people of Montana in the election this fall. If the people enact this bill, it will cost the Amalgamated Company fully a half a million dollars more annually than they pay at the present time for personal injuries in their mines.

If the voting population of Montana can be convinced that the miners of Butte are a law breaking and anarchistic lot, and that the Socialist administration of the city of Butte is spinelessly submitting to or is directly encouraging lawless and anarchistic miners, it will go far towards defeating the initiative measures by the farmer and middle class vote of this state.

Socialists Win Favor.

Besides this, is the Silver Bow County election. The Socialist administration of Butte has steadily won public favor here and there is unquestionably a strong tide of public sentiment in favor of the Socialist nominees for county officers and legislators.

Thus far, all attempts to make serious division among the working class voters of this county have failed. If now, the middle class sympathetic voters can be made to believe that the Socialists are responsible for disorder and that the city is on the verge of anarchy, or, on the other hand, if some sort of condition can be brought about, to give apparent justification to deport a

WHO'S THE COWARD?

There is one word that even those who pretend to be brave are terribly afraid of, and that word is "coward."

Many a man has gone to his death for fear of the taunt of that word.

Otherwise sensible men have done the most idiotic and foolish things to please more idiotic and foolish people who have flung that word out for the purpose of urging them to their death.

Airmen have been known to make their last flight in a wind which meant certain death rather than the pressure of the assembled audience when the word "coward" was mentioned.

Brave men have sacrificed their lives unnecessarily at sea for fear that some poor fool might fling out that distasteful word, "coward."

Soldiers, athletes and workingmen have died by the millions for fear of that death-luring curse of a word "coward."

And like everything else, the word "coward" is used by those who profit by it as a means to further their ends. And of all the cowards the capitalist exploiters are the most horrible examples.

How many of the men who are now fighting in the present battles would sacrifice their lives so foolishly and wantonly if they had not the fear that some one would call them "coward"?

How many of the big men of the capitalist class who would have the deserter shot down as a coward are now at the front within the reach of shot or shell?

Why is it that millions of men who are called brave heroes permit a few measley kings and capitalists to order them to the battlefield and kill millions of other men against whom they have no grievance, and yet they are so cowardly that not one out of all the armies dare to strike a blow at one of the few who are responsible for all the bloodshed?

No one is questioning the bravery of any of the kings, emperors or the czar, because they are not at the front of the battle line, but are safe and securely protected.

No one is condemning the Rothschilds and the other bankers for supplying the money without which the war could not go on.

But let some poor fellow who sees certain death staring him in the face, and remembering his loved ones at home, run away that he might live to protect them from the vultures whom he knows are looking for such prey, and he is dubbed a "coward."

Away with such rot, fellow workers; the enemy is he who sends us to our death; the enemy is he who robs our families of their support.

Show us the "brave" men of the capitalist class who declare the wars; they are the real cowards.

Look out for the word "coward." The enemy uses it as a ruse to lure you to your own destruction.

WHAT DIFFERENCE DOES IT MAKE TO THE WAGE-EARNERS?

The early returns indicated that Guggenheim's man "Friday," one Samuel D. Nicholson, Republican candidate for Governor of Colorado, was elected over Rockefeller's candidate. Betting at odds of 2 to 1 are offered that Guggenheim's man Nicholson will defeat the Democratic candidate, T. M. Patterson. Well, what difference does it make to the working class, especially at Ludlow, Colo., they may as well be shot and burned by a Guggenheim Republican as a Rockefeller Republican or a Demo.-Rep.-Guggenfeller Progressive.

It is reported that prohibition, the coal strike and "gunmen" are to be the chief issues in the campaign. From our viewpoint it matters little what the issues are when, if reports are true, the voting booths are set up on coal company property and all strikers and sympathizers are forbidden to transgress upon the company property to get to the voting booths, and Prof. Woodrow Wilson, said to be President of the United States, saw to it that the Federal troops are withdrawn in time to permit such election debaucheries. Not long since Northern politicians raved because the colored man of the South was intimidated and not allowed to vote. But it was never charged that such dastardly deeds as is reported about Colorado's elections was ever resorted to. Gov. Ammons and his gunmen have outdone the most vitriolic haters of "niggers" of the South.

Under such conditions Socialism should advance by leaps and bounds.

BANK ROBBERY

One of the most significant and encouraging reports from the seat of war is the statement that if the Kaiser—or Germany, which you will—cannot get the $140,000,000 he has levied on Belgium, or if England tries to starve Germany out, he will take it out of the banks of the countries his army has invaded. A similar report is in circulation as to the intentions of the Czar in East Prussia and Galicia. Both will turn bank robbers if they can't get the necessary loot any other way.

We sincerely hope that both the parties on whom the contribution is levied will remain obdurate and force the robbers to carry out their alleged design. We have never robbed a bank ourselves, but we have not the slightest objection to seeing them do it.

Nothing would bring the capitalistic system to and end sooner than that, for the bank is perhaps the most sacred capitalist institution extant. Such a proceeding would sweep away the very last bulwark of capitalist private property, and probably destroy that institution beyond repair.

Forty-four years ago, when the Communards had control of Paris and were being denounced all over Europe as confiscators, they touched not one cent of the immense hoards of gold in the Paris banks, though with that money they could have immeasurably protracted their defense or perhaps won out. But in leaving it untouched, they possibly lacked sense more than courage.

However, the Kaiser is a courageous man, and if driven to extremity for cash he would probably not stop at confiscating the contents of the Ark of the Capitalistic Covenant, that Holy of Holies, the Bank. He has already taken the savings of the German working people, and his invading army has naturally levied on the country it has passed through, and now he threatens the banks themselves, the sacrosanct property of the great capitalists, the first and greatest guarantee of the continuance of the capitalist system. Knowing what he was capable of, the Paris bankers removed their stores of gold out of his reach in time, but he caught the Belgians before they could get the stuff away.

It is a most encouraging symptom, this projected bank robbery, and we certainly wish Bill Sikes Hohenzollern the best possible luck in cracking these financial cribs. Until this time, we Socialists had the name of being the only and original confiscators, but now we can sit back and watch a much more skilled expert than ourselves busting the bank safes and getting away with the loot. And we know that he has no lack of high explosives for the purpose also.

If, as we have previously suggested, Bill has been financially framed up by the European bankers, this would be a first-class revenge upon them, and a few more checks on the field and a few less to carry on the war would undoubtedly enable him to get up nerve sufficient for the job.

It is all very well for the "allies" to make pacts never to stop until they have put His Imperial Majesty down and out, but the latter may prove a sort of Samson, who, in a blind rage, may bring down the pillars of the entire capitalist temple around the ears of the Philistines who have framed him up. It isn't a question of morality but of necessity, and between banker and bank robber the difference is perhaps mainly one of degree.

Get the money, Wilhelm! Get it honestly if you can, but get the money! Even if you have to break into a whole chain of banks to do it! You need it too badly to stand on any niceties about "confiscation." What is a bank or two, or twenty, for that matter, when the "very existence of Germany is at stake"? Go to it, old man! It's as safe as the bank—when it's in your possession. We don't need to incite you to "criminal action," but if they want to have it that way, let them make the most of it. When you have the money you can ask them "what they are going to do about it." European capitalism has done you dirt anyhow, and you are perfectly right to hand them a counter smash. On to Paris, and Brussels, and London, and Petrograd! But don't forget to call on the bank while visiting them.

Come to think about it robbery of those who DO NOT EARN a living in money banks is no more dishonorable than robbery of those who DO EARN a living in "coal banks, gravel banks," etc.

Came to think again it is just as honorable to take a bank's money as it is to take a mother's son. Just as patriotic to confiscate a BANK as to confiscate a SOUL. To confiscate the property of an enemy is more respectable than to confiscate the services and means of life of a husband or an only son.

Talk about confiscation by Socialists. If that were true they have never been confiscators of millions of lives used as common fodder in a hellish, senseless war declared for the express purpose of preventing the SPREAD OF SOCIALISM.

THE SHORTAGE OF FUNDS

Sound Argument, and Applies to Columbus, Too

Dayton is facing a shortage of income for this year amounting to about $60,000, and the city officials are cutting things right and left, hoping to make their income cover the necessary expenses.

The whole trouble is that the city of Dayton conducts all the business of the city that is an expense; and from which no revenue is derived except by taxation, and allows private individuals to conduct all the business of the city from which a revenue is derived and allows them to pocket the proceeds.

Just suppose that you would go to the manager of any big store in Dayton and make a proposition to him that you would pay all the expenses of running the store, such as clerk hire, rent, light, heat, janitor service, and every expense necessary to conduct the business, and then you would allow him to stand at the cash register and pocket all money that came in: How long would you run the store?

That is just what Dayton is doing today. It says to private individuals: We will pay all the expenses of the upkeep of the city, such as the police department, the fire department, the street department, and the governing department, and you gentlemen may use the streets for your car lines; you may use the streets for your telephone and electric light poles, and, in fact, you may run the gas plant, the electric light plant, the telephone company and the street car lines, and all you make from them in profit you may keep for yourselves. We will pay all the expenses of running the city.

How long can Dayton keep up with such business methods?

Suppose Dayton would take over these public necessities, such as the car lines, the telephones, the electric light plant and the gas plant, and would receive this profit which now goes into the pockets of private individuals. Suppose Dayton received $245,000 per year from the gas company; $428,000 per year from the city railway; thousands from the other car lines; $1,000,000 per year from the electric light company, then don't you think there would be plenty of money to pay the running expenses of the city, build parks and playgrounds for our children; clean our streets; pay our policemen and firemen good wages for their long hours and hard work; collect our garbage, and, in fact, run the city as it should be run?

This is the proposition before you: Shall the city conduct all the activities of the city from which no revenue is derived and then allow private individuals to conduct all the activities of the city in which there is a profit?

The issue is clear cut.

Should this be done in Columbus, and it may in the near future, there would be plenty of funds to employ all men seeking employment instead of laying them off at beginning of winter with food prices out of sight, yes, enough to furnish employment for all, including the few who are now illegally confiscating those profits.

MILITIA AT BUTTE—BUT NOTHING TO DO

large number of unemployed workers on the ground of vagrancy, the Amalgamated Copper Company may be able once more to deliver the county over to its subservient Democratic machine.

It pays the company well to be able to control the sheriff, the drawing of jurors, the coroner, the assessor, and the county attorney, and the 12 representatives from this county have more than once saved the company's bacon in matters of state legislation.

Accounts Lurid and Untrue.

Hence, the lurid but untrue accounts which have been going broadcast all over the state about riotings, bloodshed, and plots for arson and the dynamiting of stores and warehouses. Hence, also, the extraordinary pressure brought to bear upon the governor of the state to declare the county in a state of insurrection and put it under martial law.

The advent of the troops on Tuesday evening, September 1, was attended with no demonstration on the part of Butte citizens other than that of curiosity. Not the least resistance, not even an insulting epithet, was offered. Officers and common soldiers alike were palpably astonished to find themselves sent to so peaceable and orderly a community. They were also gratified.

On Tuesday night, McDonald, the president of the New (insurgent) Mine Workers' Union, lost his head and made an intemperate street speech in the course of which, so it is reported, he threatened to kill any one who should attempt to arrest him. As soon as martial law was proclaimed, Wednesday morning, McDonald, together with the vice-president, Bradley, both of whom had been talking direct action very boldly, beat it out of the city. At this writing, the provost marshal has not been able to apprehend them.

Other members of the organization against whom charges of kidnaping, and inciting to riot had been made, are under arrest. Habeas Corpus proceedings have been brought in the federal court, in their behalf, to test the jurisdiction of the state military under both the national and state constitutions.

Press Censorship Proclaimed.

Thursday afternoon, press censorship was proclaimed by the commanding officer. Editors of the several papers were warned that "Nothing of an inflammatory nature" would be permitted. This was further defined as "Matter likely to stir up ill feeling and trouble in the community, or criticizing adversely the military or state authorities."

Editors were required to submit proofs of all news stories or editorials designed for their columns, or those of any other papers published by them in this city for outside towns.

Editors of the Butte Socialist submitted page proofs of their edition then ready for the press. The censor prohibited an article written by Comrade Duncan giving analysis of the Butte situation from June 13 to date. This article showed the economic and political interests at issue and leading to the proclamation of martial law. The Butte Socialist appeared Friday, September 4, with more than five blank columns labeled, "Censored by official censor Montana State National Guard."

Capitalist Press Unbridled.

In contrast with this, the capitalist papers on Friday morning contained editorials knocking Socialist city officials and especially Mayor Duncan. Attention of the commanding officer having been called to this discrimination which his censor had allowed, said emphatically it should not happen again. Saturday's morning papers were noticeably silent on the subject of the Socialist administration, which has been their staple theme for the past two weeks.

A Catholic Weekly which never loses an opportunity for the most virulent, obscene and abusive editorials, directed especially toward the mayor, came out with its usual columns of slush. The editors of the Butte Socialist brought this to the attention of the Commanding officer and the editor was brought on the carpet before the military authorities; with what result has not been learned at this writing.

Reaction In Public Mind.

But the public mind in Butte is undergoing a reaction. The needlessness of the military is becoming the theme for jokes. Also, the effect on tradesmen is being felt. All saloons have been closed by military orders. There are over 300 of them in Butte. Saloon keepers are getting out petitions for a modification of the order. Mine workers and other citizens are circulating counter petitions to keep the order in force.

It is reported that the Amalgamated Copper Company has imported detective gun men who are employed as watchmen at their mines. Thus far, however, no trouble of any sort has taken place.

Newspapers give it out that the mines are working full shift again and 8,000 men are employed. This is untrue. The mines are working at about half shift. The story is evidently given out to mislead the public and the military authorities, so no sympathy will be felt for the unemployed and a basis be made for deportations of workers out of work for vagrancy. Whether such results will follow is doubtful at this time. The public is wise to the facts and so are the officers.

Governor Modifies Proclamation.

Friday, Governor Stewart modified his original proclamation, which had declared martial law and suspended civil authority, by reinstating the city authorities in Butte, giving them their usual jurisdiction in all departments of city government, except the police department, which is under the provost marshal. This is significant. Had the city been in the anarchic condition that it had been represented to be to the governor, and that the press stories had been given out, all over the country, the governor would scarcely have reinstated the Socialist city officials so promptly.

The lurid stories of riot, arson and mob rule, of plots against property, and blood flowing in the streets of Butte, have no foundation in fact. Since the memorable 23rd of June, there have been no violent outbreaks of any character.

The one incident of the dynamiting of the company's employment office, on the Parrot Property, it is generally believed here, was a plan, and was pulled off to effect the gubernatorial mind. It did it. Should violent outbreaks occur, the Socialists will inform the labor press promptly and truthfully. Distrust all reports of violence.

DUNCAN CHARGES TROOPS ARE COPPER TRUST TOOLS

(Before Military Censor Came.)

Pointing out that the Socialist administration is fully capable of enforcing law and maintaining order, Lewis J. Duncan, Socialist mayor of Butte, has issued a statement charging that the troops were called out at the behest of the Amalgamated Copper Company. The statement by Mayor Duncan is as follows:

By Mayor Lewis J. Duncan.

"The governor of Montana is sending troops into Butte at the behest of the Amalgamated Copper Company and the business satellites, and despite the assurance that the Socialist administration is able to enforce law and order. Life and property are not in jeopardy and the civil processes are uninterrupted.

"There is nothing in the action of the new union of the mine workers that justifies this step. This is evidently a desperate recourse of the employers to save the corrupt control of the local union of the Western Federation of Miners, to drive the Socialist voters out of the county and save the Democratic machine.

"This is an attempt to discredit the Socialist administration throughout the state and to prevent the success of workmen's compensaion and the initiative. The Amalgamated press is deceiving the people. The Democratic governor is being used for capitalistic purposes."

A petition has been filed in the United States district court at Butte asking for a writ of habeas corpus in behalf of three union officials arrested by the state guardsmen since martial law was established. The petition charges that martial law was put into effect unnecessarily, because a state of insurrection does not exist in Butte.

It is reported that 200 members of the national guard who failed to report at Butte are to be brought there under guard. Officers with warrants have been sent to the men's homes.

Why should we read only the rich man's paper and expect to learn how to curb his greed?

The desire to command is far nobler than the will to obey.

WASHINGTON LETTER

The waterpower trust and its control over Congress have been thoroughly extolled during the last week, no thanks, however, being due to the regular press. Only a few of the correspondents in Washington have been telling the truth about the sensational fight over the so-called Adamson bill.

The Adamson bill which had received the endorsement of President Wilson after repeated conferences at the White House and which was said to be "the people's power bill" was proved to be drawn wholly in the interests of the waterpower trust, and to have been taken almost word for word in its essential details from a "confidential" bill sent last winter by Senator Nelson of Minnesota to Rome G. Brown, a prominent waterpower attorney. Brown approves this bill, and whole sections of it were used in the bill endorsed by President Wilson.

The Administration or Adamson waterpower bill was a graft bill. It gave away millions of dollars worth of public property for practically nothing and failed to provide even for regulation. When repeatedly told that the bill was a bad bill, Wilson refused to change it alleging as one reason that he was under obligations to the reactionary Democrats who were putting it through.

Both Democrats and Republicans joined hands in trying to put the waterpower bill across—the regular bi-partisan game. So crude was the work of the Congressman that the time allotted to debate on the bill was controlled by two men, Adamson of Georgia and Stevens of Minnesota, Democrat and Republican respectively, both of whom favored the bill.

The conservationists put up a brilliant fight and forced important amendments. The waterpower interests, however, are planning to kill the bill in the Senate, or else to alter it so that it will work out in their favor.

How the scientific laboratories of the Government are utilized to promote private profits is told in a report just made by Director S. W. Stratton of the Bureau of Standards. This report shows that in one instance the Bureau, co-operating with the public service corporations of Elyria, Ohio, have saved them so much money that they are willing to undertake the expense of new construction without recourse to city ordinances or pressure from the court.

It seems that very serious damage had been done by electrolysis. The Bureau of Standards put an expert on the job and he succeeded not only in correcting the electrolysis troubles but in devising methods which would improve the street railway service in the city, improve the lighting of the cars, and save the corporations thousands of dollars annually.

Another striking example of the way the people of the United States through their scientific Government bureaus help increase the profits of private capital is with regard to standards of radiation. As a result of experiments with electric lamps, tried out by the Bureau of Standards, an English firm of instrument makers has decided to adopt the conclusions arrived at by the United States Government and will undoubtedly get rich by selling them to the public.

An interesting item recently disclosed is that out of 177 thermometers furnished to the Government bureaus by manufacturers, every single one was rejected because, when tested, they were found to be made of inferior glass unsuited to the metric use. Undoubtedly public money will be expended to aid these manufacturers to manufacture salable products.

THE MARCH OF THE WOMEN

Written for The New York Call by Meta L. Stern.

Lo, behold, in garbs of mourning
March the women of the land,
Weeping women of all nations,
Side by side and hand in hand.
While a million men are spreading
Ghastly, deadly strife,
Lo, behold the women marching
In their plea for human life.

Not a flag floats on the breezes,
Not a tune rings through the air.
In a march of grewsome silence
They are voicing their despair.
For all things that woman cherished,
All her love and toil of years,
Has been swept away and buried
In a sea of flood and tears.

Oh, the women, they are mourning
For a million mothers' sons.
They can hear their sisters sobbing
E'en above the roar of guns.
Through the smoke and grime of battle
They can see the broken lives,
They can see the shattered homesteads,
Orphaned children, widowed wives.

What though German they or Russian,
What, though French or English born,
'Tis our loved ones that are murdered,
And 'tis woman's heart is torn.
Whoe'er victor be or vanquished
In the bloody course of time,
Woman's love and woman's anguish
Is the same in every clime.

Lo, the women they are marching,
Marching onward toward the years
When the women of all nations
Will have deeds instead of tears;
When they will command the rulers:
"Let this insane bloodshed cease!
We refuse to let you slaughter
Our sons. There shall be peace!"

While a million men are spreading
Ghastly terror, deadly strife.
Lo, behold the women marching
In their plea for human life!
For the cannon will be silenced
And the bloody banners furled,
When, to guide the fate of mankind,
Come the women of the world.

Politics is a poor game to play at unless you know the rules.

Socialist vote in Ohio, the Socialist will poll 150,000 to 200,000 votes this fall, and 2,000,000 votes in the nation in 1916.

Under the present strenuous capitalist conditions no one can predict with any degree of accuracy what may happen, and sure it is the capitalist parties are all at sea, not only about their own existence, but as to the "spread of Socialism."

If Socialism could only be patient and stay on the job for a very few years, they would be more than rewarded.

THE MARCHING SONG
(Author Unknown)

Are you game to fight with no end in sight,
And never a band to play?
Are you fit to toil with no hope of spoil,
And the toiling itself for pay?
Will you bear the ink of the thankless work
Of making the dream come true?
Will you march along thro' a hooting throng
That bellows its oaths at you?
Will you learn to meet each new defeat
With that gritty old grin of yore,
And lift your lance in each new advance,
With hardly a chance to score?
Then you're just the breed we sorely need,
You are our kith and kin.
So get the swing of the song we sing
And join the march. Fall in! Fall in!

We offer no loot to the young recruit,
No glory or praise or fame.
No gold you gain in this long campaign,
But plenty of jeers and blame.
The garners are mean, the rations lean,
The service is harsh and grim,
And the war is on from dusk till dawn
And from dawn to the twilight dim.
But there is ever a cheer of a worker near,
And the touch of a sturdy arm,
And his help in call if you faint and fall
Where the harrowing foemen swarm.
Do you scorn the reward for the right that's hard?
Would you rather be right than win?
Then get the swing of the song we sing
And join in the march. Fall in! Fall in!

Note the successive increase in the Socialist vote in Ohio and the nation. The candidates following on the state ticket are only incidental to this campaign, only men who may err in word or deed, as any others we might nominate might do. No Socialist candidate is supposed to ask any one to vote for him, he is only permitted to explain the principles of Socialism and urge all listeners to read our literature and adopt and advocate our principles and the voting will take care of itself.

Here are the candidates and below is the vote in Ohio and U. S. for the past 12 years.

At the past rate of increase in the Socialist vote in Ohio, the Socialist will poll 150,000 to 200,000 votes this fall, and 2,000,000 votes in the nation in 1916.

Under the present strenuous capitalist conditions no one can predict with any degree of accuracy what may happen, and sure it is the capitalist parties are all at sea, not only about their own existence, but as to the "spread of Socialism."

If Socialism could only be patient and stay on the job for a very few years, they would be more than rewarded.

Comrades of Columbus Socialist:

I enclose 50 cents in payment for your paper, also a little squib that may or may not—suit yourself—be worth salt in your publication.

Mr. Townsend, I think, told you what sport I had scribbling hot stuff for a local paper that runs a free-for-all column. The trouble with this propaganda is that the paper publishes preachers' sermons along side of mine, and nobody ever reads a word we say. No encouragement to save people with preachers buttin'-in, telling them what a good time they'll have after they are dead.

I have dedicated myself to capturing wage slaves and teaching them the manly art of reading Socialist papers. Now I'm old and white-headed, it looks like I'm going to peter out with a broken heart. The plutes have the only medicine that will get 'em. After the big starvation campaign, now being waged in their stomachs, has done its work, what few escape death will take to Socialism like calves to hot milk.

If I can run down a scalp or two, in the interval, will send 'em over.

Hoping we'll give 'em the jar of their lives this fall, I am yours for the cause of humanity,

Oscar Purcell.

Editor Columbus Socialist:—Our trust-busting, bunco artists at Washington, who can't bust trusts without busting themselves all to smash, recently passed a bill to insure American ships and cargoes against the hazards of the war over there where they are breaking up the sacred home, and where the torch of civilization has flickered out. Senator Lane of Oregon, attempting to keep the torch burning over here, offered an amendment to this marine insurance bill, that provided for insuring the crews of ships as well as the ships and cargoes. His senatorial colleagues asked to be excused from an exhibition of their love for the oppressed seaman by an exhibition of their vote on his amendment. But the good senator was posing as a humane senator and insisted on putting the animals on exhibition. "I wish you would think a little of the value of lives as well as the value of property," he said.

When the vote was counted, the flickering torch went out. They voted 34 to 14 that ship and cargo are more valuable than the whole ship's crew; that property is more valuable than the noblest work of God. Had they as much faith in their heavenly God as in their profit god, they could raise the dead.

Because property looks better to capitalists than human lives, their capitalistic government makes a bluff at trust busting and reducing the high cost of living, while doing its level best to increase the cost by shipping our foodstuffs to Europe. If the government was the peoples' instead of what it is, a mere agent to look after the welfare of the trusts, it would put an embargo on exportation of our food supplies that would "starve the war and feed America." But being what it is, it looks upon this European murder as a God-send to the trusts to enable them to pile up bigger profits. It will soon have us all paying war prices for our eats, without a thought of providing employment for the starving unemployed. So we have got to either load our sovereign guns with solid shotted ballots and shoot their profit god to death, or ignominiously permit them to starve us to death.

The coming election will be a good time to open fire on their god, and if every son of toil will do his patriotic and sacred duty on that day, and see that no ammunition is wasted firing scab cartridges at the polls, we can elect many of our candidates and scare the whole piratical crew into looking after our material welfare the coming hard winter. But if any working man is so far lost to a sense of his own interest as to vote for any candidate not bearing aloft the blazing torch of Socialism, and that man dies, as men will die of starvation, let not his widow mourn—he ain't worth it.

WHY ACT A HYPOCRITE

Is it any worse for men to be shot down in battle and in an instant have all your troubles ended and be cremated by the army crematory while your body is warm, requiring less fuel to do the job, than to go through the tortures of the damned to starve and eke into a slow death by self consumption of the vitalities of life? Why set a day (Oct. 4th.) to pray God to stop the war and, and from now until Oct. 4th, continue to send ammunitions of war to Europe and advance the prices of foodstuffs to such a point as to prohibit thousands of people from getting it? Why pray for peace in Europe and keep our own armies in Mexico as a standing insult to that nation, when the boog-a-boo, who was said to insult "Old Glory" was not anything at all and has disappeared like a will-o-the-wisp? What would you think of the man on the prominence calling to the will-o-the-wisp in the swamp to salute or he would shoot? You do? Well that is what others think too.

Who is going to do the praying on that day, Oct. 4th? Will Saint John D., Andrew Carnegie, Guggenheim, Morgan, Rothschild, or any of the trusts which Mr. Wilson busted? No they will be too busy buying wheat, meat, etc., to keep up the war, and Mr. Woodrow Wilson will be too busy issuing government insurance policies on the ships and cargoes and refusing to issue government insurance policies on the lives of the seamen who man the vessels.

Who is going to pray? The same little 2x4 preachers who have been praying for the success of our armies if our government becomes involved. The same moral cowards who never say peace when the members of their church have an interest in battleships, armor-plate, or in the manufacture of powder. Where is John Wesley Hill now, when practical work for peace could be done instead of pretending to be for peace and making it a pretext to declare war on Socialism? John Wesley Hill neither succeeded in his efforts for peace nor his war on Socialism, but did succeed in leading many persons to see his hypocrisy.

Why pray for peace and feed the war and starve our people and make war on Socialists, the only real peace advocates?

Yes, pray, long and loud, so men can hear and praise you, but unless you DO as well as PRAY, you are only plain hypocrites. Vote, you pretenders, vote for peace—Socialism.

SOCIALISM IS JUSTICE!

SAMUEL L. BLACK AND BEN B. LINDSEY

It will be remembered that in the Bates-Black trial in Police Court, Judge Black took the stand and testified, and in the argument his attorneys lauded him to the skies as second to none other than Judge Lindsey in his humane dealings with children and parents. Unless Judge Lindsey says one thing to the public and does other things to the children and parents (and we have known Judges to do that) there is no comparison between him and Judge Black.

Who ever heard of Judge Black giving the labor unions credit for anything?

Who ever heard Judge Black say anything against capital in its cruel methods against children and parents?

Read what Judge Lindsey says about Union labor, capitalism, children and wage earners, and compare it with the things you know of and see Judge Black do every day. Remember Bessie Sands in Idiotic Asylum; Harold Sands in Boys' Industrial School, Nannie Shropshire in Convent, Fred Williams in hands of Big Brothers(?), Joe Myers in Work-House, and many others?? Then compare these doings with Judge Lindsey's utterances as given in the "American Federationist" for Sept., 1914, pages 715-16.

Judge Black a second Ben Lindsey. Bah! It is an insult to Judge Lindsey to hint at a comparison.

Collective Bargaining the Means to Industrial Freedom.

By Ben B. Lindsey, Judge of Juvenile Court, Denver, Colorado.

There is no child problem that is not a parent problem; and there is no parent problem that is not in the final analysis, in a large measure, a social, economic, and industrial problem. We can not protect the children; we can not secure for them their heritage, their birthright, unless we can protect their parents. I would be false to the children of this nation if I merely sat in the children's court, using a palliative to deal with the effects of causes and conditions without attacking the causes and conditions while doing the best I can to help the individual victims. I, therefore, have no apology to make for my interest in industrial problems as being at the same time the biggest part of the child problem that has engaged my interest and the best years and service of my life.

The years devoted to this work convince me that the union labor is a good thing; that the unions are good things; and that if the workers of this nation would escape the absolute and certain slavery that they face without the union, they will not only join the unions of their respective trades but that they will use every lawful and just means in their power to induce others to do so. The opposition to unions comes primarily from ignorance and the occasional mistakes and errors of the unions themselves that should not be confused with the big principle they stand for. There is no institution on earth without its defects, its mistakes or even its failures with certain individuals and in certan cases.

It is chiefly the arrogance and impudence of private property and monopoly that assume to themselves divine rights (as did the ancient kings and their ignoraat servitors) who use these things in an effort to destroy the principle of unionism. Labor has a right to organize, and as a union is entitled to recognition, and those workers who stand in its way are simply forging their own chains. Under the present laws of property, nothing but union and co-operation among the workers of this country will save the nation from a slavery infinitely more deadening and oppressive than the old slavery. It is absurd for men to say that capital is not organised—unionized. It is the most powerful solidarity the world has ever seen. It is naturally and effectively cohesive and co-operative, without even the apparent forms of organization and union that are beheld in the gathering of the workers. It is at once a force presenting all the violence, oppression, tyranny, and cruelty, existing in the feudalism and despotisms of the olden times. One of the things necessary to civilize it, to humanize it, to make it in the slightest sense responsive to human rights, human needs, and human justice, is the systematic and effective organization and union of the workers. At least that is the condition we are facing in this country today, so long as we recognize the justice of our present institutions, government, and civilization.

There are two governments in this country—the political government whose authority centers at Washington; and under the laws of property without the organization of the workers, a bigger and a more powerful government, the industrial government whose power is in New York City. That government, in spite of any powers of the political government (without important changes) would become as relentless, as barbarous, and as cruel as any government of the ancient monarchs. In many instances, because of the lack of organization and union among the workers, it has been just as relentless and oppressive. Under present conditions, therefore, the organization and union of the workers and their right to collective bargaining is one of the most righteous and just causes being contended for in this nation. To oppose it is to oppose liberty; to accept it is only the duty of the hour if we would steer this Republic past the rocky reefs of violent revolution; for oppression without relief, without hope, knows no remedy but rebellion, revolt, and violence. Those who do most to encourage and provoke such an undesirable alternative are those who oppose and fight the union of the workers. Those who would avoid it are those who do most to promote and defend the right of the workers to organize, to unionize, thus to present a force opposed to that which would leave them no alternative, in the final analysis, but slavery and serfdom or revolt and violence.

THE VAMPIRE II
By Bert Leach.

(Apologies to Kipling.)

A fool there was, and he cast his vote
(Even as you and I)
For ragged pants and a tattered coat
And some grub on which he didn't dote.
He voted for G. O. P., you'll note.
(Even as you and I.)

Oh, the work we do for the favored few,
And the miserable wage we get!
We crack the nuts, and they take the meat.
They hand us the chaff, and they take the wheat.
And to make our bondage more complete
We vote for this system yet.

A fool there was, and he goods had none.
(Even as you and I.)
He worked all day, from sun to sun,
He got no cash, so he worked for fun,
And he voted just as his dad had done.
(Even as you and I.)

Oh, he worked like fun from sun to sun,
And he plotted and schemed and planned,
But he just could not make both ends meet.
If his head kept warm then he froze his feet,
And his kids hadn't half enough to eat
But he couldn't understand.

The fool was stripped to his foolish hide.
(Even as you and I.)
They couldn't use that, though they may have tried.
And the poor old fool was kicked aside,
And his legs lived on, though his head had died.
(Even as you and I.)

It isn't the shame and it isn't the blame
That stings like a white hot brand;
It's the cussed foolishness of a jay
Who'll work ten hours for two hours' pay
And vote for the thing on election day
And will not understand.

JUST THE SAME

Yes, you hate to be bought and you hate to be sold,
And you hate to be forced to pay Shylock in gold,
You hate the hard times, but you're bound to die game,
You hate 'em—but you vote for 'em just the same!

You hate politicians that swagger and rant,
You hate a good deal of the old party cant,
And you hate a large share of the ticket you name—
You hate it—and vote for it just the same!

You hate to be cramped in a financial way,
And you hate giant frauds going on day by day.
You curse in your soul the corruption you blame—
You curse it—and vote for it just the same!

You hope for a change, and you pray for relief,
And you swear you will bring partisan schemers to grief,
Then you march to the polls to put blockheads to shame,
But—vote the old ticket again just the same.

THE SOCIALIST

A Weekly Newspaper Without a Muzzle

Vol. IV Whole No. 196 COLUMBUS, OHIO, SEPT. 26, 1914 Price, 2 Cents per Copy

THIS PAPER is published in the interest of the working class. If you think it is worthy of your support, support it by getting new subscribers. If you don't like it, don't knock. We are making it as good as you will allow. Whenever the workers support their own press as valiantly as they do the master's press we will be able to do really big things for the emancipation of the workers. In the meantime, we are forging ahead conscious of the fact that our cause is just, that right will finally triumph, and the workers step forth emancipated from the age-long servitude to a robber, master class.

Europe's Future and World War

The bloody work of world war goes merrily on. On the battlefields of France and Belgium, of Eastern Prussia, Western Russia, and Northern Austria the tremendous hordes in arms of our modern civilization (so-called) are murdering each other in the most scientific fashion. On the North Sea and on the Baltic Sea, on the Adriatic and on the Mediterranean, on the Atlantic and Pacific, on the Chinese Sea, and on the South Sea the floating machinery of human slaughter is set in motion for the "glorious" work of destruction. Like the fiery wagons of mythical ancient days, moving above the clouds warning the people of coming war disasters and devastation, modern airships of war and military flying machines are sailing over every corner of Europe, threatening to unload their cargoes of death and destruction. And the nations of the world seem to look helplessly on, waiting the worst to happen in this horrible catastrophe of the twentieth century at any moment.

The battles already fought in this war are said to have been the bloodiest in the history of nations. Compared with them the great, historical slaughterfests of Waterloo and Leipzig, of Gettysburg and Shiloh shrink into insignificance. Today over 16,000,000 able-bodied men, the flower of European manhood, are engaged in the destructive and death-dealing profession of scientific warfare. What will be the end of all of this? How many millions of men, women and children will be sacrificed on the altar of Imperialism and Militarism of our capitalist system of law and order?

Without going into prophetic speculations, we can safely say at this moment that the end of this world war will be an end with horrors. An end with horrors for the civilized nations of the world! An end with horrors for some of those principally responsible for the present holocaust of war! The question in which everybody seems to be most interested is:

Will East European barbarism or Western civilization survive? Most unfortunately modern capitalist High Finance and modern business highway robbery succeeded in shackling the civilization of Republican France to the barbarism of Muscovite Czarism, whereby the situation is made more critical. As Comrade Louis Goaziou in his French paper, L'Union des Travailleurs, very aptly put it: "The shame of the present war is the alliance between Republican France and the Hangman of the Russian Revolution!"

No friend of human progress, no freedom-loving man or woman can desire the victory of Muscovite Czarism over Western civilization. We agree with Comrade Goaziou when he says that the Moscovite butcher of the Russian Revolution should be kicked back to the remotest corner of Siberia. But at the same time we should not like to see the French Republic dragged with the Czar and his Cossackism. We are convinced today more firmly than ever before that no matter how long the world war may continue or how deadly and destructive its consequences may be, the Socialist and Trade Union movement will survive. And this is the encouraging and hopeful feature of the present catastrophe!

Up to the present hour none of the powers directly involved in this world war has any reason to glory in its achievements, for the simple reason that no matter what victories may have been gained on the battlefield they have been bought at an exorbitant sacrifice. The same will be true of any future victory that any of these powers may achieve. The power gaining the greatest war victory may also shoulder the most destructive responsibilities resulting from this war.

G. A. HOEHN.

JUDICIAL INJUSTICE LEADS TO GUN-JUSTICE

It is not only a sad commentary upon our judges on the "sacred benches" of our institutions of justice but it is more than sad to be forced to tell the truth of the waning confidence of the people of any hope of obtaining a semblance of justice in these solemn institutions while presided over by tools of political exploiters and narrow-minded persons, who are open to the wily caprice of political or religious intolerance. For years we have heard spell-binders and even preachers prate about the freedom of franchise and religious liberty in America. For years we have heard foul-mouthed politicians and weakling sky-pilots denounce the people of the South for the political injustice meted out to the colored citizens there, and all the while there has been growing up a political intolerance and a religious dominance in the North much more far-reaching than that of the South.

This wide-spread iniquity of political and religious intolerance has taken its last stand behind the "Sacred Bench" and has so preyed upon the persons of the judges that many have been stricken with fear and quaking at the phantom of spiritual blessings in the form of votes, at election have "bowed the knee of sacred justice" to the sceptre of superstition and religious bigotry.

This subservancy of judges, not courts, (we pointed out some weeks since that judges were not courts), to those who are supposed to have the balance of power in the electorate is the real cause for the lessening of respect of the people for the institution which should be, not only held in profound respect, but, by its deliverance of humane and ever-consistent judicial justice deserve the respect which it attempts to claim and enforce upon the people.

Whatever may have been the cause this much is certain that there is today right here in civilized Ohio, which has produced Presidents and Supreme Court Judges such a positive lack of confidence in the judges of our courts meting out justice when the question of political or religious expediency touches the decision that men have and are, day after day, and night after night, resorting to gun-justice rather than risk their rights in the hands of judges known to be given over to political and religious preferments.

As an illustration of this resort to gun-justice let it be said that only a few days ago the parents or relatives or friends of two girls said to be illegally incarcerated and held in the Girls' Industrial School at Delaware were forcibly taken from the cottage in which they were sleeping, cottage No. 7 or 9, and spirited away.

The proper course to obtain the freedom of these girls would have been by the write of habeas corpus but, evidently the interested parties had either observed or experienced "smothering of justice" by political or religious superstition applied at "psychological" moments (election days) and concluded that the gun-justice method was not only swifter, but surer.

Nothing is being done by that institution to recapture these girls or their deliverer and it is doubtful if the State Board of Charities even know of the episode.

Mutterings of others against the same institution because of attempted enforced religious espousals are heard and a rupture at that institution seems eminent unless the present management ceases its activities along these lines.

Warning to Judges.

Because of these caterings of judges (not courts, courts are inanimate institutions) to these political and religious influences and the "failure of justice" when these influences are present, there has grown up an organization to counteract such judicial iniquities. In Franklin County this organization has made rapid strides and enrolls among its members brave men of all political parties and boasts of being able to deliver enough votes to defeat any lickspittle judge who dares refuse justice to any citizen of any political or religious faith.

The members of this organization say they will protect a citizen of any political or religious faith in his rights of citizenship against any political, judicial or religious tyrant who does offend against the sacred rights of citizenship. This organization being non-partisan is in position to wield a powerful blow to those engendering its wrath and as it is known that some judges, politicians and would-be statesmen have done so there may be some surprises in store at the coming election. Let every voter get next and help preserve the rights of citizenship, the free press and free speech against judicial, political and religious injustice.

FRANKLIN COUNTY COMMISSIONERS YIELD TO TERRIBLE PRESSURE AT ELEVENTH HOUR—TRIPLE ALLIANCE FORCE TRIPLE ENTENTE TO SURRENDER.

While all the world knows that it was the "Red Special" of The Socialist issued February 28th, 1914, that finally "Got the Goat" of the Franklin County Commissioners to the extent that they have at least made an investigation and report to the Prosecuting Attorney of Franklin County, as required by law, there seems to be some dispute as to who shall claim the honor.

Lincoln Court No. 52 Guardian of Liberty, say it was the pressure of some 7,000 members of that organization which was brought to bear that caused the long derelict commissioners to make a showing of doing their duty.

Prosecuting Attorney Turner Also Claims Credit.

It was on January 23d, 1914, that our candidate for Prosecuting Attorney, Comrade W. C. Bates, called at the office of Edward C. Turner and made request to see the report he now mentions in his letter which follows, rather a long time from January 23d, 1914, to August 31st, 1914, in which to act, but we are glad Mr. Turner did act and we thank him for doing so and for the letter to us and the copy of report of said commissioners he courteously furnished us.

It is unfortunate, however, for the commissioners that on the very day they were preparing their report, September 15th, 1914, the Gun-Justice episode mentioned in this issue, was pulled off at that very institution. From our information the visit of the commissioners 10:45 a. m., must have been almost at the same time as the Gun-Justice "stunt" was pulled off. Can it be possible there is some mistake of identity or that one or the other or both really never happened? Lord Jesus how can we tell?

Read Turner's letter and the Commissioners' report and then read the article in this issue entitled, "Mystery surrounds Gun-Justice at Convent."

Franklin County, Ohio, office of Prosecuting Attorney
Columbus, Ohio, September 16, 1914.

Mr. Wesley C. Bates,
108½ South High St., Columbus, Ohio.

Dear Sir:—

Some time since you came to this office and asked for an inspection of a report from the County Commissioners pertaining to the condition of the Good Shepherd Convent.

On the 31st day of August, this office notified the Board of County Commissioners in writing that applications had been made to see such a report and called the attention of the commissioners that it was their duty to investigate the various institutions in the county and make a report which was to be filed in this office. In compliance with those instructions the county commissioners have this day filed in this office a report showing the condition of the Convent of Good Shepherd and the same is now open to public inspection.

Respectfully,
EDWARD C. TURNER,
Prosecuting Attorney.
Columbus, Ohio, September 15, 1914.

Hon. E. C. Turner,
Prosecuting Attorney, Franklin County, Ohio.

Dear Sir:—

As required in Section 2498, we, the members of the Board of County Commissioners, this day made an investigation of the conditions of the Convent of Good Shepherd, West Broad Street, Columbus, Ohio, and beg leave to make the following report:

We reached the Convent about 10:45 A. M., without previous notification of our arrival; were admitted by sisters and introduced to the Mother Superior, who, with two sisters, conducted us to the various departments of the institution, from basement to attic.

As to sanitation: we beg to state, we found existing conditions in the best possible state. The walls seemed clean and newly painted; the uncovered floors were spotless; the buildings had ventilation from at least two sides; the workshop from all four sides. On all floors we investigated the toilets, there being quite a number, which we found kept in a condition not to be criticised. They were free from odor or filth of any kind.

The greater number of buildings within the enclosure are old and have been added to or remodeled in years past. Sufficient exits from the rooms seem to have been provided. The kitchen was in good condition as to ventilation and cleanliness; the dining rooms were neat and clean.

We conversed with several of the girls, both in the workshop and in other parts of the building, this conversation being held beyond the hearing of the Mother Superior or Sisters in charge, who, in fact, invited us to question the girls. Each one said, she was well treated, well fed, was satisfied with her home and liked the place. Several informed us that they had returned to their relatives but preferred the shelter of the convent and came back voluntarily. They said, they would not remain if conditions were unsatisfactory.

The institution houses persons from 2 years to 83 in age. In the workshop the girls range in age from 16 to probably 25 or 26, where about 66 power-driven sewing machines are installed, for the purpose of manufacturing men's work shirts. The sister was asked what was done with these shirts, and she answered, they were manufactured for an outside firm. The girls start to work about 8 A. M., have one hour at noon and leave the shop not later than 4 P. M., often earlier, just depending on how soon the work is finished; each girl having a certain amount of work to do each day. All under 16 attend school during regular school hours, and those older than 16 who are employed in the shop, may attend school after working hours. They have all facilities for recreation and all seem to be happy and contented.

We asked the Mother Superior the purpose of the high walls, to which she replied, "To prevent the children on the street from throwing stones into the yard and to prevent the stealing of fruit, etc."

Respectfully submitted,
THOMAS E. HUMPHREYS,
LEWIS DAVIS,
RICHARD SINCLAIR,
County Commissioners of Frahklin County, Ohio.

MYSTERY SURROUNDS GUN-JUSTICE AT LOCAL CONVENT

Another case of Gun-Justice in Ohio, and that, too, in the capital city, of the over-religious and civilized commonwealth. Smothered Justice has already too long held away in our courts to attract the weary and oppressed of the state or even citizens of neighboring states to appeal to them for relief.

The story we are about to relate is only another, a companion to the one related elsewhere in this issue, of the appalling lack of confidence and hope of justice in the courts of our county and state. Why the old party papers have not related the full story we are about to tell, which in fact, leaked out to us because they refused to publish it, because of political or religious influences, is to be guessed at by each reader from his point of view of the present situation in Franklin County.

That Franklin County politics, if not religion, is hovering over a semi-social volcano goes without saying in certain circles. A storm is brewing and each day it gathers momentum until at times it staggers the wits of the most conservative to check its fury. Day after day straw upon straw is being added to the already inflamed slumbers of public sentiment until the whole structure has become one seething fiery flame which may burst forth at any moment and in its fury walls will crumble, inmates perish and all because of Smothered Justice in our supposed and reputed most sacred temples of justice.

Read the Story.

Some eleven years ago a girl by the name of T——— then 15 years of age was kidnaped from her parents and spirited away, but for what purpose or where taken the distressed parents knew not. The mother, we are told, grieved and died of sorrow for her child (an only daughter).

BLACK-BATES NOTORIETY---
BATES LEADS IN PUBLIC FAVOR

To say that the manly efforts of Comrade W. C. Bates, attorney, against great and unscrupulous odds, occasionally bordering on treachery, is putting it very mildly. The masterly effort made by him in the defense of Minnie Grunder before E. W. McCormick, Justice of the Peace, on the charge of perjury, has caused nation-wide and favorable comment. Although Minnie Grunder was bound over to the grand jury and has been indicted by the grand jury it must be remembered she had no chance for defense before the grand jury. The hearing there was ex-parte or one sided. Neither Minnie Grunder nor any one favorable to her was heard by the grand jury. She has just been released on bond signed by comrades. Unless we miss our guess this case will be the most renowned in the annals of criminal jurisprudence of this state or nation. There is no limit to which the persecutors of Minnie Grunder will not go and never has there been a case in which the State should use its offices for the protection of honest witnesses with courage and Christianity sufficient to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth in the face of persecution, vindictiveness and arrogance.

Unless witnesses are protected in their testimony how can the state hope to secure witnesses against designing rogues of every class?

From the Four Corners of the Globe.

From every point of the compass comes requests of the now famous argument of the "working class lawyer" in his brilliant argument on perjury in defense of Minnie Grunder.

Following are the letters ordering these leaflets, from Pennsylvania, Illinois, Massachusetts, etc.

Read These Letters.

W. E. Rodriquez, Atty., Chicago, Ill.

Mr. W. C. Bates:

Will you kindly mail me two copies of your "Working Class Lawyer—has courage of convictions"? More power to you in the fight. Find enclosed 10 cents in stamps.

Fraternally,
RODRIQUEZ.

Harrisburg, Pa., September 19th, 1914.

Mr. W. C. Bates, Attorney-at-Law, Columbus, Ohio:—

As a law student I am interested in your compilation of the law of perjury, and I am enclosing postage for copies of such compilation.

Fraternally yours,
CHARLES LIEBAW,
Harrisburg, Pa.

Worcester, Mass., September 19th, 1914.

"The Socialist," Columbus, Ohio:—

Please send two copies of "Working Class Lawyer—Has Courage of Convictions." Enclosed find ten cents.

Fraternally yours,
JAMES CRONIN.

Because of the above interest and many other calls from Ohio we wish to announce that we have a goodly supply of these leaflets on hand and are holding the type for future orders. About 25,000 of these leaflets have been disposed of and from present indications it will require many thousands more to supply the demand. This is a famous case of public sentiment triumphing over judicial prestige, of the rights of citizenship over bigoted personal conceit.

And now while writing the above, the afternoon mail brings in the following:

Detroit, Mich., September 21st, 1914.

W. C. Bates:—

Enclosed please find 5 cents for which send me your pamphlet entitled, "Working Class Lawyer has Courage of Convictions." I am very much interested in anything of this kind as I have just finished the Appeal to Reason Law Course.

WM. BAILEY.

Chicago, Ill., September 21, 1914.

Dear Comrades:—

Please send me a copy of Comrade Bates' pamphlet (on perjury) for which I enclose 5 cents in stamps.

Fraternally yours,
J. C. TEEVAN.

Since this leaflet has attracted such widespread recognition we are going to ask all Socialists and labor union papers to copy this article or make editorial comment on the leaflet, a copy of which we will send to all such by mail this week.

What Is a Big Brother

Some ten days ago, we read in our favorite paper the story of a boy of tender years being whipped in a dark, damp cellar by a court appointed Big Brother. We were regaled by a pen picture of a heroic Major of the Ohio National Guard, a dauntless soldier, transformed from commercial pursuits to the pinnacles of "Officer and a Gentleman" by the Governor's commission, standing over a cowering, naked boy of tender years, with a terrible knout in his hands. We can readily imagine the boy's cries and pleas for mercy as the leather whip descended on the tender skin with finite cruelty.

The boy had committed a grave crime. He had gone to a ball game without permission from the gallant son of Mars whom a well-meaning but misguided Judge had appointed to be the little lad's Big Brother; to train the little brother to noble manhood.

The Big Brother is a soldier—a commissioned officer of the Ohio National Guard—a man to whom we must turn in moments of national danger. Need we conjure to mind a mental picture of the doughty generalissimo on the field of glory?

We believe in just punishment but we also believe in the just equity of things. We cannot too strongly commend and applaud the prompt action of Mr. George F. Burba, Governor Cox's secretary who ordered an immediate investigation, and we hope that, if the story is proven, the Ohio National Guard will rid itself of the brutish Big Brother who must have thought himself a Governer General of the Russian Czar's domain with extraordinary power of Justice, high and low.

The Big Brother movement is a sign of an advanced and human age and has resulted in great good. The question presents itself: Why is a Big Brother? For good or for evil? This particular Big Brother has doubtless planted the seeds in the lash-ridden boy that makes for delinquent citizenry. The lashing will not help the boy and another number may be added to the shameful roll of the prisons, unless the little brother is saved in time. It is the old story of beating goodness into the young with the rod. Poor boy, we pity him.

Let us hope that the Big Brother—the gold laced and brass-buttoned Adonis of our National Guard—will be deprived of his precious guardianship and another, who will typify the real Big Brother, be appointed to save the boy from a future that we are only too familiar with.—Ohio Penitentiary News, August 8th, 1914.

From the same issue of "The Pen News" we find under "New Arrivals" the following:

42932—Herman King, Ottawa Co., maliciously killing a domestic animal.

If it is a felony for Herman King to kill a domestic animal, then what is the crime and the penalty justly due Harold M. Bush and his conspirators in virtually beating fourteen-year-old Fred Williams unto death?

Prisoner No. 42865 incarcerated seems to have more of the "milk of human kindness" for helpless children in his cocoanut than the exalted Herold (should be spelled "Herod").

War for Markets

By Seymour Stedman
Socialist Representative in the Illinois State Legislature.

Editor's Note: Socialism charges capitalism is responsible for the European slaughter. The war grows out of the present intolerable system of society. The American Socialist has given the case of Socialism to its readers in the unanswerable indictments found in the articles of Morris Hillquit and Charles Edward Russell. Socialists know that capitalism is the criminal, but The American Socialist wants every worker in this land to know.

For a hundred years, in full swing, capitalism has sown the wind, and now the whole world reaps a whirlwind of blood and fire.

The unutterable horror of the situation is that it is overtopped by the IGNORANCE and STUPIDITY of the average man and woman whose conduct has made it possible. This human hecatomb was the inevitable result of capitalist society, and that the average man cannot see and does not understand it is the most depressing circumstance of all, because it forebodes a possible inability to grapple with the problems which the next few years will present.

Capitalism, or the Third Estate, marched into this world's arena with iron sandals and the mailed fist, and in every country its accoutrements are the same.

The French revolution was not the birth but the baptism of European capitalism, the cannon first spoke then effectively, and the solid battalion and guillotine overwhelmed the shell of the ancient regime.

The old traditions and established religion were modified for a reign of reason, and personal liberty, commerce and free trade. Local industries have expanded into national and international markets, and to market its product, capitalism has reached into the most remote places in the world. The African jungle and the oasis in the garden of Allah are reached by a portion of the 25,000 miles of railroad that almost surround the borders of the dark continent. South America is a staked territory; the Orient has been broken from its dead isolation of centuries. Frozen Russia is putting on the habiliments of capitalism. Every capitalist country is struggling for markets and failure to dispose of its surplus product means death and destruction.

The very necessity of capitalist life, i. e., the profit system, is extension, expansion or death. Surplus products must be forced into the most remote portions of the earth, and there are no deserts or seas that can resist its onward march and its struggle to live. The commercial rivalry between Great Britain and Germany is the same in principle, object and purpose as that which exists between rival railroads or steel companies. Since 1870 the capitalistic development of Germany has been growing at a tremendous rate. In the last ten years the exports of the United Kingdom increased only twenty-four millions, while German exports increased over one hundred and ten millions. For the last two years, closing 1913, German exports increased thirty-four millions; that of the United Kingdom only ten millions. Germany, feeling its right to live and grow, has reached out thousands and thousands of miles and has established herself on Chinese soil; occupied east and western portions of Africa; has built a railroad from Bagdad to the Persian Gulf and you can travel in their trains over the land of Cambeses and Nimrod. The German consuls are are trained in the language, the habits and the requirements of the countries where they were located. They were commercial agents for German enterprise. The kaiser has been spoken of as the greatest drummer for German goods. German commercial progress is a constant menace and challenge to British capitalism.

For markets which are essential to the life of the capitalistic class, it will scruple at absolutely nothing. It will choke its factories with infants whose lives it transforms into dividends. It destroys motherhood in the shop, bends and breaks the form and soul of working men and starves them during its industrial depressions. England has been forced to reduce her army standard twice in recent years, so fearful has been the onslaught of her factory system upon the working class of the British islands. Those who are familiar with the brutality of our factory system, oru finance and commercial system during times of peace, have no reason to be surprised at the European conflagration. We Socialists knew it was coming, gave our warning and it fell upon deaf ears.

"This is a king's war," says a maudlin saphead. "It is a war for an idea," says naive and simple H. G. Wells. "It is a war party's sport," replies another group of ivory heads. "English freedom is at stake and the English never shall be slaves," sings the poverty stricken wretch who is fighting for his lord and his capitalist's factory or diamond mines.

The veriest flubdub to hide the basis, the underlying strata of it all. Did the kaiser pay or vote the hundreds of millions for German war enpenses? Did the king of English vote a billion for arms and war impediments? Kings and royalty are as much responsible for this conflict as the tinseled prow of the boat in guiding its course. What "idea" are they contesting for from London to Tokio, for democratic governments? Is not France a republic, and hypocritical old England, always destroying the reputation of its enemies, a half republic? Did war parties and an "idea" cause the dumping of American securities by foreign capitalists upon the market for the past six months? Did an "idea," "war parties" or kings cause the flow of gold to foreign lands for sixty or more days before the opening of hostilities in preparation therefor?

The capitalist class holds the world's exchequers and only by its sanction and permission is international war possible. "Ideas," "religion," "humanity" and "war parties" bow to the will of the capitalist class, the will to live, and to live it must grow and to grow it must expand and to expand it must have more markets and for that it will sacrifice civilization and the last man, woman and child, and in its last gasp will reach out to grasp and drag the universe down with it into the depths. It knows no god and all gods, no race and all races, for its woe it will reject all, for its weal accept everything.

Economic interest, as sordid as it may appear, draws everything into the vortex of its world-wide whirl, without minimising the effect of religion, ethics and sentiment. We have pointed out this economic as the determining factor again and again. That the economic is the determining factor in civilization is now shown in a great and terrible object lesson.

See how religious differences disappear. English atheistic and Protestant, Belgium Catholic, Russia Greek Catholic, where a Roman Catholic priest is sent to prison if he proselytes.

Japan, the land of Buddha and Shintoism.

There they are, the atheist, the Protestant, the Greek Catholic, the Roman Catholic and the pagan united. The monarchy, bureaucracy and the republic. Allies in arms, allies reaching across more than one-half of the globe—FOR MARKETS, FOR DIVIDENDS, FOR INTEREST AND PROFITS. The yellow and the white races, the Slav and the Latin, stand as a unit submerging race and religious differences. On the other side Germany, materialistic and Protestant.

Austria, Catholic to the core, so much so that when Rampolla was elected pope, Austria vetoed his election, forcing a re-election, resulting in the selection of the late pope, Guiseppo Sarto.

Then Mohammedan Turkey, allies side by side.

Behold the German materialist, the Austrian Catholic, the Mohammedan Turk, the CROSS and the CROWN of THORNS, the STAR and the CRESCENT, MECCA and JERUSALEM, worshippers of MOHAMMED and JESUS, united for profits, for markets and commercial supremacy. A specter that should drive home to the brain of every one. The overleaping fact that capitalism forces religion and rational differences into its common purpose for commercial conquest.

In 1912 Lord Haldene went to Germany on a peace mission. In 1913 Marshal von Bieberstein went to England upon a peace mission. These emissaries failed. England's reply to Bieberstein was, "That for every German battleship England would build two." Austin Harrison, editor of the English Review, predicted a failure for all peace overtures and said that England's imperial stomach was full, that Germany was young and hungry; that England would maintain her supremacy upon the sea, but that Germany had a right to take it from her if she could.

For the last two years the foreign markets have not absorbed the surplus products of the great capitalist countries. We have been passing through an international depression and crisis. The solemn tread of the unemployed is familiar in Tokio, San Francisco, Chicago, New York, London, Paris, Berlin, St. Petersburg; and capitalism had reached a breaking point. The shell was breaking; it was compelled to strike or collapse, destroy its rivals or cease to be. The most energetic capitalist country in Europe struck for its life, and England is fighting for hers, but it is a class fight for class rule.

The masters have sent forth their victims, "commending them to God," and when the clouds lift the victors will take their markets and the soldier victims will go back to work, wondering what cause the vine grower of France really had for murdering the German wage worker and wheat raiser.

Perhaps more will come out of all this. Turning over royal thrones may mean something, but we must break the iron, steel, gold and silver shackles that bind us to our brutish masters, and to whom in peace and war we pay out our life's blood to exist in lands we make rich with our labor.

Our capitalist class—our exploiters—are of the same blood and bone as those who mingle the ashes of our dead European comrades.

We have heard the rumbling for years, the eruption has come, covering the heavens with darkness and the earth with ashes.

After all this, will it slumber or become extinct? Only the workers of the world can answer, and we know the answer they will make as they internationally mobilize for Socialism, peace and the fraternity of men.

JUDICIAL INJUSTICE LEADS TO GUN-JUSTICE

Time wore heavily on against the hopes of a bereaved father and loving brothers who continued their frantic search only in vain. At last a clue was found. A trace discovered to the missing child. The clue was followed by the father and brothers and true to parental instinct they found the daughter.

Yes, they found her last May or June, we are told, and at that time consulted one attorney of Columbus, after another, with invariably the same response, there is no use trying to get your child, now 26 years old, out of that religious institution, by court procedure.

Our judges are all bluffed, they were told repeatedly and habeas corpus writs are a thing of the past.

Weary of head and sore of heart-throbs, both father and sons returned home to spend sleepless nights, anxious days and prayerful reverie which we could not censure if their prayerful waiting, turned into cursing, seething, raving maniacal activity.

The days and nights dragged more wearily than before, until at last they heard of the "Power of the Menace" and of the organization it supports and which supports it. The jig was up. The location of the daughter was revealed, plans were laid, and on a certain day about September 15th, 1914, a big automobile drew up in front of the Convent of the Good Shepherd at southwest corner of West Broad Street and Sandusky Street, Columbus, Ohio, three men entered the convent, asked to see Miss T———.

The master spits on his "hands" and they go to work for him.

She was presented and while two men shook hands with her another covered the Sister in attendance with a sure-shot gun and holding another gun in readiness for any and all comers, the two pulled the girl through the opening and all left the convent, entered the auto and left for parts unknown.

Gun-Justice triumphed over Judicial Injustice.

What a terrible indictment of the weakness of judges, when men are brought face to face with prominent attorneys who tell them there is no justice to be had against certain political and religious influences.

That the reader may not mistake our position in this matter let me remark that it is not the religion maintained at this convent which we are assailing, but the terrible injustice to this girl in being snatched away from parents at the tender age of 15, imprisoned for 11 years and no hope of liberty. The awful grief that would murder the mother and the agony and suffering of a doting father. The only mystery to us is how any religion could be so cruel, so unrelenting as to be parties, yes guilty parties, to such atrocities. Surely the late Pope Pius X, who died praying for peace would not sanction such oppression, and if so, then no wonder God Almighty did not answer his prayers. Brother Catholic don't you know that such things are doing more to bring your faith into ridicule than any thing else?

We also want to say to the Protestants of Columbus that when a Protestant Judge, member of one of the prominent churches of Columbus, sends a young girl, Elsie Corriell, to a protestant institution like the Girls' Industrial School, on a fake picture card which the Judge knew Elsie never saw and you stand by and make no protest, you are cursing your own religion.

Bitterly crying for work?
Brains that have fashioned, and hands that have carved,
Must idle that never would shirk?
—Ye answer along with the languish Turk—
"Allah knows!"

We plead ye:
What will ye do for the guileless thing
That suckles on breasts that have dried?
And what is the message of comfort ye bring,
To the hovels where hoping has died?
Ye say with a glance of your eyes to the side—
"Lord knows!"

We beg ye:
What will ye do for the toilina men,
Whose products ye covet and siese?
And what may ye make for the children-men,
That are warped in your factories?
And ye drum the same tune to all of our pleas—
"God knows!"

We ask and we plead and we BEG of ye,
And ye answer the same trite way—
As though it were all in the world ye could say—
"God knows!"

God nnows, eh!
Allah, or ord, or Buddha or God—
Satan or seraphim—
We won't be content with a word and a nod,
Or a promise of ruth from them.
They'll answer us quick, or will get at this God,
And we'll chock the Truth out of Him.

If God knows.

IF YE LIE!
And we find that this God is a spook,
To frighten us, miserable motes—
We'll ask for no words, but the things that ye took,
And we'll offer no cash, or our notes—
And we'll list to no dogma of Gospel or Book,
But we'll choke the Lie in your throats!

That we know!

THE GERMAN UNEMPLOYMENT PROBLEM MAY LEAD TO SOCIALIST REVOLT

(By United Press.)

Rotterdam, Sept. 15.—Advices received here from Berlin indicate that there is deep gloom everywhere throughout Germany. The government is making public only some of the losses and the newspapers are carrying only a small percentage of even the official lists. There is declared to be a grave discontent because the government has failed to make any provision for the unemployed. Business generally is at a standstill and the leading Socialist newspapers are complaining because the government is employing war prisoners on road work instead of hiring German unemployed.

Some of the reports received from interior Germany say that already there are whispers of an uprising by the Socialists, who feel that the country has been deceived by the Kaiser.

YEAR OF REMARKABLE SOCIALIST PROGRESS

By G. A. Hoehn

Within the last twelve months the International Socialist movement has made wonderful progress.

In a number of countries general elections have taken place during the year and in every instance the Socialists gained in votes and mandates.

In Italy our comrades almost doubled their previous vote and the number of members elected to the chamber of deputies, the total Socialist vote reaching almost the million mark (997,000), electing 79 Socialist members to parliament.

In the Argentine Republic the Socialists increased their representation in the national congress from 2 to 7, increasing their vote correspondingly. Sweden had a general election and the Socialists increased their number of members in the Rigsdag (congress) from about 40 to 64.

In Bulgaria, where the Socialist party had practically no representation in the Sobranje (national legislature), there are today 31 Socialist members in the legislative bondy.

Finland increased the number of Socialists in the national parliament from 81 to 90, in spite of the Russian czar's tyranny and persecution.

The latest news of unprecedented Socialist progress comes from France where the Socialists increased their vote by about 300,000, reaching the 1,400 000 mark, gaining 26 seats in the chamber of deputies, where they are now represented by 102 members.

In Germany, Holland and other countries, good Socialist progress was also made in municipal and local or special elections.

The three central European countries, Austria, Hungary and France, have today a combined Socialist vote of over 6,700,000.

What a magnificent army of labor working for freedom and international peace!

It is now up to the Socialists of the United States to add to these many yictories of the International Socialist movement at the next November election.

Now is the time to prepare for the great Socialist campaign.

THE INQUISITIVE BOY

Boy—The paper says some Chicago operators made $25,000 in one day off of wheat. Do they raise wheat in Chicago?

Pop—No, my son. The men merely bought the wheat and sold it.

Boy—How did they get enough wheat to sell it and make that much money all in one day?

Pop—They didn't really have the wheat, my son. They sold futures.

Boy—Then they bought nothing and sold nothing. Is that it, Pop?

Pop—Why, er er.

ers raise wheat, doesn't it, Pop? Did you ever hear of a farmer making $25,000 in a night over a raise in the price of wheat?

Pop—I can't say that I did. But the farmer can only sell his own wheat, you know.

Boy—But it is wheat he sells.

Pop—Y-e-s.

Boy—The best way to make money off of wheat, it seems to me, is to not have wheat, and then deal in wheat. Is that so, Pop?

Pop—Oh, hush up, you don't understand business.

SOCIALIST STATE TICKET SAFE

Old party papers were vociferous in their efforts to lead the general public to believe that the Socialists had failed to secure enough signers to get on State Ballot, and announced under black type headlines that such was the case. The fact is that there has been filed in the office of Secretary of State Graves, petitions with 15,602 signatures although many County Boards of Election failed to send in the petitions.

MASS MEETING RENEWS ENTHUSIASM.

The result of the call issued by Local Columbus for a mass meeting of all Socialists, both those in good standing and those who had lapsed, resulted in an excellent attendance on the evening of September 23rd. The meeting was presided over by Comrade Suddick, who stated the purpost of the meeting, after which Comrade Bachman made an excellent address on the needs of close organization. That the meeting was beneficial was shown by the applause given the speaker and the number of application cards filled out and presented to the Secretary.

The committee in charge of the meeting made a report and offered a plan to enable Local Columbus to pay off its outstanding obligations, and to provide means to finance the work of propaganda and education. In order to get the necessary funds to do this notes were offered to those present in sums of $10.00, $5.00, $2.50 and $1.00. Almost $100.00 worth of the Locals paper was subscribed and since the meeting many more dollars have been taken up by those not present. Altogether the meeting was a thorough success, not only for the opportunity it gives the Local to put itself on a sound financial footing, but for the spirit of class conscious solidarity it developed, which is of more value than can be computed at the first glance. Many more meetings of the nature of the one under notice would be beneficial and Local Columbus will no doubt see that they are held.

If anyone wishes to take up a note to assist in financing the program Local Columbus has in view the same can be had from Comrade O. C. Fulton, East Columbus, or at the regular Local meetings, held on Wednesday evening.

STATE HEADQUARTERS SOCIALIST PARTY OF OHIO.
Room 68, Wesley Block.

Columbus, Ohio, Sept. 22, 1914.

As a result of the story printed in all the capitalist dailies that the Socialist Party had not secured enough signatures to their petitions to get their ticket upon the ballot, the State Office was fairly swamped with correspondence and telegraph and telephone calls asking about it.

The Secretary of State advises that 15,961 signatures have been filed to date on the Socialist petitions and a few counties still to be heard from. This is 5,000 more signatures than were required.

The Socialist ticket will appear upon the ballot as usual under the regular party emblem.

The following locals have been organized since the last report: Millersburg, Ashland, New Boston, Johnson, Roseville, Bluffton, Pomeroy, Navarre and Sharon Center.

Local Mt. Vernon, which has not been very active for some time, is now making a great showing. Speakers are being engaged for a series of meetings and great plans are being laid for the upbuilding of that local. They are not only getting the former members to rejoin, but much new timber is being brought in as well.

Local Springfield shows much activity in the past few weeks with F. G. Strickland, R. Buell, Ella Reeve Bloor, B. F. Allen, Benj. Wilson and Midney and have billed for the future Comrade Lockwood and Scott Wilkins.

A committee elected by Local Columbus for the purpose, has sent out more than 500 letters inviting all the members to be present at their next meeting at which plans will be proposed to bring the old members back into action again and by which new members can also be added. It promises to be a big event and it is hoped that the local can be put back on a good foundation.

The State Office reports a tremendous sale of the PEACE BUTTONS recently gotten by them, the orders for them coming in faster than the manufacturer could supply them. Several large orders from points outside of the state have been received. Compliments on the buttons are received with each order and locals that have not yet sent in an order for them do not realize what a golden opportunity they are allowing to slip by.

Arrangements are now being made to put into circulation, the 8-hour law initiative petition recently voted upon by the party membership.

Thirty thousand signatures will be required to get the measure before the legislature and the locals will be asked to immediately organize all their forces to secure them. It means a three times larger task than that of our state nomination petitions on which only 10,364 signatures were necessary. With the experience that the comrades have now had on former petitions, no doubt is felt on securing enough on the Eight-Hour petition.

O. G. VAN SCHOYCK,
State Secretary.

THE SOCIALIST ANTI-WAR PROTEST

It can be depended on that if the rulers of the great nations drench a great continent in human blood, they will have an unparalleled wave of Socialism to combat in the coming generation. For the war that it makes on war is one of Socialism's most conspicuous features. A generation ago, in most of the countries of Europe, the blare of the war trumpet would have found every worker responsive. At the signal of the king or of the privileged behind the throne, he would have answered the call to the colers, dumbly assuming the bloody burden and fighting, even dying, in a quarrel in which he had neither voice nor hope of gain. But now a new note resounds. It is the tramp of millions in organized protest, marching to hymns of human brotherhood.

"You shall not press upon the brow of labor this crown of thorns," a working host is shouting to the despot kings. Unarmed, save by the justice of their protest, wholly or in large part disfranchised, they nevertheless gain strength as a tide that is rising; and already the butchers of men are wondering if they can meet the issue. For the moment, perhaps they can. Meet it and do their own will with it. But not for long.

QUITS DEMOCRATS AND JOINS SOCIALIST PARTY

Recently a Democrat member of the Oklahoma Legislature, Ollie M. Morris, resigned from the Democratic Party and joined the Socialist Party.

In a pamphlet which he has issued he explains the reasons for his action.

He says that he went to the Legislature under the impression that the Democratic Party really wished him to carry out the promises in the platform, but discovered that the real bosses of that party had no such intention.

"They expect a man to advocate certain measures," he says, "but if he actually tries to carry out these measures, they will defeat him."

SHRAPNEL SHELLS

By M. A. DePage, President International Surgical Association.

One year ago I was tending the wounded on the Macedonian hills. I saw war. I saw a hundred thousand men strewn over fields like chaff before the wind. One does not forget such a sight.

Some of you have seen, as I have, a shrapnel burst amid a laughing crowd of soldiers. You have seen, as I have, the bodiless heads still smiling as the mangled bodies were cast hither and yon.

Sometimes I—I, a surgeon, wonder why mankind does not abolish these shrapnel shells. They are worse than exploding bullets, yet no army will tolerate the exploding bullets, while all armies have shrapnel. I, a surgeon, am for peace. Had I my way there would be no guns, no soldiers, no armies, no wars. It will come.

KETTLE HILL ENCOURAGES POTSDAM

Never since this cruel war started have we even remotely attempted to load the responsibility therefor on the German Kaiser. On the contrary, we have constantly asserted that he was no more responsible for it than any of the others, even though he talked about war somewhat more than they did.

There is some evidence, however, to show that the Kaiser may have been seduced by belligerent advice from unexpected quarters, and that he has been urged and encouraged to the fray by notorious mouth-fighters.

Some time ago an aggressive visitor to Berlin mounted a rostrum in that fair city, and before the assembled elders thereof, held forth as follows in the hearing of all men:

"We must play a great part in the world and perform THOSE DEEDS OF BLOOD AND VALOR WHICH ABOVE EVERYTHING ELSE BRING NATIONAL RENOWN. BY WAR ALONE can we acquire those virile qualities necessary to win in the stern strife of actual life. In this world the nation that is trained to a career of UNWARLIKE and isolated ease is bound to go down in the end before other nations, which have not lost the manly and adventurous qualities."

Who was the fire-eater who spake these words in Berlin? Who was the bellicose party who urged this advice upon the Kaiser and his advisers?

He was a man who had won the highest renown in this western hemisphere for his alleged "Americanism." He has been described thousands of times as an American of the Americans, and millions of people here have been urged to love and admire him for these qualities.

He was once a President of the United States. His name is Theodore Roosevelt.

And the above message was brought from Kettle Hill to Potsdam.

When denouncing the Kaiser as a war lord, don't forget who aided and abetted him; consider the advice and where it came from, and then think again.

END OF MONARCHY

From the Chicago Tribune.

Before establishing a hell on earth the pietistic kings commend their subjects to God. Seek the Lord's sanction for the devil's work. "And now I commend you to God," said the Kaiser from his balcony to the people in the street. "Go to church and kneel before God and pray for His help for our gallant army." Pray that a farmer dragged from Saxon field shall be speedier with a bayonet thrust than a wine-maker taken from his vines in the Aube; that a Berlin lawyer shall be steadier with a rifle than a Moscow merchant; that a machine gun maned by Heidelberg students shall not jam and that one worked by Paris carpenters shall. Pray that a BBavarian hop grower, armed in a quarrel in which he has no heat, shall outmarch a wheat grower from Poltava; that Cassocks from the Don shall be lured into barbed wire entanglements and caught by masked guns; that an inn-keeper of Salzburg shall blow the head off a baker from the Loire. "Go to church and pray for help"—that the hell shall be hotter in innocent Ardennes that it is in equally innocent Hessen; that it shall be hotter in innocent Kovno than in equally innocent Pose. And the pietistic Czar commends his subjects to God that they may have strength of arm in a quarrel they do not understand.

The kings worship Baal and call it God, but out of the sacrifice will come, we think, a resolution firmly taken to have no more wheat growers and growers of corn, makers of wine, tinners and fishers, artesians and traders, sailors and storekeepers, offered up with prayer to the Almighty in a feudal slaughter, armed against one another without hate and without cause they know, or, if they knew wouldn't give a cent which way it is determined. It's the twilight of kings. The republic marches east in Europe.

HOPE OF PEACE IN SOCIALISM

London, Aug. 8.—The Nation, the organ of the English pacificists, says today:

"There is but one substantial hope of avoiding a second return of Europe to barbarism. That lies in setting up in each afflicted country a reign of modified Socialism. This partial reorganization may be effected by the action of states and municipalities in regulating employment and food supplies."

INGERSOLL'S CREED

To love justice; to long for the right; to love mercy; to pity the suffering; to assist the weak; to forget wrongs and remember benefits; to love the truth; to be sincere; to utter honest words; to love liberty; to wage relentless war against slavery in all its forms; to love wife and child and friend; to make a happy home; to love the beautiful in art, in nature; to cultivate the mind; to be familiar with the mighty thoughts that genius has expressed, the noble deeds of all the world; to cultivate courage and cheerfulness; to make others happy; to fill life with splendour of generous acts, the warmth of loving words; to discard error; to destroy prejudice; to receive new truths with gladness; to cultivate hope; to see the calm beyond a storm, the dawn beyond the night; to do the best that can be done, and then to be resigned—this is the religion of reason, the creed of science. This satisfies the brain and heart.

THE [illegible]IALIST

A Weekly Newspaper Without a Muzzle

Vol. IV. Whole No. 197 COLUMBUS, OHIO, OCT. 3, 1914 Price, 2 Cents per Copy

THIS PAPER is published in the interest of the working class. If you think it is worthy of your support, support itby getting new subscribers. If you don't like it, don't knock. We are making it as good as you will allow. Whenever the workers support their own press as valiantly as they do the master's press we will be able to do really big things for the emancipation of the workers. In the meantime, we are forging ahead conscious of the fact that our cause is just, that right will finally triumph, and the workers step forth emancipated from the age-long servitude to a robber, master class.

Judge Samuel Black Compels Worker to Desecrate Both Sunday and Labor Day

Then Sues Him for Month's Rent After House Vacated

Samuel L. Black, Judge of Probate and Juvenile Courts, and member of Rev. Kellogg's Broad St. Methodist Church, and owner of house Number 1553 Howard Ave., called at said home late Saturday, Sept. 5th and ordered tenant to vacate at end of his term. His term ended Sunday, Sept. 6th, at midnight. Monday, Sept. 7th, was Labor Day. The tenant, Luther Dinsch and wife, were compelled to work all day Sunday, and all day Labor Day, moving out of the house owned by a Christian.

They turned the key of the house over to the Christian landlord on Sept. 8th, and on the day of Sept., the Christian landlord sued him for the rent for the whole month of September, in the Justice Courts of Montgomery Township. The case was heard Sept. 25th before T. H. Hennessey, J. P., who properly held that Samuel L. Black could only hold Luther Dinsch for two days' rent, $1.60.

So we have a double Judge and a Christian practicing judicial and religious sabotage on a worker.

PERSECUTIONS SHOULD CEASE

Catholics, Protestants and Both under Capitalism Should Cease Persecutions of Working Class

Now comes the announcement in Ohio State Journal of Sept. 28th, 1914, that Bishop J. Schrembs of Toledo, in a sermon before the American Federation of Catholic Societies of Baltimore, Maryland, calling upon all Catholics of the United States to protest to President Wilson to stop the alleged brutal treatment of thousands of Catholics in Mexico. Cardinal James Gibbons was present and approved the sentiments of Bishop Schrembs.

If brutal atrocities are being indulged in in Mexico against Catholics or Protestants or infidels, it is right and proper for Bishop Schrembs and Cardinal Gibbons and their church members to protest. This protest, however, would come with much better grace if the Catholic Church did not have a long trail of equally brutal if not more atrocious persecutions to its credit, not only in the past and in foreign countries, but right now in this United States. Day after day, night after night, innocent children are crying and weeping from behind high, dark and cruel walls, called convents, for liberty, for home, for the loving care of mother, mother. Oh for a night with mother, yea, an hour with mother. If only these innocent children could, with any assurance, send the world renowned words of McKinley, "Tell Mother I'll be There." But no, the message, if any, must be, "Tell mother I'm compelled to stay here."

Oh! the cruel, cruel law, or rather absence of law, that commits such life-long, brutal tortures of innocent children.

Bishop Schrembs complains that "Numbers of women who have sacrificed their lives for their Catholic Faith have been handed over to that which is worse than death—the lust of an inhuman soldiery."

If this be true, it is deplorable in the extreme, but not more so than when we say that millions of mothers have sacrificed their lives not only for their faith but the faith of their children who are now imprisoned in convents, subject to the lust of an inhuman priesthood.

Only Oct. 15th, Miss T. was liberated from the local convent after 11 years imprisonment, during which time she is said to give birth to a child now three years old.

Bishop Schrembs says further, "But I feel tempted in this present crisis, when men and women, because of religious faith and conviction, are made to drink the bitter cup of religious persecution to the very dregs to say to this political genius, here is a splendid field for translating rhetoric into action."

Yes, Bishop; and we feel tempted to say to you that right here in United States, no doubt in your home city of Toledo, you have a glorious opportunity to translate rhetoric into action by tearing down the convent walls and liberating the innocence of childhood.

Will you do it, Bishop Schrembs, or will you go out before the Catholic and Protestant world alike branded as a hypocrite, preaching one thing in Mexico and unlawfully practicing another in United States? Come across clean, Bishop.

STARVE WAR, FEED AMERICA; HOW TO DO IT

By A. M. Simons,

Author of "Social Forces in American History," "Wasting Human Life," Etc., Etc.

War Leaflet No. 2

Editor's Note: One million copies of the rousing leaflet, "STARVE THE WAR AND FEED AMERICA!" have almost been disposed by the National Congressional Campaign Committee. It was War Leaflet No. 1. It is planned to issue this program, "How It Can Be Done," prepared by A. M. Simons, as War Leaflet No. 2. One million of these will also be printed and it is felt that these will also be spread broadcast over the country in two or three weeks.

Capitalism has plunged the world into a war that threatens the moral, political, social and financial bankruptcy of capitalism.

In the face of the problems made by the war the defenders of capitalism, here and in Europe, can only display its inefficiency.

Socialists fought the things that made the war inevitable. Socialists protested against the coming of war until overwhelmed by the forces built up and nourished by the enemies of Socialism.

Now capitalism has met the problems of war only as it has borrowed from the philosophy and program of Socialism.

Now a swiftly growing army of unemployed presses down upon the wage scale, while the mad waste and social confusion which comes from turning the social machinery of whole continents to the work of death and destruction is sending prices to a point that brings unendurable suffering to the masses of the workers.

IN THE FACE of this hideous threat to the great majority of the population—a condition of literal siege by hunger for millions of human beings—the political parties and so-called statesmen of capitalism have nothing to offer but foolish suggestions of "regulation" and "trust busting."

On the other hand, the Socialist party presents a complete practical program requiring little change in social machinery but involving the most vital changes in the application of that machinery.

There is unlimited wealth in natural resources, human skill and mechanical appliances in America to satisfy every human want. The Socialists would simply use these things for the good of all.

One of the patchwork proposals suggested by the present government is that the farmer be extended credit upon his goods while they are awaiting the market which it is supposed will be found in the feeding of men engaged in killing each other, and destroying property. The Socialist party would keep these goods in America until the people here are fed.

The Socialist party would forbid the export of a single thing to the war zone. Anything so sent will only prolong the war and increase suffering at home and abroad. Keeping the food here will starve the war and feed America.

BUT THE SOCIALISTS would not deprive the American producer of a market nor the American consumer of a product. Instead of merely lending money upon the cotton, wheat, meat and other raw material, Socialists would have the state and national governments purchase these things at a price covering their labor cost of production. Such a price would be much easier to fix than railroad rates and other prices now fixed by regulating commissions.

Once these things were in the hands of the government, the way would be clear for a real solution of both the trust and the unemployed problem.

Instead of trying to send trust organizers to jail because they invented a bigger and better method of doing business, or of attempting the foolish and useless task of "busting" these great industrial organizations, Socialists would take possession of the trusts through the government and use the mills and machinery they control to manufacture the raw material purchased from the farmer.

Trusts have already been pronounced criminal conspiracies. According to capitalist law, they are already outlaws that have forfeited their right to exist. Certainly there is no reason why these trusts should not be seized by the government and operated for the common good.

Seizure of the trusts would give the instruments with which to transform the cotton into cloth, the wheat into bread, the animals into meat, and all other raw materials into forms that would satisfy human wants. In doing this the problem of the unemployed would be solved, since production being for use and not for profit, would not stop while there was a want unsatisfied or a worker unemployed.

EVEN THE MOST hardly pressed nations in the war zone are now appropriating large sums of money for the relief of the unemployed. Certainly the United States, in time of peace, should do no less. These unemployed, placed in the factories now trust-controlled and idle because of the disappearance of the foreign market, would produce the goods for which the people of America are in need.

These goods, when produced, can be transported by a greatly enlarged parcel post until such time as the railroads can be made public property. The English government seized the railroads at the outbreak of the war and is now operating them as a war measure. Surely if such measures are justifiable for taking life, they are doubly justifiable for saving life.

These goods should then be distributed through publicly-owned markets. Many cities are already establishing such markets. But without the other links in the chain of production and distribution these markets are cut off from their base of supplies, and the goods on their way to market are also preyed upon by profit-seeking forces that little relief comes to the consumer.

These markets should be equipped [illegible] they handle everything needed by the people, as did the department stores which the national government operated at Panama when building the canal. The parcel post should also be expanded locally to form a delivery service for these enlarged markets. Without such a delivery service a market is about as effective in supplying the wants of a population as a legless man in a foot race.

THIS COMPLETE PLAN of securing the raw material with justice to the producer, of then manufacturing and transporting the goods to the consumer, and solving the trust and unemployed problem on the way, is the immediate practical plan offered by the Socialist party to meet the emergency created and aggravated by the war.

This plan utilizes existing machinery whenever possible and requires no new instruments that cannot be put into operation within a few weeks.

It is an effective, simple, practical plan of mobilization of the industrial forces of the nation against the assaults of the armies of hunger, want, monopoly and unemployment.

While such a plan does not involve the installation of Socialism, it does lay the foundations of a society in which there would be no poverty, high prices, idle workers nor unnecessary misery.

Against this plan no objection can be brought save those inspired by the interests of idle exploiters.

The Socialist party is the only party pledged to such a program. It is the only party whose elected officials are pledged to bend every energy to the work of starving the war and feeding America.

A Peace Parade and Speeches

Sunday, Oct. 4, 1914

9 O'clock A. M. Sharp

Under auspices First Ward Socialist Party and Band

Parade will form at Corner Parsons and Jenkins Avenues at 9 A. M., and march over the principal streets of the south end, disbanding at Corner of Parsons and Innis Avenue, where speeches will be made by Comrade J. L. Bachman and others. All Comrades, Friends and Sympathizers urged to turn out.

THE MAN WHO STANDS ALONE

I honor any man who, in the conscientious discharge of his duty, dares to stand alone; the world, with ignorant, intolerant judgement, may condemn, the countenances of relatives may be averted, and the hearts of friends grow cold, sense of duty done shall be sweeter than the applause of the world, the countenances of relatives, or the hearts of friends.—Charles Sumner.

PROFIT THEIR PROPHET, GOLD THEIR GOD

There is no telling what the developments of the present war may be in consequence of the international solidarity of the workers which prevails already in the several countries involved and which may yet prove the magical factor to end the savage slaughter now going on even though it lacked the power to prevent the catastrophe in the first instance.

The Socialists of these nations have profited by the experience of the past and refuse any longer to murder one another at the behest of the master class which exploits them all, and the time will come, if it is not already here, when the world's workers will be sufficiently enlightened to make it impossible for any ruling class to set them at war upon one another while they sit back in pomp.

It [illegible] be observed that the aristocracy and nobility and clergy of Germany, Russia, England, Austria, France and other nations are not at the front having their bowels shot out and other remains left to the vultures. They are smugly and safely in their palaces, their club-houses and their salons, quaffing champagne and boasting about "our" valor and what "we" patriots are doing for the glory of the fatherland.

It is they who prate about the glory of the flag, but they do not fight for it; they leave that entirely to their vassal dupes. It is they who grow purple in their frenzy about "dying for your country" and who charge those their guff cannot deceive with lack of patriotism, but they themselves, although they own the country, do not shed one drop of their precious blood to save it.

The fact is that the workers of no nation have ever had a country of their own to fight for and to save and once the workers of the world own the countries and rule the nations of the world they will no longer be in the ignorant and savage state they necessarily must be to rend one another as they now do to save the country for the benefit of the robbers who have stolen it from the people.

The war is here and the powers that are responsible for it must fight it out and abide the consequences.

Socialists all over the world have been warning against it for years and have sought in every way humanly possible to stay the whirlwind of destruction, but in vain.

To extend the dominion of their exploitation, to increase their capacity for robbery and to multiply their ill-gotten riches has been their controlling motive and since they could only extend their piracies by invading one another, the war which has now broken loose on a continental scale was inevitable. It simply had to come, and cry out against it as we may, there was no way on earth or in heaven to avoid it.

Triumphant capitalism with a lingering remnant of feudalism rules all these powers. It is the aristocracy and nobility and clergy in alliance with the king, or emperor, or czar at the head, which constitute the ruling class and the reigning power. This class has no higher aim than profit and this power no other purpose than conquest. Profit is their prophet and gold their God.

Only the Socialists of Europe rose up in righteous revolt against the hell of war—no other organization, religious or political, cried out against the bloody crime.

To Editor:

Am sending you enclosed an editorial from The Trinidad Free Press.

It is sent not with a view of securing any personal aggrandizement but to show you as well as your readers just what publicity has done for the strike of the Colorado coal miners and with a view of making labor unions see that one of the greatest weapons in winning any strike—public sentiment—can be had if the right methods are used.

I wish I could thank you personally for the splendid assistance you have given me and the United Mine Workers in spreading broadcast the real truth of rule by a paid army of hired assassins in Colorado.

If you can use any or all of this editorial, I believe it will aid materially in showing the workers the power of this newly acquired weapon in winning strikes.

WALTER H. FINK.

"CHILDREN OF THE MILL"

"O tell me, wind in the darkness sighing,
What are you murmuring through the cold?
"I echo the wails of the children, dying, Whose blood and whose bone is ground into gold."
"And tell me, O stars in the darkness peeping,
What do you see through the wind and night?"
"We see rich men carousing or sleeping,
Whilst children are toiling for their delight."
"And ye children who go ere dawn to your labor, Why are your footsteps and voices so still?"
"Hush, for we must not awaken our neighbor,
The master and lord of the mill."

PSYCHOLOGY AND PRAYERS.

The Owners of America Raise the Price of Products on Account of the Murders in Europe.

By Henry M. Tichenor.

The sudden and startling increase in the price of all American products, especially foodstuffs, discloses what a critical condition the owners of this country found themselves in when all the nations of Europe declared murder. Unable to ship their products abroad, the owners of America found it necessary to immediately shove up prices in order to meet the loss sustained by the cutting off of foreign trade.

Twice before, in the past year or so, have the owners of America been obliged to raise the price of victuals. The first time was when Professor Wilson shot the tariff full of holes. As Professor Wilson did this for the avowed purpose of lowering the prices of American products, it naturally followed that the owners of America were forced to raise the prices in order to counteract the effect of the shot-up tariff. This so amazed Professor Wilson that he began the study of psychology.

The second rise in prices was caused by Professor Wilson smashing the trusts.

The owners of America had to do it in order to protect themselves.

The Professor loaded up with some more psychology.

He now proposes to start a public investigation to see why our eats have climped up higher than a cat's back.

When the owners of America become distrurbed with the Professor's public investigation, they will doubtless feel it their duty to sock things up still higher.

Flour has gone up, not, Mr. Boob, because the Princeton Professor hasn't busted the flour trust, but because English King George, by the grace of God, etc., and etc., and etc., has declared murder against the government of the German Kaiser William, by the grace of God, etc., and etc., and etc., thereby stopping the exportation of American flour. We have now got to eat it all ourselves, and we have such a big over-supply of it that it is necessary to raise the price or we might all eat too darn much. Also the price of New England navy beans has blown skyward, because the owners of America are unable to sell any of them to the Russian Czar Nicholas, by the grace of God, etc., and etc., and etc., who has for the moment quit murdering Socialists and others and has declared wholesale murder against Germany. Also the price of ice has been raised, because we can no longer export ice to Iceland, on account of all the ships being used for murder purposes. The same sudden rise in prices, and for the same named reasons, applies to potatoes, sugar, tea, coffee, canned goods, and everything else that is furnished to us for profit by the owners of America.

Secretary Bryan is making notes of all this, and a year from next summer he will explain it to those who attend his Chautauqua lectures. (Admission 50 cents, children, accompanied by their parents, half price. You will observe there will be no raise in the price of tickets to the Bryan Chautauqua lectures.)

The only relief that the politicians, who, like the groceries, are owned by the owners of America, offer the patriotic people who are so heroically saving the country from Socialism, even though it means starvation to them, is to wait until the Republicans get into power again and restore the old tariff and put together once more the separated pieces of the trusts that Professor Wilson has busted.

In the meanwhile the owners of this country may find that it is God's will to have our government declare murder against some other country, and thereby make the people so patriotic that they won't care a continental how much they suffer.

WHAT WILL YOU DO WITH YOUR BOY?

Few Opportunities Open for the Youth of Today—Big Interests Only Chance—Lawyers Who Can Show Them How to Evade the Statutes Receive Large Salaries and Managers Are Needed for the Industries They Control.

(By Charles Edward Russell.)

As a matter of fact it is no longer possible for a poor man to accumulate a fortune in America. Instead of every man having an opportunity to get rich no man has the opportunity to get rich except by gambling or rarely by speculation. No new great fortunes are being formed today and we may safely say that none has been started in the last ten years. The conditions in which a boy could start with nothing and become a multi-millionaire have vanished in this country and will not return. How shall the poor boy now start upon the road to fortune? Which way shall he take? Shall he enter a store and plan to become, like A. T. Stewart or Marshall Field, a great merchant? The great stores are now department stores owned by companies affiliated with the Central Interests. Shall he develop an industry, like John D. Rockefeller developed oil? To do that requires money and the money supply is owned by the Central Interests, which reserve all profitable industries for themselves. Shall he develop a railroad enterprise as Mr. Hill developed the present Great Northern? No man can now build a mile of new railroad nor acquire a mile of old except by the consent of the Central Interests that control all. Shall he hit upon a great invention as Mr. Westinghouse invented the airbrake? Here again his invention is useless without capital, and all the capital is controlled by the Central Interests, who will take the invention for themselves if it be for their benefit or suppress it if it threaten their profits. Shall he go into manufacturing and seek to be an independent proprietor content with a modest fortune? In practically all lines the independent manufacturer has been absorbed by or is vanishing before a trust. Shall he try to operate in real estate? In nine cases in ten the future of his real estate investment depends not upon his judgment and foresight, but upon the movements and decisions of the Central Interests. Shall he go into banking and try to become a great financier? In all the country there is no great bank uncontrolled by the central Interests.

He has, therefore, if he be ambitious and eager for success, the prospect of but one career. He can be hired man for the Interests. He can enter the law and can get large fees for showing the Interests how they can evade the statutes. Or he can manage something for the Interests and earn a considerable salary. The great railroad systems, banks, mills, factories, foundries, mines, insurance companies, lighting enterprises, street railroads, water powers, steamship lines, department stores, restaurants, drug stores, groceries, packing houses, farms and other properties owned by the Central Interests must be managed. Men must be had to manage them. But they will be men hired for a salary. They will not own the property they manage and will have no chance to own it.

HOW ABOUT COLORADO?

By Adolph Germer
Vice-president of the Illinois Mine Workers and National Executive Committeeman of the Socialist Party.

Reply to President Wilson.

[Editor's Note.—When the strike of the coal miners started, nearly one year ago, in southern Colorado, Adolph Germer was in command at Walsenberg in the heart of the war zone. In an effort to break the strike at this point, the mine barons had Germer arrested and put in solitary confinement in the Huerfano County jail. Since then Germer was elected vice-president of the 80,000 Illinois mine workers. Germer knows the struggle of the coal miners, and in this article reviews the peace proposition advanced by President Wilson. He also points a way out of the Colorado shambles.]

While we are completely consumed with an interest in the European "theatre of war" and are horrified over the reported atrocities perpetrated by the combatants, we ignore, innocently perhaps, the carnival of crime committed against the workers within the confines of these United States—the widely-heralded "land of the free and home of the brave."

For a year an industrial struggle, which has resolved itself into a civil war, has raged in Colorado, where the military power of the state has been used to deprive American citizens of the rights guaranteed them by the laws and constitutions of the state and nation.

The most brutal murders have been committed by the so-called "constituted authorities," in the name of law and order, and every move by those in power has been with the avowed design to dagger justice to death and continue the piracy that has blackened the state since it fell into the hands of such notables as Rockefeller.

No act in the category of crime has been overlooked in a mad endeavor to crush the spirit of the people who have risen in revolt against the rule of industrial and political despots, but there has been no break anywhere in the ranks of the strikers. In fact, every onslaught of the coal barons and their heartless agents has driven the miners to greater bitterness, and they are now more determined than ever to win.

There is no capitalist sheet anywhere to depict the horrors of capitalism in Colorado. No scare headlines are printed telling how the vitality of the masses is being sapped by the prolongation of the strike, caused by those obligated and paid to execute the laws failing miserably to do their sworn duty. But what can we expect from a muzzled press?

AND NOW, after the strike is a year old and scores of lives have been sacrificed on the altar of capitalist greed, the president of these "great" United States submits a peace plan.

Let us, for the sake of argument, concede that the plan is submitted with a sincere desire to preserve the welfare of the people of the state. But will it have that effect?

To scan over the surface of the proposition, one would conclude that the miners should be willing to accept it. However, to those who are fully familiar with the political and industrial situation of the state the scheme is meaningless, and for the miners to accede to it would be w[illegible]y surrendering to the minions of capitalism.

There is no room for justice where "government by injunction" prevails. And this will not be abolished by the president's peace plan.

The whole scheme reads fine until we come to paragraph B of Section 6, and here is where we encounter the joker. It seems that the most honest person with a capitalist psychology cannot omit jokers from proposals dealing with labor matters. Here we find that, "No mine guards to be employed, but this does not preclude the employment of necessary watchmen." What matters it whether we call the gunmen "mine guards" or "watchmen"? Their operations are the same under either name. The work of these "watchmen," as that of the "mine guards," will consist of watching and ferreting out union men. With these "watchmen" ever present, the surroundings of a union man will be anything but comfortable.

BUT MY CRITICS may say that the plan provides for a commission to adjust all grievances. Yes, it does, but a plan does not put itself into execution.

We have some experience with such a commission in the anthracite fields, which was created by Roosevelt in 1902 as an outgrowth of the anthracite strike. If the commission proposed by President Wilson does not act with greater rapidity than that in the anthracite region, the grievances will grow beards before the commission will get to them.

Moreover, we have been deluded by promises before. When the militia was sent into the strike zone last October, we were given the positive assurance that no gunmen would be tolerated. But instead of the militia purging the state of that vermin, these imported human vultures were accepted into the ranks of the military and received pay from the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company (the Rockefeller company) as mine guards (watchmen) and at the same time they were paid by the state of Colorado as Colorado National Guards. Every conceivable crime was committed by them, and when the strikers made complaint to the authorities they received the promise that the matter would be investigated.

Again, when these uniformed assassins were driven over the hills by the exasperated miners, and the federals were sent upon the scene, we were promised that the gunmen would have to leave the territory, and that no discrimination would be practiced. The strikers were totally disarmed, but the gunmen (watchmen) have worked in perfect harmony with the soldiers and they have conducted hundreds of strike-breakers into the mines.

Walter Belk, the self-confessed murderer, imported from West Virginia by the Baldwin-Felts Detective Agency, and others, are as active today intimidating the miners as at any time in their criminal career. It was Walter Belk who testified before the Senate committee in West Virginia that his men had orders from him to shoot, not only to hear the noise, who arrested William Diamond, the miners' representative, in Las Animas County.

We were further promised that the importation of strike-breakers would be stopped. Not only was importation permitted, but the federals guarded them into the mines.

Other promises have been as freely made and as freely broken.

SO LONG as sheriffs farm out their offices and distribute commissions to the paid hirelings of coal companies, as freely as politicians hand out their cards during campaign times, will there be trouble in Colorado. And these offices will be bargained for and farmed out so long as the mines of Colorado are the private property of the Rockefellers and Goulds.

The private ownership of the mines furnisfhed the incentive to maintain a private army of professional man-killers to stamp out the union, that the looting may continue unhampered.

While the mines are private property, the private owners will operate them to make the greatest possible profit, regardless of the requirements of the laws.

It is more profitable to run mines in violation of law than to obey it, when judges, sheriffs and coroners are the errand boys for the mine owners. And where, in addition to private ownership of mines, there exists the private ownership of judges, sheriffs and coroners, all the commissions President Wilson may appoint will be of no avail.

One and only one thing will bring peace to Colorado, and that is the seizure of the mines by the government, that they may be operated for the benefit of the people rather than for the enrichment of a few. Nothing short of that will establish peace.

I might be asked whether it is true that arbitration is one of the principles of the United Mine Workers of America, and I reply, yes. But matters that are clearly defined by law are not subjects for arbitration.

For example, the Colorado law clearly sets forth that employes shall have the undisputed right to belong to a union. What right have the miners to arbitrate that law?

ARBITRATION HERE would be compromising a law, and a compromise in that event would be the mother of tragedy. There are other important demands of the miners based upon the law. Many grievances would grow out of a violation of the law, and under the scheme proposed by the president it will be up to the commission to determine whether or not the law shall be carried out in its fullness, or whether the company shall be permitted to trim it.

But while the president is holding out the olive branch of peace, the coal barons are preparing for war.

The strikers completely routed the gunmen militia, and the federals came to their rescue. Since that time the scattered fragments have been reassembling, and they are now preparing for another brutal assault upon the strikers; one that will probably eclipse that at Ludlow, April 20.

The men who have been active in behalf of the miners are arrested by the wholesale at the instance of the coal barons. All this with the connivance of the federal soldiers. Persons who have the courage to find recourse against a pliant judicial lickspittle, under the recall law, are sentenced to jail for contempt of court. The uniformed cowards who found particular pleasure in shooting and burning to death defenseless women and innocent children are found "not guilty" by a tribunal made up of their kind.

The innocent are tortured while those from whose fingers drips the blood of men, women and children go free.

Whither are we drifting as a nation? And what are we going to do about it?

The time for decisive action is here. There is but one thing to do in this grave emergency: Adopt the slogan, "LET THE NATION OWN THE MINES," and let the president know that this is what you want.

PRAISE FROM STRANGE SOURCE

Praise often comes from strange sources. The power of the press is molding public sentiment for the Colorado striker, and the excellent work of a man were never more recognized than when the Pueblo Chieftain, notoriously the journalistic tool of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company, the other day printed these two paragraphs in what it was pleased to call its "Strike Edition":

"The United Mine Workers organized one of the greatest publicity bureaus in the history of labor troubles in this country."

"With the press bureau of the United Mine workers sending thousands of stories each week it can be seen why the sentiment of the country soon became favorable to the United Mine Workers and against the state militia and operators."

Oh, ho; then! So the Pueblo Chieftain admits what the Free Press has been saying all along and what it (the Chieftain) has steadfastly denied? The country is with the miners and against the militia and operators, is it? All right! Having settled that fact through the Chieftain's own belated confession, we will on to the next point.

Public sentiment could never have been brought over to the strikers' side had the papers of the country not printed the strikers' side. Isn't that clear? Surely. It also is admitted by the Chieftain when it says, "it can be seen why the sentiment of the country SOON (mark the word "soon") became favorable to the United Mine Workers." This would appear to not only establish the power of the press, but something vastly more.

The editors first had to be willing to print all this matter which the Chieftain complains was sent out through the really remarkable press bureau of the miners. To be willing to print it the editors of the country would first have to be on the side of the miners.

You see whither we are getting, don't you?

It would have been useless for the miners to maintain any sort of a press bureau if they could not get their stuff into the papers after they had written it and sent it out. Therefore, if it be true, as the Chieftain says (and for once we will admit the Chieftain is truthful), that the miners maintained the greatest publicity bureau in history, then it must be equally true that the stuff sent out by this remarkable press bureau was in demand and it required the greatest press bureau in history to keep up with this demand. The papers of the country were already convinced the strikers were right and the militia and operators wrong. The people of the country were willing to be convinced. The papers were willing to convince them. Thus the editors cried for stuff to give to their readers, and the "greatest bureau in history" had to be organized to supply that demand.

It all follows like the links in a well-formed chain. Anyone can keep up with the logic and reach the logical conclusion, and the Pueblo Chieftain must have indeed reached its senile and dotage days when it whimpers and puts forth such a statement.

Now, the power of the press having been proved, and it being equally clear that the press and the people are with the miners, because the Chieftain, which sheet certainly would not lie on such a dangerous point, says so, we'll say a bit about that publicity bureau which has confessedly done so much.

Up in Denver, a man named Walter H. Fink sits at a desk. He mauls a typewriter and he works pretty hard. He puts a good bit of stuff on the wire and he mails out a bit more. This stuff goes around over the country, and has been, as the Chieftain wails, greedily snapped up by the editors who are molding opinion and bringing it to the strikers' side. Mr. Fink, with the aid of the truthful, fair and intelligent papers of the country, is that "greatest press bureau in history." Mr. Fink doesn't receive any more than would a miner working on full time for a fair and decent employer. Yet, if there is a "greatest press bureau," Mr. Fink is IT, just as the Pueblo Chieftain, further along in its sob, declares. Evidently, according to the opposition, Mr. Fink is a tremendous force, and the miners are to be congratulated on being able to enlist so mighty a pen.

But up in the offices of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company, the Victor-American Fuel Company and the Rocky Mountain Fuel Company are other men toiling along, writing stuff and getting it ready to send out. These concerns have telegraph operators sitting at private wires which reach to the uttermost parts of the earth. In the coal fields they have still other men securing stories—and they are stories just as we were taught in youth to call the naked lie—penning these tales, rushing them into headquarters, and then tearing out madly for more. This constitutes the coal-baron's press bureau, and it costs a thousand, yea, ten thousand times more than does the "greatest bureau on earth" conducted by the United Mine Workers, and which consists of one able seaman, who is constantly before the mast ready to reef sails and get out true facts for the papers that are waiting for it.

Then, why doesn't this vastly expensive bureau of the operators get results? Why does it struggle along behind until the Chieftain part of that same operators' press bureau, is compelled to lament that the papers do not print it and hence that the people are "now favorable to the miners"?

Ah, right there is the fly in the operators' buttermilk. The editors do not want the operators' drivel. They know that the people do not want it. They know that it is untruthful; that it is written to assail ambitious workingmen; to create a capitalistic class, and that they would lose subscribers if they touched it. And so they print Fink's stuff, turning down the falsehoods that slither over the wires from the operators' headquarters, and thereby compelling Fink to work mighty hard at times.

That is all there is to it. But the miners should chirk up a large bit since the Chieftain grudgingly has admitted that the people are with the strikers. They should feel really chipper since it has been confessed by the notorious mouthpiece of the Colorado coal-baron that the leaders of the strike have conducted things in such able manner that the editors and people everywhere have been won over to the Colorado strikers' cause.

This is one strike that has known no mistakes on the strikers' side. Each day there has been progress. There have been no backward steps. No striker can complain, nor wants to complain, that his affair has not been fought intelligently, sanely, prudently and profitably since the very beginning.

And the people—the great common people, who own the country after all, and who control the papers by their patronage—are with you. Don't forget that. It's true because the Chieftain says it's true, and the Chieftain hates the striker and would not be apt to cheer him if it did not have to.

Great is the power of the press!

Great is the power of public sentiment!

Great is this man Walter H. Fink who, with his typewriter, constitutes the very economical, but nevertheless, "greatest publicity bureau in history."

And great are the leaders of the United Mine Workers of America, who have brought all these powers together for the one great purpose—the success of the strikers' cause and the betterment of labor everywhere.

AN INTERESTING SOMERSAULT

The wonder of the year in journalistic circles is the complete and astounding right-about-face of the capitalist press on the war question. Three months ago every journalistic pimp and prostitute in these United States was howling for war with Mexico. Nothing short of slaughter of a few thousands of "Greasers" would satisfy our national honor and appease the wrath of the editorial strumpets who loudly voiced the secret desires of their masters. The flag was waved; the burning of a few walls of the Standard Oil Company was enlarged upon and held up before the gaping public with whimpering cries for revenge; Villa, the saviour of Mexico, was denounced as a cutthroat and a murderer by every subsidized newspaper in America. Every little yellow dog of capitalism added to the war chorus his yelp for intervention. It can not be denied that the capitalist press from the Wall Street journals down to the mouthpiece of the small business man did its utmost to lash the American public mind into a war frenzy. Have you observed the change? These former jingoistic journals have suddenly grown to be worshipers at the shrine of peace. The ultra-neutral attitude of the President, who was insulted and maligned for his "watchful waiting" position, has become the subject of daily eulogies from the pens of the same editors who were his former detractors. The equal of this absolute flop in the editorial policy of the American capitalist press on the subject of war has never been witnessed before. To what can it be attributed? To what mysterious source can this miraculous change of front be traced? Dear reader, to judge the conduct and words of the average capitalist editor you must study the economic interest of his master in connection with any given case. As war in Mexico would have given the ruling class of America a tighter grip on Mexico and an increased rate of dividends, just just so will peace at the present time open to Big Business an Eldorado of European dividends as to almost stagger belief. Therefore the editorial Punch and Judy are forced to dance to another tune. The Hearst papers, the Mexican war friends, are for peace in Europe. Wall Street, which panted for Mexican gore, is wonderfully pleased with President Wilson's rigid neutrality. All this is simply another lesson in economic determinism. We will have peace in all countries when it is to the economic interest of the ruling class to have peace. With collective ownership and no profit system, the great majority, the working class will be in control, and as the interests of the workers are identical there would be no wars. Without commercialism and the profit system, wars would be absurdities and impossible. Socialism stands for brotherhood; Capitalism stands for strife. Choose ye this day.

PROBERS FIND TOT OF THREE AT WORK

Example of Greed of New York Firm

BUD OF LIFE IS BLASTED

A few weeks ago a commission investigating labor conditions in a certain place discovered a child of three years of age at work. A member of the commission asked him how long he had been at work, and the child replied, "Ever since I was." There was nothing of the oratorical about that statement; none of the white hot denunciation of a speaker whose heart is on fire because of such conditions—nothing but the simple statement of a baby condemned to toil like a galley slave. Yet what an arraignment of things as they are—of the greed and cruelty and selfishness of the land where such things can take place.

For this did not happen in the heathen lands to which we send missionaries, but in the sovereign state of New York. The pity of it all is that this is not an isolated case, but is only one of the thousands which are taking place all over so so-called Christian America today, where child life is being crushed in the mills of Mammon to make money for a few. And there are men high on the rolls of the churches who uphold the devilish system whose cornerstone is profit, even though the lives of little children are coined into gold in the process. Did such a thing as this happen in China or the land of the Hottentots the churches would be sending men there at once to save the natives, but because the men who own these factories and make the profit off the labor of this child and others like him are influential and rich they keep silence, though the Christ they pretend to worship said, "Suffer little children to come unto me."

Any man who claims to be a Christian and yet can uphold as system which produces conditions like this is a hypocrite. He may worship the Christ with his lips, but his mind is far away among the things of the world.

Poor little bud of a life, blasted before it has had time to flower into manhood, a helpless sacrifice to the Moloch of greed in Christian (?) America!

WHEN EUROPEAN WAR WILL END

The European war will not be stopped until blood has choked up the yells of national patriotism, until starvation has cooled the insane jingoism, until bankruptcy has shut off the power to kill, until a working class bled and starved into cool sanity turn upon and destroy war-crazed rulers who are cheering on the participants in this fiendish work.

To this it will come at last, and this is the important thing about this war. It may not come for many months and years. But come it will, and when it does come we will know the purpose of this war in the evolution of the ages.

It is for that time that the workers of America should make ready. At present all we can do is to take such measures as will hasten the starving process and prepare us to give aid when the war fever shall have run its course.

OHIO JOINS IN MOVE FOR LIVING WAGE FOR WOMEN

The Industrial Commission of Ohio investigated 1,086 mercantile establishments with a view to learning the wages paid their 15,744 women employes. It will submit its findings to the Legislature, by an act of which it was created, which will determine from them the need for minimum wage legislation.

That this need is grave is apparent from the results of the investigation:

Out of every 20 women,
Four receive less than $6.
Six receive $6 to $8.
Two receive $8.
Two receive more than $8 and less than $10.
Two receive $10.
Four receive more than $10.

In other words, 12 out of 20, or three-fourths of the women workers in Ohio, receive $8 and less, 71 cents below the amount fixed by the Massachusetts Minimum Wage Commission, inits investigation of the brush industry, as the minimum upon which a working girl "can supply the necessary cost of living and maintain herself in health."

The Industrial Commission of Ohio fails to supplement its excellent work by an insistent "recommendation" for minimum wage legislation. It does decide, however, "that of the 14,685 employes 18 years of age and over, 40.7 per cent receive weekly wages ranging from $6 to $8, inclusive, and of the 1,109 employes under 18 years of age, 755, or 68.1 per cent, receive wages ranging from $3 to $5 inclusive. The prevailing rate of wages may therefore be said to be from $6 to $8 a week, while for girls under 18 years of age the prevailing rates are from $3 to $5 a week."

But, as the Survey points out, the commission "refrains from suggesting whether or not this prevailing rate is sufficient, or what should be a minimum wage for those occupations. That is left for the Legislature."

Germany has seized the wireless telegraphs as a war measure, and France has seized the street transportation and automobiles. These will be precedents for Socialists later on to seize on all the industries as measures needful for the public good.

Men in earnest have no time to waste in patching fig leaves for the naked truth.—Lowell.

GOOD RECORD

The report of the legislative committee of the Chicago Federation of Labor has no fault to find with the three Socialists—Seymour Stedman, C. M. Madsen and J. M. Mason—in the Illinois State Legislature. "Should be returned" is the recommendation. That is what the Chicago Socialists are going to do, they claim.

START NATIONAL LEAGUGE OF YOUNG SOCIALISTS

Chicago, Sept. —With the formation of a National Young People's Socialist League, the young Socialists movement is expected to go forward with gigantic strides.

The members of the National Executive Committee at its meeting just held here, received the proposal of the formation of a national organization of young Socialists with great enthusiasm. The Socialist movement of the United States now takes its stand alongside that of the European countries with a national organization of young folk.

The National Executive Committee instructed the executive secretary to issue due stamps for the Young People's Socialist Leagues and selected the director of the young people's department to act as temporary national secretary of the league.

Each league will pay two cents per member into the national organization, receiving dues stamps in return. All those leagues joining the national organization by April, and purchasing dues stamps from the national office, will then have a national constitution submitted to them for referendum vote of their membership.

The vote of the leagues will be based upon the average number of dues stamps purchased per month, so that those leagues which want to get the full advantages of membership in the league, should join immediately.

A young people's organizer will undoubtedly be put out by the league this winter to make a tour of Connecticut, Massachusetts, New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and Eastern Ohio. It is probable that Kendrick P. Sheed, who has built up the powerful young people's movement in Rochester, New York, will be selected for this work.

The director of the young people's department, J. A. Rogers, will also spend sometime upon the road, dividing his time between work in the office and organizing work in Wisconsin, Illinois, Iowa and Indiana.

The Executive Committee also took steps to build up the young people's press. There are now several young people's papers in existence and an effort will be made to improve these and aid them in securing a large circulation among the young folk.

The Young People's Socialist League has put new life into the Socialist movement in many places and the National Executive Committee of the party is expecting even greater things in the future. No means will be neglected which will assist the young people in building up a powerful movement. They will be aided in every possible way.

"We are just getting started," said J. A. Rogers, the temporary national secretary of the league. "The members of the Socialist party in many places have failed to realize the importance of reaching the young people. Some of them still fail to see the value of the Y. P. S. L., but this attitude is slowly giving way.

"In places where leagues are at work, they have been found to care for a very important field and prove of value to the party in many ways.

"We are going to immediately proceed to organize as many states as possible and if our growth in the future will be as great as it has been during the past year, we are soon going to have a powerful organization. Watch our League. Watch us grow."

This national young people's organization may also take in some leagues in Canada.

THE STRUGGLE IN COLORADO
FOR INDUSTRIAL FREEDOM
THE "GUNMEN OF INDUSTRY" IN THE COLORADO COAL STRIKE.

When considering the relation of gunmen to the Colorado coal strike, it is well to remember that they received $239,645.86 from the operators for murdering 24 men, women and children, or in other words that the extermination of the strikers is so vital to the Colorado coal operators that they are willing to pay $7,048.41 for each life.

For twenty-five years the gunmen of industry, the hired armed guards of the corporations have gone hand in hand with strikes, have, at wages of $3 to $7 a day, left nothing undone in their brutal inhuman efforts to break the struggle of the workers and send them back to work broken in spirit to remani slaves to capital.

But in none of the strikes of the last quarter of a century have these so-called "detectives" created such a horrifying reign of terror, such an absolute despotism, as during the present struggle of the Colorado coal miners.

The operators have always been determined that they would not obey the mining laws of the state. Realizing that their employes would soon strike to secure an enforcement of the statutes, they began the importation of these so-called guards or detectives as early as January, 1913.

The Baldwin-Felts Detective agency, composed largely of thugs, who make a business of beating up and shooting the workers to break strikes, was employed by the Colorado coal operators. These men had worked for the West Virginia coal companies and had manned the "Bull Moose Special," an armored train from which the strikers and their wives and children were brutally murdered.

As the summer of 1913 grew on and the operators saw that they would either be compelled to grant the miners their state and constitutional rights or go through a strike, the force of guards was greatly increased.

When the strike was called September 23, 1913, there were more than 1,000 gunmet deputy sheriffs in Huerfano and Las Animas Counties. These men were fully equipped with high powered rifles and fully cognizant that they were employed not as guards of company property but as a guerilla band of thugs to "clean out" the tent colonies, tyrannizing the strikers so persistently taht they would be forced to leave the country.

Twelve machine guns were purchased by the mine owners and placed at points of vantage commanding the tented homes of the strikers.

A. C. Felts, Colorado chief of these gunmen, constructed an armored automobile in the shops of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company.

It was taken into the strike district, mounted with a machine gun and manned by six thugs with high powered rifles.

By this high powered "Death Special" was driven at top speed through the strike district, shooting into the tents colonies and maintaining a constant reign of terror.

By night powerful searchlights were played on the strikers' tents, keeping them always in deadly fear of an attack that might come at any moment.

From the time the strike began, September 23, 1913, until the Ludlow Massacre, April 20, 1914, this paid army of gunmen murdered or cremated thirty-four persons, whose only offense was striking for their constitutional rights in Colorado.

For this ghoulish method of attempted strike breaking the coal operators had paid up to and including August 15, 1914, the sum of $239,645.

But while the murder of the peaceful strikers and their families was the most horrifying phase of the strike, the terrorizing of the inhabitants of the strike zone, the insulting of tourists and other disinterested citizens, has equally helped to make Colorado stand out as the only state in the Union where anarchy and gunmen rule has displaced constitutional government.

The persecution of the striking miners and their families is so foreign to American liberty that it is almost beyond belief.

Men known to have been active in the union were waylaid, robbed and beaten, their wives abused and their childrened tortured by those fiends in human form. Homes were robbed and destroyed.

Tourists have been treated with the same disregard as residents of the strike zone. Men and their families from other states, touring through the coal mining section in automobiles have been fired upon from the ambushes where these imported gunmen are want to waylay strikers.

Persons alighting from trains in Trinidad, Walsenburg and others of the picturesque towns of Southern Colorado have been held up because they were suspected of being union men or union sympathisers. If they could not prove to these paid desperadoes of the operators that they were not interested in the strike they were often clubbed into unconsciousness or made to get back on the train at the point of a gun.

Evidence taken by the Investigating Committee of the State Federation of Labor suggested by Governor Ammons and the Congressional Committee named by President Wilson prove even greater outrages committed by this paid army of imported gunmen.

The coal miners are striking only for an enforcement of Colorado laws and a wage scale equal to that in the neighboring state of Wyoming.

At all times they have been and are willing to submit their grievances to any fair minded tribunal.

Rather than discuss the differences they have had with their former employes, the operators have preferred to use an army of paid murderers so that they might continue their wanton reign of anarchy and prevent the miners from securing those rights which the Colorado laws guarantee them.

The substantial citizens of Colorado have always been with the striking coal miners because they believe that the state can prosper only by a strict enforcement of the laws.

Since the strike of the Colorado coal miners began on September 23d, 1913, the coal operators and other interests have seen fit to attack the United Mine Workers of America. To any controversy that calls for explanation from either factor, there must be two sides. It is not within the bounds of possibility that the Colorado coal operators in arguing their own cause can be expected to give that full measure of justice to which the United Mine Workers of America are entitled.

The real facts must be known that there may be a more complete understanding of the situation.

We hope that a knowledge by the American people of the facts may lead to a solution of the present difficulties which will insure a healthy industrial peace in Colorado and a sounder relationship between Capital and Labor throughout the United States.

A Weekly Paper ... Without a Muzzle

Vol. IV Whole No. 198 COLUMBUS, OHIO, Oct. 10, 1914 Price, 2 Cents per Copy

University Library Ex O. S. U. N. High st.

THIS PAPER is published in the interest of the working class. If you think it is worthy of your support, support it by getting new subscribers. If you don't like it, don't knock. We are making it as good as you will allow. Whenever the workers support their own press as valiantly as they do the master's press we will be able to do really big things for the emancipation of the workers. In the meantime, we are forging ahead conscious of the fact that our cause is just, that right will finally triumph, and the workers step forth emancipated from the age-long servitude to a robber, master class.

"Convent Report" of County Commissioners Contradicted

Judge Black, Frequent Visitor at Convent, Says Inmate.

Impatient With Injustice of Cringing Judges, Like the Parental Love of Other Animals, Fight for Their Young and Succeed.

It now remains for the "confiscators of human bodies and souls" to take the lambasting which only Socialists can hand out.

The capitalist class, represented by the priests and preachers, have for years slandered Socialists and Socialism by charging that Socialists believed in confiscation. The letter which follows proves that Socialists do not believe in confiscation—that they believe only in restoration—receiving back that which they have lost, and by the eternal we mean to have it, too.

The "special correspondence" following proves who are the "confiscators." In this particular case the proprietors of the local convent located at the southwest corner of West Broad Street and Sandusky, either "confiscated the body and soul" of Miss Ella Tuning, aged 14 years, from her home in Fairmount, W. Va., or they are guilty of "Receiving the stolen body and soul" of Ella Tuning.

Of course the capitalist laws call it "kidnaping" when a child is confiscated, but when the capitalists steal the earnings of children they call it business, profits. Well it's profits all right, but it is also exploitation or confiscation, and we workers insist on it being restored to those who produced it.

To a Socialist there is no more damnable act of "confiscation" than the act of stealing a young, innocent girl from her mother, father and brothers, unless it would be the cowardly, cringing, refusal of judges to immediately release such a child to its broken-hearted parents.

LISTEN TO THE PARTIAL STORY of
MISS ELLA TUNING,
Late Inmate of Local Convent.
Barberton, Ohio, Sept. 28, 1914.
(By Special Correspondent.)

Miss Ella Tuning, while working in a private home in Fairmount, W. Va., in the year 1903, and at the age of 14, was met by a woman whom she says persuaded her to go to Columbus, Ohio, and to enter the convent there—the home of the Good Shepherd Convent on Sandusky and Broad Streets, Columbus, Ohio. Upon her disappearance from the place where she was employed as a domestic a thorough and vainless search was made for her, but absolutely no clue to her whereabouts could be obtained, and relatives believed her dead or forcibly held a prisoner. After having spent almost eleven long years in this institution, in March, 1914, she decided to take the black veil. Those in charge of the convent then notified her uncle in Coreopolis, Pa., that she was an inmate of that institution. The uncle then notified all relatives of the facts; her brother Harry then tried to get in communication with her. However, those in charge informed her that she could only write to him once or twice a year, but that she could have a personal conversation if they would come there to the convent. It was then arranged for Harry and Warren, her two brothers, to visit her May 6, 1914. This was followed by a visit by the father in the last of May. In these two visits those in charge paid strict attention to the conversation. In these visits she said in each she was perfectly satisfied to remain there, but the expression in her face when she said it convinced them that she did not mean it. Father and sons at each visit made close observations of the surroundings of the convent and a plan was then laid to offer her an opportunity to leave there if she so desired. To offer her an opportunity to leave and make a failure of it meant that it was doubtful if ever they could see her face again, so a visit was planned by one brother (Charles) and her sister, who visited her for two and one-half hours on September 10, 1914. Father and sons arrived in Columbus September 9, 1914, to execute their carefully laid plans, and after observing the surrounding conditions decided to make a desperate attempt [illegible] necessary to secure the liberty of their daughter and sister. A high-powered auto was secured and a chauffeur with orders to keep his engine running and who was perfectly ignorant of what was about to happen. They were received on this occasion the same as on former visits. After a few minutes' conversation she proceeded to show them her accomplishments in fancy work and all were apparently deeply interested. As there was a partition of double lattice between them, and a hole in this partition about fourteen by twenty inches, about four feet from the floor, through which they carried on their conversation, it was then the opportune moment arrived, September 14, 1914, at 10:20 a. m. The attendant sister who escorted them stopped into a side hallway. The older brother, Harry, then asked her if she would like to come home and see his babies. In reply she said he would not have to give her the second pull to get her through that hole, and a pull there was, and the second pull was not necessary. Out she came, and in less than a minute she was in the auto, there to have the first auto ride she ever had in her life. The driver was ordered to drive on high speed, which he did, and no doubt they left Columbus faster than any man ever left before, expecting to be followed by the knights of mob and murder. They covered the southern part of the State, avoiding all towns possible till darkness came, then they started on their homeward way. It was then that the electric lights [illegible] and they were compelled to drive their machine without lights. A fence rail lying lengthwise in the road was hit with front wheel and broke, flying in the air, one end hitting the driver on the shoulder, the other piece hitting the father in the face, which is badly battered and lacerated. After having about recovered from this shock, just south of Canal Dover the machine skidded into a ditch, threw the occupants out and wrecked the machine, but except for a few bruises and scratches none were hurt. They then secured lodging at a farmer's house and retired for the night. They continued their journey home the following day, arriving home at 5 p. m. by trolley and auto. Tuesday morning, the day after her capture, a prominent Catholic priest of Barberton made four trips on foot past their residence and place of business. The following day four men stopped in front of their place of business. One of them entered the confectionery and demanded that he be sold a glass of beer, and while demanding it and apparently about half drunk he walked through the store, endeavoring to get into their private apartments. At this juncture he was met and forcibly ejected upon the sidewalk, being met with resistance he and his companions passed on in apparently a very sober condition. In speaking to her brother Harry, Ella said there were one hundred and fifty-seven girls in the convent at corner West Broad and Sandusky Streets, Columbus, Ohio, and that lots of them would like to get out but that they had no brother Harry to come and get them like she had. Since her release methods of legal procedure were being discussed in her presence and in their conversation Judge Black's name was mentioned. She then stated that she knew Judge Black; that he frequently came to see them in the convent, and that she was personally acquainted with him. Her wearing apparel consisted of a heavy robe, which they all wear, a very thin underskirt, stockings and an old pair of shoes without soles. Upon entering the convent her hair came down to her waist-line. This she does not have now. She was immediately placed under the care of a physician upon her arrival home and is improving wonderfully fast. She says they receive no substantial or appetising food there; that there is plenty of food furnished them, but that it is no good.

State of Ohio, Summit County, ss.:

Harry Tuning, being first duly sworn in the manner provided by law, deposes and says that he is the brother of Miss Ella Tuning, the person mentioned in the foregoing article; that he has read the foregoing article and that the statements and allegations therein made are correct and true as related to him by his sister, the said Ella Tuning, and to the best of his knowledge and belief.

HARRY TUNING.

Sworn to and signed by the said Harry Tuning, before me and in my presence this 23rd day of September, 1914.

The 24th of last June the Curia of the Roman Catholic Church in Austria formulated and signed a concordat establishing Catholicism as the state religion of Servia. Imagine the feelings of the Servians as they were outraged. Knowing their powerful neighbor, Austria, at the North, the last remaining power, by the way of Popery in all Europe, was right on the ground to enforce this law. In all Servia at this time, there were only 8,435 Roman Catholics, as against 2,902,000 Protestants and other religions.

The boldness and audacity and injustice of this act of less than 10 per cent of the population of their country, provoked and incensed the Servians to assassinate the Arch Duke of Austria-Hungary, (Ferdinand) and his wife Isabella, who the Servians know to be one of the most ignorant and bigoted Papists, and who was largely responsible for the act above related.

This same Ferdinand, heir to the ducal crown, had expected to restore, in Servia, Popacy in all her hideous forms of the dark ages, which was a master stroke of his royal highness, backed up by the Austrian government and the Pope to put this official act of the Curia over on the Kingdom of Servia. Their resentment is not to be wondered at. It knows almost no bounds and that they must do something that would make those well laid Jesuitical schemes miscarry should be done, and that quickly.

They felt justified in self-defense, and in defense of their religious faith, which Bishop Schrembs of Toledo, O., claims for the Catholics of Mexico, to summarily remove the Arch Duke, Ferdinand, and which they proceeded to do.

This gave Catholic Austria the opportunity she had longed for—to force Servia to accept the concordat and Roman Catholicism as their official religion.

These are facts and are clearly the occasion of declaring war. But after war was declared by Austria against Servia, the crown-heads of Europe saw an opportunity to crush Socialism under the pretext of patriotism.

I cannot quite agree with Comrade M. C. Green, that Pope Pius X died broken-hearted because of the war, but that he died broken-hearted because he was responsible for the war on account of trying to force his (the Catholic) religion on Servia, who resented it to the extent of assassinating a high Catholic official, the Arch Duke of Austria.

The cruel effort of the Pope to force his religion on the little Servian nation by an overwhelming nation, took a different turn than the Pope contemplated and there were no prayers of the Pope strong enough to conteract his wrongful deed in touching off the war cannons. As matters now stand, and as the Pope, no doubt saw before his death, instead of Servia espousing the Catholic religion, Austria will be crushed and with it the last nation on earth in the full control of Catholicism except United States, which under Taft, Roosevelt and Wilson, is more under the domination of that church than under Protestantism.

The Emperor of Germany has long been waiting for just such an opportunity to extend his domain, and had he confined his ambitions to one or two nations he might have succeeded, but with him joined the crown-heads of all Europe in seizing upon the first and best occasion to crush the working class in the Socialist movement for their emancipation.

The rest was easy, and the other powers of Europe, and indeed, of the United States, got the craze and either took up arms or furnished food or arms or both to the warring nations. For eighteen hundred years this same church or religious conflict has been raging, and all the while Pope and preacher have prayed to the same God to give the hypocrites victory over the other hypocrites.

This church and religious conflict has stood in the way of human progress more than any other obstacle, and it is time it should be put down and out, and in our opinion this present European war will end the struggle on that line.

Out of the womb of time is being born a child they call Socialism, in great turmoil and distress, cementing the nations of the earth in brotherhood as one great world-family—co-operative commonwealth whose only war cry is Peace, Peace, Peace, on earth, good will toward men.

Who are the real Christians, those who stir up and instigate and feed war, or those who pray from the heart—not from pulpit—deplore war, work against war and who would starve war and and feed peace-loving citizens? If Christianity means war, encourages war, feeds war, then we hate Christianity. But the Socialist Christianity hates war, hates strikes, hates hypocrisy, and loves peace, loves honesty, and loves uprightness. We ask you, brother, to be a comrade.

CAPITALISM AND "THE FIGHTING GROUND OF THE FUTURE"

Now comes that reactionary tool of capitalism, Representative Mann, and issues a warning to capitalism that in order to preserve and promote "The fighting ground of the future" the Philippine Islands shall not be allowed "Independence." When all the civilized world is crying Peace, Peace, while the semi-civilized nations are murdering their subjects without which no nation could exist, it comes with a saddening thud to the heart to have men in high official positions issue a warning to the effect that "The fighting ground of the future" must be perpetuated. Instead of "Fighting ground of the future" Lord God we pray Thee—this Oct. 4th, 1914, set apart by the head of our nation as a day of prayer for peace—to establish and preserve, "co-operative commonwealths of Peace" where all men shall have equal opportunity to the means of production,—lands, mills, mines, factories—and to receive the full social product of that which they produce or the exchange equivalent thereof for the private use of themselves and families.

There is no need of "Future Fighting Forms" but imperative need of "Present Peaceful Pastures" where living waters flow for the benefit and use of all mankind.

Why pray to God to stop us doing the thing we continue to do while we yet pray? What would you think of a man who went about praying to God to prevent wife beating, and at same time was carrying about a club with which to beat his wife as soon as he found her? What would you think of a man kneeling at the spring and praying God to purify the water of the spring when he knew darned well there was a hog wallowing in the fountain-head of the spring? No one would be d—n fool enough to make such an open hypocrite of himself. Yet the President of the greatest nation is doing ten times more foolish things. He set the day for prayer thirty days ahead to give the food snatchers a chance to clean up on the people of America and the people of Europe. He set the time thirty days ahead in the hope that some crucial act would arrive by which the war would close and God and Wilson get all the credit. If President Wilson really had a prayer in his heart worthy of a civilized man, why did he not at once order all food products held in America until peace was restored. Suiting his action to the word would be a prayer indeed and sure to be answered.

But to return to Mr. Mann, who says that "China is awakening" and that her awakening is more marvelous than in Japan and as "she rises to the civilization of our modern days and engages in competition we must expect Hell to break loose anew," or words to that effect.

And that is modern civilization under the competitive system. Competition is war and war is hell; so there you have it from Mann to Sherman and exemplified in fifty years' history of capitalism. Why send missionaries to China to civilize the heathen if it makes "War Demons" of them? Better let her sleep than awake her to a "Future Fighting Ground."

As a so-called Christian(?) nation, we say to China, you must not send your coolies to our shores, nor we will allow those already here to own any land, and at the same time demand that her shores shall be open to our missionaries and our products including the hellish product of "booze." Christianity, why the government of United States has no more Christianity than a starving hyena.

While we are about it we propose that all the common people of America hold another public prayer meeting for the purpose of praying for an end of a big bunch of horrors going on in this country right under our noses. Let us not only pray that the awful slaughter in Europe ceases, but also that such awful slaughters as the Rockefeller-Guggenheimer monarchs pulled off in Ludlow may never occur again. Let us pray that these monarchs—the Rockefellers and Guggenheimers and all the rest of their kindred kaisers—be at once and everlastingly dumped into the junk pile. Let us also pray that the crime of childslavery in the mills, that destroys the health and causes the early death of thousands of children, be ended. Let us pray for help to swat the starvation wage-scale that drives thousands of girls into the clutches of the white slavers. Let us pray for the sudden smashing of the power of the Plunderbund to arm private gunmen and send them to shoot down men, women and children on strike for decent wages. Let us pray that our rulers may never again get so riled up that they shoot up a city because a bottle-fighting brigand wouldn't shoot his gun at our flag, thereby murdering innocent citizens, among whom were a number of school children, as was reported from Vera Cruz. Let us pray that in a land of plenty the gaunt spectre of hunger and destitution stalks no more. Let us pray that slums and sweatshops and foul factories, that breed consumption and cholera and death, be destroyed, and that sanitary and healthful institutions take their place. Let us pray that society be so arranged that sorrow, and the heartaches of poverty shall be unknown, and that laughter and joy and music shall sweeten the lives of all. In fact, O Lord, while we are at it, what we really would like to have you do is to everlastingly annihilate the whole infernal system of exploiters and exploited, of mammonized masters and victimized slaves, of profit and plunder, of war and hell! Hit 'er hard, Lord, hit 'er hard—the people have suffered so much that you can't hit 'er too darn hard!

May a world wherein one class rides on the back of another class be overturned, and a Universal Commonwealth of Comrades take its place. Amen.

HURRAH FOR LOCAL DAYTON AND A MUNICIPAL LIGHT PLANT—ELECTRIC LIGHT PETITION TO GO ON BALLOT—THREE THOUSAND SIX HUNDRED AND FORTY-THREE NAMES TURNED IN.

Against great odds, the members of Local Dayton have succeeded in an almost impossible task; they have secured enough signatures to the electric light petition to make it mandatory on the City Commissioners to place the question on the ballot and it would have been almost impossible to have secured this number of signers if it had not been for the fact that the interest in the proposition was great enough to carry it through. The charter says that upon ten per cent of the citizens signing an initiative petition, the Commissioners may place the same upon the ballot, or they may refuse to do so. Local Dayton turned in the names of 3,726 citizens on their first petition, which was about 15 per cent of the voters, and in spite of this fact it was turned down and they were forced to go out and get 15 per cent additional within twenty days. This would have been an impossible task had it not been for the splendid organization which they have.

THE COST OF CRIME

Staggering figures as to what the annual warfare against crime costs the United States are contained in an estimate submitted recently by Professor Charles J. Bushnell, Washington, D. C. He puts the total at the overwhelming figure of $6,000,000,000 a year, and other experts have pronounced this a relatively close approximation. This total includes all the money that is spent in arresting, trying, convicting, punishing and feeding criminals, and the losses they cause through theft, incendiarism, etc.

Figures of such denominations are so bewildering that the average person cannot conceive of what they mean. A better idea of it can be shown when it is said that this outlay annually would build twelve Panama canals. It is six times as much as congress appropriated for all national expenses at the close of the last fiscal year.

It is more than the governments of the United States, Germany, France and Great Britain paid out for all governmental purposes in the year 1912, a year that was characterized by huge national drains because of building big battleships in Europe.

The money cost in the United States is divided among the national governments and the states. The Massachusetts prison association has estimated that in that state alone the annual crime bill is $6,500,000.

And in spite of this outlay, crime is increasing in this country instead of decreasing.

Prison reform began in the United States a short time after the close of the Civil War. In the last few years it has received extraordinary impetus in the way of remedial legislation, indeterminate sentences, juvenile courts, parole systems, industrial employment of convicts, etc. Yet in spite of this remains the fact, carefully substantiated by special census reports submitted to congress that:

In relation to the increase of population there are two and one-half times as many persons in the prisons of the United States as there were fifty years ago, figured on a per capita basis. Yet in Great Britain there has been nearly a 50 per cent decrease in the same time, although there has been a 50 per cent increase in population.

These figures have to do only with persons actually convicted and punished for crime. H. C. Weir, an investigator of note, in an article printed in the Literary Digest, February 12, 1910, declared that there are annually in the United States 250,000 members whom the law never touches.

Bad as that is, it is not the worst economic feature of the situation. The late J. P. Altgeld, Governor of Illinois, estimated in an address that in addition to the regular police and detectives there are about 70,000 constables, 70,000 magistrates, 12,000 deputy sheriffs and 2,000 sheriffs who, together with the grand jurors, petit jurors, judges, clerks, lawyers, jailers, wardens, guards, prison attendants, etc., make up a conservative estimate of 1,000,000 persons who derive an average annual income of about $1,500 each, out of the apprehension, conviction and detention of criminals. The estimated total number of regular policemen in the United States is 300,000. At an average of $1,000 salary, the average annual payroll for policemen is $300,000,000.

Adding to this mighty army the 132,875 prisoners in this country we have a force of 1,132,857 men. Besides such a force the mightiest armies of history, the combatants in any of the world's greatest battles, from Crecy to the fall of Adrianople, would be a pitiful corporal's guard in comparison.

Under Socialism this terrible cost of crime would be wiped out, as it is in a slight degree by the Workmen's Compensation law, the Mother's Pension law and similar laws forced upon the legislature of the different states by the "Rising Tide of Socialism" which Father Vaughn came all the way from Europe to "stem," and which "stemming" increased the vote 118 per cent against Father Vaughn's philosophy and Teddy's "Armagedden."

That is about the same rate that the dish of gooseberries increased in the dishpan when my mother put me to stemming them at the very time I wanted to go a-swimming when a boy.

Socialists say it is cheaper financially to provide employment for all, food for all, education for all, and heaven on earth for all.

THE WORKER UNAWAKE.

Not dead—but hardly yet alive—a Thing inert,
He plods his little round, now sad, now gay;
Nor dreams he of the Larger Life—the Thrill of Social Consciousness.

He lives unto himself, from meat to meat, from sleep to sleep, obsequious—wise;

The Horror of this World—the terrible Insanity which damns a thousand lives with toil that one be damned with ease—troubles him not;

Well-fed, he snores; or, being hungry, whines.
Quick to the Master's beck he timely bows,
Praise the hand that robs him, kisses the heel that treads him in the mire;

He—the most robbed of all—robbed of his birthright of audacity—a slave in soul, too steeped to dream of aught but slavery—

He—not the exploiter—is the heavy Ball upon the Chain that clogs Humanity.

—Edgcumb Pinchon, in The Western Comrade.

PEACE PARADE A SUCCESS

South End Citizens Vie In Greetings to Former Candidate and Present Candidate for Congress on Same Platform. What Zimpfer Says.

Columbus, O., Oct. 8, 1914.

W. C. Bates, Editor Col. Socialist.

Dear Comrade: It is astonishing how more light upon an object changes its appearance. Something seen in the moonlight which appears to the lonely, timid, superstitious wayfarer to be a grizzly object full of terror,—a ghost or a demon—turns out, in the broad light of day to be a white cow, peacefully chewing [illegible] bare trunk of a blasted pine. The object was the same both times, but the difference and young poor of light makes it look like two very different objects. The same thing obtains of customs and institutions, of truth in all her varied and multiform aspects. For instance I will point out the philosophy of Socialism which has changed very little fundamentally in the past 60 years, still it looks much different to most of the people now than formerly, not because Socialism has changed but that the people are turning on more light and see it from a different view. There are still many who believe that we advocate the old theory of dividing up, that the government take over all wealth of the nation or the world as the case may be and then dividing it up equally with each person. The truth is that such a thing was never advocated by the Socialist, and cannot be found in any Socialist platform for 60 years back. There are many who have never read a Socialist platform and some who have never read nor interested themselves in any platform, and I dare say there are some members of the Socialist party who do not understand the Socialist platform, and the only way Socialism will ever attain to the position in the world that it was intended it should reach will be through the education of its own members as well as non-members. There are no well-informed people today who can find any legitimate fault with the Socialist philosophy or its platform.

As a candidate for Congress, people in this district naturally want to know what I, as Socialist party agent, so to speak, would work and vote for if elected. I will give you, in the following, a brief outline of my plans:

Abolition of child labor for the whole United States, thereby eliminating unfair competition from Southern and New England states, where child labor still exists in its worst form: as an example, if a mill in Ohio, under the present laws would be compelled to compete with the mills in Georgia, where child labor is rampant, they could not do it, as the Georgia mill would underbid the Ohio mill and thereby either cut the wages here in Ohio to the bone, or close up the mill altogether, but if the child labor law is universal or general all over the United States, there won't be the unfair conditions existing through child labor as is now the case. The child's place is in school and at the play ground, and I believe children should be helpful around home and learn to be useful, but I abhor the idea of child slavery as it is practiced in many sections of this country: A National Workmen's Compensation Law is another law that ought to be enacted for the same reasons as the National Child Labor Law. As an example: Ohio has a very good Workmen's Compensation Law, but Indiana has none; Ohio manufacturers of steel pay several thousand dollars a year for the upkeep of the Workmen's Compensation Law, but Indiana manufacturers pay nothing; so you see they can underbid our factories in nearly all classes of finished product and there are but two ways open: either cut the wages of Ohio workmen or close up the factories for lack of orders. A General Old Age Pension Law, modelled after the German law: all people who have done useful work for 20 years in their lives are entitled to old age pensions if they need it. Under the present way of doing things it costs a great deal more to take care of our people than it would cost under an old age pension law on account of the many complex ways money is handled. First we have the County Poor House, where a certain number of indigent persons are taken care of, but very unsatisfactory because husband and wife are separated in their old age. Second, comes the Associated Charities which is very unsatisfactory for several reasons; one reason is that many worthy needy persons are not taken care of, and another is that the Associated Charities is so very expensive to operate. Out of every four dollars given for charity, only one dollar finds its way to the people for whom it was intended. Three dollars goes for salaries, rent, telephones, stamps and other incidentals, and one dollar goes to charity.

The Columbus Citizen published an appeal to our wealthy citizens that all should give liberally to the Associated Charities, for if there was no money forthcoming ten thousand children in Columbus would have no shoes to wear this winter and therefore many would be unable to go to school. ....ow figure it out yourself. An average price for a pair of shoes for children is about $2.00 and in order to get a two dollar pair of shoes eight dollars would have to be donated by our wealthy citizens for one pair of children's shoes. Then there are other institutions doling out charity, so-called—the Old Ladies' Home, the old Men's Home, different unions, lodges and churches have homes for their people and all these things summed up cost much more than the old age pension law would cost and the latter would be more satisfactory in every way, as it would enable the old people to live as they always did in their home instead of taking them to a large institution among strangers where they soon die of a broken heart and grief. The old age law has worked out wonderfully in Germany for many years.

The Socialist party does not advocate living in semi-charity off of the government but economic conditions are so that these things must be taken up very soon. Unemployment is the outcome or disease of our chaotic system called the capitalistic system of theft and profits. Of all the forlorn objects in this country today it is the man or woman who is willing and ready to work and cannot get it. The conditions are such that no one corporation or person can be held responsible for these conditions. The Columbus Railway & Power Company did not want to cut its monthly labor bill $15,000.00 but conditions forced it to do so. A certain laundry in this city was likewise compelled to cut its labor bill $274.00 per week. A certain plating company did not want to cut out 10 men out of 12 in their shop but conditions forced them to do so. The more men that are in the unemployed class the less will be consumed and therefore more men will have to be laid off until there will be an endless chain of calamities all along the way in this land of plenty where grain elevators are bursting open with their load, and fruit is rotting on the ground on account of our insane mode of distribution. Potatoes are left to rot in the ground by the commission men and shiploads of fine bananas and other tropical fruits are dumped in the ocean all to keep up profits, all for profits and nothing for use or comfort only where profits may be had. Isn't it about time we were manufacturing articles for use instead of for profits first, last and all the time? There is no such panic in the United States postoffice as prevails in nearly all of our private enterprises. I haven't heard of one man being laid off in the postoffice and there will be none. If railways, mines, mills and all other public utilities were operated by the government and democratically managed there would never be a depression on as there is now, but our parasitic citizens who live off the backs of the working class wouldn't like that and fight the co-operative commonwealth from every angle, as their nose would be out of joint under it. All that I am sorry for is that every honest working man cannot see the predicament he is in and how he is continually robbed by the ruling class at every turn. There are quite a number of other subjects that I wished to discuss, among them the universal eight-hour law, national employment bureau for seasonal occupations, insurance against unemployment, prohibiting corporations from importing strike-breakers from one state to another for the purpose of breaking strikes, impeachment of corrupt judges and limiting the power of the Supreme Court, legalization of the right to strike, picket and boycott and prohibiting the blacklist by the manufacturers and employers, abolition of the injunction in labor disputes and the right to demand a jury in labor disputes, government ownership of all things collectively used, but I will be unable to discuss them in this issue. I do not think that all of these things can be made into law in one or two sessions of Congress but if elected will agitate for these and it won't be very long until they will be enacted into laws. There [illegible] bottles of beer [illegible] bottle [illegible] but by steady a[illegible] these imported waylay soldiers. [illegible] it, so don't [illegible] of keep on fighting [illegible] tricks in [illegible] ered in the co-operative commonwealth.

P. ZIMPFER,
Candidate for Congress, 12th District of Ohio.

CAPITALISM AND "THE FIGHTING GROUND OF THE FUTURE"

Mr. Mann says "When China is awakened, going out into the competitive world, we will have a conflict on our hands which will last for many years, possibly for many centuries."

Glorious thought, isn't it? But what could you expect one given over to only conflict, one whose whole life and existence, privately and publicly has been to stir up strife, turmoil and hatred, consuming days in parliamentary bodies for no purpose than political? Mr. Mann says again "I have little faith that in this world of ours people and races are able to meet in competition for a long period of time without an armed conflict."

It is easily seen that Mr. Mann has a capitalistic mind and a skull so dense that a cannon ball from Germany could not penetrate to his brain to disturb his fixed idea of competition. Until he and his kind can see that competition is a thing of the past, and that it is rapidly giving way to co-operation in "parcels post," "Workmen's Compensation," Mother's Pensions," etc., we cannot expect anything from them but anticipation of war and rumors of war and they reaping the boodle thereof. "Capitalism and Future Fighting Ground" are doomed and are now rapidly passing —Both will end with the end of the present European war.

The Socialist party of Montana in convention adopted a platform which severely criticizes Governor Stewart for declaring martial law in Butte and for sending the National Guard there.

COLUMBUS, OHIO

COLORADO

Denver, Colo., Oct. 6:—Colorado citizens who have suffered for more than a year because of the coal strike and the consequent reign of anarchy furthered by the mine owners, are waiting anxiously the decision of the operators as to whether they will accept President Wilson's proposition for a three-year truce and, if they refuse, what action the chief executive will take.

It is said that the operators are trying to postpone their final reply until after election. It is known that they have provided practically all of the slush fund for the Republican party. George Carlson, candidate for governor on that ticket, is an avowed hater of Union Labor and has made all of his despicable reputation as District Attorney of Boulder County, where he has never hesitated to do anything in his power to persecute the striking miners of that district.

It is said that Carlson has promised to send the state militia back to the field and deport every "undesirable" which in the language of the coal operators is every man who dares to strike for his constitutional rights in Colorado.

The Colorado Fuel and Iron, the Victor American and others of the law-breaking coal corporations are out of politics. They said they were all during the Congressional investigation of the coal strike. They say it now. You don't believe it? Very well. Bear in mind that Jeff Farr, Republican Sheriff of Huerfano [illegible] is chief of all the imported gunmen in that county and [illegible] over the vote cast at the recent primary election [illegible] & I. Mines:

Walsen Mines, Republicans, 139; Democrats, 2; Rouse, Republicans, 139; Democrats, 2; Cameron, Republicans, 29; Democrats, 0; Ideal, Republicans, 38; Democrats, 3; Midway, Republicans, 60; Democrats, 1.

Doesn't the vote show that Rockerfeller has gotten out of Colorado politics?

The Victor American Company owns but one precinct in this county. It has 52 registered voters. Not wanting the people of the state to think they were mixing into politics, the Victor American gave all of these 52 votes to the Republicans.

Rumor has it that the C. F. & I., Jeff Farr and others of the gang are planning to have a special grand jury called to "investigate" the trouble during April when the gunmen and militia tried to wipe out the strikers with machine guns and high powered rifles. The plan, as rumored, is to indict 135 leading Democrats of the county, including all of the candidates for office, and lodge them in jail until after the election.

The fact that other grand juries of the state have indicted none but union miners and refused to investigate the slaughter of 34 strikers, has created such a wave of indignation against the political corruption of the coal companies that public sentiment may prevent this strong arm method of trying to defeat justice of anything is possible and may be expected in Colorado's coal strike zone.

According to stories printed in the Trinidad publication of the United Mine Workers, hundreds of thugs and gunmen are daily being brought into the strike district. One report says that last Sunday Jeff Farr held a meeting with all the coal company guards in Huerfano County and laid out a campaign against the strikers to be put into effect as soon as the federal troops are withdrawn.

Nothing is being left undone to throw discredit on the strikers. This week the prostituted sheet of the mine owners, published in Trinidad, printed a sensational story about strikers of the Ludlow tent colony attacking two men near the colony. The paper went on to say that the federal authorities were making a rigid invesigation. It developed that no report had been made to the federal commanders, that no men had been seen near that point mentioned and that no one had met with any violence.

THE CONVENT CHILD

Beyond the convent windows, high
So children may not see,
Are summer meadows and the sky,
The birds, the painted butterfly—
Why are they not for me?

I only know the tree-tops blow,
That little winds in May
Ripple the pussy grass below
And sing, where baby brooklets flow,
And happier children play.

There is no sun when I leave bed,
So early in the day;
But far away the sky in red
And little wheels turn in my head—
Along the convent way.

The early shadows go with me
Within the factory door;
They crowd and creep, and like a sea
They rise above the looms and me
And cross the convent floor.

Gray shadows run, the light and sun
I cannot feel or see;
But all day long with fingers thin
Before my loom I spin and spin—
Why is this meant for me?

To flowers, to little birds that sing,
To butterfly, to bee,
God gives to each and everything
Its happy growing time and spring—
And, oh, why not to me?

THIS NIGHT OF DEATH WHERE DEMONS DWELL

By Henry M. Tichenor, the Rip-Saw Poet.

This night of death where demons dwell,
This night of howling hounds of hell,
This night of tottering gilded thrones
Where sit divinely ordained drones,
This night where brawn and brain are killed
That pirates' pockets may be filled,
This night of world-mad ghastly gloom—

THIS NIGHT, MAY MASTERS MEET THEIR DOOM!

Buried forever out of sight,
In this black night, this bloody night!

O comrades of the warring lands,
Clasp in this night your comrade hands!
From out this savage murder-feast
Rise in your power and smite the least!
Make this the masters' last damned war!
This night the nations are no more!
This night all creeds, and all frontiers,
Are wiped away in blood and tears!
Beyond this night the Morning Sun
Shall shine on all the race as one!

MOST BITTER ENEMY OF SOCIALISM ADMITS ITS GROWTH

"WAR—WHAT FOR"— TO CRUSH SOCIALISM?

"The throne of almost every ruler in Europe was in jeopardy. Election after election in Germany, France and England showed that the Socialists were gaining and the irony of the situation was that they steadily grew by inveighing against, as useless and extravagant, the preparations for the international conflict, which in the opinion of Europe's statesmen was inevitable, and is now at hand."—Harrison Grey Otis, in Los Angeles Times.

MINNESOTA SOCIALIST PARTY FAVORS UNITY WITH SOCIALIST LABOR PARTY.

The Socialist party in the State of Minnesota has adopted the resolutions and recommendations of the Unity Conference held at St. Paul on April 26th, between representatives of the Socialist party in Minnesota and the Socialist Labor party of the same State. The vote on the question of adoption of the report stood 616 for and 110 against.

By this action the party in the State of Minnesota is placed squarely upon record in favor of a joint national conference between the Socialist party and the Socialist Labor party for the purpose of bringing about the organization of one political party of Socialism in the United States.

The Minnesota conference was brought about by the adoption of a resolution at the State convention of the Socialist party at Brainerd, on the 14th of February, 1914, which declared in favor of one political party of Socialism in the United States and provided for a committee to arrange a conference with representatives of the S. L. P.

This conference was held at St. Paul on the 26th day of April, 1914, and resulted in the submission to the membership, within the State, the resolutions which appear below.

The representatives of the S. P. were Robert A. Roberts, J. G. Jelle, K. L. Haataja, Joseph Zehne and Wm. E. Towne. Those representing the S. L. P. were Herbert Johnson, M. J. Cicanek, M. H. Roberts, C. W. Brandborg and Frank Anderson.

Having been adopted by the Minnesota organization the matter is now before the national body and is awaiting seconds sufficient to secure a national referendum. All locals and comrades who are in any way interested in this matter should take action and send in their request for a vote of the party on the question of unity and the organization of one political party of Socialism in the United States.

UNITY CONFERENCE REPORT

1. A party owned press and literature publishing department is absolutely necessary to the successful administration and sound development of a Socialist political party.

2. The entire proprietary rights of a party paper [illegible] national organization of the party.

3. We recognize the necessity of an industrial organization of the workers, the abolition of craft unionism and the united industrial and political action for the purpose of securing and holding the means of production.

4. The introduction of reform questions and issues into the program of a political party of Socialism is responsible for the mixed and clashing opinions within the Socialist party and tends to attract to the organization an element that seeks political preferment through compromising tactics, and creates in the minds of the workers particularly false conceptions regarding the Socialist movement, and hinders the work of educating the working class for the overthrow of capitalism.

5. The strict adherence to Socialist principle and revolutionary tactics should be furthered and protected by a rigid system of discipline.

6. State and local autonomy in a political party of Socialism leads the party and the workers into wrong channels and tends to enhance local reform issues to the detriment of the Socialist movement, and moreover tends to create lax systems of discipline in the party and separates the party instead of solidifying it.

UNITY SCHEME ON ABOVE PRINCIPLES

Resolved by this conference that the representatives of the parties hereto recommend the bringing about of National Unity in preference to formulating a basis of unity for the State of Minnesota alone prior to any action by their respective national organizations.

1. To accomplish national unity on the above fundamental principle the conference adopted the following:

The Socialist Labor party and the Socialist party shall unite, forming the Socialist party of the United States; each branch or local of each party to retain the same standing in the new organization that is held in former one. Upon passage of this motion the National Executive Committees of the two organizations shall call a joint national convention for the purpose of submitting to a referendum proper constitutional laws adaptable to a united Socialist party.

2. Each party to this conference in its State conventions and its locals and sections in Minnesota, will seat a fraternal delegate with a voice but no vote. Object: In the interest of unity.

3. In conclusion this conference submits the above resolutions to a State referendum of each party in State referendum of each party in the in the event of adoption the State Secretary stands instructed to submit to National Office for a National Referendum initiated by the State organization of Minnesota.

A recall election was held for city commissioners at Everett, Wash., and a Socialist, J. M. Salter, was placed in charge of the Department of Public Works by a vote of 3,103 to 2,271 for his opponent. Frank Bostrom, formerly State Secretary of the Socialist party, was defeated for the other commissionership.

COMBINE ALL RAILROADS

A bill has been introduced in the Senate by Senator Jones of Washington, providing that all steam railroads and electric railroads in the country shall be combined into one company to be called the United States Railway Company.

The company is to have a capital of $3,000,000,000 and there are to be 80,000,000 shares of stock having a par value of $100. The stock is to pay 4 per cent dividends and no more. A board of trustees consisting of the general managers of 15 of the big railroad companies is to control the companies.

This 4 per cent interest on this amount of stock would amount to $320,000,000 per year that would be filched from the pockets of those who use the railways. Wouldn't it be much better to unite all of these great railroads and have them owned by the government and used for the benefit of all the people instead of having them owned by a few?

Even if this action is taken it will make it much easier for the government to [illegible] over when the time comes, to abolish the rest and combine them into one big company.

Socialism will finally come and take them any how, so go in it.

AIN'T IT SO: That this war has made it clear that it is capitalism and not Socialism that destroys the home.

CATHOLIC COLUMBIA INDORSES POSITION OF THE SOCIALISTS

In the issue of August 7, 1914, of the Catholic Columbian we find this editorial:

"If the rulers of Europe are trying to overcome Socialism by sending millions of Socialists to the firing-line, they will find that the slaughter of multitudes of men of the proletariat who had no voice in bringing on this unnecessary war will make more Socialists opposed to war. More than ever before Socialists will be opposed to rulers who can declare war, without the consent of the people, who have to carry it on, endure its sufferings, and bear the burden of its cost."

The Socialists have always contended that Socialism always grows most when knocked most—that every knock was a boost. Every intelligent reader of events for the past few years will realize that the present war in Europe was more for the purpose of stamping out Socialism than to avenge the death of Arch Duke Ferdinand. How well it will succeed will be answered the world over by mighty increases in the Socialist vote.

MONTANA WOMEN WILL GET VOTE TWO TO ONE

Butte, Mont., Sept. 28.—That woman suffrage will carry two to one when the constitutional amendment providing for equal suffrage is put before the voters of Montana at the November election is the prediction made by the women at the head of the suffrage movement here.

VOTERS—TAKE NOTICE

Because of misunderstanding as to number of signers for office of State Senators, Comrades

Frank M. Wilson
and
Charles J. Welsh,

candidates for State Senators on the Socialist ticket will not have their names on the ballot at the general election. It will, therefore be necessary for all who wish to vote for them to write their names in the blank space left on that ticket on election day.

Cut this out and take to voting booth as reminder.

In the opinion of chairmen of political parties this estimate is somewhat high, but they admit that the amendment is likely to carry by a big majority.

Looks Rosy in Dakotas

Fargo, N. D.—Prospects for suffrage victories in North and South Dakota this fall look so rosy to suffrage leaders in these two states and the northwest in general that the Dakotas are being placed in the "votes for women" column by enthusiastic campaigners.

The chances for success are believed to be a shade better in South Dakota. Years ago, when suffrage was first put to a vote in South Dakota, it was defeated by the Russian vote in the eastern part of the State.

Since that time the Black Hills district in the west has been populaced; more Swedes and Norwegians have moved into the State, and the change in public sentiment toward the suffrage movement has aided the cause materially.

Nebraska Women Hopeful

Lincoln, Neb.—Waging what is admitted to be a vigorous, sensible campaign, disclaiming connection with any form of militancy and going ahead on a platform of "sweet reasonableness," Nebraska women suffrage leaders are hopeful of winning the ballot at the contest in the fall.

Not until recently has there developed any opposition to the women's campaign. Some opposition has begun to be noticed, but so far it has not developed any great strength.

William Jennings Bryan's recent unqualified indorsement of the woman suffrage cause has brought great satisfaction to Nebraska women. The mere announcement of his advocacy and support of equality politically for women is regarded by the suffrage leaders as a great boom for the cause. Undoubtedly it has been a great boom. Bryan's personal following throughout Nebraska is large.

NEED 85,500 VOTES TO WIN

The fear that woman suffrage will bring with it prohibition in the course of time is one of the arguments that the anti-suffragists have covertly used. However, this is working two ways.

To win their battle the suffragists must have 85,000 votes.

TWEEDLEDEE AND TWEEDLEDUM

There was a quack doctor who lived in the hills,
Who used two concoctions to cure human ills.
The one was a physic, the other a drink;
He made them of soda and colored them pink.
One tweedledee and one tweedledum.
The very same bottle was where they were from.
When people were ailing they took them to bed,
And swallowed whichever the quack doctor said.
For people are easy and grafters are sleek,
And there are more suckers than fish in the creek.

A quack politician came out in the hills:
He turned the same trick for political ills.
The one was protection, the other free trade;
He had but one bottle from which they were made.
They both skin you proper, and when it is done,
You can't tell to save you by which you were skun.
For people are easy and grafters are sleek,
And there are more suckers than fish in the creek.

THE SOCIALIST

A Weekly Newspaper Without a Muzzle

Vol. IV Whole No. 199 COLUMBUS, OHIO, OCT. 17, 1914 Price, 2 Cents per Copy

THIS PAPER is published in the interest of the working class. If you think it is worthy of your support, support it by getting new subscribers. If you don't like it, don't knock. Help make it as good as you will allow. Whenever the workers support their own press as valiantly as they do the master's press we will be able to do really big things for the emancipation of the workers. In the meantime, we are forging ahead conscious of the fact that our cause is just, that right will finally triumph, and the workers step forth emancipated from the age-long servitude to a robber, master class.

Venerable Minister Insulted and Threatened With Arrest

Is America free? Have we free speech and a free press? Is this "A land of the free?" Have we free institutions in Ohio? Is justice, pure untrammelled justice, meted out in the Courts of Ohio? If not, why not?

votes of the saloon interest and the Catholic Church these judges place the "Watchdogs of Rum and Romanism" at the portals of Justice they, the judges, must not complain if an incensed, and aroused people overthrow them and their henchmen.

William Jennings Bryan Indorses "Rum and Romanism"

If prominent Protestants, like William Jennings Bryan, so prostitute the respect and confidence of the Protestants and temperance people as to come all the way from Washington, D. C., to Ohio on full government pay to boost the cause of "Rum and Rome" he, too, must not complain if such men as are identified with the patriotic orders of our country turn upon and rend him, politically, as they surely will do.

Bryan Slaps Protestantism Square In the Face

Never before was Protestantism hit such a broad-side swipe in the face as when William Jennings Bryan not only openly refused to heed the petitions of the ministers of Columbus, but deliberately indorsed "Rum and Romanism" in Ohio.

What Will the Protestant Ministers Do?

Will the Protestant ministers resent this insult or will they again truckle to the feet of "Jennings" and implore him to do his well known duty to humanity? The question is already answered. We are at this moment advised that the Protestant ministers of Columbus have again petitioned this same "sanctified Christian" to turn his batteries loose on the saloon. Truly the scriptures are being fulfilled for they have turned the "other cheek" and we have not the least doubt but that he will "smite that cheek" also. Grape-Juice and Protestant-Jesse is all right for Nebraska and Washington, D. C., but it will not mix with Romanism in Ohio.

MOST BITTER ENEMY OF SOCIALISM ADMITS ITS GROWTH

"WAR—WHAT FOR"— TO CRUSH SOCIALISM?

"The throne of almost every ruler in Europe was in jeopardy. Election after election in Germany, France and England showed that the Socialists were gaining and the irony of the situation was that they steadily grew by inveighing against, as useless and extravagant, the preparations for the international conflict, which in the opinion of Europe's statesmen was inevitable, and is now at hand."—Harrison Grey Otis, in Los Angeles Times.

MINNESOTA SOCIALIST PARTY FAVORS UNITY WITH SOCIALIST LABOR PARTY.

The Socialist party in the State of Minnesota has adopted the resolutions and recommendations of the Unity Conference held at St. Paul on April 26th, between representatives of the Socialist party in Minnesota and the Socialist Labor party of the same State. The vote on the question of adoption of the report stood 616 for and 110 against.

By this action the party in the State of Minnesota is placed squarely upon record in favor of a joint national conference between the Socialist party and the Socialist Labor party for the purpose of bringing about the organization of one political party of Socialism in the United States.

The Minnesota conference was brought about by the adoption of a resolution at the State convention of the Socialist party at Brainerd, on the 14th of February, 1914, which declared in favor of one political party of Socialism in the United States and provided for a committee to arrange a conference with representatives of the S. L. P.

This conference was held at St. Paul on the 26th day of April, 1914, and resulted in the submission to the membership, within the State, the resolutions which appear below.

The representatives of the S. P. were Robert A. Roberts, J. G. Jelle, K. L. Haataja, Joseph Zehne and Wm. E. Towne. Those representing the S. L. P. were Herbert Johnson, M. J. Cicanek, M. H. Roberts, C. W. Brandborg and Frank Anderson.

Having been adopted by the Minnesota organization the matter is now before the national body and is awaiting seconds sufficient to secure a national referendum. All locals and comrades who are in any way interested in this matter should take action and send in their request for a vote of the party on the question of unity and the organization of one political party of Socialism in the United States.

UNITY CONFERENCE REPORT

1. A party owned press and literature publishing department is absolutely necessary to the successful administration and sound development of a Socialist political party.

2. The entire proprietary right[illegible] national organization of the party.

3. We recognize the necessity of an industrial organization of the workers, the abolition of craft unionism and the united industrial and political action for the purpose of securing and holding the means of production.

4. The introduction of reform questions and issues into the program of a political party of Socialism is responsible for the mixed and clashing opinions within the Socialist party and tends to attract to the organization an element that seeks political preferment through compromising tactics, and creates in the minds of the workers particularly false conceptions regarding the Socialist movement, and hinders the work of educating the working class for the overthrow of capitalism.

5. The strict adherence to Socialist principle and revolutionary tactics should be furthered and protected by a rigid system of discipline.

6. State and local autonomy in a political party of Socialism leads the party and the workers into wrong channels and tends to enhance local reform issues to the detriment of the Socialist movement, and moreover tends to create lax systems of discipline in the party and separates the party instead of solidifying it.

UNITY SCHEME ON ABOVE PRINCIPLES

Resolved by this conference that the representatives of the parties hereto recommend the bringing about of National Unity in preference to formulating a basis of unity for the State of Minnesota alone prior to any action by their respective national organizations.

1. To accomplish national unity on the above fundamental principle the conference adopted the following:

The Socialist Labor party and the Socialist party shall unite, forming the Socialist party of the United States; each branch or local of each party to retain the same standing in the new organization that is held in former one. Upon passage of this motion the National Executive Committees of the two organizations shall call a joint national convention for the purpose of submitting to a referendum proper constitutional laws adaptable to a united Socialist party.

2. Each party to this conference in its State conventions and its locals and sections in Minnesota, will seat a fraternal delegate with a voice but no vote. Object: In the interest of unity.

3. In conclusion this conference submits the above resolutions to a State referendum of each party in State referendum of each party in the event of adoption the State Secretary stands instructed to submit to National Office for a National Referendum initiated by the State organization of Minnesota.

A recall election was held for city commissioners at Everett, Wash., and a Socialist, J. M. Salter, was placed in charge of the Department of Public Works by a vote of 3,103 to 2,271 for his opponent. Frank Bostrom, formerly State Secretary of the Socialist party, was defeated for the other commissionership.

COMBINE ALL RAILROADS

A bill has been introduced in the Senate by Senator Jones of Washington, providing that all steam railroads and electric railroads in the country shall be combined into one company to be called the United States Railway Company.

The company is to have a capital of $8,000,000,000 and there are to be 80,000,000 shares of stock having a par value of $100. The stock is to pay 4 per cent dividends and no more. A board of trustees consisting of the general managers of 15 of the big railroad companies is to control the companies.

This 4 per cent interest on this amount of stock would amount to $320,000,000 per year that would be filched from the pockets of those who use the railways. Wouldn't it be much better to unite all of these great railroads and have them owned by the government and used for the benefit of all the people instead of having them owned by a few?

Even if this action is taken it will make it much easier for the government to [illegible] when the time comes, to which [illegible] combine them into one big company. Socialism will finally come and take them any how, so go to it.

AIN'T IT SO: That this war has made it clear that it is capitalism and not Socialism that destroys the home.

CATHOLIC COLUMBIA INDORSES POSITION OF THE SOCIALISTS

In the issue of August 7, 1914, of the Catholic Columbian we find this editorial:

"If the rulers of Europe are trying to overcome Socialism by sending millions of Socialists to the firing-line, they will find that the slaughter of multitudes of men of the proletariat who had no voice in bringing on this unnecessary war will make more Socialists opposed to war. More than ever before Socialists will be opposed to rulers who can declare war, without the consent of the people, who have to carry it on, endure its sufferings, and bear the burden of its cost."

The Socialists have always contended that Socialism always grows most when knocked most—that every knock was a boost. Every intelligent reader of events for the past few years will realize that the present war in Europe was more for the purpose of stamping out Socialism than to avenge the death of Arch Duke Ferdinand. How well it will succeed will be answered the world over by mighty increases in the Socialist vote.

MONTANA WOMEN WILL GET VOTE TWO TO ONE

Butte, Mont., Sept. 28.—That woman suffrage will carry two to one when the constitutional amendment providing for equal suffrage is put before the voters of Montana at the November election is the prediction made by the women at the head of the suffrage movement here.

VOTERS—TAKE NOTICE

Because of misunderstanding as to number of signers for office of State Senators, Comrades
Frank M. Wilson
and
Charles J. Welsh,
candidates for State Senators on the Socialist ticket will not have their names on the ballot at the general election. It will, therefore be necessary for all who wish to vote for them to write their names in the blank space left on that ticket on election day.

Cut this out and take to voting booth as reminder.

In the opinion of chairman of political parties this estimate is somewhat high, but they admit that the amendment is likely to carry by a big majority.

Looks Rosy in Dakotas

Fargo, N. D.—Prospects for suffrage victories in North and South Dakota this fall look so rosy to suffrage leaders in these two states and the northwest in general that the Dakotas are being placed in the "votes for women" column by enthusiastic campaigners.

The chances for success are believed to be a shade better in South Dakota. Years ago, when suffrage was first put to a vote in South Dakota, it was defeated by the Russian vote in the eastern part of the State.

Since that time the Black Hills district in the west has been populaced; more Swedes and Norwegians have moved into the State, and the change in public sentiment toward the suffrage movement has aided the cause materially.

Nebraska Women Hopeful

Lincoln, Neb.—Waging what is admitted to be a vigorous, sensible campaign, disclaiming connection with any form of militancy and going ahead on a platform of "sweet reasonableness," Nebraska women suffrage leaders are hopeful of winning the ballot at the contest in the fall.

Not until recently has there developed any opposition to the women's campaign. Some opposition has begun to be noticed, but so far it has not developed any great strength.

William Jennings Bryan's recent unqualified indorcement of the woman suffrage cause has brought great satisfaction to Nebraska women. The mere announcement of his advocacy and support of equality politically for women is regarded by the suffrage leaders as a great boom for the cause. Undoubtedly it has been a great boom. Bryan's personal following throughout Nebraska is large.

NEED 85,500 VOTES TO WIN

The fear that woman suffrage will bring with it prohibition in the course of time is one of the arguments that the anti-suffragists have covertly used. However, this is working two ways.

To win their battle the suffragists must have 85,000 votes.

TWEEDLEDEE AND TWEEDLEDUM

There was a quack doctor who lived
in the hills,
Who used two concoctions to cure human ills.
The one was a physic, the other a drink;
He made them of soda and colored
them pink.
One tweedledee and one tweedledum.
The very same bottle was where they were from.
When people were ailing they took them to bed,
And swallowed whichever the quack
doctor said.
For people are easy and grafters are
sleek,
And there are more suckers than fish
in the creek.

A quack politician came out in the hills:
He turned the same trick for political ills.
The one was protection, the other free trade;
He had but one bottle from which they were made.
They both skin you proper, and when it is done,
You can't tell to save you by which you were skun.
For people are easy and grafters are
sleek,
And there are more suckers than fish
in the creek.

THE SOCIALIST

A Weekly Newspaper Without a Muzzle

Vol. IV Whole No. 199 COLUMBUS, OHIO, OCT. 17, 1914 Price, 2 Cents per Copy

THIS PAPER is published in the interest of the working class. If you think it is worthy of your support, support it by getting new subscribers. If you don't like it, don't knock. Weare making it as good as you will allow. Whenever the workers support their own press as valiantly as they do the master's press we will be able to do really big things for the emancipation of the workers. In the meantime, we are forging ahead conscious of the fact that our cause is just, that right will finally triumph and the workers step forth emancipated from the age-long servitude to a robber, master class.

"Is This The Vatican?" "Yes" Watch--Dog of Rome at Portals of Supreme Justice

Venerable Minister Insulted and Threatened With Arrest

Is America Free? Have we free speech and a free press? Is this "A land of the free?" Have we free institutions in Ohio? Is justice, pure untrammelled justice, meted out in the Courts of Ohio? If not, why not?

Only those who have been up against the Buzz-Saw of injustice can properly answer that question.

Things Which Shake Confidence in Judges

When we have seen petitions thrown out of one court and the guilty party encouraged to file charges in an inferior court against citizens acting for the public welfare. When we have seen court [illegible] with hired Bull-neck Detectives who were to set upon and intimidate witnesses. When we have seen men sit upon juries after they had sworn they knew of no reason why they could not sit as fair and impartial jurors, while at the same time they well knew it was impossible for them to do so; when the foreman of such a jury will make an stern speech against the accused, as was true in the case where he told Henry W. Frillman did in the Bates-Black case and declared that the accused, Wesley C. Bates, be convicted because he was a Socialist; and when we know that the same Foreman of that jury announced his candidacy for County Recorder while sitting in that jury; and when we know that the political gangsters are supporting him as against their own candidate; and when we see and know that the power behind all of these dastardly deeds is ROME and that entrenched behind the "Bench of Sacred Justice" sits some Watch-Dog of Papacy" to note and report everything to their Master, from the Supreme Court down to the Justice [illegible] Bunko men steer [illegible] Courts, Have Lost Respect of People ter of comfort for JUDGES (not court) have lost the respect and confidence of the people it is their own fault. If, in order to get the votes of the saloon interest and the Catholic Church these judges place the "Watchdogs of Rum and Romanism" at the portals of Justice they, the judges, must not complain if an incensed and aroused people overthrow them and their henchmen.

William Jennings Bryan Indorses "Rum and Romanism"

If prominent Protestants, like William Jennings Bryan, so prostitute the respect and confidence of the Protestants and temperance people as to come all the way from Washington, D. C., to Ohio on full government pay to boost the cause of "Rum and Rome" he, too, must not complain if such men as are identified with the patriotic orders of our country turn upon and rend him, politically, as they surely will do.

Bryan Slaps Protestantism Square In the Face

Never before was Protestantism hit such a broad-side swipe in the face as when William Jennings Bryan not only openly refused to heed the petitions of the ministers of Columbus, but deliberately indorsed "Rum and Romanism" in Ohio.

What Will the Protestant Ministers Do?

Will the Protestant ministers resent this insult or will they again truckle to the feet of "Jennings" and implore him to do his well known duty to humanity? The question is already answered, as we are at this moment advised that the Protestant ministers of Columbus have again petitioned this same "sanctified Christian" to turn his batteries loose on the saloon. Truly the scriptures are being fulfilled for they have turned the "other cheek" and we have not the least doubt but that he will "smite that cheek" also. "Grape-Juice" and Protestantism is all right for Nebraska and Washington, D. C., but it will not mix with Romanism in Ohio.

Venerable and Reverend Edward H. Taylor Threatened With Arrest

Altogether---Elect Congressman---Long Steady Pull Till Nov. 3d

One Last Steady Pull Till Nov. 3rd, and Send Socialist Congressmen to Washington, Then Rid the Socialist Party of Traitors.

CONGRESS FAILS US because we elect men to Congress who could not do us justice without repudiating every essential principle for which they contend. Take a look around Congress and see who is there. Congress is composed of 531 men. Three hundred and two of these men are lawyers. Who is a lawyer? A lawyer is a man who would have almost nothing to do if it were not for the institution of private property. What is the institution of private property? It is the economic system which gives individuals the right to own resources and industries that are necessary to the existence of everybody else. Almost all of the business that comes to the legal profession comes from the institution that we know as "private property." Rich men hire lawyers to enable them to rob poor men. Rich men hire lawyers to prevent other rich men from robbing them. Poor men almost never hire lawyers. If it were not for the institution of private property, the legal profession, as we know it today, could not exist. There would be nothing for it to do. It would disappear from mere lack of subsistence.

Now, kindly note the position in whic hwe are. Remember that there are two classes in this country struggling for the products of the working class. So far as restoring justice is concerned, neither class can go up without sending the other class down. The working class cannot get a greater percentage of its product without depriving the capitalist class of a corresponding percentage of that product. If the capitalist class did not own the great industries and the natural resources of this country the capitalist class could not rob the working class. It is this robbery that the working class is trying to end. Congress is the place of all places in which the working class is trying to end it. Congress is failing us.

Should any informed man wonder why Congress is failing us? What do you expect these lawyers to do? Do you expect them to cut off the bread and butter supply from their own mouths? Do you expect them to turn against the interests that give them employment? If you do, you expect them to do what legislative bodies have never done and never will do. Men in the mass are ruled by their bread and butter interests. Self-preservation is the strongest instinct. Without such an instinct, the race would long ago have died. It is an instinct that will coninue o the end. It should continue to the end. It exists in the lion as much as it exists in the human being. But that is no reason why the human being should surrender to the lion. It is the greatest reason why the human being should not surrender to the lion. Most of all it is a reason why we should not send the lion to Congress. The lion's interests are opposed to our interests. Both the lion and our[illegible] cannot win in Congress. One must be the eater and the [illegible]. If the lion had the most votes we could not prevent him getting in. But the lion has not the most votes. [illegible] the most votes. We outnumber him ten to one. [illegible] mind that we add our ten votes to his one. We consent of lions and then wonder why Congress fails us. [illegible] a congress of lions and then talk about the slowness [illegible] conditions are improved and the impossibility of doing [illegible] during the lifetime of anyone now living.

WHAT IS THERE that we want done that could not be done during a single session of Congress, if we owned the Congress? There are some things that could not be so quickly done. In a single session of Congress we could not take over the ownership of the railroads, the meat packing establishments, the coal mines, the cotton and the woolen mills. In a single session of Congress, we could not take over the steel mills, the flour mills and the other great interests that private individuals now own for the purpose of wringing an unearned profit from the rest of us. If we had a Congress that belonged to us, we could take over, in a single session, some of these industries; but we could not take them all. The work is so great that we should require a little time. But if we owned Congress today, how long would it take Congress to do something that would help us today? How long would it take such a Congress to pass a law to prevent European war lords from stripping this country from food? Not one hour! The law need not contain more than fifty words. The need of such a law is so great that not five minutes need be devoted to debate. Yet nothing short of a social earthquake would cause the present Congress to enact such a law. Why? Because the grafters of this country are making money by buying our foodstuffs from our farmers and selling them abroad at a profit. Because our grafting class owe $180,000,000 that falls due to Europe this month and they want to pay this debt with foodstuffs instead of with gold. This debt was incurred by the dumping of American stocks by foreigners in the days preceding the outbreak of the European war. The exportation of food that we need is not only paying this debt, but it is building up an enormous credit upon which our grafters may draw. It is a good thing for the grafters, but it is a bad thing for millions of Americans. Our Congress knows it. Our Congress does nothing. Who owns Congress? Do you? Why, then, does it not do your bidding? Why does it do the bidding of men who care not if you starve so long as they make money?

Keep your mind on the facts. Don't let it waver. Don't despair because you believe nothing can be much improved during your lifetime. Get the fact in your mind that the only great impediment to your progress is yourself. You help elect such Congresses as we have. You fill your greatest legislative body with men who are committed by their stomachs to fight against you. They fight against you. What are you going to do?

I DON'T KNOW what you are going to do. I know what you should do. You should elect men to Congress who would represent you.

How can you tell such men? I cannot give you any infallible rule. I cannot tell you, in full force, that if you elect only working-men they will never betray you. Jesus had his Judas. The working class has its traitors. Some of these traitors are in Congress carrying union cards. If we had an entire Congress composed of such men, we should be no better off.

But I can give you the same line of thought that guides me. It may not seem good to you. The line upon which you have always acted may seem better to you. Perhaps your line is better. If so, results should show it. You may like the results. I don't.

I look all about me and see this abundance of wealth that has been produced by the greatest and most splendid body of workingmen and women that the world has ever seen.

I reflect that this wealth, if consumed by the working class that produces it, would be sufficient for the needs of all.

I note that it is not so consumed—that some of it is taken by others who roll it up into great fortunes for their own aggrandizement.

I observe that the fortune-makers do not take with blade or bludgeon—I note that they take by virtue of the power of ownership of industries. If they did not own, they could not take. If we owned we could hold.

Therefore, I make it a rule never to vote for a man who believes that a few men should have the right to own the industries upon which I am dependent for my very life. I am so constructed that I do not want to go to any man for permission to live. I cannot live without work, therefore, I do not want to go to any man for permission to work. I believe the law against vagrancy is a fine law. But if it is an offense against the law not to have any visible means of support, surely the individual has a right to work. He should not be compelled to be idle unless another can make a profit upon his work. The individual has the same inherent right to work without asking permission that he has to breathe without asking permission. We all agree that to labor is a duty, yet we tolerate a system that makes us ask permission to do our duty and, in a thousand ways, punishes us if such permission is not forthcoming.

I am opposed to all of this. Therefore, I never vote for a man who is in favor of it. I vote only for those who favor the substitution of public ownership of industries for private ownership. and, therefore, I am a Socialist.

HERE IS ANOTHER pointer: Watch those who are robbing you. Watch them as they go to the polls to vote. Note the ticket that they vote. Any ticket that will serve them will hurt you. Don't doubt it. Believe it. These men are not fools. They not acquumulated their fortunes by being foolish about them.

IN THE HOLY NAME OF TRADE

Come ye tell me, O ye workers, why the money-demon gloats,
Why the rulers never stop ye when ye near each other's throats?
Can ye tell me, O ye toilers, why the young are stoopt and old,
Why so many wor a-hungered when the land is filled with gold?
"Yea! For profit, profit, profit, all these broken hearts are made—
In the holy name of trade!
In the holy name of trade!"

Can ye tell me, kings of commerce, when machines should on them wait,
Why the burden bears the hardest on the weakest in the State?
Can ye tell me, O my masters, why invention's mighty breath
Only fills the sail that hastens with the children on to death?
"Yea- For profit, profit, profit, all these broken hearts are made—
In the holy name of trade!
In the holy name of trade!"

Can ye tell me, laureled statesmen, why around so many hearths
Broods a shadow and a terror that is not our mother earth's?
Can ye tell me, O ye teachers, why, with all the wealth we find,
Why the race in sorrow's mothered and the love-sight's going blind?
"Yea- For profit, profit, profit, all these broken hearts are made—
In the holy name of trade!
In the holy name of trade!"

REV. E. H CAYLOR
Columbus, Ohio

Rev. Edward H. Caylor, D.D., aged 78 years, who was insulted and threatened with arrest by lickspittle of Rome in the Clerk's office of the Supreme Court of Ohio.

"IS THIS THE VATICAN?" "YES," came the quick but unguarded answer.

Read Just What Happened

Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 6th, 1914.

Through the Clerk of the Supreme Court of Ohio to the proper person intended who you can determine on reading, and select from the incident narrated:

On last Monday morning, passing through the State House, and having with me some leaflets—"ANNUNCIATIONS OF THE GUARDIANS OF LIBERTY"—I stepped into your office and placed one or two upon desks, and handed a couple to some gentlemen pensively sitting there. As I made a pleasant remark or two, without tarrying, I passed out into the hall. Before getting any distance, a voice called to me, and I stepped back under the storm door, and a gentlemen (pardon the term) with leaflet in hand asked me what it was. I directly explained to him WHAT it WAS, whereupon I at once discovered that here, as for resenting American Liberty, was where "storm" was kept on tab. Irately, in a heated manner, I was ordered away, with words unbecoming a gentleman, dependent, if so, upon American Free Institutions for his support—utterly suppressing in his arrogance all guaranteed rights, as his ejection was not on the grounds of intrusion, but upon the patriotic sentiment of the leaflet. I did not say much, as I observed that he was in humor to say more important things than I could, for the interpretation of his remarks contained volumes of significant facts. Just at this point when he was out from under cover, I put the question to him, "Is this the vatican?" What!" came the reply. "Is this the vatican?" I repeated; and the answer came, "Yes." "Well," said I, "we have been hearing that this building was the Ohio vatican, but never knew it so well as now—on your confession."

Now let me remark that such incidents as this, I now narrate, shall not go unnoticed by the liberty-loving, patriotic loyal citizens of yet partly free America. Listen! Five of my father's sons, at the call of their country in the early sixties, responded, and helped to pay the price of our second time blood-bought United States of America. I of the five only remain, and should it yet become necessary that my life be sacrificed in defense of our free Republic from the grasp of the deadly octopus of Rome, when I pass over my four brothers—yes, five of them—will have organized a reception that will make acres of heaven resound with allelujahs.

This is the most important leaflet ever handed to an American citizen, and, it matters not ones opinion. Columbus is full of the deadly Roman virus, and many men have unwittingly bowed their necks to the Roman yoke for the political sop that Rome offers.

But, may I say, let one put his ear to the ground and hear the rumblings beneath where we tread, and surmise the oncoming upheaval that is as natural in cause and effect as the falling of an apple. Will it come? It will! Either Rome will be turned back by the ballot or by the bayonet. Let us hope by the ballot.

The matter of calling Ohio's Capitol "the vatican" is not a joke, and the voicing of the little inner guard who ejected me is correct, and so recognized by many thousands of Ohio's citizens who are aware of the political situation therein.

My respects to the veracity of that inner guard who "confessed" to me. THE LEAFLET THAT HE CRUCIFIED AND THREW AWAY I FOUND IN THE HALL, AND IT WILL BE ON EXHIBITION.

Very truly,
EDWARD H. CAYLOR.

Addendum

Brother Editor:

After leaving my "Vatican letter" with you this morning I wondered if I had made myself plain to you that the delivering of that letter at the Clerk's office of the Supreme Court was the next day after what the letter describes ... Monday morning, October 5th, ... this time what I surmised more ... ESTATE ... I am told by one pre... Deputy Clerk of the Supreme Court of ... reminded me of a Comanche Indian; for my having da... sume that the "Vatican" would be interested in anyth... can. RUN N. 479

The letter he tore open as I left the office, physically ... it, and threw it away, as he followed me into the hall with verbal violence. I rescued the letter—destined to make history.

The result proves that the incident was a masterly stroke of innocent strategy; and, withall, full of significant interpretation, and reaches the limit of ridiculous assumption. He took me to be aged, infirm and ignorant; but he has a guess or two coming yet.

Guardians of Liberty and patriotic orders are here to stay, and they will see that the Roman element now throttling the country, the courts and cunningly worming into official relations at the hands of those who are elected by the people, when they could not possibly be elected themselves, in the interest of Romanism, are eliminated.

I enclose my personal card which you see stands to represent me in place. My writings are known on three continents, and my lectures and discourses from sea to sea in America, and my printed books widely.

Very truly,

the public should see to it that courtesy is exercised in all cases. We know it is not. We know there are short, crabbed, insulting answers many times. This should not be. It is directly against the interests of an institution to hire discourteous men. One of their first duties is to be polite to all, poor and rich, ignorant and learned, friends and strangers—all are entitled to the same treatment.

There is more time lost and damage done by being impatient than by being good-humored and gentle-tempered. Everybody ought to learn as the greatest thing in the philosophy of life, that there is far more waste of nerve and muscle when one is irritable than when one is patient. So there is no excuse under Heaven for a man being discourteous. Let the managers and directors understand that, in supervising their employes, who deal with people.

Why isn't the Journal courteous enough to its readers to publish the place and name of these discourteous employes? We ask why?

or ir power over you. On the other hand, you have accumulated tion hardships by being foolish in your political beliefs. You are

You blamed. For the most part, you have an opportunity essary. If what your grafter friends are willing that you should to write a naturally form your opinions upon the basis of what letter or any tak of [illegible] impo[illegible] not into the ballot b[illegible] loaded.

nd remember: [illegible]u cannot win unless your class wins—the ng class. You cannot win unless you get together and stick ner. The Socialist platform is the only place in America in ich you can get together without finding grafters and bunko men sandwiched in among you. The Socialist party is a working man's and a working woman's party. Grafters have no use for it. Bunko men steer clear of it. Its platform does not contain a splinter of comfort for any of them. It is on the level and on the square. It will not break down and it will not blow up. If we had a Socialist Congress today, this country would enter upon such an era of prosperity as the world never saw. As a matter of fact, the world has never seen much prosperity, except for a few. The rest of the people are always close to the hunger line.

One man in Congress, a few years ago, exposed the Lawrence woolen mills iniquities. Victor Berger did that. Fifty Socialist Congressmen could do more. Fifty Socialist Congressmen would be 50 searchlights playing upon the dark recesses of Washington. And not infrequently, they would be 50 submarines firing torpedoes at the good ship Graft—a ship that is always busy conveying piratical bills into the harbor of statute law.

This may be all nonsense. If you think it is, you can do nothing better than to vote the Republican ticket with Rockerfeller, the Democratic ticket with Ryan, or the Progressive ticket with Perkins. If you should do so, your best friend could wish you no better luck than to be as prosperous during the next two years as they will be.

The Socialist party stands to accomplish its phrposes by the ballot and not by violence and strife. There are, however, men who call themselves Socialists and, sorry to say, carry red cards in the Socialist party who do all they can to discourage people from voting for candidates nominated by the Socialist party. Why in the name of God nominate a ticket if you to not want to elect the candidates? Why go to all the work and expense of a campaign? Comrades, when anyone comes into your midst and before he is really obligated in the party, he undertakes to "Boss" the campaign committee the local and all the candidates put it down that he is in the pay of the capital class.

The Socialist party of Columbus needs no dictator sent to them by the Manufacturers' Association, and anyone proving himself such should be kicked out of the party along with those who are responsible for his coming, no matter how high up they think they are in the movement.

We want to change the capitalist laws of this government for the working class interests. To do so we must elect working class Congressmen. We have a man nominated who made good in city council and who will make good in Congress. In every other district where there is a chance to elect the comrades are boosting their candidate and even the national office is appealed to for support, but in Columbus we have an individual who in opposition to the expressed wish of Local Columbus has taken it upon himself to prevent Comrade Zimpfer from making any campaign or distributing any cards or in any way putting himself before the voters. When such things are done by a so-called comrade imported into Local Columbus from the Lord only knows where, it is time to get busy and get busy we will.

SWEDEN TO GO SOCIALIST AS THE RESULT OF WAR?

Returns published in the capitalist press concerning the brilliant victory of the Socialists in the Swedish elections just concluded are misleading. If the Socialists gained 14 seats in Parliament as reported this would give them 87 members and make them the most powerful parliamentary group. The capitalist reports that the gain of 14 seats would give the Socialists 57 members is clearly an error, since the Socialists already had 73 members.

Reports Become Intelligent

With this correction the capitalist press reports become more intelligent. The loss of 14 members for the Liberals, giving them 57 members in the new Parliament, is evidently correct, since they had 71 members in the old Parliament. The Conservatives, having elected 86 members are reported to have made no gains, and this is correct since they previously had 86 members.

This correction for the Socialist success then accounts for the 230 members of Parliament as follows: Socialists, 81; Conservatives, 86, and Liberals, 57, which gives the real basis for the reports in the capitalist press that, "At the conclusion of the war it is expected that a Socialist government will be formed."

Thus the Socialists have gained 14 seats at the expense of the Liberals, when reactionary elements the world over are heralding the downfall of Socialism as a result of the European war.

Wage War Against War

The Socialist war again war is making Socialism the most powerful political factor in Europe. King Gustaf dissolved Parliament last spring when it refused to put through his military program and a special election was held. Before the election the parliamentary representation stood as follows: Socialists, 64; Conservatives, 64; and Liberals, 102. After the election the results showed as follows: Socialists, 73; Conservatives, 86, and Liberals, 71. Thus in this fall's elections the Socialists have overcome the Conservative lead and far outstripped the Liberals.

Ollie M. Morris, a prominent member of the Oklahoma Legislature and well-known trade unionist, resigned from the Democratic party and joined the Socialist party. In a pamphlet which he has issued he explains the reasons for his action. He says that he went to the Legislature under the impression that the Democratic party really wished him to carry out the promises in the platform, but discovered that the real bosses of that party had no such intention. "They expect a man to advocate certain measures," he says, "but if he actually tries to carry out these measures they will defeat him."

Start Anti-Socialist Clubs.—The copper barons of northern Michigan are still organizing anti-Socialist clubs. They are now planning to consolidate allof these organizations into the Copper Country Anti-Socialist Club.

IN THE HOLY NAME OF TRADE

Come ye tell me, O ye workers, why the money-demon gloats,
Why the rulers never stop ye when ye near each other's throats?
Can ye tell me, O ye toilers, why the young are stoopt and old,
Why so many wor a-hungered when the land is filled with gold?
"Yea! For profit, profit, profit, all these broken hearts are made—
In the holy name of trade!
In the holy name of trade!"

Can ye tell me, kings of commerce, when machines should on them wait,
Why the burden bears the hardest on the weakest in the State?
Can ye tell me, O my masters, why invention's mighty breath
Only fills the sail that hastens with the children on to death?
"Yea- For profit, profit, profit, all these broken hearts are made—
In the holy name of trade!
In the holy name of trade!"

Can ye tell me, laureled statesmen, why around so many hearths
Broods a shadow and a terror that is not our mother earth's?
Can ye tell me, O ye teachers, why, with all the wealth we find,
Why the race in sorrow's mothered and the love-sight's going blind?
"Yea- For profit, profit, profit, all these broken hearts are made—
In the holy name of trade!
In the holy name of trade!"

Address LINCOLN COURT No. 52,
Guardians of Liberty,
Columbus, Ohio.

[illegible]let was being distributed by the Rev. Edward H. [illegible] of the Guardians of Liberty, and in his meander[illegible] to the office [illegible]he Clerk of the Supreme Court [illegible] it was, at the very threshold [illegible] State, that he found [illegible]dy to [illegible]marl provocation.

What happened there and then and the following days [illegible] be better told in the language of the Reverend Caylor, whose statement follows:

REV. E. H CAYLOR
Columbus, Ohio

Rev. Edward H. Caylor, D.D., aged 78 years, who was insulted and threatened with arrest by lickspittle of Rome in the Clerk's office of the Supreme Court of Ohio.

"IS THIS THE VATICAN?". "YES," came the quick but unguarded answer.

Read Just What Happened

Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 6th, 1914.

Through the Clerk of the Supreme Court of Ohio to the proper person intended who you can determine on reading, and select from the incident narrated:

On last Monday morning, passing through the State House, and having with me some leaflets—"ANNUNCIATIONS OF THE GUARDIANS OF LIBERTY"—I stepped into your office and placed one or two upon desks, and handed a couple to some gentlemen pensively sitting there. As I made a pleasant remark or two, without tarrying, I passed out into the hall. Before getting any distance, a voice called to me, and I stepped back under the storm door, and a gentlemen (pardon the term) with leaflet in hand asked me what it was. I directly explained to him WHAT it WAS, whereupon I at once discovered that here, as for resenting American Liberty, was where "storm" was kept on tab. Irately, in a heated manner, I was ordered away, with words unbecoming a gentleman, dependent, if so, upon American Free Institutions for his support—utterly suppressing in his arrogance all guaranteed rights, as his ejection was not on the grounds of intrusion, but upon the patriotic sentiment of the leaflet. I did not say much, as I observed that he was in humor to say more important things than I could, for the interpretation of his remarks contained volumes of significant facts. Just at this point when he was out from under cover, I put the question to him, "Is this the vatican?" What!" came the reply. "Is this the vatican?" I repeated; and the answer came, "Yes." "Well," said I, "we have been hearing that this building was the Ohio vatican, but never knew it so well as now—on your confession."

Now let me remark that such incidents as this, I now narrate, shall not go unnoticed by the liberty-loving, patriotic loyal citizens of yet partly free America. Listen! Five of my father's sons, at the call of their country in the early sixties, responded, and helped to pay the price of our second time blood-bought United States of America. I of the five only remain, and should it yet become necessary that my life be sacrificed in defense of our free Republic from the grasp of the deadly octopus of Rome, when I pass over my four brothers—yes, five of them—will have organized a reception that will make acres of heaven resound with allelujahs.

This is the most important leaflet ever handed to an American citizen, and, it matters not ones opinion. Columbus is full of the deadly Roman virus, and many men have unwittingly bowed their necks to the Roman yoke for the political sop that Rome [illegible]

But, may I say, let one put his ear to the ground and hear the rumblings beneath where we tread, and surmise the oncoming upheaval that is as natural in cause and effect as the falling of an apple. Will it come? It will! Either Rome will be turned back by the ballot or by the bayonet. Let us hope by the ballot.

The matter of calling Ohio's Capitol "the vatican" is not a joke, and the voicing of the little inner guard who ejected me is correct, and so recognised by many thousands of Ohio's citizens who are aware of the political situation therein.

My respects to the veracity of that inner guard who "confessed" to me. THE LEAFLET THAT HE CRUCIFIED AND THREW AWAY I FOUND IN THE HALL, AND IT WILL BE ON EXHIBITION.

Very truly,
EDWARD H. CAYLOR.

Addendum

Brother Editor:

After leaving my "Vatican letter" with you this morning I wondered if I had made myself plain to you that the delivery of that letter at the Clerk's office of the Supreme Court was the next day after what the letter describes [illegible] Monday morning, October 5th.

[illegible] this time [illegible] I am told by one pre[illegible] Deputy Clerk of the Supreme Court of [illegible] reminded me of a Comanche Indian; for my having de[illegible] sume that the "Vatican" would be interested in anyth[illegible] can.

The letter he tore open as I left the office, physically [illegible]ted it, and threw it away, as he followed me into the hall with verbal violence. I rescued the letter—destined to make history.

The result proves that the incident was a masterly stroke of innocent strategy; and, withall, full of significant interpretation, and reaches the limit of ridiculous assumption. He took me to be aged, infirm and ignorant; but he has a guess or two coming yet.

Guardians of Liberty and patriotic orders are here to stay, and they will see that the Roman element now throttling the country, the courts and cunningly worming into official relations at the hands of those who are elected by the people, when they could not possibly be elected themselves, in the interest of Romanism, are eliminated.

I enclose my personal card which you see stands to represent me in place. My writings are known on three continents, and my lectures and discourses from sea to sea in America, and my printed books widely.

Very truly,
E. H. C.

the public should see to it that courtesy is exercised in all cases. We know it is not. We know there are short, crabbed, insulting answers many times. This should not be. It is directly against the interests of an institution to hire discourteous men. One of their first duties is to be polite to all, poor and rich, ignorant and learned, friends and strangers—all are entitled to the same treatment.

There is more time lost and damage done by being impatient than by being good-humored and gentle-tempered. Everybody ought to learn as the greatest thing in the philosophy of life, that there is far more waste of nerve and muscle when one is irritable than when one is patient. So there is no excuse under Heaven for a man being discourteous. Let the managers and directors understand that, in supervising their employes, who deal with people.

Why isn't the Journal courteous enough to its readers to publish the place and name of these discourteous employes? We ask why?

ALTOGETHER ELECT CONGRESSMAN

tion power over you. On the other hand, you have accumulated friendships by being foolish in your political beliefs. You are necessary, not blamed. For the most part, you have an opportunity to write exactly what your grafter friends are willing that you should letter or naturally form your opinions upon the basis of what they [illegible] not into the ballot box [illegible] loaded.

And remember: You cannot win unless your class wins—the working class. You cannot win unless you get together and stick together. The Socialist platform is the only place in America in which you can get together without finding grafters and bunko men sandwiched in among you. The Socialist party is a working man's and a working woman's party. Grafters have no use for it. Bunko men steer clear of it. Its platform does not contain a splinter of comfort for any of them. It is on the level and on the square. It will not break down and it will not blow up. If we had a Socialist Congress today, this country would enter upon such an era of prosperity as the world never saw. As a matter of fact, the world has never seen much prosperity, except for a few. The rest of the people are always close to the hunger line.

One man in Congress, a few years ago, exposed the Lawrence woolen mills iniquities. Victor Berger did that. Fifty Socialist Congressmen could do more. Fifty Socialist Congressmen would be 50 searchlights playing upon the dark recesses of Washington. And not infrequently, they would be 50 submarines firing torpedoes at the good ship Graft—a ship that is always busy conveying piratical bills into the harbor of statute law.

This may be all nonsense. If you think it is, you can do nothing better than to vote the Republican ticket with Rockerfeller, the Democratic ticket with Ryan, or the Progressive ticket with Perkins. If you should do so, your best friend could wish you no better luck than to be as prosperous during the next two years as they will be.

The Socialist party stands to accomplish its phrposes by the ballot and not by violence and strife. There are, however, men who call themselves Socialists and, sorry to say, carry red cards in the Socialist party who do all they can to discourage people from voting for candidates nominated by the Socialist party. Why in the name of God nominate a ticket if you to not want to elect the cantidates? Why go to all the work and expense of a campaign? Comrades, when anyone comes into your midst and before he is really obligated in the party, he undertakes to "Boss" the campaign committee the local and all the candidates put it down that he is in the pay of the capital class.

The Socialist party of Columbus needs no dictator sent to them by the Manufacturers' Association, and anyone proving himself such should be kicked out of the party along with those who are responsible for his coming, no matter how high up they think they are in the movement.

We want to change the capitalist laws of this government for the working class interests. To do so we must elect working class Congressmen. We have a man nominated who made good in city council and who will make good in Congress. In every other district where there is a chance to elect the comrades are boosting their candidate and even the national office is appealed to for support, but in Columbus we have an individual who in opposition to the expressed wish of Local Columbus has taken it upon himself to prevent Comrade Zimpfer from making any campaign or distributing any cards or in any way putting himself before the voters. When such things are done by a so-called comrade imported into Local Columbus from the Lord only knows where, it is time to get busy and get busy we will.

SWEDEN TO GO SOCIALIST AS THE RESULT OF WAR?

Returns published in the capitalist press concerning the brilliant victory of the Socialists in the Swedish elections just concluded are misleading. If the Socialists gained 14 seats in Parliament as reported this would give them 87 members and make them the most powerful parliamentary group. The capitalist reports that the gain of 14 seats would give the Socialists 87 members is clearly an error, since the Socialists already had 78 members.

Reports Become Intelligent

With this correction the capitalist press reports become more intelligent. The loss of 14 members for the Liberals, giving them 57 members in the new Parliament, is evidently correct, since they had 71 members in the old Parliament. The Conservatives, having elected 86 members are reported to have made no gains, and this is correct since they previously had 86 members.

This correction for the Socialist success then accounts for the 230 members of Parliament as follows: Socialists, 81; Conservatives, 86, and Liberals, 57, which gives the real basis for the reports in the capitalist press that, "At the conclusion of the war it is expected that a Socialist government will be formed."

Thus the Socialists have gained 14 seats at the expense of the Liberals, when reactionary elements the world over are heralding the downfall of Socialism as a result of the European war.

Wage War Against War

The Socialist war again war is making Socialism the most powerful political factor in Europe. King Gustaf dissolved Parliament last spring when it refused to put through his military program and a special election was held. Before the election the parliamentary representation stood as follows: Socialists, 64; Conservatives, 64; and Liberals, 102. After the election the results showed as follows: Socialists, 78; Conservatives, 86, and Liberals, 71. Thus in this fall's elections the Socialists have overcome the Conservative lead and far outstripped the Liberals.

Ollie M. Morris, a prominent member of the Oklahoma Legislature and well-known trade unionist, resigned from the Democratic party and joined the Socialist party. In a pamphlet which he has issued he explains the reasons for his action. He says that he went to the Legislature under the impression that the Democratic party really wished him to carry out the promises in the platform, but discovered that the real bosses of that party had no such intention. "They expect a man to advocate certain measures," he says, "but if he actually tries to carry out these measures they will defeat him."

Start Anti-Socialist Clubs.—The copper barons of northern Michigan are still organizing anti-Socialist clubs. They are now planning to consolidate allof these organizations into the Copper Country Anti-Socialist Club.

With the present "psychological" hard times, and its resultant curtailment of expenses, "The Socialist" is hit harder than any other paper. This condition could be turned into profit for the paper if all our subscribers would insist on buying only from those who advertise in The Socialist. Not only can this be done, but hundreds of merchants all over town who have been getting your patronage could be persuaded to advertise if you would speak to them about it.

Have a talk with your grocer, butcher, milk man, ice man. Get their adv. and watch the columns of the paper and make all purchases from advertisers.

FOOD FOR THE PEOPLE
By Winnie E. Branstetter

Chicago, Oct. 15. Each penny added to the cost of living, is so much food taken from the mouths of our babes. This is the sentiment back of the PEOPLE'S MONSTER PETITION. For the first time, women, the food purchasers of this nation, are voicing their protest against the exorbitant rise in the cost of food stuffs.

For the first time the mothers of this nation are putting forth a definite and concrete program of defense against the encroachment of avaricious food pirates.

When women realize that the private control of food and clothing means the slavery of their children, they will look with favor upon any proposed relief from so unnatural and inhuman a condition. We are making them realize these facts now.

The nation's wide circularization of the PEOPLE'S MONSTER PETITION demanding "the establishment of FOOD SUPPLY DEPOTS, and such other facilities as are necessary to maintain a just market for the sale of the necessities of life direct to the people," opens up a great field for propaganda. Hundreds of our best workers are taking advantage of this opportunity to carry our message of relief to every wage earner and home keeper in this country.

Send to the Socialist Party National Office for petition forms for circulation.

The Federation of Trade Unions and the Socialist party in Germany have issued a joint proclamation to the workers to remain true to their organizations, pay their dues and attend meetings, use every effort to relieve distress and be prepared to meet any future contingencies that may arise. No work to be done anywhere in the empire should be shirked, and the women and young people are also requested to assist in bearing the burdens as much as possible.

The miners' side of the controversy between employers and employes in the Michigan copper mines is set forth in a brief filed with the House Committee on Mines. The workers assert they made every honorable concession to adjust the trouble, and that "the operators' cry of alien agitators preventing a settlement is hypocritical and untrue." The brief charges assaults and outrages by the deputies, gunmen and soldiers on the striking miners; assails the deportation of Charles H. Moyer, and insists that there was interference with free access to postal facilities and other invasions of constitutional rights. The committee has not yet taken any action on the results of its investigation.

In keeping down the working class and preventing organization, [illegible] of Japan has adopted [illegible] fostering igno- [illegible] of the [illegible] Labor [illegible] with economic and political questions. A number of Socialists who sought to translate labor literature received from Europe and America have been thrown into prison and their little printing material was destroyed.

UNCLE SAM RUSHING TOWARD SOCIALISM, SAYS U. S. SENATOR

Sees Grave Danger in Marine Insurance Measure and Proposed Purchase of Ships to Ply Seas

(From Buffalo Evening News.)
News Bureau,
Riggs Building.

Washington, —"We are taking giant strides toward socialism in legislation," said a prominent Republican Senator today to the correspondent of the NEWS. On being asked to explain further, he said:

"The socialistic theory is for the government to own everything, do everything, and pay everything, entirely eliminating private ownership and individual enterprise and energy. This socialism began to creep into our legislation several years ago. Within the last three or four years the stride has gained until we are now racing in that direction with a breakneck speed.

"Under the constitutional [illegible] giving Congress the right to regulate commerce between the States we stretched the Hamiltonian theory of implied powers to make it cover transportation as an instrumentality of commerce. Later we assumed to regulate the hours of labor on interstate transportation lines, calling that an instrumentality of interstate commerce. It has gone on until the statute books have a regulation of the liability of employing railroads to employes.

Aspect of Senate Changed.

"When our constitution was framed its framers intended the Senate should represent, in its collective capacity, the political and sovereign powers of the States, hence the States were given equal representation. The House was to be the representative of the people, but the Senate of the sovereignty of the State, and as the legislatures were the political representatives of the sovereignty of the States they were given the power to select the Senators. We have destroyed the individual sovereignty of the States in this respect by making Senators elective by the people.

"Beginning with attempting to regulate railroads in the matter of rates, we are now endeavoring to regulate them as to their issue of stocks and bonds. We are going a step further in that direction, and are attempting to regulate the business affairs of all corporations, not alone in their interstate business, but in their intrastate business so far as competition is concerned.

"In adopting the parcels post we entered into the freight carrying business. And it is now solemnly contemplated to plunge the government into the general ocean-carrying trade by the purchase by the government of ocean vessels. It is true they say this is only a temporary measure made necessary by the exigencies of the time, but the government never abandons a temporary measure when once embarked therein.

Cannot Outbid Government.

"Anyone who has watched the course of events will know that in this the government will come into competition with private enterprises, and thus paralyze individual effort, for individuals cannot outbid the government in the market when it comes to making the purchases, nor can individual enterprise successfully compete with the government as to freight rates, as the government always will foot the losses, and say nothing.

"The purchase of ships is not the only proposition. It is now proposed to go into the insurance business. You will say this is only an emergency measure, and only goes to marine insurance, but take what Senator Thomas of Colorado said in the Senate when Senator Clark of Arkansas had offered an amendment to the pending bill, making it obligatory on the President to terminate the operation of the Panama Canal Clark act whenever the war-risk it was, at the [illegible] it necessary. [illegible] State, that he [illegible] and I believe this is going to be successful as demonstrating not only the exercise of the governmental power, but also as a matter of revenue, that no one will want to see it abolished, but will rather prefer to see it extended so that marine insurance, as such, will come under the domain of governmental jurisdiction. I hope that will be extended to other lines of insurance.'

"There it is in a nutshell. In my opinion, unless the newspapers of the land take up this matter in earnest it will not be more than a few years until Congress will resolve itself into a national police board, and the government will smother all individual enterprise."

The insurance bill passed the Senate, and will pass the House for the President has adopted it, and the House will do his will, but it will meet with much strong opposition from some of the Democrats.

MISSOURI SOCIALIST PARTY STATE CONVENTION

Resolutions on War, High Cost of Living, Boy Scouts, Etc.

Resolution on War.

The Socialist Party of Missouri condemns the European war, caused by the ruling powers of the various countries involved; we extend the hand of brotherhood and solidarity to our comrades, brothers and sisters of Europe. We hope that the bloody catastrophe will come to a speedy end, and that the great work of Socialism for the emancipation of labor and the abolition of war and international strife will soon be resumed.

The Socialist Party of Missouri appeals to the working class of America to be on their guard and do all in their power to prevent the government of the United States from meddling in any way with the war situation that might draw our own country into this bloody spectacle enacted by the powers of Europe. Nothing should be left undone to induce our government in Washington to tender its good offices, with a view of bringing about a termination of the present war and re-establishment of friendly relations between the nations of Europe.

Resolution on High Cost of Living.

Whereas, The present war in Europe has been used by the capitalist corporations and speculators of this country as a pretext and excuse for the exorbitant increase in the price of those commodities and foodstuffs mostly needed by the great mass of the people;

Whereas, There is absolutely no reasonable excuse or justification for such commercial highway robbery on the part of the American capitalists; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Socialist Party of Missouri demands that the Government of the United States protect the best interests of the American people by applying the law of eminent [illegible] by private interests for criminally speculative purposes, such as the wheat, flour, sugar and meat business, and operate the same for the exclusive benefit of the people.

Resolution on Boy Scouts.

Whereas, The present European war has again proven that the Boy Scout movement was originated for capitalist military purposes; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Socialist Party of Missouri appeals to the Socialists, Trade Unionists and sympathizers throughout the state to continue their propaganda against the Boy Scout movement as being inimical to the healthy development of society and as a danger to the public welfare.

VOTERS—TAKE NOTICE

Because of misunderstanding as to number of signers for office of State Senators, Comrades

Frank M. Wilson
and
Charles J. Welsh,

candidates for State Senators on the Socialist ticket will not have their names on the ballot at the general election. It will, therefore be necessary for all who wish to vote for them to write their names in the blank space left on that ticket on election day.

Cut this out and take to voting booth as reminder.

DON'T FORGET COLORADO

A fight is always the supreme opportunity for pickpockets. The greatest fight in the world is certain to be the greatest opportunity in the world for the whole international class that lives by picking the pockets of labor.

While every eye is on Europe, the railroads are preparing to sneak through their 5 per cent increase, reactionaries are crawling out of their political tombs all over the country and all the old schemes for fooling labor are being trotted out and worked with success.

In Colorado a three-years' truce has been signed in the mine war, and the outside world has been told that all is now lovely in spite of the echoes of Ludlow.

Election day is near in Colorado, and the mine owners are preparing to pull off the same game they have worked at every Colorado election for 20 years. A choice lot of labor skates, carrying union cards, have been nominated for office. The Democratic party has fixed up its platform so as to help these stool pigeons in loading the workers into another slaughter pen.

Worst of all some of the high officials in the unions seem to have been reached by the mine owners and to be welcoming this trickery. It is hard to believe they are ignorant of the effect of their actions this time, since the same game was worked when the present state officials were elected. Most of the officers responsible for the killing of men, women and children in the mining war carried union cards and were elected as "friends of labor" under the policy of "reward your friends and punish your enemies."

Vol. IV Whole No. 200 COLUMBUS, OHIO, OCT. 24, 1914 Price, 2 Cents per Copy

University Library Ex
O. S. U. N. High st.

THIS PAPER is published in the interest of the working class. If you think it is worthy of your support, support it by getting new subscribers. If you don't like it, don't knock. We are making it as good as you will allow. Whenever the workers support their own press as valiantly as they do the master's press we will be able to do really big things for the emancipation of the workers. In the meantime, we are forging ahead conscious of the fact that our cause is just, that right will finally triumph, and the workers step forth emancipated from the age-long servitude to a robber, master class.

MILITARISM IN OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY--COMBAT WITH MONSTER

Ohio State University
315 West 9th Avenue, Columbus, O., Oct. 10, 1914.

Mr. Fred A. Hinkel.

Dear Comrade:—Have just found out that I could not get out of drill under no consideration. It is required that every one take it two years and they are thinking of changing it to three. It is the worst thing we have in the school. We are lined up shoulder to shoulder. Each man must stand erect, head up, hands down at the side, eyes to the front, heels together and the toes apart so that the feet form n angle of 45 degrees. We are demerited (that is our grade is cut) for any violation of these rules. Also for such things as wearing tan shoes, being without white gloves, having the coat or collar unbuttoned, talking, laughing or spitting in ranks, breaking rules or chewing gum in ranks, being late or absent.

I am enclosing a page from the catalogue that explains the military work and gives their equipment. Enclosed also is a copy of the petitions that had no effect on the executive board.

To the Executive Board, Ohio State University.

Gentlemen:—I hereby petition to be excused from drill work during my entire study. My reason for asking this is, that I am a member of the Socialist party and as such, have pledged myself to support its constitution and platform, both of which are opposed to any movement that has a tendency to retard peace or promote the cause of war.

Respectfully,
JESSE J. ENDS.

I want to thank you for your time and trouble required in answering my message. I'm glad you gave the answer that you did. Maybe it did the Board a little good to read the petition any way. Even though they are college men, maybe they never knew as much about the Socialist party.

Prexy Thompson makes a speech to the Freshmen every Friday, and last Friday in illustrating how people ought to drop small issues or differences when it came time to support a larger one he said the men of Ulster were ready to fight English but when war broke out they rallied to her aid. Likewise, he said the Socialists at Reichstag were causing trouble. They are a strong anti-war party, he said, but when the war broke out they said, "we love our ideas, but we love Germany more," and went to the front. Now what influence can a man in my position have over the young lives of these Freshmen in talking to them against war or saying Socialists do not believe in war, after a man of his position has talked to them like that?

You need not take any time to answer this letter ,it isn't necessary. I'm just writing to thank you. However, if you wish me to write a piece against militarism, I will, or if you can use this letter or any part of it in that way it will do more good than I [illegible]press from the minds of the [illegible]

[illegible] and his wife in Serai[illegible]

Equipment

The equipment of the Military Department comprises 1,300 standard U. S. Magazine rifles, with belts, bayonets, and accoutrements, 51 regulation infantry officers' sabres and belts, 25 cadet swords and belts, a stand of regimental colors, with markers, guidons, etc. The t arget practice equipment comprises six Springfield gallery rifles and seven Winder-Model Winchester gallery rifles, five targets for 100, 200 and 300 yards, and five Winder-Model targets for long range. The band comprises about 60 pieces, partly supplied by the University and partly owned by the members.

The office is equipped for recording the attendance and performance of each cadet in drill, target practice, and classroom work.

ORGANIZATION

The cadet regiment is organized into four battalions of four companies each, a band, and trumpet corps. Each battalion has its own staff officers. The total number of men under arms averages about 1,400 at present. Service in the band is credited as military service. The appointment of cadet officers during the second year of service is for excellence in their work. These officers may continue to serve during the third and fourth years if they wish, and if they do, are given compensation at the end of each year's satisfactory service, amounting to not less than twenty-five dollars ($25.00) for lieutenants, thirty dollars ($30.00) for captains, and larger sums for officers of higher ranks. Members of the band who volunteer for service after having completed their two years required duty, are also paid at the rate of $20.00 per year, and receive instructions during the four winter months by a competent bandmaster.

1. MILITARY DRILL. One credit hour. Five months, three hours per week (divided between fall and spring) military drill, four months three hours per week (winter) of class-room instruction in drill regulations. Target practice at any open hour during the afternoons of winter months, at 100, 200 and 300 yards. Lecture, one hour weekly by the President, upon topics of common interest to the student body.

2. MILITARY DRILL. One credit hour. Five months, three hours per week (divided between fall and spring) military drill, four months three hours per week (winter) of class-room instruction in Articles of War, guard manual, and field service regulations. Target practice at any open hour of the afternoons of the winter months, at 500, 600, and 800 yards..

CAUTION.—New students are cautioned not to buy uniforms until they have received full instructions from the Commander of Cadets. Second-hand uniforms must be inspected by the Commandant before purchased.

MILITARY SCIENCE AND TACTICS

In accordance with the Morrill Act, passed in 1862, under which the University was established, military instruction must be included in the curriculum. The Board of Trustees, therefore, requires all male students, including so-called special students, to drill during two years unless excused by the Military and Gymnasium Board. This work is under an officer of the regular army, detailed for the purpose. The Military Department is open during five days each week throughout the year.

UPHELD BY COX AND PRESIDENT THOMPSON

This military system is upheld by Governor James Cox and his Democratic administration. They spend thousands annually. It will be upheld by a Republican or Progressive just as it is by Cox. They too will spend thousands annually to teach the youthful student to shoot to kill. To kill brutes? No, to kill men created in the likeness of God. Think of it, teaching young men, man killing in the highest educational institution in the state. Our Ohio forefathers declared that a standing army is a dangerous thing in time of peace and stated that it should forever be discouraged in the state. It would be hard to make President Thompson believe he was fostering teaching contrary to this view. President Thompson in standing back of the teaching of militarism favors the slaughter of brothers and their rotting on the battle field. Cannibals are more to be complimented for they made use of the flesh that they killed. They made use of the bodies and did not let them rot and create a stench to draw huge black bussards and creeping maggots.

SOCIALISTS WILL STOP GAME

The election of the Socialists to power in the state is the way to stop this military training and man killing propaganda at the Ohio State University. By law we can [illegible] and scheme to foster militarism upon the republic. We, the Socialists will pass such a law. Jerry Mincher in the State Legislature can introduce such a bill. Let us put an end to this creation of man killers at our State University, by electing Scott Wilkins and the complete Socialist ticket. It is a hideous crime to compel a young man to tain to kill against his conscience.

Attention, Comrades!

DARROW SAYS CONTRIBUTIONS TO RED CROSS PROLONGS WAR

Chicago, Sept. 28.—Clarence S. Darrow takes a unique view opposing donations by Americans to the Red Cross fund for the care and comfort of wounder soldiers in Europe.

"Every person with humane sympathies is anxious to do what he can to prevent suffering growing out of the war," he says in a signed statement. "But the result is perfectly plain to anyone who gives the matter the slightest consideration. Every dollar donated by neutrals for the wounded means that every government can save that dollar and use it for powder and lead to kill others.

"If one desires to contribute for any war purpose, they might just as well contribute to buy powder as to pay surgeons and nurses. Both contributions will have the effect of prolonging the war.

"When one side is exhausted and the war is over, there will be millions of suffering people, without homes, clothing, or food. These will need help and should have it from everyone able to give. But until that time comes any friend of peace ought to understand that every dollar he gives is given not to save life, but to destroy it."

"Political Whitewash" was Convent Report of County Commissioners

Many people have been heard to say that the "Convent Report" of the Commissioners of Franklin County was a political whitewash, pure and simple. In the first place the "Report" does not read like a straight forward business investigation, but deals only in generalities. Then the "Report" does not go to the essence of the conditions existing there as has been shown by the statement of the Tunning girl, released from the convent at point of guns the same day or the day before the Commissioners visited the convent at 10:45 A. M., "UNANNOUNCED." That word UNANNOUNCED sounds very much political to us when coupled with a few things we have heard.

Some three years ago, the Socialist assessors visited that convent and found little girls 10 to 15 years old working on 68 power sewing machines which belonged to The Hershey-Rice Mfg. Co. Mr. Hershey testified under oath in the Bates-Black case there were only 44 such machines in that convent and now comes the Commissioners who "Report" 66 such machines, but do not say who owns them. Is it possible some other capitalist exploiter of the brain, brawn, education, religion, body and soul of ABSOLUTELY INNOCENT children has established headquarters behind those DARK WALLS with 22 power sewing machines? We don't know. The Commissioners did not consider it their duty to tell us, and Mr. Hershey SWORE they had but 44. That leaves us free to suspect that some other scab concern is putting non-union goods upon the market in competition with reputable union shops who try to pay union wages to the fathers of children so they can support and keep them out of the convent where they make scab goods to come in competition with union labor. My God, wage earners, can't you see the NUB to this RUB. You can't get wages enough to support your children because of the scab sweat-shop and the Juvenile Courts in league with these privately operated dens gobble up your children and send them there for life to make goods in competition with their father who is unable to support the child because of these sweat-shops. My God, workers, can't you see there is no end to this ENDLESS CHAIN of the convent branch of the damnable capitalist systems.

Then why, if we are opposed to the capitalist system, should we not oppose every branch of that system? As for us, we are opposed to every branch of the hellish system and we are going to mention some of them, from time to time, whether it happen to be the saloon, Protestantism, Romanism, Juries or the Judges of Courts who use capitalism to exploit and oppress the helpless and we will draw our comfort and inspiration from letters like the following:

FULL PANEL

The jurors filed into the jury-box and after all the twelve seats were filled there still remained one juror standing outside.

"If the court please," said the clerk, "they have made a mistake and sent us thirteen jurors instead of twelve. What do you want to do with this extra one?"

"What is your name?" asked the judge of the extra man.

"Joseph A. Braines," he replied.

"Mr. Clerk," said the judge, "take this man back to the jury commissioners and tell them we don't need him as we already have here twelve men without Braines."—The Green Bag.

PROBATE JUDGE SAYS "GIVE HIM HELL"

When in the course of human events you are set upon by all kinds of thieves, thugs, detectives and anarchists, who have no regard for courts, justice or oath, and you are vilified by such cattle under cover and who dare not come out in the open or give specific instances, and you are made to feel that all the world is against you, it comes in good to have some unknown friend, or better still, many unknown friends send you words of cheer and encouragement.

This is happening every day, yes, every mail, but the most significant of all came to hand last week when the editor of this paper received a letter from a Probate Judge in Ohio enclosing a check for $1.00, asking for a 5-cent copy of the leaflet "Working Class Lawyer has Courage of Convictions," with instructions to keep the change and give "him" hell. I think I could guess who he meant by "him."

Columbus, Ohio, Oct.14th, 1914.

W. C. Bates.

Dear Sir: As I have been reading The Socialist paper, I find they are rapping the institutions. Well, I see they are right. I only wish they had started it 18 years ago. My mother was so full of religion she thought best to put us in a Good Shepard Convent, Broad and Sandusky Sts. My other two sisters also. My poor old father tried many times to get us out, but no, we were put there unbeknowns to him. Father is living yet and every time we get to talking about the place he cries. Oh! Nobody knows how we were treated. My experience of the place I could write a book 3 inches thick. Every day the same thing for breakfast. We got tea and dry bread only. Then we were expected to work hard until 11:30 on bread and tea. We started to work at 7 o'clock and worked until 11:30, dinner time. After dinner we got 1 hour of play, (what I would call just enough of time to give everybody a chance to go to the toilet.) At one o'clock we went back to work and worked until 6 o'clock, then supper. All through the day we were not allowed to speak a word. We prayed and sung hymns all day, we had to do so much, and if we did not get the amount of work done they required, we had to stay up some times until 12 o'clock at night, then if we were not done the Sister would slip us on the hands with the stick off o fa tree.

I was 3 years of age, my other sisters were 5 and 7. We got three hours for school. I stopped school at the age of 12. Father would write and ask how we were getting along in school and they would say just fine, and we were not going to school at all. They tried to teach geography and we did not even know what they were talking about, because we never got a chance to know what the world was. My poor little sister Susie was but 7 years when she was inclined to have rheumatism. The Sisters would strap her on the legs and make her get on her knees when she was not able.

Father came over to see us and thought the child needed care and medical treatment which she did not get there. They would not let her take sister out, so she got the permission from Bishop Watterson to take her out. Three months later she died at St. Francis Hospital. Oh! how I longed for my 18th birthday. Many, many times I cried and said "Oh! my God, if only I could get out of here! What have I done to get such treatment." My other poor sister is suffering today from the pommeling the Sisters gave her over her head with a 3-inch book.

I never got a chance to tell my father how we were treated, because they would read our letters and if they did not suit they would tear them up, and when our parents would come to see us they sat right beside of us. We were scared to say any thing because I knew we were signed over there until 18, and nobody would take us out. When father would come to see us he brought enough of clothes to supply us for the year. He would sit and cry. "If I only could tke you home, how happy I would be," he would say. I remember once of a little girl by the name of Mary Blake; she was put in there. She was 2 years of age; she was a sweet little thing and had real pretty, curly hair. Her mother died one month after she was there. Sister Austin (I guess she is still there), said she was proud, and cut her hair off. One evening the Sister made her kneel on her little knees and because she could not they whipped her. She cried, saying, "I want my mamma." She still kept whipping the child for crying "I want my mamma." She kept asking the child, "Will you say that again?" The child would keep saying yes for no. The poor little baby did not know any different. I could not stand to see the child whipped any longer, so I hollered "Let her alone." Then I got my hair cut for answering her back, but I really had to cry for the poor little child and still more, I knew she had 16 years of her life yet to spend there. I expect she is about 9 years old now as I left there 7 years ago, and I still feel sorry for her. I know how she is treated.

When anybody came over there it was ALL HONEY, but just as soon as they are gone I wish you could see the difference. I can just imagine if I was over there when the County Commissioners were inspecting the place, when they asked the girls how they were treated and if they were contented. I would have said yes, just the same as they, because I would think it would not do any good to say otherwise. But if I only knew what I know today, I certainly would have run off and hunted for THE SOCIALISTS to help me find father who would have been glad to take me, as father was a good man and a hard working man, never drinks, or never did. Mother says he has got 3 little children today, the youngest is 3 years. They are well provided for, a good home they can call their own. Just think, I could have been blessed with the same, if the cussed Sisters had not deprived me of them and pommeled and beat me for their own living.

Mr. Bates, I certainly will shake hands with you for your work. You are a good man and I will give you any information you want. I would write 3 times as much, but will tire you out. I can swear to God, this is the truth, and nobody can deny it.

My name was F—— H——, but now is Mrs. ————, Main St., Columbus, O. Asking you as a favor not to sign my name in your paper as my husband is working for ———— and I am well known. You can say F. H——. my sister's name is S. H———. Yours truly—

Hush! 'Tis the clanging door; the grating of a key—
And the door is locked, securely, tight. And silently,
Alone, forlorn, hopelessly downcast and sad;
In robe of black she sits, helpless, and almost mad.

'A cell—and this is home! O God, what shame! What crime!
And I must bear this all alone, and yet sublime.
And bars!—of strongest iron—to keep me in, yet I'm not strong,
But weak, and helpless; O God! My God! How long, how long?

O why did I forsake my all, my mother, and my home?
Why did I take this awful veil, and become a slave of Rome?
A slave to priestly passion, yea! though horrible, but true—
A slave! And in the name of Christ! What pleapheming they do.

A Bride of Crist! God spare the mark. Unholy, lying beasts.
A Bride of Christ! Be not deceived; a bride but for the priests.
And 'O what fools we mortals be!' Deceived by day, by night.
Why should I be a prisoner here? Why should my hair turn white?

O God! What torture; and the pain. The ever constant fear.
What penance we must make for sins! What punishment we bear!
And all within the convent wall, unseen by mortal eye.
How long, how long, must this endure? But no! I soon must die.

Why should I be left to pine away in this—a prison cell?
Why should I, weak and frail as I am, endure this tortorous Hell?
Are there not men in this great land who'll formulate some law
To rescue women such as I from this great viper's jaw?

'O DEATH! Where is thy sting?' And is this not tortorous death?
O Mothers! O'er your children watch; let not the demon's breath—
Breathe words of encouragement to your child, but watch steadfast and pray
That such a fate may happen not, or snatch your child away.

Hark! 'Tis the organ's peal. The chanting choir—a prayer.
Behold! In robes of black—the nuns, and then the bier.
Silently, noiselessly, downcast, pale-faced, forlorn:
They follow it to its resting place. Another victim gone.

They teach no good, but much of harm—these charmel dens of sin;
They lock and bar the doors of iron to keep their victims in.
A victim, yea! And is it right? And justice answers: "NO!"
Then by the help of a Righteous God these convent hells must go.

Reader, who would you prefer to believe, this lady who spent all the best part of her life (16 years) in this institution, suffered all its tortures and torments and saw others stuffer, or the "Political Whitewash" dope dished up by the Commissioners of Franklin County?

Who are you going to vote for? Why not vote for men who will INVESTIGATE and tell the truth and the whole truth about the conditions in these convents.

That "Report" intended as a vote-getter will prove the undoing of those who made it, if the voters get wise. That "Report" was SPRUNG a little too soon.

PLUTOCRATIC COMBINES PLOT WAGE REDUCTION

By Max S. Hayes.

The working people of the country should prepare to down brakes!

The big plutocratic combines of the Pittsburg district, true to their brutal, vicious records, have seized upon the hypocritical reason of "the war in Europe" to announce wage reductions.

If the Pittsburg conspiracy is permitted to succeed, the wage slashing mania will spread throughout the country like a prairie fire and affect all branches of business.

The United States Steel Corporation, one of the greediest of the capitalistic brood of labor-skinners, has announced that its present "agreement with its non-union employes will not be continued after Dec. 31, next."

The Westinghouse Co., which only recently was harrassed by a great strike, inaugurated by its employes, who were practically unorganized and who had been driven-desperate by their unbearable conditions, has followed suit and intends to enforce a wage reduction of 10 per cent in all its plants.

The Pittsburgh Coal Co., another large combine, has also declared a 10 per cent cut against its non-union workers. The contract with the union miners will be observed until its expiration.

Rumors are floating about Pittsburgh that other corporations are preparing to make announcements of wage reductions as soon as the public becomes accustomed to the edicts and accepts them philosophically.

If the [illegible] that the Government [illegible] it is a dead certainty that the United States protect the best interests of the American business [illegible] the law of similar [illegible]

The same [illegible] the working people are docile [illegible] accept the situation without a general fight, for under the present highly centralized system of capitalism, the most humane, fair-minded employers in a given industry must conform to the conditions imposed by the most insatiable profit mongers, or enter the bankruptcy courts.

Thus, a great responsibility rests upon the unorganized employes of the Steel Trust—who have been looked upon with more or less contempt or pity by the organized militant and self-respecting workers in their own and other industries because of their tractable acceptance of every imposition without resentment—to NOW prove to the American people that they are not helpless and hopeless slaves.

This is their opportunity to display their courage and manhood by spontaneously walking out of the mills when the notices of reductions are posted and resist to the utmost the efforts of the would-be slave-drivers to make their lot still harder.

At no time in the history of America has there been less justification for a general reduction of wages than at present.

With food, clothing, rents, etc., having advanced twice as fast as wages during the past dozen years, it is difficult to understand how the working people will manage to live if their purchasing power is still further reduced.

Moreover, business as a whole will suffer, for it stands to reason that if the millions of men in the mills of this country receive less wages, they can spend proportionately less in purchasing the necessaries and comforts of life, and the upshot of it will be that over-production and stagnated markets will become all the more pronounced, which in turn will lead to still further wage-cutting, unemployment and universal misery.

If the trust magnates were not grossly incompetent in running the industries, and treasonable to the best interests of the American people, they would attempt to preserve the balance of their own makeshift, hodge-podge, individualistic system by cutting their dividends on wind and water, reducing hours of labor to employ the idle workers, and increasing wages so that the purchasing power of the people would be materially enhanced.

But, of course, such a program is utterly out of harmony with capitalistic economy, and hence will receive no consideration at the hands of the plunderbund, which fattens upon the pennies, dimes and dollars that can be gouged from the masses of the people.

The workers of America should immediately prepare for a struggle. They should cry out in stentorian tones:

"NO WAGE REDUCTIONS!"

And let them also supplement this shibboleth with a demand and vote for government ownership and operation of the trusts.

WOMAN'S RELATION TO WAR

By Mclvian K. Hall

Well has the poet of the Sierras said:

"The bravest battle that ever was fought,
Shall I tell you where and when?
On the maps of the world you will find it not,
'Twas fought by the mothers of men."

Does man ever think that every corpse upon the battlefield represents nine months of physical discomfort and suffering often culminating in hours of the most excruciating agony which mortals may know?

Nor is this all, there are countless hours in the silent watches of the night, when those to whom she has given life, are running the gauntlet of diseases incident to childhood, there are years of watchful care, of patient devotion and teaching, guiding the little feet into paths of moral rectitude.

These are the experiences of every mother, but many a mother watches the boy she has nurtured at her bosom, grow into strong, vigorous manhood, the pride and joy of her life, and then, in the twinkling of an eye, that life which is a part of her own being is snuffed out in the awful carnage of war to gratify man's insatiate ambition for wealth and power.

This is the price woman has paid for motherhood, the divinest of gifts, throughout the centuries, and this has been woman's relation to war. She, the natural conserver of life, has brought forth babes only to have man destroy what she, out of the boundless depths of mother love has sought, throughout the long, long years to preserve and prepare for life's duties. Think you then, that woman has nothing to say about war?

When I think of the awful carnage that is devastating Europe, and in fancy hear the roar of machine guns, see the mangled bodies of thousands of mothers' sons, hear their piteous groans, I thank God from the depths of my soul, that woman in this twentieth century is awakening to a new consciousness of her duties and responsibilities.

Never again will she submit, as she has in the past to man made laws; she has learned if the race is to progress toward a higher civilization she can no longer be a negligible quantity in the affairs of state.

The demand she is making today is not to usurp man's place in the larger social life, but to share it with him. She demands equality of opportunity and a recognition in those enterprises and activities which she feels competent to enter.

TO HELL WITH SUCH RELIGION AS IS THIS

It is surely disgusting for one with a sense of justice and humanity left in his system to read the frank admissions of downright cussedness and damnable hypocricy of those up-in-the-world divines, otherwise called sky-pilots, as expressed in the capitalist papers from time to time. Either these papers and these preachers are downright degenerates or they ar too d—n ignorant of the ethics of sociology to merit consideration.

Never, in the space of our lives, have we seen such infernal attempts at prostitution of Christianity in the interests of capitalism as has been exhibited since the European war started.

ADVERTISING

We would like once more to urge on our readers to support our advertisers. With the present "psychological" hard times, and its resultant curtailment of expenses, "The Socialist" is hit harder than any other paper. This condition could be turned into profit for the paper if all our subscribers would insist on buying only from those who advertise in The Socialist. Not only can this be done, but hundreds of merchants all over town who have been getting your patronage could be persuaded to advertise if you would speak to them about it.

Have a talk with your grocer, butcher, milk man, ice man. Get their adv. and watch the columns of the paper and make all purchases from advertisers.

JUST LISTEN TO THIS

MORE MARRIAGES ARE WANTED IN ENGLAND

By United Press.

London, Sept. 28.—All ministers of the Church of England have been asked by the archbishop of Canterbury, its head, to do everything possible to encourage marriages. He has asked that they reduce the fee for the marriage license to a nominal sum and take no fees themselves for performing ceremonies for soldiers and sailors called to the colors. England, like Germany, realizes that a high birth rate is necessary to fill the gaps caused by the war and every effort is being made to encourage marriages at this time.

Did you ever? Talk about Socialists favoring free love—Bless you the highest monkey-to-monk of the Church of England not only favors free love, but insists upon FREE LUST between the semi-whores of society of England.

For years we have had preachers dinning in our ears that marriages were made in heaven, but it was all a lie. They are made in hell, (in war, which is hell,) by the archbishop of Canterbury. Socialists contend that a marriage solemnized by any authority, no matter haw eminent or world-renowned, is no marriage where love is not the prime factor, and that where man and woman of proper health, mental and physical equalifications should be allowed to wed regardless of church, priest or financial reasons.

That for a woman to marry a man simply for a home and to save herself from parental care or self-support is nothing more or less than adultery.

For a woman to marry some Count, or no-account, Duke or Dude, because some one other than herself desires it is simple prostitution.

For a woman, in time of war, to marry a sailor or soldier, for the sole purpose of BREEDING BASTARDS to fill the ranks of the army is hellish, damnable, capitalistic whore-mongering. Nothing less, and the minister or priest who would advocate such a thing should be ostracised as a traitor to society.

A newspaper which would publish and approve such an article and not condemn the sentiment therein expressed should be suppressed for thirty days.

TREACHERY

It has come to our notice that some one opposing Woman Suffrage is circulating Scab literature in which they charge that a vote for woman suffrage is a vote for Prohibition.

These leaflets do not bear the Union Label and the perpetrator of the trick wants it to appear that the Suffrage League is putting out Scab literature The friends of suffrage wish to brand such tricks as treasonable and the perpetrators as traitors to society.

No doubt other roorbacks will appear and this is not only a warning but a hint at what respectable people think of such treachery.

GOVERNOR COX AND THE NITES OF MOB AND MURDER

The Dayton, Ohio, Journal gives the report of a speech by Governor Cox, of Ohio, before the Knights of Columbus of Dayton.

Among other things, Cox said: "It is an honor to appear in Dayton under the auspices of an organization which is already one of the very distinct factors in the life of this republic. Two years ago I spent several autumn days with William J. Bryan, and talking over the very perceptable increase of the LIBERAL AND TOLERANT SPIRIT abroad in our land, we agreed that the TWO ORGANIZATIONS that had contributed MOST to this end were the KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS and the Young Men's Christian Association.

"It is due largely to the spread of the DELIGHTFUL SPIRIT OF FELLOWSHIP AND FRATERNITY for which this organization stands that provocation which 25 years ago would have resulted in a declaration of war and the instant restore to hostilities along our southern border, sees the strongest power in the world holding back the hand raised to strike while the words of the Nazarene, 'thou shalt not kill,' ring in our ears."

It's difficult to believe that with the deeds, oath, military organization and political scheming of the Knights of Columbus so plainly on record, that such a pack of lies could be spoken by a man in Governor Cox's position. "Liberal and tolerant spirit?" When the Kinghts of Columbus and their church denounce the Y. M. C. A., and advise young men and all Catholics to avoid it. When both acts, and words and records are taken, can they be by any manner of means possible construed to be called a "liberal and tolerant spirit," can the Knights of Columbus kidnapping of Spurbeon be called "the delightful spirit of fellowship and fraternity for which this organization, (the K. of C.) stands?" Hardly.

In Denver, Olewein, Iowa, Carbondale, Penn., in no place has the Knights of Columbus shown anything but the spirit that made the 30 years war, the Massacre of St. Bartholomew, the atrocities under the Duke of Alva in Holland, and so on down to the late burning of Bibles by a Philadelphia Jesuit Priest in the Philippines, these do not show "liberal and tolerant spirit," not a "delightful spirit of fellowship and fraternity." Cox got into Congress through the help of the Knights of Columbus votes, and conspired with them to get into the Governor's Chair, and he's trying to pay for these votes and "deliver the goods." Answer him oh you patriots of Ohio next election day.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 8th day of Oct., 1914.

JOHN C. L. PUGH,
(Seal) Notary Public.

My commission expires Oct. 18th, 1914.

Denver, Colo., Oct. 12:—The Colorado Fuel and Iron Company continues to defy the President of the United States and settlement of the coal strike is at a standstill.

Despite the refusal of President Wilson to consider a partial acceptance of his truce plan, the Colorado coal operators have shown no disposition to alter their original reply and citizens of the state are waiting ot see whether the President will take over the mines or close them down.

The apparent indifference of the mine owners as to the chief executive's wishes seems to bear out the rumor that they hope to elect Carlson Governor on the Republican ticket, and that he has promised to rid the state of all "undesireables" which, of course, means every member of the United Mine Workers.

When John D. Rockerfeller, several months ago, gave $1,000,000 to better the condition of birds, Colorado citizens believed that the limit of spontaneous humor had been reached.

It had not. Now we see that the Rockerfeller Foundation will spend another million to probe "scientifically and systematically" the "bitter enmities and destructive tendencies" between capital and labor and "find means for promoting harmonious, united action between these two great bodies."

This investigation should reveal some interesting things.

We suggest that if John Doe desires to start this probe on the ground floor, he despatch his expert to the olorado coal fields at once to probe "systematically and scientifically" why it was necessary for Standard Oil to murder and cremate nineteen men, women and children at Ludlow; why it was necessary, with machine guns and high powered rifles in the hands of a paid army of 1,000 murderers, to slaughter a total of 34 persons in the coal strike to alleviate the "bitter enmity and destructive tendencies" between Rockefeller and his Colorado miner and promote harmonious, united action between employer and employe.

YOU CANNOT WIN!

By Allan L. Benson

You cannot win unless your class wins—the working class. You cannot win unless you get together and stick together. The Socialist platform is the only place in America in which you can get together without finding grafters and bunco men sandwiched in among you. The Socialist party is a working man's and a working woman's party. Grafters have no use for it. Bunco men steer clear of it. Its platform does not contain a splinter of comfort for any of them. It is on the level and on the square. It will not break down and it will not blow up. If we had a Socialist Congress today, this country would enter upon such an era of prosperity as the world never saw. As a matter of fact, the world has never seen [illegible] few. [illegible] ways close to the [illegible]

SOCIALISTS' RELIGION

To Whom It May Concern

Be it remembered: That the last Legislature of Ohio enacted a law whereby the coal operators of Ohio were to pay the coal miners for all the coal they produce, (lump, nut, pea and slack); that the coal operators have refused to open the mines under this law and thereby forcing idleness, destruction and starvation upon thousands of miners.

Children are starving and will perish when winter comes, and are now out of school for want of clothes, especially shoes.

The Socialists will hold a mass meeting Sunday, Nov. 1st, at 2 o'clock at Socialist Hall, 121½ E. Town St., and will receive donations of clothes and non-perishable food to be sent to proper Socialist committees in the mining districts of Ohio.

It would not be only cheaper, but more humane, more Christian and more sensible to put these mines to work and afford willing men a chance to produce a living, and that is what a Socialist Governor would do, but Governor Cox has made no move to put the mines to work nor care for the destitute miners, but has left them at the mercy of capitalism.

The Governor of Colorado put the bayonet to the breast, yea to the hearts of miners to force them to work at starvation wages. Can not the Governor of Ohio put the bayonet to the breast of the mine owners to compel them to open the mines, rather than defy the law?

One thing is sure, and that is the people of Ohio can put the ballot to the heart of Cox and elect a Socialist Governor who will open those mines or others beside them, under the law of eminent domain.

Bring in your donations in bundles Sunday, Nov. 1st, and bring in your bundle of ballots Nov. 3rd, to same place, 121½ E. Town St., Where, on the night of Nov. 3rd, election returns will be received and a general good time enjoyed with some kind of refreshments, and an opportunity to see our hall with new floor, new decorations, etc., etc.

These donations will be sent direct from donor to the needy and no graft deducted to enhance the bank account of some capitalistic corporation like the Salvation Army, who put aside 50 per cent or more for prayers for those who starve.

BIG OPENING DANCE

The Socialist Dances will be resumed at our Hall, 121½ East Town Street by a special FREE ADMISSION DANCE next Tuesday Evening, October 27th.

A new floor and hall decorations have been provided, and a three piece orchestra will furnish music.

The admission will be by complimentary tickets, which can be secured from any of the committee, or by calling Bell Phones, Main 2934 (State Office), or Main 2639 (The Socialist Office.)

A Weekl[y] [Paper] Without a Muzzle

Vol. IV Whole No. 201 OCT. 31, 1914 Price, 2 Cents per Copy

University Library Ex
O. S. U. N. High st.

THIS PAPER is published in the interest of the working class. If you think it is worthy of your support, support it by getting new subscribers. If you don't like it, don't knock. We are making it as good as you will allow. Whenever the workers support their own press as valiantly as they do the master's press we will be able to do really big things for the emancipation of the workers. In the meantime, we are forging ahead conscious of the fact that our cause is just, that right will finally triumph, and the workers step forth emancipated from the age-long servitude to a robber, master class.

Old Parties Against Working Class

Socialist Candidate, Fred P. Zimpfer, in Addressing an Enthusiastic Audience at First Ward Socialist Hall, Shows How Old Parties Work.

Editor Columbus Socialist.

Dear Comrade—President Wilson wrote a letter to Speaker Underwood in which he praised all of the Democratic Congressmen and himself and asks the people of the United States to please give him another Democratic Congress so he can finish his wonderful program which he has inaugurated since he is President. He then tells how much he has done for the dear people, and what do you think he did for the laboring class? Why he says he gave them a new currency bill by which any one with the proper assets could borrow money. How many laboring men have the proper assets on which to borrow money? And when was there a time that one could not borrow money on the PROPER assets?

That is about all he claims to have done for the laboring class, and that amounts to a big nothing. It is about time that the working class awoke to the fact that low tariff does not help them, and not very long ago they found out that high tariff did not help them, but the majority have already forgotten that and are about ready to go back to the high tariff again. Under high tariff small companies grow to large billion dollar corporations where no President or Congress is big or powerful enough to control or check them. Under low tariff things are just the same, probably a little worse, as the cost of living is higher and wages are 35 per cent lower.

Our system is called the insane system and I think for a common expression it is about the best name that could be found.

Down South there is a very large cotton crop which cannot be moved because we cannot buy it. In Eastern Ohio 28,000 coal miners are shut out from work since April 1, 1914, on account of the Green screen law, which requires the operators to pay the coal miners for all coal mined. These miners are in destitute circumstances, are in need of food and clothing for themselves and their families. These miners need this cotton from the South, when made up into cloth and garments, the Southern cotton growers needs coal and other commodities which are not produced now on account of general unemployment, there are thousands of weavers ready and willing to make these garments and other necessities out of the surplus cotton, there are thousands of miners ready and willing to mine coal to run the factories and railways so the things can be manufactured and transported, but none are allowed this privilege only so far as the profits system will allow. Nothing is even considered except from the standpoint of profit, therefore we have a line of calamities all along the way and we will always have them so long as the profit system survives.

I could mention scores of factories and shops in this city in which the same conditions exist. When things are made for use and not for profit then only will we have a sane system. Before such a condition can exist we must usher in the co-operative commonwealth where all things publicly used are publicly owned and democratically managed, and things privately used are privately owned. There is no doubt many well meaning comrades who have been misled by some shrewd, wily politicians of the old parties, either through religious hatred or the Judas motive, which I think has about got us into deep water and the sooner we get down to pure Socialism the better we will be off and the easier it will be to stay clear of shoals. There is no doubt that things dwelt on for the past few months are very bad and should be corrected but we must remember those conditions are only the fruits of capitalism and the more we educate the working class to Socialism the sooner we will have it and then these bad conditions will be eliminated.

Cox and Willis are stumping the state and are calling each other all sorts of things and are exposing each other's labor record in the Legislature and in Congress and there is no doubt that both of them are telling the truth. All persons who have been patient enough to read all the different charges and counter charges of the two old parties will surely be disgusted with their labor record, as they smell to heaven from the standpoint of labor.

The Progressive party, which has turned into the Prohibition party, has nothing to offer labor, all they are discussing this campaign is the dry issue, and that will solve very little of the labor question. Roosevelt started out in his Columbus speech with "I stand for an Industrial Democracy." Of course he didn't mean a word of it as that would be Socialism. After that he said he did not believe in government ownership but in regulation, that is in the event that the trusts and corporations [illegible] and demanded too much and gave too little in return. Did you ever hear such inconsistencies, and the good citizens in Memorial Hall that night nearly clapped their hands off. Their program is a big nothing for the working class and is only kept alive because Mr. Cox appointed a lot of Progressives to those fat commission jobs in Ohio with the understanding that the Progressive party should split the Republican vote and allow Cox to be re-elected. Things are getting so complicated in our present politics that a working man ought to study political science in order to keep straight, but when a worker once becomes class conscious and understands Socialism then no political trickery can fool him any longer.

Announcement was made from Pittsburg that all employes of the Pittsburg Coal Company not under wage agreements would be cut 10 per cent on October 1, 1914. The Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company and its allied interests announced a reduction of 8 per cent for all salaried employes. In each case the reduction was laid to the depressed business conditions which demanded economy and curtailment of operating expenses. The Carnegie Steel Company announced, October 2, 1914, that it would terminate its existing wage agreement with its 34,000 employes December 31, 1914. That is a little of Democratic prosperity, that's all. That shows how corporations keep their agreements. Old age pensions and the profit sharing plan which they had inaugurated to catch the worker, put him to sleep and make him fight for his (?) company and keep him out of the union and demanding a decent wage. Now they terminate the whole thing and his sweet anticipations for the future are evaporating into a dream.

Working men, wake up, you have nothing to lose but your chains and a world to gain. Go to the poles on November 3, 1914, and vote for your wife and family by voting the Socialist ticket straight.

Candidate for Congress, 12th District.

SOCIALISM AND THE DESTRUCTION OF THE HOME AND THE FAMILY

"Socialism will destroy the Home and the Family!" This has been one of the favorite arguments of the defenders of Capitalism against our cause and against our movement. The capitalist politician on the stump, the capitalist minister of the gospel, and the hireling lecturer of the Dave Goldstein-Pete Collins class were equally determined to prove that the abolition of Capitalism and the introduction of Socialism would be a calamity. In every country where the Socialist movement had made any considerable progress our opponents would meet our arguments with the same misrepresentation. In America more than anywhere else the accusation that "Socialism will destroy the Home and the Family" was being used in the capitalist fight against the Socialist movement. But it was also done in the European countries where the Socialist movement is strongest. In Germany, Russia, Austria, France, England, most of the Conservative, Clerical and other political parties of Capitalism, tied up with their respective national governments, made it a special feature during political campaigns to impress upon the minds of the voters that unless [illegible] the Austrian crown prince and his wife in Serajevo; when this "incident" was made the cause for an Austro-Servian war; when the ruling capitalist pirates and their governments in St. Petersburg, Berlin, London and Paris saw fit to unchain the demons of death and destruction and treat the nations with a world war—the Socialists everywhere protested with all the energy and might at their command. The Socialists demanded international peace; they denounced war and insisted that the capitalist governments adjust their differences and grievances in an amicable way. They called attention to the horrors and sufferings caused by a world war. They protested in vain. They warned in vain. They pleaded in vain. The same capitalis governments that for the last four decades or longer were competing with each other in building up most powerful war machines, and were drilling the nations until all Europe resembled one huge military barrack, one huge military insane asylum—the same capitalist governments were prepared for a world war! They were ready for the great bloodbath, of the world war for the supremacy in the oWrld's markets.

They managed to get the war for which all of them—Austria, Russia, Germany, France, England, etc.—had prepared for nearly fifty years. Today the bloody capitalist business war is on. They are working overtime in the Human Slaughter House. They are destroying the homes of hundreds of thousands of families. They are destroying millions of families. They are completely wrecking the home and family life in every city and town and hamlet in Western, Central and Eastern Europe. They—the capitalist governments of Europe—force the father and the son, the husband and the brother, the boy of 17 and the man of 45 and over, to leave their homes, to leave their families, their wives and babes, sisters and mothers, and report forthwith at the huge Human Slaughter House, where these victims of capitalist war mania must slaughter their fellow men and then be themselves slaughtered. By means of the most modern machinery of murder, and destruction, by means of the latest scientific methods this bloody work in the Human Slaughter House is carried on. The most destructive explosives known to man are used for the destruction of human life. These explosives in shells weighing 2500 pounds are hurled by huge machinery called siege guns at the enemy stationed seven miles away. Where one of these shells hits, there death and destruction reign supreme. One of these capitalist bombs will destroy hundreds of homes and families by killing as many fathers, sons, husbands and brothers. These deadly explosives are hurled at the "enemy" from the airships and aeroplanes, and they are dispatched as torpedoes at big battleships from the submarine boats. Only recently one of these capitalist torpedo bombs destroyed fifteen hundred able-bodied men within a few minutes!

Yes — — — "Socialism will destroy the home and the family!" This old capitalist lie is today drastically illustrated by the million-fold destruction of home and family during the capitalist world war, during this capitalist business war! In this one war International Capitalism is destroying millions of homes and families in every city and town and hamlet of Austria, Servia, Russia, Germany, France, England and Belgium, and in thousands of places in Canada, Africa, Asia and Australia! And this work of destruction of homes and families under the rule of Capitalist Imperialism and Militarism is carried on most methodically and most scientifically! It is carried on under the cloak of patriotism, freedom, civilization, but in reality it is the murderous war for dirty Capitalist business!

Is it Socialism or Capitalism that destroys the home and the family?

STATE-WIDE PROHIBITION ENDORSED BY CATHOLIC PRIEST

And Releases his Church Members to Vote for State and Nation-Wide Prohibition. It's the Winning Side.

In the Columbus Evening Dispatch of Nov. last, Father Patrick J. Murphy is quoted on the Temperance question as follows: "Every Catholic in the United States is free absolutely to vote for and work for National Prohibition. No liquor force shall compel the Catholics of this country to form any part of their army." Good! Bravo Father Murphy! We are especially hopeful of the ultimate success of Prohibition, now, and that too, nation-wide, as it is generally understood that the Catholic church has the almost complete control of its voting members on this as well as other matters. Now that the Church has released her voting members (She must have recently released them else why this announcement)—we have great faith in the integrity of the Catholic laymen as a class to exercise this freedom of the ballot against the saloon.

Therefore since the Catholic church has taken this stand against the saloon if the Priests will vote as they pray and work, and really lead their members to do the same thing they will be a power over the Protestant churches for the Attitude of Protestant Churches has heretofore been to "Preach and pray, then vote the other way," but it is to be hoped that they too will at least be consistent hereafter.

There are enough protestants and catholics in this country to wipe out the saloon if they will VOTE as they prAy instead of VOTE as they prEy.

The motive of Catholic and Protestant churches today is quite well.

"THE SOCIALIST."

To the Voters of Columbus and Franklin County:

Many of our best citizens, and, among them many prominent Republicans and Democrats, believe that some of the six Common Pleas Judges of Franklin County (now all Republicans) should be Socialists, thus putting our courts into proper balance, politically, and making them as nearly non-partisan as possible. And that is the very purpose of the law which was enacted a few years ago creating the NON-PARTISAN "Judicial Ticket." Talk this over with your neighbor.

In making the above statement we wish it understood that we have no quarrel with any of our present judges, and our candidacy is free from all personal controversies.

We shall be pleased to receive your votes, and your kindly influence in our behalf.

Respectfully submitted,

GORE, GLORY AND GRAFT.
W. S. Morgan

Gore, glory and graft constitute the triune of hell that now reigns in Europe.

The servile press, owned and controlled by capitalism, had taught the damnable doctrine that patriotism consisted of bodies of organized men, trained in the use of instruments of death and destruction, killing other organized bodies of men at the behest of a king who sought glory in conquest and an extension of his power.

War is a golden harvest for capitalism.

It collars on the profits of the manufacture and sale of implements of death and destruction, and dealing in supplies for the armies.

The glory is for the officers, the statesmen and the king.

The graft is for the cowardly curs who precipitate the war and profit on the disaster.

The gore is for the poor dupes who go out to shoot each other down without cause, and when the thing is over to go home (what is left of them) and labor to pay a debt which represents the expenses of the whole farce.

The war in Europe is a return to savagery-barbarism.

It is a defiant challenge to civilization.

It spits upon the decalogue and tramples Christianity under foot.

Greed for gain;
Greed for power;
Greed for glory.

The triple headed monster from hell linked with the princes of the earth.

In all the world's history nothing like it has ever before happened.

It is the culmination of all the cruelties the masters have heaped upon their slaves.

It required such a spectacle, such a sacrifice, and such a catastrophe to convince the human intellect that the time had come for a new order of things.

Europe trembling and cowering under the ambition and power of one man was too much for Deity.

The world was pregnant with a new era and the time for the birth was full.

The earth will drink the blood of the toilers and their graves will be made green by its fertility.

Women and children will become wanderers in the land, and want and hunger will breed crime as never before in the world's history.

If hell had vomited forth all the demons of its dominions the catastrophe could have been no worse.

Greed and gore and glory are in the saddle, but they are there for the final struggle.

Darkness will settle over the earth for a short time, but a new light will shine, a new era will dawn, and this Gehenna hatched triune

"Will be buried deep as hell
And resurrection dead as well."

DON'T FORGET COLORADO

Denver, Colo., Sept. 29:—The Colorado coal operators have refused to accept President Wilson's proposition for a three-year truce and the strike which has resulted in seventy-five deaths may continue indefinitely unless the President takes over the mines or closes them down.

John R. Lawson, Executive Board member of the United Mine Workers, today issued the following statement regarding the operators' reply to President Wilson's letter, outlining an adjustment of the coal strike:

"Concerning the proposition submitted by the President of the United States to the miners and operators, it is unnecessary to say that some of the clauses were, of course, objectionable to the strikers.

"But the miners, after giving it due consideration, keeping in mind that it was backed by the influence of President Wilson and in an effort to show the public they desired to be fair, accepted it.

"The operators, who have taken the public into their confidence so often with statements which were not borne out by facts, continued this policy in their letter to the President when Mr. Welborn said his company was producing 70 per cent of their tonnage. Records in the Colorado Fuel and Iron office show that that company produced from Jan. 1 to Sept. 1, 1914, but 57.99 per cent of the amount of coal mined during the same period of 1913.

"They tell the President that they 'conscientiously did everything to prevent the trouble with their employes and then to heal the breach.' Is it possible that they mean they tried to prevent the trouble by their importation from West Virginia of deadly machine guns and hundreds of vicious and unscrupulous Baldwin-Felts gunmen, or that at Ludlow they were trying to heal the breach?

"The operators have blundered miserably since the beginning. They have proven [illegible] who the real [illegible]. When Ethelbert Stewart, [illegible] of Secretary Wilson, was in Denver, they treated him with utter contempt. When Secretary of Labor Wilson was here in person, his treatment was little better than that of his subordinate. He had hardly left the state before they began to malign him, casting reflections on his sincerity in trying to bring about an amicable settlement. Deliberate attempts were also made to deceive the Congressional Committee by the introduction of irrelevant and misleading testimony.

"The federal commission of Conciliation, Fairley tand Davies, was treated with equal discourtesy.

"And now, to cap the climax, comes the monumental blunder of them all—they attempt to browbeat and bully-rag the President of the United States.

JOHN R. YAWSON."

MILITARISM VERSUS SOCIALISM
By "Casey" in London Labor Leader.

There is only one force in the world to oppose militarism. Rulers in each country know this. A bright gleam of hope recently shot across our military horizon of mistrust when certain officers and private in the British army refused to be a party to sacrificing their friends in Ulster to the murder machine. They refused to kill their kith and kin. This was a truly marvelous incident without parallel in the history of British militarism and caste governorship.

The Pauline position thus adopted when the scales of blind obedience fell from their eyes, unfortunately, left them little time for reflection until they were involved in a European struggle. Yet the writing is on the wall. Once you get the soldier to recognize he has a brother across the Irish Sea, you may extend his vision to jump the German Ocean.

Militarism makes mock of manhood by preaching the gospel of obedience. The military man does not choose whom he shall kill and when; thta is the preragative of those in authority. This year, Germany, Austria, Russia, Belgium, or France; next year, Italy, China, Turkey or Japan, as the case may or may not be.

The soldier must do as he is bid. Yet those in authority know they must not expect too much, so they never send Irish soldiers to break Dublin strikes, Welsh soldiers to cow Rhondda miners, or Lancashire lads to quell Oldham factory hands. They ring the changes, a very ancient and deep game. Militarism is the Upas tree of all nations. Its chief asset in Bogeyphobia. It says to the Germans, "The Russians 'll gobble you if you don't look out," or "Beware the awful avalanche of England's two-to-one power standard." It threatens the Italians with the double eagle of Austria a-comin' to peck out their eyes, and it warns the Englishman of the colonies he will lose. Not one Englishman in a thousand has seen his colonies and his chance in the future may be less because we are adding to them at the rate of one per week. Militarism pools hates to subdue other hates, and when the haters have capture the chattels they rend each other. Such was the case in the recent Balkan struggle when the murderers quarreled over the loot. England, both because of its isolation and its great aptitude to annex, has grievously misused its wonderful opportunities for the preachment of justice, co-operation, and fraternity. Every nation is has conquered it has practically turned into an armed cockpit. It has sown dragons' teeth by military methods so that India, Africa, Ireland, Scotland, Wales, Malta, Egypt, America, and Canada are forcing grounds for the production of drilled automatons who will obey the beck and call of the person in power.

The blood and iron folks have had a grand inning. They won their way in England under William the Conqueror, and his arrogance prevails to this very day.

A well-known Socialist writer recently put the following query: "Would any other power govern our colonies better than we or leave them to govern themselves as full as we?"

I am unpatriotic enough to believe that most of our colonies, including India and Ireland, could be much better governed.

If Irish historians give us even one grain of truth in their controversial stuff, if Hyndman's or Hardie's reviewes of England in India are worthy of acceptance, then English ruling—whether by deputies or Warren Hasting's class—stands condemned by the myriads of famine victims in both countries. Few today care to recall the Boer war. Myriads of Socialists, however, were opposed to it, as they are opposed to the present or any diplomatic war whatever.

The Boer war ended as all wars in the past have done. Balaclava heroes in workhouses and crippled Tommies selling matches! The present Botha autocracy crushing phthisis-punished miners or overworked railway men cannot compare with the old Kruger regime.

No alien governors can replace the inborn heritage, hopes and aspirations of a conquered race.

National aspirations, loves, and ideals slumber deep in the heart of humblest Hindoo or harried Irish Kern, and 'tis a poor nation that cannot govern itself better than the oppressor can.

As I fight the war is practically settled. Germany has lost the rubber. Still the fight will go on.

The Germans will fight by order until they die to prove that they are not cowards. The Allies will fight to avenge the atrocities or bring the Kaiser to his knees. So the process of manufacturing English, Irish, Scottish, Welsh, French, Belgian and German orphans will continue as usual.

The soldier, of course, cannot start when he desires or stop when he wishes. When the diplomats say "Go" he goeth; when they say "Stop" he stoppeth.

There be some frail folk, who, knowing the horrors of Belgium, think the best way to avenge these poor women and children would be to make some other poor women and children in Prussia or Austria go through similar horrors—this way madness lies.

As a rule those who create the wars are not the ones who suffer. One or two women in history knew this and altered it. Judith and Holofernes was one incident which occurs to me.

"How many men do you require to take that position?" asked the German Emperor of one of his generals in 1870.

"Thirty thousand, Sire."

"Then take it," he replied.

He made a good guess, too, for the loss was appalling. Kitchener calls it "Wastage." The Kaiser, I suppose, is prepared to lose a million of men. Ere this bloody butchery is over the loss may be much more.

War is a game that when subjects are wise kings will not be allowed to play at. A system that creates millions of orphans, homeless men and women, shatters the strong and turns them into driveling idiots, has no more to do with Socialism than a reptile has to do with a swallow.

A BANKER'S VICTORY
By George Allan England

The wheat lies sodden on the plain,
Trampled beneath the blood-wet ground.
In yonder field, behold the mound
Of wounded, and of mangled slain.

The slaughtered herd, behind the garth,
Mingles its blood with human blood.
A boy sprawls, shattered, in the mud;
And o'er the blackened peasant-hearth

[illegible] bugles [illegible]
Dies in the stricken night, afar.

A Maxim, lolling in the mire,
Points its grim muzzle to the sky,
Toward which the flame-sheaf, blazing high,
Flares from the crackling village spire.

A mother, sabred as she fled,
Clutches the baby at her breast.
Red glare the heavens, in the west
—A burning town, where all lie dead.

A ravished maiden, stark and cold,
Stares at the sky with sightless eyes.
See! In the ditch her father lies,
Shot down by the Uhlans, riding bold!

In yonder hedge the ravens croak,
Full-gorged on unaccustomed fare.
And, drifting through the evening air,
Trail somber clouds of heavy smoke.

Aloft, the whirring Zeppelins scout,
Seeking what they may shatter, still;
How they may work their grisly will
To add new slaughter to the rout.

Night shrouds the red earth from God's eye,
Beneath the mercy of its pall.
Hark! Once again the bugles call!
BEHOLD THE BANKERS' VICTORY.

THE VOICE OF THE PEOPLE
By James G. Clark

"Swing inward, O gates of the future,
Swing outward, ye doors of the past,
For the soul of the people is moving
And rising from slumber at last;
The black forms of night are retreating,
The white peaks have signaled the day,
And Freedom her long roll is beating,
And calling her sons to the fray.

And woe to the rule that has plundered
And trod down the wounded and slain,
While the wars of the Old Time have thundered
And men poured their life tide in vain;
The day of its triumph is ending,
The evening draws near with its doom,
And the star of its strength is descending
To sleep in dishonor and gloom.

Swing inward, O gates till the morning
Shall paint the brown mountains in gold,
Till the life and the love of the New Time
Shall conquer the hate of the old.
Let the face and the hand of the Master
No longer be hidden from view,
Nor the lands He prepared for the many
Be trampled and robbed by the few.

The soil tells the same fruitful story,
The seasons their bounties display,
And the flowers lift their faces in glory
To catch the warm kisses of day;
While our fellows are treated as cattle
That are muzzled when treading the corn,
And millions sink down in life's battle
With a sigh for the day they were born.

Must the sea plead in vain that the river
May return to its mother for rest,
And the earth beg the rain clouds to give her
Of dews they have drawn from her breast?
Lo! the answer comes back in a mutter
From domes where the quick lightnings glow,
And from heights where the mad waters utter
Their warnings to dwellers below.

And woe to the robbers who gather
In fields where they never have sown,
Who have stolen the jewels from labor
And builded to Mammon a throne;
For the snow-king asleep by the fountains
Shall wake in the summer's hot breath,
And descend in his rage from the mountains
Bearing terror, destruction and death.

And the throne of their god shall be crumbled,
And the scepter be swept from his hand,
And the heart of the haughty be humbled,
And a servant be chief in the land,—
And the Truth and the Power united
Shall rise from the graves of the True,
And the wrongs of the Old Time be righted
In the might and the light of the New.

[illegible]rvest hath said it—
[illegible] to him who has reveled in plunder
Till the angel of conscience is dumb,
The shock of the earthquake and thunder
And tempest and torrent shall come.

Swing inward, O gates of the future!
Swing outward, ye doors of the past!

A giant is waking from slumber
And rending his fetters at last,—
From the dust, where his proud tyrants found him
Unhonored and scorned and betrayed,
He shall rise from the sunlight around him
And rule in the realm he has made."

I'LL TAKE THE BLAME, COMRADE

Sept. 29, 1914.

Mr. Bates:

Dear Sir—

Enclosed you will find a story told in poetry. If you wish to publish it, do so. I am a reader of The Socialist, and expect to vote it straight through. You made a Socialist out of me, so if I am wrong, you will be to blame for it.

Hoping you and the party all over the United States a grand success, I am, yours truly,

OLEE DAVIS.

YOUR KINGDOM IS OVER

You have bled us year after year,
You millionaires of gloom;
There is not a dollar of your wealth
But represents a tomb.
We made those millions for you,
Our eyes were full of wool,
Blood—the price of all your wealth—
Good God! we've paid in full.

There's not an engine gets derailed
That we are not its crew;
There's not a mine disaster
Where we do not die for you.
In factories, foundries, mills and such
Where life is but a duel,
Death—the price of all your wealth—
Good God! we've paid in full.

In strikes we shoot each other down,
A ghastly, weird tale;
If we refuse your stern command
You throw us all in jail.
You kill our wives and babies,
And burn our homes for spite;
Ghoul—the price of legal wealth—
Good God! we've bought it right.

We bought the wealth of all this land
And gave it all to you;
(I mean you stole it from us),
And what were we to do?
We've pulled the wool from off our eyes
And threw away our gun;
Our souls—the price of legal wealth—
Good God! your time has come.

Your kingdom now is finished,
There's writing on the wall;
It's not so very far away—
Your monarchy will fall.
We'll crush you with the ballot,
And do it fair and true;
Our blood will cease to flow for you,
May God assist us through.

THE WORLD AT WAR

"Put up the sword!" The voice of Christ once more
Speaks, in the pauses of the cannon's roar,
O'er fields of corn by fiery sickles reaped
And left dry ashes; over the trenches heaped
With nameless dead; o'er cities starving slow
Under a rain of fire; through wards of woe
The mighty tide of men that rolls,
With welling hearts and stirring souls,
The doom of greed's oppression tolls
Get together!

Behold them in their gathering might,
Arise, and face the growing light,
Get together!
The hundreds into thousands grow
And join the stream where millions flow
Toward myriads uncounted—oh,
Get together!

The final conflict gathers fast!
Get together!
The greatest battle and the last!
Get together!
The hosts, their weapons firmly gird
E'en now in joyous chorus heard
Together chanting victory's word,
Get together!

In crashing cadence list the sound,
Get together!
It belts the circling earth around,
Get together!
The tyrant in his power hears
And trembles, as the rumor nears
While Liberty her banner rears
Get together!

The dawn of Justice's reign appears,
Get together!
The mist from Freedom's sunlight
Get together!
clears,
Behold the world of workers merge
In firm fraternal spirit surge,
Onward with Time's eternal urge
Get together!

Waiting to hear the step that never comes!
O men and brothers let that voice be heard,
War fails, try peace; put up the useless sword!

WORKERS' RALLYING SONG

By Arthur Elliot Marsh

Once more the brazen clarions ring:
Get together!
Abroad their stirring summons fling,
Get together!
From sea to sea with trumpet blast
The call resounds as 'twere the last
And echoes answer, billowing fast,
Get together!

In burning letters 'thwart the skies—
Get together!
The legent bids the workers rise.
Get together!
From mouth to mouth the word is flung,
In swelling chorus hear it sung,
In every clime, in every tongue—
Get together!

'Tis numbers now shall most avail:
Get together!
The masses win where heroes fail!
Get together!

An ardent suffragist in Ohio has written the following letter to the editor of The Call:

"Here in Ohio 300,000 working women are asking that the vote be given them this fall. It is natural that in the struggle for suffrage many women should lose sight of the real meaning of the vote—a weapon whose possession makes participation in even greater struggles possible; but I believe that these working women, from the very conditions of their lives, cannot help seeing that the struggle for the vote is only the first of a series of struggles toward economic freedom, and, clearsighted to this extent, a majority of them must ultimately come to see that their fight is one with that of the Socialist party.

As Ohio has no longer a Socialist press, I, as one of the 300,000, am writing to you, begging that you find some way of urging the Socialist voters of Ohio vigorously to support the suffrage cause in November, for it is, after all, their cause; its success will mean strength to them and the encouragement of at least a doubled Socialist vote. Sincerely yours,

SYBIL COX.

The Socialist lives to fight the battles of the working class. The working women of Ohio are a vital part of the working class.

And the Socialist means to do every thing within its power to bring to the women of Ohio a victory for equal suffrage.

At the outset the suffragists of Ohio, in common with the suffragists of every other state, may rest assured that the fighting spirit of the Socialist party is with them. Socialists pioneered for suffrage.

It is exceedingly doubtful if the women of California would have the ballot today if thousands of men and women in the Socialist party had not marched in the front rank of their battle line.

Working men and women of Ohio, in the fight for equal suffrage you have a great fight to win. You are opposed by the combined reactionary interests of your state. That always is the case. The reaction fears the intelligent woman voter.

But no matter how severe, how unscrupulous, how unrelenting, how well financed the opposition may be, your duty to your class calls for the best fight you are capable of making in the interest of equal suffrage in your state.

And The Socialist wishes to say to the women of Ohio: This newspaper belongs to the working class. Its mission is to serve the working class. Your fight is a fight that belongs to the working class. For whatever service this newspaper can perform to aid you in your cause you have the right to ask—and get. This newspaper wants you to win. And it purposes to help you to the limit of its ability.

Even though at times you act like you were ashamed of Socialists and Socialism, yet our hearts are so thoroughly in earnest in the cause of woman suffrage that we will overlook [illegible] seeming slights for the wrong [illegible] recalcitrant capitalist parties. [illegible] because we will for the time allow you to flirt with the other snobs, well knowing that you will get insulted to your hearts content as you did by Woodrow not so long since.

city—the great City of New York—is passing the time advising the working people to eat cheaper foods.

The charities organizations announce that they are confronted by an enormous army of idle and starving men and women. They admit that there are more than 500,000 idle men in New York.

This situation is grave. It is a situation such as connot continue indefinitely. It may be that the capitalist class knows this, but the chances are that it doesn't.

In the midst of this outrageous condition, the good little devils who run the city government hand out recipes for cheap living. They are doing the most futile, the most childish, the most ridiculous and the most outrageous thing that they could do.

America today is a land of plenty. There is enough food and there is enough of everything. There is so much that none ought to feel the slightest pinch of hunger. Yet millions are hungrp.

Instead of recipes for cheaper meals—damndest of all the petty cant and hypocrisy of an ignorant bourgeoise—the demand of the hour is for publicly owned food supply, for the complete elimination of the greedy, grasping, plundering interests that are locking factories and putting up the prices of food, and, from their offices in city halls, putting thousands out of work.

IN THE MIDST OF PLENTY WE ARE DOOMED TO STARVE

Starved—$1.35 a Week

Another indictment of the system a majority of the workers support, comes from Schenectady, N. Y. It is a story of privation, destitution, misery and death almost unbelievable.

George Zdeb is a laboring man employed at the Schenectady plant of the American Locomotive Company. His wages is $1.35 a day and for many weeks he has been working but one day a week. On this pitiful sum, Mrs. Zdeb, her husband and two children, a boy four years old and a girl of six, have been slowly starving to death. A few days ago the mother was found dead. The coroner's investigation brought out the facts. That death was due to starvation was the coroner's verdict.

Congress promptly came to the rescue of the stranded American tourists with millions. Congress appropriated a billion dollars to help the poor bankers.

A situation confronts the working people of America that is no different in its essentials from the situation that involves Europe.

The City of New York has thrown 30,000 men out of work. The city needs to have the work done, but the wisdom of the "uplift" in the City Hall says that the city isn't going to have it done.

Instead of giving men work, the

CAPITALISTS THE REAL ANARCHISTS

Before reading the article below, let me pry open your skull and allow your brain, if you have any, to expand enough to get the real facts in the case.

For years the masters of the larder have called Socialists "Anarchists" and all such names. Today, if a Socialist speaks against war and for Peace, he is scowled at. If he refuses to give up his family, home and life for these same masters of the larder he is court-martialed and imprisoned or shot down. But these anarchistic masters of the larder gobble up the sugar, coffee, flour and other food stuff and calmly refuse not only to give it up at a fair price, but refuse to even tell Uncle Sam how much he has or where it is. In fact tells Woodrow Wilson and his puppets virtually to go to war (Hell).

If Uncle Sam can come into my home and confiscate me, my son and my automobile for war defense, then why in H— can't Uncle Sam do the same to the other fellow who holds the sugar bag?

The reason is that [illegible] hol dthe strings to the [illegible] and [illegible] bags has the [illegible] attached [illegible] of the guns, and when he pulls the strings on one it pulls it on the other and the consumer who aproaches gets it in the heart before he gets any in the stomach.

Let's vote the Socialist ticket, get control of those guns, unloose the strings on the sugar, coffee and flour bags and bid all accept an opportunity to fire. Read the article:

WILL HOLD SUGAR FOR MORE GAIN

Tells Court He Has Stored 10,000 Tons—100,000 More Held Up—Storage Firm Refuses Information.

That a few men have cornered the country's raw sugar crop, causing the retail cost of the product to soar to unprecedented heights, was the statement made yesterday before Supreme Court Justice Benedict in Brooklyn by Eberhardt [illegible]ger, a commission man. The witness admitted that he himself was holding 10,000 tons. Nearly 40,000 tons are being hoarded in New York City, he declared, while 60,000 more are stored in Cuba.

It was also brought out that refiners are refusing to sell at 7¼ cents sugar which they bought at 4 cents a pound, in the hope of being able to realize still larger profits later.

Officers of the Bush Terminal Company were called upon to testify as to how much foodstuffs were stored in the great Brooklyn Terminal, but refused all information to the court.

Raw sugar sold last March as low as 1 1-8 cents, while the prices quoted yesterday were 7¼ cents.

The fabulous sum of a round million dollars is said to have been reaped by a Southern planter, who had 100,000 bags of raw sugar on hand when the war broke out. At that time it cost 2 cents a pound. Recently he sold it at 5 cents, making a profit of $10 on a bag.

stated by Governor Hanna of North Dakota as well as many others who have spoken at the Anti-Saloon Convention when he said, "During the years when we had open saloons it was found that whenever a rain came on and stopped the harvest or threshing for a day or so, that the men would leave the farms and congregate in the saloon and get drunk and when the weather cleared up the farmer would find that a large per cent. of the men were unfit for labor." Congressman Don C. McMullen also said, "The greatest possible triumph of national financeering would be to turn into the channels of legitimate trade the enormous streams of money that is now flowing from the pockets of the WAGE-EARNERS of this country into the coffers of brewers and distillers." Economic determism pure and simple seems to be the absolute MOTIVE, the GIST of the temperance movement of today and is being bounteously financed by the other so-called legitimate profit-mongers. Why? Because a sober man can produce more than a drunken man. A sober man is on the job every day making profits for his master. If the rain in North Dakota had been managed by a God who knew how to stop the rain, start the sunshine and sober up the harvest hands all at the same time the farmers of North Dakota and their brilliant Governor would not have cared a rap for the profligacy of the harvest hands. For one hundred years the Church has thundered her sermons and prayers into the ears of its members and its God but neither seemed to hear or heed until some one WHISPERED into the ear of the employing class members and straight way the class-conscious profit-takers pricked up their intellect, (he has no intellect save on the question of profits), got on the job and they are now jollifying over sure victory to be consummated in 1915. All right Gentlemen of the Cloth sometimes THE DEVIL LENDS A HELPING HAND TO MINIONS UNDER HIS COMMAND.

Socialists are opposed to being exploited by those who own the tools of production and whereby they take all we produce and give back only as much as is necessary to enable us to reproduce the same or more the next day and to breed, nurture and teach more wage-salves to take our places when we are old and worn out.
